The disaster occurred in latitude 48.25 north, longitude 34.33 west, or in the middle of the North Atlantic. The scene of the tragedy was about 5.300 miles from Halifax.

The following wireless message from the Carmania gave the first notice of the disaster:

Twelve liners were brought by the wireless distress signals within hail of the Volturno. The Cunard liner Carmania was the first of these. She reached the scene about noon. Then came the Seydlitz, the Grosser Kurfuerst, the Kroonland, the New York, the Devonian, La Touraine, the Narragansett, the Minneapolis, the Asian. the Rappahannock and the Czar.

Fire Reaches the Bunkers. The sea was running too high to allow the taking of the Volturno's passengers when the rescuing vessels came on the scene. During the day the flames from the hold of the Volturno were kept more or less under control, but about nine o'clock Thursday night the fire reached the coal bunkers and it was found necessary to close the bulkheads. CAPTAIN OF VOLTURNO BLINDED BY FLAMES

Master of Ill-Fated Ship Injured While Fighting With Mutinous Crew.

On board the Red Star Steamship Kroonland, at Sea (by wireless via Cape Race, N. F.), Oct. 14.-Capt. Francis Inch, hero of the burned liner Volturno, stayed on the fiery ship until his eyesight was almost lost. When he was brought aboard the Kroonland, after being rescued, he was unable to see, and was confined to his warships have been seen in the Gulf room.

> Ever since he came on board the Kroonland physicians have been struggling to save his eyesight, and they now hope they have succeeded. In the position which Captain Inch took when the mutinous sailors of the Volturno thrust back the passengers in the rush for the lifeboats, he caught the full effects of the heat from the flames that were destroying his ship. At no time, however, did he waver in his heroism, and he had to be asissted into the boat which took him off the traveling ocean volcano. He has been in a state of almost complete collapse since he came aboard the vessel and has been unable thus far to tell anything about the thrilling story of the disaster.

> Fishguard, Wales, Oct. 14 .- All of the passengers of the burned liner Volturno could have been saved but for the cowardice of her crew. More than 500 persons, the bulk of them passengers, were saved, due alone to the heroic behavior of the Volturno's commander, Capt. R. C. Inch.

According to the purser's estimate the death list reached only 132. The original figures of the Carmania, that 236 were dead, was accepted, however, by Lloyds and other marine agencies here.

The meagerly worded wireless dispatches from Captain Barr of the Carmania told a dramatic story. Taken Off After Daybreak,

All those remaining on board the Volturno crowded together at the after end of the vessel and were taken off safely after daybreak Friday.

Second Officer E. Lloyd of the Volturno was one of the heroes of the disaster. He fell from a height of 20 feet while repairing the wireless apparatus on his vessel, but continued to fight the fire all day, and at seven SIX LOSE LIVES IN RIVER

The greater part of the contents of this had already become history. The fire on the Volturno appears to have originated in her cargo hold. When it became evident that the flames had gained the mastery Captain Francis Inch devoted all his energy to the salvation of his passengers. The Carmania's bulletin says that six small boats were launched from the Volturno, that two of them, with 35 persons each on board, got away and that the other four were smashed against the ship's side and all their occupants perished.

Last Message Is Dramatic.

London, Oct. 14 .- The last message received by the Carmania from the commander of the doomed steamship Volturno before he abandoned the burning vessel was as follows:

"Cannot something be done to help us? We must abandon the ship. Her plates are buckling. Stand close, as I may have to jump for it."

Captain Francis Inch handed this to the wireless operator of the Volturno just before the was driven out of his Comiskey Park, Chicago, Oct. 14 .---For the fourth time Comiskey's White Sox made themselves the undisputed champion baseball players of the city of Chicago. They settled the last dispute concerning the question made by Manager Evers and his ball players. The argument was not a particularly lively one-until the ninth inning. At this stage the Cubs had one run and the Sox had five. The rally for which the West-side cohorta had been rooting all during the sad, woeful afternoon came. Scott wabbled for a couple of hopeful moments and the ancient Cub machine creaked and groaned and got under way. The result was another tally, which made the final count 5 to 2.

Hog Cholera Costs State $1,000,000.

