The axe factory is closed for a few days for inventory and necessary repairs. While these were done last year during operation, it was annoying; and, in spite of a fair pressure of work, it was thought more convenient to close down. The last of the radiation is being installed, and on Monday the tool room will reopen. The rest of the factory is closed until January 6. The outlook for business is good, and the new catalog will list several new specialties.

The work of transferring the clamshells to the back dock will commence Monday. One will be put on each trestle. The coal has been nearly all removed from the front where the hoists may reach it in their present position.

The snow of Christmas morning fell fast and brought no cheer to the boys with the new skates, but when the afternoon sun shone, the skis and sled were useful, and even ice-boating was not impossible. The roller rink was crowded afternoon and evening.

In spite of the rushing Christmas business, the merchants on Delta Avenue seem to think it's hard sleddin'.

Coroner L. O. Kirstine was called to Lathrop yesterday to investigate the cause of the death of a man at that place Thursday night. The dead man, Frank Burns, who was an old sailor, was about the town, as usual, that evening and complained of a severe pain in his side. Later he was found dead in his room and the cause of the death was supposed to have been heart disease. Burns had no relative at Lathrop, but it was discovered that a brother-in-law lived at Munising and he has been notified of the death.

Throughout the upper peninsula, there has been a quantity of Christmas mail never known before. Gladstone is no exception. The business has been unprecedented.

The state board of health sends out a folder headed Preventable Diseases, No 1. It represents a tree, diphtheria, with an axe being laid to it. This disease is being stamped out, by vigorous measures, as small pox has been in a greater degree. Tuberculosis, however, is on the increase, as well as meningitis but all the other contagious diseases seem to be rapidly decreasing. This is the result of vigilance on the part of physicians and health officers, and a little slackness in the vigor of precautions, would speedily send the death and illness rate up again. The board states that the dangerous nature of measles is not fully recognized, and health officers are often hampered by ignorant opposition on the part of the people.

Obituary

Mrs. E. B. Carr died Friday, after a long and painful illness, at the age of fifty-four. She leaves, beside her husband, two daughters, Mrs. F. W. Richter, Mrs. Frank Shanley, and a grand-daughter, Ruth Carr. The funeral will be conducted tomorrow.

Walter, the three year old son of Peter J. Lindblad, died Thursday morning from an attack of pneumonia which set in only on Monday. The funeral will be held Sunday from the mission church. He was the only boy and the youngest of the family, a bright little fellow, and his death is a sad bereavement to his parents.

Mrs. E. B. Shaw, for fifteen years a resident of Gladstone, died Friday from pneumonia, at the age of nearly seventy-two. With her daughter, Mrs. Morrison, and two grand children, she returned Tuesday from St. Paul to die here. The case has caused much pity from those who know the circumstances. The funeral will be held tomorrow.

SAD ACCIDENT.

Ralph Goldsmith, a student of the high school, was fatally wounded Thursday morning by the discharge of a revolver in the hands of a playmate, Arthur Sweeney, and died seven hours later. Sweeney is prostrated with grief.

The two boys, together with Roy Harrison, were at the Sweeney home, and the older people absent. The revolver had supposedly been unloaded, and Sweeney snapped it several times. It exploded, and the heavy ball traversed Goldsmith's head. He never recovered consciousness.

His parents arrived Friday from Sherman, Mich., and will return Monday with the body.

Ralph was about seventeen years old, and had found many friends during a few months' stay in Gladstone. He lived with Supt. and Mrs. Willman, being a cousin of the latter. His death leaves his parents childless.
