ANOTHER FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT SATURDAY

Chas. Reynolds of Manistique Instantly Killed and Two Companions Badly Hurt When Car Goes Into Ditch This Side of Ensign.

Another fatal automobile accident occurred at about midnight Saturday at the "death curve" this side of the Escanaba railroad track and about two miles from Ensign. The unfortunate victim was Chas. Reynolds of Manistique, who was killed instantly when the car was thrown into the ditch. His two companions, also of Manistique, were hurled from the car and one of them, Mr. Lalonde suffered a broken arm and severe cuts about the head, while the other man, away with lesser injuries.

As soon as help could be summoned the injured men and the body of the dead man were taken to Escanaba. The two injured men were taken to a hospital to have their injuries attended to, while the body of Reynolds was taken to the allo morgue.

There was no one outside of the three men in the car to witness the accident, but the story of the two men who survive is to the effect that Reynolds, who came to Manistique about two weeks ago from Beloit, Wis., and was employed at the Handy garage, got a car out of the garage Saturday evening and engaged to drive the other two men to Escanaba. It is said that Reynolds asked Mr. Handy for the use of his (Handy's) car but that the latter refused. Thereupon Reynolds broke the jacks on the door of the garage and secured a car belonging to a priest of Manistique, the car having just been overhauled. The car was an eight-cylinder Cadillac club roadster and was capable of making great speed. The party made "good time" all the way and at the time of the accident was going at the rate of 55 miles an hour, according to the statement of Lalonde. Either the driver was unfamiliar with the road or lost control of the wheel, anyway he was unable to make the turn when he reached the curve in the road and the

14 BIRTHS AND ONLY 3 DEATHS IN SEPTEMBER

The grim reaper was left way in the rear during September in the race of life and death. Old Doc Stork called at 14 homes during the month. Just closed, which is above the average. Eight of these were boys and the balance girls. A year ago during the same month there were only six births. The total for the first nine months of this year is 119, as against 86 for the same period last year. During September six were born to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Broman, Olof Haansson, J. O. Lundquist, Chester Dettler, Eugene Brant, Axel Holm, Henry Koskela and Clarence North. Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Neils Granberg, Claire N. Smith, Clarence Snyder, Isaac Seaman, Louis Van Neighan and Oscar Brodren.

The three deaths in September were William Crandall, aged 1 year, 5 months and 19 days, John David Halm, aged 19 years, 2 months and 20 days, and a three days old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Snyder, 20 far this year there have been 30 deaths in Gladstone, as against 35 for the same period last year.

ADOPTION OF NAME BY ATHLETIC CLUB

MEMBERSHIP FEE REMAINS SAME—MANY BOXING BOUTS ARE PLANNED

A very interesting meeting of the athletic club was held Friday night in the club rooms. A large attendance was reported and a number of questions were discussed. The club decided upon a name, and it has been known as the Athletic Club but will now be called the Gladstone Athletic Club.

The membership fees remain the same. It is $2.00 and this includes the first month's dues. The membership is increasing right along and a clean, healthy club will be the result.

Many boxing bouts are planned for winter and local talent is now being picked out. Escanaba plans to stage bouts also and perhaps an interesting "wrestling" bout will be staged.

Other entertainments are also hoped for so that the boys might use the receipts for Athletic club equipment.

LOSE OPENER OF FOOT BALL SEASON

GLADSTONE LEGION TEAM TRIMMED BY ISHPEMING VES-TERDAY—SCORE 53 TO 6

The Gladstone Legion football team suffered its first defeat yesterday afternoon at Ishpeiming when the Legion team of that city landed on them and the final minute of playing showed the score to be 53 to 6. Gladstone made its only score in the third quarter when Jackey recovered a fumble and ran 59 yards and made a touch-down.

The Ishpeiming team was about 30 pounds per man heavier than the local Legion team and this variance of weight, coupled with the fact that Ishpeiming used about 22 men in the game changing frequently, made the contest pretty much one-sided.

The boys were given a royal treatment at the hands of the Ishpeiming people and their stay was made a very pleasant one as a result.

Center—Swan.
Right end—Jackey.
Right guard—Dabney.
Right tackle—Skoglund.
Quarter back—Peoney.
Left half back—Murker, (Capt.)
Full back—Keezel.
Right half back—Pitt.
Right end—Peterson went in at left end in the third and fourth quarters.

