At the election, the proposition will be put up to the people, of buying a portable stone crusher and a road roller, for use on the township roads. As Masonville township progresses, good roads become necessary; in fact good roads not only attend, but go before progress. The township abounds in limestone suitable for use.

Harry, the eleven-year-old son of James McPherson fractured both arms above the wrists Saturday night. Crossing the track with other boys, he stood up on the brake wheel of the passenger coach, which turned and flung him off head first, both forearms striking across the rail. The manner of his injury was not understood for some days as he and his companions would not tell the story. One boy, brought up to tell the truth, finally divulged the story, and suffered hard usage from the others, Mr. Mc-Pherson has determined to reward him publicly, as an example to the boys. Lack of space prevents the prolonging of this article to any greater length. I wish, however, to call attention to the fact that the new constitution furnishes an improved method of amending the constitution. Amendments may be proposed by petitions exceeding twenty per cent. of the total number of electors voting for secretary of state at the preceding election. These petitions are to be submitted to the people.

In many other respects the revision is an improvement over the old constitution and should certainly be adopted. Do not forget to vote for it.

The Gladstone high school team plays t Manistique today.

The Manistique team has rounded into shape to defeat Gladstone. Manistique cancelled the game scheduled for October 17 in order to get more time to train for a return game.

Our team has been greatly weakened by the loss of Leo Gordon who plays left end. No other man on the team could take this important position so well as he, and furthermore, no one is prepared for it.

In spite of this handicap our boys hope to bring back a victory.

Gladstone met defeat last Saturday afternoon and met it with honor. The first half closed with a score of nothing to nothing, Gladstone blocking the ofputting in seven new men, and opposing almost an entire fresh team to the wearied Gladstone boys, The latter with no substitutes, stood up against the grinding play and gave all there was in them. Three scores were made in spite of their best efforts; but we may well be proud of those who did not flinch. At least, man for man, Escanaba can show no overwhelmeng superiority this year. We can

The Military team was defeated Sunday at Escanaba. The first half of the game, thirty-five minutes, was hard, out even and no score was made. See ing that vigorous action was necessary. Escanaba called in Lehr, the University of Michigan star, and sent him five times over the Gladstone line. A sixth touchdown was scored later, making 38 to 0 the result. Gladstone and Escanaba will meet a third time, without university talent and the best eleven may win.

Taylor Testifies.

William R. Taylor, secretary of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway company, was the first witness. Questioned by James C. McReynolds, special assistant United States attorney general, Mr. Taylor told of the earnings of the three Reading companies and of the re-lations existing between the Philadelphia and Reading Coal & Iron company, the latter a holding concern. Mr. Taylor said the coal and iron company had nev-er paid a dividend but that the railway had in 1902, paid to the holding concern 15 per cent., for two years thereafter 20 per cent., and during the last two years 30 per cent. a year.

The coal and iron company, he said, is indebted to the railway company to the extent of $80,000,000, which credit was inherited from the old Reading company which was sold by the sheriff in 100c in 1896.

Mr. Taylor denied that the Reading Railway company owned any coal stock, but said the Reading company was in-terested in several subsidiary companies.

UNITED STATES TO KEEP PEACE.

(Special Correspondence.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 27 .-While the United States is not in any manner mixed up in the European situation. the administration is watching all the developments with the closest aftention. All the press dispatches which come in over the wires referring to the condition of affairs in the Balkans and in, Europe generally, are promptly transmitted to the white house and the Provident and his which hold President and his cabinet hold a great many informal conferences, at which dispatches are carefully considered and discussed

Hope for Settlement.

Hope for Settlement. The general opinion among those best posted in diplomatic metters appears to be' that some arrangement will be made which will result in a settlement of this most difficult of all problems, without re-course to war. Still it is realized that the situation is delicate and that the most careful diplomacy will be necessary to prevent a conflict. That such a con-flict would be far-reaching is easy to un-derstand. It is not likely, however, that the United States can be drawn into the matter, and it is hardly probable that a situation should arise which would make it desirable for this country to of-fer its services as a mediator, as was fer its services as a mediator, as was done in the case of the war between Russia and Japan. Whatever the outcome of the troubles in the Balkans may be, it is regarded as certain that all efforts to bring about disarmament agreement between the powers is now useless. On the con-trary it is more than probable that the embroilio will be followed by an ex-penditure of enormous sums of money in military and naval preparation. Eng-land will, of course, attempt to maintain ts supremacy as a naval power, and Germany will be likely to stretch her redit to the limit in order that she nay not take a backward step.

