Operation To Revive Organ Of His Speech

In hopes of reviving such organs of his body as will result in his being able to speak after a month, the greater part of his life, little Robert Warh, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Warh of Escanaba, underwent a delicate operation at the University of Michigan hospital, Friday morning and already his condition is showing improvement. Whether he will gain the power of speech or not is still problematical.

Ever since his birth, little Robert has been able to hear but unable to speak a word. Because of the sense of hearing, he was able to know and understand what was being said, and by motions and attempts it was possible for him to make a rather clear reply.

He was taken sick some time ago and physicians consulted after which it was agreed that an operation might restore that sense which he has lacked from the time of birth.

He was accompanied to Ann Arbor by his mother and grandfather Henry Warh, who have taken a great deal of pride and interest in the lad.

While the eager parent and grandparent wait at Ann Arbor for results of the operation to be shown, other relatives in the city are equally as anxious for the result to be known.

Outside of the handicap of being without speech, little Robert has always been in good health and shows great signs of possessing high intellect.

The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while, is not a pleasant smile, does the most, the smile that bubbles from the heart. Will drive away the clouds of gloom and make life seem again.

It's full of words and goodness too, with many kindnesses that—worth a million dollars and it doesn't cost a cent.

Seasonable Good Things

When there are three or more ears of corn left from dinner use them as a luncheon or supper dish. Cut the corn from the cob, add a finely minced or shredded green pepper; put into a saucepan with a little butter or bacon fat, the pepper, and when cooked for five minutes add the corn and stir until well heated through. Serve hot.

Fresh green corn cut from the cob, seasoned and mixed with green pepper, then baked in a casserole is a most dainty dish which is served piping hot from the dish.

Banana Cream Ramekins

This is a rather unusual hot dessert. Whip two cups of cream, stiff, and beat five eggs without separating. Have ready one cupful of ripe bananas chopped fine. Stir fruit and cream carefully together without destroying the lightness of the cream; add the eggs with half a cupful of sugar; half fill individual ramekins which have been oiled with butter, and bake in a moderate oven until puffed and a delicate brown. Serve at once as it will soon fall as it cools.

Chicken à la Terrapin

Melt three tablespoons of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour; stir until browned; add one pint of finely minced chicken and a cupful of cream. Let stand over hot water and when the mixture is heated add the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs, put through a sieve and rubbed smooth with a little cream. Add the whites chopped fine and let the mixture come to the boiling point. Season and serve.

Grape Catsup

Put five pounds of grapes through a vegetable press; add two and one-half pounds of brown sugar, two cups of vinegar, two tablespoons of salt, one tablespoonful of pepper, and the same of whole cinnamon, allspice, and whole cloves and two blades of mace. Boil until thick; remove the whole spice and bottle while hot.

Ham Toast

Sauté one-half cupful of cream; add the brown yolk of one egg; stir until it thickens. Add one cupful of boiled ham chopped fine; when hot, season and serve on toast.

Chestnuts en Casserole

Remove the shells from three cupfuls of chestnuts, put them into a casserole dish and cover with three cupfuls of highly-seasoned chicken stock. Cover and cook slowly for three hours in a slow oven, then thicken the stock with two tablespoons of butter and one tablespoonful of flour cooked together. Send to the table in the casserole dish.

THE PUP.

He tore the curtains yesterday, And scratched the paper on the wall; Her rubbers, too, have gone astray, Ma says she left them in the hall. He tugged the table cloth and broke A fancy saucer and a cup, Though Dad and I think it a joke Ma scolds a lot about the pup.

The sofa pillows are a sight, The rugs are looking somewhat frayed And there is ruin, left and right, This little Boston ball has made. He slept on Daddy's comfortable, Ma found him there when she woke up. I think it needless to explain She scolds a lot about the pup.

