GLADSTONE, MICH., THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 1, 1920

STRIKE CALLED OFF MONDAY NIGHT

MAJORITY OF STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK—TEN-HOUR DAY REMAINS.

The big timberworkers' strike which has held sway in Gladstone as well as other sections of the peninsula, Wisconsin and Minnesota, since May 3, a total of nine weeks, came to an abrupt end Monday night when the men still out here voted by a small majority to return to work.

Some of the men had gone back to work in two and three weeks since the Coopersage company started its saw mill and it became more evident day by day to those remaining out that the company would never consent to the eight hour day. Business among the retail merchants of the city was also becoming very poor and the result was that some of the business men of whom Sid Goldstein was the leader, talked to the men and meeting and of Monday night was the outcome. Mr. Goldstein, Mr. Empson and a few of the union men had a conference with the Cleveland-Life officials Monday afternoon and the outcome was that the meeting of Monday night was called to take a vote on the question of going back to work.

There was a little disagreement when three or four of the union men applied for their old jobs at the Coopersage company's mill the next morning. Mr. Staple, manager of the company, refused to take back the men in question because he had already engaged other men for their positions during the time they were out on strike and could not consistently fire the men who had applied for jobs while the company was doing its best to operate its mill. The difficulty was overcome however and enough men have gone back to work so that the company is running all of its various mills at about 90 per cent capacity.

A report gained considerable circulation Monday and Tuesday to the effect that the union officials and officials of the company had agreed on a compromise and that both sides had made certain concessions. According to Mr. Staple's statement this report was entirely erroneous. Since the beginning of the strike the company has maintained only one policy and that was the one agreed on between the manufacturers in the entire district—namely, to stand pat on the ten hour day. The company has always refused to reduce its output to the level of the strike and has steadily refused to recognize the union. When the mill started up several weeks ago, all men who applied for jobs were given work under the old conditions, both sides and there a slight wage adjustment. Gradually the force increased and when the strikers saw the uselessness of further prolonging the battle the vote to return to work was taken.

According to the managers of the company there is no ill feeling toward the men who refused to go to work until Tuesday morning. They feel that the strike was a fair test as to the merits of the questions at stake and will let things go on as before the walkout. That the issue will come up at a future date is certain, but the managers feel that by that time the situation may be more favorable to the granting of an eight-hour day, which at present it was impossible to do in the face of competition with mills that would remain on the longer work-day.

Strike Cost Over a Million

That the strike was an expensive one to both workers and mill owners cannot be denied. The workers themselves, although supported by the union in needy cases, lost nine weeks' wages and in most cases it will take several months and possibly a year to get back to the same footing as before the strike started. The manufacturers, on the other hand, lost not only the profits for the year but also the cost of the strike. A safe estimate places the total monetary loss at anywhere between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 in Delta county alone, to say nothing of the enormous total in the whole district.

Escanaba Union Also Votes

Following the lead taken by the Delta union in declaring the strike off Monday night, the Escanaba union on Tuesday night took a similar course and voted the strike off. Delta county was one of the strongholds of the timberworkers' strike and now that the strike is off here it is expected that the whole district will soon be back to normal.

Many Men Out of City.

It will take some time before the plants will be back to the capacity before the strike as many men, especially the younger men, have left the city. Some of these will return, but many of those who moved away will not come back.

Business Should Pick Up.

With the return to normal conditions...

BIRTH RECORD SHOWS INCREASE IN GLADSTONE

Old Doc Stork sure was busy in this city during the month of June. Ordinarily when he leaves ten or a dozen new babies in any one month it is considered that he has done his duty as far as Gladstone is concerned, especially in these days of the H. O. of the Stork, but this June he was more liberal and distributed fourteen new boys and girls to as many homes. Seven of these were boys and seven girls. A year ago in June there were only six births, three of each sex. So far this year there have been a total of 76 births as against 69 for the same period a year ago, or a gain of 16.

The death record shows that there was only one death during the entire month of June, which is a remarkable record. The case in question is that of Carl Holm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Holm. Last year there were four deaths during the month of June so far this year there have been 19 deaths, as against 32 for the same period a year ago.

GLADSTONE TO PLAY ESCANABA

GAME TO BE STAGED SATURDAY AND SUNDAY BETWEEN OLD RIVALS

Gladstone fans are promised two great games of baseball next Saturday and Sunday, when the locals will clash with Escanaba in a series of two contests. The two teams are old rivals and therefore each will do their utmost to win. With this end in view Manager Laford has secured the services of Joe Boudier of Minneapolis, a former Gladstone boy, who is playing first base in his home city, to occupy the position at short. Joe has many admirers here who will want to see him perform.

Another new man to be seen in the Gladstone lineup is Al Parkins of Wausaukee, who will occupy a position in the field. He is reported to be exceptionally fast and good with the stick.

