Stanley M. Matthews, of Escanaba, this week sent out his personal announcement of cand dacy for nomination to the office of representative. Mr. Mat thews' announcement reads as follows: "Upon the solicitation, and with the assurance of the active support of a number of the prominent republicans of the County, I have become a candidate for the nomination for the office of representative to the State Legislature from this district, at the republican primaries to be held on September 1st, 1908.

I respectfully request your good will and earnest support now and at the primaries, and assure you that if I am nominated and elected, it shall be my constant endeavor to promote the interests of the people of Delta County first, last and all the time.

On Tuesday a large party from the two cities went to the road and walked over Also House and Lot 620 Wisconsin the section of it in question. All were most emphatic in saying that money spent on surfacing the road as it now stands, is money thrown to the winds. Keeping their appointment, they went before the commission at the courthouse Wednesday afternoon, and objected to the opening of any bids for the proposed work. Among the delegates were President J. V. Moran, W. R. Smith, H. W. Reade, Chas. M. Thatcher, John M. Millar, D. A. Oliver, and M. J. The prominence and resources of those who are now fighting for the public interest insure that they will not be slighted or over-ruled unheard.

NO TIME LIKE THE PRESENT.

When has there been a time in recent years when one might build as economically as at the present? Cement is down to the bare cost of production, as the manufacturers know to their sorrow; lumber has fallen in price from two to six dollars per thousand, so that the lumbermen tell us they are merely exchanging dollar for dollar; masonry, plastering, plumbing, painting, all are 10 to 25 per cent less than a year ago;

common labor can be had at one's own

Surely it's an ideal time to build!

This fact should be brought home to prospective builders in every way possible. Make up comparative tables of cost to show them-figures right from work which you yourself have done last year and this. Urge your local papers to take up the matter.

Buildings put up for investment vield not to exceed an average of 8 per cent. By building at this time investors should save 10 to 20 per cent on the cost as compared with the cost in 1907 and the outlay that probably will be required next year. This is equivalent to the earnings on the investment for two or three years

Activity in the building trades will tend to give the country a new feeling

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 14 .-Denial was made in the convention of the American Federation of Zionists that Palestine was wholly a sterile country and incapable of being made productive by Prof. O. Marburg, chairman of the Palestine commission, who explained what work had been done in planting olonies of Hebrews in the land of the forefathers of the race. Three hundred delegates were earnestinterested in the proceedings and to the stranger who attended one odd feature was the various languages which were used in the debate. Prof. Marburg said: "The failure of colonization has lain in the fact that the colonists were given everything they wanted and the most important motive, self-interest, was wholly excluded."

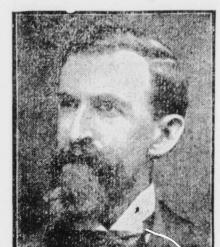

The committee made short work of the New York, Illinois and District of Columbia contests, unanimously sustain-ing the action of the national committee in each case. Other contests, including the Nine-teenth Ohio district and the Idaho fight, were decided. The contesting delega-tion in Ohio, which included Tom John-son, was seated. ### THIRD DAY.

CONVENTION HALL, DENVER. Colo., July 9.-The Democratic national convention resumed its sessions at 11 o'clock with another vast assemblage present, eager and expectant, and with the feeling prevailing that the culminating day was at hand on the presidential nomination and the platform. State delegations were busy during the morning making their final canvass on the coming ballots, and it was 11:40 before the session actually began. The feature of the opening hour was the speech of the peranent chairman, Congressman Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, a sonorous pres entation of party aspirations and a s vere arraignment of President Roos Frequent demonstrations of wild enthusiasm came from the listening thousands, suggestions of Bryan being the unfailing signal for great confusion and applause. This afternoon it was decided to call upon various delegates for speeches and after they had concluded to adjourn unil 7 o'clock this evening when the platorm will be adopted and a presidential andidate nominated. As chairman of the committee on permanent organization, Senator McCreary of Kentucky, presented the report of that body. It recommended Henry D. that body. It recommended Henry D. Clayton, Alabama, for permanent chair-man, Urey Woodston of Kentucky for secretary, and John I. Martin of Mis-souri as sergeant-at-arms. In all other respects the temporary organization was made permanent. Chairman Clayton as soon as he was seen advancing toward the platform was cheered to the echo and the uproar was redoubled as he was introduced to the convention by Temporary Chairman Bell

Laughter and cheers greeted Tempo oary Chairman Bell's announcement that he had read deeply in the Chicago plat-form and he had failed to find therein anything about "Republican prosperity." ### SECOND DAY.

