WHAT HIS FRIENDS SAY.

Says that strong apologist of Warner and his third term boom, the Detroit News in a fit of conscince, "It has always seemed to us that the only fair answer any one ever could make to a question of what Mr. Warner might do, judging from what he has done, would be: "God only knows!" He has been hither and thither like a West Virginia rail fence in a mountain district. Now he has been with the state's interest, and now against, seemingly as the mood was upon him. To credit any human being with sagacity and foresight enough to say, "Here is one who has definitely located Fred M. Warner," would be to fly in the face of the facts of his administration. It would be presumptuous to ascribe the necessary intelligence to any but the Omniscient." The same paper has been taking Splendid 5-room cottage, a straw vote in Detroit. Dr. Bradley received over 53 per cent of the entire vote, Warner barely 36 per cent.

A Baked Bean Rabbit. Heat together half a cup of milk and two tablespoonfuls of butter and add a cup of cold baked beans rubbed through a sieve. Season to taste with salt, pepper and a little onion juice. Heat thoroughly and then add a cup lightly measured of soft, rich cheese finely crumbled and a teaspoonful of worcester or other good table sauce. Stir over hot water until the cheese is melted. Serve on rounds of toast or toasted wafers.

Empty the Saltcellars. One of the minor annoyances of summer is trying to shake salt which refuses to be shaken. If a little white cornmeal or cornstarch is mixed with the salt this caking will be overcome. Letting salt stand in silver cellars is also bad during the humidity of summer. It should be emptied after each meal or the silver will blacken. If a covered bowl is kept in the pantry the salt can be quickly emptied into it, and the filling and refilling take little time.

Salt For the Elbows. Do you know that all the time you have been worrying and fussing because your elbows are rough, coarse and chapped in your pantry an excellent remedy is waiting for you? And this simple remedy is nothing but common table salt. Pour a little salt in the palm of one hand and rub the other elbow with it. This will make the skin of the elbow soft and white.

The great issue in Delta county this summer seems to be; shall good officers of Delta county will show good sense be endorsed by re-election, and careful handling of the public business be thereby promoted, or shall the offices degenerate into a grab-bag for aspiring candidates, whose ambition is to have a hand and efficiency be placed at a premium, worthy also for the large expenses of mistake if you put a X before his name the candidates, seeking to make them- on the primary ballot. selves most widely known; some exceeding the bounds of good taste and self respect in their clamor for the public ear. Mr. LaPine should get every vote in Judge White will be not only a tribute Gladstone.

Many of the voters will pay special attention Tuesday to supporting the candidacy of Treasurer Joseph J. Mallmann. He is a man of many friends in Delta county, and they will rally in which they feel him justly entitled. Mr. Mallmann, an excellent business man, has given his full time to conducting the duties of the treasurer's office no criticism has been urged against him. For this reason a great number of the Republicans of the county will stand up for him on election day and do their best to see that he has the second term which the law supposes to be fairly the length of a treasurer's service.

There are a large number of colored ballots in readiness for the coming election, but few of them will be used; as there is neither contest nor interest outside of the Republican party. The Republican ballots are large, however, and the greatest of care must be exercised by every man to find the names of his candidates in the jumble.

The Bradley sentiment in Gladstone is a factor gaining daily. In every direction only words of approval are to be heard for the Eaton Rapids man. All classes, workingmen or business men, express the same idea. Bradley's campaign has been modest, but there is a true ring about the man and his utterances that the voters recognize. Predictions as to the popular vote are always uncertain; but in view of all the facts, it will be really remarkable if Bradley does not carry Gladstone; as well as many other parts of a county supposedly unfavorable to him. Even those who have made it their business to scoff at his candidacy as a hopeless race are beginning to hedge and say that the Bradley vote is to be dealt with as a factor, and not to be antagonized by any local candidate.

The Glazier scandal is now pursuing Governor Warner and Dairy Commissioner Bird. Their dealings with the disgraced state treasurer are coming out and frantic efforts to tread down their former friend are unsuccessful. The governor may have been guilty of no wrong intention in his dealings with Glazier, but ingratitude is a sin that will always be coldly viewed by the American people. At any rate, it was a grievous indiscretion, and grievously will Warner answer it.

JUDGE WHITE.

The contest for the probate office has been vigorously waged from the start: it will be carried on briskly in the last hours of the election. The Delta advocates strongly the re-election of the Hon. His campaign has been quiet and dignified, without unnecessary noise: the judge stands upon his record, which is a matter of public knowledge. The indications are that there will be no third term. The Warner forces are numbers to urge his re-election, to placing their last hope in the rural vote. for the cities and larger towns give every evidence that they will give the majority to Dr. Bradley. A little inquiry around Portland will show that not even a majority of the farmer vote will go for Warner, while Bradley sentiment in the village is very strong. -Portland Observer.

