"Oh," said the waiter, "all kindswhitefish, bluefish, graylings, sea bass, weakfish, perch"-

"Pshaw!" yawned the customer. "Cut that out. I'm tired of those common fishes. Ain't you got some new kind of fish-some kind I never ate before?" "Well," said the waiter, "the whiffletits is very fine this morning."

"What in thunder is a whiffletit?" "Why, doesn't a fish sharp like you know what a whiffletit is? Common enough here. You see, the whiffletit lives only in circular lakes. You go out and find a circular lake and hire a boat. Then you row out all alone to the middle of the lake, about a mile or so, and anchor. Then you take an augur and bore a hole in the water and bait it by putting a piece of cheese on the edge of the hole. The whiffletit comes up to get the cheese, eats it, and it makes him swell up so that he can't back down the hole."

"Well," said the customer, breathless, "what then?"

"Why," replied the waiter as he filled a glass of water, "you lean over the side of the boat and laugh the whiffletit to death. Want a few?"-Cleveland Leader.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

Thrilling Experience of a Cyclist on a Swiss Mountain.

A Dr. Bach was cycling down the pass near Goschenen, in Switzerland, when his brake snapped and the machine darted forward at terrific speed. At the foot of the mountain is a bridge spanning a deep river gorge. The physician tried to guide his flying machine on the bridge, but the front wheel struck a side wall, and he was flung over the parapet. While falling through the air he caught a chain hanging from a girder. The momentum of his body, suddenly arrested, nearly wrenched his grip loose, but he was a strong man and kept his hold. While swinging in midair suspended over the raging river and unable to improve his perilous position an automobile came chugging down the pass. The hapless man shouted for help, but he could not be seen from the bridge, and his cries were drowned by the noise of the motor and the sound of the river. A few minutes after the automobile had passed a carriage drove across the bridge. Again he cried out for help, but in vain. The awful strain on arms and fingers was becoming intolerable, and the doctor was about to drop into the torrent to an inevitable death when two peasants came by and saw him. They flung a noose over him and pulled him up. He fainted and was ill for a long time.-Strand Magazine.

Couldn't Remember His Star.

As illustrative of the fits of abstrac tion to which some men are subject in an extraordinary degree, Sir Henry Irving was fond of relating a story of his former manager, Charles Dillon. Some years after "The Bells" had made Irving famous he chanced to meet Dillon and was outspoken in his

Dillon looked him over, finally remarking that he had no recollection of him. Irving reminded him of the tour they had made together and mentioned his name. Dillon thought for awhile, and, recognition appearing to dawn upon him, he extended his hand. "Irving? Oh, yes. I remember the name," he declared reminiscently. "And what are you doing now, Irving?"-Chicago Record-Herald.

NEW SHORT STORIES.

Champ Clark's Kid Won the Bet. Owing to rapid changes in the weather there was an early and flourishing crop of colds this season, and as coughs and sneezes were heard and handkerchiefs came often into play Champ Clark dropped into the story telling mood. He is an old newspaper man and always manifests a kindly interest in the newsboys, and anything that concerns them makes a lasting impression on his memory. He is very proud of their keen wit and believes that the American newsboy has no equal in repartee or shrewdness.

On the particular morning of the story-in chilly, frosty January-he was waiting on a New York dock while his friend, just over from England, saw to the collection of his luggage. The congressman thought it a good opportunity to dilate on his favorite theme. The Britisher rather resented his boasting and said that to his mind the London newsboy was without an equal. "He is always ready with a retort, don't you know, that is as good as the latest in Punch. The London newsboys are keen students of human nature-not a detail in a man's appearance is unnoted by them," said the Englishman warmly.

Champ turned his quid to the other side. "You just try one of these New York kids," he said.

A lad approached to sell a paper, and the Londoner promptly opened fire, while the boy took an inventory of his

"Now, my boy," said the Englishman, "can you tell me the time by your nose this morning?"

The boy glanced up at the Englishman's aristocratic features and, smiling serenely, replied, "Ask your own nose, sir; mine ain't runnin'.'

The Londoner, somewhat confused, took out his handkerchief, and nothing more on the subject of newsboys was mentioned. Champ retired with the gleam of victory in his eye .- National Magazine.

The Annoyed Golfer.

Sir Harry Johnston, the African explorer, praised in Washington the innumerable and superb American golf

"I never saw anything like it," said he, "and I have but one fault to findyou permit too many persons to promenade your links as though they were public parks. That is very annoying and also very dangerous.

"These promenaders are often extremely ignorant of golf. It was here in Washington, I believe, that a player overheard two of them conversing.

"'What,' said a young lady promenader, 'is that man with the club shouting "Fore!" for?

"Her companion, another young lady, "'I suppose that is the number of times he has missed the ball. And

A boy at Coombe Bank, Christopher Wadsworth, late bishop of Lincoln, and Charles Wadsworth, bishop of St. Andrews, were my playfellows. I frankly admit I was very mischievous.

'ISLE OF SPICE" AT ESCANABA. The fascination of that piquant musical mixture, H. H. "Lucky" Baldwin was born on a farm six miles outside of Hamilton, Ill., and on his father's estate he acquired the taste for fast horses that made him a familiar figure at many a track. During his boyhood the family moved into Indiana, and thence to Racine, Wis., where Baldwin engaged in the merchan-

Almost from the first his ventures were attended with the success that won him the sobriquet which he is best known in the west. It was at Saratoga, N. Grimstead and Rutherford were two of his horses purchased in this manner. He won the American Derby four times, with The Emperor of Norfolk, Silver Cloud, Volante, and Rey El Twenty Thousand Los Angeles Voters Sign Petition to Oust Democratic Mayor.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 1.-Los Angeles on March 26 will hold the first recall election ever held for mayor in the history of the recall movement in the west, if not in the entire country. Twenty thousand voters have signed the recall petition, demanding that Mayor Arthur C. Harper be removed from office, and perforce the city council has passed an ordinance calling the election and Mayor Harper, also perforce, has signed the ordinance. Harper is a Democrat and slipped into office at the last election because of a split in the Republican forces. Los Angeles is normally a strong Republican city, but the reform element broke away from the regular Republicans and organized a separate campaign, and the breach is not yet