Hog cholera, which for weeks has been ravaging Michigan's pig population, has cost the state's farmers fully $1,000,000 since it became epidemic, according to Prof. Ward Giltner of I. A. C. He made the estimate in response to a query from the Louisiana department of agriculture. The cholera, Professor Giltner asserted, has killed off great numbers of hogs in at least half the counties in the state.

The continued spread of the epidemic, Professor Giltner claims, is attributable to the failure by the farmers of the state to learn the lesson of sanitation. They trot back and forth from the healthy pens to the infected herds, he said, and so carry the illness from farm to farm. He advises that sick herds be quarantined and dead bodies cremated.

The M. A. C. man, who, as head of the college department of bacteriology, has been leading the fight against hog cholera, places the number of pigs in Michigan at 1,300,000.

"The statement given out at Lansing was to the effest that, provided that the average rate of production during the last five years be maintained during the next fifteen years, that all of the mineable coal now developed in the counties of Bay and Saginaw will be exhausted, unless in the meantime new coal beds, which are known, are developed. This statement is mathematically correct. Of course the total supply of coal in the Michigan basin is so great that it is hardly worth while to estimate it. "So far as the quantity of coal is concerned, Michigan could mine coal indefinitely at the present rate. Under present conditions, however, coal beds less than thirty inches thick cannot be mined at a profit. This condition for the present eliminates an enormous quantity-indeed a greater part of Michigan coal-for the bulk of it, as shown by actual drilling, is in beds too thin to be mined under present conditions. No one in the world has information on which to base a correct estimate of the total coal in the Michigan basin. We do know, however, as stated above, that the total luncheon at her residence on Sixth supply is very large and in any event will not be exhausted for many gen-

New Yorkers Made Heart-Breaking Effort to Save the Day, But Could Not Overcome Lead of the Philadelphia Lads-Score 3 to 1.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 13 .-The Athletics won the final game of the world series by the score of 3 to 1, after a heartbreaking effort on the part of the Giants to stem the tide. Plank for the Philadelphia team did noble work, while Mathewson played the game of his life, but could not save the day for his team.

The Philadelphians thus become the champions of the world and incidentally get the largest share of the gate receipts from the five games which it took to settle the contest, the Phillies winning four, the Giants one.

Score 3 to 0 in Fifth.

The Athletics found Mathewson for one run in the first inning and grabbed two more in the third, making the score stand at the end of the fourth inning 3 to 0 in favor of the Phillies. In the fifth inning the Giants scored of the New York "bugs" for a successful outcome for their team ere the game ended.

First Inning.

Philadelphia-Murphy singled on first ball pitched. Oldring forced Murphy, Matty to Doyle. Collins singled to right, Oldring going to third. Baker flied to Burns. Oldring scored. Baker credited with sacrifice. Collins out when McInnis hit to Herzog, who threw to Fletcher, who threw to Doyle, putting out Collins. One run; two hits, one error.

Soule of Grand Haven has foreclosed a mortgage of $12,000 which he held upon it. Mrs. Dowle has sold most of the furniture to meet expenses.

Calumet .--- Two more arrests, making six in connection with the shooting of James Pollock, Jr., a deputy sheriff, at Hurontown, were made. When deputies were making arrests they were stoned by strikers and it was necessary to call out the cavalrymen, who charged the mob with drawn sabers.

Pontiac .- Francis Murphy has arrived from the north of Ireland to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy, of West Oxford, whom he has not seen for 26 years. They departed from Ireland when he was a year old, leaving him in care of relatives. He will return to school in Ireland, but will later come to Oxford to reside.

Battle Creek .-- Police were notified that Lewis Wesley, colored, brought here from Omaha, Neb., with a bullet hole in his cheek and another through his heart, shot himself after being shot by the police while attempting a burglary. When his body was sent here the death certificate said homicide in one place and suicide in another. Traverse City .- The fifty-first annual meeting of the Grand Traverse Association of Congregational churches was held in Omena and practically every church in the district is represented. Dr. W. J. Why does the man with a four cylinder car always wear six cylinder goggles?

Confederate money turns up now and then; the American embassy in London was asked to cash five thousand dollars of it the other day. There are times when any kind of dough looks good.

