Pro-Castro Terrorists Wound Five In Caracas; Thousands Defy Threats

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Castroite terrorists wounded five pedestrians, burned three buses, scattered tanks in the streets and blew up a gas line today in their effort to scare voters away from Sunday's presidential election.

Leaflets strewn about Caracas by the Armed Forces for National Liberation (FALN), an underground terrorist organization, warned the city's population of 1.5 million to stay indoors until Monday or face the possibility of being shot.

Gun battles between FALN bands and police broke out in slum districts but traffic in the downtown area of Caracas was only slightly less than normal.

Street cleaning vehicles roamed about the city scooping up tanks thrown down by terrorists in an attempt to keep motorists home.

Workmen, meanwhile, restored power to the southern edge of the city where saboteurs bombed two electrical substations Friday night.

One policeman in a patrol car was wounded by snipers firing from ambush.

Elsewhere, 23 bombs exploded or were detected during the night in the city of Coro, capital of guerrilla-plagued Falcon state. Police reported only slight damages.

Despite the threats of the FALN, thousands of Venezuelans followed campaign caravans around Caracas early today in defiance of the threats of violence.

The seven presidential candidates campaigned right up to the midnight deadline. One of them will succeed President Romulo Betancourt.

Charge The FALN is trying to frighten the population from voting and thus gain a legal basis for declaring the election invalid.

Venezuelans paid little attention to the threats. Still ringing in the voters' ears was Betancourt's charge that Fidel Castro's Cuba had committed aggression against Venezuela by supplying the FALN with over three tons of arms.

Betancourt is constitutionally prevented from succeeding himself, but the candidate of his Democratic Action party, Raul

Leoni, is believed a sure winner. The FALN continued holding Col. James K. Chenault, deputy chief of the U.S. military mission, and threatened to harm him unless the government releases 71 terrorists.

Some of Santa's rules, of course, are self-imposed — such as: don't make scary faces at the kiddies.

Michigan May Name Stretch Of Highway After Late President

LANSING (AP) — If an idea being discussed by Detroit and state officials jells, a stretch of highway in Michigan may be named in memory of John F. Kennedy.

Highway Commissioner John Mackie revealed that he, Detroit Council President Ed Cary, and Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski had discussed the possibility "very informally."

Mackie's office said the discussion centered on either I-94 from Detroit to Port Huron or I-96 from Detroit to Muskegon.

PENNSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Frank B. Dietz has voluntarily turned in his driver's license, saying his reflexes "just aren't what they used to be."

Dietz is 92 years old. He said he has driven 50 years without an accident.

State Finds Botulism In Dead Birds

LANSING (AP) — Type E botulism, the deadly poison which has thrown Michigan's fish industry into a crisis, has been found in some of the thousands of sea bird carcasses which have fallen recently on Lake Michigan's shores.

"This does not prove the gulls died of botulism but it does confirm the presence of the causative organism in the area," said Michigan State University Prof. Oliver Kaufmann, who has spent the past six years in botulism research.

A spokesman for the fish industry condemned the research report and demanded a retraction.

Sam Wexler, president of the Detroit Wholesale Fish Dealers Association, said in Detroit the report would only cause harm to the industry.

"Somebody is going to have to retract this," Wexler said. "We are getting very, very sick and tired about these statements."

Kaufmann stressed the research establishes no casual connection between fish and the gulls, and said fish properly stored and cooked "is a safe product."

Fish-eating birds — seagulls, grebes, loons and herons — have been struck down by an unknown killer.

The Chicago Academy of Science reported two weeks ago 5,000 carcasses were found on beaches from New Buffalo, Mich., to Gary, Ind. and dead birds are reported as far north as Charlevoix, Mich.

Kaufmann and Dr. Dale Fay, a pathologist with the Conservation Department, Friday released results of their toxicity tests.

"Nine of the 12 examined bird specimens contained doses of toxin lethal to laboratory mice. Further tests using specific anti-serum for clostridium botulism Type E came out positive for five of nine specimens," their report said.

May Be In Bird Kaufmann said one of the bird carcasses containing Type E botulism was that of a loon, a species which does not eat dead matter.

"The implication is that ingestion of some living form of material might be involved," he said. "The organism is present along the shoreline somewhere."

Johnson Appoints Panel To Probe Assassination

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has named a top-level panel to investigate the assassination of President John F. Kennedy so that the nation, the Pallo Alto, Calif. (AP) — A newspaper proposed today that the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy be given a regular trial — even though he is dead — to bring out all facts in the case.

The afternoon Palo Alto Times noted in an editorial that Lee Harvey Oswald, accused of shooting Kennedy, must be presumed innocent until proved guilty.

world and history will know the facts.

That was Johnson's mandate to the special presidential commission named Friday night. He chose Chief Justice Earl Warren to head it.

Johnson was understood to be determined to avoid multiple inquiries that could cloud the facts about the murder of Kennedy in Dallas a week ago Friday and the shooting two days later of the man police charged with killing the President.

Others The new President said he had chosen the commission "to study and report upon all facts and circumstances relating to the assassination of the late President John F. Kennedy and the subsequent violent death of the man charged with the assassination."

In addition to Warren, Johnson named these six to the commission: Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga.; Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky.; Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La.; Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.; former Central Intelligence Agency Director Allen W. Dulles, and onetime disarmament negotiator John J. McCloy.

Canadians Suffer Worst Air Disaster

STE. THERESE DE BLAINVILLE, Que. (AP) — Workers toiled in clinging mud over a quarter-mile area today to recover the bodies of 118 persons killed in Canada's worst aviation disaster, the crash of a Trans-Canada Air Lines DC8 jet.

The big U.S.-built plane, in service only 10 months, caught fire and plunged to earth Friday night just four minutes after taking off in heavy rain and high wind from Montreal's Dorval Airport for a 300-mile flight to Toronto.

No Survivors There were no survivors. It was the world's second worst single plane tragedy.

Witnesses said the plane exploded, but disagreed as to whether the blast came while it was still airborne or after it plowed into the ground outside Ste. Therese de Blainville, a factory town 20 miles north of Montreal.

Troops Called Out Troops were called out to guard the wreckage. Hastily erected lights gave an eerie aspect through the night to shattered bodies, half-buried personal possessions and broken remains of the airliner.

Dawn broke gray and rainy. Two of the victims had American connections. They were Ronald Kerne, about 28, a fur buyer from Brooklyn, N.Y., and Mrs. Sari Hankovskiy, 40, Hungarian — born part owner of a Toronto dress factory and wife of a New York chef.

Mrs. Hankovskiy's husband, Zoltan, works as a chef on a Sands Point, Long Island, estate. They have a son Zoltan Jr., a student at Denver University.

Brooklyn neighbors of Kerne said his wife Renee and their only child Jeffrey, 7, were spending the Thanksgiving holidays with relatives in Washington.

One man, N. Master, was reputed to have connections in Bombay, India.

All of the seven-member crew and the rest of the passengers were Canadians. The pilot was Capt. Jack D. Snider, 47, of Toronto, a veteran of World War II service with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Among the Canadians killed was Don Hudson, supervising producer of light entertainment for the Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

Also killed was Charlie Stone of Montreal, a former co-owner of the Montreal Alouettes in Canada's Eastern Football Conference.

Another sports figure who perished was Joseph C. King, a football star at the University of Western Ontario in the early 1940s and a top hockey player.

In Montreal, a dozen persons missed the flight because of traffic congestion.

Rescuers began searching for bodies this morning. Bodies and wreckage were strewn over at least a quarter-mile.

No Question Of Sabotage Airline officials expressed doubt about determining the cause of the crash by the usual piece-by-piece reconstruction of the plane. The government immediately ordered an investigation.

A Trans-Canada spokesman said there was no question of sabotage.

The worst single civilian plane crash occurred in Paris in June 1962 when an Air France jet went down, killing 130 persons, 121 of them Americans.

CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN

The President signed an executive order authorizing the commission to subpoena witnesses and granting it other powers it might need to investigate.

Johnson talked with each member of the commission before announcing its creation.

Relations between the two men were always good. They seem to be on the same wavelength, as Rusk's associates explain it.

Tangible Reason There is probably no completely satisfactory explanation for why two men have confidence in each other.

But there was one tangible reason for the rapport between the two. Rusk, a scholar, refused to accept the theory that the vice presidency is an office with few obligations and rights.

He believed that the vice president must be thoroughly briefed on foreign affairs to be ready to take over in an emergency.

The secretary not only advocated this theory, but did something unprecedented. He established at the State Department a separate office, headed by a foreign service officer whose title was foreign affairs aide to the vice president.

Editor, Author, Poet Rap Use Of English

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A magazine editor, an author, and a Pulitzer Prize-winning poet agree there is much to deplore in the way the English language is being used and being taught.

John Fischer, editor of Harper's told the National Council of Teachers of English that the quality of current prose is "a national disgrace" and "a function of creeping sloppiness."

Fischer told the English teachers Friday that text books now in use are "horribly dull" and "alienate students from writing and reading."

Style "Style," he said, "is looked upon as something added to, rather than an integral part of the work. Lack of style is found everywhere in our society, from cooking to repairing automobiles to writing."

Madeleine L'Engle, author of a prize-winning book for children, protested the limited vocabularies in children's books.

Limited But, she said, "the more limited our language, the more limited we are, and the more limited the literature we give our children, the more limited their capacity to respond, and in their turn, to create."

Karl Shapiro, who won a Pulitzer Prize in poetry for his post-World War II volume, "V-Letter and Other Poems," declared flatly that poetry is not an American art.

He told the council he agrees with those who say, "American poetry is very easy to discuss for the simple reason that it does not exist."

Hot-House Poetry Shapiro said, "Poetry is a European transplantation which has never really taken root with us and never will. Ours is a hot-house poetry kept alive by artificial respiration and fluorescent light."

Between 5,000 and 6,000 teachers of English from grade schools, high schools and colleges all across the country attended the council's annual convention, which ended today.

Pedestrian Mall Plan Proposed In Downtown Study

One of the most interesting proposals made in the Marquette area's "701 Study" is the recommendation to convert W. Washington St., between Front and Third Sts., into a pedestrian mall.

One Jailed, 5 Fined In Court Here

One person was sentenced to the Marquette County Jail and five others were ordered to pay a total of $115.10 in fines and costs by Municipal Judge Edward H. Dembowski yesterday.

For driving while his license was revoked, Eugene W. Jermac, 21, of 1445 Lynn St. was ordered to spend four days in the county jail.

As in all drunk driving convictions, Donnelly's operator's license will be revoked by the office of secretary of state for a period of three months to two years.

Speeding Violations
Sigrid D. Markkunen, 605 Prince St., Negaunee, paid a fine of $11.30 and $3.70 costs for driving 55 miles per hour in a 35-MPH zone and a fine of $1.30 and $3.70 costs for defective equipment.

A fine of $11.30 and $3.70 costs were paid by Kent J. Slater, Grand Rapids, for driving 80 miles per hour in a 55-MPH zone.

Car Collides With Deer In Sands Township

Minor damages resulted to a 1964 automobile in a car-deer mishap on County Road 480 in Sands Township yesterday, state police report.

The accident occurred at 6:10 p.m., six-tenths of a mile east of County Road 553.

Norman K. Baker, 21, K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base, told state police he was driving east on County Road 480 when a deer jumped in front of his car from the south side of the road.

Damages resulted to the right front and grill of the Baker car, which was driven from the scene.

Dates Changed For Great Lakes Vessel Hearings

Hearings by the Senate Commerce Committee on Senate Bill 1773, which would provide legislative relief for the distressed United States Great Lakes and domestic coastwise vessel industries, will be held in Washington on Dec. 11 and 12.

The hearings, originally scheduled for Nov. 25 and 26, were postponed because of the death of former President Kennedy.

Twelve business leaders from the Great Lakes area, including President James A. Hirschfield of the Lake Carriers' Association, will be among those presenting statements Dec. 12 in support of the bill, which was introduced by Sen. E. L. Bartlett (D., Alaska).

Stranger Just Made Himself At Home, Then Stole $3.50

CINCINNATI (AP)—Anna Bosse came home from church and found a young man sitting on the couch with his shoes off and talking on the phone. He'd fixed himself a hamburger and was drinking beer.

Mrs. Bosse, 57, said he told her not to worry—he wasn't a burglar. He was just having trouble with his wife and had no place to go.

He then asked her to fix him a cup of coffee and after she brought it, he said everything had been patched up and he was going home.

Mrs. Bosse told police she gave him 50 cents for bus fare—and then discovered he had taken $3.50 from her purse while she was fixing the coffee.

business area revitalization, experts say that, where feasible, it is the most desirable element of a modern shopping area because only with a mall is the shopper completely safe from the hazards and inconvenience of traffic.

Consultants for Villican-Leman and Associates, Inc., Southfield, which is conducting the planning study for the Marquette area, have emphasized that construction of a mall in Marquette would be foolish if provision for more off-street parking and improved accessibility to the business district were not provided first.

Villican-Leman's suggestion for a W. Washington St. mall is part of the firm's ultimate development plan for the business district, with the construction of parking structures and a service road which would replace the Front and W. Washington Sts. intersection suggested for preceding stages.

The pioneer Kalamazoo Mall, now a major national attraction, has more than paid for itself in promotional value for Kalamazoo merchants, tax value for the city and enjoyment and convenience for shoppers, Kalamazoo officials say.

Kalamazoo Advantages
In a speech before the American Municipal Congress, Kalamazoo City Manager Clarence H. Elliott pointed out:

"1. A pedestrian shopping mall is no cure-all for downtown problems. It does not get at problems of traffic congestion, parking, and obsolete buildings. But it helps.

"2. The Kalamazoo Mall development is an integral part of an overall redevelopment plan—a continuous, long-range plan.

"3. To convert a main traffic artery into a pedestrian mall would be impossible for some cities until alternate traffic arteries were built. Other cities could re-route traffic with no loss of flow or convenience. We were able to re-route traffic from our main shopping streets to two existing parallel streets and maintain a good traffic flow and circulation pattern.

Centers of Interest
"4. Malls, in effectively developed, must be promoted as centers of interest, with displays, entertainment, contests and other activities."

Elliott said that the results of the Kalamazoo Mall are hard to determine because, along with the mall development, the downtown merchants put into effect a program of cooperative promotion. However, he pointed out the following observations concerning the Kalamazoo Mall:

"1. Downtown parking lot patronage has increased approximately 14 per cent and cars stay longer in the parking lots.

"2. People tend to walk more slowly on the mall than on adjacent streets and 37 per cent of the people walking on the mall cross from one side to the other at least once while walking down one block.

"3. Sample surveys have indicated a seven to 12 per cent increase in the number of out-of-town customers using downtown charge accounts.

