ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM OUTLINED

PLANS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR A BIG CELEBRATION NOVEMBER 11

The local post of the American Legion held a meeting Monday night and are now going ahead with plans for a time to be considered celebration on Armistice Day.

The Boys Band of Escanaba had been scheduled to furnish the music for the day but word was received by Commander E. C. Dayton that the Escanaba Board of Education does not consider Armistice Day a legal holiday. This means that the boys have to cancel the engagement and some other musical organization will be procured. The music for the evening ball at the opera house will be furnished by Ledger's orchestra.

A big parade will begin at 9:30. Particulars concerning its formation will be made known later. A football game will be staged at 2:30 at the ball park. It is expected that spectators have not been selected but in view of the good material available a real struggle is anticipated. At 5:30 o'clock there will be a splendid banquet given on with the assistance of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Legion.

The military ball will begin at 9 o'clock and an enjoyable time can be expected by everyone. The Mercier Post of Nahma intends to transfer its activities for the day to this city and both posts are putting forth every effort for a splendid celebration.

HONOR PAID LOCAL CHILDREN IN BOOK

A most complete volume relating the history and achievements of the Ft. Sheridan soldiers in war was received by Mrs. H. E. Woolford of this city. Mrs. Woolford's husband, Lt. Harry Woolford who made the heroic sacrifice "Over There" was a graduate of the Fort Sheridan Training school. While in training he presented Capt. Madame, a close friend, with his son's picture and it is a signal honor to have this picture singled out from the many available and placed in the historical volume.

"Father 'Went West' Over There" are the words inscribed beneath the photo.

The book is naturally very highly prized as an interesting history of the noble hero and his comrades and because of the picture of the little tots who were picked out of a group of pictures of 70 fatherless children of Fort Sheridan men.

Little Rock, Ark., Gazette: Germany claims to have received messages from Mars. Are they going to let that fellow fool them again?

The trouble with too many men is that while, in general, they wish to make an honest living, they have a mental reservation in favor of making any kind that has money in it and not much work.

LOCAL MEN BALK PATENT DEVICE

MEET MONDAY AND FORMED A SMALL COMPANY

A locomotive sanding device patented by John J. DeWitt of this city will probably be pushed forward for manufacture. A meeting was held Monday night for that purpose. G. R. Emmons was made chairman. E. J. Norcum, secretary and treasurer, and John Swan, George Pettit and Soren Johnson are the board of directors.

Proper machinery has been installed in the Marble Arms and Manufacturing company plant and it is the plan to work out a method whereby the sanders can be stamped and cut by machinery so that they can be made in quantity lots.

A special machine will necessarily have to be built for that purpose but first a standard will be worked out. When once the exact machinery has been installed for manufacture of the sanders they will find a ready market as they have proven very satisfactory on the locomotives on which they have already been used. Though the proposition is being given on a very modest scale, it is thought the enterprise will prove a bright little business for this city.

SHIPMENT OF COAL ASSURED

WILL BE FORWARDED BUT MAY BE A LITTLE LATE

The city has been more or less anxious regarding the coal situation in Gladstone, the supply of which has been a little doubtful. However, C. A. Clark, of the C. W. Davis company has announced that Gladstone will be supplied but he is unable to state what price the hard coal will be. According to a letter from H. M. Boyer, Northwestern sales agent of the Pittsburgh Coal company this city will receive shipments before any inconvenience will be felt. Cargoes have been received in the city in past years at a very late date so there is really no reason for worry.

There seems to be a fairly sufficient supply of soft coal for immediate needs at a number of places.

A number of miners have returned to work and if they will remain, there is little reason for fear of coal shortages.

MEET TOMORROW NIGHT TO CHOOSE NAME

The Athletic Club recently organized will meet tomorrow night when they decide upon a name for the organization. Until now it has been known as the Athletic Club but it has so strengthened in membership that a name seems more fitting. Its strength also makes necessary the election of officers which will take place at the meeting tomorrow night.

It is requested that all members be present in order that the various opinions may be had.

Plans for the winter are to be discussed also tomorrow night and a very active season is planned.

TWO NIGHT RAIDS CONDUCTED; STOCK OF FLOUR TAKEN

WHILE ESCANABA POLICE FORCE WORKS IN CITY, OTHERS ARE BUSY

John Amick, Charles Peterson and Henry Severlup were arraigned and fined $50 and costs totaling $62 each before Justice Glaser Monday afternoon in connection with the Maple Ridge raid of Saturday night.

John Lamos, Ned Enghand and Charles Sjosten paid fines of $10 for their part in the action.

Saturday was again night in Delta county. Police officers conducted a successful raid on the home of Thomas Krassick, N. 15 street seizing several bottles and kegs of moonshine liquor which department members sent to the state laboratory at Lansing for experiment tests.

Shortly after 9 o'clock three of the local police force left the station and one hour later returned with what had the appearance of a miniature brewery with a distillery in connection.

The loot was stored in the rear of the police station and the necessary samples for tests taken, sealed and mailed to the state officers at the capital.

State Officer Busy
Shortly after the successful raid of the police department members of the sheriff's staff aided by a detachment of the state constabulary went to Maple Ridge where another and equally successful raid was conducted.

Several bottles and kegs of "feral smelling" stuff were seized and placed under state seal by the officers. Six persons were brought back to Escanaba to await hearing before the named tribunal.

Four Finns were the principles named in the arrest which state troopers declare "is only a starter" on their long run to cleaning up this part of the state.

The raid was conducted by Captain Downing and Assistants Sand and Kutter aided by Sheriff O'Sness and a member of the staff.