And yet he comes and perks her hand And sometimes climbs into her lap And there, Dad lets me understand, He very often takes his nap. And Dad and I have learned to know She wouldn't give the pup a slap. She's really fond of him although She scolds a lot about the pup.

Memoranda—The county of Menominee is broke! There is no money in the bank to the credit of the county, and the local banks will not cash the checks drawn against the county because of "no funds."

This condition is brought about because of the new system recently installed, which calls for payment of bills by check, instead of orders or the county as was done under the old system. Under the old system, the banks cashed the orders and carried the county until funds from tax collections, etc., were deposited to cover them. Now, checks are drawn, similar to any other business but Menominee banks refuse to honor them. According to a report of the county treasurer the county is about $33,000 short of the necessary funds to meet its obligations and no cash will be available before January 10, 1921.

As a result, there are 58 widows and children, who depend upon soldier relief money subsistence, without funds with which to purchase the necessities of life, and unless some means are devised to meet the situation, all other obligations of the county will have to wait until next January. A special meeting of the board of supervisors has been called for the purpose of arranging with the banks. Money is also the root of much happiness. Cultivate activity—the time is coming when you won't have to cultivate. Blondes are not more dangerous than brunettes—they just think they are. Every traveling salesman dreams of a time when he will be wealthy enough to own a hotel that will be built right. Flattery favors life as salt favors food, if everybody knows there is such a thing as too much salt.

STEAM BATHS

IF EVERY woman who thinks that her regular bath is keeping her skin clean, could see the amount of dead cuticle and dirt and oily matter that the massage in a Turkish bath gets out of the skin of a "clean" person—she would certainly become a regular patron of these bath places. Turkish baths are beyond the reach of most folk, unfortunately, since only the larger towns possess them. And the home steam cabinet is the only substitute. Yet even this home method will open the skin as an ordinary bath never could, and free the pores of all the clogging waste matter in them; leaving the skin free once more to breathe, carrying off much waste matter, giving one the Wash the face with hot water and liquid green soap, rinse with hot, then cold water, and put a few drops of the tincture in this last rinse. It simply closes the pores.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Hearing only the call of sleep and mutual love, John Levington, wealthy and unscrupulous, and Mary, daughter of rich and worthy parents, unite their lives. Mary gives up the arrival of a baby and surrenders and Mary, cast off by her family, gives up the struggle for life. John Levington disappears and Mary dies in the city of San Francisco. After two years John returns and tells Mary that he has been in San Francisco. Levington becomes a victim of a woman named Chee Ming, who is a spy. Returning to the grave of his wife, Levington dies and little Con is "warmed out" by the city.

CHAPTER II.—Con goes out into the world as an orphan. He is rescued from a life of crime by Andrew March, a Chinese man from Chee Ming, a Chinese servant in a house where he is hidden.

CHAPTER III.—Following in the footsteps of his father, Stephen, March, Andrew March, a young man, goes to the Gobi desert. In a remote settlement, the child had been born, but he and both wife and daughter when they were attacked while traveling through the desert. Eighteen years later he selects Con Levington to hand them to the Gobi desert. The great Chee Ming is a fellow passenger.

CHAPTER IV.—Con is shot by a policeman. Stephen's map is stolen. On the way, March and Andrew March are seeking the same destination. Con starts on the mission, and March, with a pack of beasts, goes of difficult travel he reaches the little settlement. Con is rescued from the instructions from Andrew March to the effect that Con has been a Federal agent to search out Chee Ming, who has brought quantities of heroin. March's drug is in San Francisco. At Shanghai, Con is unexpectedly killed by March.

CHAPTER V

On the Right Foot

It was impossible to guess what Chee Ming thought. If he had been holding any suspicion against the white man who had ridden with him from the Yang-tsun gate, it was now insured by March's hand-clasp with Levington.

"I've been waiting for our friend Ming, but I hardly expected to see you," said Con.

"So I should judge," replied March, smiling. "But why waiting?"