Fewer Store Vacancies
"4. There are fewer store vacancies and thriving new businesses are now occupying previously vacant stores. The number of vacant first floor stores in the heart of downtown decreased from eight to one during the first year after the mall was completed.

"5. Property rental rates have increased on and near the mall.

"6. Gross sales for all downtown stores for 1959, the first year after the mall was completed, increased 15 per cent. Sales both on and off the mall increased by greater percentages than the county and national averages.

"7. Twenty-one of the 58 stores on the mall have remodeled their store fronts. The total number of hotel and motel rooms in Kalamazoo jumped from 600 in 1959 to 1,500 in 1962.

"8. Many professional and service offices have relocated in remodeled office facilities in the downtown area. Three large, nearly vacant office buildings were remodeled at a cost of more than $100,000 each and are now filled to capacity.

Capital Investments Up
"9. Capital investments in the mall area have increased an average of almost a million dollars a year since the mall was constructed.

"10. The chamber of commerce had more industrial and commercial inquiries in the one year after the mall was constructed than in its 54 years prior to 1959."

"Armed with a sound overall downtown improvement plan and with a determination to cooperate, we undertook a bold first step with intensive group promotion and got results that amazed us."

Six Vehicles Damaged In 4 Accidents

Six cars were damaged and four persons were issued summonses in four traffic mishaps investigated by city police last night.

Sammy Borowiak, 17, K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base, was arrested following a mishap in which the car he was driving east came to rest in a westerly direction on the sidewalk on the south side of the 100 block on W. Spring St.

Struck Hydrant, Meter
Borowiak lost control of the car as it crossed the railroad tracks. The vehicle made a half turn, jumped the curb and struck a fire hydrant and a parking meter, police said.

Borowiak drove a block from the scene of the wreck before he was stopped by a police patrol car. He received summonses for failure to have the car under control, leaving the scene of a property damage accident, and operating a motor vehicle without a license. A passenger in the car, Meredith A. Schulz, 320 E. Kaye Ave., was ticketed for allowing an unlicensed person to operate a motor vehicle.

Extensive damages resulted to the right front fender and door and minor damages to the left front door of the vehicle.

Both vehicles were damaged when one car struck another which was struck on Wright St. at 2:10 this morning, police said.

Donald R. DeMarse, 18, of 1718 Fitch Ave. told police he was driving west on Wright St. when he lost control of his car on the snowy road. The vehicle went off the road on the left side and became stuck, the rear of the car protruding in the eastbound traffic lane.

A car being driven east on Wright St. by William D. Reese, 23, of 601 Summit St., struck the rear fender of the DeMarse car. Minor damages resulted to the right rear fender of the DeMarse car and both vehicles were driven from the scene.

DeMarse was ticketed for failure to have his vehicle under control.

At 10 p. m. yesterday, two cars were damaged in a mishap at the intersection of Maple and S. Fourth Sts.

Police said Gary L. Esmond, 18, of 859 Lakewood Lane, traveling west on Maple St., stopped his car at the intersection of Maple and Fourth Sts. and then backed his car to make room for traffic at the intersection.

Esmond backed his car into a vehicle parked on the North side of Maple St., police said. The parked car was owned by Effie M. Kiva, 117 E. Prospect St.

Damages resulted to the right rear of Esmond's vehicle and the left front fender of the parked vehicle. Both cars were driven away by the owners. Esmond was ticketed by police for improper backing.

Minor damages resulted to the front end of a vehicle which went into a ditch on Division St. at 12:30 yesterday afternoon. Police said the mishap occurred about 500 feet east of County Road 553 when the driver, Lloyd H. Norquist, 39, K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base, was negotiating a left curve on a road covered with loose snow.

The vehicle went off the right side of the roadway into a ditch and had to be removed by wrecker.

Kenton Area Has Shortest Growing Season In State

By JEAN WORTH
Journal Special Correspondent

KENTON — This Houghton County community has buttoned up its farming for the year after an unusually long growing season because of the mildest autumn in many years.

The longer-than-usual growing season was welcome in the Kenton area on M-28 between Covington and Trout Creek because geographically the area has the shortest growing season of any spot in Michigan — only 46 days.

Some residents of Kenton say it's even shorter in recent years — as little as 32 days.

This contrasts with the Banana Belt or Riviera of the Upper Peninsula in Menominee, Delta and Schoolcraft Counties, where the growing season is as much as three times as long as in Kenton.

Delta County has an average growing season of 120 days close to the Bays de Noc, Green Bay and Lake Michigan, and this is topped a bit by Menominee County to the south.

At Chatham in Alger County, where Michigan State University has its U. P. farm experiment station the growing season is 90 days, a month shorter than in the counties to the south, where most of the Peninsula's agricultural activity is concentrated.

At Humboldt in Marquette County, one of the U. P.'s frost pockets, the growing season is only 80 to 90 days.

Kenton looks enviously upon the Peninsula warmlands to the south.

"We can count on about 40 frost-free days a year, from July 1 to Aug. 15," says Lowell Patterson, assistant ranger of the Ottawa National Forest's Kenton district.

Valley Shivers
Kenton is situated 28 miles south of Lake Superior, and is shut off from the warmer winds from the lake by the Porcupine Mountains.

"The cold just seems to settle in our little valley," said one resident. "It doesn't give us a chance to grow much of anything here. It seems warm enough to us natives in the summer, but we'll admit the winters are long and cold."

The low temperature reading last winter, Patterson said, was 45 below zero.

Because of the abbreviated growing season, there are only a few small farms in the area.

Civil Defense Meeting In U.P. Dec. 6

Civil defense and civic leaders of six counties will gather in Escanaba for one day, Friday, Dec. 6, to confer on the public needs of civil defense and to hear the official government presentation of its recommendations.

The conference will start at the House of Ludington at 9 a. m. with registration for the invited conferees from Delta, Menominee, Schoolcraft, Alger, Dickinson and Marquette Counties.

Mayor Harold Vanlerbergh and Wesley Hansen, chairman of the Civil Defense Committee of the Delta County Board of Supervisors, are co-chairmen of the conference, which will be welcomed by Charles Sedquist of Wells, chairman of the county board.

Presentations by Gov. George Romney and Stewart Pittman, assistant secretary of defense, will be heard and seen on film.

Dr. Leon Weaver, Michigan State University professor, will keynote the program with an address on "Why Civil Defense?" explaining the purposes of the conference. An explanation of nuclear weapons systems, their capabilities, their limitations and what countermeasures can be taken to protect civilian populations from their threat will follow.

After a morning coffee break, Russell Jenkins of MSU will lead a discussion, Dr. Weaver will speak on civil defense in the Upper Peninsula and Richard Nicolen, deputy state director of civil defense, will outline the responsibilities of the various levels of government in civil defense and what each can do.

Richard Rinehart, president of Bay de Noc Community College, will be the luncheon speaker on U.P. participation in the civil defense program.

Marquette Fire Fighters Called Out Twice Friday

Marquette firemen were called out two times yesterday afternoon, Fire Chief John W. Myers said.

Upholstery on the front seat of a car parked in the lot just east of St. Mary's Hospital on Fisher St. was destroyed after a cigarette ignited a front seat cushion.

The car, a 1960 four-door compact, is owned by Carlos Lopez of 140 Champion St.

Three firemen responded to the call at 12:32 p.m. with the No. 4 (750-gallon) pumper. They used pressurized water to put out the blaze and returned to the station at 1 p.m.

Three firemen also were called to the home of Wynald H. Hudson at 232 W. Arch St. yesterday afternoon when smoke from a faulty chimney draft filled the home. They responded to the call at 3:10 with the No. 2 (1,000-gallon pumper) and returned to the station at 3:40 p.m. They used a smoke ejector to clear the home of smoke.

Camel Drivers Go On Strike In Egypt

CAIRO (AP)—The camel drivers of Egypt's pyramids have got the hump up and gone on strike.

The 140 camels who usually trot tourists around the ancient royal tombs and the Sphinx have been trotted off the job by their owners in protest against new government regulations that:

Require each camel to bear a license; limit the price of camel rides to 35 cents and—bitterest blow of all—ban tips.

The camel men say they don't go back to work until the regulations are dropped and the fares raised to $1 an hour.

Steamer Robert Wallace and Schooner David Wallace shown as in Chocoma Bay near Marquette on Nov. 18, 1886. The vessels were salvaged at a cost of $30,000. Photo, courtesy of John E. Keast of Marquette, appears in Earl Parsons' new book, "Stories of the Great Lakes."

Log Of David Wallace Recalls Chocoma Bay Standing In '86

(The following is a chapter entitled "The Log of the Schooner David Wallace" from a book by Earl Parsons, "Stories of the Great Lakes," which is scheduled to be published this month. Parsons lives in Canton, Ohio. Research work and writing on the U.S. Life Savers at Chocoma Bay was done by Prof. Julius F. Wolff, Jr., Duluth, Minn., who used editions of the Mining Journal as his source. — Ed.)

By EARL PARSONS

The year of 1848 saw the commercial schooner "J. T. Wing" pass Belle Isle at Detroit on her last trip down the Lakes. She was also the last commercial vessel to carry a profit on the Great Lakes had come to a close. No more would sails be seen against the sunset.

Coming generations will know little about these sturdy wooden ships and the hardy men that sailed them. At times, long after the giant steam driven freighter had laid up in a hundred ports around the Lakes for the winter months, these ships, driven by sail, continued to carry cargo until the ice forced them into ports for the winter.

Carried Four Masts

Fortunately, from the few ship's logs available we can reconstruct the story of the sailing ships of bygone days, when these small vessels carried cargo to the ports of our five Great Lakes. One such ship's log gives the day by day entry of her captain, Henry Wallace. The saga of the schooner David Wallace runs from October 1888 to Nov. 30, 1889.

The schooner David Wallace was built at Cleveland in 1882. She was a wooden vessel, 216.5 feet in length. She had a beam of 36.4 feet and her depth was 17.8 feet. She carried four masts. Her home port was Cleveland. Her captain was from Lorain, Ohio. On all her voyages, the schooner was towed by the steamer Robert Wallace, commanded by Capt. Frank H. Brown.

Encountered Vicious Gale

When still new ships, these two vessels had been involved in a colorful stranding on Lake Superior; the steamer Robert Wallace and the schooner barge David Wallace had left Duluth on Monday, Nov. 15, 1888, down bound for Buffalo. The steamer Robert Wallace was laden with 49,000 bushels of wheat and the barge was carrying 55,000 bushels of wheat. Early Wednesday morning, the two vessels encountered a vicious gale when 45 miles east of the Standard Rock. Capt. Brown turned back (presumably for shelter of Keweenaw Point or perhaps the Keweenaw Waterway). In the terrific waves and blizzard all sense of direction was lost, and at 1 o'clock on the morning of Thursday, Nov. 18, the two vessels were hurled hard aground just east of the Chocoma River, a few miles southeast of Marquette, the schooner some yards closer to the shore than the steamer.

Marquette citizens discovered the strandings at daybreak on Nov. 18, having been alerted by the distress signals of the steamer's whistle. Marquette villagers placed a yawl in a wagon and made their way to the site of the stranding. However, attempts to launch the yawl were in vain, due to the tremendous waves. Then a mortar from the local powder factory was dragged to the scene and an effort made to put a line aboard the ships. The first shot missed, and the mortar exploded on the second try.

Life Savers Summoned

In the meantime, Capt. John Frink, a tug skipper at Marquette, had realized that the local assistance would be of no avail and had telegraphed to the U.S. Life-Saving Service Station in the Keweenaw Waterway near Houghton. Capt. Albert Ocha of the Life Savers responded with his crew. The Life Savers, with the life boat and life-saving gun, were transported by tug 15 miles to Houghton, then placed aboard a special train provided by Manager Hornby of the Marquette, Houghton and Ontonagon Railway, with the crack engineer Harvey Jackson on engine 39. The special train covered the 110 miles through the deep snow in the amazing time of three hours and 10 minutes, arriving in Marquette about midnight. Meanwhile, Capt. Frink had procured sleighs and provisions, and the Life Savers were hauled to the wreck site. Launching in the darkness, they disabled the lifeboat. Then they tried lines which didn't reach. Repairing their life boat by the light of bonfires, the Life Savers made another launching attempt at daylight, Friday, Nov. 19, and in two trips took off 15 of the crew from the steamer and nine from the schooner. Fortunately, the steamer crew had taken refuge in the forecastle, out of reach of the waves, when the rest of the steamer was washed. The rescued sailors had not eaten in 36 hours, the steamer crew subsisting on parched wheat from the cargo.

The two vessels were new ships, only two years old, having cost $150,000. The Robert Wallace was insured for $80,000, and the David Wallace for $50,000. The cargoes of wheat were worth about $100,000. Salvagers, Capt. Benham and J. H. Gillette, went to work on the two vessels, which did not disintegrate despite the pounding they received, and had the two off the second week of December. However, the two ships were a $30,000 salvage item. With a similar run made in

Respiratory Diseases: Breath Shortness Could Be Signal To See Your Doctor

(This is the first in a series of articles on respiratory diseases. The series is sponsored by the Marquette County Tuberculosis Association.)

As long as you are breathing easy, you do not give a thought to it. When you do become aware of your breathing, it is usually because you are short of breath.

Shortness of breath may mean nothing or it may be a sign of something seriously wrong. It all depends upon the facts.

Short Of Breath?

You are short of breath if you are aware of labored, uncomfortable breathing. Someone who is short of breath struggles to breathe, gasps for breath.

Don't confuse shortness of breath with just rapid breathing. If you are in a hot, humid room, or you are very upset, you may breathe much faster than usual. Panting is normal in these circumstances and is not shortness of breath.

How Long Has It Lasted?

Shortness of breath may be a sign of something wrong the first time it happens, though it may last only a few minutes. However, it is more usual for shortness of breath to come on so gradually, that you do not notice it for some time.

Only when you think back over weeks or months do you realize that there has been a change in your breathing. That flights of stairs seems so much higher than it was a few months ago.

As soon as you realize that you are more short of breath than you used to be, see your doctor.

It Can Be Natural

Shortness of breath isn't always a sign that something is wrong. Sometimes shortness of breath is normal. For instance, right after setting-up exercises, mowing the lawn, shoveling snow or any heavy exertion . . . when you hurl yourself into violent exercise — tennis, swimming — after a strictly sit-down winter. (It isn't very 1887, this combined tug-railroad-sleigh trip of the U.S. Life Savers is the longest overland rescue run by the U.S. Coast Guard in Lake Superior history.