America Will Profit.

Russia has been quietly rebuilding her havy for the past several years, while Austria is known to be in negotiations with shipbuilders with a view to increasng her naval strength. It is therefore considered quite probable that the United States, while in no way emproiled, will materially benefit from the volcanic action among the states of the near east. American shipbuilders have already taken initial steps towards securing some of the business, and it is hoped that the American ship yards will before many months, begin the conhoped that the American ship yards will before many months, begin the con-struction of numerous vessels of war for European governments. During the troubles between Japan and Russia, American firms contracted for a large American firms contracted for a large number of submarine boats, and it is certain that if there should be hostilities

The robber forced English to make a note payable at a Mount Vernon bank for $5000 and write the following letter to his wife:

The complainant, Charles E. Giles, is a Boston money lender and claims the larceny occurred when he met Mrs. Dumphey in Chicago to negotiate a transaction in which bonds and jewelry figured.

Mrs. Dumphey today denied the truth of the charges against her and declared that she would fight extradition through the courts. The $4500 bail demanded was promptly furnished.

Since August 31, 1907, the assets had diminished from over $6,000,000 to $2,-358,000, while the alleged liabilities were $5,230,000. This appeared very large. Charles H. Chapman, representative of the forestry department, has been one of the leaders in the investigation here. His nrst work was confined to the dis-trict around West Neebisch, which was only saved after forty-eight hours steady nghting, in which an engine and memoers of the fire departments of the two Soo were pressed into service. Mr. Chapman had many narrow escapes. At one time he was entirely surrounded by hre and had it not been for a favorable shift of the wind he might not have escaped. He sustained several painful burns

"I have found it very difficult to secure accurate information as to the origin of the fires," says Mr. Chapman. 'The stories of settlers differ so much that it is almost a blind chase. For in-stance, I was told at West Neebisch that the fire there started from a match droped by a woodsman who was lighting his pipe. CALIFORNIA PRISONER ABOUT TO CONFRONT UNUSUAL ORDEAL.

Suspected of Six Murders, He Will Be Subjected to Scrutiny of Twelve Persons Daily for Identification.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 26.-Suspected of being Charles Dunham, the murderer of half a dozen persons, William Hatfield, who was yesterday brought to this city from Herman, Tex., will face such an ordeal of attempted identification as has been suffered by few men. In this county there are probably 500 persons who were, twelve years ago, sufficiently well acquainted with Dunham to make their opinions of value, and unless some decision is reached it is probable that Hatfield will be subjected to the closest scrutiny by a dozen persons each day until the authorities are satisfied.

combat the flames when they get a good start.

The oldest settlers recognized the system of back-firing as the best and surest method of checking fires in the woods. That is, to burn a narrow strip across the territory toward which the fire is traveling. When this is reached the fires generally stop, unless the wind is so strong that firebrands are carried be-yond the burned place. Where it is pos-sible, plowing strips across fields will serve the same purpose, but in the newer country where cleared fields are few and far between it is useless to adopt such tactics. In most cases it is impossible find water enough to do any good. The United States government may take a hand in the investigation of con ditions on the upper lakes, as nearly all of the lightbouses on the maniand were threatened with destruction during the recent fires. Had it not been for the prompt action of relief parties a number of them would have been destroyed.

The Cleveland Frog and Crossing company entered suit against the traction company for $21,000. The plaintiff com-pany claims the sum named is due for construction material furnished to the

The Value of Elimination.

One of the many advantages of middle age is that we develop the last sense that is necessary for our protection and peace of mind-the seventh sense of equilibrium. For most of us the years preceding that time have been a long. hard climb upward, by the hand-overhand method of gripping one thing firmly, only to learn that we must relax our hold upon that to grasp something else higher up. It is interesting to look back and note the things upon which our grasp has been forced to relax—and let go. A bit of ignorance here, perhaps, a cherished hope there, a secret longing for something life has denied, an ideal that proved to be tinsel, an ambition that would have crumbled in our hands— these were the "little daily dyings of self" that have bloomed in the beautiful resurrection of thankfulness we have for each and all today!

