It is understood that the Japanese proposals, though they do not molest the security of the throne. are revolutionary and the fact that the audience of the cabinet members with the Emperor was brief, is believed to be evidence of the consternation of the court.

Agitators Reach Seoul.

Many agitators from the provinces are arriving here. They are not permitted to assemble in the city and therefore are meeting in suburban towns, where 100 soldiers were yesterday detailed to disperse them.

On account of the prevailing heat, drought and disquiet the financial archives of the government and also the correspondence of the various government departments have been removed to the Japanese city to insure their safety from destruction by fire.

Palace Subordinates Arrested.

Wholesale arrests of subordinates-leaving the palace began at 4 o'clock vesterday afternoon, the object being to intercept possible communications from the former Emperor which might throw light on alleged plots.

Ito Presents Japs' Demands.

TOKIO, Japan, July 24.-(Evening.) -According to a dispatch received here from Seoul, this morning, Marquis Ito received a long message yesterday, July 23, from the imperial government in this city and opened negotiations with the Korean government the same evening. The Korean ministry is now holding a Pete, the Autocrat of White House, Goes Into Exile for Attacking Lineman.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24 .-Pete, the white house bulldog, is in disgrace again, and this time he has rally come to "the end of his rope." Last Friday a lineman in the employ of one of the telegraph companies dropped down in Pete's particular back yard to connect up a wire, but about the only connection he made was with the dog's teeth in the calf of his leg. As soon as the President became cognizant that Pete had added another crime to his already long list he ordered Charley, the negro footman, to go over to Washington to secure the dog and convey him to parts unknown.

And in all probability Pete is wondering what it is all about. He was warned against chewing up unsuspecting envoys extraordinary and ministers plenipoten-

FOREMAN SAVES FORTY

New York Laborers Face Death in Tunnel and Ben Connors Leads Them Out.

NEW YORK, July 24 .- Forty laborers ran, swam and fought for their lives when the new sewer in West Fortyfifth street was flooded Tuesday night and but for the coolness of Foreman Ben Connors, all would have perished.

The men were working in the tube, which is eight feet in diameter, a block in length and forty feet below the surface. HAU WILL NOT HANG,

Grand Duke of Baden Opposes Death Penalty and Will Probably Commute Sentence.

BERLIN, Germany, July 24.—It is known that the Grand Duke of Baden is strongly opposed to the death penalty, consequently it is believed that he will commute the death sentence imposed by the court at Karlsruhe upon Karl Hau, for the murder of his wife's mother, to imprisonment for life ,particularly as he has taken similar action in a large number of previous cases.

Aschaffenburg, a distinguished psychologist, sat in the court room and listened to the testimony for four days of the Hau trial. He wrote Herr Dietz, counsel for Hau, before the conclusion of the trial, that he was obliged to leave Karlsruhe, but he had not the least doubt that Hau would be acquitted. "In spite of the fact that much remains in darkness," the professor said, "I am convinced that Hau did not commit this murder."

NEW YORK, July 24.—Seeking a mo-tive for the murder of H. S. No color was given to their theory Berros Hampartzoomian, who killed the

NEW YORK, July 24.—From all parts of the country President Roosevelt has, during the last few days, received cards urging him to reconsider his declaration of 1904 and accept another nomination for the presidency. They are rather elaborately printed, con taining a picture of the white house, which is the inscription "Uncle Sam Will Renew the Lease.

NORFOLK, Va., July 24.-That every chaplain in the United States navy, except three, contributed to a fund to buy legislation and lobby for the chaplain's bill is the charge made by Chaplain Harry W. Jones in an extended statement made Tuesday, in which he further defends himself against the accusation that he does not pay his bills and that he corresponded with a woman who put an advertisement in the papers.

He recites the circumstances of a num ber of alleged approaches made to exact tribute for the chaplain's bill fund, and declares threats were made that the man who failed to contribute would be punished for refusal.

Death Roll Is 98.

It is known that of 188 passengers reported by the company as sailing on the Columbia, 97 were saved by the George W. Elder, who towed the San Pedro into Eureka

There were sixty in the crew of the Columbia and of these thirty-eight were on the Elder. Reports from Shelter announce the arrival of one boat with fifteen more passengers and crew, leaving the total death roll at ninetyeight.

Saved by Boiler Explosion.

That so many escaped is accredited, strange to say, to the fact that the explosion of the boilers when the steamer was sinking, counteracted the tremendous suction and saved a lot of people who te in the water from being drawn into vortex and down with the wreckage

The back wave from the sinking steam er, threw many swimming for their lives, back from the point of danger and gave them a chance to escape.

Not a few of the passengers on board the Columbia were teachers and their friends who had been attending the National Educational association in Los Angeles. Many of these have been rescued and were among the arrivals on board the George W. Elder. Offer Prayers of Thanksgiving. On Sunday evening there was an affecting scene on board the Elder, when the rescued passengers gathered in the social hall and divine services were held by Rev. Dr. Frank Talmage of Los Angeles, son of T. Dewitt Talmage. Kneeling on the floor the passengers joined in offering thanks to the Almighty or their deliverances.

It was a touching spectacle while women and men with bruised faces and limbs in strange clothes supplied by the passengers and crew of the Elder sang 'Nearer My God to Thee" and "Rock of Ages.

Sank in Eight Minutes.

Eight minutes after the San Pedro struck the Columbia the latter vessel had filled full of water and sunk. The night filled full of water and sunk. The night saloon watchman notified all the passengers to go to the upper deck. Without clothing they climbed out of their berths and rushed off out. It was only two or ribs, July, 9.15; September, and rushed off out. It was only two or saloon watchman notified all the passen-gers to go to the upper deck. Without three minutes before the decks were awash. Six boats and three life rafts awash. were cut loose and as many passengers as possible were crowded into them. G. Peterson, a sailor aboard the 'olumbia, was on watch on the forecastle. He could see the lights of the San Pedro some hundred yards away. He gave notice of this fact in a shout to his superiors on the bridge. What they did he does not know, but at any rate the Columbia shot across the path of the San Pedro. He says that signals were exchanged between both vessels, but that there was hardly time enough to slacken speed or make any prepara-tion to meet the inevitable disaster.

Misty and Foggy.

