WASHINGTON (AP) - House wings of Rep. Adam C. Powell,

Democrat from New York. They want to see $200,000 cut from the budget of his House Committee on Education and Labor, and a code of ethics established in Congress to curb his nightclubbing in foreign capitals.

Seven GOP members joined in the latest attack on Powell, taking the House floor Tuesday to criticize his travels, the spending of his committee, and the granting of $250,000 in federal funds for a juvenile delinquency project in his Harlem congressional district.

The attack on Powell was launched by Rep. John H. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, a member of Powell's committee.

President's Tax Program

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON - Within one month pretty fast for a retreat-President Kennedy not only has shifted ground on his plan to cut and reform taxes but became willing to abandon part of it, the "reform" part.

In his tax-plan message to Congress Jan. 24 Kennedy emphasized this point throughout: Lower taxes would stimulate the economy by giving consumers more money to spend and business more to invest.

Gloomier Reason Given

Never once in that long message did he suggest he feared another recession unless the economy got a shot-in-the-arm. But as criticism of his plan piled up he suddenly gave a gloomier reason for a tax reduction. At his news conference last week he threw in this new element: fear of recession unless the economy got the stimulant he proposed. He said: "What I am most concerned about is the prospect of another recession."

Some of the steam must have been taken out of him by the way opposition to his plan -various parts of it-mounted since Jan. 24. Unusual Running Mates

Last fall the AFL-CIO, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers-an unusual group of runningmates under any conditions-all came out in favor of tax reduction.

But when they got a look this year at what Kennedy had in mind the two business groups parted company with the AFL-CIO and all three parted company with the President.

They weren't the only ones complaining. Some college professors, professional economists, business organizations and even groups of retired people found fault with different parts of the program and for different rea-

Reaction Hardly Enthusiastic

Worse than that perhaps-for Kennedythe reaction of his own leaders in Congress could hardly be called enthusiastic although they loyally said they'd do their best.

To make things still worse, Kennedy backed a maneuver which was intended to grease the way for his plan in Congress only to see it collapse in complete defeat. This is what happened there.

Sen. Harry Byrd, D-Va., who takes a dim view of any tax cuts unless government spending is cut-and Kennedy wasn't cutting this year-is chairman of the conservative Finance Committee which will handle the meas-

Move To Enlarge Committee

Kennedy and his advisers thought, if they could just get the committee enlarged to make room for two Democrats favorable to him, they could overcome any bottlenecks. It was a feeble effort and they didn't make it.

This is what Kennedy proposed in January2 Over a three-year period cut taxes for individuals and business a total of $13.6 billion and then, by making a number of changes in the law-Kennedy calls such changes "reforms" — the government would collect $3.4 billion it isn't collecting now.

Thus the total loss in revenue through the tax reductions would be $10.3 billion spread over three years. Kennedy figured the government would more than make up for that through increased spending and the creating of more jobs

Thought Medicine Too Weak

But the NAM and the chamber of commerce protested Kennedy's plan would give consumers too much of a break and business not enough. The AFL-CIO took a far different view

It argued Kennedy's medicine wasn't strong enough. It wants the $10-billion cut he planned for three years condensed into one big $10-billion cut in one year.

It might be argued that Kennedy, knowing now much opposition he would face on his tax plan, decided for political reasons to lump cuts and "reforms" together so that if the going got too fough he could compromise by insisting on the cut while yielding on the reforms.

More Likely Explanation

But it doesn't look like that. He expressed willingness Monday-far too early for a showdown or need of compromise-to forget about the reform part of his plan.

This seems a more likely explanation: That the combined plan wasn't well thought out by him and his advisers and he is now painfully beginning to realize it.

Unquestionably many people share New Jersey Sen. Case's distate for political campaigners who use their claims to influence as one of their main platforms. As Mr. Case observes, during the last Congressional campaign not a few candidates openly asserted that if elected they could do a better job than their opponents in influencing government defense agencies to direct business to constituents.

But not everybody may share the senator's confidence in the way he proposes to cope with such campaign promises or subsequent influence-wielding. Mr. Case says he plans to introduce legislation to require putting "in the public record" any statement directed to the Defense Department or space agency by a political candidate, Congressman, a member of the executive branch or anybody else.

Now it hasn't been made clear just how that could be achieved, but the senator says 'if everybody can know ho is trying to pull wires," public opinion will act as a "corrective." Perhaps, but that's somthing like trying to legislate morality. A new law can't do much for candidates who have such poor taste, or for voters who refuse to express their distate at the ballot box .- Wall Street Journal.

RARE STAMP

France is about to make its bid for an independent rocket-mail striking force with an experimental shot on the Riviera this spring. The United States is still trying to improve its automated post office and facsimile mail transportation system. But such modernity has not wiped out all the cherished eccentricities of the posts.

We present in evidence a stamped message found on the wrapping of a newspaper belatedly reaching us from the Midwest. It read: "Found in Supposedly Empty Equipment."

Apparently this is a frequent enough occurrence to require a rubber stamp. Just as well. In future there will be supposedly empty rockets to find lost mail in. -Christian Science Monitor.

Like the Marquette Range, dras-tic reductions have been recommended for mining property valuations in Gogebic and Iron Counties by Harry J. Hardenberg, state geologist.

In Gogebic. the reduction amounts to $7,317,500-from $12,-802,500 last year to $5,485,000 in 1963. In addition to valuation slashes for active and reserve properties, several have been returned to local governing units for assessment purposes, including the Sunday Lake group which last year was valued at $1,815,000.

The assessment table is a bit more complex for Iron County, since the State Tax Commission entered the picture to lower Hardenberg's figures last year following mining company protests. The the tax commission to $22,876,800 Hardenberg's recommended valuations for this year amount to $24,043,000.

While that figure is down $4,-237,000 from his 1962 assessments, it is an increase of $2,156,200 over the State Tax Commission valuations allowed last December.