It is a pity that these priceless bits of knowledge could not have come to us earlier in life; but this sense is developed for us only through suffering, and if that suffering does not overtake us in our immaturity, its results must be accumulative. Because of this fact, I want to bring it before you for your deeper consideration. From so prosaic an experience as discarding worn out garments in spring and autumn and dispatching them elsewhere, to the higher plane of thought where the relinquishing of something long hoped for, never seen, marks an epoch in your life, the process of elimination occupies a very important place in your existence. Its activity is the fine art of separating your wants from your needs and building your life upon this system. One of the first things: that comes to you, once your discernment has taught you this value, the consciousness of peace that pervades your being—your heart, your mind; your soul assumes a lightness that your is amazing. The term "lightness" is well chosen, for that is exactly what it is -you have "lightened" your heart and mind by throwing away superfluous cares and theories, and you are on the high road to simple living and being. One of the other things that you gain is the ability to discriminate between worryover a problem and thinking it over.

Worry is chaos, thinking is organized consideration of a subject. In the former you eliminate nothing; in the latter you have thrown out everything but the main points of interest. Your one hour of sane. cool thought will give you more light than the weeks of anxiety you have needlessly expended upon it. Learn to shut out persistent thought of a harass-"She ing nature. Perhaps a mistake fell like a pall between you and them—some mis-understanding of their needs, perhaps, and you had gone on ignorantly supplying their wants, instead. Be thankful enlightenment although the your price you had to pay for it turned your hair white in a night and stripped life of its idealism. Bear this in mind: it is not so much that your love and faith have been outraged, but what you should mourn over is that the objects of your love have had to gain experience for their development in this unhappy way. Most mothers make the mistake of thinking that their children must be carried up to maturity upon their materthe folly of this until repeated acts of indiscretion on the part of their children finally bring some ray of light to them. If you have been the conscientious moth-er I assume you to have been, you have for itself. given your child of the best of which you are capable-neither God nor man could expect or want you to do more. And you do not have to expect it of yourself. Try to be philosophical and recognize this fact. Let mind, not heart, control you and guide you through trou-bles that threaten to overwhelm you. If you have been a consciously neg-lectful mother, that is, of course, regret-table, but you must suffer while reaping what you have sown. But gather up the women would marry. what you have sown. But gather up the tent to stay so, for such false aids do not broken ends of your mistakes, even at add at all to their good looks, for all who look upon them know they are this late day, and let destiny weave them into some sort of the semblance false. It has been very truly saidto what they should have been. It fre-quently takes many thumpings and shakings from life before some of us wake up and find that we have dreamed late. But once we are awakened our responsibilities increase, but, incidentallate. ly, our sufferings decrease in proportion. Let this thought sustain any who are "late comers" into the duties of mother-hood. And, finally, for those who stumhood. ble along life's pathway, or those whose hearts are breaking through sorrowing over others. 'et me say that to fall is not sin, but to lie there and make no effort to retrieve one's fault is what con-stitutes degradation. But the high philosophy of this theory of elimination is to discriminate between our mistakes and our "sins"—in ourselves and others! ~Louise D. Mitchell, in Vogue.

What Happened to a Girl Seeking Shelter in New York.

What happened to 17-year-old Lucy Green last winter when she arrived in New York seeking work, without friends or money, is the real story of a real girl, told by the girl herself in October Woman's Home Companion. The first day she was directed to the

A girl who doesn't spend half her playtime in matching jig-saw puzzles this autumn is certainly out of touch with the times. There are few fashions in games which have taken such a grip upon the public.

Bridge is the only rival of the jig-saw puzzles, and it has lost its place daily since the new game came in. You all know about it, of course? It is an elaboration of the old-fashioned puz-zle blocks of childhood days. The matching of them is as hard to the grown-up girl as the simple little blocks were to her baby intellect.

Instead of being cut in squares and easy angles they are cut out by a jig-saw into tiny pieces that take on every all curve known to geometry. There are from 1 to 300 pieces of wood in one puzzle, and these must be perfectly matched to complete one pict-

Marienbad, Famous World Over, Now One Hundred Years Old-King's Visit.