DENVER. Colo., July 8 .- A demonstration lasting over an hour occurred during the Democratic convention this afternoon when Senator Gore in his impromptu speech mentioned the name of "Bryan." It was like a spark to pow-der. The Bryan banners were carried der. around the hall, and delegates danced the two-step while the band played live-ly music. It was noticeable that the delegates from the states which have shown fight against the Nebraskan did not leave their seats. The cheering was confined to the delegates.

A halt in the procession was caused by a delegate who yelled so wildly that his teeth flew out. They rolled under the press stand and he went down on his hands and knees to recover his "enting ma-chinery" while the parade behind him halted until he had recovered the teeth, clapped them into place, and was ready to yell again for his political faith.

The convention today adopted resolu-ons of condolence on the recent death of Senator Jones, former chairman of e national Democratic committee, Senator Gore of Oklahoma delivered

AUTO DRESSING TABLE.

How One English Woman Managed to Do Things.

Nowadays, when a whizzing motor car stops abruptly on a lonely stretch of country road or in the shelter of some friendly woods it doesn't mean necessarilv that the machine has broken down. It may mean that the complexion of the fair occupant needs touching up. Most women carry beauty bags with them pear there with every hair in place and when they motor, but only recently have they begun to have their cars fitted with a regular toilet outfit. One English they begun to have their cars fitted with Loud cheers of approval greeted Chairman Clayton as he concluded and the applause was continued for several minutes.

A motion was made by an Oklahoma delegate that George W. Littleton of New York be invited to address the con-vention. This was taken to refer to vention. This was taken to refer to Martin W. Littleton, who four years ago in St. Louis placed Alton B. Parker of New York in nomination for the presi-dency. The members of the New York delegation accepted the invitation to Mr. Littleton as a compliment in which they shared and they cheered him lustily as mounted the rostrum. Mr. Littleton's brief but eloquent address was loudly cheered, and when he had concluded, there were calls from the galleries for other speakers, but Chairman Clayton admonished the spectators that there must be order or the space would be cleared. The clerk of the convention then was directed to read the list of the new national committee. When the name of James M. Guffey as committeeman from Pennsylvania was read, there was loud cheering.

The committee then reported that a re-port from the committee on resolutions would not be ready before 7 o'clock this evening and the convention took a recess until that time.

FOURTH DAY.

DENVER, Colo., July 10.-William Jennings Bryan of Nebrask, was nomi-nated for the third time for the office of President by the Democratic national convention at 3:40 o'clock this morning, amid scenes of frenzied enthusiasm. Movement Is Said to Be Receiving Aid from Salvador and Guatemala.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 10 .--News has been received here that the rebels who are fighting against President Davila of Honduras have captured the town of Choluteca and, flushed with success, are threatening Santa Barbara. It is persistently reported here that the movement in Honduras is being aided in a guarded manner by the governments at Salvador and Guatemala and certain information was received here last night which tends very strongly to confirm these rumors. Choluteca is one of the most strongly fortified positions in Honduras. The insurgents already are in possession of the town of Cracias and their position will be much strengthened by the capture of Choluteca.

Choluteca is a town of 5000 people and is situated seventy miles south west of Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras. Santa Barbara has about 6000 people and is 115 miles north-

Future.

NEW YORK, July 15 .- James Speyer, who sailed today on the Adriatic, on his annual European trip, had this to say about the business outlook: "Everybody knows that the financial and business situation has improved during the last few months, and I believe that it will continue to improve, as confidence, which had been severely shaken through a number of causes, continues to be restored more and more. Judg-ing from the past, the election of Mr. Taft seems a reasonable certainty. The political situation, therefore, ought not to be too much of a disturbing factor, the more so as the ill-considered attacks on capital generally do not find the same favor with the people as they did a little while ago. The crop prospects also are fair, and the easier money and credit situation should have a favorable influence on the revival of busi-ness generally."