Have you noticed how business men will cheerfully pay a garage man 60 cents per hour to have some boy getting $3.00 per week, monkey with an automobile? But the same men will go right up in the air if a printer asks 90 cents per hour for his time and the services of a several thousand dollar plant.

The Central Paper company at Nogi, Mackinac county, is pursuing its operations with unabated activity. It has five camps and two jobbers in the woods and the mill is running full time. An electric light plant has been installed. It supplies the mill and offices.

The Sagola Lumber company has the largest acreage of cultivated lands in the Sagola district. From 225 acres the company has harvested this year 300 tons of hay, 5,000 bushels of oats and 3,000 bushels of potatoes. Twenty acres of the cleared land is used for pasture.

The seats in the Grand theater at St. Ignace are being securely fastened to the floor. The first warning given the proprietors by the state fire marshal was not heeded and on his second trip last week he caused the arrest of the managers of the house and Justice Reagan imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

Paul Opitz, of Haley, Alger county recently killed five wolves, says the Munising News, and secured the bounty. Asa Helmer, of Mathias township, recently killed two wolves. Surely the "varmints" are losing their cunning or perhaps they are increasing so fast that they have to take long chances to satisfy their ravenous appetites.

The Morgan Lumber & Cedar company, operator of the lumber plant at Foster City, is preparing for its usual active campaign in the woods. The company will operate two camps and will employ sixty-five men in each. In addition to the usual input of posts, poles, ties and other small stuff, the company expects to cut about 8,000,000 feet of pine, hemlock, maple, elm and and basswood logs. Much of the timber will be hauled directly to the mill by the company's road locomotive.

At Foster City, one of the noticeable improvements made latterly is the erection of a cow barn for the Morgan Lumber & Cedar company. The barn is thirty-six feet wile and 108 feet long, with eighteen foot posts and a gambrel roof. It is equipped with the James sanitary stalls, stanchions and mangers. There are four box stalls. The floor of the barn is concrete, with cork brick litter carriers. In one end of the barn there are two sixty-ton silos, twelve feet in diameter and thirty feet high. The The estimated cost of the barn is $5,000; it was built by Oscar Clow, of Winneconne. Wis. The barn is the most up-to-date building of the kind in Dickinson county.

SQUIRRELS SCARCE

The scarcity of squirrels in the upper peninsula is noticeable this season. The little animals seem to be almost extinct. One may tramp the woods all day and hear no chatter of the frisky rodents or see evidence of their feeding. A year ago squirrels were unusually plentiful, and the towns were literally overrun with them. Nuts and acorns were scarce; in fact, there was but little natural food in the woods and they went to town by scores and remained until snow began to fall, when they disappeared. It is believed that, having no food stored for the winter, and none to store or live upon, the animals starved to death. It is thought probable that, had they sought other fields for the winter, they would have returned to their old homes in the spring, but this was not the case. Many persons who have spent considerable time in the woods the past summer report that Hazel nuts and acorns were plentiful the past season, but they have not been touched by squirrels, and the boys have seldom had an opportunity of doing before. The ground beneath oaks were | in. literally covered with acorns, but they remained untouched by squirrels. It is certainly a queer condition of things

The outlook for the winter is not at all hopeful in the auto industry and auto builders are feeling decidedly blue.

The force employed by the state in making a survey of Mackinac island has finished the field work. It will take at least two weeks longer before the notes are completed. There have been several surveys and maps made of the island in the past, none of which have been accurate. The new map will be of great help to the state park commission in formulating plans for the improvements contemplated the coming year.

When near Reed city, Dr. Reuben Rath's automobile turned turtle, after a front wheel had broken while he was returning from a hunting expedition, near Luther; he was pinned under the car and lay unconscious. A stranger drove up, tried to lift the machine, failed, helped himself to the doctor's "roll" $40, and drove on to get help with it, he said. Neither the stranger nor the $40 has been seen since. Dr. Rath was released later, slightly bruised.

Work on the construction of a club room and bowling alley is in progress at Pequaming. Charles S. RUBBING IT IN Jacobs Bros. had it rubbed in on them by a young Polish girl this week in a manner they will not forget says the Crystal Falls Diamond Drill.