FORD COMPANY PLANS TO BUILD 1,000 HOUSES

Iron Mountain—The Ford company has definitely decided to solve the housing problem, so far as its needs are concerned, according to Vice President Kingsley. The company had planned to erect fifty houses this fall, but was unable to secure material for all, twelve being all they could get material for. Plans are made to erect 1,000 houses next year. Each house will cost from $4,000 to $10,000.

The first story of the immense sawmill is now in the frame and the work of pouring concrete for the site and dividing walls was started on Friday. The mill is a radical change from sawmill construction of the past, and includes many innovations.

The newer building will house a battery of eight boilers of 250 horsepower each.

3,088 DEATHS DURING AUGUST

A DECREASE IN NUMBER OF DEATHS THAN PREVIOUS MONTH

There were 3,088 deaths reported to the Department of State as having occurred in the State of Michigan during the month of August, 1920. This number corresponds to an annual death rate of 11.1 per 1,000 estimated population. In addition to the above, there were 235 stillbirths returned as deaths.

By age there were 551 deaths of infants under one year of age; 294 deaths of children aged one to four inclusive; 825 deaths of elderly persons, aged 65 years and over. Upon comparing the number of deaths with those of the previous month it is noted there is a decrease in the number of deaths reported at the above age periods.

Important causes of death were as follows: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 1871; other tuberculosis, 46; typhoid fever, 27; diphtheria and croup, 55; scarlet fever, 11; measles, 7; whooping cough, 36; pneumonia and bronchopneumonia, 87; diarrhea, enteritis under two years, 208; meningitis, 27; influenza, 5; cholera, 2; violence, 252.

Among the deaths reported from violence were 32 railway accidents; 13 electric railways; 30 auto; 23 homicide; 29 suicides; 34 drownings and 2 electrocutions.

In addition to the important causes noted above there were 3 deaths from encephalitis lethargica; 1 from poliomyelitis and 1 from tetanus.

As compared with the month immediately preceding a slight increase is noted in the number of deaths returned from other tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria and croup, whooping cough and scarlet fever. A slight decrease is noted in the number of deaths returned from other important causes.

Upon referring to the tables of counties, we find that the greatest apparent mortality occurred in the county of Lapeer, with a rate of 36.5 per 1,000 estimated population. Oakland county, with a rate of 12.2 per 1,000 estimated population shows the highest birth rate for the month. These rates, however, are subject to further analysis before definite conclusions should be drawn from the population figures used for determining such rates are based on the 1910 census.

There were 7,903 births reported to the Department as having occurred in the state during the month of August, 1920. This number corresponds to an annual birth rate of 28.5 per 1,000 estimated population. A slight increase is noted in the number of births as compared with the month of August, 1919, preceding in addition to the above there were 231 stillbirths returned as births.

There were 251 certificates of birth returned for births occurring during the month of July, with the August report. There were 13 certificates of deaths of infants under one year returned.

AMERICAN LEGION ADOPTS AMERICANIZATION REPORT FAVORING EXCLUDING THEM

Cleveland, Sept. 29—The report of the committee on Americanism of the American Legion in the second annual convention here today, recommended the cancellation of the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan, exclusion of "picture brides" and vigorous exclusion of the Japanese as immigrants.

The report recommended that "we enter a vigorous protest against the demand of Japan that naturalization rights be granted to its nationals in the United States and that we earnestly request the state department not to consider any proposition which will grant rights of naturalization to these people."

The debate that followed the reading of this section of the report was the stormiest of the convention.

The report of the committee on Americanism dealing with the Japanese question was adopted as read.

STRIKE LEGISLATION

In spite of the determined opposition of organized labor to candidates for office who have shown a disposition to initiate legislative restrictions of strikes through industrial courts or otherwise it is probable that in such primary or other elections as have taken place where this matter was an issue have resulted uniformly in the victory of those in favor of such legislation.

The general public including, of course, unorganized labor, and quite possibly in many cases organized labor as well in spite of official pronouncements, seems in favor of doing something to make it impossible for any body of men to coerce others with whom they may have an industrial quarrel by means of a strike. Upon consumers not responsible directly or indirectly for the conditions existing.

In the matter of high prices and deformed supplies so many people have suffered from such strikes in the course of the past few years that there is a very general opinion that something must be done to protect the public against the ill-effects of this way of settling industrial disputes.

BLAMING THE AUTO

There was a time when England was much troubled by a notorious sort of highwayman who rode on horseback and deposited largely upon the superior quality of his mount for making his escape. In this country, too, there was a period in which the mounted robber of the type of the James and Younger brothers played an important part. But in neither of these periods have they been blamed for the epidemic of robbery.

It is plain that at present we are passing through an era of crime of this class more severe than the most flourishing era of highwaymen in England or the James-Younger period in this country. It is a mistake to dismiss this fact as one of the incidental results of the introduction of the automobile. There is no more reason to blame the automobile in this case than to blame horses in the other, and just as there were periods when roving horseback was a prevalent way of traveling and when highwaymen or road agents did not flourish, so it is quite possible to have an automobile age without the present excess of automobile bandits.

But to attain this desirable state of affairs it will be necessary to seek some other cause than the automobile to account for the large number of daring and violent crimes of the present period.

LOWER PRICES

Prices are going down and the temptation is to give them a push to help them on their way. But this very natural impulse should not be yielded to freely. A falling market has its problems and its dangers and while reduced prices are essential to soundly based industrial prosperity, too sudden and abrupt a decline would make it impossible to make necessary adjustments without more or less temporary cessations of business and manufacturing in many lines.

The machinery of industry and business never runs so smoothly that there are no misdeeds. There are always some failures, always some persons unemployed or employed at an inadequate wage, always some concerns that are not making money.

