"A REIGN OF TERROR."

Ontonagon county is in the limelight. "A reign of terror" exists, according to stories which have been published in papers at Grand Rapids and other places. This awful condidition of affairs is portrayed so deftly that the dime-novel writer is but a novice compared with the author of these lurid tales.

Really, they are vivid and startling enough to take the kinks out of your be necessary to declare martial law.

Is this a confusion of names or distorted facts? We are frank to admit that we are unable to determine. Surely there must be some kind of a reign. The only one we can recall is the gold which the mining companies have been raining upon their employes. This has the saffron hue, all right, but we did not suppose it carried terror with it. -Ontonagon Herald.

THE CLOSING MOVEMENT. The dry goods and clothing merchants, after considerable discussion, have agreed to close their stores at six p. m. Tuesdays and Fridays and keep them thoroughly closed. During Jannary and February they will also close on Monday and Thursday evenings. This agreement, unlike those preceding it, is backed by a penalty of $25, for each proven ofiense, which will be levied for the benefit of the churches. This agreement is by and between the merchants, who pray that their customers will not lead them into temptation. The clerks also have issued a request to patrons to assist in the movement by arranging their purchases during the day or the regular opening nights.

The gas mantle, as applied to gasoline and kerosene lamps, the Nernst glowers, the inclosed arc, and the many new patents in incandescent bulbs, are indications of the endeavor to save. As yet, however, we have not seen the most economical of all, the Cooper Hewitt. This is a long glass tube, which is filled with mercury vapor and gives a singular green glow. It is an excellent light for the eyes and for photography, but would be useless for a dry goods store, because of its destroying all color effects.

SCHOOL APPARATUS. Principal Wisner has been quite successful with home made pieces of school apparatus. The laboratory fixtures, when purchased abroad, are costly, but the idea in the Gladstone school is to teach the pupils handiness and selfreliance in getting the best result with simple pieces. The Houghton Gazette notes that a Chicago chump has returned to medieval methods and will build a cathedral without cost. Says the Gazette "In those days the bishop, who was a feudal lord, proclaimed a week's holiday, and to accompaniment of trumpets and chanting of priests the inhabitants of the surrounding country would turn to and drag the normous blocks of stone for the nave and choir and hoist them into place. In this way cathedrals were built without expense, that under modern conditions would cost millions of dollars." There must be a headpiece somewhere in the Gazette office; The Delta will donate its possessor fourteen shillings' worth of Budweiser if he will clearly explain how a million-dollar building can be erected without costto some poor devil.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