Crews Wages Listed

The Robert Wallace and the David Wallace were repaired and again sailed the lakes until in 1898 the David Wallace was chartered from her owner David Wallace for coastal trade on the Atlantic seaboard. The company was the Atlantic Transportation Co. of New York. Twenty-five or more schooners were in their fleet to engage in coal trade between Newport News, New York, Boston and other ports north of the West Virginia coal supply.

In the log of the David Wallace, which refers to her voyages on the Great Lakes from 1888 to the close of the sailing season of 1889, her captain, Henry Wallace, tells of carrying a cargo of coal from Ashtabula, Ohio, to Chicago for 55¢ per ton. His ship was also chartered to carry iron ore from Escanaba to Ashtabula for one dollar per ton. Her cargo averaged 1,451 tons and she drew 14 feet when loaded. Her crew consisted of nine men, which included her captain. The first mate was paid $65 per month, her second mate $50, her cook $45 and five seamen $40 each per month.

Special Breed Of Men

The men that manned these sailing ships must have been of a special breed, when one considers that they had very little to protect them from the piercing cold and gale winds of the northern lakes. In a heavy sea, as they rolled with their low decks, they must have shipped tons of ice water. The lakes of the northland never grow warm. The ship's officers with the changing of the watch took their place beside the seamen. It is not to be forgotten that the wheel that steered the ship was on the open deck aft.

The life of a ship's captain, even in 1889, was not a happy one. Capt. Henry Wallace has entered in his log that his vessel was attached. The log of Oct. 7, 1889, reads: "Monday Morning — we had a shower of snow last night and three of my sailors refused duty this morning and went ashore without liberty; they then came aboard a little before noon and wanted I should pay them off. I told them I would not pay them off until they had finished their trip. Then they wanted I should let them sign articles at one dollar and fifty cents per day. I told them they had signed articles once and that was enough for one trip; they then went and got their bags, and went ashore and libeled the vessel. I then had to hunt up three men to take their places. I got the schooner bonded." (The vessel was attached for wages due one seaman amounting to $8.75.)

Rode Mountainous Seas

April 20, 1889, the schooner David Wallace towed by the steamer Robert Wallace sailed light from Lorain, Ohio, to load ore at Ashland, Wis. Capt. Henry Wallace tells in his log of this voyage. On Superior the barometer dropped to 28 and five-tenths barometric pressure. A barometer reading of 28 is hurricane weather. He tells of his schooner riding mountainous seas as they lay at anchor with the steamer Robert Wallace, also at anchor. Here the schooner had part of her stern torn away.

The captain also tells us that after they had loaded ore at Ashland and had sailed to Isle Parisienne in Lake Superior, the two lines attached to the steamer Robert Wallace parted, and the schooner was being driven ashore by the heavy seas. They made mainsail and jib and worked off. The steamer Robert finally managed to get another tow behind her. Twice the schooner David Wallace hit the bottom on this trip. When she sailed to the Soo, she had 20 inches of water in her hold. The captain hired three men to help pump her out. From the Soo to Ashtabula, he tells in his daily log that they managed to keep the water under control by the use of the ship's pumps manned by four of her crew. Entering Ashtabula Harbor May 4, 1889, with a cargo of ore, the captain's only comment was, "They had stormy passage."

Anchored In Heavy Sea

On Nov. 28 of the same year, Capt. Wallace in his ship's log wrote: "They arrived at Ashtabula and while still six miles out in Lake Erie, they anchored in a heavy sea. The steamer Robert left them and went to Erie, Pa." The 29th of November they were still lying at anchor awaiting the return of their steamer. It was blowing hard now and freezing. No chance of getting into Ashtabula Harbor. However, Nov. 30, a tug came out to tow them in. The captain said, "They heaved up anchor and were towed in." Mama Juda Lighthouse spoken of in the log was located in the Detroit River. It was half way between Ecorse Shipyard and the Livingston Channel. The "Dummy" was an old lightship station where the South-east Shoal Light is now located.

Final Resting Place

On Nov. 17, 1902, the steamer Robert Wallace found her last resting place in Lake Superior, about 20 miles north-east of Duluth. The stern post broke on the old wooden freighter and she sank. She was towing the barge Ashland at the time.

The David Wallace in 1915 was owned by the New York, Ontario and Western Railway of New York City and was in the coast-wise coal trade. She foundered in a gale off Matineus, Maine, Aug. 7, 1915. The four crew members were taken off without injury.

Friends Help Widow Of Slain Policeman

TRUCKEE, Calif. (AP) — California highway patrolman Glenn W. Carlson hadn't gotten very far in building his Sierra mountain home when he was shot to death Nov. 15 by fleeing bank robbers.

Thanksgiving Day, the widow of the 33-year-old officer stood in the bare living room of the nearly completed home and said, "You just don't realize how wonderful people can be until something like this happens."

Jane Carlson and her three children — age 7, 6 and 4 — have been staying in a rented house while neighbors, friends and strangers pitched in with money, materials and labor to help finish the home.

Columnist Speaks Here On Dec. 9

Drew Pearson, widely syndicated newspaper columnist, radio and TV commentator, will be guest lecturer at Northern Michigan University Monday, Dec. 9.

Pearson had been scheduled to speak here Nov. 18. His appearance, however, was canceled due to illness. The public is invited to attend the lecture to be held at 8:15 p.m. at Kaye auditorium. There will be no admission charge.

Returned From Russia

Pearson returned recently from an extensive trip abroad which included a tour through Russia and an interview with Nikita Khrushchev. The topic of his lecture here will be "Two Days With Nikita Khrushchev."

Pearson was born in Evansville, Ind., and spent his boyhood in Swarthmore, Pa. He attended Phillips Exeter Academy and was graduated from Swarthmore College, after which he went overseas with the American Friends Service Committee to supervise the relief program in devastated Balkan villages.

His daily newspaper column, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," won the Sigma Delta Chi Distinguished Service Award in Journalism for general excellence of performance in Washington.

Miller OK'd For Engineer Registration

Raymond H. Miller, formerly of Marquette, has completed all requirements for registration as a professional engineer in Michigan.

Miller, who for a number of years was maintenance engineer for the Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railroad Co., completed all the requirements after taking a 16-hour written examination at Michigan College of Mining and Technology, Houghton.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller, reside at 1915 Neidhart Ave.

Employed Near Chicago

Miller is present employed as operations manager for Matisa Railroad Inc., Chicago Heights, Ill., a firm based in Switzerland, whose primary function is to prepare continuous welded rail for railroads throughout the world.

Plants supervised by Miller currently weld rail for six railroads from New England to the south and southwest.

Miller and his family reside at 106 Well St., Park Forest, Ill., a suburb of Chicago.

Active In Marquette

He is currently active in three international railroad engineering professional societies, and is a past director of one. He has also authored several committee reports for annual meetings.

While in Marquette, Miller was president of the Marquette Range Engineer's Club, first vice president of the Lion's Club, deacon and Sunday School superintendent of the Messiah Lutheran Church, president of Gravellet and Fisher PTAs and secretary of the Marquette County Red Cross Committee.

He also was active in Boy Scouts, Community Chest, youth work and in other community affairs.

Soo Line Seeking To Halt Ferry Service At Straits

The historic railroad carrier ferry service between the Peninsulas of Michigan at the Straits of Mackinac is under threat of closing.

Such a closing would leave only the rail ferry connections between the two peninsulas at Manistique, 88 miles to the west, and at Menominee, 197 miles to the west and south.

Two Elements

The threat to the carrier ferry service operated by the Soo Line Railroad between St. Ignace and Mackinac City has two elements. They are the big diversion of freight from rail movement at the Straits to truck movement over the Mackinac Bridge, and the deterioration of the last of the railroad carrier ferries, the Chief Wawatam.

The Mackinac Transportation Co. has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to abandon its rail-road carrier ferry service at the Straits because it cannot afford to repair its ferry, it was announced at Chicago this week.

Boiler Condemned

John Benson, Minneapolis, vice president of the Soo Line Railroad which owns the Mackinac Transportation Co., said that the Coast Guard has condemned the boiler of the Chief and that repairs would cost more than a half million dollars. "It would take us a long time to recover that much money on our present revenues," said Benson.

The Soo Line acquired the ferry line at the Straits when the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railroad, which owned the ferries, merged with it several years ago. The firm owned the Chief and the ferry Saime Marie, but the latter ferry has been sold. The Chief is an ice breaker and has maintained daily service across the Straits throughout the year, serving the Soo Line terminal at St. Ignace and the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroad terminals at Mackinac City in Southern Michigan.

'Hurt Real Bad'

Benson said that the Soo Line regarded freight traffic loss as inevitable with the building of the Mackinac Bridge, but did not know its proportions. "We have been hurt real bad by

St. Lawrence Seaway Formal Closing Tonight

DETROIT (AP) — The weather was reported favorable to late season shipping all along the St. Lawrence Seaway Friday on the eve of the seaway's formal closing.

A warning notice was issued by the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., however. The notice said a sudden freeze could bring an end to navigation "on a few hours notice."

The formal seaway closing is midnight tonight.

Hearing Set On Request For Rezoning

A public hearing will be held at the Monday, Dec. 9, city commission meeting on a request from St. Luke's Hospital for a zoning change on hospital properties.

A petition received by the commission from Lincoln B. Frazier, president of the board of trustees of St. Luke's Hospital, asks that the block on which St. Luke's is situated, plus three lots for which the hospital recently obtained options, be changed from single family residence to general residence zoning.

U.P. Native Heads State Commission

George N. Higgins, for two years a member of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, has been elected chairman of that body by the other members.

He succeeds Walter A. Campbell of Muskegon, who has held the position of chairman for two years. It is traditional that the members rotate the chairmanship among themselves.

Higgins, a Ferndale automobile dealer and a former Upper Peninsula resident, has spent many years in public service, eight years as a state senator, six years as a state representative from Oakland County.

Represents Management

As a Republican member of the commission, Higgins represents the interests of management. The commission itself is equally divided between Democrats and Republicans and labor and management representatives. Campbell is a Democrat. Other members are Tom Downs, a Democrat, and Chester A. Cahn, a Republican.

Higgins was appointed to the Civil Service Commission in 1958 by former Governor G. Mennen Williams. As chairman of the Civil Service Commission, he spent many years advocating higher pay for state employees and was responsible for the broad and generous insurance coverage now available to state workers, of which half is paid by the state.

Wife From Ishpeming

Despite his being a lifelong Republican, it was his friendship with many prominent Democrats which helped him to become one of the most successful and influential members of either house. During his tenure there, his specialty was tax legislation, and no tax bill ever went through the Legislature without bearing the imprint of his participation.

A native of the Sault Ste. Marie area, Higgins is well known throughout the Upper Peninsula and believes he has 175 relatives in that area. Part of his early experience was as an employee of the Sault Ste. Marie News. He is married to the former Eva Quayle of Ishpeming.

Higgins has sent nearly 140 young men and women through college by means of a foundation which he established years ago, and these graduates now are engaged in many of the higher professions — medicine, law, teaching, engineering and others.

The Cable TV View

... By Richard Bur

It seems to me that a good measure of the degree of democracy is the extent of participation by all citizens. This was fairly simple in the days of the city state when populations were never more than a few thousand. In a democracy of over 188 million people, had television not existed something like it would have had to be invented. How else could all the people partake of an historic event together? In our time of tragedy all the people were linked as they never were before through television coverage and the sets in all the homes of the land. There were three days of mourning, tribute and presidential news coverage that were shared in every living room. A nation was joined together in a common sorrow.

A Sunday night program in consecration to our late president provided the finest cultural program yet to be shown on the home screen. Frederick March was host on the ABC Network to a procession of artists that gave plenty of reason for pride in the creative talents of America.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra climaxed the evening with an appropriate movement from Beethoven's Eroica Symphony. It seemed that a divine presence hung over the music as it came through the air.

Walt Whitman's words to an assassinated Lincoln, "when lilacs last in the dooryard bloomed," were spoken by Florence Eldridge. Death was addressed in the poetry of John Donne and Dylan Thomas and the drama of Shakespeare. That television could be classic and great when the occasion demanded it was proven in the appearances of actors, Charlton Heston, Christopher Plummer and Sidney Blackmer. It was heard in the performances of Isaac Stern, Marian Anderson, Nathan Milstein and the St. Thomas Episcopal Church Choir.

Wild Rivers

The effort to preserve for recreational use some of the natural resources of America has turned to the rivers. The designation of "wild rivers" to keep them from the sort of "development" that would destroy their pristine and historic attractions has been urged by leaders of the National Wildlife Institute.

The effort is now getting a big push from the otherwise duelling U. S. Departments of Agriculture and of Interior. A joint Interior-Agriculture wild rivers study team has considered 64 rivers or parts of rivers in 35 states for inclusion in a wild rivers system.

The St. Croix River in Wisconsin and Minnesota and the Namekagon in Wisconsin are among 12 rivers selected for possible preservation in their natural state in the projected national system of free flowing rivers. All the streams selected have outstanding recreational attractions.

Other rivers selected include the Flathead in Montana, the Skagit in Washington, the Rogue in Oregon, the Klamath in California, the Rio Grande in New Mexico, the upper Green in Wyoming, the Niobrara in Nebraska, northern branch of the Susquehanna in New York and Pennsylvania, the upper Hudson in New York, the Big South Fork of the Cumberland in Kentucky and Tennessee and the headwaters of the Savannah in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

Several other rivers are under consideration for inclusion and maybe it would be well for Michigan to nominate a couple, as there will likely be an appropriation to support a wild river corps of keepers. There may even be subsidies for not building hydro-electric plants on the wild rivers, the way the government pays farmers for not planting crops. This would be in lieu of the electricity which could be generated if the rivers were tamed.

And presumably there will be government controls to keep these rivers wild, as one picnic group can tame a considerable area of river just by discarding its beer cans on a Sunday afternoon.

The wild rivers campaign comes opportunistically. The great era of river taming is over. There are many hydro-electric development sites on Upper Peninsula rivers owned by utility companies which now face no prospect of such usage. The little hydro-electric plant is a dead duck today, and indeed the action in this field appears to be backward. The Wisconsin Public Service Corp., one of the utility companies serving the U. P., closed its hydro-electric plant at DePere, took out the water wheels and filled it in with earth. And the federal government maintains the dam there! It just didn't pay.

With less than $100 of investment needed in a steam plant to generate a kilowatt of electricity, the greatly increased cost of hydro generation construction has pretty well eliminated that type of investment on small rivers. Utilities need a steady generation of electricity, and if a hydro plant needs a big backup of steam generation in low water periods, it is more economical to build just the steam plant.

The Upper Peninsula's rivers are in two systems. Those which flow into Lake Superior are relatively short and they form the smaller system.