Successful Experiment Between Buffalo and Chicago May Revolutionize

Railroading. CHICAGO, Ill., March 1.-Wireless messages flashed from a train running at a mile a minute were received by an operator on the roof of the La Salle street depot, demonstrating, according to railroad officials, that this means of communication is as adaptable to transmission from moving trains on land as it is from ocean liners. The experiment may work a revolution in railroad meth-ods. The messages were sent by an operator on a special Lake Shore train bringing Frederic Thompson and his "Via Wireless" theatrical company to Chicago from Buffalo, and which had been equipped with instruments under the direction of Frederick Sammis, chief engineer of the Marconi Wireless

WORK OF CONGRESS.

The entire time of the Senate was occupied on the 25th with the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill. Many items providing for various investigations and matters relating to new legislation were stricken from the bill on points of order. The forestry service was again severely criticised by Senators Carter and Heyburn. The Senate at 6:08 o'clock adjourned.

The passage of the agricultural appropriation bill by the Senate on the 26th followed an extended debate on the forestry service, which occupied the entire session. As passed the measure appropriates $13,075,716, which is an increase of $191,890 over the bill as passed by the House. Senator Frye gave notice that he would call up the river and harbor appropriation bill tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. At 7:30 o'clock the Senate adjourned.

The sundry civil bill appropriating $139,000,000 and the military academy bill carrying an appropriation of $2,341,000 were passed on the 1st. Senator Bailey calling attention to communications from heads of departments in response to Senate resolupasset on the Ist. Senator Banley Calling attention to communications from heads of departments in response to Senate resolutions calling for papers and information, stated that such replies received from the secretaries of the treasury, commerce and labor and war and navy had been sent "by direction of the President," which he declared was inferentially a denial of the right of Congress to demand such information without the intervention of the President. Presenting a resolution directing that all such communications be returned to the heads of departments from whom they had been received, Mr. Bailey attempted to secure its passage, which was opposed by Mr. Aldrich and other senators on the ground that the orderly way to dispose of a matter of such importance was by sending it to a committee. After debate it was allowed to lie on the table until Tuesday.

The penal code bill on a conference report

The penal code bill on a conference report was before the Senate on the 2nd and was ubjected to filibustering tactics on the subjected to filibustering tactics on the part of the minority that resulted almost in no progress. Mr. Heyburn in charge of the measure, declared that the opposition to the measure was the result of antagonism to the legislative provision contained in the measure for the enforcement of the four-teenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution on the part of the southern senators. The general deficiency bill was passed, carrying appropriations amounting senators. The general denciency bill was passed, carrying appropriations amounting to more than $19,000,000. This bill was the last of the general supply bills passed by the Senate. Various conference reports were agreed to, so that substantial progress was made in clearing away much of the urgent business before the Senate. Adjourned at 7:07 p. m. journed at 7:07 p. m.

Never has a Congress expired more peacefully than the Sixtieth Congress. The Democratic fillbuster against the penal code bill in the Senate was drawn to a close on the 3rd by an agreement eliminating from the measure the objectionable features authorizing the use of troops at election places, and the measure was passed without actually changing the law now on the statute books. The Balley resolution declaring the right of the Senate to demand papers and information from heads of deand information from heads of pers and information from heads of de-partments was referred to the committee on the judiciary after an animated debate, during which Senators Dolliver and Bever-idge made vigorous defense of the Presi-dent. The conference report on the legis a-tive, executive and judicial appropriation bill was agreed to. The conferes elimi-nated all salary increases in dispute except that of the salary of the President, which was fixed at $75,000. A night session was held.

House.

House.

By an overwhelming vote and without party distinction the House of Representatives on the 25th sustained the committee on appropriations in again reporting a provision in the sundry civil bill restricting the operations of the secret service detectives of the treasury department. The President was scathingly denounced by Mr. Cook (Republican, Colo.), while Mr. Smith (Republican, Iowa), a member of the appropriations committee and one of those named by the President in his message of January 4 last as being responsible for the secret service limitation, employed all the invective at his command in an attack on that service. He compared the secret service detectives to "common liars," declared them to be worthless and pointed to the assassination of President McKinley as a sample of the watchfulness and capacity of those men, one of whom, he said, stood at the President's side when he was shot down and failed to observe the approach of the assassin with his supposedly bandaged hand in full view. Consideration of the sundry civil bill was continued into the night. The conference report on the post-office appropriation bill was agreed to during the day and the naval bill was sent back for further conference.

office appropriation bill was agreed to during the day and the naval bill was sent back for further conference.

After having dragged along for a week the sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying in the aggregate $137,000,000. Was passed by the House on the 26th with numerous material amendments. Amendments which would have forced the attorney general to prosecute the United States Steel corporation for absorbing the Tennessee Coal and Iron company upon the ground that the merger was in violation of the anti-trust law were voted down. A rule brought in by Mr. Dalzell (Pennsylvania) making it in order for a majority instead of two-thirds to pass a bill under suspension of the rules aroused the Democrats to serve criticism of the appropriation committee in not affording more time to study supply bills. This led to an incipient filibuster, requiring several roll calls before the way was clear for other business. The ship subsidy bill was reported, the conference reports on the penal code was presented, the conference reports on the District of Columbia and Indian appropriation bill were agreed to, and the naval appropriation bill again was returned to conference. The conference report on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was agreed to and, following the passage of more than three hundred private pension bills, the House at 10:33 p m. took a recess

The long fight of the discharged negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry for an opportunity to prove their innocence in connection with the "shooting up" of Brownsyille, Tex., on the night of August 13, 1906, was won Saturday when the House by a vote of 210 to 101 passed the Senate bill to that end. The general deficiency bill was taken up and passed, the aggregate amount carried by it being over $17,500,000. A number of miscellaneous bills and conference reports also were disposed of. A lively tilt between Speaker Cannon and Mr. Gaines of Tennessee furnished something of a scene. Each claimed that the other had insulted him, and before Mr. Gaines woul and the sergeant-at-arms directed to place it before the Tennessee member. Mr. Gaines sat down before the official got to him, and was thus spared the disgrace in him, and was thus spared the disgrace in the Fifty-fourth Congress. After many years of discussion of the subject, hitherte without result, a joint resolution was adopted appropriation bill was sent to conference, whereupon the House at 6:53 p. m. recessed until 11 a. m. Monday.