Griffin will be in the box for the Sunday game which will be played in Gladstone and Zeyl will be on the mound in the Monday contest, which will be staged in Escanaba. Clausen will be on the receiving end both days.

It is understood that Escanaba has designs on copying both games and making arrangements accordingly. From this it can be judged that something will be doing and the fans should turn out strong to lend encouragement to the local boys.

Naturalization Examiner Will Be Here On 7th

George N. Danielson, naturalization examiner with the United States department of labor, will be in Escanaba July 7, for preliminary examination of applicants for citizenship at the July term of circuit court, which will open the following Monday. About sixty-five petitioners have been notified to appear at the court house on that date.

Any service man who has not yet secured his citizenship papers, may make application at this time and take advantage of the government's "short-cut" offer to former soldiers and seamen, which eliminates the formal ninety day notice to the proceedings.

The class which will take its final examination in circuit court July 12 is expected to be one of the largest ever received here.

The preliminary tests to be given July 7, by Mr. Danielson are an important step in the process towards naturalization.

Glad Girls to Meet.

The Glad girls will meet in the church parlors, Friday night.

Miss Mildred Campbell is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. Nelson of Escanaba.

Business men are looking forward to a resumption of business which in some lines has been cut in two. It is true that this cannot take place all at once, but the turn for the better should be gradual from now on.

FIREMEN WILL HAVE CHARGE OF CELEBRATION

THE OLD FASHIONED OBSERVANCE THIS YEAR OF NATION'S NOTED DAY.

The volunteer firemen, who will have Fourth of July celebration next Monday, report that practically all arrangements have been completed for the observance of the nation's birthday. Although the celebration this year will not be on as large a scale as in other years, still there will be enough going on here so that the residents can enjoy the day without going outside places.

All the doing will be at the city park, as it is felt that a day spent in the park under the trees is much preferable to the heat of the city streets. The firemen have prepared a varied line of amusements to keep the crowd interested. The program will commence at 10 o'clock and continue until 4 o'clock. In the evening a big dance at the Gladstone theatre will wind up the day's doings. Refreshments will be served by the firemen on the grounds, so all can come to spend the entire day in the park if they wish to do so.

The firemen are holding the celebration entirely on their own resources as no objections have been asked for from the business men and citizens. The prizes therefore are not as large as in former years, but with the races and water fight to be put on by the firemen themselves there should be plenty of excitement to keep the crowd interested.

The Program.

10:30 to 11:30 a. m.—Firemen's water fight.

10:30 to 12:00—Boys' swimming race.

1:00 to 4:00 p. m.—Firemen's races between the stay-at-homes and the team that will represent Gladstone at the tournament at Ludington.

4:00 to 5:00 p. m.—Water fight.

5:00 to 6:00.—Demonstrating of fire fighting and lung motor.

Between the various races aquatic stunts will be pulled off.

The proceeds from the sale of the confectionery and refreshments will go toward sending the Gladstone team to the tournament.

TONIGHT! TONIGHT! TONIGHT!

Tonight only—will this big Delightful Dance be with you at the Eagles' hall, by the large growing Eagles. Made by Gunnar's Jazz band and Doug Stewart with his famous Saxophone. A pleasant evening is in store for all.

Arthur Mayou in Field For County Treasurer Office

Nomination petitions for Arthur Mayou of Escanaba for county treasurer were filed Tuesday morning by many of his friends on the Republican ticket. Mr. Mayou was formerly city treasurer of Escanaba and vacated that office this spring. His ability as a treasurer is unquestionable.

The petitions of Mr. Mayou make him the third party in the field for this office. O. V. Linden having filed Monday and papers having been filed some time ago by Miss Mary McCall for many years deputy in the office. The fight for nomination promises to be a lively one. It is reported that other candidates will seek the office. July 31, is the last day for filing petitions, it was declared at the county clerk's office.

Miss Bernice Swan will leave tomorrow morning to visit with friends in the Soo.

BUCKEYE SCHOOL SITE MATTER IS SETTLED BY STATE

THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION UPHOLDS LOCAL SCHOOL BOARD.

The matter of the location of the new Third ward, or Buckeye, school building has now been definitely settled. Spt. Willman received a letter Tuesday from the Department of Public Instruction from Lansing, in which it upholds the decision made by the Gladstone board of education in selecting the Goodman addition site in preference to the old site near the baseball grounds.

The letter to Supt. Willman is as follows:

STATE OF MICHIGAN
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION
Lansing, June 25, 1920.

SUPT. E. J. WILLMAN,
Gladstone, Michigan.

My Dear Mr. Willman:

On June 17th, I inspected two sites proposed for the new ward school building in Gladstone. These sites are known as the Buckeye site and the Goodman site.

From the facts presented and considering the condition of the sites, the service to be rendered, etc., I am of the opinion that there is no comparison between the two sites. The Goodman site is the only one on which a school building should be constructed. The objections against the Goodman site are not of such a nature as would warrant the board in not placing a building on it.