The rivers south of the divide are the greater rivers of the Peninsula. In the west they come out of the highlands of the iron ranges and in the east they drain glacial plains.

Where they have no man-made structures today they're not apt to have many in the near future. The state as well as the federal government can designate wild rivers if this appears desirable for the preservation of their recreational and esthetic values, but there seems no great urgency about this at present, the threat of pollution being a greater peril to public use of the rivers than the impoundment of their waters.

Battle Not Yet Won

The battle against tuberculosis, like the battle against polio, appears close to being won, thanks in a large measure to funds collected through Christmas Seals. In 1918, Michigan's death toll from tuberculosis was 3,613. Last year, the toll had been reduced to 331. While there remain an estimated 1,500,000 Michigan persons infected with tuberculosis germs, most of these are adults. And provided present trends continue, the battle can be won.

But it is not won yet, and that is why it is important that persons who received envelopes containing Christmas Seals from the Marquette County Tuberculosis Association should give generously again this year to this worthy cause. Funds collected in this manner are used to carry forward the work in research, education and tuberculosis detection that ultimately can put an end to this disease. And after that?

"With the eradication of tuberculosis a vision for the future," said Lloyd Humberger, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, "MTRDA is pioneering to help combat such respiratory disease menaces as emphysema, pneumonia, asthma and bronchitis. The toll of these diseases is staggering. Emphysema, the disease characterized by shortness-of-breath, affects some 400,000 Michigan residents, most of them men over 40. And it kills each year nearly twice as many persons as tuberculosis. This is but a sample of the rampancy of these diseases."

Lumbering operations in Marquette County are now well under way for the season of '63-'64. They are smaller in scope than those undertaken in any previous season and are about the last operations of any consequence that will be seen in this region. When Ferguson Brothers, Hebard and son and Reichels finish up the operations on which they are now engaged there will be but a few million feet of pine left in Marquette County. One well-informed lumberman gives it as his opinion that there will not be much over 3,000,000 feet, of which J. M. Longyear controls the greater part. These figures tell, without any elaboration, what terrible progress has been made toward the complete destruction of the county's pine forests.

—Negaunee—
Little indoor baseball talk has been heard during the past few weeks. The plan of forming an association and engaging the rink for the season, which seemed likely to take form a month or two ago, was abandoned because some of the promoters finally considered it impracticable. There is plenty of material in the city for several good teams, and if the sport was taken up again a series of excellent games could be arranged for the winter months.

—Ishpeming—

Special Thanksgiving services will be held in numerous Ishpeming churches on Thursday.

Capt. Martin D. Roos, who has for the last year been in charge of the Ishpeming Salvation Army Corps, has found it necessary to withdraw from SA service and was informed today by Brig. Bertram Rodda of Milwaukee that Capt. and Mrs. Alfred Gorton of Two Rivers, Wis., have been appointed to succeed him here.

—Negaunee—
Members of three Negaunee Boy Scout troops will spend the next several weeks as toy doctors in preparation for a big Christmas party to be held in the Negaunee High School gymnasium for the benefit of children of needy families in this area.
Special programs and services have been arranged in several Negaunee churches for Thanksgiving Day.

'If I'm Not Too Curious --- What's Holding You Up?'

Unique Legal Situation

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Ruby created a legal situation never — literally — seen before when, in full view of practically all America, he gunned a man to death.

Ruby couldn't claim self-defense. He shot Lee Harvey Oswald, charged with assassinating President John F. Kennedy, in the Dallas city jail while the handcuffed Oswald was surrounded by police. Nor could he claim it was an accident.

Millions Saw Him
He couldn't try to say he did not do it. Millions saw him on television as he did it. Other millions saw him do it on endless television reruns. Newspapers carried pictures of it from coast to coast.

The U.S. Supreme Court has already said what it thinks of the effect on a local community which sees a man confess on local television to a local crime. But Ruby did more than confess, and it wasn't local.

Can He Get Fair Trial?
Since Kennedy and Oswald were both killed in Dallas, the people there could not but be particularly aware of the events. And it would be a poor Dallas citizen who didn't have an interest in the events and what Ruby did.

Yet, Ruby will be tried before a jury of Dallas citizens. This raises a question: Can Ruby get a fair trial in the legal sense that the people on his jury have not already prejudged him?

Change Of Venue
And, since the whole nation was a witness could he in the same sense get a fair trial anywhere in this country?

Ordinarily where there are unusually strong local feelings about a crime, or where the people have unusual interest or knowledge of it, the defense lawyer can ask for a change of venue.

Wilbur Rideau Case
This means having his trial in some other city where there was not the same local feeling, interest or knowledge. But the interest in, and knowledge of, what Ruby did was national. A change in venue would seem senseless.

The Supreme Court stepped into a local case earlier this year.

Wilbur Rideau, a Louisiana

Negro, was convicted of murder in a 1961 crime in which a bank was robbed, a woman clerk was stabbed to death, and three other bank employees were wounded by a lone bandit.

In Full Public View
Rideau was apprehended. The sheriff got a confession from him and then, on a local television station, had him repeat the confession in full public view. This TV confession was broadcast three days in a row.

The defense lawyer contended that by the television showing Rideau was "allowed to convict himself" before the public in an area from which residents were called as jurors at the trial.

State's Argument
Further, the lawyer argued, three of the trial jurors saw the broadcast and two of the jurors were deputy sheriffs.

The state argued the three TV-watching jurors swore they could and would decide the case solely on evidence produced at the trial and that the two deputies had no connection with the sheriff's department.

Sentenced To Death
Rideau's lawyer asked that the trial be held in another parish—county. The request was denied and, after being found guilty, Rideau was sentenced to death.

On June 3, 1961, the Supreme Court overturned the conviction. Justice Potter Stewart, speaking for the court, said Rideau was denied constitutionally guaranteed due process of law when he was refused a change in venue.

Stewart said: "The people of Calcasieu Parish—where the trial was held—had been exposed repeatedly and in depth to the spectacle of Rideau personally confessing in detail to the crime with which he was later charged."

'A Hollow Formality'
"For anyone who has ever watched television, the conclusion cannot be avoided that the spectacle, to the tens of thousands of people who saw and heard it, in a very real sense was Rideau's trial—at which he pleaded guilty to murder."

"Any subsequent court proceedings in a community so pervasively exposed to such a spectacle could be but a hollow formality. Due process of law in this case required a trial before a jury drawn from a community of people who had not seen or heard Rideau's 'televised' interview."

Ruby's Defense
Where does this leave Ruby? Could this public exposure in a "very real sense" be considered Ruby's trial in which, by killing Oswald in public view, he "pleaded guilty to murder"?

So far there is no indication Ruby's lawyers will seek a change of venue or even try to defend him against a charge of murder as such. What they seem to have in mind is to argue he was temporarily insane.

Whirligig

By ANDREW TULLY

WASHINGTON — It seemed incredible, as they lowered the dust of John Fitzgerald Kennedy into the grave, that no human agency could have saved the life of an American president from an assassin's bullet. But it is not incredible. It happened and it may happen again. For the demands for stepped-up security measures are well-meaning twaddle.

There is no defense, except perhaps in a police state, against any maniac willing to pay with his own life for taking the life of the President. Especially there is no defense against a marksman who can hit a moving target at 75 yards.

They talk about 100 per cent security though it had never occurred to anyone before. Kennedy had 100 per cent security — under conditions imposed by a free society in which no man's movements may be unreasonably restricted and where any madman may buy a gun over the counter or by mail.

Never In Russia?
The Russians like to brag that it could not happen in the Soviet Union. Possibly Anastas Mikoyan was thinking this as he trudged along behind the casket of a better man. But the military have guns in Russia and they know how to use them. Anywhere in the world, there is the hatred which, as Chief Justice Earl Warren commented bitterly over the President's casket, was eating its way "into the bloodstream of American life."

Jim Rowley, chief of the Secret Service, may be the most efficient, most modern and most knowledgeable policeman in the world. In covering the White House since 1948, I have been constantly amazed at the completeness of the protection given the President. Rowley came to his present post in 1961 after a decade as head of the White House Secret Service detail, and there is nothing he doesn't know about guarding heads of state.

Warren Endangered
It has been said that President Kennedy's life would have been saved had the bulletproof bubble-top for his car been in use in Dallas. But murderers are ingenious; they have to be in their black trade. The bubble-top would not have protected Kennedy from a bomb or from any number of other weapons a murderer in the United States can lay his hands on almost as easily as he buys a package of cigarettes in the corner drugstore.

In that funeral cortege, the man who was in the most danger was not President Johnson. It was Chief Justice Warren. Next to President Kennedy, he has been and is the most maligned official in the government. Both segregationists and the nuts of the far right see him as an enemy. He had even been attacked by such as Evangelist Billy Graham, and though Graham spoke out decently for the principle of keeping God in the language of the republic, his words unintentionally inflame the frothy-mouthed fan-

Murder Most Foul

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The first need of the country is to take to heart the nature of this unspookable crime. There is no public crisis at home or abroad which demands such instant attention that it cannot wait until we have collected ourselves and can proceed deliberately. But there is a searing internal crisis within the American spirit which we have first to realize and then to resolve.

The American future depends on it and our capacity to govern ourselves. What we have to realize is that, though speech and gossip and rumor are free, the safety of the republic is at stake when extremists go unrestrained. Extremists may profess any ideology. But what they all have in common is that they treat opponents as enemies, as outside the laws and the community of their fellow men.

Other Acts Of Political Violence
What happened in Dallas could, to be sure, have happened in another city. But it must be said that the murder of the President was not the first act of political violence in that city, but one in a series. The man who is now the President of the United States was manhandled by his fellow Texans. The man who represents the United States at the United Nations was spat upon.

In this atmosphere of political violence lived the President's murderer, himself addicted to the fascination of violence in his futile and lonely and brooding existence. The salient fact about him was his alienation from humanity, from country, family and friends. Nothing within him, it would seem, bound him to the President or to the governor as human beings. No human feeling stayed his hand.

In his alienation, Lee Oswald turned to the left. But that was incidental. Those who assaulted Lyndon Johnson and Adlai Stevenson had turned to the right. The common characteristic of all of them was their alienation, the loss of their ties, the rupture of the community.

Much Searching Of Conscience
An extremist is an outsider. For him, the government in Washington is a hated foreign power and the President in Washington is an invading conqueror. There is no limit, therefore, to his hatred which feeds upon the venom of malice, slander and hallucination. In Dallas today there is much searching of conscience, and well there should be. For Dallas has long been conspicuous for its tolerance of extremists and for the inability of its decent citizens, undoubtedly the great majority, to restrain the extremists and restore a condition of honest and temperate and reasonable discussion.

It was comforting, therefore, to read on Sunday that the mayor of Dallas, Earle Cabell, had said that "each of us, in prayerful reflection, must search his heart and determine if, through intemperate word or deed, we might have contributed in some fashion to the movement of this mind across the brink of insanity."

We must all follow the mayor of Dallas in that prayerful reflection. For it is only too easy to forget that in a free country there must be not only liberty and equality, but also fraternity.

Finding Our Way Back
The only solace for the nation's shame and grief can come from a purge or at least the reduction of the hatred and venom which lie so close to the surface of our national life. We have allowed the community of the American people to be rent with enmity. Only if and as we can find our way back into the American community will we find our way back to confidence in the American destiny.

We must stop the flow of the poison that when men differ, say about taxes or civil rights or Russia, they cannot be reconciled by persuasion and debate and that those who take the other view are implacable enemies. In the light of this monstrous crime, we can see that in a free country, which we are and intend to be, unrestrained speech and thought are inherently subversive. Democracy can be made to work only when the bounds of the community are inviolate and stronger than all the parties and factories and interests and sects.

I wish I felt certain that the self-realization into which grief has shocked us will endure when we go back about our business. The divisive forces of hatred and ungovernability are strong among us, and the habit of intemperate speech and thought has become deeply ingrained. It is deepened by the strains of war and the frustrations of this revolutionary age, by the exploitation of violence and cruelty in the mass media, by the profusion of weapons and by the presence of so many who know how to use them.

The Healing Arts Of Johnson
But I do have much hope in the healing arts of Lyndon Johnson. We can turn to him with confidence. For his great gift is in finding the consensus without which the American system of government with its states and regions, its checks and balances is unworkable.

To find the consensus among our divided and angry people is his historic opportunity. To restore the internal peace of the United States is his unique mission.

That done, all else will be manageable.

Some Notes On Johnson

THE WASHINGTON STAFF
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's wife Lady Bird (the former Claudia Taylor of Karnack, Texas) admits his sense for efficiency.

When the family moved into "Les Ormes," Perle Mesta's former Washington home, Mrs. Johnson went to considerable trouble anglicizing the interior of the house, in addition to changing its name to "The Elms." New wallpaper, bookcases, Texas paintings and a hi-fi system were added.

600 Replies A Day
When asked what her husband thought of the redecorating, Mrs. Johnson replied: "All the furniture he wants is something comfortable enough to put his feet up on."

Small imperfections can upset the President. His Sanka is always hot — but never quite hot enough. His Capitol Hill staff once responded to letters from 600 Texas constituents in a single day, but failed to answer 45 others.

"There are 45 people who didn't get the service they deserve today," Johnson cried.

Texas-Shaped Hamburgers
Hanging in one of the rooms of the L. B. J. Ranch guest house outside Johnson City, Texas, is a small embroidered sampler. It reads:

No Protection
Yet Warren has no official protection. He goes where he pleases, unaccompanied by guards. He goes into cities where 90 per cent of the population oppose the ruling of the so-called Warren court on civil rights. So far he has escaped unscathed. But if one assassin can murder John F. Kennedy, another can murder Earl Warren.

This is the ugly fact Americans must face up to. There is a violence abroad in the country and it is a threat to everyone — from the child walking to a newly integrated grade school to the man who lives in the White House or sits on the bench of the Supreme Court. For in the moment of truth called death — when hate lurks in the wings — all these Americans walk alone, no matter who is with them. That is why John F. Kennedy is dead.

"Come in the evening.

Come in the morning. Come when you're looked for. As host at the L. B. J. Ranch, the President often serves hamburgers cut to the shape of Texas. The ever-efficient Johnson always urges his guests, "Eat the panhandle first."

Highly Sentimental
The President is highly sentimental. After his trip to Pakistan in 1961, he was told that a Pakistani cab driver had been quoted as saying, "I myself have driven a king and some American senators in my taxi. But Mr. Johnson was the first big man who came here and looked down at a common man and made him happy."

Sighed Johnson: "No matter how tough things are in this job, it is all worth while when a taxi driver in Karachi will say that."

Civil Rights Stand
Johnson has always been firm in supporting the rights of Negroes. As majority leader, just before a dinner in his honor at Houston, he heard that Negroes who had bought tickets would be barred from attending.