Transacting its business amid scenes of great confusion the House on the 1st gave every evidence that the present Congress it drawing to a close. In bis endeavor to maintain a semblance of order the speaker was constantly pounding his gavel and admonishing members to cease conversation. After two hours of stormy debate the socialed Appalachian and White mountain forest reserve bill, amended so as to apply its provision to all states, was passed by a narrow majority of ten. By the terms of the bill a national forest reservation commission is created for the purpose of acquiring by purchase or condemnation the bill an antional forest reservation commission is created for the purpose of acquiring by purchase or condemnation the hill and sneeded to promote or to protect the navigability of streams on whose watershed they lie. The House bill is a substitute for that of the Senate and the measure will now go to conference. The final conference reports on the army, naval and fortifications appropriation bills were agreed to and the measures will now go to the President for signature. In addition to this a vast amount of miscellaneous business was disposed of. A resolution, designed as a concession to the so-called insurgents, amending the rules so as to provide one day each week for a call of committees, gave rise to immediate discussion and was adopted by the narrow margin of six, the vote standing 168 to 162. After a short discussion the bloom almost unanimously insisted on its 168 to 162. After a short discussion the House almost unanimously insisted on its disagreement with the Senate on the amendment to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill raising the salary of the President, vice president, the speaker and United States judges, and the bill for the third time went back to conference. The House at 5:55 p. m. recessed.

The ship subsidy bill, previously passed, by the Senate, was defeated in the House of Representatives on the 2nd by the narrow margin of three, the vote resulting 172 to 175. The opponents of the measure wildly cheered. A dramatic feature of the roll call was the appearance in the hall of Representative Coldfords of New York in Representative Goldfogle of New York in an invalid chair, he having been brought from a hospital, where he had undergone an operation on his knee cap, in order that he might record his name against the bill. Conference reports on the agricultural, rivers and harbors and public buildings bills were agreed to, and the sundry civil bill sent to conference. At 7:00 p. m. the House recessed.

on the eve of final adjournment the House transacted its business with a facility unusual for a dying Congress, although at times there was much confusion, which the speaker had difficulty in controlling. With scarcely any debate the conference reports on the military academy, legislative, executive and judicial and penal code bill were agreed to. The bill amending the copyright laws of the United States in regard to "canned music" was passed, as were also a large number of private bills. Having practically wound up the pressing business, the House took a recess.

CLARK, ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT, IN DILATORY TACTICS ON PENAL CODE BILL.

RACE PROBLEM UP AGAIN.

Codification of Reconstruction Period Laws Is Objected to by the Southern Members.

MONEY AIDS IN OBSTRUCTION.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3 .-As soon as the Senate began its business today it became evident that the minority led by Mr. Clarke of Arkansas proposed to continue the dilatory course pursued yesterday to prevent action on the conference report making final disposition of the penal code bill. Mr. Clarke objected to the transaction of any business without a quorum and after forty-seven senators had answered to their names, he demanded a roll call on every question possible. Senator Hepburn and Senator Sutherland, who for four years had worked to complete the codification of the penal laws, watched the proceedings in silence and occasionally glanced at the clock as time was being consumed without any substantial progress being made.

Opponents Express Views. After these proceedings had continued for an hour, Mr. Clarke arose and requested unanimous consent to dispense with the further reading of the bill and after that consent was granted, Mr. Money (Miss.) took the floor to explain the attitude of the opponents of the bill. It soon developed that this an-

Farewell Speech in Senate. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3 .- Senator Hemenway today made a farewell speech to the Senate concerning appropriations made by Congress in the last eight years, showing that the aggregate appropriations were $274,129,413 less than the estimates. He sought to demmonstrate how unpopular has been the effort of members of Congress to keep down expenditures in the face of demands from executive departments and citizens, for funds with which to prosecute certain projects and he spoke also of the criticism made of Congress by persons who objected to large appropriations.

tagonism was due to the retention in the code of some of the statutes of the reonstruction period, relating to the use

f the elective franchise. Mr. Beveridge inquired what advantage it would be to strike the passages from the code bill if they would continue on the statute books elsewhere. Mr. Money conceded that it would continue on the statute book, but even that was not so objectionable as to re-enact it, he said. Foraker Takes a Hand.

Mr. Foraker asked what solution Mr. Money had for the negro problem in

"A distinguished Republican has stated, according to report," said Mr. Fora-ker, "that the people of the south un-derstand this race question better than the people of the north and that they should be allowed to work it out. Now, I would like to know what the proposed solution is."

"The distinguished gentleman referred to, I suppose, is President-elect Taft," said Mr. Money.

Disavowing any desire to bring the name of Mr. Taft into the discussion, Mr. Foraker said he had no doubt that gentleman desired to do what was right and fair to all the people of the country.

Money Agrees with Taft. 'What I understand that the Presi-

Vice President Fairbanks said goodbye to the newspaper correspondents in the marble room at the Senate yesterday. He spoke feelingly, saying:

Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, who has been appointed commander in chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet in place of Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, relieved of the position at his own request, commanded the third division of the fleet on the trip around the world. He is 59 years old, a native of Washington, and was graduated from the naval academy in 1868. His service in the navy has been extensive, and he was advanced three numbers for his conduct in the war with Spain, when he was executive officer of the Massachusetts. He has written on naval topics.