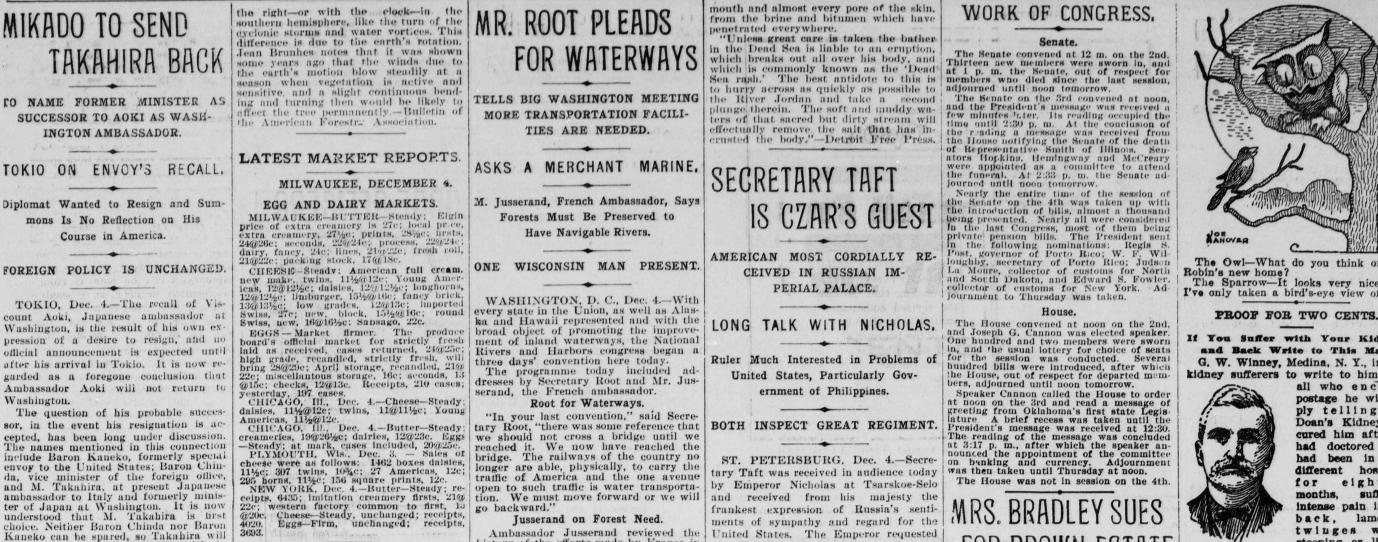

The President's message is a calm and persuasive document which contains little to arouse discussion unless it be his assumption that protection is a settled principle in this government. The recommendation that no changes be made in the tariff until after election will doubtless be followed; but that which urges the removal of the duty on wood pulp seems to be an anomaly. On the whole, the message has been well received by the country; but it will not assist greatly in settling any of the vexed questions with which congress must contend this winter.

No Reflection on Aoki.

The foreign office declares emphatic-ally that the recall of Viscount Aoki is not intended as a reflection upon his course, but a possible change at Wash-ington has long been imminent. Neither should the present action be construed to denote the slightest change in the friendly attitude of the Japanese government towards America on the immigration question. In the course of an interview today this official said:

'It is quite possible that Viscoun Aoki may not return to Washington. In the event of his resignation the govern-ment of Japan will only appoint to the position a person well known in Ameri ca, whom the President knows and likes and who has the confidence of the Amer can people. The Japanese governmen is making every effort to meet the wishes of the President and the people of American on the immigration question and in appointing a foreign minister realizes the importance of having representative in Washington who is not only acceptable and friendly to the peo ple but is acquainted with the prevailing conditions in America."

No Change in Foreign Policy.

A special dispatch from Washington to the Mainichidempo says that the American public is inclined to think that the recall of Aoki is due to the de termination on the part of Foreign Minister Hayashi to pursue a different policy which will be antagonistic to America The official above quoted declares that such a construction is erroneous. On the contrary, the immigration question, now nearer a friendly solution said, is than ever before.

AUTO SHOW IS POPULAR.

Big Crowds Throng Chicago Coliseum-Many Low-Priced Cars Being Sold.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.-[Special.]-Expectations of an unusually large atteadance at the automobile show today seem likely to be realized. Today and tomorrow are the "dollar rays," and they usually bring the biggest and the best crowds every year. The large number of inclosed cars on exhibition is quite justified by the interest being taken in this class of vehicle. In fact, a goodly proportion of the retail sales made are of limousines or landaulets, while the business done in touring cars shows little falling off. By this is meant the business in actual retail orders. All the showmen have done business,

That the meeting of William II and King Edward will conduce to European peace and to a fuller understanding between the two countries is taken for granted at all the chancellories of Europe. It is an interesting circumstance that amid all the numerous wars of European history there has never been a breach of the peace between England and Germany, or between England and Prussia, and the meeting between Kaiser and King will undoubtedly bind the two nations more closely together. "I knew he was a husky un'," said the proud father, who also didn't know much about babies and he hurried off to his office at the State house to tell the glad news and pass around the cigars.

"How much does he weigh?" was the first question put to the joyous father. "Forty pounds," the assistant told Attorney-General Byers.

"Why, you must be crazy," said Gen. Byers. Then Lyons told the attorneygeneral just how he knew the baby weighed forty pounds. BEGAN YOUNG.

Had "Coffee Nerves" from Youth. "When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the past six months," writes a Texas girl.

"I had been exceedingly nervous, thin, and very sallow. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum Food Coffee about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a primary teacher and have kept right on with m' work.

"My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even though this were the only benedit derived from drinking Postum.

"Before beginning its use I had su fered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown.

"Best of all, I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee driukers who were visiting me, to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee.

"I have known several to begin the use of Postum and drop it because they did not boil it properly. After explaining how it should be prepared they have tried it again and pronounced it delicious."

The first fire department in this country was in New York, and the town regulations ran that anyone whose chimney caught fire should be fined five shillings. There was something to this, too, although those were days of crude legistation. That every man should have his stoves, chimneys and concern to the state; bnt no amount of inspection can perfectly insure this. Every citizen should cooperate with the fire department to the extent of seeing that his premises are in a safe condition; and it pays to take the trouble.

England Growing Radical.

