BONI SAYS HE HAS REASONS FOR SAGAN ASSAULT.

Declares He Has Papers Which Prove Much-Forgeries, Replies

PARIS, Feb. 4.-The Sagan-Castellane case came up in the correctional court today, having been adjourned from January 14. Count Boni and Count Jean de Castellane, his brother, are charged with assault by Prince Helie de Sagan early in January.

Answering a question of the court, Count Boni declared that he could explain clearly the motives of his animosity cowards Prince Helie by certain documents which he intended to hand over to the court, but that the intimate character of these papers prevented their being made public. At this statement Prince Helie interrupted the proceedings by crying in a loud voice:

Those documents are forgeries." Count Boni admitted that he had spat in Prince Helie's face and explained that he had not sent seconds to his cousin to arrange a duel as he knew that the prince could not find anybody who would be willing to represent him on the field

Counsel for the count declared that if his client had accepted the judgment of divorce from Mme. Gould it was because he recognized he had wronged the wife whom he still respected. In spite of the fact that they were separated by law, Count Boni had not been able to restrain his indignation and anger when he heard that the Prince de Sagan was going to become the husband of the mother of his (the count's) children. He considered also the interests of his chil-Iren and was convinced that Prince Helie could not be even a good godfather to them.

After hearing the testimony of several witnesses, Count Jean de Castellane was discharged. Judgment in the case on Count Boni will be handed down later.

CHILLY LONDON.

Why Englishmen Do Not Have Fires in Their Houses.

"Everything that shouldn't be warm in England is warm," says Samuel G. Blythe in "An American in London," in Everybody's Magazine, "and everything that should be warm is cold. The houses are catacombs, always excepting those few hotels in London where they have steam heat, which is, of course, due to the advance of American civilization. Englishmen say they do not feel the cold. Everybody else feels it, for it is the meanest cold in the world. Extended observation leads to the conclusion that the reason the English do not feel the cold is that they are desensitized, sort of refrigerator-beefed, so to speak.

"This is not the main point. The reason the English shiver around in cold, damp rooms, trying to make themselves believe a few hunks of cannel coal in a grate furnish all the heat required by the most delicate, is that somebody, in ancient days, who couldn't get anything to warm himself by, did the next best to warm himself by, did the next best thing and declared he didn't feel the cold and didn't need a fire anyhow. Other Englishmen heard of it, and this idea has been a fetish ever since."

measure up for consideration on Monday. February 10. At 1:08 p. m. the Senate adjourned until the 31st.

The reading of the President's message concerning the employers' liability act, the granting of injunctions in labor cases and other matters of a general nature concerning corporations was the chief feature of the Senate proceedings, on the 31st. The message received careful attention. The Senate ordered 10,000 copies printed. The remainder of the day was devoted to routine business and a further consideration of the bill to revise the criminal laws of the United States. The first reading of the bill was concluded. The Senate adjourned at 4:10 o'clock until February 2.

Senator Piles of Washington on the 3rd delivered an aloquent appeal in favor of an appropriation by t'ongress of $700.000 for a government exhibit at the Alaska-fukon-Pacific exposition, to be held in Seattle next year. The day was chiefly devoted to a consideration of bills on the calendar, several of which were passed. At 3:57 the Senate adjourned until the 4th.

The Senate on the 4th passed the urgent deficiency bill carrying an appropriation of over $24,000,000. The large deficiency appropriation for the navy brought out consideration of bills on the value of executive departments making expenditures not provided for in appropriations. Deficiency appropriations for the Panama canal gave rise to Democratic criticism of the publication of a paper by the canal commission at Panama and inchestating Senator Teller declared that he believed the lock canal at Panama would some day be declared a fall-ure and that a sea level canal would take its place. The Senate devoted two hours to consideration of the criminal code bill and at 4:20 p. m. adjourned to the Senate to adopt his bill providing for a purpartism tariff at 4:20 p. m. adjourned to the 5th.

Senator Beveridge of Indiana on the 5th delivered an appeal to the Senate to adopt his bill providing for a nonpartisan tarinf commission, a plan which he declared conformed to modern and business ideas on this subject. Several Democratic senators spoke briefly on the general subject of the tariff and at 4:57 the Senate adjourned until the 6th.