Matson played right end in the fourth quarter. Vandeweghe played right guard in the third quarter. Jones was another sub.

Games Scheduled

Next Sunday the Munnings team comes to Gladstone for a game, and the following Sunday, Oct. 17, the Legion team will go to Menominee for a game.

Army Recruiter Does Land Office Business With Six Men in Day

Getting down to business again corporal Blackwell of the Army Recruiting station at Escanaba did a land office business Friday afternoon sending six applicants into the service after examination had been conducted here.

The recruiter has been busy of late looking over promising candidates and Friday disposed of all six at one time. The men and their assignments are:

Joseph Deman of Gladstone to the same place.
James E. Fay of Peoria, Illinois.

In the case of Earl Pariseau his father was overly willing to have the young man enter army service in that he had been implicated in some trouble which was later dismissed against him.

All men left Friday night for their respective camps by way of Chicago.

Good Increase In Dakota's Growth

Washington, Sept. 29.—Kentucky's 1920 population is 2,416,013 an increase of 126,398, or 5.5 per cent in ten years while the population of North Dakota is 645,729 an increase of 68,674 or 11.9 per cent, over that of 1910.

The figures made public today by the census bureau show that Kentucky's rate of growth in the last decade fell off slightly, while that of North Dakota declined 65.9 per cent as compared with the previous decade.

The record growth of North Dakota was in the decade ended in 1910, with an increase of 257,210.

This was the fourth census of North Dakota as that state was not admitted to the Union in 1889. It ranked thirty seventh in population in 1910.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 2.—The American Railway Express company today filed with the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission an application for a reopening of the rate case in this state. A further advance of 13 1/2 per cent in express rates is asked, so that intrastate rates will conform with interstate rates.

BEAVER SEASON CLOSED FOR TERM OF 5 YEARS

Under an order dated September 25, 1920, issued by John Baird, game fish and forest fire commissioner, and approved by the public domain commission, the open season on beaver is suspended and closed for five years from November 1.

During these five years it will be unlawful for any person to "take, trap, hunt, shoot, kill or molest beaver" in the state of Michigan.

Mr. Baird's decision to close the beaver season was reached following the public hearing held in the Marquette court house September 21. At that meeting, notice of the board of supervisors in upper peninsula counties were heard and their opinions were unanimously in favor of closing the season.

The public hearing on the Beaver question was fixed by Mr. Baird after petitions signed by a majority of the members of the board of supervisors in upper peninsula counties had been filed in his office. The petitions asked that the hearing be held to "determine the advisability of making an order to suspend, abridge or otherwise regulate the present open season now fixed by law for the taking or hunting of beaver because of the threatened depletion or extermination of said animals."

The official order relative to the closed beaver season is published in another column.

WELL, WELL, WELL, MEMOONEE LOOMS

BELIEVE CENSUS BUREAU HAS MADE MISTAKE OF 3000 PEOPLE

(Herald Leader)

An unofficial census, but one which is believed to be superior to that taken by the government agents, is that which Harry Brown, food administrator during the war, has compiled for the city of Menominee.

According to Mr. Brown's figures Menominee had a population of 11,298 in October 1918. This it will be remembered was a time when there were approximately 600 soldiers away from the city, who were not counted.

According to Mr. Brown, the cards which he has, have entered upon them the names of every man, woman and child in Menominee.

It will be remembered the food administration apportioned its sugar according to the number of children in each family. There were 41 grocers in Menominee who kept a card for each family who traded with them and on this card was listed the number of people in the family.

"As grocers and families were threatened with stoppage of their supply of sugar if they misreported numbers on the cards, there was not one instance where dishonesty was found." "In fact," said Mr. Brown "I found some cases where the family actually have been granted more sugar."

Using Mr. Brown's figures, it is estimated that the population of Menominee at the present time is not less than 11,500. It is believed that if a close count was made by interested persons here, that the exact figures would be in the neighborhood of the above figures. It is possible that such a movement will be started. One thing is certain, however, and that is the figures compiled by the government, are far from correct.

Women are more easily fooled about love than men, but not about clothes.

