GLADSTONE LOST GAME YESTERDAY

THE LACK OF TEAM WORK WAS SHOWN THROUGHOUT ENTIRE GAME

Gladstone came near receiving another shut out at the hands of the Munising team yesterday afternoon in an uninteresting game. The final score was seven to 1, in favor of the visitors. Gladstone made its lone run in the eighth frame when Terry, the new man at short hit for one second, and beat out the ball to first base. Butler, the next man up, flew out to second, and then Peeney landed on the pill for two sacks and scored the run. For a time it looked as if several more scores would be added, but Poltras hit a long one to center which was snubbed and the last out made at first.

It is evident from the game Sunday that there is a lack of team work as several bad plays were made that should have been averted. Although the team was strengthened by the addition of a couple of new men, there was an absence of team work that proved to be costly. Calder, who was in the box for five innings was placed on the bench, but Zyrd, who relieved him, was not much better though he struck out more men. The general listless playing however was discouraging to both pitchers, and when the visitors had bettered his lead in the third inning, the boys seemed to have lost their pep. The attendance was the largest so far this year, the gate and grand stand receipts totaling over $200.

BLUEBERRY CROP WILL BE LARGE THIS YEAR

A large blueberry crop this summer is being predicted by those who have traversed the ground where the berries are usually the thickest. The number of bushes and blossoms is larger than usual, they assert, and the bushes as a whole appear more vigorous than for some years past. The crops for some years past have been only average and it is expected that a bumper season will attract the many pickers to the fields.

No estimates have been made as to the price the berries will command, owing to the falling off in demand anticipated because of the sugar shortage. Should the situation improve to such an extent that supplies of sugar will be available for canning, it is believed that the berries will command high prices, but if the present shortage continues the price paid for the fruit will doubtless take a much lower level.

INJUNCTION IS TO SERVE FRIDAY ON STRIKERS

CHIEF OF POLICE L. DANIELSON SERVES ORDER ON THE KIPLING MEN.

Copies of a temporary injunction similar to the restraining order issued against a number of North Western Copeague and Lumber Company strikers, were served Friday morning by Chief of Police Danielson on members of the Timberworkers' Union at the Cleveland Kings Iron Co. Similar complaints to the first case have been made, and the order was issued for the protection of those men who have gone back to work for the company, and who have been bothered with so-called "pickets."

According to the injunction, the defendants must appear in court before Judge Richard Flanagan, June 25, and state causes why the order should not be permanent.

In only one case did Mr. Danielson meet with any kind of trouble. That one man made it known that he was going to do pretty much as he liked, and even after being told the seriousness of the matter, he didn't seem to care.

Coterie Will Meet Tomorrow.

The midsummer party which is given by the Coterie every year before the summer holiday, will not take place for some time. It will be given at the home of Mrs. I. N. Hoshorn after she returns from the East.

DEER SEASON TO LAST 10 DAYS

GAME WARDEN WILL NOT HAVE CLOSED SEASON THIS FALL

State Game Warden Baird took a middle of the road course in the hearing held at Marquette Wednesday when he refused to take action prohibiting the hunting of deer in the upper peninsula counties this year, and as a compromise, cut the open season to ten days, from November 25 to 30, instead of twenty days as heretofore.

Sentiment in most of the upper peninsula counties as shown at the Marquette hearing was strongly in favor of prohibiting the hunting of deer entirely for at least a year and representatives who attended the meeting were bitterly disappointed at the action of Mr. Baird.

Mr. Baird promised to open the season in all lower peninsula counties this fall, which action, if taken, will greatly relieve the pressure upon the upper peninsula hunters.

Mr. Baird also informed the representatives of his intention to recommend to the next legislature an amendment to the game laws, increasing the deer hunting license to three dollars and doubling the present bounty on wolves. He would also prohibit the carrying of high powered guns in the woods except during hunting season.

Mr. Saylor, Lake county representative at the meeting, also secured a promise from Mr. Baird that the burned over territory north of Newberry, covered with dry brush, charred and fallen timber, and which is forming a constant fire menace to the city, would be burned off this summer at the expense of and under the direction of the state.

Council Meets Tonight.