Anna Haverland's Arms.

In speaking of the death of Ann Haverland, the German actress, a Dresden paper says that "she was beautiful, had an imposing presence, a musical voice, possessed all the qualities of a great act-ress and had a right arm of perfect form." The writer adds that when Prof. Schilling was modelling the giganstatue of Germania which stands at Niederwald on the Rhine he sought for months for a model for the right arm of the figure, and hundreds of women were anxious to pose, for the right hand was to bear the imperial crown of Germany. ### THE DANGER OF AROUSING THE MOB. By Ex-Governor Black of New York.

Whoever arouses the mob or the mob spirit plays with fire. He may not himself be burned, but others will. It is seldom that an incendiary is burned or loses anything in the flames, but the incendiary is in a class far higher than the demagogue.

One destroys only property and occasionally a human life, while the other undermines society itself, arrays class against class, arouses, stimulates and cheers the grosser passions, which in full swing may bring the government itself to its knees.

The one sets fire that he may gather booty, the other arouses popular distrust that he may retain or acquire power.

No case has ever arisen in the world where a socalled reform was proposed which would injure the man who proposed it. We seem now to have subjugated, or. at least, to have set aside our old-time rules of law and reason and justice, and to have summoned to our seats of power the baser attributes more easily aroused, but harder to subdue. The policeman never had so little authority in a crowd as he has to-day.

Our courts of law, the most complete development of civilized society, a shield to the lowly a check to the proud, are viewed with gradually diminishing respect and fear by those who, without the courts, would be a menace to the State. And this spirit is often fostered and encouraged by those who are chosen and sworn to administer the laws.

WHY WE MUST HAVE COMBINATIONS.

By Seth Low, Ex-Mayor of New York.

Common carriers, business corporations and business men, labor organizations and labor men, have all had it brought home to them, one after another, that under the terms of the Sherman anti-trust law a large part of the business done in the United States at the present time is being done contrary to law. Co-operative associations and other associations of farmers are subject to the same Common carriers should be permitted to combine and to make traffic agreements in proper cases and under suitable governmental supervision; for combination and traffic agreements often mean more effective service to the public.

What is wanted is effective public supervision and not an absolute prohibition of the very thing that may se-

Although of late years the building in Washington set apart by the government as the residence of the President of the United States has been dignified as the executive mansion, it is much better known as the White House, from one end of the country cure the best public service. Regulation, not prohibition, should be our watchword in all such matters. The trade agreement, which determines for a fixed period, by mutual agreement of employer and employe, the rate of wages to be paid and the conditions of employment, offers the most hopeful method which has yet been discovered to promote and to make permanent industrial peace under modern industrial conditions; and to classify such agreements as though they were contracts in restraint of trade would be a public calamity.

The attempt of cotton growers to protect themselves by combination against the combinations that deal in their products is just as certainly unlawful under the Sherman act as the business combinations of which they complain; but even a law of the United States, powerful as this country is, cannot set aside the universal law that leads men in these days to combine, and that leads men to do so precisely in proportion as they are intelligent and free.

EUROPE'S JEALOUSY OF AMERICA.

By Rev. A. B. Hepburn.

The one thing that most strongly impresses itself upon the mind of a careful observer in Europe at the present time is the fact that the continent of Europe does not like the United States. They regard us as a bumptious people, that ought to be spanked into some sort of decorum, and they would welcome and rejoice in any international complications, not involving themselves, that would bring us into difficulties. It is our growing importance as a naval and military power that most disturbs them. It disturbs the international balance of power as it heretofore existed and upon which their diplomacy has heretofore been based.

Neither does the continent of Europe like Japan, and for similar reasons. Her recently-achieved naval and military prestige and her English alliance have brought Japan to the frant in the family of nations, an aggressive force that must be reckoned with in world politics. It calls a halt to territorial acquisition in the East, and from now on is likely to mark a recession in European influence in Asia.