Myron T. Herrick Turns Down Ambassadorship.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3 .-Myron T. Herrick of Ohio yesterday, for business reasons, declined an ambassadorship at the hands of President-elect Taft. The post was not definite, Mr. Taft saying there were two or three places in which vacancies would occur and mentioned particularly the resigna-tion of Ambassador Griscom at Rome.

TRADE STAMP BILL IS IN.

MADISON, Wis., March 3 .- [Special.]—Assemblyman Curtiss of Kenosha would prevent frauds in the trading stamp business. He has a bill which provides that after July 1, 1909, it shall be unlawful to carry on such trading stamp business unless the firm or corporation shall have at least $100, 000 capital stock in cash. The bil would put these concerns on a licensed basis, as insurance companies.

WHEAT SOARS HIGHER.

May Goes to $1.191/2, Within Half Cent of Price Predicted by Speculator Months Ago.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 3.-New high records for the season were established records for the season were established by wheat, corn and cats on the board of below zero, Edward Chism, an employe trade today. May wheat, the supply of of the Holt Lumber company of Oconto, which is concentrated in the hands of a prominent trader, led the advance by touching $1.19½, which is within half a cent of the price predicted by the speculator mentioned some months ago and sciousness, but he died shortly afterwards from the different specification of the price predicted by the speculator mentioned some months ago and sciousness, but he died shortly afterwards from the offects of average from the offerts of average from the of unator mentioned some months ago and only 2 cents under the highest prices of the Gates campaign four years ago.

July advanced to $1.07. The advance in the latter delivery was based on day. the latter delivery was based on damage reports from the principal winter wheat states, expert gossip having it him next morning badly frozen and in wheat states, expert gossip having it that July would prove to be an "old crop" month, that is, a month in which deliveries on contracts would have to be made from the previous harvest. The record breaking rise in corn and oats was due to sympathy with wheat. May corn sold at 67% cents and May oats at 56% cents.

Skinning Live Snakes.

Very few of the people who are the proud possessors of belts, pocketbooks, card cases, and numerous other articles of snake skin, realize the agony that the demand of civilization for fads has meant to the original owners of the material from which these articles are made, says Popular Mechanics.

It is difficult to skin a dead snake, and the skin is often spoiled in the course of the operation, while, on the other hand, it is a simple matter to skin a live snake, and the skin thus gained is worth much more. Dead snakes bring from 2 to 5 cents, according to their size, and live ones from 25 cents to $1. One of the largest snake skin compa-nies has factories in Sumatra. When a snake is received from a hunter it is seized adroitly by an operator, one hand squeezing the neck and the other holding the tail. It is then attached by the neck to the trunk of a palm tree, an assistant holding it by the tail. With the point of a knife the operation cuts the skin just below the head and pulling with all his strength peels it from the writhing reptile in the same way that a woman peels a pair of gloves from her hand. While this is taking place the assistant holds the body as rigid as possible.

The water board met Thursday night. After the transaction of routine business (the plant showed a debit of $205 for January; and the fire wagon was ordered repaired, as the load carried to the Buckeye fire had strained the hind wheels) P. L. Utley of the Escanaba Power Co. addressed the board briefly. The greatest harmony was evidenced; as President La Pine remarked, all objections at first raised on both sides seemed to have been settled, and it now remained to close the contract and do the construction work. As copper is very low, construction will be cheaper now than later on, and the company promises to furnish service by May 1. The cost of the work is estimated at $3,000: as the water board cannot borrow, the matter must be submitted to the council. Ald. SLIP OF IMAGINATION

The girl with the brown eyes and the happy face looked up slowly. A lot of the girls had been lunching together in the big storeroom at the top of the warehouse, and they had been regaling themselves and each other by telling love stories, real and imagicome rolling off the logs are a novelty lated by the brown eyed maiden that here, although boxes and baskets made all proposals mentioned should be wholly imaginary and such as could never possibly have come to pass. And now that it was her turn to tell a story she began in a way which promised a close adherence to this stipulation.

> "Once upon a time," she commenced. "so long ago that all the men were so gallant and all the women so lovely and so charming that girls never had to stand up in street cars and were always paid just as much money for doing the same work as men were, there lived a young man. He was so brave and so knightly that everybody admired and loved him-because they couldn't help it-and I don't suppose he was called by his formal title more than once in a year or two. 'Sir Galahad' seemed to suit him so much better than plain Phil"-

> She stopped hurriedly, her cheeks red, and the other girls exchanged amused glances. But they were kind and considerate enough-and also wise enough-not to do so until after she had turned her happy eyes from their impassive faces up to the dingy old roof again, and so she went on inno-

> "Now, in the village where this chivalrous knight had been born and where he went back on a visit once in awhile there lived a young woman who loved him dearly and whom he loved just as much, although they neither of them knew it for a long, long time. A grim and ugly ogre, the ogre of dire necessity, had forced him away from the village to the great seething city when he was little more than a boy, long, long before he had proved his right to his knightly plume and spurs. The first time he went back on a visit-the ugly ogre wouldn't allow him to do this for ever so long, and he only let him stay just a week and a day when he did get back-the young woman found out that she loved him, although she wouldn't admit this even to herself for nearly seven years afterwardnot until she was getting to be a sedate, middle aged woman of thirty and the chivalrous, lovely knight was near-

"But she couldn't help owning up to herself that she wished she might see more of the handsome knight-you see, the knight had gone to school with her in her childhood and had been her own special and particular knight and protector in those days-and by and by the ugly ogre, without in the least meaning it, served her a good turn. He The city clerk has in his office new western Sportsman contains a write-up turned her out of the village and sent and lonely and with her own bread and butter to earn or go hungry. And the little smile which crept from these eyes to the happy mouth and back again was so sweet with happiness that it made her beautiful. One or two of the more imaginative girls were beginning to wonder if the chivalrous knight's fair maiden had looked like that. The brown eyed girl sighed a little, as happy children sigh in their play and their sleep, before she went on. "So the young woman was happy in the friendship, and she never thought of anything else," she said, the soft voice a little tremulous now. "And then all suddenly the chivalrous knight sought her out one evening and asked her to be his wife."

