It is noted with a good deal of interest that the schools of Hubbell and in the Gazette regularly. The average business man, in his contact with the ordinary graduate of university or high school, finds, as a rule, a lamentable failure in nine cases out of ten, in simple spelling. Then he roundly scores the present day educational methods, asks to be shown the benefit to be derived from a thoroughly perfect course in applied psychology or advanced zoology, when the graduate does not know how to spell, and pines for the days when he went to school and was taught the three R's with applied birch in case of unbecoming conduct. And there is no doubt that the average publie school education has turned from the rudimentals to a great many side issues. Efforts of the school to get back to the basis knowledge of spelling are entitled to commendation. The Lake Linden and Hubbell school systems are benefitting, in a practical way, by these regular spelling contests and other schools might well follow the same system .-Houghton Gazette.

GEO. BRUMDER DIES SUDDENLY OF APOPLEXY

PIONEER PUBLISHER IS STRICKEN IN HIS GRAND AVENUE HOME AND PASSES AWAY.

DEATH WHOLLY UNEXPECTED.

Sons Are Called from Their Offices When Dr. A. Bernhard Foresees the End.

WAS KNOWN THROUGHOUT STATE.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 9, 1910 .-George Brumder, pioneer Milwaukee publisher and probably the best known German-American resident of Wisconsin, died suddenly in his home, 1728 Grand avenue, at 9:30 o'clock this morn-

Death was wholly unexpected. Mr. Brumder had been in apparent good health. A few days ago he contracted a cold that proved more or less stubborn. However, he seemed on the road to re-covery early this morning. At 9 o'clock he was suddenly stricken. Dr. A. Bernhard, 1300 Grand avenue, was hastily summoned by telephone. His efforts were useless, however. Mr. Brumder died shortly after the physician's arrival.

Members of the Brumder family were hastily summoned. They include Col. William C., George F., Herman and Herbert Brumder, and Mrs. George P. Mayer, Mrs. William Maercker and Miss Emma Brumder.

Milwaukee career was one of early struggle, stern adversity and thereafter rapid rise to business, financial and social suc-cess. For years he has been a leading figure in German-Americanism in Wis-was that he was wonderfully kind-hearted and possessed a vast fund of common sense and business sagacity. His treatment of those who served, or had served him in any capacity, was worthy of emulation. He was very charitable and the community loses a good man."

"George Brumder was a conspicuous type of the self made man," said Chief Justice Joseph G. Donnelly of the civil court. "His life is an object lesson to our youth. From the emigrant lad, practically friendless and penniless, he raised himself by energy and enterprise to wealth and influence. He won and held through long years the confidence not only of his own people, but of the whole community."

Without Fortune or Friends.

George Brumder was born in Germany in 1839. He came to America, and directly to Milwaukee, in 1857. Upon his arrival he was without for-tune and without influence. He worked, in his earlier days, with his hands. He labored as a carpenter, at the first; gradually he builded up a trade, then some small wealth; then, in 1864, he engaged in the publishing and bookbinding business. He succeeded instantly. In 1873 influential German-Americans formed the German Protestant printing association and began the publication of Die Germania. In time Mr. Brumder became owner and proprietor of the paper.

He began to develop it at once. He devoted his best energies to its building up. He suspended the publication of the daily and devoted himself almost entirely to the weekly. His success was immediate. The Germania became the recognized organ of the Lutheran church, gained hosts of friends throughout Wis-consin and, in time, became the most in-fluential German publication, probably, in the United States—certainly in the

In 1891 the daily edition was revived. The paper was again printed each night. It gained constantly in circulation and in influence. Thus George Brumder made successful a venture that had been practically abandoned as worthless by its

In 1897 Mr. Brumder purchased Die Abend-Post, then published by a company headed by Paul Bechtner. He combined the two dailies, calling the double publication Die Germania und Abend-

Then Mr. Brumder set about providing a suitable home for the large pubing a suitable nome for the large publishing establishment he had builded up. In it Mr. Brumder carried on his business, not only the publication of his newspapers, but also the maintaining of the Brumder book store which was at our time care of the which was, at one time, one of the largest in Milwaukee.

Later Mr. Brumder secured the Cole-man interests and Der Milwaukes Herold und Seebote, was added to the Brum-der publications. Thus today the Ger-mania publishing company rules the Milwaukee Herold, a morning paper; the Germania, an evening paper, and the Sontag's Post, which is virtually a combination of the Herold, Germania and bination of Abend-Post.

CABINET HOLDS A MEETING.

Question of Future Policy of the Government Touched Upon, but No Announcement Is Made.

CHURCHES TO HOLD SERVICES.

LONDON, May 10.—The city is again assuming a comparatively normal aspect. Except for the appearance of mourning emblems along the streets, the fluttering of flags at half mast, and the drawn blinds at the leading clubhouses and in the government offices, a stranger visiting London today would find little outward evidence of the momentous occurrences which have attracted the attention of the world within the past three Meantime, however, preparations are going forward for the imposing state funeral which will be given to the late monarch. Thus far, little of the detail has been made public.

Cabinet Holds Meeting.

Chief attention today was centered in the first meeting of the cabinet since the return of Premier Asquith following the death of King Edward. It does not appear, however, that the ministers gave special consideration to the grave political questions now pending. They discussed the appointment of a committee to revise the civil list as is necessitated by the change of sovereignty. The question of the future policy of the government in regard to the constitutional issue was touched upon, but if any conlusion was reached no announcement to that effect was made.

Contrary to the original intention that the body of King Edward should be quietly and privately removed from the Buckingham palace to Westminster hall, on next Tuesday, it has now been decided that the removal shall be accompanied with considerable ceremonial and the cortege will be an imposing military spectacle. The House of Commons will assemble in the morning and repair in a body to Westminster hall to receive the body.

Service at Abbey.

Following the three days during which the body will lie in state, it is possible that instead of the funeral procession proceeding direct to Paddington station, the casket will be borne to Westminster abbey for the reading there of the first part of the burial service. According to this plan the service would be completed later in the day at Windsor castle. All the churches throughout the Unit-ed Kingdom are arranging to hold me-morial services upon the day of the

CUMMINS AND DOLLIVER RALLY IOWA INSURGENTS.