It follows from this condition of affairs that nothing would be contemplated with greater complacency by the continental powers than a war between the United States and Japan. A taxing of the strength and a wasting of the resources of these two powers, not involving themselves, would tend to restore their relative power and would be lawful to do the same in every transaction, and the railroad business might lawfully become one of barter and sale, limited only by the demand."

In a decision handed down today by Judge C. C. Kohlsaat in the United States circuit court, from which the above is quoted, the jurist enjoined the issuance of transportation by the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway company to the publishers of Munsey's Magazine in exchange for advertising.

Decision in Test Case.

The decision was rendered in a test case in which the federal authorities brought suit to prevent the carrying out of a contract entered into in January, of a contract entered into in January, 1907, between the railway company and Frank A. Munsey & Co., providing for the issuance of trip tickets or mileage to the value of $500, in consideration of certain advertising space in the publica-tion of the magazine company. The contion of the magazine company. The con-tract was alleged to be a violation of the Hepburn law.

The petition charged that the action of the railroad company in issuing such transportation constituted a violation of the prohibition against the acceptance of any compensation for transportation, "greater or less, or different" from that named in the published rates. The railway company insisted that it re-ceived a full money value, based on schedule rates for the mileage or tick-

How Advertising Is Valued.

How Advertising Is Valued. In passing upon the question of com-pensation the decision says: The questions to the value of the adver-tising is a contested one. Manifestiy there can be no fixed price placed upon it. The number of copies issued, the character of its subscribers, and very many other ques-tions enter into the estimate of its worth. It is, therefore, impossible to say what its cash market value is except by compari-son with other advertising rates. If it is taken at its cash value why should the transportation be limited as specified in the contract? If the magazine is paying $500 to the defendant, why does it accept value than it would accept if it bought its tickets with money? It seems fair to con-clude that either the advertising is of less than cash value or the advertising are grossly imposed upon by the railway. than cash value or the advertise grossly imposed upon by the railway

Allow No Discrimination.

After citing several decisions, rendered in somewhat similar cases, Judge Kohlsaat says:

It will be noted that the contract does It will be noted that the contract does not require that the advertising must have been furnished before the transportation is given. There is no restriction upon the advertiser to call for his railway tickets only so far as earned. In the mere matter of interest the rate would be less and dit-ferent from that which is published. If one person may purchase transporta-tion with advertising, another with labor, and another with produce, the value of which is a matter of agreement between the parties, how can it be said the schedule rate is always maintained? Would not the rate rest in the whim of the carrier? Such is not the intent of the law. Notice of an appeal to the United

to the other. It is a very old house for a new country like ours, and within its walls the drama of life has been enacted as in millions of other homes in the land.

It had been built, however, nearly half a century before a President brought his bride home there. John Tyler, the 10th President of the United States, was the first who brought a bride to the White House. He had been married in 1813, and brought his wife with him to the Presidential mansion, when, in April, 1841, he succeeded President Harrison, but she sickened and died at the White House, and in 1844 he brought Miss Julia Gardiner, of New York, as his bride. He had married her at her home on Staten Island, New York.

President Cleveland was the only President that was married at the White House. The 2d of June, 1886, he was married there to Miss Frances Folsom, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Washington never entered the White House as its mistress. Mrs. John Adams came first in the line of eminent ladies who breathed the Washington air within its precincts.

Mr. Jefferson, Gen. Jackson, Mr. Van Buren and Mr. Arthur were widowers; Mr. Buchanan an old bachelor, and Mr. Cleveland a young one.

Brothers Are Shot While Resisting Sheriff's Aids Near Benton Harbor, Mich.

BENTON HABOR, Mich., July 15 .-August Gross, who shot and fatally wounded James Kirk, and his younger brother, Fred, were killed during a battle with Sheriff Tennant and a posse of seven men yesterday. None of the officers was injured. The Gross brothers are supposed to have been insane.

After shooting Kirk August Gross braricaded himself in his farmhouse, and through the night exchanged occasional shots with the crowd of farmers and deputies who were guarding the premises to prevent his escape. His young broth-er, Fred, joined him in the defense of the house, and the aged mother of the two men also was in the house through-out the battle with the officers. She was found almost prostrated with terror when the officers broke into the house after the battle.