Three women were elected municipal councillors in England on November 1, for the first time in history. The prediction that there would be a wild scramble of women for office was not fulfilled. Only seventeen women in all look better if it is done on the right side. England and Wales presented themselves Use one strand of the daming cotton as candidates for councillor. (In England the candidate nominates himself or Most of the women candiherself.) dates represented the advanced and radical parties that are still in the minority.

But the growth of the radical vote was one of the striking features of the election. The first report was that the Conservatives had made marked gains. The next day the more detailed news came, showing that the gain of seats the Conservatives was because the Lib eral vote had split up, a multitude of Liberals voting for Labor or Socialist candidates, who in most cases were supposed to have no chance, but quite a number of whom were elected, to their own surprise and that of every-

It is said that the old-time Liberals and the Conservatives are now planning to join forces against the Radicals, and that there will be a general realignment of parties. Out of these troubled waters, it may be hoped that equal worst kinds of tears in their clothes, rights for women will emerge.-A. S. B., The torn place must be held together and Woman's Journal.

Inhumanity to Children.

Did you ever have your feelings wounded when you were a child by some woman not in your own family? If you have, you never have forgotten it. It is not always an easy thing to do the right thing at the right time and place, but we should all be careful of our conduct toward children. Not long ago a little girl was called from play with other children and severely whipped for being with them. The whipping was unneces sary, so were the words, because the child went right out on the street to explain to one playmate that her mamma forbade her playing with her because they were not "in her class." This made a heartache for the child, whose feelings were wounded, and also wounded the mother. Often there are times when one does not care for her children to associate with other children, but the reason should never be explained, and certainly not known when a child is the innocent cause of something which cannot be comprehended. No difference if a ragged newsboy approaches you to ask a civil question, look into the boy's face, and see the soul and not the poverty which is his only environment. Be a child at heart when you meet a child, and respect his feelings, for he looks on the world with one of the many to destroy his faith in "Proella," is put on a clean napkin in the center of the table, and round it are placed a few lighted candles. In the morning the priest comes with his in-cense swingers for the Proella, and gives cense swingers for the Freeha, and gives absolution at the house door. The little church bell sounds the glas, or fu-neral knell. The widow, followed by the priest, carries the Proella down to the church. There are prayers, and everybody kisses the small waxen cross, and on the following "day of the dead. which is the day after Ash Wednes-day, the Proella is carried to the cemetery, where it is placed with many oth-ers in a special place. All round the resting place of the Proella are tomb-stones. And the names on the tombare names of women only. stones For made is in using too heavy cotton, making a lumpy, uncomfortable, and un-sightly place, when in reality it should be perfectly smooth. It is better to hold the stocking over the hand rather than over a darning ball, as the latter method is apt to stretch the stocking and make the hole larger. The darn doubtless will look better if it is done on the right side. and run the stitches in on the length of the hole first, taking about three stitches beyond the worn place at each end. The threads must be laid close together, then take stitches across the width in the same manner, only interlacing them in and out of the lengthwise stitches Naturally no knots are permissible, and when finished, if evenly done, a darn is actually a thing of beauty. If a person only can be persuaded not to hurry with work, but do even the smallest things with care, the result is sure to be a keen pleasure in the doing of it, and it will be only a short time before a good dewill gree of perfection is attained. When one understands thoroughly how to do a thing well, it naturally will go more or less rapidly, and this without that hurrying which is exhausting to one's nerves and disastrous to good work.

Sometimes one may be unfortunate enough to make an ugly tear in a woolen dress. Small boys and girls are fa-mous, as we all know, for getting the with threads of the material if darned possible, or fine silk or wool, as the case may be On twilled goods the darning stitches can be taken the way the twill runs, and when pressed will hardly show. Sometimes mending tissue answers the purpose perfectly. This is kept at the notion counters of department stores and full directions for using come with it. It is next to impossible to detect a torn place mended with this tissue .- Exchange.

Concerning Influence.

Did you ever think that the strongest forces in the world are the forces that you cannot see, that you cannot hold in your hand or weigh in the scales as you weigh gold and silver? All about us in the air. But whether it be soft and gentle or a stormy gale you do not see it; you merely see effect. You may sit in a bower ded hickly by honeysuckle vines, its shaded and the fragrance around you will be so vital and so sweet that you feel as if you could handle, yet it is merely an intangible perfume. You do not see intangible perfume. You do not see heat or cold or electricity, and in a wide-ly different region you do not see the spiritual forces that have the most to do with life and conduct. The strongest things everywhere are the things we cannot see.