NEW POWER LINE NEARLY THROUGH TO KINGSLEY'S

The Escanaba Paper company's power line, extending from the company's dam, No. 10 on the Escanaba river to the site for the new dam that is to be constructed at Kingsley's Falls, will be completed in another week. Until the dam is finished and power can be generated there, the power line will be used to carry current to the site of the new work for operating the motors on the hoists, mixers and other machinery. When the new dam is completed the same line will carry power to the pulp and paper mill and add to the surplus available for use by industries in this section.

As soon as the power line is completed electric current will be made available for the village and farms along the route of the line, and already the company is being besieged with applications for that service.

Many of the farmers are to install motors for the operation of their stationary farm machinery, and electric current will be used for lighting their houses and barns.

MICHIGAN HAS 4TH LARGEST CITY IN U. S.

Washington, D. C.—Detroit with a rate larger than that of Chicago and second to New York during the past ten years is now the fourth largest city of the United States, taking the place of St. Louis, surpassing Boston, Cleveland, Baltimore and Pittsburgh, all of which were larger than Detroit, ten years ago.

MORE MILLS START IN DISTRICT

SEVERAL ADDITIONAL PLANS BEGIN OPERATIONS THIS MORNING.

Several lumber mills and manufacturing plants in this district started this morning. The Copeague company expects to start its veneer mill some time this week as there are nearly enough men ready to go to work in this department.

At Marquette the Cleveland City sawmill, the woodswain plant and veneer mill, started this morning. The Birdseye veneer plant at Escanaba also resumed operations this morning with a 40 per cent output. At Merrill, Wis. the strike is over and practically all men are back on the job.

The strikers out here are firm in their stand and intend to hang on.

OLD LANDMARK HAS DISAPPEARED FROM VIEW

Another one of the old landmarks of this city has disappeared from view. The Frederick Huber building on Delta street, which was the city office for a couple of months ago when the interior was badly scorched, was sold recently to George Nebel, who already has torn most of it down. The building was erected some thirty years ago by Nick and John Walsh of Escanaba, and with the exception of the past six or seven years during which it has been occupied by the city, the building was always used for saloon purposes.

TIMBERWORKERS' STRIKE AT MANISTIQUE GROWING WEAKER

Manistique—The strike of the Timberworkers' Union for the eighth day grows weaker as many of the members return to work, tired of a struggle that spells ruin and disaster with new men taking jobs that have been occupied by the strikers for many years, and a prospect that grows darker day by day. This is the view taken by many of the men, although W. S. Rogers, secretary of the local union, states that there is little change and that the strike is still far from being finished.

Many of the union men are securing work at road construction at near by points, but the intention of returning to their old jobs when times become normal. At the various plants where operations are being carried on ready accessions of workers are reported. The men are filling positions of a prominent character and will not leave when the strike is declared off.

Cannot Put Name On Both Tickets

Public attention is called to certain changes in the primary law, by Clark Brown, head of the compilation division of the department of state.

A clause to the amendment enacted last year by the legislature provides that the name of no candidate shall be printed on any primary election ballot unless there shall be on file by the candidate an affidavit stating that he is a member of no political party under which he filed petitions.

This was designed to prevent a man running on two tickets as Henry Ford did in the 1918 primary, and as scores of others did in the various counties of Michigan. Attorney General Froesebeck, prior to the presidential preference primary, held this did not apply to candidates for chief executive.

OFFICIAL NUMBER OF FRENCH SOLDIERS KILLED

Paris—Final official statistics of the ministry of war fixes the total number of French soldiers killed during the great war at 1,362,872. Of this number the details of the fate of 361,854 are unknown, according to the Matin.

INCREASED RATES NOT ONLY THING NECESSARY TO MAKE RAILROAD SECURITIES DESIRABLE INVESTMENTS.

Washington—While urging substantial freight rate increases for the railroad, the Interstate Commerce Commission, Commissioner Fulbright of Houston, Texas, representing the southwestern industrial traffic league, told the interstate commerce commission today that the rate increases alone would not solve the transportation problem and that the rail thirty-one per cent increase asked by labor roads was not necessary.

The labor problem, the revenue problem and the tax problem are the three problems before the railroad, Mr. Fulbright said.

Increased rates will not solve the labor question under existing conditions, he said, declaring that the conditions themselves must be changed.