GOSHEN, Ind., Aug. 26.-Judge Fancis E. Baker of the United States circuit court of appeals, which reversed the decision of Judge Landis fining the Standard Oil company $29,000,000 replied yesterday to the critics of his court.

"In the first place," he said, "it was not the Standard Oil company incorporated under the laws of New Jersey the parent concern that was on trial, but the Standard Oil company of Indiana, an off-spring, undoubtedly, but a much smaller and weaker organization.

Wrong Company Indicted.

"But when it came to pass judgment it was on the offenses of the parent company that the Indiana offispring was found guilty, and it was in accordance with the property and revenues of the parent company that the fine of the offspring was gauged. If it was the desire and purpose of the court to pun-ish the Standard Oil company of New Jersey that concern should have been indicted either jointly or separately and have been brought into court.

Courts Not Influenced.

"Every corporation has exactly the same rights as an individual, no more, no less. The parent company is, of course, more or less responsible for the acts of the Indiana company. The people will sooner or later realize that the courts are not swayed by any other interest than law and present the what fluence than law and precedent. What any one man may say in regard to the decision of a court counts for no more than his opinion. All I know in reality about this case is that a common thing has occurred—a motion for a rehearing has been filed."

James S. O'Neill, the fireman, from Springfield, was killed; H. B. Colvin, the engineer, of Spring-field, was fatally scalded; a mail clerk was probably mortally hurt, and several passengers were more or less seriously njured. The engine and mail and baggage cars turned over and were badly damaged. The smoker left the track but remained upright. The chair car and two Pullmans remained on the track. A telephone message from the scene says the accident resulted from a defective track.

The Expert.

If we ever come across the heaven-sent being whom the "expert" seems to some minds to incarnate, we shall fall down and worship among the first. ROSEBUD LANDS ARE DESIRABLE

PROPERTY ADJOINING RESERVA-TION TO BE OPENED BRINCS HIGH PRICES.

MAKE APPLICATION BY MAIL

Those Desiring Tracts Must, However, Visit Towns Before Filing Their Registrations.

SOLDIERS RECEIVE BENEFITS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 26 .-The Rosebud Indian reservation lands, which, under the proclamation of the President, are to be disposed of by lottery on October 19, are located on the south side of the state of South Dakota and adjoin the lands in Gregory county which were opened in 1904. They are said to be very desirable for farming and stock raising purposes, and similar lands in adjoining counties are selling for good prices.

The plan adopted for this registration and drawing is similar to that used in the Gregory opening, but certain ob-jectionable features which imposed hardships on applicants for registration have been eliminated. At the Gregory and former openings, applicants were required to appear in person and stand in line, often for a considerable length of time, until officers of the government examined into and determined their qualifications, and registered them, while at this opening no line will be formed, and the people will be permitted to send in their applications by mail, or otherwise, to the superintendent, after they have been sworn to in one of the towns above mentioned.

Soldiers Receive Benefits.

Soldiers who served for three months during the Civil war, the Spanish-American war or the Philippine insurrection, will not be required to visit the towns mentioned for the purpose of registering, but may register through an agent. Persons who are successful in the drawing will be permitted to make entry of one-quarter section or less, under the homestead laws, at some date after March 1, 1909, and may obtain title by making the required residence and cultivation and the payment of $6 an acre for all lands entered prior to June 1, 1909, or $4.50 an acre for lands entered under the President's proclamation after that date.

No Settlements Now.

There are no settlements on any of hese lands and several sites will be located in suitable places and reserved homestead entry, before March 1, 1909.

CANNIBALS IN SIBERIA.

Nomad, Driven Desperate by Hunger, Devours Bodies of Brother's Wife and Children.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 26.—Details are given in Yakutsk newspapers of a revolting case of cannibalism among the nomadic tribe of Lamuts, living in the river Korkosin, in extreme northwestern Siberia. One of the nomads, driven desperate by hunger, devoured the bodies of his brother's wife and four children. A party of hunters came upon the deserted encampment, found the re-mains of the bodies and reported the case. There was no vestige of food on the premises. The brother's body was not found and it is not known whether he was eaten or wandered away and perished in the snow. The nomad tribes of this region pass a precarious existence and similar instances of hardship and cannibalism are often brought to light when the melting of the Siberian snows make travel possible.

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

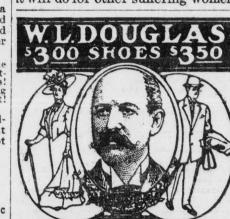

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

DISMISSAL OF CADETS UPHELD

TWO MUST LEAVE WEST POINT FOR HAZING AND SIX ARE SUSPENDED.

WRIGHT MAKES STATEMENT.

Punishment of Half Dozen Will Last One Year Without Pay and Other Allowances.