Passengers say that the collision ocured at half past 12 or thereabouts; that it had been misty and foggy, but that the weather had cleared up somewhat, and that after the collision, the steamer San Pedro could be seen where she had drifted away a quarter of a mile. That some poor navigation was made is generally conceded. It is said that the San Pedro was under a slow bell and the Columbia, according to the testimony of passengers was going at full speed. It is said that she was headed west when the collision occurred and one passenger stated that the Columbia crossed the bow or attempted to cross the bow of the San

Picked Up No Life Rafts. There were pitiful scenes at Astoria when it was learned that the Elder had picked up none of the Columbia's life boats or rafts. All hope had departed boats or rafts. for some and they slipped away to their sorrow as best they might. only too true-the Elder had not sighted any of the missing rafts or boats and had picked up none of the victimes after leaving Eureka. It was a curious crowd that thronged down the gang plank. Attired in all sorts of misfit garments, the survivors presented an odd appearance. Every possible demonstration of joy of hugging and kissing continued for many minutes. Some few were overcome by the excite ment of the meeting and some women fainted, but were soon revived. Flowers were distributed and hot coffee and other good things were there for the survivors who needed them.

Dead List Is 98.

But few changes have been made in the lists of lost and saved of the steamer Columbia published yesterday.

The steamer officials have been informed that Chew Mock of Oakland, a Chinese first class traveler who was reported missing was among the saved. Miss B. Musser was also found to be among those saved, instead of missing, as at first reported. The company has announced that the bodies of the victims were being held by the coroner at Eureka pending orders from friends and relatives to have them shipped to this city and Portland. remains of eastern passengers will be sent home by both routes.

A revised list of the passengers shows 108 saved and 77 missing. Of the offi-cers and crew 40 were saved and 16 This makes a total of 93 are missing. unaccounted for. Manitowoc People Investigate.

CROP CONDITIONS IN WESTERN CANADA.

Lateness of Spring Overcome by Excellent Growing Summer Season. Once more the farmers of Western Canada rest at ease and grow rich while they slumber. Their season of anxiety is over. For a time it looked as though the backward season was for once going to prevent the western country from maintaining its pre-eminent position as leader of the grain growing countries of the world. The unusual lateness of the spring, coupled with the rapid advance in the price of foodstuffs, gave the pessimists some reason for their gloomy forebodings and among even the optimistic Westerners imbued, as they usually are, with a spirit of buoyancy and hope, therecommenced to glimmer a fear that perhaps this year their sanguine expectations were not to be realized. On May day, when a large proportion of wheat has usually been sown, therewas this year very little seeding done. Finally, however, winter, which had tarried so late in the lap of spring in all parts of the Continent vanished before the vertical rays of the sun, and the hurry and bustle of spring work commenced on the western prairies. By the 20th of May 85 per cent of the spring wheat was sown and the fall wheat in the districts devoted to its cultivation was covering the fields with a mantle of green. Wheat sowing finished on May 30th, and by June 10th, the coarser grains were also in the ground. The heavy snewfall during the winter left the ground in excellent shape when once seeding operationscommenced, and from the time weather conditions permitted the commencement of work until planting was completed, the farmers were a busy class. The area in wheat is not much larger than last year but oats, barley and flax are much in excess of past records, the farmers deeming it wiser on account of the lateness of the season to put in a heavier proportion of the coarser grains. From the most reliable reports to hand it appears that the acreage as compared with 1906 will show an increase of 12 per cent in oats, 19 per cent in barley and 13 per cent in flax.

Around Okotoks, High River, Nanton, Claresholm and other winter wheat centers, if the present weather conditions continue, the winter wheat will be in head by the middle of July.

The backward weather in the early part of May allowed the newly-sown grain to get a firm root in the ground and now, with an abundance of moisture and warm weather, the growth is remarkable. All danger of injury from droughts is practically over, as the green crop covers the ground, retaining the moisture required for its growth, and preventing the too rapid evaporation which might otherwise take place.

Crops in Western Canada mature in one hundred days of good weather, and as the weather conditions have been ideal since seeding, and with spring wheat now from 14 to 18 inches abovethe ground, a full average crop is confidently expected.

In addition to the cheering prospects of this year's yield the farmers are tobe congratulated on the fact that they still have in their possession five million bushels of wheat from last year's crop which they are now disposing of at high prices.

The splendid yield of 90,000,000 bushels of wheat raised in 1906 in the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, together with the almost certain assurance that this year will see a considerable increase, is, as in the past, calling the attention of the world to the "Last Best West," and thousands from United States and the agricultural districts of Europe are each month securing free grant lands or purchasing farms in the land which has proved itself peerless among grain growing countries of the world.

Proud of His Raisin', B'Gosh! Fact is, we are sorry for the boy or girl who is denied a farm raising—in God's big out doors, where the daisies and blue bells grow wild and the birds sing, and the butter s sweet and fresh, and you can have all the room you want. Summer Pest.

It is known as the yellow-neck caterpillar, and is usually found in numbers along the branches of trees, feeding on the foliage until the limb is entirely denuded, when they migrate to another limb. How Book Learning Pays.

"Book learning" for farmers has been a thing to laugh at in the past. It used to be thought that an almanac and one or two patent office reports were all a man needed to make him competent to "run a farm." We are getting past that day, and doing it at a the work of an expert, many years of pretty fast pace, in our times. Think practical experience being required beof the report just published by the commissioners appointed a couple of years ago in the State of Louisiana to investigate crop pests, with particular reference to the boll weevil and the terrible injury it has wrought to the cotton crop. For two years these commissioners have been studying and experimenting on the State farms in the Red river region, and now they send word out to the world that they have succeeded in growing cotton that cannot be hurt by the boll weevil. Just to learn. The great fact is that they have done it. Think what this will mean in money to the farmers of the knives, containing numerous cutting whipped cream. cotton growing States! SMALL OIL-LADEN CRAFT SUCCUMB TO A SQUALL OFF CLEVELAND.

CREWS MAY HAVE PERISHED.

City Enveloped in Darkness and Many Buildings Struck by Lightning.

CLEVELAND, O., July 24.-Two small sailing vessels, laden with oil, were completely wrecked at the first blast of a squall today. It is believed all on board perished. The identity of the boats is not known, but it is thought that they came from down the lake as no boats answering their description cleared from this port or were seen to pass here today.

Storm Does Much Damage Lives were imperiled and thousands of dollars of damage done by the storm in Cleveland. While the city was enveloped in almost total darkness for fifteen minutes trees were uprooted, small buildings blown down and all the loose and lighter structures along the lake front at the amusement parks were blown from their places and smashed to pieces. Lightning struck numerous buildings. The Sheriff street market house was set on fire by lightning and considerable damage done. A number of persons were struck and stunned. A hurricane and cyclone passed over the city this afternoon. The city was enveloped in complete darkness, during which the wind, blowing at a rate of sixty miles an hour, the rain falling in torrents and the lightning flashing in bolts, causing hundreds of thousands of dollars damage.