PRISON SENTENCE FOR RECKLESS AUTO DRIVER

TOM ELL GETS 1 TO 15 YEAR SENTENCE FOR KILLING MAN WITH AUTO AT MARQUETTE

Marquette—Peter Pierczyk, second degree murder—not less than ten years nor more than twenty-five years in the branch prison, with a recommendation of fifteen years.

Satorre Andreacchi, manslaughter—not less than seven years nor more than fifteen years, with a recommendation of fifteen years.

Uno Johnson and Ray Vitale, burglary—confinement at hard labor until the December term of court, when further sentence will be passed.

Above are the sentences imposed by Judge Finnigan Friday morning in circuit court. Three of the five men were sentenced to state's prison, and the other two, convicted of breaking into a pool room at Marquette, are to serve a term at hard labor in the county jail.

Before passing sentence, Judge Finnigan told Johnson and Vitale, aged twenty-two and nineteen, respectively, that their offense might have resulted in fifteen years in state's prison. To save them from the prison stigma, he would have them confined to the county jail, at hard labor, until he returned to Marquette for the December term of court.

The report he received on their conduct at that time, he declared would determine whether they should continue in the county jail or go to prison.

Warmth Motives

"This is the second case of this kind that has occurred in this county," said Judge Finnigan, discussing the Ell case. "Any judge is reluctant to inflict prison sentences for involuntary manslaughter. It was thought that payment of a heavy fine after conviction of the offense would be sufficient warning, but such has not been the effect. It is necessary to impress upon your mind, and the minds of others that reckless driving of an automobile is a serious matter, and a state's prison may be extremely reckless."

"Fast driving is not necessarily reckless driving. Slow driving is not necessarily careful driving. A man may be driving slowly, and yet the driving may be extremely reckless."

"A man driving behind another car so fast that he cannot stop if the driver ahead finds it necessary to stop is guilty of reckless driving. A driver who cannot stop within the distance that the road be open to his sight is a reckless driver."

Game Plentiful In the Woods, Hunters Declare On Return

An unprecedented rush, to the woods and the heaviest sale of hunting equipment in years, was evidenced in Escanaba yesterday, with the opening of the season on rabbits and partridge.

Hundreds of hunting licenses have been sold in this city alone, according to reports of the sporting dealer. Reports demand for ammunition and other equipment are the heaviest he has experienced in five years, approximately in magnitude the opening of the deer season. Another dealer while able to get guns, says that the demand for them is extremely heavy, and in many places exceeds the supply, and counts himself fortunate on being able to supply his trade.

Ammunition in case and half-cases lots is being bought in larger quantities than ever before, by individual hunters, he says, with a corresponding increase of sales in smaller quantities.

The same story is told by other dealers, who look forward to probably a still heavier sale next week, by sportsmen who plan to spend a day in the woods on the weekend.

That partridge are tame and plentiful seems to be the report of all who have gone into the woods lately. Despite reports, however, lack of the various sportsmen differed widely. One seventeen-year-old youth went out with a 22 rifle yesterday and bagged a bird within twenty minutes' walk of his home. Another sportsman walked twenty miles to get a single partridge. Although the legal limit for one day's shooting is five, there were no reports of bagging.

From now on, the same warrens will be especially active in watching for violations of the game laws. Partridge cannot be hunted from automobiles. Five is the limit that can be killed in one day; ten in possession at one time, and twenty-five during the season.

RAPID RIVER

Letter from Wm. Mrukas
San Francisco, Calif.
Sunday, Sep. 26, 1920.

Dear friend Jim—
No doubt you'll be reading this letter on your way to the shop having dropped into Shippy's and listened to Shippy and Dave Barnard or Al Marvin as they try and see which one can outwit the other or Everett and J. A. studying over some points in the Bible but nevertheless my heart is with the old town and wish I were there now instead of over 2500 miles from there.

I arrived here a couple of days ago and like the place real well. It certainly is a grand county to live in.

I left Chicago about a month ago and have been traveling almost steady since then. I stayed quite a while in Butte, Montana where I had the opportunity to hear Gov. "Jimmy" Cox and was one of the fortunate (or unfortunate I don't know which) to shake the old boss' hand and wish him good luck to which he habitually up led "Thank You" in a matter of fast time.