"Now, I knew in a general way that in order to put money in a bank you've got to be known and give your pedigree and look respectable, and all that, and I hated to approach a bank with out any sort of credentials. Therefore I went to the business manager of a certain magazine which occasionally prints pieces that I write and asked him what I'd better do.

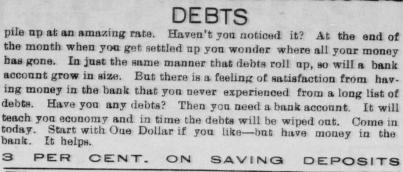

"'Simplest thing in the world,' said he. 'I'll give you a note to our bank.' "That sounded fine to me. He wrote me the note, and I started for the bank Work on the new grounds of the Thursday from Waupaca, Wis., after a a good deal tickled over how easy the little depositing proceeding had been

"I must own that I was a bit stalled to note the great size of some of the deposits he was receiving. Why, fellows were giving the money to him by the satchelful. But I had my note in my pocket, and I remained complacent enough with that consciousness.

"When I reached the receiving teller I passed in my note, and the receiving teller, a decidedly civil young man, IF opened it and read it. Then he looked at me, after which he read the note again, this time with a sort of puzzled expression on his countenance. I didn't see why the receiving teller should be puzzled over such a simple matter, but puzzled he seemed. He rang a bell, and the uniformed man who'd directed me to that window appeared.

"'Show this gentleman to the office of the cashier,' said the receiving teller to the uniformed man, at the same time regarding me with a pleasant smile, and the uniformed man led me CALIFORNIA down the passageway and took me behind a railing where there was a handsome gray haired gentleman siting at a desk. "The handsome gray haired gentleman received me cordially and invited note, which the receiving teller had returned to me, and he leaned back in his chair and read it carefully. Then he, too, looked puzzled after he'd read 40C the note a second time. Then he looked at me pleasantly over the tops of his spectacles. 100

-0-1+0-The Motive of the Music.

A musical strain with variations playing about a motive that constantly reeurs has a charm that never wears out. The variations may be ever so alluring, but they would mean nothing without the motive. A book fell into my hands not long ago, written in a style that defied criticism. The diction was matchless, the author's vocabulary was rich and copious. Nevertheless, the book did not get me. I turned page after page, ping. tried essay after essay, and I laid down in despair. It was all foam and froth, without a single strong idea, without the least bit of a story that could make an impression from the first to the last leaf. There must be a motive, or the music will be an empty sound. If we American women want to learn he inner sweetness of a life of brave simplicity we must have the spirit there of in our hearts. After all, it is not a matter so much of dress and condition, so much of show or the lack of it ever may be alleged against him, and by whomsoever, she turns a deaf ear. A woman's love will clothe in royal robes en have never stood in the world's his-tory in the foreground of splendid opare not to be discerned by any portunity. Yet sometimes-I say it with reverence—we appear to be in the exact situation of those early disciples of the church who were asked by a visiting minister whether they had received the Holy Ghost. "We have not so much as heard," they replied, "whether there be a Holy Ghost." We go groping on, blindly and wearily, seeking we know not what, unsatisfied amid prodigality, because, dear friend, we are still ignor vine spirit of love and truth and faith me. Germans Seeking a Means to Fight Sand Dunes in Southwest Africa.

The Germans are in a dilemma ove the railroad they are building in their olony Southwest Africa to connect Luderitz bay on the Atlantic with Beth anien, more than a hundred miles inland They have not yet discovered how to circumvent the moving sand dunes that have covered the track many feet deep only about fifteen miles from the coast Moving dunes are a common deser-phenomena. They are found in the Colo Gobi wastes of Asia. Their action is like the waves of the sea. The sand might pile up above the tunnel as it pleased, but the running of trains would not be affected. The problem the Germans are consid-ering has not been met before in rail-road construction. It is very different from the problem that confronted the builders of the transcaspian railroad, who had to deal not with mountains of sand burying the surface from forty to fifty feet under them, but merely with the neighboring sands blowing on the track and covering it to a depth of two or three feet. a background in masses of one color. They succeed well in almost any soil or position, but must be kept well watered during the hot weather or they will lose their lower leaves and present a wilted appearance. The clumps should be lifted divided and reset every two years. Plenty of fertilizer is needed, a mulch of manure about the roots in summer being very beneficial. The old stems should be removed in the fall aft-er flowering. Pure white and light pink varieties are fine for cut flowers.