Trees were torn up by the roots, houses were blown down, windows were shattered. All the telephone and telegraph wires in the city are on the ground. The only connection with the outside world is through the underground systems. Many Boats Driven Ashore. Those boats in the harbor that were not able to get to shelter were dashed upon the shore, and the lake shore is lit-

The down town portion of the city suffered the greatest damage. The storm centered in the business section. A number of the smaller buildings were literally torn from their foundations and stationed at places a hundred yards distant. The boats which were destroyed were about three miles out when they went down. As the wind swept down on them both vessels keeled over, their sails disappearing under the water. Only one boat came up. It wallowed around for a few minutes and then sank from sight again in the heavy sea. Rescue parties in small boats ventured out after the squall to the scene. Nothing could be found, however, of the boats. There was nothing but oil on the boats.

Commissioner of Pensions Warner Makes Sensational Accusation Against Stepmother in Will Contest.

CLINTON. Ill., July 24 .-- United States Commissioner of Pensions Vespa sian Warner, who is contesting in the circuit court here the claim of his step-mother, Isabella Robinson Warner, for larger share of her late husband's estate, claims that his stepmother is of negro descent, and that she deceived his father, John Warner, during the thirty years of their married life. Isabella Robinson Warner started the fight by refusing to accept an ante-nuptial agreement that allowed her only $10,000 and a $500 annuity in place of ner dower rights.

Mrs. Warner answers the formal charge with a sworn statement from a lawyer, now residing in California, who says that he was counselor for Stephen Robinson in a case brought many years ago by election officials of Ohio who charged that Robinson and no right to vote on racial grounds. Mrs. Warner's lawyers claim that Robinson won, the court finding that there was no negro blood in his veins.

We often hear remarks made which indicate an impression that politicians are rather a low set of fellows, with selfish aims and corrupt practices, who manipulate party politics for their own advantage, and that the less selfrespecting gentlemen have to do with them the better. If that is ever the case, and it undoubtedly is the case at some ELIHU BOOT. times and in some places, it is always because at such times and in such places political control is allowed to go by default. Another reason or excuse for not taking part in political affairs is the direct reverse of those that I have mentioned; it is that the party management is satisfactory: that matters go along very well, and that a man does his duty to his party if he supports its ticket with his vote, and perhaps contributes his fair share toward the payment of its expenses. This position can never be maintained.

None of these reasons for not taking part in party politics is ordinarily the real reason. The real reason is that men are unwilling to spend the time and the money and the labor necessary for the due performance of their duties as citizens; that they prefer to attend to their professions, their business, their pleasures, and allow others to govern them, rather than to take part in governing themselves.

They are willing to pursue a course which, if shared in by the rest of their countrymen, would bring our constitutional government to an immediate end, wreck our prosperity and stop our progress.

HOW WOMEN MAY RETAIN MEN'S RESPECT.

By Carmen Sylva, Queen of Roumania.

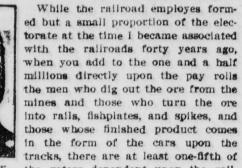

Women should never forget that they stand on a superior level, and when they place themselves on an equality with man they do but descend from those heights. It is the natural instinct of man to venerate woman, first in the person of the mother who bore him, next in that of his wife, then again of his daughter, or it may be of the sister or sisterly friend who watches over his children. It is not too much to say that, in all times and places, and under all circumstances soever, a truly womanly woman will hardly fail to obtain proper deference from men. In the hour of trouble, in sickness and fatigue, our husbands and our sons seem to us just such dear spoilt children, whom we must do our best to help and comfort, however inordinate the claims may be which they make on our sympathy and indulgence. Young girls cannot too soon begin to prepare themselves for the hours of loneliness life must inevitably bring, and they should resolve from the first that whenever left thus they will spend the time profitably in acquiring useful knowledge, in enlarging their mental horizon so as to be able to share their husbands' pursuits and understand their aims, to become their worthy companions in every enterprise. For this no tremendous display of learning is requisite, that would often rather weary a man than not, instead of giving him the sensation of repose he seeks. One of the friends of my youth, an unmarried woman, whose skill with her needle was unrivaled, always had a book open before her while she worked, and whilst executing some lovely piece of embroidery of such graceful design and in such delicate colors that it looked like a water color sketch, she would learn all the finest passages from her author by heart, Thanks to this system, she was able to relate stories without end to young people without ever having to refer to a book.

RAILROADS AND THEIR EMPLOYES.

By Chauncey M. Depew.

SENATOR DEPEW. the voters dependent upon the railways for their living.

The demand upon the railroads of the country is now greater than they can answer. Conditions of ten years ago have changed, and the farmers who are now reveling in prosperity need more railroads to transport the fruits of their labor.

The railroad plant is insufficient to meet the demands of the country, and the country is growing more rapidly than railway mileage or equipment construction. I am not one of those who fear that socialism, or advanced radicalism, or untried theories put into unwise practice are to be carried into effect to such an extent as to produce financial or industrial paralysis. I believe that these great corporations should be under the rigid supervision of the States and of the general government.

Because of the present marvelous development the American people want railways built, and they believe that those who take the risks should have a fair return upon their money. The millions of people who make direct investments or indirect ones through their deposits in savings banks and other institutions, and that vast army of labor, comprising one-fifth of our electorate, who are dependent upon railway prosperity for their living, are the substantial basis of the safety of the present and the growth of the future.

> no insurance. In a few weeks the building was struck by lightning and almost totally consumed by fire. Another one was erected, Mr. Sipes contributing the greater portion of the fund, as before. This time the demand was almost unanimous that it be nsured, but Mr. Sipes again objected, on the same ground. "If it burns down again, brethren," he said, "I'll agree to rebuild it myself."

Again he carried his point. In less than a month the new church was struck by lightning again, and although strenuous efforts were made to save it, the loss was almost total.

"There must be some reason for this, brethren," said Brother Sipes. "I am going to find out what it is."

Thereupon he employed a force of nen to sink a shaft on the site of the twice-destroyed church. Within a few days a rich vein of iron ore was found. and the church property was sold for many times the amount needed to buy land in another locality and build

"I tell you, brethren," said Brother Sipes, "it pays to trust the Lord. He's a great deal better business manager than anybody in this congregation."

A Slight Gap.

A genealogist, like a poet, must be born, not made. The naive statements offered by persons whose one desire is to show a lineage which will secure them admittance to some exclusive organization drive the real genealogist to rage or tears.