"It was on the ship coming over," said Con. "He put me under with a blow-needle, and got my map. I beat him this far by two days, just to have a talk with him about it."

"Ah, yes," said March. "Or I figured I might ride on with him," added Levington.

"That was all right. But you will not need the map, and we can allow him to go his way alone. I don't expect to pick you up so soon." There was a shadow over Levington, and the elder man felt it quickly. He hastened to add: "Nothing to worry about. Only I could not tell you that I should be just a few days behind you all the way."

It was planned. It would be just plain murder to send one man alone, out into—that. But we wanted you to think you were going alone. You're all right. I wanted you to lead out, to draw all the attention. Oh, I guess you've learned by now that your travels are not so private as you'd like, perhaps."

Con was relieved. He smiled and offered his hand again. "I never had a real job before. I like it. Thanks." The old pride fell into Andrew March's eyes. But he merely said, in the businesslike tone of a United States investigator. "You're making good."

It appeared that March had arrived in Peking about fourteen hours after Levington's departure by the Western gate. Con asked: "How did you find Chee Ming?"

"I saw him in Tien-tsin, at the baggage rooms. I am sure he did not notice me, for I believe he never had a glimpse of me in America when I was shadowing him, but it's never wise to be too sure of anything about a Chinese. I kept out of his sight until we had come as far as the Yang-tsun gate, and there met him openly, like a stranger. It was natural to talk, after finding that he knew English. He told me he was a wool-merchant."

"I never gave you the details, but my acquaintance with Chee Ming really began one evening in Dory street, several weeks before I met you in Cincinnati. You know the Dory street district in San Francisco. I had found that it was the distributing point for koresch. I managed to connect with Chee Ming the night he received his money for all he had brought in, fresh from somewhere."

"I am honored by your confidence," said the younger man. "At one time my father and I lived on Dory street."

"Then you know koresch?"

"I can't say that I do. I was very young then."

"There are twelve thousand recorded users of it in the United States, and that is but a fraction of those who enter secretly the bliss and the agony of it."

Con felt again the importance of his mission. But he occupied his hands in attending to the smaller personal luggage of his friend.

"I've been standing in that. Will you come?"

He indicated a hut, and the sight of the low mishapen structure seemed to bring back to him the taste and smell of that tan-colored goat's milk which they had given them there, in str, but then the yellow men fell face downward upon the sand. March went to them at once, passing the well in gold, gave them two big draws at the water-bags, and started them off together, eastward. Shat-sung was within walking distance.

"I should have known better," he said.

They did not see the old Chinese, who would no doubt make a wide detour before touching the real trail. The country, although perfectly open and without trees, was irregular. From the hillocks of naked earth one could see for leagues in the four directions, not so Chee Ming.

They paced the camels through the morning, halted for a long noon, and continued into the evening. At sunrise, with its menacing rattle of sand, but it died before dark.

At dawn they started again. The desert was less hilly, but great rocks glittered lizards in the morning light, still asleep. The heavens were gray. A wind held from the northwest, and the nostrils of the beasts were stung to bleeding by the sand. Grit had sifted into Con's clothing, next to his skin, and riding was a hardship. Dust gazed into his teeth.

That night Andrew March lit the watch-fire and it was Con's time for sleep. The world was empty, some care, infinite, unknown. March did not call Levington at two in the morning, as agreed, but permitted his young friend to sleep until dawn. None could have known the reverse of this unusual man in the midnight hours—thoughts as remote as the stars, and as hard to grasp. He had loved life, and the sweets of it had been taken from him long ago. It had been difficult for him to pass through the city of his birth and earliest infancy. The quest that had drawn his father, Stephen, as a boy, across the American plains, onward across the Pacific, and yet onward to China, Peking and the dread Sha Mo was wrought into the very texture of the mind and soul of the son, Andrew. The yearning of his mother was woven there, also, as she had hoped, loved, perished, and finally mourned for Stephen until he returned, late by two years. This Gobi desert unmastered him. The heart of China would not let him go. He could not live down the terrors that Peking had stamped upon him in infancy. Now he looked long at Con, sleeping beside the fire, relaxed, graceful, breathing steadily, something boyish and pure about him. Andrew March's eyes shone against sudden tears. He arose silently and walked out, away from the camels, so far that the fire was only a red speck to him.