The girl entered the store early in the day and asked to see some pocket books. She selected one and then asked to see some neck pins after considerable examination she finally selected a pin and the watchmaker, who was waiting on the young lady, took the pin and put it in one of the pasteboard boxes which the firm keeps to send out their wares in. The box had the name of the firm on the cover.

Later in the day Mr. Sam Jacobs went to the post office after his mail and found in his post office box the identical box that his clerk had given the young lady earlier in the morning. On opening the box the card on which the the pin she purchased was mounted was found, the pin missing. Under it was another card also used to mount a pin but not purchased by her, was concealed. The girl had taken off the pins then sent the box back to the firm to let them know how easy they were. She had nipped the second pin at some time during the inspection operations.

N CAMP WITH THE MEXICAN REBELS

HE junta at El Paso agreed that a visit to the camp of Colonel Torribio Ortega and an interview with that Constitutionalist commander would be a very good thing for the cause. When it came to delivering a passport and letter which would take the party past outposts, that was another matter. They were willing to do it, but always tomorrow

'If we let them guys manana us we'll never get there," commented Scotty. "They know they are going to give us those papers, but they hate to get down to work. There is only one way to make them get busy and I'm going to use it."

'The only way'' meant cheerful, patient, persistent attendance on the junta morning, noon and night until finally, late one evening, after the last prondse to have it ready the following morning at "tsin o'clock" had been brushed aside, the passport was prepared with great mystery, duly sealed, elaborately addressed and ceremoniously handed over. Before the following daybreak the automobile was streaking down some of the best country road in the United States bound for somewhere around Guadaloupe, a little town something like forty miles distant on the Mexican side

Locke, the owner of the car, and Jim, the chauffeur, were in front. Locke held the wheel on the country road, but later Jim would take the gasoline bridge. Jim would have been the working mate of Hit Carson, old man Bridger or some of the other giants of pioneer days if he had been a man fifty years ago. Now he is a border chauffeur, able to drive a car any place a goat can climb and willing to go anywhere into the seething interior of Mexico for his price.

"This ought to be a cinch today." Jim said. "We'll get through a humming if we don't run into a bunch of Salazar's men from Juarez out scouting, and they're bad hombres, or some of Castillo's bandits. Split out your passes and don't shove the wrong ones; let me do the talking.

and at the first turn two khaki-clad young cavalrymen with six-shooters strapped to the right hip stepped forth with uplifted hands. Uncle Sam is making an earnest effort to keep down the smuggling of contraband across the border and for that purpose has thrown his soldiers along the international boundary. Inasmuch as the soldiers not only have both factions of Mexicans against them, but the American business sentiment as well, the thing is somewhat in the nature of a farce.

These young cavalrymen, however, were doing their duty as best they could and they wanted to know who, what, where, etc. They were told. duly scrutinized an official pass from the military authorities and took a look through the automobile. Cartridges, like blessings, come and go unawares and they were not taking a chance. Just a little later at what was once an international bridge six more soldiers headed by a sergeant tumbled out of the underbrush and from under the abutments and cried "Halt!"

"Sorry, you know," said the sergeant crisply as he went through the car with the definess of a customs inspector, "but we've got to do it. Have you an extra morning paper with you? Hey, Murphy, I win that bet! ' Washington did trim the Athletics."

The river ceased at this point to be the international line because whenever the irrigation will let her have a little water she gets even by finding new channels, cutting across lots and slicing up territory to give a boundary commission a nice summer job. In this particular instance she had sliced into the United States a mile or more, which threw the line a mile or two on the south side of the river, in a low lying flat land, which occasional floods have filled with willows, cottonwoods and dense undergrowth. It is a great point for smugglers.

Just at the end of that mile the fairly good road ended abruptly. Shifting sand, overgrown trails and desolation succeeded. It was as if the car had been dropped suddenly into a far distant country, unsettled and practically unexplored.

Just a mile to the north there has been a hard scientific road passing through farm land brought to the highest point of development. The fields were fragrant with growing, flowering alfalfa, kafir corn, milo maize, fruits and melons. The houses were pretty bungalows or modern concrete dwellings. There were men at work in the fields and their mules and horses were sleek and well cared for. Windmills were drawing water from wells where the gasoline pump was not used. It was all happy, all busy, all prosperous.