House.

The urgent deficiency appropriation bill was passed by the House on the 30th. The total amount carried by it is $23.664.450, or $410,000 less than as reported by the committee. The largest single reduction was that of $300,000 in the clothing fund of the army. When the session was resumed today only a few pages of the bill remained to be disposed of. Included in these was a provision for the appointment of thirty-four additional policemen for the new House office building. Chairman Tawney urged the provision because of the necessity for protecting such costly government property and "of guarding the reputation and honor of the members." Mr. Mann, Illinois, opposed the provision, and it was stricken out on a point of order after considerable discussion. The House adjourned at 3:05 o'clock until the 31st.

cussion. The House adjourned at 3.05 o'clock until the 31st.

An unusual and almost unprecedented scene was enacted in the House of Representatives on the 31st as the result of the reading of a special message to Congress by the President, urging additional legislation in the matter of relations of labor and capital and of corporations and the public. The vigorous language of the document brought forth storms of applause, first on the Democratic side of the House, then on the Republican, and culminating in a general demonstration by the entire body. After passing 28s pension bills, the Indian appropriation bill was discussed. Its consideration had not been completed when the House at 5:05 p. m. adjourned until February 3.

er passing 288 pension bills, the Indian appropriation bill was discussed. Its consideration had not been completed when the House at 5:95 p. m. adjourned until February 2.

Three of the glants of the House had their innings on the 3rd. Technically the Indian appropriation bill was under discussion, but legislation was relegated to the background while national politics occupied the stage. Before the political question cropped out the House, with next to the largest attendance of the session present, with but one dissenting voice, passed a general widows' pension bill granting a flat pension of $12 a month to the widows of all honorably discharged soldiers of the United States who have not heretofore received the benefits of the pension law and an increase of $4 a month for those who have anner the act of June 27, 1890. The bill involves the expenditure of more than $12,000,000 annually. The political debate was opened by Mr. Townsend of Michigan, who, in a prepared speech, claimed for the Republican party credit for all national legislation in the last fifty years of vital interest to the public. In this he was vigorously disputed by Mr. Cockran of New York. Mr. Hepburn followed, defending the President's message, and said that condemnation of it had come only from the great malefactors of the age "and the gentleman from Ohlo," meaning Senator Foraker. The House at 4:58 p. m. adjourned until the 4th. President Roosevelt's recent message to Congress on the relations of capital and labor and of corporations and the public again was the theme of discussion in the House of Representatives on the 4th. So great was the demand for time that general debate on the Indian appropriation bill, which is the pending business, was extended to the 5th for four hours. Interest in Tuesday's proceedings centered in a speech by John Sharp Williams, the minority leader, who, while lauding the President for some of his sentiments, expressed the belief that others were densers. With the greater part of the revised state constitution in the form of which it will be submitted to the people the delegates are beginning to sum up the chances of the instrument being adopted. So far as the poll shows, sentiment is evenly divided, although the delegates who think that the constitution will not be adopted are very careful to insist that they should not be quoted, says a Lansing dispatch.

F. M. Curran, of the Crystal Steel Co.. who was in the city not long ago, held considerable conference with Paul Cornell on the subject of tempering. Not only are there several points as yet unexplained concerning the treatment of steel, but .copper tempering by the pre-Indian tribes has never been thoroughly solved. Upon this Mr. Cornell has turned his attention, and startling discoveries may be expected. Upon this point more confidence is felt, because J. N. Fox, formerly of this city, possessed a copper cold chisel, capable of cutting hardened steel. He always, however, kept it in his chest, and declined to exhibit it. Every development is anxiously awaited in the tool room of the axe factory.

SHEPHERD CARVERS.

The Lonely Sheep Tenders of the California Sierras.

There are few lonelier lives in the world than those lived by shepherds in the high meadows of the California Sierras. All alone they follow their sheep, seeing no one for many months of the year but the sheep, their dogs and perhaps an occasional-a very occasional-traveler. Probably this soli- " 4 tude dries up the springs of speech, for they are said to be very silent when they do encounter any one.