With the very high prices that have ruled there is always the danger of a sudden collapse so sharp that business failures, manufacturing shutdowns and unemployment may increase to a disastrous extent. Glad as we all are to think that the turning point in the cost of living has come, we should not forget that it is a time to walk with caution and to make haste slowly.

LAY CORNERSTONE OF $5,000,000 CHURCH

foreign countries. Many archbishops, bishops and other church dignitaries were present.

Bishop Shahan announced that Pope Benedict had sent a papal benediction to all those participating, and that the pope is making a gift of a life-sized mosaic copy of Murillo's Immaculate Conception, which will be made in the Vatican workshop. The gift is the first of its kind to come to America.

FOREST FIRES

BOOST LUMBER

Washington.—Every time there is a forest fire it is a contributing factor to the increasing price of lumber, according to Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry Association, who in a statement here today denounced the needless $20,000,000 annual forest fire loss of the United States as "a wasteful strain upon the resources of the nation."

"The wholesale price of soft wood lumber in New York was from $35 to $37 a thousand feet prior to 1925, when mills in the same state supplied the market from $35 to $42 between 1925 and 1927 when most of the supply came from the lake states and the south and are now collecting a general level of $129 a thousand feet with a large part of the material coming from the Pacific coast.

Thirty-third Degree To Marquette Mason

Marquette.—The thirty-third Masonic degree, the highest honor given members of that fraternity, was conferred upon Edward S. Rice, of this city, at a ceremonial meeting of the supreme council of the Northwestern Masonic Jurisdiction, held in Chicago this week.

Mr. Rice, one of the most prominent Masons in the upper peninsula, was elected last year to receive the thirty-third degree. He was chosen for the honor at a session of the supreme council held in Philadelphia. His election came as a complete surprise to him as the thirty-third degree in the Masonic order is not earned by selection, but only through selection by the supreme council itself. There is a limited number of this thirty-third degree Masons in the United States and the process of their selection is known only to members of the supreme council.

NEWBERRY APPEAL REACHES HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C.—The appeals of Senator Newberry, Michigan, and sixteen other defendants, convicted last March at Grand Rapids, Mich., on charges of corruption in connection with the 1918 Michigan senatorial election, were formally filed on Thursday in the Supreme court.

The applicants attacked the validity of the federal corrupt practices act, and asked the Supreme court to pass on the question of the authority of congress to fix the amount that candidates may expend for campaign purposes.

Since by the regular order of things the case would not be reached on the court docket for about eighteen months the government is expected to ask that the hearing on the appeal be expedited.

Riga, Sept. 29.—Russian bolshevik representatives at the peace conference here have submitted to Polish delegates suggestions on the boundary line between Poland and states adjoining it. Soviet delegates proposed a boundary line which would be 400 miles after the preliminary treaty of peace is signed.

He was very weak, the bulletin declared, but otherwise there was little change in his condition. Physicians at Brixton prison stated MacSwiney had a restful night and was in bright spirits this morning.

The Eleven Others

BIBLE STUDENTS SEE MILLENNIUM IN YEAR 1925

Cleveland.—The world must expect the end of revolutions, wars, pestilences and other troubles in 1925, according to statements based on biblical prophecies made at the convocation of the International Bible Student.

"We have been unjustly persecuted because we predicted the end of the world in 1914," said V. R. Hall in explaining the teachings of the association. "We did not predict the end of the world, a totally different thing. The bible speaks of the end of the world meaning society—or civilization, and we hold the world war which we predicted, did end civilization as it has been known."

"Rest Ended 1874"

"God created the earth in six days, and on the seventh He rested. Now, as we interpret it, having our interpretation on the Bible, a day is a space of 6,000 years. The seventh day on which God rested, fasted, therefore, 6,000 years after the earth was created—or until 1874. In that day of rest God was paying no particular attention to the earth at all. Because God was resting, why? Because God was resting, why? "The seventh day" was followed by a period known as the harvest, of which Christ said: "And ye shall bear fruit and rumors of wars, see that ye be not troubled, for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes in divers places."

Mr. Hall holds that the epidemic of influenza was the pestilence predicted. This period of the harvest, Mr. Hall thinks is to end in 1925 with the dawn of the millennium. From that time on no man will find it profitable to be dishonest or wicked, he said. "There is no conflict between the bible and physical science, as it is popularly supposed," Mr. Hall said. "That becomes apparent when the Bible is studied in a whole instead of piecemeal by persons.

FIGURES ON FREIGHT

Five reports on the freight situation for the first five months of this year by the Interstate Commerce Commission were issued here today and showed that during the first quarter of 1926 a record of 100,000,000 tons of freight was shipped, an increase of 100,000,000 tons over the same period of 1925.

It is pointed out that the increase in freight is due to the increase in the volume of business and to the fact that the volume of freight is now being carried by railroads and waterways.

It is also pointed out that the volume of freight is now being carried by railroads and waterways.

For six of the French gowns the bill was $3,500. The models from Hickson and Harry Collins, for which Mr. Stauch had a special trip to San Francisco to get the gowns as soon as they arrived on the limited from New York, cost approximately the same.

Maxwell Karger, Director General of Screen Classics Inc., having cast for the mannequins six of the most beautiful girls, that could be found in musical comedy, from the smartest of Fifth Avenue shops, from the ranks of artists' models and from the actresses on the screen, was determined that they should be gowned in a manner fitting their appearance and the high standards of production Screen Classics, Inc., insists upon in its "fewer and better" picture policy.

In selecting the gowns the problem of Mr. Stauch was more than one of merely selecting the latest and smartest things. It was complicated by photographic considerations.

