Gardener-Beyers.

A pretty wedding took place Monday morning at Holy Family church, Flat Rock, when Miss Eva Gardener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Folk Gardener of Flat Rock became the bride of Charles Beyers of this city.

The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock by the Rev. Father G. Haines officiating.

The bride wore a charming gown of white satin, accented with a veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Her attendant, Miss Beatrice Fisher, wore a gown of cream satin with a hat to match and carried roses. The bridegroom was attended by Ronald LaVolette.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Flat Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. Beyers have left on a wedding trip to Detroit and other points after which they will return to Escanaba to make their home.

Miss Josephine Schleis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schleis of this city, and Cecil H. Campbell, both popular young people of Escanaba, were married Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the St. Patrick church parsonage.

BARK RIVER NEWS

The movements of an editor are usually of least importance and of very little interest to the newspaper reader. But as there is a scarcity of real news and a dearth of interesting stories with which to fill these columns, we venture to tell something of our experiences during a week.

As chairman of the temporary organization of the State Farm Bureau, it has devolved upon us to hold advance meetings in various localities to explain the purpose, plan and design of the bureau movement so that when the solicitors arrive on the scene the farmers will have had time to think the matter over and make up their minds what to do.

Saturday evening the road led to Schaffler where about the first farmers had congregated. There seemed to be an earnest desire to understand the movement. A certain conservatism was apparent, but happily between extreme conservatism and extreme radicalism there is always a way that means progress and sanity as well.

On Monday evening we pushed the nose of the river on up Escanaba, Gladstone, Rapid River and some 29 miles beyond to old Oser. There is a new settlement. Here men are clearing lands and building homes, establishing schools and making a country. It takes men of good quality, lots of luck, and an abundance of determination to strike off into a section of rush and stumps far away from the centers, isolated and lonely to build homes and build up community life. Here are pioneers in the true sense of the word—the kind of men that make up the bone and sinew of a nation.

Tuesday evening the way led to goats. At Rapid River, Le Messager kindly volunteered to show the way and the river had a rest while a truck of it in the publisher's Overland to find this fine little settlement thrifty, kindly, and hospitable people, who have evidently struggled hard, fought out some of their problems together and established a happy prosperous community. We had a very pleasant meeting here and if we judge correctly, the people here have real instinct for cooperation.

Wednesday evening our objective was Stonington. The river took us Escanaba and Mr. James Stratton took us across the bridge. We surprised to find here a highly developed, settled, beautiful farm, well cared for and excellent crops. However certain times the people of the side of the community are isolated their distance from railroads the bad roads. Here is need for co-operation. There were about 50 farmers at our meeting. A sturdy set of men who have done well and who if you decide to work together will accomplish wonders. The farm bureau campaign will be a Bark River township Monday. The solicitors will then open up work here.

Henry Hoes came to this section at a year ago and bought a farm from Schaffler. He paid at that time, $9. He sold it this week to a farm from Wallace for $11,500. The new owner has already taken possession. Mr. Hoes has moved with his family into the apartment in the new Gasman building in the village. The transaction may be taken as evidence of a number of things. First, productive land in this section is being and will advance more in value. Second, that cleaning up the mess and taking value of any land. Mr. Hoes is an excellent farmer who he trusts he will find something out him so that the community not lose him as a citizen.

and Mrs. Treiber have returned their trip to Wisconsin. They at Eau Claire and Madison, at a points the doctor has business the Rev. Father Edward Feldhause officiating. The bride wore a tailored suit of navy blue and a white feathered turban. Her flowers were a bouquet of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Campbell attended the couple. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left on a wedding trip to Chicago, Milwaukee, Fond du Lac and other points after which they will return to Escanaba to make their home. Miss Schleis is a graduate of the Escanaba public schools and is well known here. For the last few years she has been engaged as a teacher at the Barr school. Mr. Campbell is connected with the Johnson Lumber company of this city.

Thrown From Tram; Horse Killed. Joseph Heron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heron, 1901 Park avenue, sustained a painful but not serious injury Thursday afternoon while driving a horse on a tramway at the I. Stephenson company at Wells.

According to information received from parents of the injured man this morning he was driving the horse on top of the tram when a board broke throwing the horse and driver to the ground below. The horse was killed but the driver escaped with only a few minor injuries. He was unable to resume work for some time and is resting at the home of his parents.

Interests. They found good roads and had ones—enough and ones to make the trip considerably shorter than planned as to crops and farming conditions along the way. Dr. Treiber says that while the season is a little farther advanced below the general conditions here are as good as those in any part of the country through he travelled.

Elmer Carlson motored to Gwinn, Mich. Sunday. Luther League meeting this evening at the home of Miss Alma Anderson at Schaffler.

The railroad station is undergoing repairs. The appropriation for this purpose is evidently about "six bits." However, said repairs will probably be sufficient to tide us over for another forty years at which time the new depot will probably be built.

Mrs. Nels Olson, Lizzie Romin, Arthur Olson, J. V. Hedlund, Miss Helen Solberg, Dorothea Solberg and editor attended the upper peninsula district conference of the Mission church Young People's societies at Gladstone, Sunday.

Earl Doust of Manistique, who has been visiting here, returns this week to his work in Pontiac.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Folio and Mr. Marshall have been visiting Bark River in Escanaba, realizes the last two weeks or so.

Miss Mary McClusky of San Prairie, Wis., visited the Boyle family this week.

Dan Bunno having rented his property has left Bark River for other parts and new experiences. We suggest Dan cannot get along for any length of time without a good old argument with Bark River republicans and that Dan will soon put in appearance again.

The ball game at Powers resulted in a score of 9 to 11 in favor of our neighbors. The newspapers down below us had intimated that our aggregation should look for a shut out in this game.

Miss Rose Fahs is visiting her sister at Oshkosh.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Frechette are spending the week in their villa at Bay Shore.

Bark River plays Wauteka here Sunday. Comes out to the game.

Archie McLeod and Miss Myrtle Allen of Northland, were married at Wilson Tuesday of this week. They will make their home at Wilson.

Mrs. Joseph Frechette and family returned to their home in Racine after a two weeks' visit with friends and relatives here.