One of these strange men is a Basque from the Pyrenees. A lean, dark visaged, ragged fellow, he is now and then overtaken by some wanderer in the mountains. Along the trail before him his sheep feed. His mongrel collie hangs at his heels. He may raise his stick in mute salutation; he may slouch by without a sign. Yet this uncouth goggles, toboggans, and pemmican being has one talent-he can carve. His amusement is carving quaint sheep buckles out of bone. Every herd has its bellwether, about whose neck hangs a bell. The bell depends from a leather collar, and it is the buckles of these collars that this old Basque shepherd and some of these other Sierra shepherds make in the course of their lonely days. Sometimes a buckle represents a summer's work, for some of them are very elaborate. Some are in the semblance of saints or angels, some have the monograms of the sheep owners or of the shepherds in curious designs. All are patiently cut, bit by bit, with the pocketknife of the shepherd.-Exchange.

There's help in seeming cheerful When a body's feeling blue. In looking calm and pleasant If there's nothing else to do. ... other folks are wearing, And things are all awry, Don't vex yourself with caring, Twill be better by and by.

There's help in keeping tally
Of our host of happy days;
There's never one that dawneth,
But it bringeth cause to praise
The love that ever watcheth,
The friend that's ever near.
So, though one tryst with sorrow,
One needs must dwell with cheer.

At What Age

Should Young People Marry? At what age should girls and young men marry? This depends upon conditions. When a girl has acquired her education from schools ("from schools" because our education goes on through life), when she is fully grown, and physically developed, if she is in good of housekeeping, let her marry when the right man sues for her. The time and age varies so with girls that there can no set data.

With young men: if they are in a perfect physical condition and can support a wife, it is better to marry early, than to wait until they grow to regard women with indifference, and lose that chivalry which we invariably see in early courtships; comparative riches can hardly replace what is lost after this time. There should be a study of tastes and disposition. It has been said that marriages formed through college associations proved the happiest; this means a congeniality of intellectual tastes as well as of disposition, should be considered. If a woman is mentally a man's su-perior so she cannot in the order of things look up to him, there will be a continual regret that he fails to appreciate the heights she loves to climb; while with the husband far in advance, the same difficulty often pushes him for sympathy to minds outside the home. A great part of unhappy marriages result from servitude of the wife in money There are many women who long to step out and earn money, but are held back by this bond; the husband rebels yet refuses her an allowance. When a girl enters matrimony she should insist upon an early understanding in this

Just why a woman's time and work should not be given a share in the earnings we fail to see; sometimes she has the harder part. If she had remained unmarried, she may have had less care, more pleasure and a purse of her own; it is attacks, which often result in nervous breakdown and premature old have an unhappy home, and longing for love and sympathy, they seek marriage as a refuge; for awhile they imagine as a refuge; for awhile they imagine they have found happiness, but soon added cares burden, a weak constitution fails, irritation suggests incompatibility brightness as part of woman's being, and brightness as are with Delsarte or elocution." This advice seemed good at the time. It still seems to make the properties of and freedom is longed for—perhaps sought in the courts. Marriage rightly entered into is the happiest life for both sexes, but no one should marry that has an inherited disease; any the courts of the happiest life for at her best, for mental anxiety exhausts the post of the chief sources of my distrust has been the effect of the theory upon the art of the actress who gave the advice. She is perhaps the most graceful woman on the stage today, and her voice tuberculosis, or deformed person, and there is those not mentally bright should be debarred. Even in a generation the result would be wonderful in the survival of the fittest; there would be less use for the fittest; there would be less use for the deformed person, and there is the best, for mental anxiety exhausts her of the vitality and deprives her of the strength necessary to fulfill her place as wife and mother and discharge the duties of her station in life.

How different it is with the self-poised, woman who has confisanitariums and asylums, even our penitentiaries would be less full, for weak-ness brings poverty, crime follows, while never vacillates with her self-made miswork their way upward.