Yours very truly,
W. L. COFFEY.

From all the facts brought to light the decision to construct the building west of the Soo Line tracks is the only one that should have been considered by the school board in the opinion of the Reporter. If the city grows at all it will be in that section of the city to the north and west of the Hampton road and Soo Line tracks, leading to the east and south of the old site, owned by the Soo Line and Coopersage company.

From present prospects the building will not be started this year, as the bids received by the school board are much higher than the amount originally set for the cost of the building. It is possible that the bid may be taken, however, on the cost plus profit basis, but owing to the lateness of the season it is doubtful if the building can be completed in time to be of service the next school year. It is expected that a better plan would be to set an early start next year and have it completed by the opening of the 1921-22 school year.

Legal Holiday

Monday, July 5th, being a legal holiday both Gladstone banks will not be open for business. Open as usual, Tuesday, July 6th.

O. V. Linden Files as Treasurer Candidate

O. V. Linden, of Escanaba, editor of the Medhogenen, Monday filed his official notice as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of county treasurer at the August primaries. Mr. Linden has been a resident of Escanaba for many years. A number of years ago he served as county clerk and his knowledge of affairs of the county coupled with his wide acquaintance throughout the county should make of Mr. Linden a popular candidate.

DIVIDENDS PAID TODAY AT BOTH BANKS

Today was dividend day at both Gladstone banks, the State Savings and the First National. The former paid its usual semi-annual dividend to its stockholders of 6 per cent, and the First National paid three per cent on the capital stock, which is equivalent to six per cent for a year.

Both banks show a remarkable gain for the past six months and the total assets of the two banks are above a million and a half dollars now, a figure which a few years ago would have seemed impossible to attain in Gladstone. Both banks are offered by capable men and at all times have the welfare of their depositors at heart and it is safe to say that there are no better or stronger banks anywhere than right here at home.

ELKS WILL CELEBRATE MONDAY

One of the finest parades ever seen here, will take place Monday, when about 250 cars from Gladstone, Escanaba and vicinity will leave for Chicago.

They will assemble at the Elks Temple, 7:30 a. m. Escanaba and at 8:00 a. m. at Sidney Goldstein, where the members of the committee will distribute anything special which they may have and pin on badges on Elks and Elkesses who enter local on Chicago banners.

It is hoped that everyone participating in the parade will dress in white if possible. To avoid accidents, all cars will run at least fifty feet.

AMERICAN LEGION FOUNDED IN 1792

NAME USED AS CLOSE OF REVOLUTIONARY WAR, BUT DROPPED FOUR YEARS LATER

Camp Pike, Arkansas—The first "American Legion" was founded in 1792, and its existence, by that name, terminated in 1796. War Department records show that when the Regular army was reorganized in 1792, following the Revolutionary War, it was first officially designated the "Legion" and was divided into four "sub-legions," of which the 4th United States Infantry was a part.

The idea of designating the United States Army as the legion originated with General Knox, secretary of war under George Washington. The army disbanded after the Roman Legion, the old military organization under which Julius Caesar and his successors continued as much of the world as was then known.

The American "Legion" was commanded by General Anthony Wayne ("Mad Anthony") and was organized under his direction at Pittsburgh, Pa., in May, 1792. President Washington records show that when the Legion was disbanded and reorganized into four regiments of infantry.

Mrs. A. Lauscher will leave tonight for a visit with friends and relatives in Chicago.

Large Ball Stone Found at Bark River. Now this seems like a fish story, but it is sworn to, by one of the most prominent citizens of Bark River.

"During the hail storm of Wednesday the Bark River man declares that hail stones fully the size of a baseball came down. One, he says, was so large that it was picked up and taken into a home where it took over an hour to melt."

Minor Musings.

Why does every old photograph make a victim look like he had just had a hard spell of sickness?

Everything is relative. An achine corn is a joy beside an aching tooth, and pain is only fit to eat, because pains are not.

Loss of Appetite.

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and it soon skips a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals, when need lines course. Bear in mind that at least five hours should elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's Tablets will do it.

4,182 DEATHS DURING MAY

PNEUMONIA LEADS ALL OTHER CASES OF DEATH, WITH 433 -INFLUENZA 42.

There were 4,182 deaths reported to the Department of State as having occurred in the State of Michigan during the month of May, 1920. This number corresponds to an annual death rate of 15.1 per 1,000 estimated population.

By ages there were 716 deaths of infants under one year of age; 270 deaths of children aged one to four, inclusive; 1,397 deaths of elderly persons, aged 45 years and over. Upon comparing the number of deaths with those of the previous month it is noted there is an increase in the number of deaths of infants under one year and also of children aged one to four years, while there is a slight decrease in the number of deaths of aged persons.