The Bark River second team played the Schaffler first at this place last Sunday. The game resulted in a score of 13 to 14 in favor of the Bark River lads.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Chudacoff of Lena, Wis., had a week's visit in Bark River.

KINDRED SOULS

By JESSIE E. SHERWIN

(Copyright, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.) "Did you direct Parsons not to eject those delinquent tenants in the Waters building?"

"I did, Uncle, and hastened here to inform you of the circumstances."

"Well," observed Adam Paget, "I have countermanded the order. You take a good deal upon yourself in violating the stringent rules of this office."

"But, uncle, listen to me," replied Waldron Hume eagerly and with earnestness. "The tenants, father and daughter, are honest, deserving people. They are about to leave, anyway, and are only awaiting a remittance from some relatives at a distance to remove to another part of the country and pay you up."

"And beat me out of another week's rent," snarled Paget. "No, no."

"But you don't understand," pleaded Hume. "The father is an invalid. They are at the very verge of destitution. It made my heart bleed to realize their condition. Uncle, I will make up your demand out of my own pocket, but do not drive these poor unfortunates to homelessness."

"Mostly sympathetic, aren't you?" sneered Paget. "Do you suppose I took you into my business to have you break my rules and beggar me? As to your proteges, you are too late. Their few belongings were levied on an hour ago and they are probably seeking some new landlord victim."

Waldron Hume stood regarding his malicious relative with a glaze of suppressed anger and open contempt. He removed a wallet from his pocket and placed it on the desk before his uncle.

"Your papers," he said.

"What does that mean?"

"That you have taught me that a humble life back among my native hills is preferable to selling my soul in a business of cruelty and extortion," and with the words the young man left the office and bent his steps swiftly back to the wretched tenement house he had visited earlier that morning.

His lips were compressed, his eyes filled with indignation as he re-entered the building where for the first time he had met John Denton and his daughter. He had gone there in the course of his duties as a room for delinquent rent of the two rooms they occupied. His heart had stirred at witnessing the sorrow of the beautiful girl pleading for time, for a day or two, until expected money was received. He had given orders to his telephone to Parsons, the man employed by his uncle to serve papers and the like, to leave the Dentons undisturbed. Now he found the tenants gone and their few meagre sticks of furniture removed by the bailiff to satisfy the insatiable greed of the man he was ashamed to recognize as his kindred.

Then passing down the hall he was hailed by a woman occupying the front rooms of the flat.

"It's Mr. Hume, is it not?" she asked. "Please sit, the poor souls' back of me have been evicted."

"I have just learned so," answered Hume gravely. "Can you tell me where they have gone?"

"Sure I've given them shelter. The old gentleman is well, prostrated with the excitement and roughness of the bailiff and his sweet child is nearly heartbroken."

Old Mr. Denton lay on a couch, his daughter seated at his side striving to speak words of comfort and hope as Hume came into their presence. In a very few words he explained the circumstances of his uncle's action. Then he added:

"Mr. Denton, Miss Denton, I wish you to allow me to make up for my mistake by supporting you until we know what has occurred by being your friend. You might have to wait here many days before you hear from your friends. I have a home to offer you until you, Mr. Denton, have regained your health and where the best mother or a man ever had will welcome your daughter and strive to make her forget her sorrows. Will you trust me to help you over a hard place in life that comes to many in the ups and downs of experience? My mother lives a hundred miles west of here. She has a comfortable home and plenty of room to spare. She is lonely, loving, full of gracious deeds, and I want you to go to her with me. My brief experience in the cold, cruel city has not destroyed the spirit she inculcated in me to extend a helping hand to the persecuted and worthy whenever I could."

"And it is on our account that you have lost your business position?" quavered John Denton, at the point of tears as he realized this noble sacrifice.

"We need not speak of that," replied Hume. "I am anxious as yourselves to get among those who have only tenderness and love for those in distress."

It was like going into a new clear atmosphere for those three as they left the murky and grim of the city that afternoon. It was like entering a paradise for the forlorn and desolate homeless two as Mrs. Hume welcomed them beneath her hospitable roof.

"Lovely, tender-hearted Marguerite!" spoke Mrs. Hume after she had heard all the story of her son's impulse. "Did I tell you, Waldron, that I felt I was to see you soon, for a few nights since I dreamed that you brought a bride to the old house?"

And with the dawn of the new springtime the vision was fulfilled.

This report of Deputy State Oil Inspector, Fred J. Derrick, of Menominee, gives some interesting statistics and shows that, in spite of twentieth century modes of living, in the days of the electric light, etc., great quantities of kerosene are still used...

Mr. Derrick's duty entails the inspection of every tank car or every shipment of kerosene oil into the district. It must stand a certain test or it is rejected, and not allowed to be distributed to the consumer...

the fact that, according to the reports the expense of the department's is covered by the fees collected and furthermore, leaves a balance in the state treasury. Mr. Derrick's report for 1919 shows:

The State Report. The report for the entire state shows that Michigan used 12,782,594 gallons of kerosene in 1919, and the inspectors rejected 63,799 gallons. The total fees collected in the state for the year amounted to $85,875.88 and after the expense of maintaining the department was deducted $29,180.13 were turned into the state treasury.

SKIRTS. Our grandmas were the crinolines. Ere atoms buzzed around. Not 'em their pretty shoes were seen. Their dresses reached the ground. Last Night's Dreams - What They Mean

ACORNS. THAT simple little fruit of the oak tree, the acorn, has divided the mystic world of those who profess, or have professed, to read the riddle of dreams into two violently antagonistic camps. According to one set of penetrators of the veil the acorn shed by the tree of night through the visions of our slumbers is as much to be desired as rubies and fine gold; to the other set it is a thing to be abhorred. Those who sit in the camp of the pessimists and the predictors of evil declare that to see an acorn in one's dreams means dire poverty ahead if you don't watch out. Another one holds that it means that you are about to commit an irreparable fault. "Not so," comes the cheerful and confident cry from the other camp; the acorn seen in dreams is one of the happiest auguries; the acorn is one of dreamland's most desirable products. Those who say otherwise are night birds of ill-omen, creeping in the leafless dreamtrees whereas acorns never grow. To dream of acorns, say this school of optimistic mystics, is a sure sign of good things ahead; much happiness is store for you. It means, among other good things, that you will derive much gain from your present business, which will increase under your fostering care. If you dream that you are picking acorns from the tree it means that, after trials, you will have a sure success. If you are now a laborer, or a worker of any sort, and you dream that you are eating acorns it is a sure sign that, from your present condition of toil, you will rise to a condition of peace and ease and plenty. When doctors disagree who shall decide? Give us the optimists, every time! (Copyright.)