"It's those gowns that cause most of my troubles," he said. "Care must be exercised in the selection of colors. Otherwise it might happen that a $1,000 creation would photograph on the screen no better than an inexpensive studio-made costume. Certain shades of color do not show up on the screen, and still other combinations have a clashing or a neutral effect when projected. Some of the most exquisite gowns at my disposal had to be cast aside after we made photographic tests of them."

After playing a variety of roles ranging from a member of the Salvation Army to actor, Fatty Arbuckle has again come forward, this time in the role of a fireman in his latest Paramount-Arbuckle comedy, "The Garage," which comes to the Lyric theatre next Saturday and Sunday. In this picture, one of the funniest yet produced, Fatty and Buster are delighted with the footlights. Superlatively, it is also the town lock-up and fire house. Fatty is desperately in love with Molly, the daughter of the owner Rube. He has, however, a rival in the person of the town dude. Rube favors the dude, and forbids his daughter to have anything to do with the fat man. The girl protests and is locked in her room. And then happens a series of events that would take all the joy out of the picture if they were told here. Suffice to say, Fatty saves the girl from a fire and Rube consents to the marriage.

"The Garage" is said to be one of the best Paramount-Arbuckle comedies to date, and young and old alike will be delighted with the footlights. The famous comedian.

ESCANABA NEWS

Pathfinders Were Here Tuesday

Those pathfinders for 1931 of the Michigan Pikes association were in Escanaba, Tuesday with a view of making it one of the night controls for the four next year, providing everything is found to be satisfactory.

Those in the party were: W. D. Edinburn, tour manager of the association; of Detroit, Fred S. Case of Saint Ste. Marie, M. H. Mitchell of Bay City, Judge W. M. Small of the Sou and E. W. Sullivan, assistant manager of the Detroit Automobile club.

At noon the party were given a banquet at the Delta Hotel which was the occasion for short talks by the members of the party and local people. Mayor Ben Green, of Manistiquie who came over with the party, was among those who talked and he told how glad he was to be able to take part in inducing the "Pikers" to place Manistiquie and Escanaba as the next tour.

The pathfinders are making the trip a car owned in the different towns they wish to include in their program for next summer.

They were brought to this city by Manistiquie auto and this afternoon are taken to Manistiquie by local cars. While plans will not be decided until the pathfinders return to Detroit and make their report it is very likely that Escanaba will be the light control following Newberry, if through the party will show the previous night.

Gets Sixty Days in Watch Stealing Case

Arrested in the courts of Escanaba, Michigan, for stealing a watch from George C. Royce, a member of the board of directors of the Fair Savings Bank Company.

The decision of the president came as interesting news to the general public.

Under the leadership of the late Mr. VanTwee, the bank has increased its business to a great extent and promises to do the same with Mr. Royce as the head.

Leslie French will continue in the capacity of cashier.

Locker Cash Box Looted at Depot Sunday; $30 Gone

The trouble and business of the police department were increased yesterday afternoon by a call from the southwestern passenger station announcing the locker cash box had been taken into and upwards of $30 in two pieces taken from it.

No other damage was done nor was any loss to baggage or checked tickets. That the crime was committed by amateur burglars is the belief of the police who today are running down different clues in connection with the cases.

Tomlin-Rottmann in September 15th, at St. Mary's

Dr. Rottmann is one of the members of the Congress hotel in that city, and is very well and favorably known in Michigan, having been born in Michigan, having been born in many years with the famous old steel house, Detroit.

Mrs. S. C. Stille is a sister of Mrs. S. C. Stille and had made her home in Chicago some time ago.

It had been the Rottmann's intention to include Escanaba on their program, but heavy business at the Congress, caused a change in plans so that their visit to Mr. Mrs. S. C. Stille has been postponed.

Movement Of Ore to Establish New Record

The movement of iron ore from Escanaba by water this season will establish a new record, it is predicted in well informed quarters. No figures were available yesterday but with several weeks yet to go, it is known that the total tonnage already handled is nearly equal to that moved during the entire 1929 period.

Every movement may be slower from now on, however, as there are indications that many boats are going to the coal and grain trade. Export trade brisk during the earlier months of the season, has shown a big decrease, due in a way to the wheat traffic, to which the carriers have been transferred.

C. C. Royce New First National Bank President

At a meeting of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Escanaba held Tuesday morning in the bank offices, C. C. Royce, retired capitalist and financier of Escanaba, was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Frank H. VanTwee who for many years prior to his death was head of the large financial concern of this city.

R. E. MacLean of Wells was selected as vice president to succeed Mr. Royce when the latter was named president of the institution, replacing Mr. VanTwee as a member of the board of directors is Herman Gessner, owner of the Fair Savings Bank Company.

The election of the president came as interesting news to the general public.

Under the leadership of the late Mr. VanTwee, the bank has increased its business to a great extent and promises to do the same with Mr. Royce as the head.

Leslie French will continue in the capacity of cashier.

Indebtedness Of Local Church is Nearing an End

With the approach of the annual meeting Sunday for the building fund of the Swedish Lutheran Bethel church which will be next Sunday and the Sabbath following, some information to show the great progress made by that church in recent years under the able leadership of the Rev. Mr. Lund.

Seven years ago the local church was $20,000 in debt. After the next two benefit Sundays at which it is expected by members of the church, the fund will be increased about $2,500, the debt will have been cleared and the Escanaba church will be on a cash basis.

Christian Hendrickson

The son of Christian Hendrickson, 72 a taylor employed for six years at the Jackson establishment here, who died in a local hospital Sunday as a result of a gutter operation, was removed from the Alto funeral parlors Monday night to the Northwestern station and shipped to Chicago. Mr. Hendrickson's widow accompanied the body. Several children of the deceased live in the Illinois city. Mr. Hendrickson was known as one of the most efficient men in his trade, in this region.