The root of the revenue problem lies in the market for railroad securities, Mr. Fulbright said, and increased rates will not create a market for securities.

Discussing the tax, Mr. Fulbright said, investors in railroad securities are handicapped with a heavy surtax and normal tax which reduced returns on the investment to only two or three per cent while municipal securities and liberty bonds largely were tax-free and thus gave a greater return to the investor.

He urged that the railroads use the same diligence in having the "tax discrimination" removed by legislation as they do in seeking increased rates.

Uniform rates throughout the west were urged by Mr. Fulbright.

A Hard Winter a Head of Us Says Broker

(From Menominee Herald Leader)

According to a Detroit bond broker who has just made his office because of the lack of business, many of the large industrial enterprises of Michigan's metropolis have begun to trim down by letting out their boys. This man, who brings the information to Menominee first hand, states that more than 1,000 workmen are leaving Detroit daily. The Ford Motor company, he says, have already discharged several thousand men, and wages have also been reduced—as much as $2 in some factories.

Conditions like these confronting what is supposed to be one of the strongest industrial cities in the central west, if not in the whole country, presage a condition of affairs in other parts of the nation, especially Michigan, and particularly Menominee, where the principal industry has been idle for seven weeks, that should cause considerable alarm and consideration.

One of the things of a grave nature that confronts Menominee is the food question. A large proportion of which is manufactured by the mill companies. That there will be a shortage of wood cannot be questioned, with the mill camps which are shut out on a strike. Without wood there will be much suffering in the event of a severe winter. If wood can be imported there will also be suffering because of the high cost of the which might be shipped in. There may be a sufficient supply of coal to supply the Twin cities but reports indicate that it will be expensive—higher in price than at any previous period in history.

Unless the sawmills of Menominee and Marquette resume operations soon it will be impossible to meet the demand for wood, and if they should start up in Ohio that has out-ranked Louisville and St. Paul in rank among the large cities of the country.

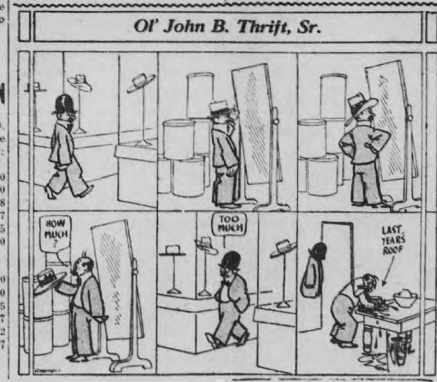

TOLEDO BIG

Washington, D. C.—Columbus has lost to Toledo its place as third largest city in Ohio, that it has out-ranked Louisville and St. Paul in rank among the large cities of the country.

The population of Columbus was enumerated today by the census bureau at 237,000, an increase of 55,520 or 30.6 per cent. Toledo, which was the fourth largest city in Ohio ten years ago with about 3,000 people less than Columbus, showed an increase of 74,612, or 43.4 per cent, and now has a population of 243,109.

Columbus ranked as twenty-ninth, most populous of the country in 1910 and its growth has exceeded that of Louisville, 24th city, ten years ago, and St. Paul 25th city, both of which now have some 2,000 less population than the Ohio capital.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Stacey Wallen, first mate of the bark Edna, is the sole survivor of the crew, all victims of a fatal epidemic which broke out aboard the ship. He is the only one who remained on board. He is the only one who remained on board. He is the only one who remained on board.

CHAPTER II.—Wallen's first mate, Stacey Wallen, is the only one who remained on board. He is the only one who remained on board. He is the only one who remained on board.

CHAPTER III.—The ship, Edna, is the only one who remained on board. He is the only one who remained on board. He is the only one who remained on board.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued. "I have never heard so strange a thing before as that, she said; 'of you, and—and your connection with this ship. And—I've been trying to say it, and didn't quite know how—about your father's loss—I'm so sorry, Mr. Wallen.'"

"Thank you," he said quietly—and turned away for a moment. "His father's death? He had not even yet come to realize it, except in that cold, ruthless desire for vengeance upon the man or men who had been guilty of his father's murder. And now her words brought that thought again surging upmost in his mind. He faced her once more gravely.

