STIFF SENTENCES FOR AUTOMOBILE THIEVES

Detroit.—Automobile thieves who appear in federal court will be shown no leniency, Judge Arthur J. Tuttle intimated Thursday when Robert Edwards, the first man in Michigan, to plead guilty under the Dyer act, was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth penitentiary. Roberts pleaded guilty of stealing a car in Detroit and transporting it to Toledo, where he sold it. The Dyer act prohibits the transportation of a stolen machine from one state to another.

Judge Tuttle announced that in cases where he considers it advisable to impose a fine it will not be less than $1,000.

COMPEL GERMANY TO RESPECT PLANS

ECONOMIC PRESSURE URGED TO BE BROUGHT TO BEAR: ARMED FORCE MAY BE USED.

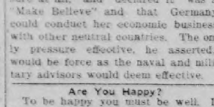

Rome, Italy, April 19.—The Italian Chamber of Deputies met today in Villa Devotiana on the hills to the northwest of the main town.

While the Turkish question was the first on the program today for consideration by the conference discussion was already being held over the prompt execution of the Versailles Treaty with Germany. No doubt was expressed by the premiers that a joint declaration must be sent to Germany requiring her to fulfill the conditions of the treaty, and if she does not do so, the allies will take measures to compel her.

The premiers however have not yet agreed on what form of pressure to be used should Germany continue her negligence.

Premier Lloyd George urged an "economic pressure" depriving her of food and raw materials and intercourse with allied countries. Premier Millerand is described as having said that pressure without use of naval or military aid would in effect be no pressure at all, and declared it was a "Make Believe" and that Germany could conduct her economic business with other neutral countries. The only pressure effective, he asserted, would be force as the naval and military advisors would deem effective.

I Sprang After Her.

I must have been half asleep for I came back to myself with a start and sprang to my feet. Jacqueline had risen upon her knees; she flung her arms out wildly, and suddenly she caught her breath and screamed, and stood up and ran uncertainly toward me with hands that groped for me. She found me, I caught her, and she pushed me from her and shuddered and stared at me in that uncertain doubt that follows dreams.

"I am here, Jacqueline," I said. "With you—always, till you send me away. Remember that even in dreams, Jacqueline."

The Fungus and Snow Blindness. My rest was miserable. In a succession of brief dreams I died with Jacqueline over a wilderness of ice, while in the distance, ever drawing nearer, followed Leroux, Lacroix and Pere Antoine.

I must have fallen sound asleep at last, for when I opened my eyes the sun was shining brightly low down over the Riviere d'Or. The door of the tent stood open and Jacqueline was not inside. With the remembrance of my dream still confounding wally I ran toward the trees, shouting for her in fear. "Jacqueline! Jacqueline!" I called. She was coming toward me. She took me by the arm. "Paul!" she began with quivering lips. "Paul!" She led me into the recesses of the pines. There, in a little open place, clustered together upon the ground, were the bodies of our dogs. All were dead. Jacqueline sank down upon the ground and sobbed as though her heart would break. I stood there watching, my brain paralyzed by the shock of the discovery. Then I went back to the sleigh, on the rear of which the frozen fish was laid. I noticed that it had a faint, slightly aromatic odor. I flung the hard masses aside and scooped up a powdery substance with my hands. Myology had been a hobby of mine, and it was easy to recognize what that substance was. It was the amanita, the deadliest and most widely distributed of the fungi, and the great of all vegetable poisons to man and beast alike. The alkaloid which it contains takes effect only some hours after its ingestion, when it has entered the blood stream

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

The making of a magnificent temple of a collection of costly jewels is a dramatic feature of the William Fox Photoplay, "The Jungle Trail," starring William Farnum, which will be the feature of the program at the Lyric theatre tonight. The temple is in the heart of Africa and belongs to a strange race of idol-worshipping people, found by an American hunter after fleeing from natives who had been employed to kill him.

A romance in New York society is said to be the basis of "The Jungle Trail." A club man desires to lose his rival in the wilds of Africa and concocts a story about a great, man-eating tiger for which a large reward is offered. Once in the jungle, the American is beset by a whole tribe of natives. He escapes by a ruse and in his wanderings finds an isolated race of people, by whom he at first is taken for a god. Subsequently he has great trouble in escaping, but succeeds with the aid of a girl.