One Charges That Taft Defended Tarriff Law With Figures Juggled By Its Authors.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 11.—In two notable speeches delivered here Tuesday night in the Coliseum, the occasion being a rallying of the insurgent forces of the state for the struggle with the standpatters in the gubernatorial campaign, President Taft, Senator Aldrich, Speakern Cannon and the type of politicians which they represent were made the objects of vigorous attacks by Senator Cummins and Dolliver.

Senator Dolliver confined his remarks to a blasting analysis of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. He took the measure up schedule by schedule and denounced it as a bill deliberately framed to exploit the people of the United States in the interest of the trusts. He went further and declared that President Taft in his Wi-nona speech had used as his principal argument in favor of the new tariff law a table of figures which was not only false and deceptive, but was prepared with the deliberate intent of deceiving the

The intimation ran all through Senator Doliver's speech that he regarded President Taft as a party to a fraud and Senator Aldrich and Congressman Payne as the authors, not only of the "iniquit-ous" tariff law, but of the "juggled" ta-ble of figures by which it was sought to defend it. Senator Cummins' remarks were confined more to the local situation. He denounced his political enemies in Iowa as being typified by the "midnight prowler with his dark lantern and his jimmy," and he invited the Republicans who had supported him for the senatorship to rally under the insurgent banner in the state and support the insurgent candistate and support the insurgent candidates in order that by electing them they might give aid and comfort to the insurgent representatives they had sent

The engineers who are at present constructing a railway into this country, with a view to making the great copper and other mineral deposits accessible, have encountered serious difficulties with glaciers. glaciers. At one point, the meeting place of three of these rivers of ice, it has been necessary to lay the track over the ice itself for a considerable distance. Ignorance of glacial eccentricities makes this alternative an unstable and precarious one at the best.

Further complications arose in the shape of an earthquake which occurred in the region in 1899 and made itself felt over a large surrounding area. The effect of the earthquake was to shake down large quantities of snow into the glacier beds, adding the impetus of its weight to the slow moving masses and unsettling glacial movements from their normal state which they have not yet regained. Following the earthquake one glacier moved two miles before settling back to its former velocity.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

In the Senate. Senator Dixon on the 5th gave voice to a complaint against what he asserted was the practice of characterizing as "insurgent" every senator who did not agree with what the so-called regulars demanded. He declared that the "regulars" themselves were as man jurised. lars" themselves were as much inclined as others to ally themselves with the Democrats whenever 'n advantage was gained by so doing. Senator Bourne f. Oregon, lauding the election laws of his state, provoked a general discussion of representative government in the course representative government, in the course of which Schator Bacon entered a vigorous protest against the present method of selecting officeholders in the south. As a remedy for these complaints. Senator Carter suggested the elimination from politics of the 59,000 postmasters of the United States.

The postoffice appropriation bill, carrying about $240,000,000, was passed by the Senate on the 6th without amend-ment. As the result of this action no conference will be required upon this bill. A large number of bills were passed, including one to provide for the division of the lands in the Crow Indian reservation and one granting pensions of $12 a month to nurses who served in the Civil war.

Previous to adjournment at 3 o'clock on account of the death of King Edward VII. the Senate devoted two hours to the consideration of the railroad bill. Senator Overman of North Carolina on the 9th spoke in favor of the long and short haul clause of the bill, while Senator Piles of Washington opposed that provision of the measure. Earlier in the day Senator Stone of Missouri intro duced a resolution instructing the com-mittee or postoffices and post roads to make inquiry into the propriety of the use of franks in circulating a pamphlet i nsupport of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. The resolution was referred to the postoffice committee under a promise of a speedy report, there being some indication that the inquiry might take on a broader scope and that the misuse of the franking privilege generally might be entered upon. Continuing the consideration of the railroad bill, the Senate on the 10th heard arguments by Senator Bristow in support of the Dixon amendment proin support of the Dixon amendment pro-hibiting a greater charge for short than for long hauls on the railroads, and by Senators Lodge and Piles against it. There were many interruptions and much sharp colloquy. Toward the close of the session a resolution authorizing an investigation into alleged abuses of the franking privilege was adopted.

An amendment by Mr. Knowl-and of California, providing that when a railroad reduces its rates, because of water competition it shall not raise them unless the interstate commerce commis-sion finds that the proposed increase rests upon changed conditions other than the elimination of water competition.

was adopted. The House practically concluded on the 6th with the consideration of the administration railroad bill for the adoption of amendments before adjournment and agreed that a final vote would be taken next Tuesday. The section au-thorizing mergers between railroads was struck out by a vote of 131 to 128. Efforts of Democrats to strike out the sections relating to the capitalization of railroads were ineffectual.

Mr. Shackleford complained of "coercion" by the speaker and asked if he were to be "traduced" and "bulldozed." The speaker heatedly and repeatedly called the Missourian to order, but overruled an objection by members of the committee which investigated the situation in the St. Louis subtreasury, and Mr. Shackleford spoke an hour. A personal tribute of both parties to Speaker Cannon in commemora-tion of his seventy-fourth birthday was expressed for the House by Democratic Leader Clark and replied to by the speaker. In the House legislation relating the District of Columbia occupied the entire session on the 9th.

By a vete of 200 to 126 the House on the 10th passed the administration railroad bill, with many of the original provisions stricken out. A proposition to revive section 12 relating to the ac quisition of competing lines was voted down before the bill was finally placed upon its passage. Some of the New England Republicans joined with the Democrats in voting down that provi-sion. The bill now goes to the Senate, where a bill similarly introduced as a administration measure has been pending for nearly three months. The House passed several resolutions calling for identity of the real purchasers of the Philippine friar lands and adopted the conference report on the bill to create the bureau of mines and mining, which now goes to the President for approval.

COPPER STRIKE

RUMORS OF LABOR TROUBLES PROVE GROUNDLESS AND MIN-ERS ARE SATISFIED.

STOCK MARKET IS DEMORALIZED

Slump Continues and There Seems No Likelihood of a Change for the Better Just Now.

CALUMET, Mich., May 7.-[Special.] During the closing days of April there were many rumors of strikes at several mines in this district, but May was ushered in without any action of this kind on part of the men employed by the big copper mining companies and it is now apparent that there will be no labor

It is conceded on all sides that it would be the height of folly to make demands at this time for higher wages as many of the mines are at present making only a very small margin of profit and some are even operating at a loss. The poor metal market and high cost of making a pound of copper at most Lake mines precludes any increase in wages, and a demand of this kind undoubtedly would result in the closing down of at least some of the properties. In many other districts mines compelled to operate at a profit as small as that now being earned by the Lake mines would have shut down long ago, leaving the men in the lurch. Here in the Lake Superior copper district the interests of the men and business houses are considered by the companies, and it is certain that a very large number of are loath to go on a strike to please outside agents or this or that labor organization. A strike in this section would work a great hardship on all interests, and the men would be the greatest sufferers.