I visited Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland before I came here. While in Tacoma I visited Cammie Lewis and saw Carl Nelson, Bennie Laraby, Floyd Dudge, Clem Negrey, Dick Walsh and Shippy's famous boxer student Raymond Naylor. They are all looking fine and dandy but believe me they're all glad they only signed up for a year. They couldn't hardly believe their eyes when they saw me and I'll tell you I was sure tickled to see some one from home and greatly enjoyed my visit there too. I had supper and breakfast there and stayed over night.

I see the race is pretty close between Cleveland and Chicago. White Sox bet even if Chicago a little ways behind I'm still with them because I believe there's a better team than the Indians.

I sure would like to read a couple of the Rapid River News and as soon as I get settled in one place for any length of time I'm going to have them send me some from home.

You don't know how badly I miss the old dances but when I get home again I'll make up for lost time.

The weather is surely fine here. I guess it doesn't vary very much the year round. It seems funny to see pears, lemons, oranges, plums, figs and walnuts to be growing on trees.

Well Jim, dinner seems to be the main feature now so will have to quit.

JIMMIE H.

Quite a number of children are away from school owing to either having the whooping cough themselves or it being in the family. We presume the children are enjoying their vacation.

Principal Frank Tebo is enjoying a visit from his sister from Green Bay. Pilot Wassell paid a visit to Garden with the Dooley on Tuesday but did not stay to take up any passengers, which was perhaps rather fortunate, owing to the heavy rainstorm in the afternoon.

Several auto parties were down on the Peninsula enjoying the nice fall weather which prevailed the early part of the day, picking butter nuts. Many of them were caught in the severe rain storm before they reached home. In consequence many of them experienced engine trouble.

Doctor Hughes took a party consisting of Mrs. Cosineau, Gaston, and Laurence up to Manistique on Sunday, returning in the evening after the storm.

BARK RIVER

The Bark River Market Association at the meeting held last evening authorized the officers to proceed with the purchase of the Bark River potato ware house on the railroad right of way. The board of directors secured an option on the building recently and authority was officially granted last evening to close the deal.

The warehouse was built some years ago by the Stark Company. Later it was acquired by Phil Labre. The purchase price is $2250 to include seal and all paraphernalia in connection with the outfit.

Highway Commissioner Andrew Anderson reports the completion yesterday of the job of "tarring" the township road. The work has been done of necessity and has been completed in an unusually short space of time at that.

Mr. Anderson estimates the total cost of work and material at $5000. The cost of the two cars of Tervia was approximately $2500. Gravel cost about $100 the balance was paid out for labor and hiring of machinery. The road is expensive to maintain but its condition is now such that even riding in a trolley is a somewhat enjoyable experience.

Mrs. Ambrose Payne sustained a very painful and somewhat serious injury last Tuesday by the accidental fall of a pair of shears. One of the points of the instrument penetrated the fleshy part of the foot causing a gash so serious as to require the attention of the doctor.

During the period last year corresponding to the next twenty days the market was at its lowest ebb. There is a corresponding depression now and the next twenty days will probably determine the extent to which this depression can be controlled on to prevail during the season. Undoubtedly the recent reports indicating a very large surplus has had the effect of discounting buyers. The indications are now that the crop was over estimated and as soon as definite information is available from the growing centers the price will tend to stabilize. Under present conditions shippers would probably realize 11.50 per cwt. loading station.

Miss Agnes Johnson went to Opizto to spend the week end at her home.

Schools in the South Bark River District will close today for a two week vacation to permit boys and girls to assist in potato and beet harvest.

Ribbey Treiber left last week to enter the St. John's Military Academy near Milwaukee. Ribbey is a fortunate lad in having opportunity to attend one of the foremost institutions of its kind in the west.

Mrs. Vian went to Marinette this week for the Vian Store.