To avoid unhappiness and divorce let a courtship be long enough to know each before the closer relation of engaged lovers, but have the engagement not over a year. From close observation we are led to conclude that Jewish people contract more congenial marriages than others, neither are their courtships so "under the rose" as our own; one seldom hears of a broken engagement, or a divorce among them; and what a healthy happy people they are. Could we not take a lesson from this? Jewesses are not raised to be bachelor girls; from childhood they expect to become wives and mothers. Children come to arms that welcome them, hence the greater health and hap-ss is accounted for. When the average American girl marries, she has an inward hope to escape the penalties of motherhood; if the unwelcome stranger appears, love flows into the mother's heart with its coming, but the child has the seeds of suffering, and unhappiness as a result of a wom-an's prenatal desires, and unwillingness to cheerfully welcome her condition.

An earnest effort should be made for a reform as to marriage. Some states have a righteous law prohibiting the marriage of cousins, others should be made that would prevent the greater part of suffering and crime, which any candid thinking person can see is the result of marriage between the wrong persons of mental or physical conditions.— Sarah D. Gardner in Cooking Club Magazine.

-0-:-0-A New Business for Women.

A new profession for women is that of Great-Grandma of a Great-Grandma chaperon for women staying at New York hotels. According to the New York Tribune, a girl who went to New York from Chicago spent a month in the city in the charge of a chaperon, her parents having made the arrangement, and had a "perfectly lovely time." The charge of that girl was the first trial of the plan, which was so successful that one of the large hotels decided to provide chaperons to take its women guests about and show them the city "You must have a good deal of fun." someone suggested to the woman who chaperoned the Chicago girl. "Going with women to matinees and concerts, visiting points of interest, lunching and dining at smart resorts?"

"Well, yes," she said; "but it's work, too. The last woman I chaperoned was a strenuous young person who wanted to see everything at once. She was generally about six steps ahead of me, calling over her shoulder, 'Oh, isn't this great!' took some energy to keep up with her. And it takes energy to accompany a woman on a shopping excursion, I can

"A lone woman in a hotel does need someone to go about with her," continued the professional chaperon. "Some women living in hotels get positively in-ert for lack of such a companion. They come down to breakfast, go back to their room and sit there; come down to Inncheon, sit around awhile, go to bed. 'But what can I do?' one woman said to me. 'I'm obliged to remain a stranger "I am writing this just after hearing" in a strange city during my husband's absence abroad on a business trip. I want to see the city, but it's no fun going about alone.' It was cases like this that made chaperons seem necessary."

Queen a Lover of Cats.

The love of English women of rank for cats is the subject of wondering rec-ognition in an article in a German news-It is recorded as specially wonderful that Queen Alexandra is a leader in the fad. According to the writer she is the owner of fifty cats and has a special corps of servants to keep them in order. There is one special favorite, called Sandy because it was born at Sandringham house. In any of the royal palaces it has the run of the private apartments. When the Queen goes abroad it is part of her suite, always in charge of a special groom.

The Queen is fond of photographing her pets; she has taken them hundreds of times, singly and in groups and in all sorts of attitudes. She has also had many of them painted by the animal painter, Louis Wain. The health of the cats is cared for by the veterinary surgeon of the royal stables and a room is set apart as a hospital for the sick

Queen Alexandra is surpassed as a cat fancier by Lady Beresford, whose col-lection is said to comprise 150 specimens of all breeds, including the tailless Manx cats. Lady Beresford is the founder of the Cat club, which since 1890 has held health, and has learned the rudiments annual exhibitions in London. The greater number of her cats inhabit a cottage specially built for them at her country place.

The cottage can be converted into an open pavilion in hot weather; in winter it is warmed by an elaborate heating apparatus. One room is used as a kitchen, where a woman spends her days cooking for the cats, while a scullery maid is employed to wash their pretty porcelain plates and saucers. Several servants are necessary to keep the place neat and the beds and loung-ing cushions in order. There is a little dairy near by which provides milk for The collection is said to be of great value.

WHERE TWINE PIECES COUNT. How One Ball Serves a Busy Postal Employe Seven Years.