Nobody perceives in actual reality the ideal that floats before the mind, stiffens innocence and trust, so don't be resolution and inspires to hard work of the many to destroy his faith in unity. It will come sooner or later, woman who is ever to succeed in reachand it will be a blow to realize all are not friends, but the way to keep childish faith alive is to be gentle, kind and con-tain to goodness, wisdom and happiness

Instruct Your Daughter in the Fascinating Art of Mending.

It seems sometimes as if the art of mending is almost a lost one, and yet there is nothing more essential for a girl to acquaint herself with. learns to do this well it is safe really to predict it will be a real pleasure. One of the most interesting of the iooms in use. called the "fly shuttle" ioom, illustrates an intermediate step between hand and machine work. Although at Hull house the most delicate and beautiful work is entirely done by hand, yet this particular loom, generally used for rag carpets, is very interesting. In it, the shuttle instead of being thrown by hand, is shot across by means of a spring which is released by pressing a lever with the foot. Ordinary rag carpet is limited in width by the distance to which the snuttle can be thrown by hand, generally thirty-six inches or less, but in this loom the goods can be made as wide as the frame allows. The few mechanical devices used in this loom make it seem as far in advance of the primitive looms as the first locomo ive might have seemed compared with wagon, yet the ones now in use in factories are of course, as much ahead of this as a fully-equipped modern railroad train is ahead of the first locomotive.— Mertice MacCrea Buck, in The Crafts- should, but we can guess which does. man.

A Girl's Rights.

Many and many a girl has from child-hood been influenced, and even discouraged, though unconsciously, by being more or less indirectly taught that a girl doesn't amount to much-that her value in the world is small compared to that of her brother. Now the girl has a right to feel that she is just as important as anyone; to know that so long as God sent her into the world, she has her place and her work in it. She has a right to feel that even if she will never be able to do rough work, she is to do much needed work; that if she will not be able to earn a great deal of money, what she can do is just as important as earning money; to be taught, not that she is "nothing but an expense," but that her while a little girl, are worth just as work. She has a right to know that she needs all the education, all the training she can get, because she has a mind and a soul, just as truly as a boy has.

A visitor to Ouessant, off the Brit-tany coast, will see few, if any Oues-santais. All that he will see are Oues-santaises—women of Ouessant, harvesting. The men are at sea. The women do all the work of the land, and one may see them in their quaint short black petticoats, their tight bodices, their kerchiefs on their heads, binding and carrying corn and bending in strenuous labor over the flail. The men of Ouessant do no farm work. They belong to the sea, and the sea is a jeal-ous mistress. One sees this idea in the women's

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 3.-While urging upon Congress the necessity of immediate action regarding currency legislation, President Roosevelt does not commit himself and the administration to any one plan of action in his annual message read to the Senate and House of Representatives today. Rather he suggests that something must be done at once to solve the problem, but leaves it entirely to Congress to devise the ways and means.

Need More Elastic Currency.

"We need a greater elasticity in our currency; provided, of course, that we recognize the even greater need of a safe and secure currency," says the President. "There must always be the most rigid examination by the national authorities. Provision should be made for an emergency currency. The emergency issue should, of course, be made with an effective guaranty, and upon conditions carefully prescribed by the government. Such emergency issue must be based on adequate securities approved by the government, and must be issued under a heavy tax. This would permit currency being issued when the demand for it was urgent, while securing its re-tirement as the demand fell off. It is worth investigating to determine wheth-

It is well to provide that corporations shall not contribute to presidential or national campaigns, and furthermore to provide for the publication of both contributions and expenditures. There is, however, always danger of laws of this kind, which from their very nature are difficult of enforcement; the danger being lest they be obeyed only by the honest, and disobeyed by the unscrupulous, so as to act only as a penalty upon honest men. Moreover, no such law would hamper an unscrupulous man of 'unlimited means from buying ? his own way into office. There is a very } upon the innocent men whom they have radica! measure which would. I believe. work a substantial improvement in our system of conducting a campaign, although I am well aware that it will take some time for people so to familiarize themselves with such a proposal as to be willing to consider its adoption. The need for collecting large campaign funds would vanish if Congress provided an appropriation for the proper and legitimate expenses of each of the great national parties, an appropriation ample enough to meet the necessity for thorough organization and machinery, which requires a large expenditure of money. Then the stipulation should be made that no party receiving campaign funds from the treasury should accept more than a fixed amount from any individual subscriber or donor; and the necessary publicity for receipts and expenditures could without difficulty be provided.'