"I don't see why I can't join the 'Daughters of the Early Founders.'" said an indignant young woman to a friend. "My line is perfectly clear except in one place. It's so absurd!" "What is the troublesome place?"

asked the genealogist. "Oh, it's in the eighteenth century," said the young woman, with much irritation. "They just failed to keep the records, of course. Of all foolish things! Why, I can remember back to we're perfectly sure our ancestors came different, but of course it's they, because they must have come. And just because I haven't been able to connect them with great-great-great-grandfather in the eighteenth century, they won't

"MILKMEN" OF BELGIUM.

Queer Rigs of Milk Peddlers Who

It is the kingdom of Belgium, These investigations have changed where there are a little more than 550 inhabitants for every square mile territory. lightfully temperate. Cattle is one of the chief products, and the corn and fruit crops come next. Many engage in fishing, and in recent years the coal and iron ore mining has grown to great proportions. Lumbering is also carried on to a considerable extent.

But cattle raising and fruit farming appear to be the national occupations. The inhabitants seem naturally adapted to such tasks, and they are surely more picturesquely interesting to the traveler when thus engaged. Dairy products cut no small figure in a country where cattle raising is an important industry, and the milk peddlers of Belgium are without a doubt the most interesting characters the traveler will meet in any country in Europe. All through Belgium you will meet the milk peddler, whether on the city streets, the villages and towns or the country highways. And as a general thing they are the robust red cheeked girls from the farms, with their milk cans and jars loaded on carts in which dogs are the motive power. The picture with this article shows a milkmaid with her cart and dog. Milk and butter are ridiculously low priced in Belgium, and the peddler has got to make a lot of sales before a dollar is earned. However, the purchasing power of a dollar is a lot greater in Belgium than it is in this country, so things about even up. Next in importance to stock and fruit raising is agriculture, and, although Belgium is not large, it excels most of Europe.

According to the English Mechanic, articles of brass or copper boiled in a solution of stannate of potassium mixed with turnings or scraps of tin in a few moments become covered with a firmly attached layer of fine tin. A similar effect is produced by boiling the articles with tin turnings or scraps and caustic alkali or cream of tartar.

The number of carriages and vehicles of every description crowding the streets of Paris augments continually, and the danger, not only to pedestrians, but to the carriages themselves, has become so great that an engineer, Monsieur Henard, proposes the establishment, at the most dangerous crossings, of a circular "island of refuge" In the center, and the regulation of all traffic in such a manner that every vehicle traversing the crossing-point, no matter what its ultimate direction may be, shall pass round the central plateau in the same direction. Thus the danger of collision and the peril to footpassengers would be reduced to a minimum. The cut illustrates the opera-

The interest of astronomers in the strange red spot, about 30,000 miles in length, which has been visible on the surface of the planet Jupiter since 1878, is intensified by the recent observations of Mr. W. F. Denning, and others, on a remarkable change in its rate of motion. In a period of about three months last year it was displaced some 16 degrees of longitude from the position calculated as the basis of its former motion. This is the greatest change that has ever been observed in its rate of motion. On Jupiter the visible surface of the planet does not revolve, like the surface of the earth, everywhere with the same angular velocity, but, in general, the parts nearest the equator move with the greatest rapidity. Thus the huge planet resembles a rotating ball of constantly changing clouds, and in the midst of these the great red spot seems to float.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

My Mother's Garden.

Her heart was like her garden,
Old-fashioned, quaint and sweet,
A wealth of buds and blossoms
Hid in a still retreat.
Sweet violets of sympathy
Were always opening there,
And lilles white and pure unclosed,
Each one a whispered prayer.

Forget-me-nots there Ingered, To late perfection brought, And there bloomed purple pansies In many a tender thought. There hope's first snowdrops took deep root And flowered because they must: here love's own roses reached toward heaven On trellises of trust.

And in that quiet garden—
The garden of her heart—
Song-birds built nests, and caroled
Their songs of cheer apart;
And from it still floats back to us,
O'ercoming sin sud strife,
Sweet as the breath of roses blown,
The fragrance of her life.

When Sleep Is Most Needed.

Perfect health demands not only a fixed amount of sleep, but the observance of regular habits, says Dr. John D. Quackenbos in Good Housekeeping. And perfect sleep for man can be obtained only at night, as suggested by the rythmical succession of light and darkness. There is point to the old proverb:
"An hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after." Those who are in the habit of turning night into day realize this to their cost. The hour before midnight that his worth two after is from 11 to 12. And inasmuch as the human system is more below par at 3 a. m, than at any other period in the twenty-four hours' sleep should cover at least two hours on each side of this time. When life is at stake in the crisis of acute disease, nurses are instructed to supreme depression.

The Frank Person.

We all know-and respect-and avoidsuch persons; the world is full of themtoo full for the general comfort of its other inhabitants. And frequently what they call the truth is not abstract at all, but is merely the expression of their own particular (and frequently erroneous) opinions. Yet as they utter it they glow with spiritual pride and feel themselves in the same boat as the Christians of the Catacombs and the rest of the noble army of martyrs; never realizing that their cause is no tenet of an inspired creed, but merely an embodiment of their own pet prejudices; and their sacrifice on its behalf is neither their own life nor its behalf is neither their own life nor wealth, but merely the feelings and the sentiments of other people, says Woman's Life.

Such persons are very fond of remarking that they owe it to themselves to say exactly what they think; it never seems to occur to them that they likewise owe it to others to conceal what they think, if such thoughts be inimical to the general pleasantness and well-being of society at large; yet surely they have never been taught that their duty themselves comes before their duty to their neighbors.

their lodging places in any corner where dampness lurks. An uncovered rain water barrel will bring them in hordes. Water barrels should be covered in dry weather, all damp heaps of dead leaves cleared away from every corner on the premises, the sunshine allowed to enter all crevices, and the scientist's favorite remedy of kerosene used freely over the surface of stagnant pools. If these pre-cautions are strictly followed the country family should have no trouble from these pests, providing the nearest neigh-bors do likewise. It is easier to follow these precautions than to keep the insects off by herbs and lotions.

If, in spite of all reasonable precautions, mosquitoes persistently haunt the premises, a small smouldering fire of pine boughs or any fragrant wood built near the house will have a deterring effect upon them. The fire should smoulder enough to give forth a thick smoke, which is not at all disagreeable to per-ons out of doors.

It is said that a bouquet of pennyroyal will, as a rule, keep mosquitoes away from a room. The best antidote for a nosquito bite is ammonia weakened with little salt and water. Some persons a little salt and water. Some persons use camphor. Salt and water is a good disinfectant. Alcohol and a mild solution of carbolic acid, rubbed well into a mosquito bite, will kill any germs.