The night spaces whispered in vague conspiracy. At daybreak the world was without color, only dead gray hills and gullies, rocks and shadows and vacant air. Levington awakened, glanced up at Andrew, who was making the morning tea; and it seemed as if the fire were pondered with the delicate rosy aroma that Con associated with John Levington and all manner of evil fate. Then he realized that the faint speck of it was clinging about March. He said nothing, but it was a black moment for him.

RED CROSS EXTENDS RELIEF TO POLAND

More than $2,000,000 has been spent by the American Red Cross in aiding the stricken people of Poland. The organization has turned the sick and the suffering, clothed the naked, sheltered the homeless, schooled the children and cared for the motherless. It has conducted a relentless fight against typhoid, cholera and other terrible diseases. So today millions of men and women in that restricted nation speak in grateful appreciation of "The Greatest Mother in the World."

Nearly 200 American Red Cross workers are now engaged in relief activities in Poland. Four large relief bases are in operation and eleven mobile units are in the field. During the last twelve months the organization was largely instrumental in the re-establishment of a million refugees at a cost for general relief of more than $1,000,000. Last winter one-half million war orphans were aided materially, and since then a series of large orphanages have been established to give them permanent care.

But for American Red Cross aid, Poland declared recently, millions of its people would have perished.

FIRST AID TRAINING TO MEN AND WOMEN

American Red Cross is Teaching Hundreds of Thousands Life-Saving Methods.

The purpose of instruction in First Aid to the injured offered by the American Red Cross is to train men and women to administer First Aid treatment promptly and intelligently when emergencies demand it. First Aid treatment is not intended to take the place of a physician's service. A surgeon should always be summoned as a precautionary measure where there is an injury of any consequence, but when one cannot be secured a few minutes' delay may mean a fatality. In such a case a person trained in First Aid is invaluable not only if he is individual, but through him to the community in which he lives.

There is perhaps no way of ascertaining the number of deaths, serious disabilities which result from lack of proper safeguards, first aid, prompt emergency treatment. It is to be regretted that the number of those who receive application of First Aid methods is not known, but it is estimated that each year the country's toll of suffering is reduced by the dissemination of First Aid training.

THAT BAD BACK

Do you have a dull steady ache in the small of the back—aching, stabbing twinges when stooping or lifting—distressing urinary disorders? For back pain and weakened kidneys Gladstone residents recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Gladstone statement.

Mrs. O. G. Trace, 415 Wisconsin avenue, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills certainly did me a lot of good when I used them and I can't recommend them too highly. Every time I did heavy lifting my back became lame and stiff. Mornings my back would ache and I would never ease up—a tired languid feeling never left me. I was awfully weak and worried a great deal. I was nervous and at times black spots before my eyes so I could hardly see. My kidneys were really so, I decided they were the thing for me. I purchased a few boxes which cured me entirely."

Listen, good friends, and you shall hear why some Cigarettes are so all-fired dear

SOME cigarettes are packed in pretty boxes that certainly don't grow on trees. Next, they're dolled up—and favorings are sure getting expensive. And then, they're priced a bit higher so they'll seem "exclusive." But now Spurr Cigarettes offer the highest possible quality at the lowest possible price!

If there are any finer tobaccos than the Orient and the good old U. S. M. than those selected for Spurs, they must be a secret that the world has never known. And when we got these combined Spurr Cigarettes, what do you suppose was the result? Just the best taste and aroma that any cigarette could give, and Willie Doll-up or Freddie Flavouring didn't a thing to do with it.