"'I have longed to say this to you for months and months, darling,' he said, 'but I have not dared, and for two reasons. But now that I have been promoted and am to have money enough to make a home for you if you will only say yes I have plucked up courage to ask-nay, implore-you to

"And so"- But the brown eyed girl's face was so full of blissful joy and glory now that the other girls could be silent no longer.

"And so they were married and lived happily ever after!" they cried in chorus, rushing upon and covering her with caresses. "And we're all ever so brown eyes amazedly, "what's the mat-ter with you all? Oh"—and she broke off to blush so divinely that if Philip, the chivalrous knight, had only been present he would surely have insisted upon her marrying him then and there instead of waiting three weeks longer -"I've given myself away, haven't I? And after all I said about not telling things that had actually happened! Well," laughing as only happy creatures can laugh, "no special harm has been done, I suppose, after all. -040-The Value of Comradeship.

"It is not good for man to be alone. So true is this that many cases are known where men living alone for a time have lost their reason merely for lack of human comradeship. One of the most drastic of all punishments is solitary confinement.

In the far west the prospector in his eager search for signs of gold will frequently stray so far from the haunts of men that he does not see a human being for several months. A man who has had this experience is thereafter always more or less "queer," and frequently becomes quite insane.

Man has three creators—his God, him-self and his fellows. We seldom realize, think, to what an extent we are molded, actually made, by the great mass of humanity of which each of us is a part. The home influence, the school, the church, the college, the shop, or office social restraint and conventions, public opinion—all these unite in making or unmaking the individual.

But these influences, powerful as they are, are communal and social; they control more than they inspire. They regulated late our habits of thought, our ideals and our actions; but 'hey leave the soul unsatisfied, untouched. From them, however, there has sprung a greater influence than any of them, and that is the intimate personal relationship, love, comradeship. 'I had a friend," replied Victor Hugo. when asked the secret of his remarkable powers. A friend, a comrade, to whom you can tell all; whose encouragement, praise, warnings, will help to better livng; who if he cannot help you will sympathize with you; encouragement, praise, warnings, will trust you-such a friend, would go far such a comra any man a Hugo or a Balzac or a George Eliot.

And is there such comradeship? Yes. I know that to my great enrichment.
"But can I find it?" you perhaps ask.
Ah, that I cannot tell you; for you can self are such a friend only when you your-self are such a friend. It is a law of the spiritual world that only the great shall ever really know the great; only the gentle shall know the gentle, only the friend shall find the friend.

If you would know companionship, first of all be worthy of it. If you your self are the ideal friend, you will surely, surely find another somewhere in this big, kindly world, and when you have done this you have attained the top-most possession of life, you have en-tered Nirvana, you have found the king dom of love.—W. R. C. Latson, M. D., in Health Culture.

-0:0-A Needed Home Missionary System.

What has come to be known in popular parlance as the President's uplift com-mission, for farmers, is bringing to the fore more conspicuously than at any previous time the disadvantages and privations of life on the farm for women, and lack of companionship is one of the most important drawbacks. That the farm yields the largest proportion of insanity among women as compared with any other environment, is a some fact that has been known these many years, but no general plan for the amelioration of the isolation that is the largest contributing cause of insanity in this class of women has ever been devised, and such sporadic efforts as have been made to brighten her life, while often locally successful, have been restricted as to influence.

The members of the commission, previous to starting upon the tour they made to different farming communities throughout the country, were in receipt of a voluminous correspondence men, women, youths and maidens living in farming communities, and from this they learned anew that hard work and lack of social intercourse are the prime reasons for the much deplored drift of the younger generation to the larger towns and cities of the country, so that isolation also pays an important part in depopulating the farm, as well as in sending the homekeeper to the mad-

Among the commission's suggestions looking to improving social conditions in farming communities are several in regard to regular foregatherings of one kind or another, recreative and educa-tional interests being duly considered, but even these wise admonitions do not altogether meet the case of the wife and mother whose labors are arduous and monotonous, and most dispiriting of all, performed almost wholly without companionship. In the majority of instances a domestic is out of the question, even supposing her to be obtainable, but is there any reason why a missionary system of some sort should not be established in behalf of the farmer's wife? University women graduates think it a meritorious proceeding to take up resident settlement work, where they devote such talents as they possess coddling the more or less ungrateful alien and the native slum population, other women graduates of high schools and colleges go forth to the uttermost parts of the earth and spend their ener-gies in attempts to enlighten and spirit-ualize the foreign peoples, which they not very politely call heathen nations. Why cannot some of this impulse for altruistic service be turned in the direc-tion of the homekeeper at the farm Why, for example, could not intelligent women and girls prepare themselves by scientific study in housewifely arts to be farm mother's traveling aids (and thus lays or a week or fortnight, as desired, once in so often, where expense, or quar-ters or other reasons make it impracticable for an "aid" to be added permanently to the family circle. Now that universities and colleges are offering special courses in domestic science, it is as possible to secure efficient training for the kind of missionary work suggested as it is now to obtain it for sociological or religious service. What the farm mother needs is a capable aid whom she will not be compelled to teach, and surely the American woman on the farm flower seeds, patterns, new fancy work stitches—and gossip even. The traveling aid could originate the local club, which makes the suggested exchanging feasible, and as the aid would come back at stated intervals, she could keep the exhange club from falling by the way.

The details of such a home missionary system can, of course, best be worked out later by those who are in touch with such agencies as granges and other farm er's societies. All that has been attempt ed here is to draw attention to the pres ng needs of a sadly neglected class, and to suggest to those women and girls who go in for altruistic effort, that social service, like charity, should begin at home.—Vogue.