"Could you tell me anything about him—about how it happened, Miss Mackay?" he asked.

"Only what Captain Layton has probably told you already," she answered slowly. "It was before the ship reached Manila, you know—before I came aboard."

"Yes, of course," said Wallen. He had shifted his position, leaning now with his back against the rail, and glancing forward along the deck, his eyes fixed suddenly on the wireless house which was quite dark and with no light showing from within. He jerked his hand forward.

"We've got wireless," he observed. "But I haven't seen any operator—at least he wasn't at supper."

"Oh, yes, he was," she laughed. "The operator?"

"Yes—what? He was gazing at her in amazement.

"Well, no, not really," she amended. "The only joking, or at least, half-joking. It's true, though, that any operator that's done it do."

"You see, the American law requires ships coming under its jurisdiction to carry an installation; but Captain Layton, having no idea of trading with an American port for some months, anyway, he didn't see why he should pay wages he didn't have to, and discharged his operator when he left Honolulu."

"Yes," said Wallen quickly. "But you?"

"Conditions of the East again," she told him smilingly. "Father installed a small station on our plantation a few years ago, and, of course, neither of ours did know it. It's been heaps of fun, and, of course, I learned to operate it. I got Captain Layton's permission, teased Mr. Spive, the chief engineer, into letting me have the power, and I've been amusing myself with it since I've been aboard. But now, sir—with sudden severity—we are forgetting that you are still an invalid, and I am keeping you up. Please take me below," Mr. Wallen."

"Below? But, no!" he protested. "Yes, early as you can."

"But, yes!" she insisted, gaily interrupting, and led the way across the deck. "You shouldn't even have allowed up for supper, you know!"

all final doubt from his mind but found him responsible for the general good-fellowship which he found existing in the cabin.

They passed quickly those three days in the quickest. And they were the happiest days Wallen had ever known—because Helen MacKay had made them happy days, and because a new glad thing had come into his life.

Had she, too, come to care? He did not know. Sometimes, in little intimate ways, in a smile or a glance or a word or a quick, trustful touch of the hand, he read the answer to his unspoken question as his soul wanted to read the answer.

And so they had passed those days, and it was the fourth night now since he had come aboard—and tomorrow they would be in Singapore.

He lay tossing in his bunk. A tumult of thought kept his brain active and alert. Singapore? What would Singapore bring him? Who was this Drink House Sam?

It mattered a great deal now—a great deal more than it had mattered before.

For before, with a sort of berserk rage, he had been willing to take a gambler's chance, and, win or lose, stake his life against this devil, whoever he might be, that had tried to strike him down without warning, without a chance to defend himself; now his life meant more to him—he wanted to live—for her.

"Thank God," he muttered, "that at least everything is all right on board here!"

He turned over and lay for perhaps ten minutes, trying to compose himself to sleep—but his eyes insisted on remaining fastened on a queer little white patch by the door. What was it? It wasn't the moonlight through the porthole reflecting on anything.

He raised himself up on his elbow several times to make sure of it. Finally, in a fretful way, he got out of his bunk to investigate. It was a piece of paper that had evidently been pushed under the threshold—but whether ten minutes or two hours ago he had no idea.

Wallen picked up the paper, switched on the light—and suddenly it seemed as though his immediate surroundings had vanished and he was living again a scene of many years ago. He was standing on the stairway of that grim, gray, lonely house in the heart of night, a trembling child in his nightgown, and below in the hall, holding a candle, was his father, and Gunza was bending over a form on the floor, and his father's voice was in his ears. "Look again, Gunga. Has he one finger on the left hand?"

And then Gunga's answer: "I have looked, sahib, and the hand is whole."

On the piece of parchment that he held was crudely traced a human hand, and the fingers, save for the forefinger, had the appearance of having been hacked away.

"Handsome is as Handsome Does"

An old adage as true today as in all the yesterdays.

No car offers cleaner lines, more truly dignified gracefulness or deeper lustre of finish than does the Cleveland Six. But these qualities would be but a surface, were it not for what is beneath them.

The exclusive Cleveland motor, the most highly developed of the powerful over-head type, gives a character of performance in flexibility of power and speed, and in dependability and endurance, that surpasses other light cars.