Market Is Demoralized. The copper stock market is generally in a very demoralized condition and little hope is held out for an improvement in the near future. Some say the end of the slump is not yet, but many stocks are selling at very low prices and it aptroller in the case of the steamfitters, who are on strike for $5.50 a day, says has not been proved to be the prevailing pers" are surely bargains at present pers" are surely bargains at present quotations. In the downward trend the Lake Superior stocks have been hard hit, the best of them selling at surprisingly low figures. Political unrest and unsettled conditions are primarily responsible for this state of affairs, the low level of copper metal prices being the result. The metal surplus keeps piling up and any great increase in the consumption of copper cannot be expected until conditions are again normal. The production of copper for April was about normal, while exports have peen on a decreased scale, indicating largely increased stocks. There are no fixed quotations for th metal at the moment. Sales of electrolytic have been made this week as ow as 121/2 cents, cash, and castings sold at 125%, thirty days. Several copper interests, it is said, were displeased when the Calumet & Hecla cut its Lake opper price to 13 cents a few weeks ago, but it is quite apparent that some In private work the schedules for all of them will soon be forced, if desirous of selling copper, to adopt the same method. Decrease in Output.

The Copper Range Consolidated issued ts annual report for the year ended December 31, 1909, this week. The net income for the year was $1,363,563, against $1,486,774 in 1908. The production of copper was 41,105,311 pounds, against 41,546,525 in 1908, a decrease of 441,214 pounds. The average price received for copper was 13 cents, against 13.9 cents in 1908 and 17.28 cents in 1907. One-half the net profits from the Champion mine of the company was paid to the St. Mary's Mineral Land company, half owner in the Champion. The profits from the company's indi vidual mines were: Baltic. $892,646, and Champion (one-half), $408,319, while Trimountain showed a deficit of $47,841. It cost the company 3-10ths of a cent pound more to make copper in 1909 han in 1908, due to increased taxes and an increase of 1.39 cents per pound in the cost of Trimountain's reduced out-

The price at which the company sold its copper in 1909 was the lowest for seven years. The average price received for the past seven years, however, is 14.96 cents, which is a considerably higher average than most of the Lake Superior mines received for that period. The outlook at the mines is good. Baltic is as strong as ever and can be depended upon to keep up its good work.

Mine Looks Better. Champion is looking better than it has for two years and is opening splendid new copper ground in the lower levels. Trimountain was a disappointment in 1909, its production being the lowest in its history, but it is believed it will do better this year. For the first three months of this year Trimountain pro duced 78,679 tons of stamp rock, which ran 18.81 pounds of ingot copper per ton as compared with the production of 80.524 tons for the first three months of 1909 which ran only 15.31 pounds of copper per ton. The operations at all of the company's mines for the first three months of 1910, estimating the unsold copper at 13 cents, shows a profit of $593,085, which. after deducting one-half Champion, leaves a profit to the Consolidated of $428.207. In November, 1909, the Copper Range Railroad company declared its first dividend of $10 per share. The dividend amounted to $424.430, all of which accrues to the Consolidated company. Since the road was completed ten years ago the company has expended very large amounts for new motive power, rolling stock, buildings, docks and steel bridges. The results of the milling of the Lake Copper company's mill during April show considerable improvement over the March figures, 35.1 pounds of mineral per ton of rock having been obtained in April against 23 pounds in the preceding | Weekly.

As many times pointed out, however, until larger stoping areas are opened up, permitting the selection of rock, no fair idea can be obtained concerning the real commercial value of the Production Is Greater. The production of the Isle Royale is ow running between 7,000,000 and NO RAINS AND STRONG WIND 8,000,000 pounds per annum, and the cost is understood to be under 13 cents per pound. That the period of development is rapidly approaching an end is shown by the steady gain in production luring the past twelve months. From a production of less than 3,000,000 pounds in 1907, the figure was brought up to about 6,000,000 pounds last year, and the total for this year may be 8,000,000

The lands of the Isle Royale total 3315 acres and carry two miles of the Baltic lode. What this Baltic lode means to the Isle Royale will be determined in due time. Aside from this the company is today being operated at a small profit from the Isle Royale lode In the company's "A" shaft on the Bal tic lode a drift is being pushed out steadily southward, in the direction of the Superior mine, at the 750-foot level interesting ground. The north end of the Quincy property ommanded by the Mesnard shaft, which has been under development for ten years or more, and the new Pontiac shaft, is looking very good in copper values, a feature that is gratifying to the management. At depth levels from the Mesnard shaft have been extended northward into the territory which will be taken care of by the Pontiac shaft, and the values are such that it is pust tively known that the Pontiac will be a big producer when it gets down to the twentieth level and deeper two years or more hence.

Conditions Are Better.

The Mohawk mine in April produced 687 tons, 1500 pounds of copper, about three tons less than its record output which shows a bettering of conditions underground. Indications are that the May yield will be the largest in the company's history, and as yet little or the employes appreciate this fact and no benefit is coming from the rich ground openings in the lode commanded by the new No. 6 shaft.

Wolverine's product for April was 515 tons, 500 pounds, about the average to cause the fire to jump across the baryield of the mine. The mine's physical rier. condition is all that could be desired. and it is one of the most reliable properties in the entire district.

Good progress is being made at the Hancock mine. No. 2 shaft has attained a depth of over 2250 feet and is making for the Quincy or Pewabic lode. Inderground developments to date have een very promising. Within the next month the cross-cut being extended from No. 1 shaft to No. 2 at the eighteenth level will be completed. With this lateral Hancock will have connections between its two shafts established at two points, the thirteenth level being the first connection. It has not been decided whether work on the Hancock stamp mill will be undertaken this year. The site has been purchased. The site for the mill will provide a down grade for haulage charges.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 11. — Stubbornness and fighting spirit on the part of leading buils showed itself today in a prompt advance of a cent in the price of May wheat. The rally was extended to the deferred futures after a weak opening. Freezing temperatures in the northwest and absence of rain in that section barring scattered showers were cited as arguments against the bears. Offerings were light, speculators seeming to fear that the trade was not yet out of the woods in regard to the growing crops, and that sales were risky. May wheat went to 1.12 as against 1.11 at the close last night. Septembet started 1/40/4 lower at 1.001/201.001/8, an advanced to 1.01 and reacted to 1.003/4.