Sometimes they tell me that they have never known what it was not to be pressed for money; that their whol married lives had been spent under the strain of knowing that they were exceeding their incomes all the time. There is nothing for such people to do except to adopt a simpler scale of living. Last year I questioned sixty-seven grocers and butchers after Christmas as to the way in which people paid their Thanksgiving and Christmas bills. Without one exception they told me that it was very hard for people to catch up; that often they paid those extra bills in small amounts monthly, and that sometimes the holiday would almost come around again before the holiday dinner of a year ago was paid for."—Exchange.

-040-The Young Victoria.

The Century is publishing letters of Mrs. Sallie Coles Stevenson, wife of the American minister in London, 1836-41, who took prominent part in the social life of the most exclusive society and saw often the young Queen Victoria. Here is Mrs. Stevenson's description of the young Queen:
"Her voice is as sweet as a Virginia nightingale's, and dwells upon the memory like a spell after the sound has passed away. It is sweet, yet soft; powerful, yet melodious, and it is listened to with a sort of breathless interest, height-ened, no doubt, by her extreme youth. Her size is below the middle, but her figure is finely proportioned, and a little embonpoint. Her bust, like most Eng-lish women's, is very good; hands and feet are small and very pretty. Her face, though not beautiful, has a look of spirituality, so bright and yet so tranqui that one feels involuntarily impressed with an idea that good and pure s dwells within, which is destined spirit dwells within, which is destined for heaven if earth does not spoil her by its adulation. As yet her spirit has not passed under the yoke of royalty; she has only enjoyed its pleasures, and knows nothing of its pains and penalties; her dawn of life and prosperity has not been derkened by calculation. been darkened by calamity or profaned by sin; but what will she be, when, like her great prototype Elizabeth, she is called to surrender up her trust to Him that gave it? I dare say now you and Helen and Selina would like to know how she was dressed. It consisted of a white satin dress richly embroidered with gold and trimmed around the bottom with a deep gold fringe; the stomacher studded with diamonds; earrings and necklace of the same; a train of some yards' length of crimson velvet and gold, lined with white satin. On her hair, which is dark brown eyes are blue, large and full; her mouth which is her worst feature, is generally a little open; her teeth small and short. and she shows her guns when laughs, which is rather disfiguring. "One of her maids of honor told me the other day that she deplores with the most beautiful simplicity the slavery of sitting so much for her picture; that it has been her torment ever since she was 11 years old; that her sister (the Duchess of Kent has been married twice) wrote her from Germany, 'Do, Victoria, shut your mouth when you sit for your like ness; but that her mother said, 'No both needs and is entitled to at least as much aidful attention as the alien, both much aidful attention as the alien, both she must be an amiable, gentle creature, she must be an amiable, gentle creature, the approach her seem to idolize In thousands of instances it would be possible for the efficient mother's aid to become a permanent family fixture, at least during the early years of the family life, when the coming of babies lays heavy and grievous burdens on the lays heavy and grievous burdens on the wife and mother. There should, of course, be included in any such system provision, not only for the exchange of the latest books and magazines, but for the latest books and magazines. zun, who has had the charge of her since she was 7 years old, and is said to be entirely worthy of the high trust. The Tories, do not, however, think she has either a face or mind of the beati-tudes. They accuse her of very womanly propensities, such as extravagance, want of sensibility, etc.; that she gives her hair dresser £400 a year, and a woman to take care of her diamonds, put them in and out of their cases, £200. And an American minister has $9000!

She Has Tried It.

John D. Long's daughter Margaret, who has lived for years in Denver, writes: Women have accomplished a no ticeable amount of good in the brief time they have had the suffrage. It seems impossible to me that anyone can live in Colorado long enough to get into touch with the life here, and not realize that women count for more in all the affairs of this state than they do where they have not the power which the suffrage gives. More attention is paid to their wishes, and much greater weight given to their opinions and judgment. The most noticeable effect have had in actual legislation is the advance along humane lines. The humane laws of Colorado surpass those of any other state or country. -0:0-

The Woman Lawyer Who Won a $30,000 Fee.

"There is nothing remarkable about the fact that a woman lawyer should win a big will case. Why shouldn't she? As a matter of fact, in many instances, women make better lawyers than men, specially through natural intuition. Then again, they are good talkers, and ersuasive in argument.

There you have it. That is what Miss Mary E. Miller of Chicago said just after she had won her suit on behalf of 'education' or 'personal expenses.'

'Rent, in my classification, I place at 17 per cent. of the income. That is an average for the whole country. The argument for which she will b paid her rich fee is interesting: Under the provisions of the Bross will the es-tate was to be held in trust until the oungest of the grandchildren reached he age of 30 years, according to the construction placed upon it by Azariah T. Galt, the administrator, who contestd the suit for immediate distribution. Miss Miller held that, under the trus e's construction, the estate might nevr be distributed among the heirs it was ntended to benefit. The youngest of the grandchildren, John Bross Lloyd, is now 22 years old, and the oldest, William Bross Lloyd, is 33. Miss Miller argued that should any of the heirs die before the youngest reach the age of 30 years in injurities would be done to them. an injustice would be done to them. some warmth and cheerful, companion able blaze, often meet with serious difficulties on adopting a coal stove for the kitchen. There are, however, obvious advantages on the side of a steady coal range, even as the solid, phlegmatic man has advantages over his more mercurial neighbor. To regulate it successfully re quires expert knowledge as well as relligence, and probably no item in the nousekeeper's domain is more commonly nd recklessly mismanaged.

On first coming down in the morning, open all the drafts and loosen up the fire dightly, by using the poker from below, but never shake it or add fresh coal at this time—these attentions come later. In ten minutes, or twenty at farthest the kettle will be singing and the glowing coals in fit condition for making toast, or broiling mackerel or a chop.

After breakfast the fire should be thor oughly shaken, the ashes removed and fresh coal put on, care being taken not o fill the fire box too full, after the wasteful and destructive fashion non among servants and ignorant house wives. As soon as the fire has come up a little it should be checked, unless a hot fire is needed for baking or ironing. In this case fresh coal is generally required at about 11 o'clock.