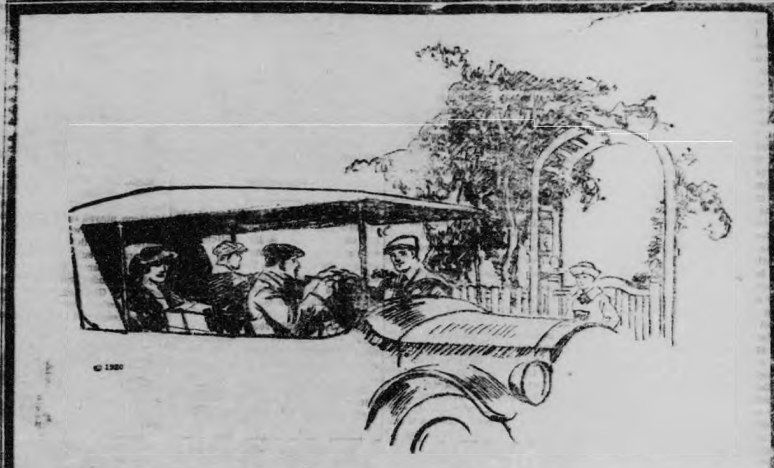

The decrease in the price of the food output caused a corresponding advance in the popularity of machinery put out by the Ford plants. One tractor was put into operation here this week on the Gramah farm.

Lizzie Kosman assisted at the Bark River home during the past week.

The Pair was well attended by Bark River people last week. Probably every family was represented there during some part of the time. A number of Bark River people were exhibitors but a complete list of premium winners is not available at this time. The Maple Grove Farms had a number of Quakers in the stalls.

Mrs. Clark Huntington of Pulaski came up Monday with the Guy Huntington children all of whom having been in her charge during their mother's stay at the hospital.

Mrs. Infrail came up from Escanaba for a visit with her parents, the Holmers early this week.

Nobody thinks anything now of going away on a trip

THE railroads were partly responsible. But it wasn't until the automobile reached its present state of development that the old barriers against travel were finally broken down.

much in this tire business for us.

The less a man has to spend on motoring, the more important it is that his tires should be of first quality.

Any tire is not good enough for the small car owner. He wants a tire that will give him just as much for his money in the small size as the big car man gets for his money in the large size.

In thinking over what kind of tires we would represent in this community we tried to put ourselves in the place of the car owner. And we believe we hit it exactly when we selected U. S. Tires.

More people own automobiles today than ever thought of owning a horse and buggy in the old days.

That's because the cost of motoring has been brought within reach of the average citizen's pocketbook.

We look upon it as part of our job to keep it there. If it weren't for the trade of the man with the medium priced car there wouldn't be

Bolley-Fillon

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized this morning at All Saints Chapel, Rev. Fr. Donahoe officiating when Miss Eileen Bolley became the bride of Victor H. Fillon of Escanaba.

The bride was very becomingly attired in a beautiful suit of rich autumn brown chiffon broadcloth trimmed with minkskin and carried a bouquet of pink American Beauty roses and cut ferns. She wore a small soft hat of black and Foch blue chiffon veils, a heavy chenille tassel its only ornament.

The bridesmaid wore a beauty of suit of navy blue serge, heavily embroidered in colors, she too wore a small soft hat of beautiful black velvet, the returned brim of flowered tulle and also carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and cut ferns.

After the ceremony, the bridal party motored to the Delta Hotel in Escanaba where an elaborate four course wedding breakfast was most charmingly served, plates being laid for immediate relatives only.

They left this morning by motor on a honeymoon tour to interesting points in the upper part of Wisconsin.

Miss Bolley has lived in Gladstone practically all her life and is one of the city's most accomplished musicians. She is a graduate of the high school here and the Bush Conservatory of Music in Chicago.

The young couple have a host of friends who extend to them their most joyous wishes.

Yeoman Installation

Preparations are being made for the installation ceremonies at the North Star Hall, Escanaba, Tuesday evening, October 6, when the officers of Delta Homestead No. 1284 and Gladstone Homestead No. 2012 Brotherhood of American Yeoman, will be installed.

It is expected that the hall will be crowded with the members of both homesteads. None but members will be allowed for this occasion.

Thursday evening Lady Rowena and her committee of Escanaba met at the Yeoman office to work out the final plans in regard to the banquet which will be given. The decoration committee also met and will arrange to decorate the hall. A good dancing program will be put on by Johnson's orchestra.

Gladstone will be well represented for this occasion.

The degree staff are practicing and will have their work in good shape to initiate a large class of members.