Mosquito netting is certainly ugly and undesirable. It always keeps out more or less fresh air, and plenty of fresh air in summer is a necessity. There seems to be nothing to take its place, however, in certain localities where masquitoes abound.

Life and color are upon every hand, vibrating in diversified animation, says a writer on Country Mansions, in the New Broad-

The great country house is scarcely more than a stage, sumptuously set for a magnificent performance that is given, at the oftenest, only two or three times a year. "The play's the thing," and these men and women are merely players in the greatest drama of the age—the drama of society tennis court, hidden behind a mass of lofty shrubbery, the bowling alley, the artificially created swimming pool—are all set for their brief appearance

Beauty.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor is unquestionably the beauty of the London season. Wherever she is seen this regal American woman causes a sensation. Crowds follow her about a room. Her height, her snowy hair over such a fresh young face, her amaging aways and historic jowels. her amazing gowns and historic je have fairly dazzled London. Twice ly I have seen her in a "creation" which for originality and beauty I have never seen surpassed. On the first occasion she wore a costume of silvery scales which fitted her figure close, giving the seen surpassed. dea of some wondrous mermaid from the deep. The top of the bodice was filled in with filmy lace suggestive of foam, and at her throat was the Eu-press Eugenie's famous pendant of blazing diamonds.

On the other occasion she was attired some black, cloudy fabric, which seemed to swathe ner figure, revealing no opening and not a single jewel. Emperor, those non-combatants who lost Above this, thrown into strong relief by the contrast, rose her flower-like ties in both branches of the service. by the contrast, rose her flower-like face with its crown of white hair dressed in big curls. In which gown she looked the more striking it would be hard to say. A man who was present the other night at an embassy party, remarked: "Mrs. Astor makes every other woman appear insignificant and commonplace."

Many women are bleaching their hair to resemble hers and others who do not care to go this length are wearing white wigs. Mrs. Astor has been here fre conscious of the admiration she arouses -or it is utterly indifferent? Nor someoften seem far away from the gaiety in which she is the bright particular star. Occasionally there flits over her face, like a cloud, a care-worn expression that makes her appear, for the few moments that it lasts years older. I have seen her stand in the center of a crowd ap-parently not hearing a word that was being said by those around her. But all this only adds to the interest she arouses. It suggests a hidden sorrow, a buried romance, and things of that sort that in-quisitive folk like to speculate about.

Woman's Right vs. Marie Corelli.

A search for the subject upon which Marie Corelli has not expressed her opinion would be like a quest for the roc's egg, consequently the claim of a divided attention to the subject can be urged in excuse of the shallow reasoning with which this gardulous author, in her pa-per, "Man's War Against Woman," in "Harper's Bazar," opposes the causes of woman suffrage.

Miss Corelli, after some statements to the effect that women's susceptibility to a "personally expressed admiration for their eyes," would largely affect the direction of their vote, goes on to say that the "woman's rights" question is conveyed in Cleopatra's opening speech to Antony in Shakespeare's play: 'If it be love indeed, tell me how "'It is all there," says the writer.

"That is really all woman wants to know. 'If it be love indeed'—then she had her 'suffrage.' She can rule her slave for good or bad. She governs man, and through him she governs the world. "Clever women want no audible voice in politics, inasmuch as they can, if they choose, silently work the whole business behind the scenes. Stupid women clamor about their 'rights,' evidently unaware that in the very force of the clamor they are throwing all 'rights' away. The clever woman sits at home—and like a meadow spider spreads a pretty web of rose and gold, spangled with diamond dew. Flies—or men—tumble in by scores -and she holds them all prisoners at her pleasure with a silken strand as fine as

Echoing Miss Corelli, we might say, "There it is"—it, the sop, "woman's influence over man," which soggy and indigestille, is handed out by every stranger who approaches the Cerberus of woman's suffrage. The novelist is disappointing in that she does not even make the old gag-stop look like muffins, a rasped roll or some of the more palatable breakfast foods. In fact, as they stand, her remarks are quite as unappe-tizing and quite as illogical as though uttered by some less authoritative person than the author of a dozen or more fevered romances. In the first place, the writer depre cates the suffrange because woman "has no time to think," and because of the prejudicial effect of a candidate's conpliment to her eyes. In the second place, with no apparent twinges of inconsis tency, she urges woman to rule the world through her influence over man She hasn't the intellect nor the detach ment of view necessary to vote herself. mind you, but, nevertheless, Miss Corelli trustfully confides her husband's vote all Miss Corelli's tranquil freedom from sequence, will dismiss the subject with a pompous "Woman should influence the world in the home, not the polls." He does not reflect that should she do so, he will probably not cast his vote for the man whose wife "puts on airs." But aside from its want of thought-fulness, this attitude of ruling a man through his love for you seems an ig-noble one. What woman respects the man who surrenders his individuality of opinion to his love for her?

As for the poor man's side of it, the feminine influence upon him is so often sinister one, that the question of woman's rights" seems to be intimately connected with that of "man's wrongs. Mme. Du Pompadour wove a pretty web of rose and gold" for Louis XV., and together they trod right merrily over the hearts of the starving peasantry of try, wife and honor. So long, indeed, as a woman is able to express her power in no other way than through her influence on man, it is unavoidable that that influence should be a menace. For, to exert her power, she must bend every effort to ensnare and ensnarement means craft and guile Women who must weave "webs of gold and rose" have little time for wholesome thoughts upon which to feed the victim whom they lure into its threads. Their whole energies must be turned to beguilement. Certainly, as long as woman's influence is harped on so continu ally we have got to realize the truth of Bernard Shaw's conception and agree that woman is as dissimulating as any of the other lower creatures.

Marie Corelli may say, "Better to be Cleopatra than a suffragette," but the noblest and best-thinking men and women will deny it and will say better to have no political voice than to obtain it through mere physical magnetism.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, whose whereabouts recently had been a cause for speculation among process servers and others who would like to meet him, had a birthday anniversary July 8. It seems to be about as difficult to fix oil magnate's exact age as it usually is to light upon his exact whereabouts Some authorities have it that Mr. Rocke feller was born July 8, 1838, while others declare that it was in 1839 that he first saw the light of day and began to dream of oil combines and millions.

However this may be it is certain that Mr. Rockefeller finds himself on his present birthday, whether it be his sixty-eighth or sixty-ninth, the possessor of more money than any other known individual in this or any other country. And it is a pretty safe guess that the more birthdays he has the more money he will possess, despite the fact that he scatters quite a few millions yearly among American colleges and charities.