Must Cease Speculative Folly.

"Yet we must also remember that even the wisest legislation on the subject can only accomplish a certain amount. No legislation can by any possibility guar-antee the business community against the results of speculative folly any more than it can guarantee an individual against the results of his extravagance. When an individual mortgages his house to buy an automobile he invites disaster; and when wealthy men, or men who pose as such, or are unscrupulously or foolish-ly eager to become such, indulge in reckless speculation—especially if it is ac-companied by dishonesty--they jeopardize not only their own future but the future of all their innocent fellow citi-zens, for they expose the whole business community to panic and distress."

He continues: "In no nation are the fun-damental business conditions sounder than in ours at this very moment: and it is foolish, when such is the case, for 1 people to hoard money instead of keep-ing it in sound banks; for it is such hoarding that is the immediate occasion of money stringency. Moreover, as a rule, the business of our people is con-ducted with honesty and probity, and this applies alike to farms and factories, this applies alike to farms and factories, to railroads and banks, to all our le-gitimate commercial enterprises.

Adventures of a Stained Glass Window.

The east window at St. Margaret's, Westminster, wandered about for more than 200 years before reaching its pres-ent position and was the subject of a seven years' lawsuit. Henry VII., for whom it was intended, died before the window arrived from Dordrecht and it came into the possession first of the Ab-bot of Waltham and then of Gen, Monk. Stained glass was anathema in Puritan days, so the window was buried until the Restoration, when it was brought to light. Refused by Wadham college it was bought for 50 guineas and erected in a private house, and years later was misled. It is a painful awakening, whenever it occurs; and, naturally, when it does occur those who suffer are apt to forget that the longer it was deferred the more painful it would be. In the effort to punish the guilty it is both wise and proper to endeavor so far as pos-sible to minimize the distress of those who have been misled by the guilty. Yet it is not possible to refrain because of such distress from striving to put an end to the misdeeds that are the ultimate causes of the suffering, and, as a means to their and where possible to purish causes of the suffering, and, as a means to this end, where possible to punish those responsible for them. There may be honest differences of opinion as to many governmental policies; but surely there can be no such differences as to the need of unflinching perseverance in the war against successful dishonesty."

Wants Federal Control.

The President insists that federal control of all corporations doing an inter-state business is necessary and that it would benefit alike the corporations and the public. He wants the Sherman antitrust law strengthened and changed so that while it will permit certain business combinations, which are right and prop-er, it will not allow harmful trusts to exist. He recognizes that certain com-binations and merging of vast corpora-tions are proper and urges that the act junction is wholly without warrant; but I am constrained to express the belief that for some of it there is warrant. This question is becoming more and more one of prime importance, and un-less the courts will themselves deal with it in effective manner, it is certain ultimately to demand some form of legisla-

It would be most unfortunate for our social welfare if we should permit many honest and law-abiding citizens to feel that they had just cause states.

Leave the Tariff Alone.

Leave the Tariff Alone. This being a presidential year, Mr. Roosevelt does not think that the tariff ought to be touched until after election. He says: This country is definitely committed to the protective system and any effort to uproot it could not but cause widespread industrial disaster. In other words, the principle of the present tariff law could not with wisdom be changed. But in a not with wisdom be changed. Scores of frenzied women constantly surround the pit mouth and the special detail of officers have much trouble in keeping them from interfering with the work of the rescuers.

The cause of the explosion has not yet been ascertained. One theory is that it resulted from the explosion of black damp in an unused entry when a miner carrying an open lamp crossed the "dead line." Another is that a spark from the trolly line over which cars are from the workings to the mouth of the shaft ignited a pocket of gas in the mine.

Enormous Loss of Stock.

The loss of stock due to exposure is enormous. The reports of the United states government officials for the year ended March 31, 1905, indicated that 2,-687,027 cattle died from all causes, over half of them succumbing from exposure. Within 200,000 as many sheep died dur-ing the year, considerable more than one-half of them from exposure. The figures for 1906 and 1907 do not vary greatly from the ones given. In other words, the total annual losses of stock due to exposure are counted at 2,500,000 animals, representing an estimated value of $24,000,000.

THE LANDED ASTORS.

How the Great Family Maintains Its Millions.