To increase stock of choice varieties, take the small side shoots in June or later, insert in sand and keep in a moist and a shaded place until roots are formed. When the slips are well rooted they can be planted and many will pro-duce flowers the same season. Seeds Seeds produce inferior flowers in most cases.

THE GREAT SYMPATHETIC.

It Daily Manufactures Drugs and Poisons Which the System Assimilates.

In the presence of the great nervous system physicians are now like prospecors in the Klondike region. A few fine nuggets have already been collected which prove that they come from rich veins in the mountains around, and no one knows how soon some vein in them may be struck which, followed up, will ield much gold. A specimen of these golden additions to our knowledge is the fact that, among many other things, the Sympathetic actually makes drugs, true medicine, whose presence in the blood is essential to life. One of these is now sold over the counter like any other drug. The origin of it is from a twig of the renal (kidney) sympathetic plexus becoming at a certain early stage of development rolled on it self like a ball of twine. In time it breaks off from its parent stem, and, being en-closed in a capsule, adheres to the top of he kidney as a separate gland called the idrenal gland. These adrenals add an inernal secretion to the blood whose active principle has been found to be a definite hemical substance, only 1-800 of a grain of which will uncomfortably raise the pressure of a man's blood in all the ar-teries of his body. This adrenalin, as it is called, is a new medicine with many valuable properties, but it is itself of such purely chemical composition that subances like it can now be made artificiallike artificial indigo.

Any man who really loves a woman with the love which may be counted "I have the agency for fountain pens, upon to last, and who feels that she is banners, pillows and similar things. He tests the bridge ere he trusts it to carry his beloved across the water. Mean-while he has the comfort of her love, the incitement of future reward, as well as all the tender encouragement given sweetheart.

Men are hunters by nature; the zest of the chase has for them : ractions which greatly exceed those of the coveted prize after it is captured.

Sometimes, though rarely, women are successful; just often enough to make up pity rather than blame ner who, loving "not wisely but too well" rashly takes the risk. Infinite love, infinite patience, the faith which hopes always, the courage which fails not and above all, the strength which leans upon the Strength which is greater than itself—ail these are necessary for the work.

Usually, however, the opposite end of the balance dips lowest. Except for the brief period of courtship, and not always is the woman who most exerts then, herself to please; who puts forth every effort to attract and charge the man whom she loves, finding it more blessed to give than to receive. No woman is wholly without influence over the man who loves her, but even so the influence without influence over the man of the man preponderates

Yet the fact remains that the reformation of an evil man by even the best of wives is among the most difficult of hu-man undertakings. The cases where a woman, however deeply in love, has mar-ried a grunkard and roue against the entreaties of her friends, and has not lived to repent the act, are so few as to be worthy of citation as exceptions which go to prove the rule.

It is by no means an easy task to reform any one. People always dislike to be found fault with, and prefer their own tricks and manners to those of others. Even where they know they are blamed. Are we not taught that "the way to hell is paved with good inten-tions?" No man who cannot sized tions?" No man who cannot stand up-right without the aid of a woman is a safe husband; she who endeavors to hold up such a weakling, is apt to be to bent if not broken in the effort. Since marriage is the closest of human associations it is inevitable that the two who are thus bound together shall act and react each upon the other. But it is, alas! the exception when the higher

But I have told you all that before, and country people are apt to repeat themselves. You see our circle of pleasures is not wide, but at the sam time it is restful and healthful. Had I not Hillsley, I should have invested in a farm and built my house, room by room, and vegetated. A man said to me the other day, "Such an existence is impossible. You become like one of the products of your own garden. Do you tell me that you would willingly cut yourself off from civilization and actually settle in a place where there is no country club and not even a garage?" DOGS LIKE MASTERS.