Important causes of death were as follows: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 243; other tuberculosis, 5; typhoid fever, 29; diphtheria and croup, 62; scarlet fever, 30; measles, 52; whooping cough, 42; pneumonia and bronchopneumonia, 432; diarrhea, enteritis under 2 years, 113; meningitis, 29; influenza, 42; cancer, 159; violence, 279. Among the deaths reported from violence were 29 railway accidents, 10 electric car; 47 auto; 11 homicides; 33 suicides; 22 drownings, 7 confagurations. In addition to the important causes noted above there were 5 deaths from cephalalgias lethargica, 4 from tetanus; 1 from pelagra; 4 from poliomyelitis; 2 from small pox and 1 from chicken pox.

As compared with the month immediately preceding a slight decrease is noted in the number of deaths returned from pulmonary tuberculosis, other tuberculosis, typhoid fever, pneumonia, influenza and cancer. A slight increase is noted in other important causes with the exception of measles, meningitis and diphtheria. These causes show the same number of deaths as occurred during the preceding month.

Upon referring to the table of counties, we find that the greatest apparent mortality occurred in the county of Washtenaw, with a rate of 24.6 per 1,000 estimated population shows the highest birth rate for the month. These rates, however, are subject to further analysis before definite conclusions should be drawn, as the population figures used for determining such rates are based on the 1910 census.

There were 7,849 births reported to the Department as having occurred in the State during the month of May, 1920. This number corresponds to an annual birth rate of 42.4 per 1,000 estimated population. A slight increase is noted in the number of births as compared with the month immediately preceding. In addition to the above there were 322 stillbirths returned as births.

There were 288 certificates of birth returned for births occurring during the month of April, returned with the May report. There were 20 certificates of deaths of infants under one year returned.

MICHIGAN AS A REFUGEE

The business of carling for Michigan's scores of thousands of summer resorters is opening up rapidly now and there is every indication that this is to be a phenomenal season. Reports from the north country indicate an unusually large number of early arrivals and an unprecedented advance demand for accommodations. This is cheering up everybody, and it is a real boon to a district that up to last year had suffered severely from war blight and had endured a number of very "lean" seasons.

BLACKWELL'S HARDWARE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Stacy Wallen, first mate of the bark Uglio, in the Java sea, is the chief survivor of a crew, all victims of a yellow fever. The Uglio, Chinese sailor, had been taken to the Uglio and five other crewmen were sent aboard by "Drink-House Sam," notorious character of Singapore, to kill Wallen. The latter was in a medicine box in which some compass connected with the confession. While the Uglio was in a small boat, the ship's log the announcement of his death and abandoned the vessel in a small boat.

CHAPTER II—Wallen's boat drifts to the island of MacKnight, where for him, Leary, another race, deserted, an inhuman passion in the twitching muscles, the lips parted and tight-drawn across the gums, showing the teeth as a beast might show them as it crouches to spring. And then this, too, was gone, for the head was bowed over the oars, and Wallen could no longer see.

CHAPTER III—The ship proves to be a small trawler, the Uglio. Captain Layton tells Wallen the vessel had been chartered by Wallen's father in a grudge against the older Wallen, a notorious pirate. Ram Gulab Singh, a man and woman who are from the ship he was in the Uglio. Move, first ship he had in the Uglio. Move, first ship he had in the Uglio.

CHAPTER IV—The ship proves to be a small trawler, the Uglio. Captain Layton tells Wallen the vessel had been chartered by Wallen's father in a grudge against the older Wallen, a notorious pirate. Ram Gulab Singh, a man and woman who are from the ship he was in the Uglio. Move, first ship he had in the Uglio.

CHAPTER VI.

The Vendetta.

"You, Gunja," Wallen whispered hoarsely. "You—you did this. For God's sake, what does it mean to you, did you come here? Where did you come from?"

"Sahib, there is no time to talk," the other answered gravely. "There

"Sahib, There is No Time for Talk."

"Sahib, there is no time for talk," the other answered gravely. "There is much danger. Come quickly. We will go back to your ship."

"You know about the ship?" mumbled Wallen. "How?"

"Sahib," almost pleadingly, "come."

There followed for Wallen a space of time that he could neither estimate in duration nor of whose events in the interval he could form any concrete whole. There were dark streets and darker byways, and always before him, straggling in his loose white garb, the surbanned figure of the East Indian; and then a boat from some dark corner of a jetty and they were in it, and Gunja was rowing.

His mind had been in chaos; picturing again and again the scenes of the glow of that burning match; trying to span the ten years since he had last seen this man; striving futilely but with a sort of maddening, irresponsible insistence, to grapple with this and that question that came and went in lightning succession; and always reverting to that black room, the guttering match, and Drink-House Sam upon the bed.

And now they were far out in the harbor and the water was very still, and under the moonlight it was very black, and still, and he could see the moonlight; and then Gunja lay upon his oars and spoke.

"Sahib, it is true what they say—that the master is dead?"