PRESIDENT TAFT TAKES PART.

Executive Pronounces Splendid Tributes to Men Who Aided Gen Washington.

BOTH IMPOSING WORKS OF ART.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11 .-Special.]-With military pomp and splendor and amid the enthusiastic demonstrations of a great concourse of people, the handsome bronze statues of Casimir Pulaski and Thaddeus Kosciuszko, the Polish heroes who aided Gen. Washington with their military experience at the hour of greatest peril in the American Revolution, were unveiled in this city today. Seldom has an event presented so many brilliant features of military pageantry and at the same time given occasion for the expression of the debt of gratitude felt by the nation to the distinguished foreigners who came across the Atlantic and out of disinterested motives did all in their power to aid the American cause. For two hours the crowds that lined Pennsylvania avenue saw rank on rank of Polish patriots, members of the Polish National alligner. members of the Polish National alliance, march in company with American blue-jackets and soldiers and at the same time heard the Polish national airs played along with "America" and "The Star-Spangled Banner." The President of the United States and members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, justice of the supreme court of the United States, members of Congress and many other prominent in official life, as well as a great gathering of citizens, took part in the double ceremony of the unveiling and dedication of the two memorials. The ceremony of unveiling the Po-laski statue occurred in the triangle on Pennsylvania avenue opposite the Na-tional theater, where the massive figure of the Polish general has been erected. Surrounding the statue were great stands to accommodate the many officials and guests invited to take part in the exercises. After an invocation by Bishop Paul Rhode of Chicago, President Taft addressed the assemblage and pronounced a splendid tribute to the valor and military genius of Pulaski who, after fighting for the freedom of Poland against the great invading powers of Poland against the great invading powers of the property of the polarical property of the polarical property of the polarical polari

The Pulaski methe national capital. morial is the work of a Polish-American sculptor of Chicago, Casimir Chodzinski. The work shows Pulaski in the hussan uniform of his native country, seated on the back of a moving horse of fine mold and graceful lines. The rider preand sents a picturesque and martial appearance, with the long military cloak thrown back from his shoulders. The horse and rider stand upon a high granite pedestal. The monument to Kosciuszko stands at the northeast corner of Lafayette square, two of the other corners of which are adorned by handsome me-morials to Lafayette and Rochambeau, while the fourth corner will be occupied later by a statue of Baron Von Steuben. Gen. Kosciuszko is represented as the hero of two hemispheres. A map of America with the American eagle guarding its liberty is at the front of the pedestal. In the rear the other hemisphere is represented as divided by a coiling snake, standing for the despotism of European and Asiatic monarchs. To the right a Polish farmer armed with a scythe is protecting a Polish soldier who had fallen in battle. At the left an American soldier is severing the bonds of an American farmer. Roar of the Vatican Lions.

Mgr. Schaepfer, Bishop of Tarbes, was recently celebrating mass in the Lourdes Grotto of the Vatican Gardens for the benefit of the French pilgrims, when the sound of roaring liens broke in on the singing of the choir.

The disturbance had been caused by the two lions presented to the Pope by the Emperor Menelik, which are enclosed in a cage at the back of the grotto. In order to pacify the beasts their feeding hour had to be anticipated, and they forthwith ceased to disturb the service.

Verily womanhood is not without blemish; nor is manhood. Imperfect, frail, and tarnished, are they both. O my daughters, was I not right to develop myself, to make them give me education, to make them give me liberty? How could I use my powers until I had trained them? How could I even find that I had them until I tried? Where could I try but in the place of trial? Where could I get my training but in the arena of life? There is none other provided. The house in which Stonewall Jack son died has been acquired by the Daughters of the Confederacy. They also take with the house four acres of The price paid was $2000. Stonewall Jackson expired in a little house twelve miles southwest of Fredericks burg and ten miles southeast of bloody Spottsylvania court house and near a little station on the Richmond, Fredericks burg & Potomac railroad, called by the railroad Guinea and by the postoffic thorities Guineys. In some of the literature treating on the death of Jackson the place is called Guiney's Station.

The battle of Chancellorsville was fought on May 1, 2 and 3, 1863. The focal point of that great tragedy was in the neighborhood of the Chancellor house -a road house on the Orange turnpike, twelve miles west of Fredericksburg. On May 2 Jackson made his remarkable movement across the front of Hooker's army of the Potomec, and in the evening struck the right of Gen. O. O. Howard's corps, the right flank of Hooker's army. Jackson, with several staff offi-cers, rode beyond his lines to reconnoiter. Coming in touch with the vance, the party galloped back to the Confederate lines, with the intent of entering some distance from where they debouched. They were mistaken for federal cavalry, and received a volley from troops of Lane's division. It was between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening. Several of the men with Jackson were killed. Jackson received three wounds -two bullets through the left arm and one through the right hand. He borne from the field, and one of his litter bearers was struck by a piece of shell, causing Jackson to sustain a painful fall. He was removed to an army tent near the Wilderness tavern, and on May 5, under orders from Gen. Lee, was conveyed in an army ambulance to Guiney's, or Guinea. His left arm was amputated; the surgeons in attendance looked for recovery, but on May 7 pneumonia developed, and on Sunday, May 10, this brilliant soldier died, surrounded by his wife and many of his military family.

The spot where Jackson fell was at first marked by a large native boulder. Later a monument was constructed near this boulder, and these two silent mark ers of an epoch in the south's history stand by the side of a road over which man rarely travels now, and in the midst of tall, dark pines—all this in the

In the account of Jackson's death, written by his chief surgeon, Dr. Hunter McGuire, the house at Guinea is referred to as "the Chandler house," but Mrs. Belle R. Dabney, 80 years old, and who has lived at Guinea for 50 years, told your correspondent that when Jackson died the place was owned by Dr. Edgar McKenney, and was called Fairfield. The house in which Jackson died is a small frame containing four small rooms downstairs and two up. Near this is the ruin of a big brick house. Mr. Dabney and Mr. King said that the brick house was the dwelling of Dr. Mckenney and the frame building was his office. Around the little frame house and the ruined brick is a grove of hoary locust trees-the same trees which stood there when Jackson's soul took flight.