Over here the country was stricken. Land just as good as any in the world lay fallow, overgrown with brush.

We ought to pick up an outpost about now,' called back Jim finally. "Look out!"

As he spoke there came from the mesquite covered side of a mesa a single sharp detonating report and something sang by in the air above like a large humming top.

"Sit still unless it's one of the Castillo bunch." came the command; if it is, jump for the mesquite.'

Around the edge of the mesa came a horseman with his pony on a dead run, a Winchester swung in one hand, his Mexican sombrero fluttering.

"Rebel," was the decision. "It's all right; get out the junta letter."

The outpost had said that the way to Ortega was straight ahead and turn to the left a' a big washout. He raced back to the position he had been in, and off to the right presently another man was seen signaling with a zarape. It was a friendly service, for thereafter there were no shots, although horsemen rode near to the automobile.

Guadaloupe was once a town of about 1,500 inhabitants, a bustling, thriving little community with many characteristics borrowed from over the line. The principal street had several ambitious stores. There was a bank and a telegraph office and the houses of the better class were commodious, of plastered adobe, with patios filled with flower beds. The rooms in some cases were decorated and the furniture imported.

Ortega, commander of the thousand or so men, occupied what was once the principal dwelling of the town, a pretentious Spanish home.

This happened to be the day before Ortega broke camp, hoping to join Pancho Villa in an attempt to capture federal trains carrying 2.000.-000 pesos and $80,000 worth of provisions to Chihuahua. Therefore the camp presented a busy scene. The only person who did not seem to be concerned was Ortega himself, who was propped up on a cot reading a novel.

Ortega does not talk much. His answers that day were very brief. He was fighting for the constillion, which had been set aside by the Huerta government after the assassination of President Madero. He would fight until constitutional government was restored or he was killed. Intervention? He did not fear it because he believed in the good faith of the United States. Mediation or arbitration? He would never consent to either. Arbitration or mediation, any dealings whatever with the administration of Huerta, would amount to a recognition of its status. That would never be done.

Peace was not impossible in Mexico, but could come in only one way, and that was the withdrawal of Huerta and his friends. A provisional president must be chosen according to the constitution, some man who had not connected himself with Huerta and had not connived at the assassination. Seek out the man who would have been president according to law if Madero and Suarez had died naturally and install him in office. If that were impossible, let Venustiano Carranza be president until an election could be held. Personally Ortega thought General Trevino or Dr. Gomez might do. but not Huerta or De la Barra or Diaz or any man of that kind.

He was well satisfied with the progress of the revolution. The Constitutionalists occupied and dominated the greater part of the country and if the embargo on munitions of war were repealed they would drive the federals out of the field in ninety days. He had about 1,300 men. well armed, plenty of ammunition and plenty of food. He was to march away very soon to join Villa. What the plans were he could not say, but a decisive blow would be struck. He would say nothing further, and in the meantime dinner was ready.

Ortega's staff occupied the large house exclusively. His real staff consisted of about six men, but as is usual there were as many more honorary members. The honorary revolutionist is prevalent in Mexico. He is always to be seen until just before a battle, when he fluds a mission for himself elsewhere.

There was plenty to est at the dinner, meat, rice, of course beans, tortillas, coffee with sugar and a particular kind of goat's milk cheese much fancied by the people. After it was over Ortega turned to an inspection of his arms and ammunition, of which he appeared to have a large supply, and after the interpreter had been induced to forego another oration an idea was gained of the life of the rebel. dered that it is surprising how well

BUSINESS OF DAIRYING PAYS

Time That Dairymen Took Hold of Matter to Raise the Standard of Dairy Intelligence.

(By S. VAN AKEN.)

There is a sentiment abroad that dairying is becoming unpopular with many, and there is less inclination among young men to engage in it. If this be so, it is time dairymen took hold of this matter to raise the standard of dairy intelligence and education up to the point where it will be popular. #### The Ideal One Is a Mild Laxative-Tonic That Will Keep the Bowels Gently Active.