Though it handles some thousand million dollars a year the United States government is not unappreciative of the value of small things, such, for example, as a piece of second hand twine. Perhaps the ordinary ragpicker wouldn't regard it as a good business principle to stoop for a discarded 12-inch string when he is hurrying through the city at dawn in keen competition with all classes of ragpickers for what there is of commercial value in the ash barrels and scrap heaps, but that may be due wholly to his inability to foresee some of the future possibilities in the practice of noticing such trivial things. Similarly it may be that a certain government employe who attached himself to the New England division of the United States railway mail service six or seven years are did not nin much faith in life. years ago did not pin much faith in lit-tle dingy string pieces, for he was some grades above the trained ragpicker in the social scale, yet he stooped to pick up such string pieces as came under his observation in the ordinary routine of his business, and it resulted in the be-stowal upon him of a distinction which has not come to his companions of less economical tendencies. How much it counts toward his promotion in the service is problematical, but it has carried his name and fame with favorable com-ments to the attention of the United

GREAT BIRD STUNT.

Vultures Came Down Head First with a Roar Like a War Rocket.

The rush of scavenger birds when big game is killed is vividly described by R. C. Maugham in a book on Portuguese

East Africa. "Having shot an elephant," he says, "I sat by while the great slabs of skin were removed from the gigantic sides and the carriers, hastily summoned from a neighboring village, proceeded to cut up the vast mountain of flesh.

"Almost immediately a shadow fitted across the carcass, and looking upward one became aware that the deep blue above was rapidly filling with countless black wheeling specks. "The buzzards, kites and scapulated crows boldly alighted on the grass and on a few neighboring bushes and awaited calmly the moment when we should take our leave, while overhead at a great height the shyer varieties, including the marabous, large bare-necked vultures, and screaming fishing eagles continued to hover. "At length all the meat was carefully apportioned, the tusks chopped out and we started for camp, but before we had marched twenty yards every one of those waiting birds was settled upon the remains, while with a rush like the roar of a war rocket the greater vultures fell, with wings tightly folded, from a height of 300 or 400 yards to take part in the feast. "The startling noise made by these heavy birds falling head foremost through the air, to check their plunge with outspread wings so close to the ground as to make destruction appear inevitable, was most singular and impressive.'

These grainers are made of solid concrete and are much better than the old wooden tanks. Steam exhaust pipes pass through the grainers, which heat the brine to such a temperature that crystal-

Watching the steaming surface of the brine, a pellicle of salt forms, which soon breaks and sinks down, to be followed by another, and the crystallization then proceeds rapidly. It is a fact that the esti-mated capacity of each grainer, of 100 barrels every twenty-four hours, is be-ing greatly exceeded, and more than 130

FAIR PLAY FOR PUBLIC OFFICERS.

By Gov. Hughes of New York.

I believe that our citizenship was never more alert and insistent upon maintaining proper standards of efficient administration than to-day. And I believe that it would be difficult to point to a time when a larger proportion of public officers were striving honestly to do their duty.

In demanding justice we must not forget to do justice. Nothing is gained by making suspicion do duty for facts. The tendency to a cynical and censorious spirit in our citizenship should be checked. Especially unworthy is such a spirit in those who pose as the prophets of reform.

GOV. HUGHES. The first qualification of anyone who would seek to secure better administration is entire candor and the spirit of fair play. I want no more to do with the man who will spread a false accusation, or without good, just basis of fact will endeavor to give currency to aspersions upon public officers, than with those who are faithless to their trust. There is no health in either.

If you have the facts which show that a public officer is derelict, you have no need for innuendo, and you may, and should, press your case relentlessly, albeit with pity in your heart. But if you have not the facts, then be fair, and let your suspicions justify your search and your rigid inquiry, but nothing more, until the facts, and all the facts, are found.

PROFIT BY PERSONALITIES ABOUT YOU.

By John A. Howland.

You, young man, who are beginning life in some business as one of a number of fellow employes, doubtless you find among your fellows some one above all the rest whom you admire and whose ways you are likely to copy unconsciously. What kind of a man is this? What is he doing for himself and for the business in which he is a salaried employe? This power of personal influence too often is overlooked by the young man who ventures into life as a novitiate. All that civilization means for man lies in the curbing of the instincts of the savage and in adapting one's life to the men and things within his environment. A good father and a good mother may be the first and most lasting influence in this direction. But the home life may not be the worldly life into which the career of the young man must take him.

Here is the necessity for the young man's finding among his associates, if he can, some guiding personality who may influence him toward the end of his ambitions. If young men have found success in this studying of another man's personality and method, so many more young | reached ultimately.