Jennie Johnson is Freed

Jennie Johnson against whom a charge of possession of liquor was made, was dismissed in the preliminary hearing before Judge McEwen Monday afternoon. Several bitter arguments marked the hearing. Prosecutor requested the state while Attorney General requested for the defendant.

CARE OF CHILDREN'S TEETH IS IMPORTANT

The examination, dental treatment and daily care of the teeth are factors of the greatest importance to all school children. All decayed teeth, whether temporary or permanent, should be filled or otherwise treated. Malocclusion (crookedness) of the teeth should be remedied and can be corrected in early childhood.

It has been recently demonstrated that (in addition to daily brushing), the cleaning of the teeth of children every three to six months by a dentist or properly trained dental hygienist will prevent most of the decay of teeth which takes place.

It may be predicted with entire confidence that in the near future adequate dental care will be insured to all school children in the country as well as in the cities. No item in all the wonderful measures for the health care of the soldiers in the trenches of Europe was more significant than the treatment of the teeth provided by the automobile dentist office used in France and other countries. Many of the cities provide dental service for their school children. Shall not our children in the country schools—future citizens and if necessary recruits—defenders of our own republic—receive equally good dental care?

The establishment of effective habits of daily brushing and cleaning of the teeth is one of the most essential features in health teaching in the schools. Every child should have his own toothbrush, to be kept in a clean place and to be used immediately after eating, at least once, or better, twice a day.

For cleaning the teeth, a good tooth brush with bristles that do not easily break or pull out, should be used. The teeth should be brushed, not only up and down and across, but also by a rotary or circular motion from the gums of the upper, and so to the gums of the lower, and the tooth and gum.

HONEY DISHES

The substitution of honey for sugar is not to be recommended, as the physical properties of honey are quite different from sugar. The following are typical recipes:

Cream Cookies.
Take one cupful of extracted honey, one pint of sour cream, a tablespoonful of soda, flavoring to suit the taste and four to make a stiff dough. Chill well before rolling.

Tennessee Cookies.
Mix together one cupful each of honey, two and a half cups of flour, one-third of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, a tablespoonful of soda and an egg. Add flour to make a stiff dough, roll and cut as usual.

Doughnuts.
Take one egg, one cupful of sweet milk, one cupful of honey, two tablespoonfuls of shortening, two tablespoonfuls of cream of tartar and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Flour to be added to roll out. Dust with salt and bake.

Raisin Cake.
Beat three eggs, add one cupful of honey, four tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of sweet milk, one and one-third cupfuls of raisins, one-half teaspoonful of salt, the same of soda and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Honey Caramel Coffee.
Beat one egg, add one cupful of honey, preferably dark, two cupfuls of whole bran. Mix and stir until well blended. Put into the oven and stir frequently. When prepared, it is suitable for coffee, or as a preservative.

THE WOLFRINE HARVEST REPORT

Large Potato Crop
The average of potato yield in our state is being harvested rapidly under favorable weather conditions. The crop is variable, some fields being excellent, others have been seriously injured by late frosts and some are poorly filled. Anthracnose has made its appearance, but the damage from it is not extensive.

"Potato prospects still are good for a large crop, outside of the south-western dry area. There is some late blight and other potato diseases in localities, but on the whole the outlook is favorable. Early potatoes have yielded an unusually good crop of fine quality."

"The average of clover seed in our state is larger than last year, and the fields in most sections promise good yields. Returns on that prospect are early, much of which is already showing an average yield of 27 bushels per acre."

"Sugar beets on good soils and where well cared for are showing excellent prospects of a large yield."

"Fruit is ripening later than usual. Fall apples, peaches and plums are being marketed and the crop of each is large and mostly of good quality. Grapes are beginning to appear on the market. The crop is very large and of excellent quality. The pear crop, which is quite large, also is beginning to move. Owing to the scarcity of barrels, it is probable that more winter apples will move to market in bulk than ever before. Much fruit is going to market by truck in all parts of the state."

"The ground being very dry and hard in many sections has greatly retarded fall seedling preparations. Many farmers in the Housaia fly district are more or less discouraged with wheat raising and some will grow rice next year in the stead."

ALMOST SIXTY MILLION VOTERS

CENSUS FIGURES PLACE WOMEN VOTERS IN UNITED STATES AT 25,500,000

Washington—Figures compiled by the census bureau and other government departments indicate that the number of women in the United States over 21 years of age is 28,000,000 of whom approximately 25,500,000 are eligible to vote in the November election. This estimate makes a liberal allowance for alien women, American women married to alien and others ineligible.

Exact figures are not available on the number of women over 21 but based on voting through various economic census bureau officials believe however, that this year at least 10,000,000 of the 5,250,000 foreign born women in the United States will not have become naturalized. In 1910 there were 1,910,000 according to the census about 6,900,000 Indian women

CHAPTER X.

Gemmed Eyes.

Square patches of kerosin lay on each side of the trail. The mines were perhaps a mile or less to eastward; and beyond that ridge an infinity of shifting dry washes. The stars sent a pillar that was diffused in the fog from the ditches. At night these lowlands about the city were cool. The black vapor bill that was the palace was receding little by little as the two hastened on. The sea of distant cries was spreading.

"Do you suppose," suggested Levington, "that we can keep under cover, and perhaps manage to get a beast of some kind, and then sprint for the water hole?"

Con realized very well that the nearest water hole was a matter of days, once they left the zone of fertility. Food was yet to be considered, and the city was rising to seek them out and punish. But he felt the need of cheering his friend.