Spurr is "class" all through—even to the smart "brown-and-silver" package, triple-wrapped, that keeps Spurs fresh and fragrant. Try out a package of Spurs. You'll say "made and priced for popularity."

LEGION BUREAU DOES GOOD WORK
MANY FAMILIES ADVISED OF THE DEATHS OF KIN BY FAR REACHING LEGION

New York—The American Legion is making an effort to mitigate a distressing phase of the aftermath of the great struggle of men who are classified in army and navy lists as "missing in action," "killed in battle," and "presumably dead." The work has been rewarded with some success, it is announced. In several instances the Legion Weekly has obtained for a mother more and clearer details of her son's service than she had in touch with the comrades of her husband missing in action.

Requests of relatives and friends of soldiers, sailors, marines and military nurses about whose fate little is known, are being sent to newspapers throughout the country for publication. Results of this publicity are carefully tabulated.

Ask General Aid.
All "Buddies" officers, doctors, nurses or welfare workers, who may know something of the person of whom information is sought are invited to communicate with the friends of relatives. Each week a long list of "mysteries" are published in the "Legion" organ and frequently a number of names of men and women who served in the war, but who failed to reach home, is sent to the newspapers.

The current result list of the Legion contains following instances where desired information was furnished.

Mrs. Catherine Holbeck of Allentown, Pa., asked for information concerning the circumstances surrounding the death of her son, Sergeant Joseph Holbeck of Company C, 19th Machine Gun Battalion, 25th Division, who died in a French hospital. The mother received a letter from Dr. Joseph Lind of New York who attended the dying soldier, giving details of his last hours.

Many Curious Cases.
Mrs. Lola Mason, of Merax, Pa., asked for information that would throw some light on the disappearance of her son, P. Mason, Corporal, 3rd Company, Sixth Marines. The soldier wrote his mother that he would be home for Christmas 1918, but did not appear and nothing further was heard of him. Mrs. Mason reported that she received two letters, one from the son himself saying that he had recovered from a long illness.

Many curious and touching appeals are received. A mother wants to know if her son died in a field hospital and anything on his death bed, another parent whose son was gassed and afterward died desires information on from his comrades as to what kind of gas was used and how it affects men. Information is sought of an army nurse who was last heard of enroute to France two years ago. A distressed family seeks word from the "buddies" of its soldier who was last seen walking a battleship wounded.

2 YEAR OLD GIRL IS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY

Marquette—Elma Saarinen, 2 years old, was instantly killed when the touring car driven by her father, Wm. Saarinen, was struck by a South Shore freight engine at Watton crossing about 10:20 Saturday morning. Saarinen suffered a broken rib and minor injuries, while Julia, aged 5, had a broken knee, and Edna, aged 3, escaped without a scratch. The car was dragged for about 300 feet and was a total wreck.

According to witnesses, Saarinen had stopped his car near the tracks and started it just as the train was approaching. A section gang was at work on the crossing, and had a board out. Seeing Saarinen's approach, they waved him back. He stopped, they say, and then came forward again. When he saw the board out, he attempted to stop again, bringing the car to a standstill directly in the center of the track. Before he could start the car, the train, consisting of a heavy freight engine and caboose, struck him.

Witnesses say that the train whistled for the crossing and approaching at a speed of about fifteen and twenty miles an hour. The car was struck amidship and carried down the track in some manner the youngest child's

THE LOCAL COMMITTEE OFFERS A SPLENDID CHANCE FOR AN EDUCATION.

Former service men who have not already filed applications for one of the free scholarships offered by the Y. M. C. A. Educational Service for demobilized men may do so at once, according to H. W. Reade, chairman of the Delta County Educational Service Committee.

"The opportunity is open to every ex-soldier, sailor, marine and orphaned son of a veteran who served in the late war," said Mr. Reade. "Although there are still sufficient funds to care for several of the ambitious men in the county at the rate applications are being filed they will soon all have been distributed."