ORDER WILL BE ISSUED SOON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.--Announcement was made today by Secretary of War Wright that his recommendation for the punishment for the eight West Point cadets suspended from the military academy for hazing had been approved by President Roosevelt.

The order to be issued soon by Secretary Wright, based upon the President's approval, will dismiss from the academy the two first class men under suspension, William T. Rossell, Jr., a son of Col. William T. Rossell of the engineer corps of the army, and Harry G. Weaver Illinois; and the suspension without pay and allowances for one year for the six members of the third class. George Confers with Superintendent.

Last Wednesday evening, after Secretary Wright had had a long conference with Col. Scott, superintendent of the military academy, the secretary sent to President Roosevelt his recommendation for the disposition of the West Point cadet cases. The President's approval of the recommendation was received by Secretary Wright today. In the conference held at Sagamore Hill, participated in by the President. Secretary Wright and Col. Scott, it was suggested that all of the eight cadets be suspended from the academy for one year without pay or allowances. That was regarded as adequate punishment for the offenses against the law and regulations committed by the cadets.

Scott Favored Dismissal.

Supt. Scott, however, insisted that the maintenance of discipline at the academy required even more drastic punishment than would be contained in an order of suspension. He points out that the two first class men were confessedly the ringleaders in the hazing and that being older than the other men, and in a sense responsible for the practices which had grown up at the academy they ought to be dealt with more severethan the others. He felt, in fact, that if drastic action were not taken by the authorities in this case, his influence as superintendent of the academy would be weakened materially. With this view the President and Secretary Wright she of finally agreed.

Army Officers' Opinion.

The action of the President and Secretary of war is considered by army officers to be a perfectly adequate punishment of the cadets, although regret is expressed that it was deemed necessary for the maintenance of discipline absoto dismiss Cadets Rossell and

In this connection an interesting fact was developed by the inquiry into the case. That was that Col. Scott, the superintendent of the academy, was sus-pended from West Point when he was a cadet. He was found guilty by a board of hazing and was set back one year without pay or allowances.

Will Report Next June.

The suspended cadets, in the year of their absence from the academy will be, in a measure, under the authority of the army authorities, although they will be permitted to do whatever they may Unless they should resign, they will be required to report to the academy on June 15 next to take their places in the class below that of which they now are members.

Interstate Commerce Commission Still Gathering Data Concerning Alleged Discriminations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 24.-Special.]-Although the so-called Hepburn rate bill which became a law more than a year ago provided that the sleeping car companies and express companies shall be regarded as common carriers hereafter and as such shall be brought within the purview of the interstate commerce commission, that body up to the present time has formulated no regulations affecting the express sleeping car business of the country. The commission, however, has been gathering facts concerning the rates and liscriminations made by these companies and within a very short time the public will learn that they have some rights which the corporations controlling these utilities are bound to respect. The facts in regard to the sleeping car companies will be particularly interesting when made public. It is learned that the commission have gathered a mass of information which shows that there appears to be absolutely no system in the method of fixing rates. For instance: It is possible to go to Chicago from Washington for $4.50 if the passenger buys a ticket half way and then renews his right to occupy his berth for the remainder of the journey. But if he buys right through he is compelled to pay $5 for like accommodation. This is only one instance called to the attention of the commission to the injustice of the present method of charging by the sleeping car company and it is one which will be remedied with many similar when the regulations are formulated.

BING U. S. TREASURY.

Charles W. Fitzgerald, Arraigned in Court and Admitted to Bail-Hearing on August 31.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 24.—George W. Fitzgerald, arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing $173,000 of United States funds from Assistant United States, Treasurer William Boldenweck, on February 20, 1907, was admitted to bail today by Judge Chetlaine. Counsel for the defendant pleaded for an immediate hearing, but the court postponed the examination until August 31 to allow the state's attorney to collect further evidence.

"I have not a nickel that does not belong to me," exclaimed Fitzgerald to reporters. He gave his attorneys an elaborate explanation of the money he had used in speculation. When he was discharged from the government employ he declared he had $2600 his wife poshe declared he had $2600, his wife pos-sessed about $2900 and later he inhersessed about $2500 and $5000. We're nothin' but skeleton bones and skin;
And John he paces the shore, and looks
(Just like they do in pirate books)
For a sail. "Cheer up! My eye!" he'll say,
"We'll die with our boots on, anyway!
Cheer up, mates! Give us a song!" and we sing

"My County 'Tis like anything.
But we're all so weak and terrible thin
(Nothin' but skeleton bones and skin!)
That we can't sing long—we're 'bout to die,
When John staggers up and calls out "Hi!
There's a ship! Ahoy! A ship! Me eye!"
And he waves and calls, loud as he can!
Then Tom, my uncle's hired man
(He's awful nice! But he don't know
We're shipwrecked pirates starvin' so),
Then Tom calls back, "Come along, kids, come!