The Grip of Grit. Grit is one of the greatest assets in the world. Grit is something that is in the blood. It has a way of putting fire into the eye and stiffness into the backbone. In the most needy hours it rises like a full clad knight to win both peace and honor. You can't buy it. Attempts to bribe the cause resentment. Organized opposition merely helps it get into fighting trim. It's that part of the nature that knows no defeat and isn't afraid of anything. When you read of the greatness of men you can put it down to grit.

Just Folks BY EDGAR A. GUEST

THE TRUTH ABOUT ENVY. I like to see the flowers grow, To see the pansies in a row, I think a well-kept garden's fine, And wish that such a one were mine. But one can't have a stock of flowers Unless he digs and digs for hours. My ground is always bleak and bare, The roses do not flourish there, And where I once sowed poppy seeds I now find tangled masses of weeds. I'm fond of flowers, but I admit, For digging I don't care a bit. I envy men whose yards are gay, But never work as hard as they; I also envy men who own More wealth than I have ever known. I'm like a lot of men who yearn For joys that they refuse to earn. You cannot have the joys of work And take the comfort of a shirk, I find the man I envy most Is he, who's longest at his post. I could have gold and roses, too, If I would work, like the rest who do. (Copyright by Edgar A. Guest.)

THE CITY THAT MADE THE BIGGEST INCREASE

Washington, D. C.—Wood River, Ill. has the distinction of obtaining the largest percentage of increase in population during the 1919-20 period, the census bureau announced today. In 1919 Wood River had only eighty-four inhabitants. During the ten year period the population increased 5,992, making the population total 2,476, or an increase of 4,933.1 per cent. The annexation of Ben Bow and East Wood River is held responsible by census bureau officials for the increase.

PORCELAIN MONEY.

Meissen, Saxony.—The first German porcelain money is being manufactured here and will consist of 200,000, twenty penny pieces for use on the Hamburg Elevated railway. The city of Meissen as well as several other towns has ordered porcelain coins for local use, with a view of saving the small change scarcity as well as obviating the present unclean and easily tearable paper currency. The German republic is said to be about to introduce porcelain coins ranging from ten pennings.

IN OCTOBER

Washington, D. C.—The population of nearly one-third of the cities and other incorporated places of the United States has been announced by the census bureau. Of the 14,186 cities and incorporated places in 1919, the population of 4,975 has been made public by the bureau up to date. Population of approximately one-third of the 568 counties and subdivisions of the country also has been announced. Orders have been issued to speed up this work so that the country's total population will be announced in October.

A new and easily copied trimming has been introduced for petticoats. A double hem reaches to above the knee and a single conventionalized flower spray, motif handpainted at one side is the only decoration.

Newberry.—Unless the republicans get into a row among themselves, the successful candidates at the primary election to be held August 31, will be unopposed at the fall election. This is indicated by the fact that no nominating petitions have been filed by the democrats for any county office. This is a political condition that has prevailed for many years. Lape county being such a rock-ribbed republican county that the democrats long since abandoned the contest for county offices.

Menominee—Unless relief is to be given tending to remedy the freight car shortage, Menominee and Marquette sawmills depending on logs by rail may, in a few weeks, be forced to suspend operations. This is a serious situation confronting one of the chief industries of the Twin Cities, and vicinity. Efforts are being made by local interests to have the interstate commerce commission order sufficient flat cars sent to this division for the purpose of transporting sawlogs to the Menominee and Marquette mills, but the result of those efforts at this time seems problematical.

Manistique—The body of Kenneth Raredon, who had met death by drowning July 14, was recovered near Whiteville, about 8 miles this side of Seal Choix, by Mr. Robert Van Dusen and incorporated places in 1919, the population of 4,975 has been made public by the bureau up to date. Population of approximately one-third of the 568 counties and subdivisions of the country also has been announced. Orders have been issued to speed up this work so that the country's total population will be announced in October.

Manistique—While attempting to shoot a .32-calibre pistol last Sunday evening, Deputy State Game Warden F. E. Guinan got his left hand in line with the muzzle of the gun and as a result is nursing three badly lacerated fingers. The bullet forced through the second and third fingers and clipped the end off the little finger. After running his car from Hiawatha township, a distance of about ten miles to town, Mr. Guinan had the wound dressed at Dr. Nelson's hospital.

What's done as much as anything else to fill up the movie houses

LOOK at the crowds that step out of their cars in front of the movies every summer evening. The movie managers would be renting half of their theatres for store space, if it weren't for the automobile. It is typical of Americans that they took to the automobile as a matter of course — just as they have to the movies and to every other great invention of the last half century. And the same thing has happened everytime. Taking things as they come is a fine way to foster waste and extravagance. As regards tires, the comeback is about due. People are pretty near through paying for something that isn't there when they look for it. What a man pays for in a tire is quality—not a limited number of miles or the privilege of getting a rebate in case the miles don't come up to the limit. U. S. Tires are guaranteed as to quality—with no limitation of mileage. And that holds just as good for the small car tire as for the biggest U. S. Tire we've got. There's only one standard of quality with U.S.—and the size of the car has nothing whatever to do with it. We represent U. S. Tires in this town. You'll find it worth while to talk to us before you buy any more tires.

of a large salary, than the actor, he has compensations which the actor does not have. Presumably a man becomes a distinguished professor because he holds these compensations of more importance than money and the things money will buy. On the average the professors probably get more out of life than the movie actors do. The comparison may, therefore, mean only that there are a whole lot more of us able to consume and enjoy what the actor has to offer than are able to consume and enjoy what the professor has to offer. It is not discreditable that this should be so, it is merely natural.

OPERATORS FEAR ADVENT OF FORD INDUSTRIES WILL DRIVE MEN FROM WOODS.