The question in its abruptness, its significance, came like a physical shock to Wallen; but, too, it roused him, cleared his brain of its chaotic obsessions, and brought him back, alert and tense, to actualities and his immediate surroundings.

"It is true," he answered slowly. "They say about that it was an accident; that father accidently shot himself while he was cleaning an automatic pistol."

Gunja's face was in the moonlight, and Wallen started at it now and could not take his eyes away.

A whiteness came upon the swarthy features, the lips quivered tremulously like a child's; and then it seemed to be another race, distorted, an inhuman passion in the twitching muscles, the lips parted and tight-drawn across the gums, showing the teeth as a beast might show them as it crouches to spring. And then this, too, was gone, for the head was bowed over the oars, and Wallen could no longer see.

Presently Gunja looked up, but now his face was impassive.

"It is fate, sahib," he said in a low, strange way. "Allah is great. I have loved you many years, and now I am the servant of his son. Sahib, will you pay blood with blood?"

"You mean," said Wallen, his own voice low. "And that how, too, know it was not an accident—that it was murder? And that Drink-House Sam, though he was miles away, had a hand in it, and that was why you killed him?"

"Sahib," said Gunja softly, "I did not kill the man. I was too late."

"You didn't kill him?" Wallen cried. "Then who?"

"He leaped forward and gripped the other's wrist fiercely. "Gunja, the time has come for me to go. Why was my father murdered, and by whom? Why did he live that strange life in that old gray, stone house? Why did Drink-House Sam set a crew of Chinese murderers loose upon you? And that"—he held out the diagram of the human hand with its missing fingers—"what does this signify, and why was it slipped under the door of my cabin last night?"

In the moonlight Gunja's face was working again, and his eyes, narrowed, seemed to be searching intently the surface of the water around him.

"Then who?" he asked, "where is a Kanaka, a tall man with great shoulders, and whose lip is scarred as though it had been cut across by a knife last night?"

"Yes!" The word was a sharp intake of Wallen's breath.

"Then it is true," said Gunja. "Tonight he slipped away from the ship and swam ashore; and it may be, for Allah is all powerful, that he will swim back again. I lay hidden, sahib, where I have lain hidden for many nights, and he came and told the story; and I, Gunja, listened unknown to him, and the light was gone from my eyes, as he told how he had shot the master through the porthole and thrown the pistol and those things to clean it with in upon the floor."

"And he told of you, sahib, and the strange way you came aboard the ship, and how twice he had tried to kill you, but fate had not willed it so. And as I was thinking of your death, was yours, either by his hand or by one in Singapore, and thinking to torture you with fear he put the paper with the hand upon it under your cabin door."

"And other things he told as well, sahib."

"Of how the captain and the crew thought strangely of the voyage," took hold, for we had prisoners who confessed, but against these Ram Gulab Singh sent money to take the oath that he had been elsewhere at the time. And so again there was not the full measure of proof, but my master pressed the matter and asked that an armed force be sent against Ram Gulab Singh. Sahib, if that had been done, all would have been well.

"Instead, the government deemed it wise to bring only great dishonor upon Ram Gulab Singh, and they stripped him of all rank and honor."

"Does morning find you with lime still and aching back? Are you tired all the time—dard work a burden? Have you suspected your kidneys? Gladstone people call it 'Doan's Kidney Pills.' Ask your neighbor. You can read the name on the wrapper. Mrs. Chas. St. Peter, 613 N. Tenth street, Gladstone, says, 'I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can truthfully say they did me more good than any other medicine I had. I suffered with backache and when I did any work such as washing, or sweeping, severe pains ran through my back. The least bit of work I did made me all in. It was awful, weak and nervous and felt worse out. Black spots often blinded me and made me dizzy. My kidneys were in a wretched condition and I was a miserable person. Members of the family who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results, recommended them to me. I bought a few boxes at E. E. Egan's drug store and they cured me completely. I have a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and can recommend them to everybody.'"

"Have patience, sahib," he said. "Time does not press now. It is well that you should know all before you go aboard. The ship is to call at these places, and for several years trotted the waters of the island closely."

Gunja paused. The muscles of his face were twitching again, and his hand, flung like a stone, was now more in the cool-black eyes that always swept the water, that never looked at Wallen.

"Sahib, it was because of your mother, before you were born, that the master left the East. The heart of Ram Gulab Singh was black with hate—and revenge filled his soul. It is too long a story to tell now, sahib. Great wealth was his; his in his pay were every where."

"Twice he tried to bring worse than death upon the master by attacks upon your mother. And the second time, sahib—Gunja's hands around the oars tightened until the knuckles were as white knots protruding from the swarthy skin—"It was only by a miracle that she was saved. But, sahib, it killed her, even if it were months afterward when your father had hidden her in the gray house the sahib knows, for she was with child then, and when you were born she died."

"Yes," said Wallen. "It is as the Kanaka said." Gunja nodded. "Sahib, if question: How did you know of those Chinamen and Drink-House Sam?"