Outdoor Rooms.

In a note to The Clinic Edward F. Stevens, who through his extended experience in designing and building hospitals has had brought most forcibly before him the relations of fresh air to the fighting of disease, has this to say of the benefits that the well may derive from such life. He states that the outof-door treatment which is so largely recommended today for the care of patients, either surgical or medical, and absolutely required for the arrest of the progress of the tubercular bacilli, should be turned to account to prevent disease in those who are perfectly well. This health giving quality of outdoor life is recognized by some foremost architects in designing even the humblest dwelling, and the "garden room" is becoming popular in some localities as the "den" or the "reception room" were considered necessary in others. What can be more conducive to good digestion in these hot days than a meal eaten in a garden room, where three sides are open or are sheltered only by the screens necessary to prevent insects from dis-turbing the otherwise perfect peace? The same screened garden room affords a have liked splendid sleeping apartment where the negative. hot nights of summer may be passed in refreshing sleep. Such a room can be arranged in planning a new house, located, for example, so as to lead directly from the winter dining room or butler's pantry so that service from the kitchen can be effected with the same ease as in the dining room proper. Where space will permit, this room should be large, space for hammocks, couches and dining table and chairs. Window boxes running around the outside add much to the beauty of such a place, while potted ferns and palms may be so disposed as to make this outdoor room the true living room in the summer. If the outdoor treatment is beneficial in bringing back to health those who have been confined to beds of sickness, how much greater must be its power to the well, and why not strengthen our resistance to disease by adopting as much of the fresh air as possible in our everyday living. A sleeping balcony built from the second story of a house, if properly planned, is no disfigurement, and think of the benefit to be derived from it. There would be fewer anaemic constitutions and less tuberculosis and more men and women with clearer brains if they would live more in God's out-of-doors.—Health Culture.

LAUDS HOUSEKEEPERS.

Cardinal Gibbons Commends Women Who Are Industrious.

"I have ten times more respect for the woman who goes out and earns her living, toils for herself and family and becomes a good housekeeper, than for the idle, gossiping society woman who passes away her precious moments in doing nothing." Cardinal Gibbons spoke thus in the sermon at the confirmation exercises at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Baltimore. The confirmation class was the largest in the history of the church, 260 children and adults being confirmed. "Above all, my boys and girls, be industrious," continued the cardinal. "It is an honorable thing to work, and honorable and industrious work is what has made this great nation. Never be ashamed of work, and always be ever ready to do your share when the time comes. Men alone should not be industrious. Women also most be industrious, and the working woman always commands and should demand much more respect than the idle woman.

The Rockefeller Foundation.

The first impression regarding the proposed Rockefeller Foundation was derived from the stupendous possibilities of the creation in the direction of benevolence. Turning the matter over, how-ever, some of those who were cordially disposed toward the project at first blush are now inclined to hesitate about it on account of the immensity of the trust which it will create, and in view of the general opposition to the locking up of capital in trusts for long periods of time. Moreover, it has been suggested from quarters openly inimical to Mr. Rockefeller that his main desire in seeking the legislation asked for was to throw his property into a form in which would enjoy exceptional immunity from taxation.

Whatever the reasons most influential in each particular case, there is no appearance at the present time, it is said, of getting a majority of the senators to vote for it. This, so gossip at the capital affirms, may lead to the withdrawal of the pending bill, but not to the aban-donment of the proposed trust, for it is understood that authority for the Rockefeller Foundation will be forthcoming at the hands of one of the sovereign states. It is really curious if the uproar about Rockefeller has so affected the grave and reverend Senate as to make its memfearful to rely on their own judg ment where an enterprise in which he interested is concerned.

Cyril Otterson proposed to me for the first time at Henley regatta. "All right," said Cyril, in that pebeaten, and you wait and see; I shall marry you somehow."

The second time he proposed to me was in a box at the theater. It happened to be a very pathetic play, and Cyril, who has no idea of the fitness of things, kept whispering words of love and adoration, while the audience were in a state of dreadful suspense as to whether an erring wife would return to her husband or no. When I had the opportunity, which was during the entr-act. said to him: "Now, Cyril, don't be silly; you know quite well that I have

The third schedule of the time to be spent on the time that he proposed to me was in my own drawing room. He had been in a more or less dormant state for awhile. and that being so, I thought there was no great harm in asking him to tea, We first of all talked the usual banalties; but, somehow, though I tried desperately hard to keep off dangerous topics, we soon found ourselves in deep

December passed off quickly, Cyril only writing once, saying he was making all his arrangements, and sending me a perfectly lovely bracelet-a flexible gold snake with an emerald head and tiny ruby eyes. It was simply too fascinating, and, as Cyril said it was for Christmas, I saw no harm in keeping it, besides which I was fond of him in a way.

In January I was once more back in town at my own flat, and he came to see me. He looked awfully fit and nice after his country spell, and never even referred to what I call unpleasant subjects till just as he was going, when he said casually, "Don't forget the date, lear, will you?"

"I thought that joke was quite exploded," I answered uneasily, for somenow there was something very compelling about him, which I wished to hide from myself.

With his departure, a feeling that I had been very near the brink of surrender overcame me, and I began to allow to myself that my life was at times more than a little lonely, and that being looked after by Cyril had its points Day by day I turned the question over in my thoughts, and day by day I found myself weakening.

Short-weights in Packages.

Colonel William C. Haskell, super intendent of weights and measures of the the minor nations today. District of Columbia, has given tes timony before a House committee which interest to the public generally. Colonel Haskell said that his office was satisfied after many investigations that practically every package sold in grocery stores is from one to four ounces short of the weight which the purchaser believes he is paying for. The only ex ception to this short weight which had ever come to his attention is in the case of one brand of sugar, every package of which, he said, is slightly cess of the supposed weight. Colonel Haskell explained that there is no dis trict law compelling the labeling of packof food for the purpose of show ing their weight, and that he regarded this as principally responsible for a condition which permitted the wholesaler and retailer to sell a consumer a much less quantity than the consumer usually supposes he is getting for his money.