If you hump yourselves you can ride back On top of the load!" So we hurry away Past as we can—and we don't play Pirates again till another day.

-0-1-0-A Woman's Possibilities.

Every woman living is conscious, more or less continually, of having more in her than those about her will ever suspect. It is not a morbid state of mind-though, if taken the wrong way, it undoubtedly produces that morbid result, the woman who believes she is misunderstood. It is a perfectly healthy and sane realization of the psychical fact that every human being has far more powers than he or she ever uses. And if accepted and act-ed upon, it opens the door to larger and larger possibilities all the while.

The growth of some women in beauty, character, or social power is a continua amazement to their earlier friends. "I never would have believed that she had it in her" is the surprised comment. beauty expert knows how much better looking any woman can become if she brings every power of her nature to bear on the question. The social observer knows how a woman can make tact a second nature and charm a daily possession. The moralist knows how character builds up like magic when mind and will are bent upon growth. The possibilities of any woman are becomputation, even by those have known her since she was born. They rest with herself.

This last, however, most women are slow to understand. The average woman, feeling her own limited scope, feels also that the chance of being a complet personality has been denied her. sighs, and puts away the thought of larger things into the back of her mind. the greater self that might be sinks back and disappears into the unsounded depths of the soul, leaving only vague sense that "it might have been. Daily life is accepted as commonplace and unsatisfying; duty is done stodgily The woman adjusts her life to being average. Or else, in un-thinking revolt at her limitations, she breaks them, and sure disaster overtakes For revolt is not growth or control; it is plain stupidity, in place of the knowledge which is power.

The woman who understands her own posibilities need not understand, at first, exactly what they are. It is not the possession of an extraordinary talent for anything that makes the superior wom-an. It is the recognition that she has the extraordinary possibilities in her (just like everybody else), added to the determination that (unlike almost everybody else)) she is going to use them. A good hard study—not merely a smattering reading—about the subliminal self, and psyin general, may well be her first step. Then the determined application, to every day of her life, of the very best she can find in herself will follow-and surprises will begin for her and for those around her. The apparent miracles that Christian Science has wrought for some women are simply results of the appli-cation of this best self to the individual problem, with speedy solution. The con-tinual miracle of what a great love, as wife or mother will do for a woman's nature, is but another calling out of her best from the depths. A noble cause raises some women to their real possibilities. But the main point is that ev ery woman has the powers that enlarge and thus ennoble life—and she can make them dynamic, instead of latent, if she so chooses.—Harper's Bazar.

Indulge Your Own Preference. A frequent mistake is made by women who try to live up to somebody else's standard, instead of indulging their own preference. For example, in the one item of summer reading the woman who cannot, to save her life, understand Robert Browning will be silly and stupid if she puzzles her brains and wears out her patience in trying to read "The Ring and the Book," although an intellectual neighbor may dwell upon that immortal epic with great satisfaction. It is not for us all to enjoy the same book, the same dish, the same conversation, the same music, the same play on the stage. Carry away with you on a vacation the books you like, and don't feel that you must apologize if you are poring over little love stories or shuddering over an exciting romance full of hair-breath adventure. Shakespeare and Milton are for some; the last new novel with its little story of every-day life is for others. Read the books you like in your ideal vacation, or, if you choose, do not read at all.

Time is well spent dreaming in th sunshine, swinging in a hammock, sit-ting on a veranda with knitting or embroidery, watching young folk play ten-nis, doing or not doing whatever one pleases, if only one is loafing and resting and building up tissues and laying in a

For some of us the woods possess a great attraction. We enjoy what we call roughing it in a mountain camp, and inhale deep breaths of the forest air with a joy beyond words. We do not sigh for bath tubs and dainty tables and luxurious sleeping quarters. We are not reluctant to be cramped and The thirty or forty miles drive from civilization into the wilderness fills to the brim our cup of enjoy-ment and makes our dream of a summer holiday a realization of unalloyed de-light. In the same family there are those who love primitive life and those who very nearly loathe it. The vacation that does good to the one will work harm to the other. Try roughing it if that be your preference; shun roughing it and seek luxury if, on the contrary, you like that better. -0-1-0-Value of a Woman Friend.

We all have met the fond mother who so reluctantly consented to her boy seeking girl companioship. While she finds the girl to be a type of sweet modesty and possessed of all the beau-tiful and ennobling qualities of young womanhood, yet is she still reluctant to let this young woman share the companionship of her boy. I ask this question simply because there are many young men and women who are deciding against it right now. Flower Decorations for Church.