"One of them told me as he was dying," Wallen replied, "because I suppose, I had nursed him as best I could through the night."

"Yes," Gunja nodded his head again. "But I will end first the Kanaka's tale so that the sahib will understand all else the better. The Kanaka had been a long time a member of the crew, long before the ship came to Honolulu."

"It was in Honolulu that for much money he was hired by one of Ram Gulab Singh's agents to kill the master."

"If he failed in that he was to str up the crew to dream of the treasure-hunt, sahib, which, with so strange a voyage as was theirs, would readily be believed, so that it might come about that the crew and officers would take things into their own hands, and would take the ship to the place Ram Gulab Singh had set down upon the paper, and where Ram Gulab Singh would lie in wait to work his will upon the master and upon them all, sahib, for dead men tell no tales. But for that paper, sahib, it so fell out, he had no need until you, by Allah's will, came also to the ship, as I have related. All this, sahib, I learned tonight while I lay hidden."

"Go on," urged Wallen tensely. "I begin to see—a little. My father, Gunja—and this Ram Gulab Singh?"

"The young sahib is twenty-four," said Gunja. "It began two years before you were born. The master was a great merchant here, owning schooners by means of which he traded with the natives. Ram Gulab Singh was the native governor over a group of these islands."

"He was very powerful, and his wealth was beyond reckoning."

"Also, sahib, he was a murderer and a thief, whereby he had his wealth; and he hid his face behind the British government, whom he deceived. Your father lost one schooner and then another and many goods; and knowing in his heart that it was Ram Gulab Singh, he complained to the government. But because he could prove nothing, nothing was done, sahib; only that it came to the ears of Ram Gulab Singh, and he moved your father, my master, by messengers in private."

"Sahib, my master was a brave man, and of great cunning. He loaded a schooner with such riches of goods that it was common talk; but also, in secret, he placed abundance of arms upon the vessel; and at night, as he sailed, he himself came aboard in the darkness with many men to join the crew, and of these I was one, sahib."

"It came about as the master had foreseen."

"He sailed to the islands where Ram Gulab Singh was; and Ram Gulab Singh, knowing that it was your father's schooner, and thinking it a prize of great value, fell into the snare. Sahib, he came upon us with four pros, and our men lay hidden below the decks, that they might not be seen until the pirates, led by Ram Gulab Singh himself, boarded us from the pros."

"It was a fight, sahib, that I would to Allah I might see again before I die, for my arm is still strong and my blood is the blood of youth, and the years count not. They fought as regulars fight who must either fight or die. But half escaped, and those by swimming to the pros which, in their first onslaught, after all had come on board of us, we had cut aspart from the schooner's sides."

"Many times in the melee my master tried to single out Ram Gulab Singh, but they might not face to face, but it was only at the last the master came upon the other as Ram Gulab Singh was climbing over the rail to escape, and his hand was on the rail, but before he had dropped into the water the master's cutlass had severed three fingers from the hand of Ram Gulab Singh—such, sahib, is the reading of the paper with the one-fingered hand."

"Sahib, this time the government took hold, for we had prisoners who confessed, but against these Ram Gulab Singh sent money to take the oath that he had been elsewhere at the time. And so again there was not the full measure of proof, but my master pressed the matter and asked that an armed force be sent against Ram Gulab Singh. Sahib, if that had been done, all would have been well."

"Instead, the government deemed it wise to bring only great dishonor upon Ram Gulab Singh, and they stripped him of all rank and honor."

ALL WORN OUT

Does morning find you with lime still and aching back? Are you tired all the time—dard work a burden? Have you suspected your kidneys? Gladstone people call it "Doan's Kidney Pills." Ask your neighbor. You can read the name on the wrapper. Mrs. Chas. St. Peter, 613 N. Tenth street, Gladstone, says, "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and can truthfully say they did me more good than any other medicine I had. I suffered with backache and when I did any work such as washing, or sweeping, severe pains ran through my back. The least bit of work I did made me all in. It was awful, weak and nervous and felt worse out. Black spots often blinded me and made me dizzy. My kidneys were in a wretched condition and I was a miserable person. Members of the family who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results, recommended them to me. I bought a few boxes at E. E. Egan's drug store and they cured me completely. I have a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills and can recommend them to everybody."

LIGHTNING AT SAWMILL HOUSE CAUSES DAMAGE

Lightning played havoc at the Stone Anderson sawmill home near Ensign at 7:30 Sunday night when a big crash tore the roof from the building, killed a dog, knocked Mrs. Schustron, the housekeeper, unconscious and gave Herrick such a shock that he was unable to take his hand off the door knob.

Mrs. Lewis and Ed Herrick, who were at the home for dinner Sunday night reported the accident Monday morning in the following terms:

"We went to the farm in the afternoon having been driving during the day. We stayed there for dinner and after we finished gathered about while the electric storm was raging. Mrs. Schustron was standing near the kitchen stove patting a pet dog. The crash came and struck the house tearing the roof from it and throwing the lid of the stove to the floor. It hit the dog on the head killing the animal instantly.