The same thing applies to liquid measures and to weight. "Pint bottles" rarely contain a pint, and "quarts" seldom hold more than a pint and a half. Sometimes a package and its contents pulls down the scale to the extent expected by the consumer, but in that case the weight of the contents falls short to the amount of the weight of the package. There are advantages in the system of getting everything in packages. Edibles look more attractive thus protected, and no one who pays attention to the talk of bacteriologists will be likely to ignore the men to say they will not work with preferability of well wrapped goods on he score of healthfulness.

But the system does add enormously of the cost of living—there is no doubt about that-and it would not be a bad hing if packages were always made contain a legible statement of the weight of their contents. News comes from the mountains in the vicinity of the Mormon colonies south of here in Mexico of the falling of a gigantic meteor. It burst and spread out in four directions and some of the fragments started a considerable forest fire.

At times in the past there have been meteor stories from Texan sources that have satisfied the appetites of people who like to sup on wonders, but have provoked expressions of incredulity from students of astronomy, particularly those who are specialists on the chemistry of the stars. Texas, it will be remembered, was celebrated for years as the home of Joel Mulhatton, the most variegated and resourceful liar who ever invented a "fake" dispatch. Joe is supposed to be dead, but there is a possibility that the El Paso telegram is a revival of one of his old stories. There is also a possibility, however, that it is a veracious If it is, Mexico can claim credit for the first forest fire so far as recorded that has been started by a meteor.

The Highest Dam in America.

The highest dam in America, according to the calculations of the reclamation engineers, will be the barrier now under construction in the state of Wyoming in connection with the Shoshone project. The shoshone gorge, in which the work is being erected, is very narrow in pro-portion to its depth, the walls being of hard granite especially favorable for water storage. The dam will rise no less than 310 feet above its foundation; and so narrow is the canyon that the masonry will measure only 175 feet along its crest. Here, as in the Koosevelt dam, it was necessary to cut a road many miles in length out of the solid rock in order to gain access to the site. The dam will provide a reservoir with a storage capacity of 456,000 acre feet, and by 1911 enough water will be available on over 100 000 acres of land. The dam will regulate the flow of the water, and thirty miles below the dam the stream will be turned into a tunnel three and a quarter miles in length, which will conduct it by a large canal into the district to be irrigated. This wall will be thirteen feet higher than the famous Croton dam which forms the Croton reservoir.—Casier's Magazine.

THE MOSQUITO DID IT.

Greece and Rome Laid Low by Malaria Conveyor.

Prof. W. M. Wheeler of Harvard de clared in a recent lecture the downfall of Rome and Greece was due to the mosquito. "Undoubtedly the introduction of malaria from Egypt and Asia through the medium of the mosquito was the cause of the downfall, first of anthe cause of the downan, first of ancient Greece, then of ancient Rome," said the professor. "Nearly one-half the entire population of Greece today is malaria infested, and the other half is not, only because by previous long at the cause of the cause tacks it has become immune." Prof. Wheeler was inclined to scoff at the popular superstition that all mosquitoes breed malarial germs. "The common breed malarial germs. "The common mosquito does not breed malaria," he declared emphatically. "The common nosquito, easily distinguishable from the malaria mosquito after one has studied the markings, is quite harmless, at least insofar as malaria goes. The malaria-breeding mosquito, however, is found in considerable numbers throughout the New England states, along the Atlantic coast and through the south. The mos-quito is a pest easily fought. A sprink-ling of oil on the still waters necessary for its propagation will kill it, but in many cases oiling the water surface is not for other reasons, desirable. The enervation consequent upon the introduc-tion of the malaria germ and its fuller development in the human system has much to do with keeping Greece among

CAN BAR UNION MEN.

Iudicial Decision in Regard to the Rights of Employes.

Justice Greenbaum gave judgment in favor of Harry Alexander and other members of the Employers' association, who were sued by the New York Electrical Workers' union on account of their refusal to employ members of the union The justice says the action was brought on the theory of a violation of an agree-ment which the union asserted was obligatory upon the defendant associa-tion in its relations with the union. The only question to be determined was whether the allegations of conspiracy were sufficient for the maintenance of an action for damages. "It is true," the court said, "that the complaint alleges malicious conspiracy on the part of the defendants in that they notified the plaintiff they would discharge its mem-bers and would only employ members who held cards of membership in the plaintiff's rival organization, the Inside Electrical Workers of Greater New York. But there is no allegation tending to show an injury intended or threatened toward the members of the union." tice Greenbaum says that in the case of the National Protective Association certain men was recognized, and he con-tends it logically follows that the employer has equal right to say he will not employ certain men.—New York World.

Celluloid and other inflammable and explosive artificial substances much in use at the present time constitute an element in the fire danger the extensive menace of which is not generally under-

At Pittsburg yesterday a painter took a salt-cellar from the table of a club restaurant where he was working and slipped it into his pocket. The pocket contained loose matches, one of which became ignited by friction as he moved about, and this instantly set fire to the celluloid top of the salt-cellar, which exploded. The man was seriously burned. Celluloid is made into countless articles of varied character. It is very popular for toilet novelties and is found in toys and in ornaments for the mantel. There are men who wear celluloid collars and women who wear ceiluloid combs. A casual spark might ignite any or these things, causing an explosion and fierce combustion.

The films used for moving pictures often ignite with disastrous effect. Such accidents are not confined to the times while the films are in use. Two fires lately have been attributed to spontaneous combustion of these films when stored in vaults among papers and other non-fireproof surroundings.

LONDON, May 7. - "The King is dead. Long live the King!" The transition from Edward VII. to George V. as King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India, is now complete.

King George V. was formally proclaimed as successor to the throne at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The ceremony was an impressive one, occurring in the throne room of St. James' palace, in the presence of the privy council, under the presidency of the Earl of Crewe. Sir Alfred Scott Scott-Gatty, garter principal king of arms, with the Duke of Norfolk and two officers bearing the staffs of office, stepped to the front of the balcony, and in a voice which could be heard across the court and in the streets adjoining, read the proclamation while great throngs stood uncovered in a drizzling rain. The duke and Sir Alfred then rain. The duke and Sir Alfred then called for three cheers for the King, and the people responded with fairly deafening hurrahs, which were silenced only by the reappearance of the heralds, who sounded another fanfare.