Swiftly, he sent word to the dinner committee: If any ticket holders were denied admission, he'd stay away. The Negroes were admitted and Johnson made a point to visit every table where they were seated.

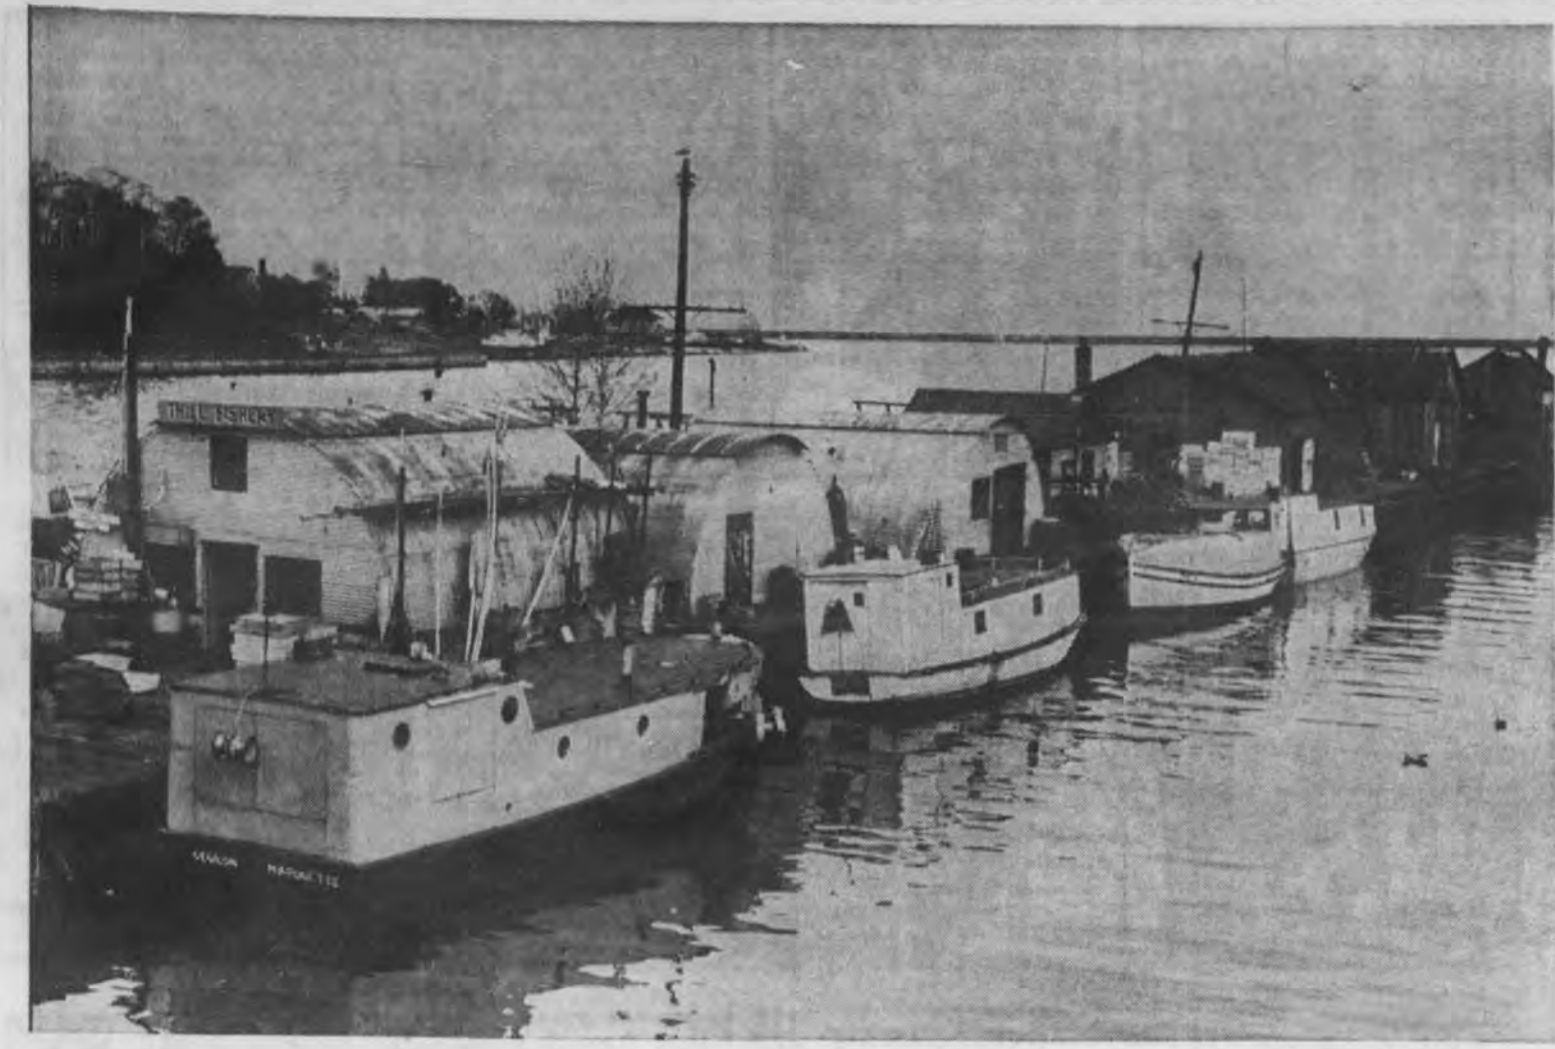

A FIXED EASTER
The Vatican ecumenical council voted by the overwhelming majority of 2058 to 9, with one ballot void, to put the Roman Catholic Church on record as favorable to the fixing of the same Sunday each year as Easter week. Some sort of uniform world calendar, too, would be agreed to by the council — the vote on this proposition having been 2057 to 4 with one void ballot. The Catholic Church would undertake neither of these reforms. It would merely string along with civil and religious authorities everywhere in bringing them to pass. They look like desirable measures to us; and we hope the movements for a fixed Easter and for a world calendar retaining the seven-day week including Sunday may get strong forward shoves from these Vatican council votes.

Side Glances

"Mr. Williams is an architect, dear. I'm sure we can't afford his fee, but maybe he'll sketch us a house on the back of an envelope!"

Marquette's picturesque commercial fish dock is where housewives get those delicious whitefish filets. But for the men who catch the fish, life isn't picturesque; it's hard work. (Mining Journal photo.)

Life Of Commercial Fishermen In Marquette Full Of Hardship

By MARY WHITE
Of The Journal Staff

Down at the fish dock this weekend, the boats are coming in with two to four thousand pounds of herring each day. The fall herring run is at its peak.

With catches like that, you'd think Marquette's commercial fishermen could take a fisherman's holiday in Florida this winter, basking in the sun while they dangle a fishpole over the side of a yacht.

Life isn't like that. But the life of a Lake Superior commercial fisherman isn't like that.

He puts in a 10 to 12-hour day, hauling in and setting out nets, repairing nets and packing fish. He paces the floor at night if his nets are out in a gale.

He doesn't advise his sons to follow in his footsteps. "A fisherman's life is in my blood, but it has too many ups and downs," says Wayne Wachter, Marquette commercial fisherman and president of the Michigan Fish Producers Association.

Problem Of Weather
First of all, there's the weather. A fall or spring squall which comes up when the nets are out could mean financial disaster. The weather was so bad for two days last weekend that the fish boats couldn't leave the dock.

About the first of April, Marquette fishermen can go out on the lake and set nets for chubs. During the summer, they haul in five to six hundred pounds of fish a day. The herring run starts about the middle of October and tapers off by Christmas. Then the lake freezes over.

Winter Activity
So fishermen try to make enough money during the fall run to last through the winter months, when they work full days mending and making nets.

Then there are the trout nets stored in every fish house except one at the Marquette fish dock. Wachter says that Marquette fishermen last half year income, and had to turn to less profitable fish, when Lake Superior was closed for lake trout.

Butlism Scare
Only one Marquette fisherman has a trout permit. His catches are used in the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries research program to test the progress of its chemical treatment program to eradicate sea lampreys, which prey on lake trout.

To top it all off, commercial fishermen work hard hit this fall by a butlism scare. Shipments of chubs from Marquette immediately stopped, and a dozen men were laid off.

Need For Marketing Programs
Marketing programs, always a big problem for Lake Superior fishermen, now become an absolute necessity, with the importance of convincing housewives that there was never any problem with fresh fish and no evidence of dereliction on the part of fishermen in connection with toxin found in smoked fish after they were processed.

Fishermen are now looking to research and marketing programs to stop the downward trend in fish sales.

Besides the fish sold to area residents at the fish dock, whitefish, herring and chubs caught by Marquette fishermen are sold to fish buyers from Chicago, New York and Detroit. Refrigerated trucks leave Marquette on Mondays and Thursdays with crates of fresh whitefish and lake herring for the big city fish markets. Most of the herring caught in the fall run is sold as animal food.

Marquette fisheries cover a 50-mile area on Lake Superior. The fish boats go out at dawn, two men to a boat in the spring and eight men to a boat in the fall, when the weather is likely to be bad, and they must haul in all they can.

Most Use Gill Nets
Except for two boats which use trap nets, the fishermen use gill nets, which look like giant tennis nets, set three to five hundred feet down on the floor of the lake.

The nets are put out in "gangs" which cover about three miles, set up and down along the banks of the lake's floor.

The fishermen know where the fish are by that time of year and it is by records handed down from generation to generation in their families. The fishermen also know that the best fishing is during a full moon.

Average Age: 45
Although the fish companies are handed down from one generation to another, the average age of the owners and partners here is 45, and in recent years, no young men have entered the business.

Marquette's commercial fishermen have 13 boats, with six used full time. Commercial fishermen here are Wayne, Isadore and William Wachter, Lawrence and Henry Christensen, Kaino Asplund, Joe Frazier, Jim Vincent, Francis Thill, John LaBlance, John Wanfelt, Peter Braamse and Arthur Holappa.

Twenty-four young men will leave Marquette by chartered bus Monday to go to the regional examination and induction center in Milwaukee for induction or pre-draft physical tests.

Only two will be inducted. They are Theodore Samuel Tuomi, Republic, and David Richard Lilly, Kenai, Alaska, who comprise Marquette County's 162nd induction contingent under the 1948 Selective Service Act.

Induction On Tuesday
Frances Drake, clerk for the Marquette County Draft Board, whose office is in the Marquette Post Office Building, said the 24 young men have been ordered to report to the Hotel Clifton by 1 Monday afternoon.

The bus will leave here for Milwaukee at 1:30. The two

Pearce Author Of History Of Middle Island Point

Robert J. Pearce of Marquette is the author of "A History of Middle Island Point," a newly published book about the well-known camping colony north of Marquette along the Lake Superior shore.

Published by the Middle Island Point Campers' Association, the 106-page paper bound book was privately printed.

In addition to a detailed history of the Middle Island Point, the book contains a map of the area and 13 photos, as well as individual histories of each of the cottages at Middle Island Point.

Pearce has dedicated his volume to the late Bernard L. York of Marquette, who prepared an earlier history of the area.

The history dates back to 1890, when Mrs. Alice M. Adams, who conducted a millinery shop in Marquette, became impressed by the beauty of the point and had a cottage built there the following year.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Why do adults make fun of teen-agers? They laugh at our clothes, our hair styles, our music and our dances. If they would just sit back and remember what they were like when they were teen-agers, maybe they would stop criticizing us. Please print this letter, Abby. It means an awful lot to us kids.

DISAPPOINTED IN ADULTS
DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Adults who make fun of today's teen-agers must have amnesia. Ask them to refresh their memories with their old high school annuals. The clothes and hair styles between 1935 and 1945 were as kooky as anything seen today. As for the music, can you top "I'm Dancing with a Dolly with a Hole in her Stocking"? And the "Big Apple" should have been left in the Garden of Eden.

DEAR ABBY: How do a host and hostess get rid of a guest who has been invited to a cocktail party from 5 to 7 but hangs around as long as drinks are being served and a few others remain? This can be very embarrassing when one has invited, say, 30 for cocktails and only eight for dinner, immediately following the cocktail party. Thank you.

PARTY GIVER
DEAR PARTY GIVER: There is NO way "gracefully" to inform a guest that his welcome has expired. You will never out-drink him, so either hand him his hat, or invite him to stay for dinner. (And remember him the second time around.)

DEAR ABBY: We have just had a death in our family. Is it proper to send our Christmas cards as usual? I have heard it was considered bad taste.

NEEDS TO KNOW
DEAR NEEDS: A death in the family is no reason to withhold holiday greetings to your friends. Send them as usual.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BEATING MY BRAINS OUT AT VML": Perhaps this old Chinese proverb will help: "He who knows not, and knows not that he knows not is a fool. Shun him. He who knows not, and knows that he knows not is a child. Teach him. He who knows, and knows not that he knows is asleep. Wake him. He who knows and knows that he knows is a genius. Follow him."

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Cardinal Describes Late President's Farewell To Son

BOSTON — Richard Cardinal Cushing has described the late President John F. Kennedy's tearful farewell to his son, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, who died last August less than two days after his birth.

"I'll never forget the day we buried his little child from the chapel," the Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston said.

"Jack was the last to leave the chapel. I followed him. The little casket containing the body was at the head of the aisle.

"Jack put his arms around the casket as if he wanted to carry it with him. Then the tears watered his cheeks."

The cardinal, a lifelong friend of the Kennedy family, officiated at Kennedy's funeral.

Julian Olevsky Gives Concert Here Tuesday

Julian Olevsky, violinist, is the attraction for the second concert of the Marquette Community Concert Series, Tuesday evening at 8:15. Olevsky is a first rate artist. He has performed five times in recital in Carnegie Hall, N. Y. He has been soloist with the San Francisco Symphony, the Pittsburgh Symphony, the Chicago Symphony, the NBC Symphony and, in Europe, with the Philharmonie of Vienna, Oslo and Stockholm. He made his former debut at the age of 10 in Buenos Aires. After a decade of concert tours in South America, he came to the United States at the age of 20. Four years ago he extended his fame with a long tour of more than 60 concerts in Japan, Korea, Formosa, Malaya, Hong Kong, India, Pakistan, Iran and Turkey. Critics have again and again referred to his warmth. His playing has been described as combining passion and refinement. Many have marvelled at his huge repertoire — concertos from Bach to Berg, sonatas from Beethoven to Bartok. As a recording artist, he is represented by performances of 12 concertos of Vivaldi and of concertos of Mendelssohn, Lalo, Wieniawski and Bruch with the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra.