Mrs. Schustron was thrown to the floor by the bolt and not for an hour was it possible to revive her. Her condition today is normal.

Herrick was standing near a door with his hand on the knob. When the crash sent the bolt of lightning through the house he was unable for a minute or so to remove it.

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

It is not often that a calloused reviewer is driven to the use of superlatives in commenting on a photo-drama, but after viewing "The Virgin of Stamboul," which was shown here for the first time last night at the Gladstone Theatre, it is found necessary to sound its praises in no uncertain terms.

Priscilla Dean, who first flashed on the film horizon with "The Wildcat of Paris" and established a distinct personality on the screen, which was followed by a half dozen other important productions, but who has been missing from the silver sheet for a long while, reappears as the star of this picturesque story of the East and proves clear title to being classed as one of the foremost players in the role of the silent drama. In the role of the little beggar on the streets of Stamboul, unloved and unloving, knowing nothing of right or wrong, but with natural instincts that preserve her undefiled amid the filth and squalor of her surroundings, Miss Dean gives a characterization that must be classed as a masterpiece.

Ted Browning, who is credited with the direction of this photodrama, has obtained some remarkable effects. No truer picture of the Orient has ever been seen on the screen. Its customs and traditions, mixed with the modernity of the western influence form a picturesque background for the action of the drama.

Some thousands of people participate in the drama, chief among whom are Wheeler Oakman as the Captain of the Black Horse troop; Wallace Beery as the sheik; E. A. Warren as the keeper of the bazaar; Edward Burns as the American Lohario; Eugenie Forde as the mother; and Ethel Kettle as the favorite of the harem.

"The Border Legion," a vivid picturization of Zane Grey's widely read story, starring Blanche Bates and Hobart Bosworth, and acclaimed by New York Newspapers and picturegoers as the most virile drama of the year, will be presented by Goldwyn at this Lyric theatre, Saturday.

It tells the story of Joan Randall (Blanche Bates), a daring girl of the West, who makes her home in a mining camp in the Rockies. She is engaged to wed Jim Cleve, a shiftless prospector. She quarrels with him about his lack of energy and when he returns angrily she gives him back the engagement ring. Jim leaves camp after arranging he will join a band of desperados, that has long preyed on the mining camp. When a week passes and Jim fails to return Joan starts out in search of him. On the way she falls into the hands of Jack Kells, leader of the outlaw border legion. He draws Joan to his shack to hold her for ransom. That night Joan tries to escape and Kells grapples with her. In the scuffle Joan grabs his revolver and shoots Kells. As she is about to flee the wounded bandit pleads with her to remain and nurse him, declaring that he loves her. What happens thereafter brings about a climax as thrilling and exciting as it is unusual.

In a room in the home of a New York society leader, several persons of prominence are gathered. A noted musician is giving a demonstration of

The SANDMAN STORY
TWO ORPHANS

ONE day Bab Rabbit was playing around the woods when he met Tom Kitten. "Where are you going?" asked Bab Rabbit, for at first he thought Tom was one of his relatives, he looked so much like his family.

"Oh, I am going to play I am an orphan and get a fiddle; then everyone will give me nice. I expect I'll get rich because I saw a hand-organ man playing on the street and he got lots of pennies."

"I wonder if I could get some young radishes if I played, too?" asked Bab.

"I should not care for nice, you know."

"Come along with me. I am sure we can get lots of things," said Tom Kitten.

So off to Woodville they trotted, and under the tree where Mr. Owl lived they began their music. When Mr. Owl heard the terrible noise outside, he peeked under the clothes and hid for what was after him he could not think.

But after a while, as nothing happened but the noise, Mr. Owl poked out his head, and then got up. Instead of getting out of the right side of his bed, as he first started to do, he got out this time on the wrong side, which made him very cross.

He ran to the window and threw it up with a bang, and Tom Kitten and Bab Rabbit were sure this time they were to get a mouse or a radish.

Each held up his hat and said: "Fifty two poor orphans and give us something."

"I'll give you something," said Mr. Owl, for he was cross when he went to the window, but when he saw who it was he was crosser than ever.

Mr. Owl did not wait to dress. He flew right out of the window just as he was, in his night cap and slippers, and down he pounced upon the two orphans.

He carried them up to his window, and there is no knowing what would have happened if the window had been large enough for Mr. Owl and Tom Kitten and Bab Rabbit to get through all at once, but it wasn't, and Mr. Owl, thinking Tom Kitten was a night and hanging in the hair they found an odd fiddle with one string and a drum with a hole in it.

"We will have to look poor and forlorn if we want everyone to give us things," said Tom. "I'll make a hole in my coat, and you tear your stocking."

Oh, such a sight as those two creatures were when a little later they went along the road playing the odd fiddle and the drum.