FEDERATED WORLD NATION A CERTAINTY.

By Prof. H. Stanley Jevons

The development of international relations are already passing through the early stage of political growth in which certain kinds of disputes are referred by common consent to a third party for settlement. A permanent machinery for immediately providing a court of arbitration when a case arises was established by the first Hague conference in 1889. The chief value of the court of The Hague lies in the existence of this permanent machinery ready at once to be called into action without the often dangerous delay involved in choosing a special arbitrator and agreeing on the course of procedure. The perfection of government among individuals is a matter of history, and we have already seen the first stages of its evolution amongst nations. Assuming that education, international trade and foreign travel continue to develop with the progress of material civilization, it would seem impossible that a world-wide governing power should not arise. My conception of the formation of a federal government of the world is not the sudden establishment of any complete scheme conceived in its entirety. Far better is it to welcome changes if they come about gradually, not with haste, but with easy deliberation. Thus the goal of universal confidence and world-wide peace will be Fighting It Out.

"Clear the decks for action!" The big guns were now in position and the eyes of the combatants sparkled.

"Clear the decks for action!" The order had rung out clear and distinct beyond a possibility of misunderstanding.

"My God!" cried a man trembling. My wife is here!"

"Clear the decks for action!" The order came with a grim relentlessness. It was followed by an anticipatory shuffle and one minute later the Ninth Ward Ladies' Bridge Club had swung into full session.—Puck.

STOWAWAYS BURN TO DEATH.

Men Are Rescued in Boats from the Steamers Cymric and Cambrian Near by During a Gale.

MOST TERRIBLE STORY IS RELATED

NEW YORK. Feb. 4 .- A wireless dispatch from the steamer Cymric gives details of the burning of the Steamship St. Cuthbert. Soon after the Cymric sighted the burning vessel the steamer Cambrian also came up and the two ships lay by for several hours awaiting a chance to safely lower a boat, the terrific wind which was blowing at the time making it impossible for a boat to live.

Finally at 2 o'clock the Cymric got a boat away with six men. After a hard fight, the boat, aided by the quantities of oil which had been spread on the war ter. reached the side of the ship. For ten minutes they lay by before a heavy figure was lowered into the boat fol-lowed by a second. Then ten men made their way down the ladder and into the Crew's Heroic Work.

All the men were frightfully burned The boat returned safely to the Cymric and the rescued men were hoisted aboard. The same crew then made a sec ond and a third trip back to the burning steamer, rescuing thirty-seven men in all. On the last trip, the boat was stove in by a wave and barely reached the Cymric in safety.

Tell Terrible Story.

The officers and crew of the St. Cuthbert had a terrible story to tell. At mid-day Saturday the fire was first discov-ered, smoke being seen emerging from a ventilator. Then a terrible explosion occurred, blowing off all the hatches in the forward part of the ship and destroying half the bridge. The captain was thrown to the deck, badly injured and blinded by the flames. The wheelsman was driven away from his post. A boat was immediately lowered, but was smashed and its crew of fifteen, including the third officer, were drowned.

Stowaways Roasted to Death.

For thirty-six hours the crew fought the flames, but with small success. The foremast melted and fell, throwing a stowaway, who was hidden in the crow's nest, into the flames, which had by this ime burned through the forward deck. Nine stowaways on the ship were caught in the forward holds and burned to death without chance of rescue. After the fall of the mast the fire was par-tially checked, but the poisonous fumes of oil made fighting the fire almost impossible. The ship was loaded with fu-sel oil, rags and other inflammable ma-

Steamer Has Forty-one Seamen Rescued from St. Cuthbert.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 4.-A private wireless dispatch was received here this afternoon from the Cymric, approaching this harbor, stating that she had on board forty-one seamen of the burned steamer St. Cuthbert and that Capt. Lewis and a sailor named Joubert, were severely burned, but were progressing favorably. The dispatch said also fourteen men, including Third Officer White, were drowned Sunday night while abandoning the steamer. At 1 o'clock the Cymric was about 140 miles off Boston light and could not be expected to reach the mouth of the harbor much be fore midnight.

He took back this firm belief with him to America, together with intense admiration for the pedigree hunter.