The last note hardly had died away when the band of the Coldstream guards, which had taken up a position in the square, struck up "God Save the King."
The young princes from their point of vantage in the windows of Marlborough house stood with their hands at salute and the officers and troops stood at at-

As the national anthem was concluded, the first gun of the battery in St. James' park belched forth a royal salute and the people in the square and streets at the same moment took up the refrain "God Save the King." This was probably the most impressive part of the ceremony, the fervent singing of the crowds growing in volume as more and more as family, foreign monarchs and special ambassadors. The Queen, queen mother gun half drowned the chorus. > Sketch of King's Life. When Edward VII. breathed his last there came to a close the life of a unique personality. He was loved almost uni-versally, first of all as a man whose natral attributes made him dear to the hearts of his subjects, and next as a monarch whose ability to fulfill the role which he was called on to assume was demonstrated conspicuously. "Edward VII., by the grace of God, of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas King, defender of the faith, Emperor of India," was his title.

Subject to fierce criticism in his youth because of his manner of life, he lived lown an unenviable reputation through down an unenviation reputation through long years of more careful conduct, and succeeded in winning the confidence of all the people as almost no other sovereign of Great Britain, except his mother, Queen Victoria, had done.

As a statesman, he was active and successful, particularly in the field of foreign affairs. The fact that he was the idol of the people made him a use-ful instrument of the ministry and enabled him at the same time to wield more influence than had been conceded to the throne in the past. He was an able diplomat, and in all the more important questions of foreign policy which came up during his short reign he made him-

When in 1909 his horse Minoru won the derby at Epsom there was a scene of cuthusiasm at the track which was unparalleled. Twice before he became King he won the derby, with Persimmon in 1896, and with Diamond Jubilee in 1900.

In personal appearance the King was the typical Engl.shman. He was rather below the average stature, of strong and heavy build. His ruddy face betokened good health and good spirits up to a short time ago. He were his gray beard trimmed to a sharp point. His thin circle of gray hair diminished until he was quite bald. Even in his later days he continued to be one of the best dressed men in Europe, and was regardd as a model for quiet refinement of dress and bearing.

At the state functions in which he participated. Edward revived all the pomp and circumstance of medieval days. Rich Legacy in Maple Trees.

Twenty-five years ago a Vermont man went west and planted 250 maple trees in Medora, Kan., in the very heart of the region once described as the Great Amer-ican deser says the Utica Press. Mr. Barnes, who was a foresighted and patient man, now has a fine sugar camp, at present in the midst of sugar making. Farmers in that vicinity annually plant small fields of buckwheat for cakes for consumption along with the maple syrup produced at the Medora grove. A sugar grove may not be very attractive to the man who looks for quick returns, but farmers in many parts of the country may leave a rich legacy to coming generations by planting a few hundred maple trees.

The Osservatore Romano, a Vatican organ, says that the Pope has conferred upon Thomas Hughes Kelly of New York, the Great Cross of the Holy Sepulchre, and on his wife the gold decoration of Bene Merite, for their many benefactions to the church in America. Mr. Kelly papal chamberlain and prince of the Holy Roman empire.

On their wedding journey in 1904 Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were received by Pope Pius X. and Mr. Kelly was made a prince and Mrs. Kelly a princess of the Holy Roman empire. The engagement ring Mr. Kelly gave his fiancee was one presented to him by Pope Leo was one presented to him by Pope Leo XIII., who held him in high favor.

Mr. Kelly is 38 years of age. He is the son of the late Eugene Kelly and a brother of Eugene Kelly, Jr. Mrs. Kelly is a daughter of Count Hermence de Sallier du Pin, and belonged to a once wealthy family that lived near Nantes. After coming to this country their for-tunes suffered, so the match between one of the richest young bachelors of Manhattan and the beautiful girl in modest circumstances aroused a great deal of romantic interest. They were marof romantic interest. They were mar-ried in Clayton, N. Y., the bride's home.

Her Scalp Itched Intolerably.

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching. in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald. "Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies -Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one-half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles-neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have hal no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald. "This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

NOTES OF INTEREST.

The battleship Wisconsin is lying in North river, New York, discharging the contents of her magazines and preparing to go to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where she is to receive an overhauling that will bring her up to date. The Wisconsin is only twelve years old, but since she was launched the dreadnaughts have appeared, and ideas have changed as to the upperworks of battleships, of which there is considerable in the Wis-consin type. The changes to make the Wisconsin up to date will doubtless be made largely above deck, as little alteration can be made below unles the hull is cut in two and lengthened, a process that would doubtless reduce the ship's stability by altering the relation of length to width and depth.

Dr. George W. Coler, health officer of Rochester, has excluded pasteurized milk from the infants' supply stations of that city after four years' experiment with the product. He declares that since he as been supplying the central station with raw milk, the mortality among infants has been lower, and states that while the policy of pasteurizing reduced infant mortality, it has been his observation that the farmer gradually came to depend upon the process instead of taking precautions to keep the milk clean and sweet. When Dr. Coler ceased pas Many women who suffer with back-ache, bearing-down pain, headaches farm the death rate dropped below what it was when the milk was pasteurized. This demonstrates that cleanliness and coolness are the primary needs, and that raw milk is all right if it receives the proper care. But there is the rub. When milk must be handled in large quantities is difficult to give it the care required keep it sweet; therefore for general delivery pasteurizing works improve-ment. Where milk is destined for in-fants, it should receive especial care at the farm, and if Dr. Coler has demon-strated this to be sufficient, the babies will get a product that is better than pasteurized milk.

> The Lieutenant-Governor of Canada s signed the new law of the Dominion provides that after Monday next all timber cut on crown lands must be manufectured in Canada. The term anufacture in this case means conver-ion into pulp or paper, into bales or oards, or into any other articles of ommerce or merchandise which differentiate the product from timber in its original shape. This affords considerable latitude; and when the fact is considered that of 1,000,000 cords of pulp wood exported from Quebec only 165,000 cords ame from crown lands, and that this later product alone is affected, the situation better than it seemed at first blush. But here is ground for dissatisfaction in the t that the International Paper comy controls much leased crown land, has upward of $7,000,000 invested in such holdings. Smaller paper con-cerns fear that the new law will operate their injury.

Professor J. Laurence Laughlin does not believe that the cause of high prices is the increase of the gold supply. He shows that increase of the gold supply has occurred without influencing prices that the gold supply has enormously increased in periods during which prices have declined. His reason for disbelleving the gold and high price theorists is a strong one. Another strong reason is that the larger production of gold has been offset by the abandonment of the double standard for the single monetary standard. There is a larger demand for gold as well as a larger supply.