Marienbad is celebrating this year its centenary. Just 100 years ago the Abbot Pfrognr of Tefl, the great monastery of these Bohemian uplands and the owner of all these forests and moorlands, was induced by the monk Reitenberger, his secretary, and by Dr. Nehr, his doc-tor, to erect a small shed over the spring of the Kreuzbrunnen, with a house capable of holding some ten beds and a baths.

Up to then the spring had been flow-ing free in the moor, and it was only by springing from stone to stone that it could be reached. The attention of Dr Nehr had been called to its wonderful properties. He saw the possibilities of the place, and thus laid the fortunes of the monastery. As some pious peasant had hung a rude picture of the Holy Virgin on a tree above the spring, the abbot had the hamlet christened Marienbad, the bath of the Virgin Mary. Now the place is famous the world over, writes the correspondent of The Queen, and some 30,000 persons seek the cure here every year, the majority in the hope that their too solid flesh may melt away. Above all, Marienbad is proud of the fact that King Edward has been coming here for eight very been coming here for eight years.

The King takes the cure very seriously. He walks down from his hotel, the Wel-mar, to the Kreuzbrunnen every morning at 8 o'clock, and alternately strolls about or sits under the trees while sipping his two glasses.

In previous years the crowd was very troublesome, because of its consuming eagerness to observe his every movement. But this year the spectacle seemed to but this year the spectacle scened to pall after a few days and he moved about as others did. He was always accompanied by either Maj.-Gen Sir Stanley Clarke or by Col. Ponsonby, or by both.

After his morning glasses the King, if the weather is fine, takes a short walk in the park and drives back to his ho-tel, where he breakfasts on the balcony of his sitting room. The rest of the morning is devoted to state affairs; then comes luncheon, a simple meal of boiled fish, white meat or chicken and one of those delicious compotes, without which any meal seems incomplete here, and a

> The most original telegraph line in the world once extended from the capital of Bolivia, La Paz, to the town of Oruro. In this part of Bolivia there are no growing trees, and wood is so difficult to find that even the ordinary household furnitire of the native is invariably made not of wood but of dried mud or adobe.

So when the war broke out between Chile and Bolivia and a telegraph line became urgent it was adobe that was chosen for the queerest telegraph poles in existence. These pillars were stone foundations and measured about 5 feet square at the base, with a height of about 15 feet.

There were placed at intervals of about 361 feet, and thus held the wire at a height sufficient to clear the only animals of the country, the llama and the donkey. The total length of the line was 156 miles.

Parting of Irving and Terry.

America with Henry in "Dante." In these days Henry Irving was a changed man. He gave the whole thing up—as a producer, I mean. As an actor he worked as faithfully as ever. Hen-ley's stoical lines might have been writ-ten of him as he was in those last days:

Out of the night that covers me Black as the pit from pole to pole I thank whatever gods may be For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance I have not winced nor cried aloud, Under the bludgconings of chance My head is bloody but unbow'd.

Henry Irving did not treat me badly, I did not treat him badly. He revived "Faust" and produced "Dante." I would his wife had left him. When he re-turned home a few days ago he com-menced preparations for a divorce in order that Mrs. Kime might marry the sweetheart of her girlhood days, and in addition he had given the man money enough to give him a fresh start in life. Peat beds in Ireland may yet become a valuable asset in the country's industrial development other than for fuel, as it is now claimed upon the authority of an Austrian experimenter, the fibres of the remains of the reeds and grasses of which peat is composed can be utilized not only for paper making and carpets, but for weaving the finest fabrics as well. The claim is put forth that the fiber is elastic and durable and, being a nonconductor of heat, the cloth manufactured from it is as tough as linen and as warm as woolen. Sir William Ramsay's declaration as to the probable near achievement of the transmutation of metals is a vivid instance of the way modern science is re-establishing what only a short time ago was dismissed as superstition. In a book only fifty years old a writer describes as folly the medical practice of the middle ages of putting smallpox patients in a red room, draped with red hangings, curtains and red bedclothes. Yet the value of red light in preventing the sufferers being marked by smallpox was scientifically discovered anew a few years ago by Finsen, of the violet light rays fame. One of the most successful hoaxes of history was the mechanical chess player with which Baron Kempelen of Hungary, astonished Europe about the year 1769. This was apparently a figure controlled by mechanical devices, and which was able, notwithstanding the fact that apparently no intelligence was concerned in its movements and decisions, generally to beat its human antagonists. The cabinet connected with the automaton appeared entirely too small to contain a hidden operator. And yet it did conceal a man who was an expert chess player. He was a Polish patriot who had lost both of his legs. This man, Woropsky by name, was an expert player. With him in the cabinet the rest was easy. For 1,400 years the Faust legend--the sale of a human soul to a devilhas existed. The first recorded hint of its vitality is given in the sixth century story of "Theophilus." That story suited the early Christians in their efforts to stamp out the necromancing devices of evilly disposed persons prone to seek power by unholy means. The association of the name of Faust, however, with the legend is not more than 400 years old. The likeliest prototype of the modern Faust is the man of the same name who in Cracow boldly proclaimed himself a professor of magic. In the sixteenth century stories Helen of Troy was bestowed by Mephistopheles upon Faust and not until the middle of the eighteenth century does there appear a shadowy Margaret, in the form of a "beautiful but poor girl," who afterward develops into the Margaret of Goethe.