Six Coaches Smashed Up. The list of known dead is as follows:

Six Coaches Smashed Up.

The wrecked train consisted of eleven coaches carrying employes of the company's shops at Ionia on their annual excursion to Detroit. All of the employes were accompanied by their families. The train left Ionia at 6 o'clock this morning jammed with gay picknickers. The wreck occurred on a perfectly straight level piece of track. The heavy freight and passenger trains came to-gether with enormous force, and six of the eleven passenger cars were entirely wrecked. The smash occurred at what is known as Washburn Crossing, two miles east of this village.

Places Blame for Disaster. General Superintendent Trump of the Pere Marquette railway says that the responsibility for the wreck rests with some employe who failed to obey orders. He says that the blame rests with the crew of the freight which was a west-bound local. They had orders, Mr. Trump says, to wait at Plymouth for the excursion train, which had the rightof-way. Instead they proceeded on to-wards Salem and the collision resulted.

Few Children Injured. Three of the coaches were telescoped by the terrific impact and the fourth and fifth coaches were smashed into matchwood. Although there were probably 150 children among the excursionists it is a strange fact that few of them were severely hurt. Nearly all of the dead and the injured are men. Passengers on the wrecked train say that the passenger train was running about forty miles an hour when the trains met. Many of the freight cars were also piled up in the heap of wreckage, which is so great that it will take twelve hours to clear the track. Dctors Rushed to Scene.

When the uninjured persons recovered from the shock and crawled from the wreckage, they at once began extricating the dead and injured. Messengers were rushed to this village and to Plymouth and all the doctors from this place and neighboring villages were hurried to the scene. Farmers who heard the crash came to the rescue also. A special train was made up in the yards at Detroit and sent to the wreck, a distance of forty miles, with doctors, nurses, surgical in-struments and cots. By the time this train arrived there were several scores of people waiting to receive medical attention and over a score of bodies had been extricated and were lying on the grass beside the tracks.

Horror of the Accident. The banks alongside the track at the crossing where the collision occurred are ten feet high and the space between them for several hundred feet is literally filled with wreckage. The railroad wreckers made all the speed possible in clearing it, but even with the assistance of steam crane at each end it will be twelve hours before it can be definitely stated whether all the bodies are out. The passenger engine was completely wrecked and its crew killed, but in some manner the engineer and fireman of the freight engine escaped with their lives. A majority of the killed were men, who were seated in the smoking car, which was at the head of the train. This car received the first impact of the collision and the heavy tender and engine were forced through it, crushing everything before them. It will be many hours be-fore some of the dead who were in the smoking car are identified as they are literally cut to pieces. Fire did not break out in the ruins and add its horrors to the tragedy.

Farmer Sees Collision.

The trains met in a cut which is in the arch of a four mile long curve in the track, and the banks run up for ten feet above the rails at the point of collision. above the rails at the point of collision. E. E. Smith, a farmer living near the crossing, was at work in his field and saw the two trains bearing down upon each other. Both of them dashed into the cut and out of his range of vision. Just the tops of the smoke stacks were visible as they rushed along under the ten foot banks to destruction. He saw the stacks come together and then the two engines reared up above the banks and fell back as the roar of the collision came to his ears. Almost before he realized what had happened, the air was pierced with screams of the wounded and dying people, staggering out from the wrecked cars.

Terible Scenes at Wreck.

Mr. Smith with dozens of other farmers in the neighborhood rushed to their assistance. Many of the farmers brought bedding and bandages for the injured and as the hours wore on sent to their homes for food for the suffering procedure. The scene about the wrest as people. The scene about the wreck as the wreckers delved among the shat-tered tars were pitiful. Men, women and children, weeping and moaning, wansearching for missing friends and relatives. In addition to the 75 to 100 people who were severely injured, there are scores more who were cut and bruised by being thrown about in the uninjured cars when the trains collided, Nearly every person in the first dozen coaches meeded some medical attention. The most severely hurt were first looked after, by the surgeons. Their wounds were hastily dressed, and hemorrhages stopped, after which they were carried to the wrecking train from Detroit and laid on cots to be brought to Detroit hospitals for further treatment. The less seriously hurt waited their turn and when their wounds were dressed, most of them returned to the seats in the undamaged cars. There, with blood stiffening on their clotseh and bandages and their minds horror-stricken by the tragedy they had been participants in, they told of their experiences.

Many of them were so dazed that they had no clear idea of what had happened. Several young girls who had been sitting beside open windows of the rear coaches were hurled through them to the tracks when the trains met. who were severely injured, there are

HAHNVILLE, La., July 20. - A dozen militiamen faced a mob of 100 would-be lynchers here early today and without firing a shot sent them peace-

Control over the mob was gained by a remark drawled in soft southern accent by a militiaman, who asked:
"Any of you fellows got a cigarette?"

A laugh breezed over the crowd, and with this break in the tension, an ugly situation cleared up. The posse had arrived at Hahnville on a freight train. Rumors that a mob was coming had occasioned the placing of extra sentries by the militia.

Maj. Wheat replied that there would be no talking; that unless the mob marched off immediately for the railroad station, he would give the order to fire.

This appeared to be what the mob had come to find out, for some of them ex-claimed: "Come on boys, we are going back," and all started for the railroad. They had reached the track and were proceeding to the station, when the spe cial train bearing the reinforcements came in at a speed which forced several men who were crowded on a low trestle to jump into a creek. No one was hurt and the emptied special was reloaded with the mob members and sent to New Orleans.

Invaders Control Everything and Natives See Time When They Must Leave Island.

SEOUL, July 19 .- The Emperor abdicated tonight and the throne of the ancient Hermit kingdom which has been tottering under misrule for forty-four years toppled over. The situation is most pitiful; by the fall of the throne today the Mikado has strengthened his hold on the nation and what liberty the Koreans have had since the Russian-Japanese war is now gone. It is believed to be the intention of the Japanese to drive the Koreans out of the island. Almost every Japanese here expects annexation. They have secured a hold on every industry in the country and in a short time Japan's rule will be in name as it is now Fears for Former Emperor. Viscount Hayashi, the foreign minister of Japan, arrived tonight and was greeted by 15,000 Japanese.

The peril to the Emperor began to be realized yesterday among the Koreans, and considerable excitement prevailed all day, the people feeling that their ruler might meet an untoward end. The police were doubled in the palace at nightfail on the rumor that the dead The Hague deputy had comitted suicide, which created the apprehension that an epidemic of suicide had broken out in sympathy with the Emperor.