The foregoing statement as made this afternoon after the meeting of the local Y. M. C. A. committee consisting of the following business men:

H. W. Reade, W. E. Olds, A. J. Young, W. R. Smith, Attorney James Frost, G. C. Graver and R. E. MacLean of Wells, and E. J. Willman of Gladstone.

The men met with C. E. Fleming, state representative who came to Escanaba today to take up the review work of the organization.

Those desiring to take advantage of the offer are asked to communicate with any of the members of the local committee or Mr. Fleming whose address is 411 Y. M. C. A. Building, Detroit.

A Great Number.
As the greater proportion of the ex-service men come from cities of less than 5,000 inhabitants, the Y. M. C. A. has allotted a proportionate amount of the funds available for free award to such communities. Scholarships will be given to the Home Study Courses of the United Y. M. C. A. schools to qualified applicants unable to attend city schools.

The wide ranges in courses offered makes it possible for the man with little or no elementary education to participate in the benefits on an equal basis with those more fortunate in the matter of education. Comprehensive and practical agricultural courses are offered in the Home study courses along with commercial, academic, professional and highly specialized technical ones.

More than 90,000 men attended Y. M. C. A. schools last year under the direction of 300 competent instructors. This huge educational machine, this year will be placed at the service of former service men, augmented by a highly trained personnel, organized to promote the home study courses.

THE ELECTRIC STOVE

The electric stove is a successful device which prevents the housewife from being overcome by the heat and baked to the dull, reddish brown aspect of the atmosphere. A woman can stand in front of an electric stove all day and run it with one hand, while leaning up a sponge cake with the other, and still remain as cool and collected as a refrigerator car. In fact, the only person who is liable to become overheated when he looks at one of these stoves is a husband who has just figured the motor rate with a pencil stub and a sinking heart.

Man cannot realize what the introduction of the electric stove means to women, because he has never passed in front of a soft-cool range for eight hours in succession, trying to prepare enough food to keep a family of eight children from eating the upholstery off of a hair sofa. The old-fashioned cook stove, with its long legs and concave stomach, has caused thousands of women to regret having given up teaching country school and entering upon matrimony with one eye closed. Nobody has ever determined the number of heat units thrown off by one of these stoves on a peaceful summer day when the air is vibrant with the melody of birds and the thermometer is running around the track with its tongue out. We do know, however, that many a man has come home at noon, only to be greeted by a wife with straight hair and canine complexion, like unto the over-ripe tomato, all due to a steel range which was not content with trying to cook what it carried inside.

The electric stove does not have to be fed kindling in the form of coals, but is operated by a simple button, which turns on the heat and the meter at one and the same time. This meter is very fast on its feet, and it is a patent sight for a frugal husband to watch it turn over and devour watts and kilowatts in a reckless and prodigal manner. It does not cost any more to cook a thick beefsteak on an electric stove than it does to buy the steak in the first place, and after the oven has become thoroughly heated it will remain in that condition so long as nobody wants to use the heat.

If some way could be devised to turn back the surplus heat generated by an electric stove into the meter, and get credit at the end of the month, more people would use it without a sense of dark, chilly foreboding.

A species of swift builds nests which are composed of a gelatinous secretion from the glands inside the mouth. These nests are edible and are a very popular delicacy in the Orient. They are built in cup shape and are attached to the face of the rock in northern places, making the gathering of them a rather dangerous occupation.

ABRAMS COUPLE 206 YEARS OLD MARRIED 80 YEARS

Abrams, Wis.—We are not young any more, but we feel good and are able to get about quite a bit, which is saying more than a good many young people can," said James Bell as he sat in the yard with his wife in front of their son's home here. Mr. Bell was 104 in May and his wife was 102 this month. They have been married 80 years and are the oldest couple in the state.