At one time he was sentenced to be hanged and twice he was condemned to life imprisonment. Finally he was pardoned after a mistrial. The present prospect seems to be that if Powers is not made the congressional candidate of the Republican party by the district committee will present himself as a candidate at the primary. The district is Republican by a large majority, and if Powers runs the chances are he will be elected. His friends have always held his trial and condemnation to be a dastardly conspiracy. Politics is a very lively business in Kentucky.

Elia Wheeler now knows her London. While Theodore Roosevelt has been facing lions in Africa, Mrs. Wilcox has been confronting the British lion in his native lair. Her experience has filled her with convention. She declared that her with compunction. She declares that she has been prejudiced against the English people all her life, but that now her prejudice is at an end. She judged them by the specimens she had seen abroad. At hotels in Jamaica she had many women use a child's toy washthem by the specimens she had seen abroad. At hotels in Jamaica she had observed that the treatment of Americans by English folks was "really horid." But on her visit to England she has judged of the English by the reception she has received in their "tight little island," and their kindness has warmed her heart. What she has experienced in England induces her to say: warmed her heart. What she has experienced in England induces her to say: entire performance.

At last, it would seem, New York legislators have devised an effectual measure to stop race track gambling. The "bookies," it is asserted, have abandoned hope. This will make Saratoga safer than it used to be for young men with money, but not nearly so interesting.

The Queen expressed astonishment because of the grille which separates the ladies' gallery from the body of the house and cuts off the view of visitors from the members. That was a curious sensation which the citizens of Perry, Oregon, must have felt, when they discovered that their town had been overlooked in the taking of the census. A way is to be found of righting the matter, though the fifteen days assigned for taking the census have passed. Here and there in c.ties where the official enumeration went forward with all due bustle, individuals are now turning up with the convic tion that they have not been listed. book on "The Corrosion of Iron and Steel," by Alfred Sang, discusses a question that is of vital interest to archiects and erecting engineers in the building trade. In it the author mentions the various theories as to the cause of corrosion in iron and steel and calls at tention to the curious fact that steel rails in service rust far more slowly than those which are out of service. remarking that data thus far collected seems to indicate that the vibration of the rails in service tends to protect them. This leads to Railway Age to suggest that perhaps corrosion is due to weak currents of electricity. It refers to the fact that if a permanent steel magnet is struck with a hammer and caused to vibrate it will be injured magnetically by the treatment, and if the nammering is continued it will be entire demagnetized in time. From this fact, remarks the Railway Age, is it not reasonable to assume that the vibration of the rails incident to traffic tends to prevent the formation of the electric currents which are supposed to be the cause of the corrosion, and that with the cause thus removed corrosion will not occur? The question is a very in-teresting one in this age of steel, with the metal being utilized in every conceivable way.

Troubles experienced by the Panama canal excavators in the difficult section known as the Culebra cut are converting many of those who have been advo-cating a sea-level canal to the view that the government was wise in adopting the lock plan. It appears that the pressure of the earth on both sides of the cut at Culebra causes the ground to "hump up" in the ditch which is to be the canal bed. This of course necessitates extra excavation, but it is gratifying to know that the engineers feel no alarm as to the ultimate result of their operations. If the ditch had to be carried down to sea level the excavation would be tremendous, and the side pres sure might entail an endless task in thi regard, at tremendous expense.

French thrift demands that the merest bit of sheer linen last its allotted time. and that it shall do so requires that great pains be taken with it. If madam has a maid, then she must be thoroughly instructed as to her duties along this line and handkerchiefs are expected to be her special charge. If, however, the lit-tle menage does not boast of such a uxury as a personal maid, then madame must do her own washing. In the first place, her handkerchiefs are never allowed to become unduly

The crustiest of Britishers ought to be satisfied with that. It is a glowing to and at once ironed. No storagh is used. and at once ironed. No starch is used for the milk takes the place of that, and the little ironing board is covered first with a heavy flannel and afterward with a spotlessly clean piece of white cloth.

An iron is kept especially for this work, and usually this is some patent affair either for electricity or alcohol. To do this all properly will take an hour or more of madam's time; but she feels berself more than senid for the berself more than senid for the senidor that the senido herself more than repaid for that by the results seen. The little pile of handkerchiefs will come from her hands as if fresh from the shelves of a shop, and they will have the delicate fragrance having lain in a violet sachet. Anything daintier and more satisfying to the eye it would be hard to imagine, and any woman who cares for these pretty trifles could not help but take a certain amount of pleasure in this kind of work.

Beyond His Knowledge.

While the county commissioners were sitting to listen to tax appeals, a well-dressed foreigner walked into the meeting room and asked to have the assessment of his brother's occupation taken off, claiming that $50 was too high. The ommissioners endeavored to explain that $50 was the minimum assessment "Is your brother a laborer?" asked a member of the board.

Fish as Food for Londoners.

The port of London's proposed duty on sh and fruit reminds us that fish at east has always been an important constituent of the food supply of the metropolis, and in early times the Thames itself yielded an enormous supply. ABOUT THE THAWS.

Harry Is Sad Because His Wife Is Growing Stout.

Harry K. Thaw is mourning because his wife is growing stout. "Your poetle figure has passed away," he said to her the moment he saw the former model when she visited at Matteawan. "But you're still beautiful," he made haste to add. For some time the two bantered each other about their increasing weight, and Thaw begged his wife to walk up and down the room that he might see her better. Then they took up the often discussed question of a settlement. Mrs. Thaw declined to consider anything but going abroad to study sculpture, but her husband insisted as firmly that she should study in America. "It will be should study in America. "It will be only for a little while—until I am released," he told her, but the interview ended with no agreement in sight. On the drive back to Fishkill Landing, Mrs. Thaw and Dr. Sillo, who accompanied her, met an open carriage in which Mrs. Mary C. Thaw and her caughter, the former Countess of Yarm ath, were riding. Mrs. Mary Thaw spoke cordially to Dr. Sillo and ordered her carriage stopped. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, however, curtly told her driver to hurry without so much as having looked at her mother-in-law.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so? The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round

The employes of the two roads also require about 18,000 penholders and 320,000 pencils in a year. This means that for each mile of track thirty pencils are needed in a twelvementh. These supplies are ordered through the general offices in St. Paul and are distributed over the system.