Appendicitis the Fashionable Malady Among High Life Canines in New York.

Plutocratic dogs sometimes have appendicitis, just like their masters, and are operated on to remove the vermiform appendix, says the New York Press. There is a dog and cat hospital in the city in which there is a woman surgeon. She wears a sterilized cotton gown when she operates and uses cotton bandages, just like in a real hospital. There is a long table in the middle of the "operating ward" and there, gently soothed with a few drops of ether or chloroform, has parted with some portion of his anatomy.

One day this woman surgeon removed in appendix and found it full of coal. This is a specimen of the things puppies will eat. One day she removed a toy watch from a bright young pup's diges-tive apparatus, where it had not digested. Buckles, pocketbook clasps, buttons, pins and needles are among the inter-setions things she has added to her colesting things she has added to her collection from this source. A sick dog is as finical about his food as a sick person. One great Dane who had received an injury to his spine re-fused to eat anything. He was kept alive by having his mouth held open while raw eggs were thrown into it. He was despite himself and his life saved. The Spectral Horseman That Visits Wycollar Hall.

This ghost story is contributed by a correspondent of an English magazine: 'Wycollar Hall, near Colne, was long the seat of the Cunliffes of Billington. They were noted persons in their time, but evil days came, and their ancestral estates passed out of their hands. In the days of the commonwealth their loyalty cost them dear, and ultimately nant only of their once extensive property. About 1819 the last of the family passed away, and the hall is now a mass of ruins. Little but the antique fireplace remains entire, and even the Sunday. room alluded to in the following legend cannot now be identified. Tradition says that once every year a specter horseman visits Wycollar Hall. Saturday. He is attired in the costume of the early Stuart period, and the trappings of his horse are of a most uncouth description.

"On the evening of his visit the weather is always wild and tempestuous. There is no moon to light the lonely roads, and the residents of the district do not venture out of their cottages. When the wind howls loudest the horseman can be heard dash-Committee on Fire, Water and Lighting ing up the road at full speed, and, after crossing the narrow bridge, he suddenly stops at the door of the hall. The rider then dismounts and makes his way up the broad oaken stairs into one of the rooms of the house. Dreadful screams, as from a woman, are then heard, which soon subside into groans. The horseman then makes his appearance at the door, at once mounts his steed and gallops off.

"His body can be seen through by those who may chance to be present; his horse appears to be wild with rage, and its nostrils stream with fire. The tradition is that one of the Cunliffes murdered his wife in that room and that the specter horseman is the ghost of the murderer, who is doomed to pay an annual visit to the home of his victim. She is said to have predicted States. the extinction of the family, which, according to the story, has been literally fulfilled."

government, gives a frank explanation of the ambitious naval policy which his country has undertaken. Brazil is not threatened with attack from any source, but orders have been placed for thirty warships, four Dreadnoughts, and twenty-six cruisers and torpedo boat. "Brazil concluded that she had the money," says Senhor Alves, "and therefore could undertake this program." The satisfaction of national pride rather than the guarantee of national safety, was the compelling motive. A candid analysis of any one of the great naval policies of the world will disclose the fact that it is more or less of a luxury in which the country indulges because of the pleasure of national pride.

Ontonagon Herald: "The loyalty of the Ontonagon fire department to the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association is certainly commendable. In the face of the fact that Marquette was represented at the Ontonagon covention last year by only its two delegates, for the sake of the association local firemen are going to attend the Marquette gathering this year, and they will have a running team." The Herald says that twenty-five firemen will make the trip. The village has appropriated $150 toward defraying the expenses. The running team has been in training for some time, and is reported to bear promise of capturing some of the prizes.

Mole Superstitions.

According to tradition, if you have a mole on your chin you may expect to be wealthy, while if you have it under your arm it promises you wealth and honor as well. A mole on the ankle indicates courage. On the left temple a mole indicates that you will find friends among the great ones of the earth, but if it be placed on the right temple it warns you of coming distress. A mole on a man's knee means that he may expect to marry a rich woman. A mole on the neck promises wealth. If you have a mole on your nose you are going to be a great traveler. A mole on the throat famous, is yet to be learned .- Laterindicates health and wealth.