It is surprising that church decoration displays sometimes so little "consideration" for the lily of the field! The beautiful red lily of July, for instance, growing at the roadside, is pulled by the hundred by ruthless hands, for the purpose of beautifying the church. Often the tiny bulb is dragged out of its sheltering crevice, and so is lost to all the summers to come. > A seventy-five foot leviathan came ashore a week ago and anchored, invol untarily at York Beach, Me., but still alive, half a mile off the shore. He couldn't get off, and for six days the gasoline launch promoters made splendid profits taking persons out to see the sight. As a final grand display, the business men bought up five pounds of dynamite, boated it off to the helpless monster, and set it off under him. The explosive went off, but the blaze, com-municating to the inflammable blubber of the whale, set it on fire, and several boat loads of summer residents narrowly escaped being burned up before they got out of reach of the sputtering fluid.

Working up from the bottom to steam boat pilot is the story of Mrs. Wyllia Hulett, member of the steamboat family of Beardstown, Ill., who was given a pilot's license. Capt. Mrs. Hulett's husband, George Hulett, a steamboat engineer, failed to pass the examination when he applied for a pilot's license on account of color blindness. Capt. BEE KEEPING IN ENGLAND.

Profit in the Industry-Improvements in Collecting Honey.

It is generally acknowledged that bee keeping is one of the most lucrative of British rural industries. Although in some seasons the return of surplus honey is not so good as one would wish, in consequence of bad weather at the period of the comparatively short honey flow, yet on an average of years the return of honey per hive is such as to warrant the sinking of a moderate amount of capital in the industry with the reasonable likelihood of a good rate of interest being obtained. The pitfall to be guarded against in estimating the amount of profit likely to accrue from bee keeping is that of reckoning by the rule of three on the basis of the returns obtained from two or three enthusiastic amateurs are inclined to take this optimistic view of the matter. It must be recollected that when only a few hives are kept the surplus honey can generally be sold at a high price to friends and acquaintances, when a large number are worked not bill sometimes only does the wages amount to an appreciable sum, but the surplus honey has to be disposed of at wholesale prices, which are from 25 to 40 per cent. lower than those obtained when the honey is sold retail.

Still, bee farming can be made to pay well in Great Britain when the bee keeper has had the requisite experience, and provided the district selected is one specially suitable for the industry- that is to say, one which possesses an abundance of nectar-producing plants and

During the past thirty-four years the British Bee Keepers' association has done much to spread a knowledge of the advantages of modern bee keeping over the old-fashioned method of keeping in straw skeps and then destroying the industrious little workers in the autumn by sulphur fumes in order to obtain the honey. At its best this pressed boney, which was often contaminated with juices of crushed larvae and other im purities, was not to be compared with the delicious comb honey now obtainable in sections, or with the extracted honey taken from shallow frame supers that are always above the brood nest. The work of the association is mainly educative, and every year a large number of persons are awarded certificates of pro-ficiency in apiculture, the highest of the three classes, the firsts, being a muchcoveted honor. Practically all the bee keeping associations in England are affiliated with this association, the honorary secretaries of the former being entitled to a seat on the council of the parent association. The which it carries out is limited solely by the funds at its command.

Many a cottager depends upon the surplus honey obtained from his bees, when they are kept upon modern methods, to pay a goodly portion of his rent, and there are countless persons in Great Britain who are unaware of the fact that they could do the same without much hard work, and with a thorough enjoyment which is known only to a bee keeper .- London Mail.

MOVE TO MAKE MEAT COST LESS

PACKERS UNITE TO EDUCATE HOUSEWIVES IN REGARD TO VARIOUS CUTS.

EVERYBODY WANTS THE BEST

If Portions Now Thoughtlessly Shunned Were Used, the Better Parts Would Sell Lower.

EVERYTHING- RESTS WITH COOK.

SOUTH OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 25 .-Every person in the country is interested in the price of meat and will, therefore, also be interested in a movement which the western packers are preparing to undertake to teach the American public that other portions of a beef are as nutritious and, when properly cooked, as palatable as the costlier cuts. The ultimate end will be the lowering of prices on all grades of meats, especially in those cuts which are now in chief de mand. In short, the western packers are preparing a campaign to teach the public to buy and eat the whole "critter," and not a few choice cuts alone, from the sale of which the retailers say they must obtain the cost of the entire car-cass because of their inability to sell the cheap cuts. This campaign is to be carried on through the retail dealers of the country who will be coached on the subject so thoroughly that they will be competent to teach their customers

The packers say one of the chief reasons why beef is not cheaper in Ameri ca is that the people demand the best cuts and leave so much of the so-called inferior grades on the hands of the pack ers that they are forced to keep the price of the best cuts up to counteract the waste, but if the sales of the cheaper grades were increased the cost of all would decrease materially.

Mistakes of Poorer People.