But the noise or the radishes did not come, as they thought. Instead they made such bad music that all the cats in Catville threw tin cans after them, and by night time they were two very hungry and tired little fellows.

"We might try your woods," said Tom. "My family does not seem to like our music, but when it is a little has hypnotic powers. A woman, prominent socially, is his subject. Around her neck is a necklace containing a blue pearl of fabulous price. As she is about to pass under the hypnotist's influence, the lights go out and the room is in total darkness. They are only extinguished a minute. But when they are flashed on again, the pearl is gone. No one has entered the room. No one has left it.

This is the big situation in "The Blue Pearl," the big super-feature which comes to the Gladstone Theatre on Friday, and which was a big Broadway success when it was produced on the speakin' stage in New York by the Messrs. Hubert.

How the pearl is found in possession of the one best suspected, and the methods taken to unmask the thief, provides several reels of suspense, many thrills and plenty of comedy in the screen version made by Lawrence Weber with a cast of New York favorites, among who are: Edith Haller, Florence Billings, East Binney, Lumsden Hare, Carlos Giles, Richard Halliday and others.

The crafty work of a kleptomaniac and the evil possibilities of hypnotism from the basis of the plot of "Black Shadows," a William Fox production appearing at the Lyric Theatre on Sunday.

This is a mystery play which makes a peculiarly strong heart appeal, since it deals with unjust accusations against the heroine, who accepts the situation in order to shield the sister of the man she loves. It is said that Miss Hyland handles the tensely dramatic situations in the play with exceeding cleverness.

Many a young soldier who failed to smell powder has come home and tasted it.

POWER PLANT IS BLOWN OUT WITH HEAVY DAMAGES

Marinette—A severe electrical storm yesterday at the power-dam, where the electric power is furnished for the Twin Cities, caused thousands of dollars worth of damage to the equipment at the plant, which will take several months to replace, and put back into condition.

Lightning was the chief cause of the damage done. Four generators are used at the power plant to furnish electricity for this vicinity and yesterday two of these motors were burned to a crisp, when they were struck by lightning.

Edward Daniels, superintendent and General Manager of the local traction company stated this morning that the damage would amount into the thousands of dollars, and that several months would be necessary before the damaged property could be replaced.

Power Shut Off.

Street car and electric power was shut off in the twin cities for a time, but was soon turned on. With the damage done, light power will be cut off just one-half for this territory, necessitating the shutting off of power to a certain extent in a number of places in the city.

It is a most serious blow to the concern, as the generators are of the most expensive and modern type, and with the burning of two of the four used, the result will be seriously felt here.

You can't live for ever and you won't even live half that long if you don't cheer up.

In handling it the weapon was discharged and a bullet went through the hand and stomach of the 17 months old son of Mrs. Moscho Vatos, who was visiting at the time. The baby was in his mother's arms. He is not expected to recover.

LAKE PORTS WIN SUIT AGAINST THE CITY OF CHICAGO

Lake Michigan cities and Green Bay ports which united in the case, pending nearly ten years, Saturday won the fight against the Chicago sanitary board from withdrawing more than 250,000 cubic feet of water a minute from Lake Michigan. Judge Landis in federal court, ruling against the Chicago district. The lake ports joined in a fight against Chicago when the city started to draw 480,000 cubic feet of water a minute from the lake on the plea that it was necessary to keep the Chicago river flowing through the drainage canal to carry off sewage. It was claimed that lake levels were endangered and that all lake ports suffered as a result of the big industrial draw from the lake. Chicago contended that lives of its people were endangered because sewage could not be carried off with less amount of water and health conditions became bad. The agreement permitting Chicago to draw 200,000 cubic feet of water a minute was entered into in 1907 but soon after the city surpassed this amount and protest was made to the war department. It is claimed that Chicago will be forced to spend $20,000,000 for additional sewage facilities if the decision stands.

No reason was given for the act, although it is thought that the man was despondent over his ill health. The two brothers who brought the man to Marinette left again this morning for Pound.

Pythians Plans A. U. P. Temple Marquette-At the convention of Pythians here last week the Marquette lodge launched a drive to organize an upper peninsula temple of the Dramatic Order, Knight of Khorassan, the branch of Pythianism known as the "pythianism of the order." Tentative plans for the proposed organization were discussed at the business meeting of the Upper Marquette Lodge No. 5 is out to make this city headquarters of the temple. The D. O. K. K. branch bears the same relation to the Pythian lodge as the Shrine has to the Masonic order. Some time ago a D. O. K. K. temple was established in Laurium and it flourished for several years in the copper country. Since the organization of the upper peninsula league there has been a demand for a larger temple to include all upper peninsula lodges. The project was under discussion previous to the war, but was dropped temporarily pending the end of the conflict. The league meeting here was the first large gathering since 1917 and D. O. K. K. plans were revived, with increased interest.