ISHPEMING — Donna Jean Goyen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Goyen, Ishpeming, became the bride of Gene Morris Stuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Stuck, El Segundo, Calif., Saturday. Yellow and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the church altar for the 4 p.m. ceremony. The Rev. Eric S. Hammar officiated at the double ring service. The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a floor-length gown of white rosepoint lace over tulle and taffeta fashioned with a fitted bodice, Sabrina neckline trimmed with iridescent sequins, long tapered sleeves and a bouffant skirt. Her scalloped headband of sequins and pearls secured her elbow-length veil. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and carnations trimmed with ivy and streamers of white ribbons and rosebuds. Mrs. Dennis Warwick, Ishpeming, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Miss Nancy Flaia, Milwaukee, was the bridesmaid. Miss Ann Watters was flower girl, and Raymond Goyen the ring bearer. First Lady 'Beguiling, Efficient' BY MARTHA COLE Associated Press Staff Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—Earlier this year, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson was asked about her plans for the future, and she replied: "It's hard enough to get today's work done; I'll let tomorrow take care of itself. Whatever Lyndon does, I'll be happy doing it right along with him." The words paint a portrait of the small, brunette, 50-year-old woman who is the new First Lady of the United States. Manages Household She is one who is always there beside her husband, managing a household, taking her teen-age daughters shopping. "Beguiling and efficient," is the way Adlai Stevenson described her. To those who don't know her, perhaps the first thing that will be noticed is her Texas drawl. It's unmistakable but has a touch of softness akin to the South. Her mother came from Alabama. But many across the nation already know her, for Mrs. Johnson rode the campaign trail for the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in 1960. Sometimes she went alone, sometimes with groups of Kennedy ladies, going to teas and receptions, appearing on radio and television and holding press conferences. For a while she didn't make speeches, confining herself to "thank-you-all," but she took some speech courses and gained confidence. Her name, Lady Bird, intrigues many. Born in Karmack, Tex., Dec. 22, 1912, she was named Claudia Alta Taylor. But a nursemaid said she looked just like a lady bird, and that name stuck. Her close friends call her Bird. Those are the first glances at Lady Bird Johnson. Back of these—a girl who took scholastic honors in high school and earned two degrees from the University of Texas, a bachelor of arts and a bachelor of journalism in 1934... a canny business woman... a woman who has spent most of her married life in the whirl of politics. On Nov. 17, 1934, she and Lyndon B. Johnson were married, and three years later she started knowing the life of the wife of a public official when he came to Congress. Earlier this year an Arab diplomat protested her honorary sponsorship of a ball honoring Israel's independence. Mrs. Johnson answered that firmly: "... I have, for whatever small value it may be, tried to be accessible and available to as many as possible, without distinction as to religion, race or region, and certainly including all states of the Near East. I shall continue to do so." The Johnsons have made it a policy to try to weave their two daughters into their public life. Lynda Bird, 19, a sophomore at the University of Texas, looks and acts like her father. She likes people. She's the outgoing type. Lucy Baines, 16, is more reserved. All members of the family like the easy, casual, open-door way of life at the Johnsons' ranch near Johnson City, Tex. Mrs. Johnson is not what you call a horsewoman. She is the one who goes ahead to the ranch to prepare for guests almost always there when the Johnsons are there. She sees that everything runs smoothly. She will not contemplate moving to the White House, she said, until all the chores Mrs. Kennedy wishes to be done are done. ### Maki-Schippel

REPUBLIC—Mary Lois Maki became the bride of Paul C. Schippel in a double-ring ceremony Friday, Nov. 22, in the Bethany Lutheran Church of Republic. The Rev. Leslie Neimi officiated before an altar adorned with bouquets of white and yellow mums. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Maki and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey J. Schippel Sr., Sandusky, Ohio. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon lace and tulle styled with a basque bodice, long tapered sleeves and a rounded neckline, embroidered with sequins. Her bouffant skirt featured alternating ruffles of lace and tulle outlined with lace and dotted with sequins. Her bouffant illusion veil was secured to an open crown of hair braid and pearls. Her only jewelry, a drop pearl necklace and earrings, were gifts of the groom. The bride carried a bouquet of white feathered mums and red roses. Donna Mae Antila, cousin of the bride, attended as maid of honor. Carol Ann Kuljio, the bride's cousin, was bridesmaid. They wore street-length dresses of sheer nylon, with lace bodices and wrist-length sleeves. Small circular veils made up their headpieces. The attendants wore drop pearl necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride and groom. Ronald Gulbransen, nephew of the bride, was best man, and James Antilla served as groomsmen. Seating the guests were Gilbert and Charles Ah-tonen. Mrs. Maki chose a teal blue and green print dress with matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. White feathered mums and yellow roses

Negaunee Property Owners Receive Tax Bills; Due Dec. 2

NEGAUNEE — "Greetings" in the form of annual tax statements were placed in the mails yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Mary Gaviglio, Negaunee city treasurer.

Local real and personal property owners are scheduled to receive the notices today that annual taxes become due and payable Monday, Dec. 2.

Although Dec. 1 is the usual date on which taxes become due, the opening day for payment falls on Sunday this year, so it will be impossible for "early birds" to square tax accounts until Monday, Dec. 2.

Unless they received a cut in valuations, property owners will find billings up slightly from a year ago because of a hike of one mill in the levy the Negaunee School District is assessing.

The overall rate of 57 1/2 mills ($57.50 per $1,000 of valuation) is one mill over last year, with the city portion of this total consisting of 24 mills. Other assessments included in the total levy are those made by the Negaunee School District and Marquette County.

There will be less revenues for governmental agencies sharing in the tax split this year because of a further reduction in valuation of iron ore mining properties.

Valuations on which assessments are made are set by the city assessor and checked by the board of review, with the exception of iron ore mining property values. Those are established by the deputy state geologist.

Parent-Teacher, Cub Scout Meet Set For Monday

DIORITE — The Ely Township Parent-Teacher Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2, in the Diorite school.

This will be a combined PTA and Cub Scout meeting.

Following the business meeting, lunch will be served.

Santa Greeted By 500 In Negaunee

NEGAUNEE — Although Santa Claus was greeted by more than 500 enthusiastic youngsters at the Negaunee Community Building on his initial visit of the 1963 Christmas shopping season, holiday gift purchases Tuesday and Wednesday were below normal, it was reported yesterday.

Marshall Phillips, Youth Center director, who was in charge of the reception for Santa, reported that between 500 and 600 children were on hand to welcome Kris Kringle, which was a normal turnout based on totals for previous years.

"Over the last several years, we have found that the crowd is usually between 500 and 600 for Santa's first visit, with the total increasing to a maximum in the neighborhood of 800 for his final appearance right before Christmas, when parents generally bring the tiny tots out to see Santa," he said.

Wayne Merrick, Christmas Carnival chairman, revealed that several merchants reported business slightly below last year for the first two days of the Carnival season. However, he noted that traffic yesterday was above that for a normal Friday.

"It is my opinion that the decline Tuesday was undoubtedly due to the assassination of President Kennedy last weekend, as this tragic event was constantly on the minds of people everywhere, and was not conducive to putting them in a mood for holiday shopping," Merrick said.

"Wednesday being the day before Thanksgiving was largely devoted to shopping necessary for this holiday, and so merchants probably will not begin to notice the effect of Christmas buying until this weekend."

Local stores will be open until 9 each Tuesday and Friday night during the next two weeks, and starting Monday, Dec. 16, extended hours will be in effect through Friday, Dec. 20, for the benefit of Christmas shoppers.

Santa is scheduled for additional visits on Friday night, Dec. 13, and Friday night, Dec. 20.

A REMINDER

One of the charms of being young, is the ability to forget. That is, to forget quickly, what might appear to be a hurt, a wrong, a slight, an injury. Then, as we grow older, there is a tendency to brood over hurts, and wrongs, and injuries — real or imaginary — and sometimes we lose that beautiful mental balance, between forgetting and remembering.

There is a place to take all your hurts, your memories, your injuries of spirit; that place is your church. There you will find peace and contentment. Tie a string around your finger, now! Remember church this Sunday!

Choral Club Concert In Ishpeming Dec. 8

ISHPEMING — Each year Ishpeming residents are able to attend one of the Upper Peninsula's outstanding musical programs, a concert presented by talented local singers.

This year is no exception. Dr. Joseph P. Bertucci and the 35-member Ishpeming Choral Club are preparing another musical highlight for presentation in the Ishpeming High School at 8:30 p. m. Sunday, Dec. 8.

The Ishpeming Choral Club, organized 19 years ago under the direction of Dr. Joseph P. Bertucci, Ishpeming physician, has enjoyed unusual success in appearances throughout the Upper Peninsula.

Weekly practice has been the key to the club's success. Dr. Bertucci has a standing invitation to anyone who desires to sing and to perform in public to join the organization. No audition is necessary to become a member.

Over 100 To Get Forestry Training At Ford Center

L'ANSE — The Ford Forestry Center of Michigan College of Mining and Technology has been awarded federal grants totalling $384,000, according to announcement received here. These funds will enable the center to offer five separate courses of study in various phases of forestry work for over 100 men under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

Dr. Eric A. Bourdo Jr., director of the center in Alberta, proposed the courses and spent innumerable hours outlining the scope of the classes and preparing the curriculum to include all necessary work. He emphasized that these programs are designed as much to upgrade the skills in employment potential of men who are underemployed as to benefit those who are unemployed.

One Course Under Way

The first of the five — a 30-week course in forestry aid techniques, from which $197,000 of the total grant was approved earlier this year already is under way at Alberta. This program is designed to turn out "sub-professional" foresters, trained in the techniques of timber cruising, land survey and line running, lumber scaling and grading, forest mapping, planting, tree marking and identification, and forest fire protection. All students in this course must be high school graduates.

Dr. Bourdo said there was a need for men with this type of training and center officials predict that graduates of the forestry aid course will find immediate employment in their chosen field.

Lumber Grading Course

Scheduled to begin Dec. 9 is a repeat of a 15-week course in lumber grading offered a year ago with marked success. A grant of $40,000 has been authorized for this study, in which 20 men are enrolled.

According to Dr. Bourdo, all graduates of the first lumber grading course obtained immediate employment.

In addition, a series of three successive 28-week courses in sawmill techniques which will train sawyers and other mill technicians is expected to get under way after the first of the year. Each of these courses can accommodate 20 students.

A grant of $247,000 has been allocated to conduct this series of three courses.

Of that total, approximately $40,000 will be expended on improvement will include installation of a new automated carriage, bar turner, hydraulic feed for the carriage, edger light guide, head saw guide light and modification of the air compressor.

MESC Picks Students

Dr. Bourdo also noted that of the $384,000 grants, less than one-third ($124,000) will be given to MCMIT to provide instruction and facilities, while the remaining $260,000 will be spent for student subsistence and other benefits.

Participants in these courses are selected by the Michigan Employment Security Commission from the roles of the unemployed and on a basis of upgrading those who are presently employed in relatively unskilled jobs. Most of the students are heads of households, but unmarried men under 22 and recent high school graduates also are eligible.

4 Inches Of Snow Fall In Ishpeming

ISHPEMING — Up to 10 this morning, four inches of new snow had fallen in Ishpeming and the surrounding area.

City plows were in operation early, but the light accumulation of snow did not hamper driving in the city. Sand trucks also were in operation in the downtown area, where streets are coated with a light layer of ice.

Public works department employees were notified early to day to be ready for duty should the snow continue throughout the day and night. The City of Ishpeming has a fleet of snow-removal equipment which is ready to roll in event of a heavy snowfall.

Edward Farley, public works superintendent, again asks for cooperation of motorists in obeying the ordinance requiring that vehicles be kept off streets between 1 and 6 a.m.

"We will do a much better job of clearing the streets if our snow-removal crews are not hampered by those who disregard the ordinance," he said. "Time is important, and every delay, no matter how slight, affects the efforts of our crews in keeping city streets open to traffic."

Tiny Michigamme Takes First Win By 80-59 Margin

MICHIGAMME—The Michigamme Eagles tore into Grand Marais basketball hopes Wednesday night in Michigamme, bombing the visitors 80-59 to take their first victory of the season, after having lost two consecutive games.

The school of Michigamme has but 14 male students, from which the roundball squad is picked. . . with such a small group from which to draw a team, it is amazing that the Eagles can come up with the more than adequate or creditable team they have.

Four In Double Digits

It is even more amazing to note that four of Michigamme's starters scored in double figures Wednesday night; Nurme, Jim Innerebner, C. B. Bostick and Chantelios all dumped in 13 points or more. Nurme and Innerebner contributed 23 each, Bostick, a sophomore, netted 15, and Chantelios gave the Eagles 13 more.

Wiljanen, a junior who normally starts, suffered a sprained ankle which enabled him to play just long enough to sink one basket before forcing him to limp back to the bench, replaced by F. Wallace, another junior.

The loss did not seem to slow the Eagles down at all, a fact worth considering in view of the usual propensity of the tiny school to have its athletic fortunes tied up in two or three good men, and to suffer mightily when one of the regulars is benched with an injury or fouls.

Lead Built

Michigamme had obtained a negligible 11-10 lead at the end of the first quarter, and turned on the scoring in the second to build it to 34-22 by half time. The third quarter's action resulted in a still wider 53-34 margin, and the Eagles added 27 more points in the final period for the 80-59 game score.

Only one of the Grand Marais quintet, Hicks, managed to score in double figures in the losing effort, dumping in 24 points.

Hematites Earn 2nd Win, 41-38 Over Munising

By RONALD PORTALE
Of The Journal Staff

ISHPEMING—Victory number two came the hard way for the Hematites last night, as they squeezed out a 41-38 win over the Munising Mustangs.

Erratic passing by Ishpeming and an indication that something was amiss prompted the IHS to call time out with a minute and three quarters gone by in the first quarter with no score.

Helped Both Teams

Apparently, the time out helped both squads as play began once again with Rousseau paced by Oas and Rousseau, nearly pulled the contest out of the fire with aggressive play. With three minutes left, however, it was Paquette who dropped in a beauty from way out to make the score 39-38 in Ishpeming's favor.

Ended In Lead

Nip and tuck basketball was played through the rest of the third quarter, a quarter in which Ishpeming hit on four of 14 shots from the field and Munising four of 17. The period ended with Ishpeming holding on to a 37-32 lead.

Coach "Poppy" Ellis' Squad

Coach "Poppy" Ellis' squad, paced by Oas and Rousseau, nearly pulled the contest out of the fire with aggressive play. With three minutes left, however, it was Paquette who dropped in a beauty from way out to make the score 39-38 in Ishpeming's favor.

Coduti's two free throws put the icing on the cake for the Hematites, who stalled with two minutes remaining.