He found in the waters between the surrounding flat reef and the shores of the island several kinds of marketable shells and mother of pearl in abundance There are also inexhaustible supplies of There are also inexhaustible supplies of commercial coral; and better still he found enormous quantities of calcium phosphate on the reefs, that will afford the best of artificial fertifizer, and he thinks the supply is sufficient to keep miners busy for fifty or sixty years. As his vessel approached the island Mr. Nishihata saw a cloud of birds hovering over it, and he found later that they were of a species which the Japa-nese call osadori. These birds abound there in great numbers and are counted among the valuable resources of the is-land, as there is a good market for their land, as there is a good market for their plumage in Europe, particularly in France. No reptiles or venomous insects can be found, and the only quadruped that the island seems to possess is a variety of rat about the size of a rabbit. This addition of a few score of square miles to the known land surface of the earth bids fair to add a little to the world's wealth.

to get a child labor law? 2. You, Mr. Bryan, are trying to make your paramount issue, "Shall the people rule?" The most advanced step toward popular rule has been through the direct primary. Why is it. Mr. Bryan, that your fusion friends when in complete control did not give Nebraska a direct primary law? Why is it that the Republicans of Nebraska had to secure the direct primary law over the opposition of the Democrats? Why is it that the progressive Republican States have enacted direct primary laws to bring the filling of offices closer to the people, while in the Democratic States of the South direct primary laws have been enacted avowedly te disfranchise the people?

8. You, Mr. Bryan, are bidding for office on your anti-trust remedies. Why is it that all the effective legislation against illegal combinations has been enacted by Republican congresses and for the most part by Republican State legislatures, while the Democratic States have no effective antitrust legislation?

4. You, Mr. Bryan, are bidding for labor votes by promising to abolish the writ of injunction in labor disputes. Do you not know that injunction abuses have been chargeable as much to State courts as to federal courts? Can you name a single Democratic State which has passed a law to prevent the abuse of injunction by State courts? Why was no such law passed in Nebraska when your fusion friends were in complete control?

5. You, Mr. Bryan, are bidding for votes on your scheme of bank deposit guaranty. Oklahoma is the only State that has put such a law on its statute books. Why have none of the other Democratic States enacted deposit guaranty laws? You. especially, introduced such a bill into Congress in the early 90's. Why did you not get your fusion friends to enact the bill as a State law when they were in complete control of Nebraska? A deposit guaranty bill, which you endorsed, was offered in Congress last winter as a substitute for the Vreeland bill, but only a handful of the Democratic Congressmen voted for it, the remaining others voting against it or refusing to vote. The only Democratic Congressman from Nebraska was one of those who refused to vote. If your endorse that way .-- Judge Taft at Greensboro. ment of that bill was unable to make N. C.

Epitomising Bryanism.

Mr. Bryan is a good man and is an erator, but he is constantly seeking for a short cut to a virtuous result, to a result that is going to give us some thing for nothing, and there is nothing in the world within the law and within justice that gives you something for nothing, except the love of your father and mother. That does, and you find when you become a father or a mother that you have to pay out to your children the love that you got from your father or mother. It goes