If ever the phrase "fat of the land" meant anything, it does so in the case | tution. of the Astor family. Land! That is the keynote of this wealthy organization, the solidest aggregation of self-increasing wealth in America, says The New Broadway Magazine. The Astor millions, invested in New York real es-tate, are absolutely intact and impreg-nable. By the most insidious methods of leasing, subleasing, purchasing, rent-ing (but rarely avar improving process) ing (but rarely ever improving property themselves) the Astor heirs, ensconced in a plain, stout little two-story brick building just off Madison square, are gradually picking up acre after acre of priceless land on Manhattan island. There are more than fifty heirs, many in the fourth generation, to the Astor millions, but upon the shoulders of Wil-liam Vincent Astor, a lad of 16, will probably fall the management of the bulk of this enormous estate. At St. Paul's school and Eton, England, he showed himself to be a good student with a bent for mechanics. Young Wal-dorf Astor is a level-headed man of 27, who recently married Mrs. Nannie Lang-horne Shaw, one of the three beautiful Langhorne sisters of Virginia. He and his brother, John Jacob, nephews of Col. John Jacob Astor, are sons of William Waldorf Astor, the expatriated Ameri-can. They have never renounced their American citizenship, and should they American citizenship, and should they return, may divide the management of the estate in this country with William Vincent. John Jacob, second of the name living, is unmarried, and lives with his father at historic Cliveden, one of the finest estates in England.

It has been the aim of scientists for years to find some liquid preparation which would possess anodyne, astringent and antiseptic properties and yet be of such a consistency that it would penetrate, first, through the skin, then through the muscles, and finally to the very bones, ex-

Steel Rails and Ties.

It is announced that one railroad has placed an order for 183,000 steel ties. This is the largest order ever given for steel railroad ties, and indicates rapid growth for one of the new uses of steel. This large order for steel ties has been placed by the Pittsburg, Bessemer & Lake Erie road after careful tests during a period of many months. The road now has several considerable stretches of track laid with steel ties, which have given good satisfaction. The test of the dynagraph car, with phonograph at-tachment, has given records of less noise and here accilitation and less oscillation over steel ties than over similar stretches of track laid with wood ties. The much discussed "ham-mer blow" of the wheels has been found to be less on steel ties, though all advance estimates were that it would be greater. It is on such evidence that the large order for steel ties is placed.

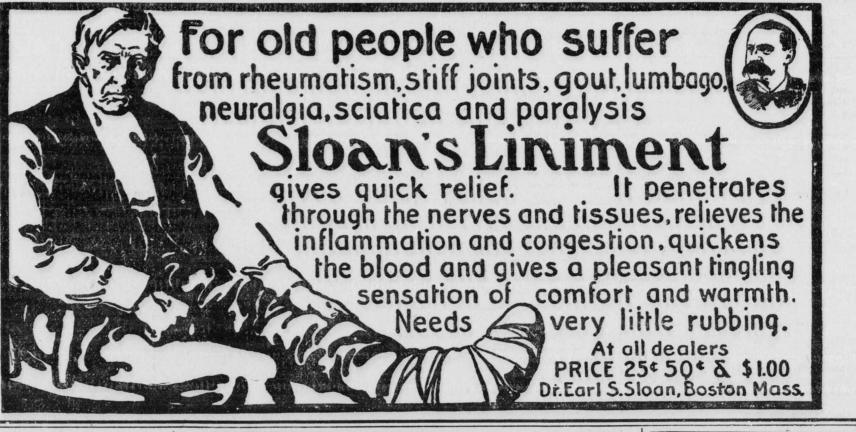

General use of steel ties would stop one of the most serious drains on the timber resources of the country. Railroad ties and telegraph and telephone poles con-sume an enormous quantity of timber an-nually, at rapidly increasing prices. Steel ties are cheaper in the long run than wood. There is good reason to believe that tubular steel telephone poles would also prove cheaper than wood, but they are less convenient for linemen to climb. Supplied with ladders, they are too easy for others then linemen to climb. for others than linemen to climb, bu the time must come for their substitution. It requires forty years or more to grow a tree for a telegraph pole, while a steel pole can be manufactured in a few minutes.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Nova Scotia's Apple Crop.

That the Annapolis valley, Nova Sco-tia, and the surrounding country is the great apple-producing district in the world is believed to be proved by the size of this year's yield, estimated at more than 700,000 barrels. This is a record. Americans have secured options or more than twice the amount general-ly imported into the United States. Prices range from $2.50 to $3 a barrel, and the Nova Scotia orchardists will re-ceive about $2,000,000.