Here are the statistics: Ishpeming shot 28 per cent and Munising 22 per cent in the field goal department. Munising dominated the free throw lane, hitting six of eight for 75 per cent, while Ishpeming connected on 13 of 24 for 54 per cent.

The IHS men out-rebounded the Mustangs 42 to 32, mainly on efforts by Tunteri, Coduti and Munising.

Tonight, the Hematites play at Iron Mountain.

Ishpeming J.V.'s Win Third Game

ISHPEMING—This year's Ishpeming jayvees, a hustling, aggressive and spirited squad, again provided top entertainment for local fans as they pounded out a 52-33 win over the Munising Jayvees.

Coach Arthur Hammar's varsity understudies outthrust and outplayed an equally scrappy Munising squad, but accuracy from the field for Ishpeming gave them the win.

Ishpeming rooters last night saw a floor game by the IHS which was excellent, one of the factors being the ability of William Zhukie to bring the ball up court and set up plays in a "cool, calm and collected" manner.

Other Contributions

While Zhukie proved to be the workhorse, his teammates, Fritz Ameen, William Parkkonen and Valente, to name just a few, contributed immensely to the win, their third straight.

Ishpeming had to be hot to match an individual performance by Dave Feldhusen of Munising, who brought fans to their feet with his long "archers" which swished the net on many occasions.

The Ishpeming jayvees follow the varsity to Iron Mountain in an attempt to rack up victory number four next.

Collegiate Basketball Under Way

(By The Associated Press)
College basketball edges into the sports picture tonight with, as usual, numerous inter-sectional games taking the spotlight on the official opening of the season.

Will Give Clue

Results of these clashes are expected to provide a clue to such questions as: Can Wichita beat out Cincinnati in the tough Missouri Valley Conference? Is Duke, the champion of the Atlantic Coast Conference, as good as rated? Is Kentucky really as bad as its Coach Adolph Rupp fears? Is Toledo a real dark horse? Can Kansas State beat out Oklahoma State in the Big Eight? Will Oregon State again be the top independent on the Pacific Coast?

The main question is, of course, can any of them beat out Loyola of Chicago and New York University, rated one-two in the pre-season Associated Press poll.

Munising League Action Continues

MUNISING—Action resumed this week in the Independent Basketball League and saw previously unbeaten Madigan's Hardware defeated by Chevies News 46-41. Capt. Denny Maki scored 15 and was followed by Joe Hase with 14, and Dick Madigan had 13 for the winners. Duane Lincoln netted 17 and Allen Prato 12 for the losers.

Burns Dept. Store won a big game by wallowing winless Bosch Beer 84-40. The win leaves Burns the only unbeaten team in the league. Next week, however, they will meet Madigan's who have lost only one contest. Five starters hit in the double figures for Burns with Capt. Jim Wickstrom hitting 27, Jim Maki 17, George Anderson 16, Dan Artibe and Tony Bogetto 11 each. Bob Tweedale had 16 and Ron Des Armo 14 for the losers.

Baij's Bar recorded their second win with a 52-38 victory over State Farm Insurance. Mike Perimaki netted 17, Dale Charbeneau 11 and Fuzz Boyak 10 for Baij's. Bill Mazzalli hit 14 and Ed Vertz 13 for State Farm.

Ward's Super Service tallied their second win of the season with a 52-51 squeaker over Prudential. Dick Larsen, center for Wards, dropped in 20 points and was aided by Skip Bray with 15, Mike Gosselin with 22 for the losers.

Sunday night's schedule: Madigan's vs. Burns, 5 p.m.; Bosch Beer vs. Chevies News, 8:15; Wards Super Service vs. State Farm Ins., 7:30, and Baij's Bar vs. Prudential, 8:45.

CM All-Opponent Team Includes 4 Northern Players

MOUNT PLEASANT—Northern Michigan University dominated the 12-man All-Opponent team selected by the Central Michigan University team members this week.

The Wildcats, 19-0 winners over Central in mid-season, placed four players on the unit. Representing Northern were sophomore center Pete Pavloski, senior guard Bob Kaibfleisch, senior tackle Jack Mauro and senior fullback Don Bangert.

Northern Illinois, Western Illinois and Youngstown each placed two players with Eradley and Illinois State each qualifying one player.

Ryan Says 7,624 Ends To NFL Race To NFL Race

CLEVELAND (AP)—Frank Ryan, quarterback of the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, is a handy man to have around when a mathematical problem pops up.

Aware that Ryan is about to get his doctor's degree in mathematics—a subject which he hopes to teach in college some day—Hal Lebovitz, sports writer of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, telephoned Ryan with this problem: "As of today, how many possible 'final standings' combinations are there" among the top four teams in the NFL's Eastern Division?

"This is a challenge," Ryan, whose team is a contender, said eagerly. "I'll call you back."

"In your league tie games are thrown out. They don't count when you figure the percentages."

"Of course I know that. Doesn't everybody?" Ryan hung up and called back a little later.

"I've established the maximum number, the most it can possibly be," he told the writer. "It's 10 to the fourth power. That means you multiply 10 by itself four times. You know that, don't you?"

"Sure. Doesn't everybody?" Ryan said 10 to the fourth power comes to 10,000.

"Check me out," he added. "I'm not too sharp on multiplication. Lebovitz did a little figuring and got 10,000 also."

"You mean," asked Lebovitz, "there are that many possible combinations for the way those four teams could finish?"

"No. There are some redundancies in the total. I'll figure out the duplications and call you back."

So he did. "Nothing to lose?" "I calculated the redundancies, subtracted them from 10,000 and the number of possible combinations comes to 7,624," said the quarterback. "I'll bank my reputation on this. What have I to lose?"

"You know," Ryan continued, "it's possible, for example, for the Browns to beat St. Louis, lose the next two and still finish on top."

"Yes, but the sure way is to win all three," said Lebovitz. "That's how I figure it too," Ryan said.

out Loyola of Chicago and New York University, rated one-two in the pre-season Associated Press poll.

Start Next Week
The Loyola Ramblers, who upset Cincinnati for the national championship last March, and the Violets do not open until next week, the same as the sixth-ranked Arizona State Sun Devils.

Cincinnati was third in the pre-season poll. Duke fourth and Wichita fifth. After Arizona State, Ohio State, Michigan, Kentucky and Oregon State with UCLA, Kansas State, North Carolina and San Francisco close behind.

Ohio State begins things today with an afternoon game at home against U. California of Davis.

Royals Lose Homecoming Tilt, 61-60

The Marquette Bishop Baraga Royals last night dropped a painful Homecoming roundball game to the Gwin Model Towners, 61-60, losing out in the last few minutes of play.

The Model Towners ended the first period with a very slender 15-14 margin, as Purple, Erickson and Copley shared scoring for the visitors. Richie Balmes dropped in three field goals for the Royals to lead their first-quarter scoring.

BBCHS Fired Up
Gwin's second period performance equalled the first, with Erickson and Fallon dropping in the majority of their 15 points, but the Royals fired up to a 20-point showing during the period to take a 34-30 lead at half time, mostly on the part of Pesola and Berglund, as well as three buckets by Kessel.

Model Towners shooting soured in the third quarter to some degree, as they netted only 11 points, while the Royals built their lead to 48-41, still leading consistently, and entered the final period looking like a winner.

The fourth quarter, however, was the downfall of the Royals, as the Model Towners took advantage of breaks given them by Bishop Baraga in the last few minutes to draw even and then bulge ahead for the victory. Fallon and Purple sparked the Gwin scoring, which totaled 20 points in this final phase of the contest, while the Royals limped along with 12 points, contributed by six of the team's members.

The Royals maintained their lead, which dwindled slowly as the Model Towners zeroed in on the Royal bucket, and lost the game in the last few moments of play, losing a four-point lead in giving the ball away to Gwin, which made good use of possession in erasing the lead.

Armas Hamari's boys split scoring chores among them, four of them hitting in double figures, while Jerry Erickson's Model Towners benefitted from the double-digit scoring of three players.

The Royals shot well from the free-throw line, missing only three attempts out of 15, while the Model Towners missed 12 free throw tries out of 23. The teams were nearly even on field goals made, as the Bishop Baraga group netted 24 to Gwin's 25, but the greater Gwin volume in free throws made all the difference in the final total.

Celtics Like It Slippery; Pistons Lose Another Game

(By The Associated Press)
There seems to be something out of the ordinary whenever the Boston Celtics play one of their National Basketball Association games on a neutral court in Providence, R.I.

Back on Feb. 15, Bob Cousy tossed in record basketball's longest shot on record, a 79-footer, against the Syracuse Nats. Friday night the Celtics found a slippery floor to their liking and raced to a 112-78 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers, net the Nats.

Under Protest
The 76ers, who took over the Syracuse franchise after last season, played the last quarter under protest. Player-coach Dolph Schayes claimed the floor at the Rhode Island Auditorium was too slippery from rain seeping through the roof. At the time Boston led 63-34 as Tommy Heinsoh, with 18 points, Bill Russell with 15 and Clyde Lovellette with 13, seemed to have no trouble getting around.

It was the seventh straight victory and the 14th against only one defeat for the Celtics who are after their sixth straight NBA championship.

Cincinnati, the only club to beat the Celtics so far this season, crushed the New York Knicks 135-110 in one of the three other scheduled NBA games Friday night. Baltimore edged San Francisco 100-99 and Los Angeles drubbed Detroit 127-111.

Jerry West sparked the Lakers to victory over the Pistons and set the stage for a showdown clash for the Western Division lead in the National Basketball Association.

The win was the Lakers' 12th in 20 games and moved them back into a first place tie with the idle St. Louis Hawks. The two teams meet in St. Louis Saturday night.

West netted 15 points to stake the Lakers to a 46-24 lead early in the game, then hit a cold spell, making only one of 12 shots.

The Pistons pulled to within eight points, 61-53, at halftime, and then cut the Lakers lead to four points (74-70) midway in the third period.

At this point, West again found the range and dumped in five straight shots, plus a free throw, to give Los Angeles a 97-80 advantage.

Persol Wins On Decision

NEW YORK (AP)—After only 10 pro fights Johnny Persol is ready to step into the light heavyweight division's top 10.

The undefeated, 22-year-old Brooklyn shipping clerk served notice on the other top-notchers by whipping ninth-ranked Allen Thomas of Chicago in a television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

"I can hold my own with any of them," he said.

The upset victory made it 10 straight for the poised youngster who turned pro in January after winning all of his 85 amateur fights.

Poise, Skill
Called in to sub for Peruvian Maruo Mina only 11 days ago, Persol displayed poise, skill and stamina in going 10 rounds for the first time.

The rangy, broad-shouldered underdog swept the first five rounds, tired and lost the next two, and then came on to wrap up the verdict over the 12-5 favorite.

A natural light heavy, Persol weighed 174 1/2 to Thomas' 172 1/2. Thomas' record now is 19-3-1.

The officials had Persol ahead by the following rounds scores: judge Bill Reht, 6-2-2; judge Joe Armstrong, 7-3, and referee Joe LoScalzo, 5-4-1. The AP's card had Persol in front, 7-3.

Illinois, MSU Grab 2 Berths

CHICAGO (AP)—Champion Illinois and runnerup Michigan State each grabbed two berths on the 1963 All-Big Ten football team named by The Associated Press Saturday.

Center Dick Butkus and tackle Archie Sutton, part of Illinois' great defensive team, were selected on the squad along with end Dan Underwood of Michigan State and teammate Sherman Lewis, one of the speediest halfbacks in the country.

All Except OSU
Except for Ohio State, which for years has dominated All-Big Ten football teams, every other club in the league placed one man on the first team.

Lewis and Butkus, along with tackle Carl Eller of Minnesota, were unanimous choices. Joining Lewis in the backfield were fullback Tom Nowatzke of Indiana, halfback Lou Holland of Wisconsin and quarterback Ron DiGravio of Purdue.

Other members of the first team were end Chuck Logan of Northwestern, and guards Mike Reilly of Iowa and Joe O'Donnell of Michigan.

Second Team
Paul Warfield, Ohio State halfback on the 1962 first team, dropped into the No. 2 backfield

Wings Have Chance, If They Win

DETROIT (AP)—The fourth-place Detroit Red Wings have a chance to move half way back toward first place this weekend, if they can win without the help of a top goalie, defenseman and forward.

Goalie Terry Sawchuk, defenseman Bill Gadsby and forward Norm Ullman are on the injury list for tonight's game at Toronto and Sunday night's game against the Maple Leafs in Detroit.

The Wings trail third-place Toronto by seven points in the National Hockey League standings. They can make up four of those points by winning both games this weekend.

Losses, however, could drop Detroit into fifth. The Wings now are tied with New York for fourth and are only three points ahead of last-place Boston.

which included Tom Myers of Northwestern, Paul Krause of Iowa and Jim Grabowski of Illinois.

Rounding out the No. 2 team were ends Bob Hadrick of Purdue and Floyd Webb of Iowa; tackles Bill Keating of Michigan and Roger Pillath of Wisconsin; guards Tom Jenkins of Ohio State and Earl Lattimer of Michigan State, and center Frank Marchlewski of Minnesota.

2 Granddaddies Are Spotlited

(By The Associated Press)
A couple of doddering granddaddies—the bowl and one The Game—take the spotlight today in the somber windup of collegiate football's regular season play.

The host spot in the Rose Bowl, granddaddy of all the post-season extravaganzas, will be settled in a couple of Big Six family squabbles at Los Angeles and Seattle, with Washington's Huskies favored to take it all.

Most Storied Game
And in New Haven, Conn., The Game will match Harvard and Yale for the 80th time in the most storied of all the traditional games.

Those three games, along with a majority of the same scheduled, were postponed from last weekend because of the death of President Kennedy.

Russ Robertson, superintendent of the Marquette Fish Hatchery, employs "Australian method" to siphon lake trout sperm from fish into vial for later use in fertilizing eggs. (Mining Journal photo.)

Record Number Of Laker Eggs Collected Here

A record 6,568,976 lake trout eggs were collected this fall at the Marquette Fish Hatchery, the nation's largest lake trout egg production center.

The total is well over a million above last year's 5,127,128 eggs. In fact, the total has increased every year since the hatchery first began collecting lake trout eggs in 1954, when a mere 17,160 were taken. The big jump occurred in 1960, when 2,420,116 eggs were collected from female lakers, nearly five times the total of 485,990 taken in the previous year.

Reason for the big increase in 1960, said Russ Robertson, hatchery superintendent, was the fact that a large number (about 1,000) of females "came ripe" — i.e., reached maturity, which is six or seven years of age — during 1960.