Koreans Are at Sea.

The Koreans are all at sea regarding the extreme gravity given the situation by the Japanese who regarded the of-fense of the Emperor as unpardonable. Members of the progressive party from Japan and others opposing Marquis Ito's policy of leniency preceding the arrival of foreign Minister Hayashi are now holding meetings.

Viscount Hayashi, it is believed, has two missions to fulfil. The first, to assist Marquis Ito to execute the Japanese government's programme in the palace, the second to consult with him on the Manchurian and American question.

Able Japanese here think the purpose of Hayashi was to divert the attention of the people from the question of America, where it is claimed that the government is unable to get satisfaction and to placate the nation by severity to the Fife Said to Have Been Commissioned to Design Boat-Dennys of Glasgow to Build It.

GLASGOW, July 19 .- It is stated that Mr. Fife, who now is on his way to America, has been commissioned to design the yacht that will challenge for the America cup. It is reported that Denny brothers will build the boat.

The name of the challenger is unknown. Sir Thomas Lipton's name is naturally connected with the enterprise but it is nowise certain that he will be the challenger. There has been much Sir Thomas with advice or forming a syndicate cannot be learned.

There is reason to believe that Fife has accepted the commission to design the boat, and if this is true his action suggests that the New York Yacht club has abandoned its determination to stand fast to their rights under the original deed of gift, and have granted Fife at least a part of the concessions he has declared necessary for carrying on the

On May 29 there was an advance which brought the market price to 6 and 7 cents. Cotton thread for domestic use is manufactured almost exclusively by the combine. Increased cost of raw material and an advance in wages is the reason given for the contemplated increase in price. Independent manufacturers declare that neither of the reasons is good, for when cotton was selling much higher than it is now thread resided for 5 cents. tailed for 5 cents.

The rescue in which he participated was the most thrilling of any since the brave act of Capt. Mark Gasto when he successfully saved the crew and passengers of the stranded steamerr Cherokee. C. F. He left yesterday morning for a fishing trip at sea with Edwin Young and Thomas Gallagher of Atlantic City, and John Sturlagher of Atlantic City, and John Sturgis, another Philadelphia cottager. The party returning, made the almost fatal attempt to enter the inlet just before the Mother of His Wife—Riot

Seas were rolling twenty feet high and had almost swamped a stanch yacht which crossed, when spectators first no-ticed the little launch dive toward the breakers. Gimbel and Clarence Mill-hiser, a friend, who were in a rolling chair, saw the boat approach and watched to see if the boat made its way in safety over the bar. Suddenly it swerved and the next minute had turned turtle, with immense breakers bearing the men aboard.

The lifesaving crew had been paid off for July and August and Capt. Parker was the only man at the station. He called for a volunteer crew to man the government lifeboat and Gimbel was the first of half a dozen to respond. One man after another became exhausted, but Gimbel stuck to the oars until the craft was reached and the men taken aboard. Then began a terrific battle to reach the shore which was safely made after two hours' struggle in which the men were repeatedly beaten back to sea. State Defies Judge Pritchard.

The decision was expected, and the state officials declared even Sunday that they would not give up the prisoners, no matter what the decision might be. Gov. Glenn by telephone Saturday in-structed the state court officials to en-force the criminal penalties of the rate law the same as any other law, and promised them armed protection from any federal court interference. He said, too, that he will call out state troops to hold the prisoners if necessary. In any event the state will appeal to the United States supreme court.

Judge Pritchard took a drastic step late Saturday when he issued a rule of contempt against T. J. Harmon, the state court agent, who swore out the warrants for the arrest of Wood, Wilson and J. Harmon, now under sentence in the road gang by State Judge Reynolds. He was ordered to be taken in custody by the United States marshal, but it is expected he will resist arrest.

It was generally expected they would finally decide to violate technically the injunction of federal Judge Pritchard and carry the rate question at once to the supreme court of the United States. There was promise of wholesale resignations by the railroad ticket agents in North Carolina because of the drastic measures taken by the state to enforce the law requiring roads to charge only 2½ cents a mile for the transportation of passengers.

In his decision Judge Pritchard said that the penalties inflicted by the statute would close the doors to a judicial hear ing and would amount to two and half million dollars a day if the penalty was enforced on the sale of each ticket, which is eight times more than the amount involved in the original suit. Also that it would do violence to the comity which exists between the state the Mother of His Wife-Riot Follows Verdict.

KARLSRUHE, July 23 .- Karl Hau, brilliant young law professor of Washington, D. C., was condemned to death this morning after a five days' trial for the murder of his wife's mother, Frau Molitor, a wealthy resident of Baden-Baden, in that city November 6 last. Riotous scenes in the streets followed the announcement of the verdict. The prisoner heard the verdict of the jury with perfect composure and chatted smilingly with his counsel after the judges withdrew to fix his sentence. Upon the return of the judges Hau arose and, standing erect with folded arms, listened to the sentence without moving a muscle. A moment later he was hurried away to prison by half a dozen policemen. The sentence is un-popular with the street crowds, which have been demonstrating more and more openly for several days in Hau's favor and against the Molitor family.

Women Are Under Guard.

After the adjournment of the court for an hour's recess at 8 o'clock last even-ing, the women of the Molitor party were compelled to remain in the house of one of the officers of the court because it was dangerous to appear in the streets. of the courthouse. A large number of arrests were made. One old woman was trampled down by the horses, and it is reported that several persons were wounded. The demonstration in favor of Hau appears to be due largely to the same maudin sentiment which has made a here out of many another accused of a daring crime. To the unthinking people Hau's daring trip to Baden-Baden made him appear a hero. Another reason for the demonstrations that have taken place in the last few days appears in the state's attorney manner of conducting the prosecution, and it is further explained by citizens that the Molitors are inpopular in Karlsruhe, having lived here until 1899. The sentencing of Hau does not end the case. Dr. Dietz, his counsel, having in his address practically given notice of

"HIS WIFE."

Life is often very tedious at a summer hotel where, day after day, one sits listlessly on the veranda waiting for some thing exciting to happen; and such was my case. I had been at the hotel a week, and that week I had reason to consider as a dead loss in my life; for not a solitary thing did I do, but eat my meals, feel tired and sleep.

I, however, was not the only idler there: for there were several girls besides me, who were doing nothing but have no one left to love me, although I eat, drink and sleep, and, like me, in full love some one very dearly." expectation for something exciting to

Perhaps you will think it strange that crowd of girls should have no fun; but what we all longed for was an animating power in the shape of a being that we are went to call man; and I really believe that, if a man had appeared on the scene, every girl present would have shown a deeper interest in life.