One of the packers' arguments will be taken from the year book of the United States department of agriculture, written by George K. Holmes, chief of the bureau of statistics. Mr. Holmes points out the mistake made by people of limited means in selecting the most expensive cuts when many of the unsought portions are country. portions are equally, or even more, nutritious. One of Mr. Holmes' comments is as follows:

"Although epicureans admit and chem-"Although epicureans admit and chemists demonstrate that the neckpiece is toothsome and nutritious, it bears the lowest price. In fact, it would hardly be considered respectable to ask the butcher for a piece of the neck. Perhaps a low order of proficiency in the housewife's cooking in the past gave to the neckpiece its low place. The story which have been different had the cook the neckpiece its low place. The story might have been different had the cook known how to utilize the meat in the making of attractive and delicious dishes. The point of the argument is that cheap cuts of a good carcass are as good as expensive pieces when judiciously selected and properly cooked."

Housewife Is Ignorant.

American butchers complain that the average housewife has little knowledge of the art of cooking. She does not know how to make a tasty dish of the cheap grades of meat. She therefore buys the best steaks, slaps them in the Capt. Hains, Slayer of W. E. Annis, frying pan and places them on the table when she thinks they are properly cooked. On the other side of the Atlantic the cuts are placed on a more equal footing, the demand for the different cuts being more general. On this side the laborer's wife is more likely to order chops or steaks than to ask for brisket or neck, and in consequence it pays the big packers to send barrels and barrels of brisket and the cheaper cuts to England, while in many cases the American butchers would prefer purchasing more of the portions from which they take the so-called "choice" cuts to stocking up with the entire carcass.

While the tenderloin is the tenderest and is considered the most delicate cut, it is not so juicy nor so well fla vored as other portions less tender, and it is not nearly so nutritious as parts which require more cocking. And both tenderloin and sirloin contain less nutritive value than is found in the cheap er meats. Another government expert says that a chuck steak, after careful cooking, compares favorably with a round or sirloin from the same carcass.

The rock itself has no resemblance to the bird after which it is named, but if you look at the very summit you will see a formation which is an exact duplicate of an eagle. This is one of the most remarkable sights in the whole section. The stone bird perches himself at the very top of the rock and there he sits as he has set for ages, looking out over the other wonderful things that were created at the same time he was. The Flying Dutchman is a grotesque pile of stones nearly 400 feet high which bear a decided resemblance to the Dutchman of the stage with his funny cap on his head. Gum arabic starch is obtained by pouring boiling water over the gum arabic, then diluting it to the right consistency. It is an excellent starch for pieces that are starched to dry and must not be ironed.

A handy candle to carry is made by melting the flat end of the candle and adjusting it in a tumbler or goblet. The glass prevents wind from blowing out the light; then tthere is less danger in carrying it this way.

Instead of trying to "cream" sugar and butter for a cake with a tiresome spoon or knife blade, try using a wire potato masher. This chops the butter finely and blends the two with little trouble in a comparatively short time.

Before using new gas mantles soak them in vinegar and hang them up to dry. When quite dry put them on the burners. In this way a brilliant white light is obtained, and the burners will last twice as long as usual, even in drafty places.

Japanned trays should never be touched with boiling water, for that would cause the varnish to crack and feel off. To clean these trays rub them over with a little olive oil and then polish with a piece of flannel, which will absorb the superflous oil.

The so-called Gateway is an imposing formation, being two great masses of red and white sandstone rocks rising 900 feet with a narrow passageway between. From a distance, the Gateway is not particularly imposing but on nearer approach, it is seen that nature has here performed a miracle. After passing through, the tourist is prepared in a measure for any further wonders that may confront him. All through the Garden of the Gods, red and white sandstone formations abound in the most curious shape. Grotesqueries are everywhere. There are most peculiar rocks resembling birds and animals, some of them so closely that the visitor may doubt the evidence of his own eyes and expect the titanic monsters to awaken out of their sleep and spring at him. There are minarets and spires, cones, towers, overhanging fret work, filagree in rocks, beautifully colored veinings and strata, balancing stones, tables, and everything conceivable and some things that are not. Imagination could not run wilder riot than is here Commanders.

A St. Petersburg paper gives the following account of Gens. Stoessel and Nebogatoff, now confined in the fortress: between the two, and although but little of SS. Peter and Paul, together with used among foreigners it is highly prized the naval commanders Grigoneff and in all Latin countries. There is a de-Lischin: "The generals have each a spacious cell, well lighted, while the other two prisoners have a cell equally large in common. The cells have large windows, with iron bars, overlooking the Neva and the Winter palace. The furniture for each is a camp bed, a large and small table, two chairs, and a press. The prisoners' outdoor recreation consists of gardening, under the direction of Lischin, who is no stranger to that art and mystery. According to the rules of the prison fortress, the four unfortunate war prisoners rise at 8 a. m., take their tea, and then proceed to the garden abutting upon the Neva. At noon they dine to-gether, Nebogatoff presiding at the mess. What the conversation of these men, upon whom Fortune has not smiled, but hose bravery has never been impugned, is, can only be imagined. At 6 p. m., they sup, and at 9 o'clock they take tea. Between times they can read what they like, newspapers, books and magazines. It seems that Stoessel and Nebogatoff met for the first time in prison. They only knew one another from photographs. 'Alas! that we should meet in place,' said Stoessel to his companion in misfortune as adown his cheek a tear unbidden stole. Nebogatoff replied: 'God above is our judge. We must never lose courage.'"