After lunch or the midday dinner, if there is baking or the like to be done, it is usually best to put on a little fresh coal, but ovens differ as much as tempers do, and experience teaches one to go less by any rigid rule than by the look of the fire, adding fuel, just as with a wood stove, whenever it is needed. A clear fire with no ashes at bottom is the es sential thing. If there is no special cook ing on hand this is a good time to us sifted coal, which gives comparatively little heat. Chestnut coal is to be preferred to the larger sizes, and a small scuttle twice filled should carry a medium sized range, on an average, through the twenty-four hours.

Just before bedtime the fire must be shaken and settled very thoroughly, fille up and allowed to draw until little blue flames begin to dance on top like Mephistophelian imps, when it should be checked as completely as possible. buying a range it is important to choose one that can be effectively checked; be indefinitely more useful than the mere and always worn without curls, she wore is then much more economical to keep world. MAKING OF INDIA INK.

Highly Gummed Fluid Is in Almost Universal Use in Asia.

"Artists, photographers and draughtsmen who use India 13k in their work, often find that instead of an intense black, as it ought to be, is is frequently a disagreeable brown, which impairs the quality and sometimes destroys the effect of their sketches.

"The reason is found in the circumstances under which the India ink is de," says a local photographer in the Louis Post Dispatch. "India ink is in general use all over Asia; in fact, except in the government offices of India and French Cochin China, no other writing fluid is used. The writing is generally done either with a small brush or reed pen. The ink is highly gummed, so that it stands out in relief on the paper or parchment; no acid will affect it, and it can be removed only by a vigirous use of the scraper.

"In both India and China there are thousands of people who manufacture the ink as a side line to their regular the link as a side line to their regular business, working at it in the winter, at night and on days when they are not otherwise employed. It is made by burning some kind of oil in a lamp with a very long chimney, usually made in joints which can be taken apart, for greater convenience in cleaning out the soot which makes the ink. Almost any kind of vegetable oil will answer, and in districts where petroleum is found even tricts where petroleum is found even coal oil is used in making the cheaper grades. The best kind is made from Sesame oil. No matter what oil is used, however, the combustion must be slow, imperfect and made to yield as much soot as possible. After every burning, the chimneys are cleaned, the soot placed in a box, and when a sufficient quantity is gathered, it is moistened with gum water pressed into cakes or sticks. and covered with silver, tin or gold foil, sometimes with only a coating of gum, to prevent its soiling the fingers.."

Colored Collector Saves Taft Embarrassment by Giving Up Position.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 2.— With the resignation of Dr. William D. Crum as collector of customs here, effective March 4, a situation which threatened to cause President-elect Taft embarrassment is avoided. Dr. Crum, who is a negro, says that no pressure causes him to resign, but that he does so to save Mr. Taft from any possible embarrassment as to his appointment and because he feels that he has been especially identified with President Roosevelt's administration and wishes to re-tire with his chief.

A BIRD FAMILY'S HIGH VALUE. In the Number of Insects Destroyed the Little Creatures Earn Money.

A county farmer with a taste for statistics has made a calculation of the value of the forest bird to the farmer and gardener.

He computes, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat, that on the average each bird nest contains about five fledgings and that during the period of four to six weeks when the young birds are fed by their parents each nesting consumes about fifty worms, flies or other insects every day. Now, suppose that the consumption last a month. During that time one brood will eat about 7500 insects. Suppose that each insect destroys during its natural life only one apple, pear, peach or plum; the farmers will save 7500 individual fruits by the labors of one pair of parent birds. This estimate he considers very moderate, for there are some insects, each one of which does a great deal more damage than he estimates. One small fly, for example, causes the deformed and worthless. One of these dies has been known to bore into sixty or $30. By protecting the bird nests and eggs the ravages of insects would not indeed be stopped, but they might spraying machine ever invented, and, what is more to the purpose, they work

WELL PLEASED WITH WESTERN CANADA.

Good Crops, Splendid Climate and Well-Enforced Laws.

Mr. George E. Hunt is a Maidstone farmer, who writes a Canadian Government agent as follows: It was the first week in November, 1907, when we arrived here. There was very little snow or cold weather until after the holidays, then the snow and cold increased, but to no great extent. I think the coldest I heard of was 30 degrees below zero, but that degree of cold would not be felt here any more than 10 theory so far as its exclusion provisions are concerned, is exceptionally strong, but in effect it is in some respects weak and ineffectual. The commission says it has discovered several sources of this weakness, and it is its purpose to find the others to recommend some effective remedies.

My opinion is that the man who comes here with a little means can do no better than invest $500 or $1,000 in cattle after locating a homestead adjoining or near some hilly part of the country where it will not be taken up as soon as there is plenty of grass and hay to be found in the hilly country and small lakes and sloughs will afford sufficient water for any amount of cattle. The bluffs with a few hay or straw sheds will make sufficient shelter for them. There is no need to worry about the market for cattle, as there is already a great call for stock of all kinds to satisfy the continued demands of the large packing house at Edmonton, established by Swift & Co.

The dairy business should by no means be forgotten. It is one of the paying enterprises of this great West. 25 cents and reaches as high as 40 cents a pound. Also the new creameries that are fast being erected along the lines of railroad are calling on the farmers for their cream.

These creameries are greatly welcomed in all communities, because selling cream is better than making butter, even at an average price of 25 cents a pound. For a new country the railroad transportation facilities are good; not yet, of course, what they are in older countries, but the new lines are swiftly gaining as the country gets more settled and supplies them with produce to ship. It is hard to say too much in favor of this country. All one needs is a little money with grit and ambition. I have seen homesteads that were filed on a little over three years ago that the owners have refused $3,000 for. There is much more that can be said in favor of Western Canada, but I think my letter has been long enough.

Calling on Hercules.

A Washington correspondent with a sense of humor has copied from the files of the Treasury Department a letter of recent date that ludicrously illustrates the conception of government entertained by the class of citizens who would rather call upon Hercules than put their shoulders to the wheel. The epistle is as follows:

The members of the Sixtieth Congress have been perfectly familiar with the situation of the treasury, but while now and then they have ut down appropriation bills their general disposition has been freely to authorize expenditures, without reference to whence the means for meeting them were to be procured.