Robertson predicts the number of eggs collected at the hatchery here will continue to increase. "We will be shooting for 10,000,000 eggs or more in another year or two," he said.

Part of the reason for his optimism lies in the success the hatchery crew has had with using the so-called "Australian method" for obtaining sperm to fertilize the eggs. The method was used at the hatchery for the first time last year.

Prior to use of the Australian method, hatchery crews squeezed the sperm directly from male lake trout into pans of eggs to fertilize them.

The Australian method permits sperm to be collected by siphoning it directly from the fish into small vials. The vials are kept iced, and the sperm thus can be used any time within 24 hours with good success.

Many Advantages
Robertson said this has many advantages.

Of the 6,568,976 eggs collected and fertilized from that number of fish this fall, 800,000 eyed eggs were shipped to the Wisconsin Department of Conservation for hatching, rearing and later release in Lake Superior to help restock that body of water with lake trout. Another 500,000 eyed eggs were shipped to the Minnesota Department of Conservation for the same purpose, and 3,500,000 of the remaining hatched lake trout will be transferred next June to the U. S. Fish Hatchery at Pindill's Creek in Chippewa County for further rearing and later release in Lake Superior.

Robertson is optimistic about the eventual restocking of lakers in the Great Lakes, but he's still seeking to get greater production of trout eggs at the Marquette hatchery. Spurred by the success of the Australian method of collecting sperm, he is now looking into the possibility of applying another Australian technique — air spawning — to the collection of eggs in hopes that the hatchery can eliminate manual stripping of female lakers just as it has eliminated manual stripping of male fish.

Lakes Named
This fall's releases of fingerlings in the Upper Peninsula totaled 100,000 in Lake Michigan, Marquette County; 10,000 in Little Oxbow Lake, Gogebic County, and 50,000 each in Golden and Smokey Lakes in Iron County.

Plantings of legal-sized lake trout included 1,245 in Grand Sable Lake, Alger County; 100 in Tilden Lake, Marquette County; 1,000 in Squaw Lake, Marquette County, and 3,000 each in Chicago and Golden Lakes in Iron County.

RAINBOW NAME
The rainbow trout gets its name from the red stripe often plainly visible along its sides. The over all body color may vary from silver to green to nearly black. Almost always, irregular black spots are visible on head, tail, body and fins.

Elk In Michigan
From a total of eight animals released in the Pigeon River area during the 1918-19 period, Michigan's elk herd has grown to become one of the major tourist attractions in this neck of the state's northern woods. It also has expanded to create a problem of numbers; a problem marked by such storm warnings as over-browsing and indications of elk starvation. Size of the herd is estimated between 2,000 and 3,500 animals. The conservation department has undertaken a long-range research program to refine this estimate and cross-check other information which has been collected since the herd was established 45 years ago. While this project has not been completed, one fact stands out clearly: Some small-scale, carefully controlled hunting is going to be needed soon and carried on from year to year to keep these animals from doing further damage to limited winter food supplies which are also used by deer. Main goal of the elk management program will be to maintain and promote the value of this herd as a public viewing attraction.

U.P. Has 15 New Public Fishing Sites
Thirty-one new public fishing sites will be available in Michigan next year, 15 of them in the Upper Peninsula. They were developed during the past season with federal Accelerated Public Works matching funds and bring to 538 the number of usable sites throughout the state. Provide Free Access Facilities at each site include a boat launching ramp, parking lot, trash barrel and pit toilets. Sites are acquired, developed and maintained by the conservation department to provide free access to waters which otherwise would be closed to public use.

State money used in the site program comes from the game and fish protection fund (hunting and fishing licenses), and in recent years work was at a standstill because of budget limitations. Availability of federal money permits the current increase in development projects.

Rep. Mack points to hemlock pulp wood salvage from the right of way of the last five miles of the south boundary road that traverses virgin timber in the Porkies Park. Dry weather during the summer and fall speeded up construction work on the project, which will be completed next year.

274-Pounder May Be Top Deer Of '63

A deer shot near Big Bay in Marquette County may prove to be the largest taken in Michigan during the 1963 season.

It was a nine-point buck that weighed 274 1/2 pounds on the hoof. The deer was shot by Roger Little of downstate Williamston.

Another large deer was bagged in the Weston area of Mackinac County by Peter Ciccarelli of Grand Rapids. It was a 10-pointer that dressed out at 220 and probably weighed 265 alive. Each of the other three hunters in Ciccarelli's party also got a buck.

The hatchery's total brood stock of lakers now amounts to 3,373 females and about 600 males.

New Road Through Porkies Park Will Be Completed During 1964

Next year will see the completion of a new road on the southern boundary of the Porcupine Mountains State Park.

This road will bring to realization several years of effort to furnish visitors with a means of travel from one end of the park to the other. It will make more readily available to the public the spectacular Presque Isle valley and its beautiful waterfalls.

Through Virgin Forest
The last five miles of this new road will travel through a virgin forest area, opening up, for all to see, vistas of scenic forested lands. One of the last stands of great hemlock, maple and yellow birch will offer solitude, beauty and enjoyment to the traveler. The road will cross or bring one near trout streams, such as the Little Carp River, Pinkertons, Teibels, Speakers Creeks and the Presque Isle River.

The construction area recently was visited by State Rep. Joseph Mack, D-Ironwood, who worked to have the road constructed through this piece of wilderness, where the public would have a chance to view the forest primeval. Towering evergreens and heavy crowned deciduous trees line the road-sides. The few scars of construction soon will disappear, and drivers can travel at ease over a well-constructed road.

Series Of Waterfalls
At the western end of the highway a new bridge crossing the Presque Isle River has just been completed. A very short distance downhill begins a series of waterfalls as the tree lined river makes its final plunge into Lake Superior.

With the completion of the "South Boundary Road" through the Porcupine Mountains State Park, a new development consisting of campground, picnic area and scenic trails will be constructed close to the mouth of the Presque Isle River. This will prove to be one of the finest camping and scenic areas in the Upper Peninsula, according to Glenn Gregg, Marquette, regional parks and recreation supervisor for the conservation department. It will make available to the visitor modern camping facilities, sweeping views of Lake Superior and the falls area of the river, he said. Construction is expected to be completed by late fall of 1964, with the new area ready for use in the spring of 1965.

Another large deer was bagged in the Weston area of Mackinac County by Peter Ciccarelli of Grand Rapids. It was a 10-pointer that dressed out at 220 and probably weighed 265 alive. Each of the other three hunters in Ciccarelli's party also got a buck.

Simple Steps To Good Eating

Rabbits which are dressed out right after they have been shot make for best eating at the family table. Field-dressing starts by making a cut at the breastbone and continuing down between the back legs. After the "innards" have been removed, its ready for cleaning which is easy, too. Raise the skin in the center of the back and run a knife, or shears, through it. Get hold of both pieces of skin and pull in opposite directions. Skin the legs by using your thumb and forefinger to run the skin down them. Cut each leg off just above the last joint. Next, pull the skin over the head until you can see the neck, and snip off the head. Cut the carcass as shown above and wash these pieces thoroughly in cold water to remove all hair and blood. Cover each piece with salt water in a bowl and let it stand overnight.

North Country Notes

Strange Bird Behavior

ONE night during the past bird season, William E. Laycock of Marquette, regional game supervisor for the conservation department, was driving home from Ralph in Dickinson County. He decided to drive along some back roads and shine for deer. He spotted a lot of deer, one bobcat — and a ruffed grouse roosting in the middle of a two-rut road near the Little West Branch of the Escanaba River. Laycock was amazed to discover that a ruffed grouse would roost in such an exposed place, but he was even more amazed by what happened later. He stopped the car about 15 feet from the bird. The grouse awakened, ruffed its feathers and then pulled its neck back in and went back to sleep. Laycock got out of the car and walked toward the bird, keeping himself out of the road so that the headlights wouldn't cast a shadow on the grouse. He walked within a couple of feet of the bird, bent over and picked it up in his hands. The grouse awakened again immediately and struggled to get free. Laycock released the bird, and it flew down the road in the headlights and then disappeared in the darkness.

THE incident brought to mind another case of strange grouse behavior that I encountered during the recent bird season. My son and I had been hunting cross country in an area in northern Marquette County one afternoon and were walking along the road that led back to our car. Suddenly I heard the unmistakable sound of a ruffed grouse taking wing, and I realized instantly that the bird had flown out of a tree under which we had just passed. I picked the bird up as it shot in front of us, and I managed to drop it. The odd part of the incident is this: If the bird had held tight in the tree or if it had flown away from us instead of over and past us, neither of us would have had a shot at it. But the grouse chose the only possible course of action that could have led to his demise, proving once again that partridge are the most unpredictable of all birds.

WOODCOCK are more predictable than ruffed grouse, but one of them turned in a truly surprising performance last year and probably is still chuckling about it. I was hunting woodcock in Dickinson County with Tom Frawdzik of Ishpeming, who owns a very promising young English setter. We were casing the uplands on an exceptionally hot afternoon when his dog made a point at the edge of a small hazel bush. Pravdzik already had taken his limit of five birds (in fact, he dropped them in 35 minutes, using only five shots to turn the trick), so I knew he wanted me to flush the woodcock his setter was pointing. The woodcock had other ideas. It absolutely refused to flush until I stepped into the hazel bush and almost trod upon the bird. In taking flight, the woodcock actually struck my wrist with one of its wings and completely threw me off balance. By the time I had swung around into position, the bird was behind a popple tree and as safe as the Hope diamond. —KSL

Snowy Owls Victims Of Pesticides?

Are snowy owls being killed off by insecticides? That question was raised this week when conservation authorities received reports of at least three snowy owls that had died under unusual circumstances. In all of the cases, the birds were found unable to fly and acting listless. The birds were caught, but soon died in captivity.

Spraying In Ontario
William E. Laycock, Marquette, regional game supervisor for the conservation department, said pesticide poisoning was a possible cause of death because a large scale insecticide program had been undertaken during the year in Ontario to combat a spruce budworm infestation. The snowy owls that migrated into the Upper Peninsula this fall would have had to pass through the sprayed area in Ontario, Laycock said.

One of the owls was taken to the Casino Wildlife Experiment Station in Alger County. Biologists at Casino plan to send the carcass to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service experimental laboratory in Patuxent, Md., for an autopsy to determine if the death might have been caused by poisoning. Meanwhile, biologists asked anyone finding a snowy owl with the symptoms described above to notify the conservation department. They pointed

'63 U. P. Harvest Of Deer Shapes As 2nd Highest On Record

Despite weather conditions that were not ideal, the 1963 deer hunting season in the Upper Peninsula is expected to result in the second highest kill on record.

Final figures on the deer kill are not yet available (the season ends tonight in the eastern third of the U.P.), but William E. Laycock, Marquette, regional game supervisor for the conservation department, said he expects the total harvest to exceed 30,000 deer. Record Set In 1959

The record Upper Peninsula deer kill occurred in 1959, when 39,580 whitetails were taken. (Figures used here represent the total hunting kill — general firearms season, archery take and camp deer.) As of now, the second highest total was in 1958, when 30,030 deer were shot. If Laycock's expectations are borne out, the 1963 total will slightly surpass the figure for 1958.

Part of the reason for his optimism lies in the success the hatchery crew has had with using the so-called "Australian method" for obtaining sperm to fertilize the eggs. The method was used at the hatchery for the first time last year.

Prior to use of the Australian method, hatchery crews squeezed the sperm directly from male lake trout into pans of eggs to fertilize them.

The Australian method permits sperm to be collected by siphoning it directly from the fish into small vials. The vials are kept iced, and the sperm thus can be used any time within 24 hours with good success.

Many Advantages
Robertson said this has many advantages.

Of the 6,568,976 eggs collected and fertilized from that number of fish this fall, 800,000 eyed eggs were shipped to the Wisconsin Department of Conservation for hatching, rearing and later release in Lake Superior to help restock that body of water with lake trout. Another 500,000 eyed eggs were shipped to the Minnesota Department of Conservation for the same purpose, and 3,500,000 of the remaining hatched lake trout will be transferred next June to the U. S. Fish Hatchery at Pindill's Creek in Chippewa County for further rearing and later release in Lake Superior.

Robertson is optimistic about the eventual restocking of lakers in the Great Lakes, but he's still seeking to get greater production of trout eggs at the Marquette hatchery. Spurred by the success of the Australian method of collecting sperm, he is now looking into the possibility of applying another Australian technique — air spawning — to the collection of eggs in hopes that the hatchery can eliminate manual stripping of female lakers just as it has eliminated manual stripping of male fish.

Lakes Named
This fall's releases of fingerlings in the Upper Peninsula totaled 100,000 in Lake Michigan, Marquette County; 10,000 in Little Oxbow Lake, Gogebic County, and 50,000 each in Golden and Smokey Lakes in Iron County.

Plantings of legal-sized lake trout included 1,245 in Grand Sable Lake, Alger County; 100 in Tilden Lake, Marquette County; 1,000 in Squaw Lake, Marquette County, and 3,000 each in Chicago and Golden Lakes in Iron County.

RAINBOW NAME
The rainbow trout gets its name from the red stripe often plainly visible along its sides. The over all body color may vary from silver to green to nearly black. Almost always, irregular black spots are visible on head, tail, body and fins.

Elk In Michigan
From a total of eight animals released in the Pigeon River area during the 1918-19 period, Michigan's elk herd has grown to become one of the major tourist attractions in this neck of the state's northern woods. It also has expanded to create a problem of numbers; a problem marked by such storm warnings as over-browsing and indications of elk starvation. Size of the herd is estimated between 2,000 and 3,500 animals. The conservation department has undertaken a long-range research program to refine this estimate and cross-check other information which has been collected since the herd was established 45 years ago. While this project has not been completed, one fact stands out clearly: Some small-scale, carefully controlled hunting is going to be needed soon and carried on from year to year to keep these animals from doing further damage to limited winter food supplies which are also used by deer. Main goal of the elk management program will be to maintain and promote the value of this herd as a public viewing attraction.

U.P. Has 15 New Public Fishing Sites
Thirty-one new public fishing sites will be available in Michigan next year, 15 of them in the Upper Peninsula. They were developed during the past season with federal Accelerated Public Works matching funds and bring to 538 the number of usable sites throughout the state. Provide Free Access Facilities at each site include a boat launching ramp, parking lot, trash barrel and pit toilets. Sites are acquired, developed and maintained by the conservation department to provide free access to waters which otherwise would be closed to public use.

State money used in the site program comes from the game and fish protection fund (hunting and fishing licenses), and in recent years work was at a standstill because of budget limitations. Availability of federal money permits the current increase in development projects.

Although a young cottontail rabbit has only one chance in 20 of reaching its first birthday, it is one of our most common animals.