"We can get into the vineyard," he continued, "with enthusiasm he did not feel, and the fruit will serve for water, too—and lay for a camel—and you still have the guidebook on your foot."

Andrew March laughed miserably. He saw what his friend was trying to do.

"Why not knock at the gates," said March, "and demand water and provisions for our return trip?"

"Well, we blundered out here," said Levington, "and had the planet was backing us—fences for rails, and spinning out instead of a breeze, with a few robber gangs on the side—so maybe we can break away for home again."

"I don't mean to be sarcastic," said March very humbly. "I understand you. You are trying to make me feel happier. But I do not dodge the responsibility. I was grossly selfish. My work, and all my hopes, led me here. And I wanted a partner, to face the Gobi, some one strong and young, who didn't take himself seriously, some one with the ability to lose decently. It had to be an artist. You were the one I found. But I did not mean to mean a sacrifice. I made myself believe we should not actually lose. I held certain dreams. They were beautiful, they batted you, and you were not that long ago, and always. But I am done with dreaming. You Kuan is death to all dreams except that yellow fantasy. Himself. It is so cold—do you see what I mean? The hand that guides it is the archetype of inflexible purity. The empire is not contained within the walls. It spreads beyond the Gobi, into Dory street; yes, and further, a web of horror. It does not spring from life. The only human being within those walls has been withered and fully poisoned. She can never know life. You have seen that."

March paused, and Levington shivered. They peered into the darkness ahead. One direction seemed as unprofitable as another. Far to the rear the base of the palace showed red in torch reflection, and the lantern glowed ceased its pulse of alarm. March asked:

"Will you try to forgive me?"

Con spoke quietly. "You are forgetting something. You are forgetting the difference between the past and future to me. Suppose I had found my man that night, away back in Ghinchoat. I should have far thicker walls, butting me tonight, and all the rest of my nights. Why do you forget that you are the man who got me out of all that? You were a federal officer, and I ever have failed me. Instead, I see every minute of my freedom to you. I don't know how why I wanted to shoot him up. I can't recall his name or his face, but I was out to get him, and would have finished strong, only you came in front of me, and—why, I never began to live until after you took me home that night!"

"I used to stand on Rush street bridge in Chicago and, if I was far enough gone, I could think I was looking at the Thames and the lights of the British shipping, or I'd think I was an Arabian caliph, posing about my own city at night. Only I needed a big thirst to shift the globe around that way and make a Greek water look like the King of Ashamed in disguise. I've looked over toward Brooklyn and told myself I was on the Bund at Shanghai. But it couldn't be done that way. I was close to the rocks. You seemed to know what I needed. You opened the world. Do you think I would back up, even if I could? You did not hurt me. It was understood that I should probably die along the way, in the Gobi. It's been a grand passage."

"Thanks, boy," returned the elder man. And in the twilight his hands met and gripped an instant.

Whatever turmoil was imaginable within the city, the Americans were too far away to hear it, and the velence of the dark gave them a kind of leisure, with also a stimulation. They continued rapidly beside the gray ditches, not particularly heedful of direction. They jumped over the intersecting arms of irrigation, and at moments caught the low purple of spring-fog. It occurred to Con that his borrowed eastern garments were very practical. The firm, broad sash and twisted breeches gave support as he crept the ditches, the sandals were snug and curiously satisfactory. He was not so sure that he was wholly a western person. He no longer marvelled at his house, with its inner pockets and folds.

Once he thought that an advance guard of the pursuers had overtaken them. They stopped short to listen, but heard nothing. March was uneasy. Con, who felt that there was nothing further to be lost, was almost indifferent. He could not think his way correct. It was grimly unpleasant to remember what they had done to March's guard, but one crime more or less in the eyes of Tan Kuan did not matter now. There came the sense of some one behind them, but there was no sound in the pale breath of the ditches. Con noted a low shape like a dog, among the nearest ditch. Quickly a second joined it. Two figures hurried out of the gloom and landed at the white mist of the feet. They were the hunched and deformed little men of the sand-hills, a dozen or more, and they broke into talking. Their arms were like metal, landing upon Levington. The gang had reached them and brought them up out of their warrens. It seemed they were animated by curiosity and a natural mischievousness by the idea of reward.

Struggle was unavailing. These miners had terrible arms, despite bodies that were shrunken and grotesque. March was speaking in native dialect. Levington was borne off his feet, lifted over the last ditch, and then deftly stretched face downward upon the sand. March was pleading. The hills were near.

Con did not understand the appeal March was making, but was surprised at the force of it. They were listening, reluctant, like some blind elf turned aside for a moment. March went on feverishly.

"Point of light were low toward the city, the torches coming out. It seemed that the gray-haired man's argument had an effect, for Levington was picked up as before, and carried. In the confusion he saw that they were not going in the direction of the city. The bones of their shoulders hurt his back. He was unable to turn. Forty paces of this and they paused. March repeated his phrases. Levington was allowed to stand upon his feet, his hands were held. Then the group ran with him up the hill.

"What did you say?" inquired Con.

"I reminded them that they have no more love for the city than we, and that our enemy be their enemy."

"What made you think of that?"

"They are slaves, worse—"

This was cut short as the workers led Con's wrists, and he pitched feet first into perfect blackness. The fall was giddy; then a scramble down an incline of loose earth. Choking with the dust, he could not guess to what death he was sliding. Something came down upon his head, and this was Andrew March.

"You asked them to take us to?"

"Yes. It occurred to me that they do not love their masters. I referred to that, and promised everything I could think of, if they would not turn us over to the horsemen."

The center of the world gave forth a speck of light that was a torch. The party that had come up at the summons of the distant song was close about the white men again at the base of the shaft, which seemed endlessly large; and other torches were coming nearer out. It was not given to what death he was sliding. Something came down upon his head, and this was Andrew March.