CHRISTIAN PATRIOTISM.

What Patriotism Really Means-Christianity Combined with Patriotism.

The majority of Americans today have very misty ideas on the subject of patriotism. In many minds it is vaguely connected with firecrackers and skyrockets, and orators who make the eagle cream. It is a sentiment that has to be dusted and displayed, like an old flag, on the Fourth of July and Washington's birthday. There may be further a dim suspicion that in case of a war the sentiment might have to be drawn out and made to serve a more serious purpose.

What Patriotism Really Means. If patriotism meant no more than this, it would not be worth our consideration at all. It does mean more. It means a deep and steadfast devotion to our country and her institutions. It means being ever ready to defend her against any enemy that may attack her. It means constantly striving for her highest political, social and economic welfare. Obviously this is no sentiment to be lent viously this is no sentiment to be kept hidden in the dark corners of the soul, to be dragged out only in times of war. It is to be kept bright and clean for daily use in times of peace.

It helps to clarify our thinking on this subject to reduce patriotism to its lowest terms. Love of one's country surely does not differ in any essential par-ticular from love of one's family. In he old tribal organization of society, the duty of each member of the tribe was two-fold. He must be ready to defend the possessions of the tribe from outside attack; and he must be vigilant to pre-vent any one member of the tribe from confiscating all the food or treasures of the tribe. The men who refused to stir from his hut in the presence of of these dangers, on the pretext that he had no interests outside his own hut, would not only be lacking in tribal devotion; he would be lacking in common

The patriot likewise has a two-fold duty. He must defend his country from foes without and from foes within her borders.

Foes from the Outside.

The least to be feared of our foes from he outside are the other nations of the the outside are the other nations of the world. It is hardly conceivable that any nation of today could be so silly as to attack a great nation like the United States, for the purpose of despoiling us of our possessions. Defeat would be too certain in the end for any such invader. Such folly would invite universal condemnation. That is why the present expanging expenditures on our pays are travagant expenditures on our navy are so absurd. Even if we had no navy at all, no nation would dare attack us.

The real foes from the outside to be feared are the cheap laborers from the dregs of foreign countries, who would degrade American labor to a condition less than human; and the worthless rakes of an effete foreign aristocracy who come to lay their foul hands on the daughters of the rich for the sake of their gold.

Foes on the Inside. Our worst foes, however, are those of our own household. In the days of secession the patrict had to fight a social system which destroyed personal liberty, and violated the very principles on which the country was founded. Today the patriot must fight in defense of his 'Alma-Indema turned in his gold bed, threw back the lace coverlet, sat up. "'Who's there? What is it?' he cried, in a startled voice. "'I say, Tadema,' shouted Vedder, where do you keep the scissors that you trim your cuffs with?' "—Washington Star."

country, his state, and his city, against private bands of marauders who are tryto capture the machinery of governmen for their own selfish ends; he must figh for their own seinsh ends; he must hight to free the 2,000,000 slaves of child la-bor; he must fight for the abolition of poverty, and for justice to the working classes. He must strive to bring it about that our government shall be for the good of all the governed, and not for a favored class. The weapons the American patriot needs to take up today are his conscience, his voice, and his bal-lot.

Obstacles to Patriotism.

There are two tendencies that are inimical to the spread of an intelligent patriotism in the United States today. Strangely enough these tendencies are almost the exact opposites of each other. They are a selfish individualism and shallow cosmopolitanism. The individ-ualist sees only his own selfish interests; the cosmopolitan sees only the interests of humanity. Both lose sight of the interests of the nation.

Selfish Individualism. The individualist, who care only for his babies, his books, and his buildings, is of course utterly blind. If he were not, would see that what is for the good of the nation is for his own good. Good roads, good schools, the restriction of vice, the election to public office of men who could not be bought; all these things would immensely benefit his family and enhance the value of his property. The well-being of the individual depends on the well-being of the whole body politic just as truly as a good digestion or clear thinking depends on the health body suffering with it. Shallow Cosmopolitanism.

Cosmopolitanism is not nearly so great ome British family."

What has excited the consul general's fluences only a few of our citizens in be brown or black or yellow or white; and they therefore are just as eager for the welfare of the Chinese or the Filipino or the Kaffir as of the American. "The Burnham estate is situated, viz...