That the announcement and discussion of the plans of the Ford interests for the erection of a saw mill and body lumber plant at Iron Mountain has already caused unrest in the mill and lumbering industry in the upper peninsula is stated by a well known operator, directing extensive camps in this part of the district, says the Marquette Mining Journal. That ultimately the Ford operations will consist of other operations to vary the present wage scale and establish conditions of employment approaching those fixed by the Ford interests in his behalf.

Drift to Iron Mountain.

"While no announcement has been made of the prospective wage scales at the Iron Mountain plant, there is a assumption among the workers that they will be based on the minimums in effect in the Ford industries at Detroit," he commented. "This in itself, makes for restlessness in the mill and the woods operations. There has been a small, but perceptible, drift of workers from our operations to Iron Mountain, though the work there does not as yet call for any considerable forces of men, and no mill men or woods workers are required.

"This drift suggests the purpose in the background of the workers' minds. It goes without saying that the Ford mill and the operations in the woods are established in the upper peninsula operations, there will be a marked desertion of other concerns in favor of the Detroit company, unless some other operation is undertaken in the woods and establish equally attractive conditions of employment.

"That there is good reason for the concern with which present operators view the announcement of the plans for the new Iron Mountain plant may be appreciated from a survey of a few factors of the situation. In the first place, there is no labor surplus in the district. Many operators are short-handed. The strike of the lumber workers and mill men aggravated this condition. While many of the men who left the district while the strike was in progress have drifted back, the forces are still below normal. Thus the development of the Ford operations within the next two years will mean a drain on an already depleted labor market.

4,000 Men in Woods?

"It is asserted that Ford industries at Iron Mountain will employ 2,000 men. We figure, roughly, that for a mill in the mill and two men are needed in the woods. If the Iron Mountain plants employ the number of men stated, approximately 4,000 men will be worked in the woods. This is a large force of woods operators. If it were recruited from this class of labor already employed in the upper peninsula, it would have practically every operator with a badly depleted force. Of course, woods workers are needed in the Ford camps will be drawn from other districts as well. The upper peninsula operators will not have to furnish all the men for the Ford camps, but the problem is one that will be vital for them, nevertheless. If the Ford plans are already correctly reported, the woods operations will far transcend anything ever conducted by any one concern in the upper peninsula. They will be, as lumbering goes, colossal.

Await Definite News

"Most of the operators would welcome definite announcement of the prospective Ford policies in regard to the upper peninsula operations. At the moment they are the subject of much speculation among the men. It is definitely known what wage scales the Ford interests propose to pay and something of the plans they have in mind for conducting their operations we would at least have the satisfaction of having an end to the uncertainty, and we could make our plans for the future.

"In any event, there is no doubt that the advent of Mr. Ford means a period of marked readjustment in the lumber industry of the region. It will also show its effect on other industries. That is why news of the Ford enterprise is read with so much keen interest by all classes, employers and employed alike."

SCHAWA BROS. BRICK PLANT TO BE LOCATED HERE

Another industry is to be added this fall to Gladstone's industrial resources which although small and new will prove a valuable asset. The Schawa Bros. from across the bay are going to move their brick making machinery and yards to this city. The plant is only operated during the summer and due to the fact that laborers are hard to secure because they do not desire to live on the other side of the bay, the Schawa Bros. believe that locating here would be a good move.

At present it is necessary to load the on snows and bring it here.

WARNING DEVICE MAY BE INSTALLED 9TH ST CROSSING

Due to the fact that there have been several near accidents at the railroad crossing on Ninth street, Mayor Miller has asked City Attorney Glenn Jackson to get in touch with Soo Line officials to see if some warning device can't be established there.

There is considerable traffic over this crossing and as the engine is generally behind it is rarely heard.

An electrical device of some sort would add greatly to the safety of this crossing and unless steps are taken it is feared some fatal accident will occur.

Unclaimed Bodies to Be Sent to Schools

The state health department, in a letter received by County Clerk Albert J. Pepin, calls attention to the Michigan "anatomical" law, which, it is asserted, is being disregarded in many localities.

The law provides that bodies, which are unclaimed by the relatives or friends of the deceased persons, must be turned over to the state medical and dental schools to be used for experimental purposes.

"Money for burial of such bodies," the letter says, "cannot lawfully be paid out of any public fund except the university fund."

a sleeping car. About thirty persons were in the car asleep when the cook started a meal. A leaking valve had filled the car with gas and when he lighted the fire flames spread. Actors jumped through windows in night clothing. Some suffered burns and bruises.

The wooden structure of the car was burned in addition to trunks and personal belongings of the actors. Fire spread from the car to the buildings of the Yawkey-Crowley Lumber Co.

Marquette Has Woman Out For Congress Now

Marquette is one of the few cities in the United States that may have a woman candidate for a seat in the House of Representatives. The term "may" is used advisedly because, while her petitions have been filed, there is as yet no certainty that her name will appear on the ballots.

Miss Olga Von Zellen of Marquette, wants to go to congress and seeks election on the liberal ticket. Subsequent petitions were filed to enable her to place on the primary ballot, but she failed to file with the secretary of state the necessary affidavit of party loyalty. In consequence Miss Von Zellen's name will not be certified for a place on the ballot unless the affidavit reached the office before the allotted time expired.

FAYETTE NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie French and two daughter of Escanaba have been camping at Sac Bay the past two weeks, they carried with them a trunk which served as their sleeping quarters, a dining tent and cooking apparatus completed their camping outfit. They reported to have had a wonderful time, leaving here Friday to spend the night on the plains, and the rest of the time picking berries, arriving in Escanaba Saturday, for another year's grind.

Mrs. Bob Brodie and daughter Irene, left here Sunday in the John Fagan car for Manistique after spending several days in this vicinity with relatives and friends.

Hardy Devert is busy completing his new barn which has been in the course of construction since last year. It is not overdoing the thing if we say that it will be the largest and best looking barn in Fairbairns' township. It is of hipoco construction and is 158 feet long. Dunk Brodie is the architect and builder.

Mrs. Jennie Laux has returned from Manistique where she visited with her sister, Mrs. Joe Miller, for the past two weeks.