"The torches threw a serried glare on the rock walls of the underground passage. It was now but very wide. In another chamber, to which the prisoners were led, the roof was higher, of ragged sandstone, and the floor had been swept. Here was the settlement of workers, every one deformed below the shoulders.

Out of the red-lighted press of these came a figure but slightly more erect than his fellows. He was dark of skin, but his eyes were full and did not slant or pinch. His bared throat was significant of strength and pose, from no mean ancestry, but his knees locked and jointed pitifully, as from some cautious accident.

"Friend," he said in a low voice.

It was music to hear the English word.

The miners were waving torches of blunder guns. I could think I was looking at the Thames and the lights of the British shipping, or I'd think I was an Arabian caliph, posing about my own city at night. Only I needed a big thirst to shift the globe around that way and make a Greek water look like the King of Ashamed in disguise. I've looked over toward Brooklyn and told myself I was on the Bund at Shanghai. But it couldn't be done that way. I was close to the rocks. You seemed to know what I needed. You opened the world. "Think of that later. But hide us away now."

"They see your footprints, and ask us. What?"

"They say that we were killed and thrown in the ditches."

"Yes," said the speaker of English. He turned to confer with several others in a rapid monotone. Con said to his friend: "What is he?"

"Looks Arabian," replied March. The speaker had heard the word, and he turned sharply, with a smile

"Friend," he said in a low voice, parting his lips. From the waist up he was a handsome man of forty.

"Yes, Arab," he said. "Fifteen big I was, at sea. I know your country—Saint Lawrence, Buffalo—"

"Niagara Falls," offered Levington.

"Ah, yes!" exclaimed the sailor from Arabia. He smiled more broadly at the recollection. "Twenty year—presently—that. Does she sail continually?"

"Yes," replied Con, joining in the smile. "How did you come here?"

"Caravan. The sea weary me, fifteen years more now. Caravan from Djorobed. Ah! She never destination, never. The riders appear one day at evening—you know?"

"They speak me," said the Arab, glancing down humorously at his "spotted" legs, and Con winced. "But come, my two friends."

The relief was dreamlike to Con. He realized that no physical effort on his own part could help; in fact, he was perilously near to trusting in God and this scrawling Arab, who had fifteen years ago answered the call of the Sha Mo, was the very hand of Providence. Con wondered how strong further away, to be under it. But in singing he could hear the penetrant stinging of the hollow brass through the night. Che-Ming would not give up easily.

There seemed a limitless multitude of the earth-dwellers, moving in quiet disorder through the cavern where, Levington had an uneasy sense of being under the crust of the earth. They led him to an adjoining chamber as large as the entire palace. The floor of this second cavern was riven across, and a long greenish line of flame wavered in the warm air, strong and between the giddy leaning back, he saw a great host of faces. The gas hissed as it was consumed along the lips of the rock, and cast an exquisite glow upon the high walls, where were a number of black holes. In each shadowy pocket were human beings, looking down upon the stranger. Con distinguished women, who were gaunt and small but not so broken as their husbands.

In the limited Chinese vocabulary of Andrew March, and the nearly forgotten English of the Arabian sailor, assurances were hastily exchanged. The telling factor was the Arab's high opinion of Buffalo, the port of grain and hogs. March agreed to bring five hundred trophies to stop the production of kerosin, and so free the workers, if they aided him to escape from Tan Kuan and the Gobi. Remembering the wealth of Buffalo, the Arab interpreter was ready to believe that this could be done.

"Come!" repeated the Arab. He hobbled on ahead, and many walked close beside the white men, but there was no talking. If the miners were curious, they were silent. If they were as distrustful as they appeared in glances, they were for the moment persuaded by the Arab.

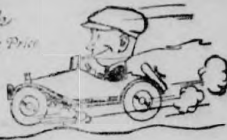

There was a ledge where the walls sloped back to meet the lowering roof, and in the wedge-shaped space between, the white men were permitted to crouch. If they were as distrustful as they appeared in glances, they were for the moment persuaded by the Arab.

8 WHITE SOX ARE INDICTED

CHARGED BY GRAND JURY WITH "THROWING" GAMES LAST YEAR

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The Cook county grand jury this afternoon voted true bills against the following baseball players in connection with its investigation of alleged "throwing" of world's series games last year: Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams, "Chick" Gandil, "Happy" Felsch, Charles Riesberg, Joe Jackson, "Buck" Weaver and Fred McMillin.

All are members of the Chicago Americans.

The eight players are charged with conspiracy to violate a state law.

Voting of the indictments was officially announced by H. H. Brichman, foreman of the grand jury, following a conference with Chief Justice McDonald and Alfred S. Austin, attorney for the White Sox club.

Gandil, while still the property of the Chicago club, has not been with the team this year. It was understood that he could not reach an agreement with them over salary.

U.P. TRAPPER BAGS 73 WOLVES IN PAST YEAR

Negaunee.—Thomas Moore, one of the upper peninsula's most picturesque and successful trappers, who lives at Bridge 1 on the west branch of the Escanaba river, in the southern part of Forsyth township, was here yesterday, enroute to his home from Marquette, where he attended the meeting of the men interested in the closing of the beaver season, which was conducted by Deputy State Game Warden David R. Jones, of Lansing, Tuesday.

Mr. Moore, like other good trappers who believe in living and let live, is in favor of a closed season on beaver, as from his personal observations he can see where the animal will soon be extinct unless it is protected for a few years.

Moore, who lives alone in the wilderness, when not trapping, spends much of his time playing his violin. He is an excellent musician and woodman who have occasion to be in the vicinity of his place claim that they have heard the sweet strains of the violin penetrating the wilderness at all hours of the day and night.