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine-manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents

Nothing Too Good For the American People

There is NOTHING TOO GOOD for the American people-that's why we started to make Cascarets Candy Cathartic. The first box made its appearance in 1896, and the enthusiastic endorsement of the people has been bestowed upon Cascarets ever since.

The sale today is at the rate of OVER A MILLION BOXES A MONTH, proving that the American people recognize, that what is BEST FOR THEM is none too good.

Why this enormous patronage? The answer is simple: Cascarets are pure, clean, sweet, mild, fragrant, harmless but effective little tablets for the treatment and cure of Constipation and all Bowel Troubles. They are put up in neat little enamel boxes, easy to buy, easy to carry (in vest-pocket or purse), easy to take and easy of action, always reliable, always the same, they "work while you sleep" and wake you up feeling fine in the morning.

They not only regulate the movement and stimulate the muscular walls of the bowels, but they keep the ENTIRE CANAL CLEAN and antiseptic, forcing out and destroying all disease germs that breed in the accumulated filth unless promptly and regularly discharged. Therefore, they are a great preventive of disease, and may be taken continuously as a precautionary measure.

The new Pure Drugs Act, adopted by Congress on June 30, 1906, and in effect January 1, 1907, is a GOOD LAW and means better and PURER drugs for the American People. We endorse it and will live up to it in SPIRIT and LETTER,—an easy task, as we have always been actuated by the same principles and no changes are required in our formula or pack-

We adopted OUR OWN PURE DRUG LAW in 1896 when the first box of Cascarets came on the market and have lived and worked and produced under it ever since. To-day, after a record of nearly 100,000,000 boxes sold, Cascarets STAND the greater in PURITY, QUALITY and MEDICINAL MERIT than any other preparation for Bowel trouble in all the world.

This should be a great argument for any one, to try Cascarets AT ONCE, and be healthier and happier for it. Some people have CHRONIC CONSTIPATION with all the horrors derived from it; others have HAB-ITUAL CONSTIPATION from carelessness and neglect, but nearly EVERYBODY has OCCASIONAL CONSTIPATION, which, if not promptly taken care of is liable to result in its degeneration into the worse

Cascarets, if taken patiently and regularly, will remedy all of these awful troubles, but if taken promptly at the very first sign of an irregularity of the Bowels, will act as the FINEST PREVENTIVE ever discovered and will keep all the machinery running in good order.

forms and cause great suffering and perhaps death.

We advise you to get a little 10c box of Cascarets TO-DAY and carry it in your purse or vest pocket. Take one when you feel anything unusual about your bowels. Your own druggist will sell you the little box, under GUARANTY of satisfaction or money refunded. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c.

THE MUSSULMANS.

They Are Not Easily Disturbed While Saying Their Prayers.

When saying his prayers the true Mussulman is not easily disturbed. Hans Doering, in his account of his The fact is, money is lost on all loans | travels in Chinese Turkestan, writes: "It is an interesting sight to see a Mussulman perform his devotions. Through the piece of glass in my paper window I saw the inter spread his carpet in front of his house just opposite the one in which I was living. DIET AND SLEEP.

Eating Before Retiring and Digestion During Slumber.

Diet has little influence on sleep except in so far as it may produce disturbances of digestion and through these of the general balance of health. The hypnotic effects of certain foods, such as onions, lettuce, milk, etc., are chiefly imaginary. Even the time of the last meal of the day is of relatively little importance except that it is well to let this be at least two or three hours before retiring. But even this rule has many exceptions, as many healthy laboring men habitually fall asleep over their pipes directly after supper, and children after poking the spoon into their little eyes nod off over the tea table, with the bread and butter still clutched in their chubby fists.

The processes of digestion probably go on more slowly during sleep, but they are perfectly carried out, as is illustrated by the almost invariable habit among animals of going to sleep directly after a meal.

Indeed, a moderate amount of food in the stomach or intestines seems to promote slumber. Many night workers. Recent reports show the order has for instance, sleep much better for takabout $500,000 as a reserve fund, with ing a light or even full supper just before retiring.-Dr. Woods Hutchinson