On Monday, the beginning of my sec ond week of vacation, I was sitting on the veranda reading, in truth, making an attempt to read, or to become interested in a book, while all the time I was longing for a stroll on the white and glisten ing sands. But as there is surely no cleasure in meandering alone, I disconsolately, almost gapingly, turned to my

I had just managed to become interest ed in the beautiful heroine of the book, when a carriage stopped, and, imagine my surprise, a young and extremely handsome fellow jumped out. My heart began to beat fast at the exhilarating sight, but slowed down very suddenly when he gallantly assisted a most beautiful young woman to alight.

"Married, of course," some of the girls retired to my room.

However, I decided to look my best at the supper table, so I donned what I imagined to be my most becoming gown which happened to be a soft shade of pink, and although I am not vain, which may appear contradictory because I say it myself. I am positive that a murmur well toothed family, his mother and a of admiration went around the room as sister each having the same number.— I entered. I entered.

At supper, the young man and his pretwife chanced to sit opposite me at the table. By his conversation and table manners he appeared to be a most charming young fellow.

"What difference," laughed the girls, and all retired to their rooms, where they prinked for fully an hour.

I may as well acknowledge that it took me also about an hour to adorn my personality with the best I could select from my by no means rich, but rather meager, wardrobe. Richard St. Clair was duly introduced to us, one and all. "And where is your wife, pray tell?"

asked one of the girls. "Oh, oh, my wife, she is out with an old college chum of hers, a college classmate of mine," he stammered.

Who can imagine my astonishment, when the evening after the dance, Mr. St. Clair invited me to go with him for a moonlight row. It was then that I began to think that, perhaps, I had encouraged him too much; and at once I resolved to treat him in the future with a cold and studied indifference.

"Why, Mr. St. Clair," I said, "you cannot expect me to accept your invitation in the absence of your sweet partner, your wife. Where is she? It is some what surprising that you neglect her that way. People are beginning to make remarks about it."

"Well, Miss Courtleigh," he replied, with an amused smile on his handsome face, "my wife shall surely accompany us. I should like very much that you became intimately acquainted with her.' and, somewhat smilingly, he added, with an expression on his face which I. at the time, could not define, "you will undoubtedly like her then even better than

"But who is she?" I cried. "My sister, my only sister, and now, as you noticed, she is to become my schoolmate's wife."

U. S. Court Says It Is Exclusively Entitled to Red Package for Pills.

The Carter Medicine Co., of New York, states that its exclusive right as owner of Little Liver Pills to the red package has just been again confirmed by two important decrees of the United States Circuit Court sitting at Trenton, N. Indian World this would appear to show that the present year will exhibit a record number of deaths.

The plague records for the ten years October, 1806, to December, 1906, shows that there was a large annual increase from 1901 to 1904, the deaths numbering 274,000 in 1901, 577,000 in 1902, 557,000 in 1903 and 1,022,000 in 1904, the worst year in ten years.

There was a small decrease in 1905, the deaths falling to 951,000, and a large decrease in 1906, when there were only 332,000. The total deaths for the whole the result of the state o whole ten years numbered 4,411,212. The improvement which was shown in the two years 1905 and 1906 has not, unfortunately, been maintained.

From the first appearance of the disease up to the year 1901 the mortality was greatest in the Bombay presidency, but from 1902 onward, with one exception, the worst area has been the Pun-jab, and in 1905 the deaths in the latter province alone numbered 364,625.

We took her to three doctors, but this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Doctor No. 3 said that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to Doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone. We were nearly discouraged, but I thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days of daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9. Fulton, Oswego Co., N. It Happened in the National Guard.

The captain tells a story which runs something like this: In camp one morning the first sergeant reported that Private B— had a chill. "Is it a serious one?" asked the captain. "Well, sir, I don't know just how serious it is, but it's a big one, for it seems to be all over him, and he weighs two hundred pounds." On seeing him the captain found him looking rather blue, and was getting on. "Oh, he's all right now," was the reply. "I took him up to the hospital tent, and when I saw what kind of medicine the doctor gave him I had a chill too."-Army and Navy Life.

Indian Paint Language.

When an Indian paints his cheeks in scarlet lines and daubs a yellow square on his forehead the world knows that he is in love.

When he covers his face with zig-zag black lines upon an ochre base it is his purpose to get just as drunk as he possibly can.

When red circles are on each cheek-bone and a rectangle of blue is on the forehead the young brave is going out to steal a paleface horse. When he paint white rings around his eyes he is running for office, he is a candidate for medicine man or councilor, and the white rings signify that he ought to be elected because he has the wisdom of the owl.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MEAT OR CEREALS.

A Question of Interest to All Careful

Persons. Arguments on food are interesting. Many persons adopt a vegetarian diet on the ground that they do not like to feel that life has been taken to feed them, nor do they fancy the thought of eating dead meat.

On the other hand, too great consumption of partly cooked, starchy oats and wheat or white bread, pastry, etc., produces serious bowel troubles, because the bowel digestive organs (where starch is digested), are overtaxed and the food ferments, producing gas, and microbes generate in the decayed food, frequently bringing on peritonitis and appendicitis.

Starchy food is absolutely essential to the human body. Its best form is shown in the food "Grape-Nuts," where the starch is changed into a form of sugar during the process of its manufacture. In this way, the required food is presented to the system in a pre-digested form and is immediately made into blood and tissue, without taxing the digestive organs.

A remarkable result in nourishment is obtained; the person using Grape-Nuts gains quickly in physical and mental strength. Why in mental? Because the food contains delicate particles of Phosphate of Potash obtained from the grains, and this unites with the albumen of all food and the combination is what nature uses to rebuild worn out cells in the brain. This is a scientific fact that can be easily proven by ten days' use of Grape-Nuts. "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

WOMEN WHO CHARM

Health Is the First Essential Toward Making a Woman Attractive.

MISS HULDA KUGHLER

There is a beauty and attractiveness in health which is far greater than mere regularity of feature.

A sickly, irritable, and complaining woman always carries a cloud of depression with her; she is not only unhappy herself but is a damper to all joy and happiness when with her family and friends.

It is the bright, healthy, vivacious woman who always charms and carries sunshine wherever she goes. If a woman finds that her energies are flagging and that everything tires her; if her feminine system fails to perform its allotted duties, there is nervousness, sleeplessness, faintness, backache, headache, bearing -down pains, and irregularities, causing constant misery and melancholia, she should remember that Lydia E.