Healthy old age is so absolutely dependent upon the condition of the bowels that great care should be taken to see that they act regularly. A FOOD DRINK Which Brings Daily Enjoyment.

A lady doctor writes:

Though busy hourly with my own affairs, I will not deny myself the pleas-ure of taking a few minutes to tell of my enjoyment daily obtained from my morning cup of Postum. It is a food beverage, not an irritant like coffee.

"I began to use Postum 8 years ago, not because I wanted to, but because coffee, which I dearly loved, made my nights long, weary periods to be dreaded and unfitting me for business during the day.

"On advice of a friend, I first tried Postum, making it carefully as suggested on the package. As I had always used 'cream and no sugar.' mixed my Postum so. It looked good, was clear and fragrant, and it was a pleasure to see the cream color it as my Kentucky friend wanted her coffee to look-'like a new saddle.'

"Then I tasted it critically, for I had tried many 'substitutes' for coffee. I was pleased, yes, satisfied with my Postum in taste and effect, and am yet, being a constant user of it all these years. I continually assure my friends and acquaintances that they will like it in place of coffee, and receive benefit from its use. I have gained weight, can sleep and am not nervous." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for the little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

Postum comes in two forms: Regular Postum-must be well poiled

Instant Postum is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. Grocers sell both kinds. "There's a reason" for Postum.

Religion and Etymology. Mr. Crawford declares that the African mind is fitted to grasp the principles of Christianity with remarkable quickness, strength and accuracy. "Can they appreciate the doctrine of the Trinity?" I asked. He smiled. 'Everything in their thought and observation exists in threes. They are Hegelians, and do not know it. Thesis, antithesis, synthesis-they find it everywhere. Hegel did not know he was a Trinitarian. The African takes to the doctrine as to something he has always known."

"The Atonement?" "Their language and their thought are full of it. They have many proverbs like this: 'Ne blood, no blosom.'" Then he made one of his amazing plunges into etymology. "You see, even in English, they are all the same word: 'Blood, bloom, blossom.' "

Not only can the African grasp Christianity, but they express it most forcefully and beautifully. For instance this, from the lips of one of our young converts recently: "God allowed sin to unmask itself in the murder of his Son."-Christian Herald.

Twelfth Century Football.

In the twelfth century football was a game for the streets. The chronicler of that period tells how after dinner the city youths "addressed thenselves to football," and how the scholars of each school and the apprentices of particular trades would each have their peculiar ball. There were spectators, too, in those daysenthusiastic spectators. Fathers would come to watch their sons and 'become as youthful as the youngest, their natural heat seeming to be revived at the sight of so much ability."

In later years one recalls a famous ball game played in Hyde Park. In 1654, then, "there was a hurling of a great ball by fifty Cornish gentlemen of one side and fifty on the other; one party played in red caps, the other in white." And-here the historical value of the contest-Cromwell was a spectator and applauded the "great agility of body" displayed.

The latest French institution of the kind is the "League for the Suppression of Bandstands," which has just been established. #### Gretna Green Ceremony.

A young couple who arrived at Berwick the other Sunday were married after the Scottish fashion in a delightfully simple way

They drove over the border into Scotland, and stopping at a spot where two men were seated, the young man said that he and the lady wished to be married and that they could not adopt the conventional method, as it would be stopped directly the banns were put up.

The couple then formally took each other for man and wife before the two witnesses, and a document to that effect was produced and signed by the parties and the witnesses.

PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

1413 E. Genessee Ave., Saginaw, Mich .- "Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me of a very bad disease of the face without leaving a scar. Pimples broke out all over my face, red and large. They festered and came to a head. They itched and burned and caused me to scratch them and make sores. They said they were seed warts. At night I was restless from itching. When the barber would shave me my face would bleed terribly. Then scabs would form afterwards, then they would drop off and the so-called seed warts would come back again. They were on my face for about nine months and the trouble caused disfigurement while it lasted.

"One day I read in the paper of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I received a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it was so much value to me that I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment at the drug store. I used both according to directions. In about ten days my face began to heal up. My face is now clear of the warts and not a scar is left." (Signed) LeRoy C. O'Brien, May 12, 1913.