The sturdiness of its chassis construction, the ease of its control, the soft cushioning of its low undulating spring construction, the certainty of its brakes—all these qualities add to the comfort and safety of its performance on any kind of roadway, on the steepest hills and in crowded traffic.

which are as good as the best. Ed's countenance too is of a golden glow as he thinks of the prospects of his crop harvest. We hope for him that it will exceed the glow stage and develop a golden flow.

We are told that Wm. Folio, Fairbanks highway commissioner, is fixing up the Ronkey road, remodeling the same all through the length of its course. Residents are very enthusiastic about Mr. Folio's work, and declares that it is going to be an excellent road and make quite a difference to the problems of the local farmers in getting their crops to market.

The following young people spent Sunday afternoon at Sylvan Hill: Ed. Lester, Nora Lamkey, Earl Ansell and Bertha Baker and returned in the afternoon.

Little Wm. Geniesse is feeling somewhat better.

The ladies of the Fayette church met at the home of Mrs. Martin Hink last Saturday. An exceptionally good attendance was reported. Mrs. L. P. Peterson was elected president, and Mrs. Ben Pizala secretary and treasurer for the coming year. After the business session, a delightful lunch was served which was disposed of in a hearty manner, not without some misgivings however, for the ladies decided to cut out the elaborate spreads and confine their attentions in the future to the humble sandwiches and coffee.

Fred Laux and wife left Friday for Tulsa, Okla. after a week of celebration in the neighborhood. Mrs. Laux is to take place in Green Bay Wednesday morning. On his way he will accompany his sister, Mrs. Kline from the Soo, and at Escanaba meet his brother, J. Casper, after which they will take a trip to Muskegon to visit their father. On the downward trip, the party, even on such a good mission, met with various mishaps including two blow-outs and a stick in the mud, but all got through in ample time for the service. Efforts of the young folks were very much appreciated by the Fayette friends.

Stanley Czajkowski, who has been operating a farm east of town has sold his stock and farm implements to Frank Lalone, a nearby neighbor. Mr. Czajkowski is somewhat discouraged with farm life. He is a tailor by trade while his wife did high class dress-making in the city of Chicago. They will return to their former home in the city and work at their own trade and possibly will return some bright day to start farming in real earnest on their farm here. We wish them much success.

Stellwaga Brothers have been trying hard to purchase an auto truck to replace the one recently sold to Leo Lester. The Ford products are becoming more and more popular in this community. Scarcely a week passes but several sales are made.

Walter Stellwaga has sold the auto truck which for the past months has been such a familiar sight on our streets. Leo Lester was the lucky buyer.

Fear and Katelyb Squires, Horace Brown and Ed. Henson, all residents of Thompson were in Garden last Friday.

Herman Winters informs us that in the course of his spring work he and his assistants have planted nearly 20,000 plants of various kinds. His little truck farm by the side of the bay is well worth a visit. Things generally are full of promise there. A little while back his crops were seriously threatened by the grasshoppers, but he got busy in time and fed them well, so well that the first meal was amply satisfying and he has them well under control. The recent rains have caused Mr. Winters to wear a genuine smile that lasts.

Mr. and Mrs. Husband of Manistique had dinner at the Farley Hotel Sunday and left for Fayette to spend the balance of the day.

The auditorium of the Rapid River high school was crowded to capacity last evening at the commencement exercises of the class of 1929, and it is extremely doubtful if the ceremony on a like occasion was ever more impressive. The opening number was a selection by the orchestra, followed by a march during which the class marched to their places on the rostrum amid an ovation that each member will remember as long as they live.

The invocation by Rev. Frederick Barnall was followed by the presentation of the class by Principal William J. Miller who acquired himself briefly and most creditably. Two song numbers then by the high school girls merited a hearty applause after which returning Superintendent Beal took the platform in introduction of the speaker of the evening. He stated that he felt it an honor to be responsible for bringing to the audience and formally introducing to the people one whose reputation and ability marked him as an international character rather than one whose influence would be felt only state or county wide.