Robert Clinch, the popular Fayette blacksmith moved his family to Nahna Tuesday of last week. He is at present employed by the Bay de Noc Co. at that place, needless to say, some of us will miss him for a while.

Miss Florence Arnold, who has been spending the summer at Fayette, is at present visiting with her parents on the bluff.

Martin Birk, who left here about a week ago in quest of better health is expected home some time this coming week. We hope Mr. Birk will have a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Bathke of St. Paul, Minn., spent two weeks camping at Fayette. Mrs. Bathke's father, Dr. Snyder of Escanaba, was their guest. The party was well pleased with Fayette and promised to return next year.

Miss Jennie Birk has accepted a position with the Fayette Mercantile Co. Jennie graduated from the Garden high school a short time ago and is considered capable to fulfill the duties that are connected with her new position.

Annie Inaville has taken a contract from the Wm. Bonifas Co. to put out a considerable amount of timber the coming fall and winter. Annie was so successful last winter that he just can't resist the temptation of getting in the game again, as soon as soon as his farm work is completed. He will employ from 10 to 15 men and it is considered that the job will last all winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Remington of Nahna were in Fayette last Sunday calling on friends. While here their daughter accompanied them on their trip. Mr. Remington is driving a car now, a most unusual experience, he has always been under the impression that horses were the only means of locomotion. We all change our minds on certain occasions, Dave.

Dr. Cottage and son of Escanaba arrived here last Saturday and have rented a cottage which they will occupy during their stay at Fayette.

George Pucker, who has been busy operating his saw mill south of Fayette the past two weeks met with a painful accident while adjusting his machine. In some unforeseen manner his hand slipped onto the saw, inflicting severe wounds. It was necessary to suspend the operation for a time at least.

A surprise was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Watchorn last Tuesday evening in the honor of Miss Helen LaFolle of Manistique. A very pleasant time was spent. Refreshments were served.

Mayor F. S. Dhooge of Ashland is expected here most any day, to spend his annual convention. His visit has been delayed due to some street repairing he had to attend. We are wishing that some one would cast their eyes over some of those beautiful roads of Garden and Fayette and repair some of the holes that have prevailed since the snow left.

Geo. McKenna and a party of friends from Chicago arrived today to spend a two weeks' vacation. Mr. McKenna was here a year ago and has written from the windy city his vacation is not well spent if he fails to come to Fayette.

Chas. Arnold reports that he has about completed the basement of his new home. A bungalow will take the place of the house that burnt last spring and will be of concrete block construction.

Rev. and Mrs. Williamson of Manistique are scheduled to arrive here today to spend a three weeks' vacation. They had their cottage reserved two weeks ago.

last week with the latter's hay.

Chas. Smith and son William and Joseph accompanied by Miss Margaret Van Remortel of this place left for Manistique this morning, where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Monette for the week.

Wm. Laux, Mrs. E. A. Laux, Mrs. B. Moland and Mrs. John Sowa joined the berry pickers on the plains last Sunday. They did not enjoy army life and returned to their homes after a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Monette of Manistique went to Fayette, where they spent Saturday and Sunday. We always know it is Joe when we see the car, with the steering wheel up the Joe.

Delore Humbert has formed a combination with N. L. Neivaux in the mining game. Delore has finished his own buying and will soon finish the Neivaux crop.

We are very anxious at the present time to hear from some source where we can avail ourselves of a good blacksmith. We have the shop and the tools to it for the right party to start at once. Any of our people realize now, more than ever what it means to be without a blacksmith. They are and should be so in this movement. There is no better evidence of a commendable community spirit than that of loyalty to a town in which a person lives.

If a town is worth living in, it is worth defending and expending its efforts to advance with the rest of the world. Yet in almost every community you will find people who can see nothing good in their surroundings. They cannot recognize the fact, but it may be humble it is home, they clothed them, fed them and cared for them in sickness and in health, also furnished them friends who have been steadfast and true. They magnify its imperfections and spread the clouds wherever they go. They often make life miserable for others and invariably make it a reproach to themselves, but there is a brighter side to these remarks. The abuse those shortsighted people heap upon their place of abode generally falls upon unsuspecting citizens. Their neighbors and friends know them as they are, as people who might have been valuable citizens capable of constructive work, but whose dispositions have been warped in younger days, possibly through no particular fault of their own, their criticisms are listened to with good patience, but are forgotten about as soon as uttered. The views of the chronic sickler and fault-finder have less weight than they are given, other adult element of the human race. When he thinks he is kicking his town and its leading citizens, he generally finds that he is kicking himself instead.

LATER—The Reverend and Mrs. Williamson have recently arrived and we suggest that those that were thinking about passing in their chips in Manistique during the Reverend's absence kindly put on an effort of revival and he will attend to them when he makes his return to the city. There is no rest for the wicked, but the Reverend don't belong to that class, and says he is going to take that needed (REST) at Fayette, the place of rest.

Winter broke, and even the cold was no longer a decent white. The world was bedraggled and sullen. John Levington's dreams had withered, and his memory was pain.

For the young mother April was approach to a new country, gray misty mottos beyond any words, and in May its subtle boundary was reached. Dowagiac's city council took a hand in the matter, having passed a resolution that track was against one John Levington and his wife, the dirty woman who dwelt next door came officer, until her visits left a trail through the house. John could not scrub it away. Mary went to the hospital, her eyes radiant with heaven's fever, and she never returned.

Of the four days that followed her death, John retained only certain films of horror. A pink, puffed man-child, placed in his arms a moment and then taken away; black carriages waiting before the house, coachmen chosen from the village, in dark, impetuous gowns crowded in the living-room to emphasize the hideous cask—these made him a shade in an unreal world, his mind vanished. He awoke, and was silent. After the blackest of these days, he remained through the night on Cemetery hill, pacing, bareheaded, crossing and recrossing the sacred earth that hid her.

He saw her as she had come to him a year before, with springtime trembling in her touch, soft May-fire in her eyes. To-night in the darkness, beyond the faded hyacinths of older sanctuaries, John Levington pressed his cheek to the grass, and his heart broke. He lived again in the manner of her love, impetuous and golden. His hands groped out upon the sod. He prayed for her fragrant body. His prayer for death was unanswered—and the morning robins whistled and mocked.