Mr. Moore is located so far away from other habitations his shack is off any road. When he wishes to go into the outside world it is necessary for him to walk great distances. His nearest approach to civilization is through the woods and across country to Princeton, where he gets all of his supplies. The trappers attribute his excellent health to his many and frequent long hikes through the woods.

One of the wolves that Moore caught, and the pet of which he brought to Marquette, was a large shewolf. When it was caught in the trap it was carrying a large chunk of venison which weighed about ten pounds. The wolf was taking it to her young ones.

Moore has trapped 73 wolves the past year.

LEGION POLICY TO BE FORMED

TO DETERMINE METHODS TO WORK RADICAL ORGANIZATIONS

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25.—The American Legion is expected to adopt in its annual convention beginning here today a statement of its policy to guide its members and posts in their conduct toward labor organizations and industrial disputes. An announcement issued by the Legion's News Service says that probably its hands-off policy will be reaffirmed and steps taken to enforce that policy on all units of the organization.

"A system to provide means of disciplining members and posts that run counter to the expressed policy of the majority of Legion members will be discussed and probably adopted," the statement adds.

"The national constitution fails to provide any means of putting restraint on members who embarrass the Legion by unauthorized statements or acts. This fact, according to national Commander Franklin D'Olier has caused the entire organization to suffer from adverse criticism directed against the activities of one small post."

Many Questions Up

Methods of curbing the activities of violent radical organizations, the statement of the alien "blacklers," the immigration question in general and the Japanese problem in particular better schools, universal military training, women in the Legion and its auxiliaries, rules for eligibility to organizations and prosecution of those fraudulently wearing the insignia, all of the Legion are among the subjects to be considered.

Means to improve the War Risk Bureau, Public Health Service and the Federal Board for Vocational Training will be discussed.

The convention which will bring together delegates from 5,600 posts situated in the United States, a dozen foreign countries and United States possessions, representing a membership of close to 2,000,000 veterans of the world war, will adjourn September 29. The delegates are expected to number about 3,000 while it is believed 25,000 unofficial visitors will attend.

The program calls for reports from national officers and committees the first day of the convention. Temporary committees will present their resolutions the second day, and on the closing day officers will be elected. There are half a dozen candidates for the office of National Commander, and a ballot is expected.

All 51 living Medal of Honor men of the American army and Marine Corps have been invited to attend the convention as guests of the city of Cleveland.

FOUR STATES SHOW RELATIVE DECLINE IN RATE OF INCREASE OF POPULATION

Washington, Sept. 29.—Four states, the 1920 population of which were announced today by the census bureau showed gradual declines in their respective relative increases over preceding decades. Illinois has a population of 5,485,998, an increase of 846,597 or 15 per cent over 1910. The state is expected to retain its rank as the third most populous state.

Montana with a population of 547,593 showed an increase of 171,540 or 45.5 per cent over 1910. It was the state's largest numerical increase but its percentage increase was the lowest. The state ranked fourth in 1919 but passed New Hampshire in the 1920 rank.

New Mexico's population was announced as 369,247 an increase of 12,946 or 3.5 per cent over 1910. The figures show the state to have made the lowest numerical increase since 1880 when the growth was 27,694. New Mexico ranked as forty-fourth state in 1910, but passed Vermont in this census.

Louisiana with a population of 1,197,798 increased 141,410 or 8.5 per cent over 1910. The state showed both its smallest numerical and relative increase since 1870.

IDENTIFIES ONE OF PRISONERS

MAN SHOT IN OSHKOSH BANK SURE ONE MAN ARRESTED IN CHIPPEWA FALLS IS BANDIT

Oshkosh, Sept. 28.—One of the three men who with three women, claimed to be their wives, were arrested at Chippewa Falls and brought here yesterday as suspects in the raid on the Exchange Bank of Oshkosh by a bandit gang, were identified by John Glaz, wounded assistant cashier of the bank, as the man who fired the shot that hit him in the face, and fractured his jaw. The man gave his name as J. L. Turner. The other two, E. T. Rogers, and James King, were also brought before Mr. Glaz, who is at a local hospital, but he could not recall seeing them before. He stated he only saw two of the bandits the one who fired the shots in the bank and the other who stood directly before him at the father's window when the raid took place. The latter, who has not been apprehended, is the man Mr. Glaz identified from a photograph of a former criminal as one who faced him at the window during the raid.

It is expected that he will be taken into custody within a short time. The three prisoners now in the county jail will be brought into court today or tomorrow and in the meantime the five trunks and several suit cases and hand bags in which valuable articles, believed to have been stolen, were found, will be carefully examined.

NEWPORT MEN INSPECT CASCADE IRON RANGE

Negaunee, Sept. 28.—No little interest has been aroused in the Cascade range by the visit to the vicinity of Palmer of men representing the Michigan and other interests owning the Newport Iron Mining company operating in the Upper Peninsula and in Minnesota, who are said to contemplate making purchases of mining properties.

The Cascade district, in and around Palmer, holds considerable interest for mining men. Many of the older miners are of the belief that one of a higher grade than has been mined in that section in the past will be found at greater depths than have yet been reached. Many of the Cascade range mines have so far been worked only as open pit properties.

Several deposits of ore than ran as high as 40 per cent in iron have been given attention by operators, the Mattland being one. This year a considerable tonnage was shipped from the Mattland, which has been developed as an open pit property during the last few years. Besides the active producers at Palmer, the steel corporation has the Moore mine, which has been idle for a number of years. The Moore is being held by the corporation in reserve as a number of its mines in Marquette county.