The appropriation bills of 1908 aggregated $1,008,000,000. Careful estimates indicate that those of the present year will exceed this enormous total by $30,000,000. 000,000. Does the average citizen desire to know the directions in which increased outlay is to be made? The army will cost about $7,000,000 more than last year, the navy about $14,000,000, the postoffice $12,000,000, and the District of Columbia $2,000,000; the sundry civil bill provides for an increase of $15.000,000, and the river and harbor bill appropriates about $10,000,000, in place of nothing last year.

There is reason for apprehension that the Sixtieth Congress has left an em-barrassing situation for its successor and for the administration of President Taft. Much has been heard lately on the subject of tariff revision. The Sixty-first Congress will be able to give the country free wood pulp with a lower duty on paper and also to concede the nearly universal demand for free hides and free extra the country free wood pulp with a lower duty on paper and also to concede the nearly universal demand for free hides and free art, and to give a living chance to the people of the Philippines: but it will not be able to go far in any general scheme of tariff revision, and business interests generally will breathe from hy reason of that fact will breathe freer by reason of that fact for a general scheme of tariff revision would certainly retard the revival of in-dustries and commerce from the depression which has followed the financial

NORTHLAND SINGER, BEN HENDRICKS.

The northland singer, Ben Hendricks will be seen at the Gladstone Theatre, March 11.

Crowded houses are the rule everywhere Ben Hendricks appears in the title role of the Swedish American dialect play "Yon Yonson."

There never was anything dull about this play, for it was always one continual round of jollity from start to finish, and this season even more so, for there has been new blood injected into it, until now "Yon" can hardly be recognized as the same "purty good feller" who was here before.

"Yon Yonson" is a comedy with a plot and the plot is just heavy enough to create interest and hold the audience as the plan of the play develops. Everything about "Yon Yonson" of course depends upon the way in which the parts are taken, and the company that is now handling the piece could hardly be surpassed.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Feeding For Eggs.

Idleness on the part of the hen is a sure preventive against an abundant supply of eggs, although all other conditions may be perfect; hence to make profit from the hen she must be kept busy. The way to accomplish this is what all poultry keepers should understand. Grain may be fed before being thrashed and a fair result obtained, and if it hangs up a little above the fowls, so that they would have to jump to reach it, so much the better. The best results, however, are obtained by furnishing the fowls with a clean litter of chaff and straw of sufficient depth to insure hard work in hunting for the grain scattered therein. Feed vegetables and finely cut hay in large quantities, with warm mash and freshly cut bone in the mornings and later in the day grain well concealed in the litter. - Cor American Agriculturist.

Alfalfa For Poultry.

In investigations made by the farmers' institute force of the Colorado Agricultural college it was found that while the Colorado poultrymen who were making money from egg production fed various combinations of grains.

All the successful poultrymen consulted gave all feed dry. Not one was found who is feeding a wet mash at any time during the year. Grains, vegetables, alfalfa and meat are at all times fed dry.

All the successful poultrymen feed alfalfa, many of them every day in the year. Some feed alfalfa meal, some alfalfa leaves and others alfalfa hay, allowing the hens to pick off the leaves and reject the stems. While alfalfa is growing the green plant is preferred for feed.

Cleanliness In the Dairy.

Cleanliness should be the watch word on every dairy farm, for it may well be regarded in the light of a good investment, and its presence should be as carefully fostered as land, buildings or personal honor, for it is not only a marketable stock in trade, but a passport to the good opinion of refined and cultured patrons, while the example may be farreaching in its beneficial influence on markets, cattle and elevation of the character of the man himself and the occupation in which we should all take an honest pride and pleasure in stamping with the impress of our earnest desire to make it the most beloved and honored calling in the world .- Mrs. Adda F. Howie in American Cultivator.

Indoor Work For Winter.

Setting glass is good work for stormy weather. Take measurements and have the glass ready to set at the first opportunity when the weather does not permit outdoor work. Most barns in the city this week. ought to have more windows out into them for light and air. Several small windows are better than one large one, as they can be arranged to be removed in summer, thus making the building cooler and more airy in summer as well as lighter in winter. The best plan is to use half of an old house window sash, setting it in a frame so that it can be moved back and forth. In summer slide it back and cover with netting and a curtain for fly

A New Sulphur Wash.

During the past season the department of agriculture has made an important discovery-that the self boiled lime sulphur wash is not injurious to peach foliage when properly made and will not produce russeting and other injurious effects on apples. Furthermore, it has been found to be about as effective as a fungicide as the standard bordeaux mixture. Extensive experiments have been carried on during the year by the department on nearly all of the common fruit diseases which are preventable by spraying, and it has been demonstrated that the above mixture is a very useful one .- American Minn., has removed to Hibbing. Cultivator.

Farm Notes.

Abundant bedding for all the stock is both humane and economical. Do not throw away the wood ashes. They make a good fertilizer for orchard, lawn or garden. This is the season when manure has a tendency to pile up against the side of the barn. Don't allow it. You should be comfortable when working in the barn, but you will not be if the barn is not comfortable. One trouble with manure spreaders is that they are not used enough. They should be in operation all the year.-Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Keep the Best Stock.

Many farmers are in the habit of selling their best animals, as they will bring the highest price, says American Agriculturist. A greater mistake cannot be made. A difference of 10 or even 25 per cent in the price of a sinble animal is a small affair as compared with this difference in a whole herd. By keeping the very best to propagate from the whole may be made of equal excellence, and in the course of a few years numerous animals might be produced having excellent properties that now distinguish some few of the best.

Concerning Alfalfa.

An acre of good alfalfa produces twice as much digestible nutrients as an acre of good clover, the digestible protein being three times as great. Farmers in our eastern states should make every reasonable effort to estabfish alfalfa fields.—Pennsylvania School Gwinn, and approved the brick build- from now on Rapid River will be filling