During the applause which followed Rev. Father Barnall took the platform and delivered an address that one can not help but regret that it could not be heard from coast to coast rather than merely by a few hundred people. The speech was a masterpiece which defies equitable description at the hands of the humble writer. Suffice it to say that the interest was so intense and each beautiful thought carried on one continuous burst of eloquence to

THE SANDMAN STORY

Princess and Dragon

WILLY lived on his father's poultry farm and herded the geese, a big flock of large white turkeys for the king's table. And, in fact, it was to the king's table that they went, for Willy sold every one of the fat geese to the royal cook. And that is the way he happened to catch sight of the pretty princess drying her golden hair on the back porch.

One fine morning Willy drove his cackling flock into the back gate and waited for the fat, cross cock to come out. Suddenly there was a great commotion and the soldiers ran out of the palace with terror.

"The Great Dragon of the Drule is coming!" they shouted. "For the king has just received a messenger who says that that animal is right now in the clouds of fire and smoke arising from its mouth.

"Come in, my child," shouted the king. "He will swallow you at once, for his teeth are sharp and have never touched anything but tender meat."

That gave Willy an idea. In the back of the yard was an enormous crate. He decided that with that he could rescue his beloved Princess and at the same time get rid of the Dragon without danger to himself.

"If I kill the Dragon will you allow me to marry the Princess?" asked Willy of the King, who was wringing his hands in despair.

"Of course, boy!" shouted the King. "Why, of course! It would be better to marry a goosey than furnish a meal for that horrible creature, which is even now in sight."

"Well, I can settle the Dragon, all right!" replied Willy. "Only let the Princess remain in sight. She must be ready to marry the Dragon. Then, when he prepares to harm her, I will kill him so dead he will never even leave his place."

With that Willy ran to hitch the end of a long rope to the iron grate, and as the rope was hanging already on a gully, it was but a moment before the huge dragon was hooked to the Princess' stand. In five minutes the great Dragon was before the palace and snorting up all the clean windows of the place.

"Will you marry me or would you prefer to serve as my lunch?" tried the creature, showing his big teeth.

"The Princess trembled, but stood bravely on the porch. "I will never marry you!" she cried. "Such a monster as you does not deserve to live."

"All right," snarled the Dragon, and he opened his big mouth.

But just then Willy crossed the rope, the heavy iron grate swung around and dropped right into the Dragon's mouth. In ten minutes the great Dragon lay dead.

"A pretty good job for a fellow of your size," exclaimed the King.

That night there was a big wedding for Willy and the Princess, and every one was happy except the housemaids, who had to clean the windows that the Dragon had snatched up so badly.

only 20 miles away napping in the woods. He wants to see the princess and sees the will do her if he does not get his way."

Willy looked up and saw the princess in tears. The attendants had just left, but she thought it would be cowardly for a princess to run, so she remained, and so did her royal father. But the king took the princess to hide in the cellar.

"You better come down with me, my child," he exclaimed. "The Dragon's coat is of steel scales and nothing can harm him. Come with me and maybe he will get tired looking for us and return to his den."

Willy heard the conversation, for he was the only person about except the royal family. In the distance he saw a dark spot approaching swiftly and he knew that to be the Dragon from

One of the local boys was also hailed before the court for speeding but will call again as his case was continued until he could more conveniently appear. This is Oscar Lind. He will probably plead guilty the first time he comes to town and also be assessed.

Two Uncle Henrys came together on the county road corner this morning. Mr. Brown from Osler way and a couple of other gentlemen advertising Goodys tires. The latter was to blame, so it appears, but both paid fines for speeding, aggregating eight dollars each.

Last, but not least, Mr. McIntyre, Jr., of Masonville, got in bad through a little carelessness. He tossed a burning cigarette stub at a passing car. It happened to land inside of the wearing apparel of one of the occupants of the car, Mrs. Lyons, inflicting bodily pain. He paid for his carelessness before Justice Miller and aside from these few minor instances we have been a law abiding community.

The story should never have been given credence, but since the rumor was circulated that a band of Gypsies in Canada were keeping "Stubby" White, lost here a few years ago, it was the least that the officers could do to investigate, and accordingly Deputy Sheriff Young left last week to see the boy that had light hair and blue eyes that some woman said she heard a relative say was with a band of Gypsies and that the boy had said that he had been stolen from his parents in Michigan.

Sheriff Young returned last Saturday evening and a town food rumor stated in anticipation of his arrival that the lost boy had been recovered.