Mrs. Bell brought out a patch work quilt which she has been making and proudly displayed it as evidence of her activity in her advanced age. Mr. Bell is not to be outdone in the matter of activity and manages to get about the farm, which he has given to his son, with remarkable ease for one of his age.

Mr. Bell is of Scotch-Irish descent and was born in Ireland, while his wife is English and was born in England. From England they went to Canada and came to Wisconsin in 1858, settling near Sheboygan, but later moved into Oconto county, where they have since made their home. In the

When he was 85, Mr. Bell bewled what is said to be one of the finest dog stiffs in Wisconsin. It is 121 feet high and is now standing in Abrams. Up until last year he walked one-third of a mile three times a day to and from his meals. Three years ago he spent the summer cutting and piling brush on the farm, and he

Just What She Needed.
"I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets some time ago and they proved to be just what I needed," writes Mrs. Viola Bankson, Chilton, Mo. "They not only relieved me of indigestion but toned up my liver and rid me of headache and dizziness that I had been subject to do for some time. They did me a world of good and I will always speak a good word for them."

Candidates were admitted to St. Joseph's and St. Patrick's courts, Escanaba; St. Joseph's Perkins; St. John's Gladstone; and St. John the Baptist Schaffer. The ceremonies were attended by high state officials, clergy from neighboring cities and a large delegation of members of the organization. Those present included Thomas F. McDonald, high secretary; Gustave Keller, high treasurer; John Byrne, of the state organization department, and the following clergymen: The Rev. Father Raymond E. Jacques and Father Dona Frechette, St. Anne's church; Father Erasmus Dooley, St. Joseph's church; Father Edward Feldhaube, St. Patrick's; Father Colnard, Forkins and the Rev. Father Bennett, Gladstone. Following the initiation ceremonies, members and candidates were guests at a delightful banquet served at St. Joseph's hall by members of the Lady Foresters. During the evening a social program was carried out and musical and literary numbers, under the direction of John A. Allo, closed the meeting. The membership campaign being conducted here under the direction of Walter A. Hoster of Detroit, is progressing rapidly, reports show, and Mr. Hoster's work in this locality is resulting in a large increase in the membership of the society. Especially interesting was the degree work Sunday because of the fact that it was the first time the revised rituals have been carried out. All the three degrees have been changed, bringing about a vast difference in the work now with comparison to what it formerly was. Mr. Keller, under whose charge the work was administered, and Mr. Allo, who had charge of the musical end of the program, were both charter members of the Appleton Court thirty-five years ago and have been active in the organization since that time. There were nineteen other charter members to that organization. In his talk to the members and candidates, Mr. Keller lauded the past work of Mr. Allo to the highest, paying special tribute to him for the ardent work he has done with the order since its establishment here. By the number of cars which were parked in front of the hall Sunday, it was evident that a large attendance was within. People from all the nearby cities came to Escanaba for the work. Marinette—The body of the unknown man who was found near Penbina Dam last Saturday has not been identified as yet. Indications at first pointed to the belief that it might be the remains of Peter Wynn, Sr., of Beaver, who disappeared from his home last week. Investigation soon revealed that it was not Mr. Wynn. Ernest Sandt, chairman of the town of Penbina, accompanied by P. Bunker, Wausaukee undertaker, and several other men, went to the scene of the finding and brought the man's remains to Penbina, where the investigation was held. Marquette—Ground will be broken today for Marquette's new 197 room hotel which will be erected by local capital at a cost of more than $300,000 and which will be the most modern structure of its kind in the upper peninsula. No particular ceremony has been planned for today's event, but it is probable that several Marquette men who have fostered the hotel project will be present to witness the returning of the first shovelful of earth and one of them may wield the shovel. W. C. Miller who has the contract for making the excavation and building the foundation and brick structure has men, teams and machinery on the ground ready to proceed with the work. The old fence around the hotel lot was removed and everything made ready for breaking ground.