A picture with a true rural atmosphere and of human interest is the one billed at the New Princess, "The Fortune Hunter," with Earle Williams, starring as Nat Dunham, says the St. Paul Pioneer Tribune. There is comedy throughout the entire picture, and what seems to be the most serious and critical moments furnish the greatest amusement.

Things start humming after Nat gets there, and trade picks up. "Blinky," Lockwood, the town banker with his peculiar twinkle or twitch of the eye, is not taken seriously by Nat, who is wooing his daughter. Another provision in the act was to win a wealthy girl in town and do the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallinford" act. He repents at leisure, however, and wins the girl, Betty Graham, the daughter of the druggist.

Nancy Lee, Lockwood's daughter, Josie, takes her part as a spoiled child exceedingly well.—At Gladstone Theatre tonight.

Madge Kennedy in her series of Goldwyn Pictures always delights her admirers by wearing dainty, delicate, feminine that seems to be a part of her rather than just a collection of costly dresses. She abhors fashion parades and ostentatious costumes. Rather she prefers to attire her characters as she would dress herself. This is accomplished with unusual success in "Leave It To Susan," her new Goldwyn Picture which comes to the Lyric theatre, Saturday night.

Buck Jones, the new sensation of the screen and William Fox's newest male star, will end his successful engagement in Harold Titus' "The Last Straw" at the Lyric theatre Sunday. In this, his first picture, Buck Jones has the role of a Western cowpuncher who has many thrilling experiences with a band of rustlers operating on the ranch of the girl with whom he is in love. The picture is filled with sensational feats of daring, while a delightful love story runs through it. Jones, who served in the Moro uprising in the Philippines and the world war, furnishes many thrills by his extraordinary horsemanship.

Lovers of rapid action on the screen cannot afford to miss this picture, in which Vivian Rich, an leading woman, is a perfect foil for the star.

In the Pioneer Film Corporation five-reel production of "Little Orphan Annie," the late James Whitecomb Riley himself appears. The beloved poet is shown surrounded by the children he loved so well and is presented in several scenes.

The film story is, of course, based on the Hoosier poet's most famous poem. All of the characters of the original have been brought to the screen in a lifelike manner, and the appeal of the story is bound to move deeply all those who see it.

"Little Orphan Annie" is to be shown as a special attraction at the Gladstone Theatre, Saturday and Sunday, April 24-25.

There has never been a poem by an American writer which has been more widely read than "Little Orphan Annie."

Millions of people all over the country have been anxiously awaiting an opportunity to see this photodramatic version of their favorite poem, and it is indeed fortunate that Manager Bosley has been able to book it for the enjoyment of his patrons.

The daily papers of the country recently carried a story of the manner in which contributions were made to the fund to erect a memorial to the late James Whitecomb Riley. Among others over one million children gave their pennies towards the monument that now stands in the poet's home town in Indiana.

WORSHIPPER SHOT TAKING COLLECTION IN NEW YORK CHURCH

New York, April 19.—James Markoe, a prominent surgeon, was shot and killed on Sunday while taking up the offering at the morning service in the fashionable St. George's Protestant Episcopal church in the old aristocratic district of New York.

His assailant was captured after a short chase by a group of parishioners, headed by William Fellowes Morgan, president of the Merchants' association of New York; Dr. G. E. Brewer and J. M. Jones.

At the police station the prisoner gave his first name as Thomas W. Shelley and later as Thomas W. Simpson.

The police said he told them he had escaped on Thursday from the Eastern State Hospital for the Insane at Williamsburg, Va.

Rubber Collar is Coming Back, Say Dealers

The rubber collar, adornment extraordinary for the country banquiner of an age now dead, promises to stage a comeback among the city "dudes" of the twentieth century, according to local haberdashers.

Constantly soaring prices of the soft and stiff neckwear, coupled with the increasing cost of laundering, is sounding the death knell of linen and cambric white collars, the haberdasher declared.

"In the days when the linen collar sold two for 25 cents there was almost no demand for rubber collars," said the manager of one of the clothing shops. "Since that time however, soft collars have gone as high as 40, 50 and 75 cents while linen collars are selling for 25 cents each and are expected to go even higher in a short time."

The price of laundering a white collar used to be 2 cents. Now it is 4 and 5 cents. So it seems that white rubber collars for a work-day wear, will come back in style. It was pointed out that the rubber collar has a few advantages over linen or cambric neckwear in that they can be easily laundered.