It took two years of patient labor in the making of them. They consist of seventy-eight strings of linen thread, hung with thousands of bell-shaped seeds of eucalyptus trees, which are famous along the Pacific coast. Each seed is separated from the other by two white glass beads, and the whole is arranged in graceful loops to fit the archway between the parlor and sitting room. The idea has steadily grown, and it has been found wiser for the state to pension the mother for the care of her children than to condemn her to such employment which would cause her to neglect the children. Among all polygamy is the rule, the eason given by the natives being that it r one woman to do all the work of the house, look after the children, prepare and cook the food, fetch the daily supply of water (often an arduous job). cultivate the plantation and go to market. And the reason is that the African is an exceedingly hungry person. It is their custom to eat several times a day when at home, and the men spend most of their day sitting in the palaver house, or market place, while the women bring the food all day long. One wife could not possibly do this. Besides the African lady encourages it, for she says: "The more wives the less work."

Among the Ahiaras, Onichas, Obuwus and the lower class of pagan tribes in the interior there is very little form of marriage. As soon as a man has the means he pays the parents what they want in the shape of goats, cows, beads, money, and takes the girl. There is no money, and takes the girl. There is no ceremony at all. The more wives he has indicates a richer man and that he will be better looked after. If, of course, they can manage to seize a woman from the neighboring tribe while she is fetch ing water or working on her farm so much the cheaper. With this method in vogue for centuries no wonder that it is as much as a native's life is worth to go out of his own village and that the country is so backward.—Geographical Jour-

FASHION WORLD.

There are still a few more weeks to talk about summer elegancies, but before we will be hardly aware of the fast declining season the first autumn styles and hints will be shown us. However, in the remaining weeks, every woman will endeavor to be as attractively gowned as previously and although her gowns may show signs of wear, she wil have them freshened or partly remod-eled. In this way her costumes may last through the summer season and their appearance will also be slightly The princess gowns are more changed. than ever in vogue and are showing new and different arrangements in trimming which changes the whole effect of the costume. Some of these costumes are finished on the shoulders with bretelles and then the waist is cut in Empire style, the sleeves and corsage being made of net and mousseline chiffon. Many of the gowns are raide without any trimming, in absolutely plain lines, which reveal more carefully the perfect figure.

The jabot of plaited lawn, lace or ne is one of the prettiest features in the season's neckwear. An exceedingly dainty stock and jabot, which would give any fine skirt waist a dressy appearance, was made of Irish lace and net. The shaped stock was made of Irish lace outlined with Lands of plain lawn and furthermore was edged with three rows of silk cord. The long jabot was of white net edged with lace and was arranged in cascade fashion. the left side of the jabot appeared the left side of the jabot appeared a frill of Irish lace which added more to the elegance of the neckpiece. A great many of these frilled jabots can be made at home by skillful fingers from pieces of fine lace, etc., that one always has left from different dresses, for, as every up-to-date woman knows, this every up-to-date woman knows, this fashionable neckwear is found very expensive when so much must be had. jabot suitable to be worn with any em broidered linen collar was finely plaited in three waterfall frills edged and bordered with embroidery in black or in The remarkable increase in acreage of walnuts is due to the recent education of the people to the fact that walnut growing is proving a profitable undertak-narrow edging of the lace.

The little summer wraps are contracts of bands embroidered in soutache of the same shade and was separated by net embroidered in silk floss. The front was closed with passementerie motifs. Another one, simple, but very dainty, was of orange cloth having a deep band of filet at the bottom in the same tint.

All gloves are much wrinkled on the arm is the word from Paris and so it is very necessary that they be purchased with sufficient length. The twelve button length is most generally sold. plain white gloves are not liked except for certain occasions, those in tints of champaign, cream, beige and all the different browns and grays being the fashionable colors for dressy affairs. Peau de Saxe and suede are worn afternoons while for evenings or elaborate occasions, kid stands first. For the very warm weather silk is chosen, and also the satiufinish thread which is a perfect imitation of suede. There is a novelty in silk gloves which have the arm and hand portions joined by hemstitching. The arm length is elaborately embroidered while the hand of the glove is left plain.