September came again to Dowagiac, and John Levington was only a name there. Winter recurred in bedridden, dragged past; and May arrived to loosen the rheumatism in the house of the untidy woman who continued to live next to a vacant house. Yet another September came, and the Levington baby was becoming an old and tiresome story. The city council withdrew in favor of an orphan's home. This would be the end of Little Con. But before they could send him away, his father appeared in town. John Levington had darkened. He was tanned about the eyes, and his former bench-mates found him sleek. He was lean, almost gaunt, and the light in his eyes was dim and shifty. He had no more thought or care. The tension at which he lived did not produce rhymes. He claimed his son and they set out together.

Con was soberly pleased. The fast and noisy train was minimal. Best of all, he did not need to be addressed just at dark, which was the finest part of the day.

apron, stiff with grease. She moved out to the sidewalk to shake hands. "You ain't looking well—and is this the baby?"

She melancholically pinched Con's cheek, and he coldly suffered her touch.

John Levington did not reach the cemetery. As he was leading his son to that hill the blaze of an August sun mastered him. His vitality was gone, had left him long since. Con crossed the street to ask at a house for water, because his father was down and could not get up. Dowagiac's new ambulance thus found its use. The boy was handed over to the matron of the city rest room. After supper they took him to his father in the hospital.

"I'm going," said John.

Con was somewhat closer to the meaning now. John's eyes were more deeply shadowed, but even in this new situation the boy was reassured by the familiar scent of wine and cinnamon about the bed.

CHAPTER II

Purple Tracery. In the darkness of the months and years that followed, Con Levington did not suffer consciously from the horrors of his environment. He became much like it, and through the accumulating films of sordid experience he saw but vaguely that there was more in life than this. Whenever anything beautiful forced its way toward him he could not imagine that it might be for himself. Yet the true heritage in his blood was not lost. Merely his decent, poetic young self waned and crossed with filth.

He complained with the scum of cities, after running away from Dowagiac, also took a few meek lessons of Max Markov, a young Russian spirit in Chicago. He spent much of his time at a club of questionaires, yet managed to make a firm friend of Fremont, a Spaniard in French diplomatic circles, a princely person of irreproachable standing. Con never realized what an indigestible yakake he was making out of life. The nearest he ever came to straightening himself out was during recurrences of a longing to know more, to see deeper into the complexities about him. He forgot his father and mother, even forgot the dirty woman whose marks were still upon his habits, but this longing came more frequently, out of the wells of his spirit, perhaps to be instantly polluted, denied, smelted down. Con did not believe that real life was for such as himself. Both to the underworld and to the upper realm of society, he felt somehow an outsider.

There was at last a series of events that quickened his longing to a degree that would not be put aside. The pressure of these strange events formed his life, once for all. The better story begins here, the final unraveling out of the night wears in his days. Through all these events, a few children of early years, even the yearnings of those who went before him, were intensified and definitely answered.

Destiny for Con Levington, began swiftly to untangle at a dinner, a quiet affair with one of his newest friends.

This fate-laden dinner was shaded and lit, served for two, in the smaller dining-room of the Wedger house. The members of the family were all away, except one.

Con himself became marked for "different." At the age of six he felt it. He did nearly everything the boys in the Dory street neighborhood, even the soiled little yellow boys whose play was weird with forty centuries of Asiatic wilderness; but Con was always admitted. He could fight and climb, was generous and bold. But the clear light in his eyes betrayed him; he was listened and he was not.

At length he realized that things were being concerning his father which he could not quite fathom. John seemed different, rather like cinnamon and whisky. This went with the gray-shadowed eyes, and grew more perceptible when John began to stay at home every day, being out of work often now. John Levington would take the child between his knees and look for a long time steadily into the blue eyes. Con found that this was better than anything. He received his father into an open heart, giving him utter devotion. John slept a great deal when out of work. His eyes were shadowed and dim.

What we are doing to make Telephone Service Better

Hardly a week passes that does not see some plan or device in operation, or a prospect, that will make the telephone service more as we both would have it.

During the past three and one half years, for instance, more than 10,000 miles of additional telephone wires have been strung in Michigan. These additional lines have added greatly to the scope and quality of long distance and toll services.

A new cable connecting the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan has also been placed. This cable has added greatly to the long distance service which we are giving Michigan.

More than 6,000 private switchboards have been installed in Michigan to date and as many more as can be procured will be placed at the disposal of subscribers desiring them this year.

All of these improvements and additions have been put through in the face of the most difficult material delivery conditions Michigan has ever experienced.

Great attention is being given the work in our operator training schools in cities throughout Michigan, that these young women may come to their tasks proficient, and with a full understanding of their responsibilities.

And so it is throughout every department of the business. Difficulties are being experienced. The results are not always all that we wish. But we will keep at work until we have overcome every obstacle to good service.

GREAT RACING EVENT IS TO BE STAGED SOON

SEYMOUR RETURNS TO DELTA COUNTY AFTER WINNING TRACK HONORS.

Local fans are anticipating with enthusiasm the approach of August 15 when they will witness without doubt the very best series of motorcycle races ever staged in the Upper Peninsula when some of the most famous riders of the country will appear on the track now nearing completion in Escanaba.

got up, shook himself, thanked his rescuer and climbed into the boat and beat it.

When asked how it happened he stated that he was trying to dodge those crows. "Dodge the devil," said (Chet Bennett, who appeared on the scene, "even at the rate you were going you could not have caught those crows in a thousand years."

THE LIGHT OF TRUTH

By SAIDE E. BALCOM

His collar had been turned, his cuffs twisted. To an attentive observer the fact would have been patent. His coat was buttoned up rather closely, betokening a sensitiveness as to spotless linen. The shine on his shoes was of yesterday. Altogether, Ross Tindelle did not present the perfect elegance of garb and bearing that had made him a conspicuous figure as the star guest at the Waltham hotel for two weeks past.

More than once later Bertha, as if in a casual way, asked her father about Tindelle. "He is working at day labor," reported the banker, "digging a cellar, hauling material in a wheelbarrow."