Were Married at St. Clements

Further information regarding the marriage of Miss Lorraine Struble to Lawrence Murphy, both popular young people of this city, was received in letters to Gladstone friends and relatives. The wedding occurred at St. Clements at 6 o'clock Friday evening, Sept. 24. Rev. Dodge of the St. Clements' Presbyterian church performed the ceremony. Both young people will continue their studies, the bride at the Ypsilanti Normal, and the groom at State University at Ann Arbor.

The news of the wedding might not have leaked out only for the publication of the marriage license in a Detroit paper.

Farwell Party

A number of ladies rendered a farewell to Mrs. A. D. Bolley at her home Thursday evening. The party was a complete surprise to the Bollers who leave next week for Superior where they will make their future home.

The party went from the Bolley house to the parish hall where a few tables were laid for cards. Other games and music were the enjoyable pastime of the evening. In conclusion a very dainty lunch was served. Mrs. Bolley was presented with a cut glass sugar and creamer set as a token of remembrance.

Eagles to Stage Supper

The local order of Eagles will have a big time on Friday, October 15, when a supper and ball will be arranged for the members. The supper will be the annual game supper and for the purpose of raising up enough game for the food, two captains in the persons of Otto Habermann and Alfred Rudani, have been selected and these will choose sides among the master business for bringing in the game. As everyone knows the Eagles are "summers", but the captains in charge of the expedition will do their best to meet the occasion. The supper will be followed with a dancing program.

Outing at Fayette

A party of young people of this city, consisting of Misses Hazel Hooper, Ma Joyce, Lydia Holmberg and Alice Anderson and Messrs. Fred Kaemp, Eugene Bovin and two young men from the Ogontz settlement, motored to Fayette yesterday and enjoyed a picnic there. On the way there the young men bagged a duck and some partridges and a feast fit for a king was the result.

There remain in army hospitals throughout the country more than 26,000 soldiers still being treated for wounds received overseas. Red Cross workers give them the same sort of friendly aid—only more of it—than was given during the war. Furthermore, the Red Cross is teaching these lads occupations at which they can later make a living and is keeping in touch with their home folks in order that no dependents may suffer for lack of funds.

Among the predecessors of modern patent medicines were such astonishing nostrums as Goddard's drops, a formula in vogue during the reign of Charles II, which consisted of a distillate of "human bones or rather scales"; dried mummy, a gruesome preparation that unscrupulous persons frequently imitated; and a medicine that one Joanna Stephens prepared in 1780 for "the cure of the stone" by calcining egg shells and garden snails.

A BARNYARD MEETING

TURKEYS in the barnyard called all the other fowl one morning to a meeting they were to hold behind the barn.

"We are called together," said Mr. Gobbler, "to discuss a serious situation—namely, that of getting rid of Mr. Fox."

"He has bothered all of us lately very much, but my family in particular have suffered great loss, and now I want to talk over a plan for getting rid of him and I shall be glad of your help in the matter."

"I second the motion," quacked Mr. Drake, "and I suggest that we tar and feather him."

"Oh! I think that far too good for him," said Mr. Gander. "I propose that we catch him and pull off his fur, one hair at a time, and then turn him loose. He will be sure to freeze, and that, I am sure, will be a punishment he would not choose."

"Let us try to think of some way not so disastrous to redneck minds," said Mr. Rooster. "I want him punished as much as any of you, but can it not be done with more dignity?"

"What do you all say if we catch him and duck him in the pond, that pull him out by the tail and drag him around the barnyard for all to see. I am sure he will be quite upset by being brought so low and will never come around here again."

"Yes!" cried Mr. Gander. "A dignified punishment, indeed! But what will be doing all this time, may I ask you, Mr. Rooster?"

"Mr. Fox will jump up and eat you or whoever is dragging him about. No, I think the only thing to do is catch him and shut him up in a cage, feed him on stones—nothing but stones—and nothing to drink until he cannot hold out any more, and then let him go to the pond for a drink of water and push him in. That will be the end of him, as you all can see, for he will stink at once."

"I wish you would let some of us talk a minute," said old Madam Duck. "I think we should catch him and tie his legs. As who have suffered most from his visits here can poke him with a briar until he begs for mercy."

"Merry!" would Mr. Rooster be careful to that which?" screamed Madam Turkey, who had not nearly all her family.