Never before have the linen costumes Never before have the linen costumes been so wonderfully smart and attractive as they are this year. The suit of 1908 has not taken a suggestion from the one of 1907 and therefore the last year's model is hopelessly out-of-date. The costumes of white linen are unquestionably the ones that lead the more elaborate models. elaborate models. These have a coat and one-piece gown, the skirt of which is either circular or demi-trained. The favorite coat length is half way between the waistline and the knees. Some slant gradually away from several inches be low the waistline, others are a trifle longer in front than in back and still others are pointed on the sides, back and front. Very few cutaway styles are seen, although there are some attractive models with the back of the coat nearly reaching the seven-eighths point. The trimmings on these are of lace and bandings of embroidered muslin. For street use the suits are strictly tailored and are poticed in light blue or and bandings of embroidered muslin. are noticed in light blue, gray, buff and tan, and for traveling the darker shades of blue, mauve, brown and black and white striped, are fashionable. A popul lar skirt model in the street costume is circular, closing in front with large linen covered buttons ornamenting the seam from belt to hem. Very smart are the skirts with from thirteen to nineteen gores, each seam stitched on the outer side so that it seems to indicate a narrow bias band. To be very correct these skirts should be 4 inches from the ground. These linen suits have been extremely fashionable, this summer and tremely fashionable this summer and many styles in heavier weights will be worn during the next month or two.

A Voluntary Confession.

An educator of this city who is in favor of a judicious use of the rod and skeptical of moral suasion tells this

"Did I understand you to say that "Did I understand you to say that this boy voluntarily confessed to running away?" asked a truant officer, addressing the determined looking female parent of a small and dirty boy.

"Yes, sir, he did," the woman responded. "I just had to persuade him a little, and then he told me the whole thing voluntarily."

"How did you persuade him?" queried

'How did you persuade him?" queried "How did you persuade him?" queried lis worship.
"Well, first I gave him a good licking," said the firm parent, "and then I put him to bed without supper, and I took his clothes away and told him he'd stay in bed till he confessed what he'd done, if 'twas the rest of his days, and I should lick him again in the morning.

And in less than half an hour he told me the whole story voluntarily!"

TOBOGGANING IN SUMMER.

New Sport in Austria-Other Uses for the Mountain Sleigh.

Summer visitors at the Semmering and other mountain resorts near Vienna are this season enjoying tobogganing—a sport hitherto confined to the winter The new summer toboggan has a body shaped very much like the ordinary win-ter article, and mounted on four low wheels. Equipped with a strong and re-liable trake, as well as steering apparatus, it affords a pleasant and speedy means of descending mountain and hill paths, and has already become very popular among tourists.

It is expected that the new toboggan will have other uses besides sport and amusement, for it offers a swift and ready vehicle for carrying a messenger from the mountain hotels to the towns and villages below or in summoning medical aid in case of accidents. Experimental trips on the Semmering range and also on the hills near Vienna with the new sleigh have proved entirely satisfactory.-Vienna Cor. Pall Mall

A CHEAP SKATE.

One of the "aspirants" for the office of Judge of Probate of Delta county says "If a County office is a good thing, pass it around." This is the plea of the cheap and nasty demagog. A counyou have a good thing, keep it. A public office is not a prize to offer to the noisiest and most dishonest bidder, but a trust to confide to the tried and true.

STEGATH OBJECTS.

"To the People of Delta County: I am certain that you will bear testimony to the fact that in the campaign which I have been and am making for to business people of small cities and the nomination for representative in the state legislature, my methods of campaigning have been clean and free from anything of a personal nature. I have depended upon my fitness for the office and my standing with the people to get votes.

During my campaign I have been circulating a great many campaign cards, and on one side of them appears a few statements regarding my birth and residence in Delta county. My opponents have troubled themselves to gather up a large number of these cards and have a good enclosed ground, were to get had printed on the bottom in red ink: "With The Anti-Saloon League Since

While the Anti-Saloon League is not an issue in this campaign, I can say that I am not connected with it. I do believe in good citizenship, but my belief is that about the most undesirable citizens we have are those who would stoop to such a method as that exposed above to work an injury to a candidate for office. I appeal to the people of this county to show their disapproval of such contemptible work by voting for me next Tuesday for representative in the state legislature.

BASEBALL AS ADVERTISING.

The experience of the new century of professional base ball, as regards the beneficial effects of advertising a town or small city, on account of its having a professional base ball club located in its midst, or of a town or city being connected with a base ball league or association, has practically taught a lesson towns, which the intelligent and progressive class of hotel and storekeepers of a country town have not been slow of late years to avail themselves, for such business men have realized the advantages above referred to.

In small towns and villages the scores are usually published in the local newscome to a close with nothing having papers. This helps the places where winner of the championship is known the impression prevails that the victory is due to the enthusiasm and support my opponents which I am sure will not given by the "rooters" of the home

We know of many small country towns which would never have been known or heard of outside of their own immediate vicinity, but for its base ball club and team The fact is, if the business people of a town, not previously benefited by having a base ball club and their best men together for organization purposed, they would soon realize what an advertising medium a well-managed These cards have again been placed professional club is to the hotels, board-