"Oh, father!" burst forth Bertha irrepressibly.

GIANT BATTERY NOW ON MARKET

NEW DISCOVERY OF BIDS FAIR TO REVOLUTIONIZE BATTERY INDUSTRY OF COUNTRY.

A dry battery to replace the present type of storage and constantly "failing to function" automobile battery has long been sought and according to the claims of the manufacturers who have long experimenting they now have in their O. K. Giant battery the achievement that bids fair to revolutionize the battery industry of the continent.

possession of the distributors, only four or five to each group of several counties, for demonstration purposes until such time as larger factories can be completed for the manufacture on a scale that will more nearly meet the demands of the public.

FLINT MAN TELLS WHY STATE NEEDS TROOPERS

SAYS OPPONENTS OF CONSTITUTIONAL ARE SAME INDIVIDUALS WHO OPPOSE ALL PROGRESS.

"I find that the class of people who oppose the State Police are the same class who knocked the good roads legislation and all other steps for real advancement," writes D. L. Trofford, 770 16th street, Flint, in a communication which he recently sent to the editor of the Flint Journal. The letter was printed in several newspapers in southern Michigan, and is as follows:

BOOTLEGGERS NABBED BY STATE TROOPERS

A few days ago Trooper Lynn Shraeder secured a search warrant for John Chumchick and Nick Trelog's place, one mile off the Seven Mile road on the Elm road. Trooper Shraeder took with him Troopers Scribner and Burch and Deputy Sheriff Springer. They found no one at home when they arrived, but forced an entrance and discovered two complete "stills" and about half of another one, 250 gallons of raisin mash, 15 gallons of "moonshine" and two auto loads of jugs, boilers, coils, legs and other utensils. They left the stuff in the house, and then hid to await the return of the owners. After several hours the men showed up and were placed under arrest by Trooper Shraeder and Deputy Sheriff Springer. All of the paraphernalia was taken to the State Police station. Chumchick and Trelog were arraigned before Justice Phoebe Patterson, fined guilty and were bound over to the circuit court with bail fixed at $500 each. They were taken to the county jail.

STATE POLICE CAPTURE PERPETRATOR OF ASSAULT

After scouring the country for two days in search of the assailant of an eleven-year-old school girl, Troopers Frank Stevenson and Archie Wesley of the Michigan State Police detachment of Grand Rapids, arrested last night at Grand Rapids, the perpetrator of the assault.

In a recent interview with promoter and manager D. Villeneuve, the Newsman was informed of these facts and that the track would be ready for a try-out within a very few days. Mr. Villeneuve is taking a great interest and is sparing no expense in bringing about these results and has arranged for a purse sufficiently attractive to bring to Delta county the classiest bunch of speed demons in the country.

A telegram was received from John Seymour saying he would arrive in Escanaba some few days ahead of time to work out on the home track and get ready for the record breaking events.

With Seymour, there will be several of the fastest riders of the United States coming to compete for the large purses which are put up for winners in the events.

OSIER RESIDENT ESCAPED UNSCATHED FROM THRILLING CONTOURIONS.

(From Rapid River News)

An Osier resident, William Lucia, cut a few fancy capers on the Maplewood road about four miles from Rapid River, one day last week that is not to be sneezed at as a Hazardous Harity stunt.

For all the evidences noted of carelessness or a lack of funds, he entered the Waltham bank with his usual air of assured independence. "President," he spoke tersely, and the cashier inclined his head towards a glass door bearing that official word. As he pushed it open Tindelle hesitated, for the only occupant of the room was a charming young lady whose levelheaded dazed him quite with her unexpected presence.

"Pardon me," spoke Tindelle. "It was Mr. Marsh I wished to see."

"My father, yes. He will be here in a moment," replied Miss Bertha Marsh, and her eyes expressed the graciously courteous attention the presence of a really handsome man could not help but influence. Just then her father appeared, nodded casually to Tindelle whom he, like all the other residents, had become accustomed to see about the town, and looked inquiringly.

"Mr. Marsh," spoke the caller, "I am Ross Tindelle, as you may know, I have been disappointed in a promise. It may arrive today, it may not come for a week. I owe my hotel and other bills amounting to somewhere near one hundred dollars. Will you loan me that amount for thirty days?"

John Marsh viewed the applicant critically, but only for a moment. This was certainly a fine looking young man with an intelligent and above all character manifested in face and bearing. The banker sat down at his desk, drew a book of blanks to loan him and proceeded to fill out one of them.

"One hundred—thirty days, you say—surely, I am glad to accommodate you, Mr. Tindelle."

Bertha Marsh expressed a slight quiver of suspense, relief and gladness, too. A pleased, proud smile crossed the lips of the applicant.

"That is pretty kind and complimentary, Mr. Marsh," he said. "I am a comparative stranger to you."

"I trust you entirely, Mr. Tindelle," said the banker. "There is the light of truth in your eyes. Please sign on the first line and our cashier will honor the commitment," and Ross Tindelle with a bow of thanks, including the pretty daughter who seemed pleased at the outcome of the circumstance of the moment, left the room.

His occupants were again father and daughter when, five days later, Ross Tindelle again visited the banker. There was a further deterioration visible as to dress and bearing, but he was the same composed and definite person as in speech and directness.

"Mr. Marsh," he said at once, "my remittance has not arrived and may not. I am the litigant in the city in a case involving nearly fifty thousand dollars. My attorney has always financed me on the basis of a liberal contingent fee, but he writes me that it now looks as if we will lose the suit. I do not feel like going any further in the way of money advances. I owe you one hundred dollars. To pay it I must go to work here in Waltham. You are putting up that black box next to the hotel. Will you give me a note to your contractor recommending me for employment?"

Within hours and told her story, giving a description of the man. Pickett was identified by the girl after his arrest by the State Police.

Jade green is one of the most popular colors for hats.

Paris reports beige silk stockings and black shoes are the right footwear.

Pongee returns to favor each summer as the mercury climbs upward.

FOURTH CLAIM—Will not freeze. The consistency of the salt-like substance as explained in the foregoing claim being a protection and feeder for the plates of the battery, absolutely prevents freezing. The substance retains the same consistency under variable temperatures so that neither heat nor cold has the least effect upon the O. K. Giant battery.

FIFTH CLAIM—More mileage per gallon of gas. In one test over a course of 156 miles on country roads the O. K. Giant battery was used going out and another coming back. With the O. K. Giant battery installed a carefully record showed 42.10 miles of the gallon higher than with the other.

SIXTH CLAIM—No repairs. As there are no trick devices or patented accessories on the O. K. Giant battery there is nothing to get out of order and further there is no chemical action to effect the battery parts.

EIGHTH CLAIM—No buckling of plates. The plates or grids of the plates are fitted with a secret compound and secured at all four corners by a depression in the metal of the plate, giving a rigidity which prevents buckling.

NINTH CLAIM—The action of special made plates is the same upon the grid as the regular material, i. e., eliminating sulphation between active material and grid such as is common in all wet acid batteries.

TENTH CLAIM—Fool proof. It has been demonstrated by every kind of a test, even a cake of ice for 72 hours, and burning one in abundance, that it is absolutely "fool-proof."

ELEVENTH CLAIM—Fool battery expense and troubles are truly ended beyond question. When the O. K. Giant battery is installed it is guaranteed against troubles by the manufacturer. Who ever heard of money-back battery that you can install and only necessary to remove when you are ready to "junk your car."

Start Dakota Ave. Paving. Contractor Robert Nobel expects to resume work on the Dakota avenue paving this week. There is one more block to be put in, that between Seventh and Eighth streets. The work was held up several weeks ago because of the lack of cement, but Mr. Nobel has just got in a carload, which is sufficient to complete the work. Before the actual work of paving can be started, the street will have to be graded and curbing put in.

Remodelling of City Hall. The remodelling of the city hall is going along at a rapid rate and it is hoped the work will be completed by Sept. 1. The old cells have been made over and there is additional room for the city health department. An office will also be provided for the chief of police.

Completes Dredging Job. In a letter to The Reporter, Herb Weber of this city, who has been doing a dredging job at Marinette the past several months, says that he has completed one big job there for some fishermen who had a channel dredged so as to get a safe anchorage for their fishing boats. The channel just dug has a depth of nine feet, is twenty-four feet wide and has a length of 750 feet.

Stack In Blast Again. The Charcoal Iron company has resumed operations under the superintendence of T. C. Albin. The plant has been closed since the disastrous fire of August 24, 1918. The furnace has been relined and the chemical plant has been provided with an absolutely modern system. The machinery used throughout is the latest in modern equipment, and about 250 men are employed. At present 260 cords of hardwood are necessary per day to furnish the charcoal for the furnace. The output will be increased gradually until the plant has reached its full capacity.—Manistique Pioneer.

Hobo Chases Two Women From Bed; Then He Retires. After chasing two women berry pickers from their tent near Strongs, Chippewa county, Joseph Vickolaski, tramp and hobo, took possession and slept until he was awakened by Sam Van Guider, the deputy sheriff, at Strongs, who brought him into the Soo to finish his sleep at the county jail. Vickolaski was without a place to sleep and it was raining and the women were in bed when he happened along one held a rifle on him for a few minutes, but he only laughed at her and stated he was going to stop there all night. The women gave up the struggle and traveled two miles through the rain to the nearest habitation in their night clothes. Guider was notified and made the arrest, although Vickolaski who seemed to have no fear of firearms refused to come out of the tent even when a gun was held on him. He made no resistance when the officer started to take him to the railroad.

Tab dresses will play an important part in the fall and winter wardrobe of the girl up to 12 years, so that the mother who finds her daughter in need of zinghams, chambrays, etc. for late summer wear need not hesitate to make them, fearing that they must be shelled as soon as the summer is ended.

A number of his young friends organized a surprise party on him last Saturday evening and called at his home where they had a very pleasant time. There were eighteen in number and following a session of dancing refreshments were served to the guests.

John Fleming and a party of friends narrowly escaped injury about 11 o'clock last Monday evening when he drove his new Briscoe car into the ditch colliding with a telegraph pole to avoid hitting a train at the Flat Rock hill crossing.

The crossing is a bad one and Fleming did not see nor hear the train until within a few feet of it and just in time to make a turn coming in contact with the pole. A severe shaking up and minor bruises is all the injury inflicted upon any of the occupants but the radiator, left fender and one of the lights of the care were wrecked.

At a meeting of the old and new boards of education last week the retiring members closed up their accounts and handed the affairs of the schools over to the newly-elected and hold-over members of the body and the new board of education was formed.

The first business of the new body was to organize and Emma Schultz was elected president, Sarah Yerrick, treasurer, and L. E. Scott was retained as secretary.

There are now two woman members of the board of education and if not for the first time in the history of the township, at least for the first time in a great many years, the meetings are presided over by a woman president.

The retiring members of the board are J. A. Shippy and Esau Buchman. Both of these members have long and faithfully served the people in the thankless position of members of the board of education. J. A. Shippy has served as a member of the board off and on for the past 20 years, while Mr. Buchman's record has been one of almost continual service for about that period.

In 1902 Mr. Buchman first became a public servant through his election to the office of township treasurer and while holding that position he was elected as school trustee. During his tenure in office as trustee he was elected and served as township treasurer alternately for three terms. He was a member of the board of education in 1908 when the high school building was erected and together with Dr. Laing and Charles Hamilton served as a member of the building committee. In 1910 he was appointed treasurer of the board of education and held that position through his reelection as trustee and appointment by the board continuously for a period of 10 years until July 12, 1920, or rather until the meeting of last week when the books and accounts were turned over to his successor.

The community owes these retiring members a vote of thanks at least for their long and faithful service. The position of school trustee is not a very lucrative one as most everyone knows yet a great deal of responsibility is attached in the business affairs and in maintaining the dignity of the organization. Some criticism will fall regardless of how painstaking and conscientious the members may be and if the newly elected strive to emulate the records of the retiring members they may feel justly proud when their terms of office expire.

Alec Monk was the other newly elected member of the board and the personnel of the board is as follows: Emma Schultz, President. Sarah Yerrick, Treasurer. L. E. Scott, Secretary. William Belland and Alec Monk, Trustees.