"No; I would not. But I should like him to beg for it, just the same," said Madam Duck.

"The plans are all very good—very good, indeed," said Mr. Gobbler. "There remains only one thing to do, and that is to choose which one it shall be."

"Yes, there is another question which you have not seemed to think of," Mr. Gobbler said. "Madam Turkey, who had listened quietly all the time, and that is, who is to catch Mr. Fox and how will it be done?"

Everyone stood quite still, and then the all suddenly remembered that it was time to eat, and off they all ran to the barnyard as fast as they could go.

FALL FASHION FOREHINTS

Wraps are developed in cape styles. Collars are built to incline the chin. Embroideries are one of the big features. Wraps made of paper are also being made. The dresses used for day wear are simple. The high closed collar will very likely be seen this fall. Draped veils are embroidered in metal and rich colors. Suit shirts are short, simple and built on straight lines. Straight lines appear in the tailors. Plain skirts are seen. Paper suits are likely to be used for winter wraps for sports purposes. Sleeves are wide in the afternoon frocks. Necklines are open in some. Tailored suits have jackets of medium length. They follow the figure without any fullness. Few dresses have any stirrles. Usually they have high necks and three-quarter length sleeves. Bracelets with little charms and figures hanging from them as bangles are worn a great deal this year. Velvet is one of the materials that are used, as also are lame and metal laces and many puffed fabrics. Bodices and upper sleeves are entirely embroidered with skirts made plain or the skirt is embroidered and the top is made plain. For evening a low décolleté is sponsored. Corages are long and sit smoothly above the skirts which have long flaring panels. Among other trimmings we note soutache braidings, arranged to stand out from the fabric and narrow ribbons are worked into novelty motifs. Jackets are finished with high fur-lined collars and narrow belts in fabric or leather. Some introduce narrow panels, while skirts are of uneven lengths.

EASY COME—EASY GO

According to the figures published last week the national orgy of spending that swept over the United States following the armistice, still is pouring money into the pockets of purveyors of amusement at the rate of approximately $40,000,000 a month.

Although expenditures were curtailed for automobiles, diamonds, imported cosmetics and the like, the public has increased its purchases of candy, soft drinks and other nondurable goods, beverages, tobacco and theater and movie tickets.

Seekers of recreation still are indulging in these things at the rate of nearly 5,000,000 a year, or enough money to pay all expenses of the government for 12 months.

Taxes received by the government during May on the sale of candy, soft drinks and other amusements totalled $5,618,000.

Tobacco, cigars and cigarettes seem to be the favorite indulgence of the American people, according to the tax returns.

Theater admissions brought in the next biggest tax income to the government, total collections being $5,523,139, at this rate the annual expenditure for theater seats would be approximately $794,723,000.

All of which assures us that we are having a good time while it is lasting, but can any one say how long it will last?

BUYING LIBERTY BONDS

Liberty Bonds remain low—though they are rising—for two reasons: first, because money is cheap and interest high, and the market is full of securities yielding much higher interest rates; second, because selling of bonds by small holders still continues.

Yet for the long pull, for sound, solid investment and a safeguard against future need, there is nothing better than Liberty and Victory Bonds at present prices.

An investigation conducted by the New York Federal reserve bank in a number of neighboring localities discloses some interesting tendencies. It showed that the customers of banks are buying more bonds than they are selling in a three-month period, sales in the district covered by the inquiry amounted to $2,587,009 and purchases to $3,701,000.

Another interesting fact is that purchases are mainly of bonds of a thousand dollars and over, while sales still include large numbers of bonds of fifty and a hundred dollars.

These who are buying government bonds will show ten times more for their money five years from now than those who are putting their savings in to speculative stocks that are large in promises of sudden wealth and small in returns.

CHICAGO'S BIG LIBEL SUIT

Can a newspaper libel a city? That is the question which will have to be determined in the startling libel suit which has been brought by Mayor Thompson of Chicago, in behalf of the city, against the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Daily News.

The mayor claims damages for the city in the sum of $10,000,000 from each newspaper. The alleged libel consists of the statements published in the two newspapers in which the claim was made that the city is bankrupt and its credit exhausted.

If his city isn't in the condition mentioned it is not because of any inefficiency or regard for the taxpayers shown by the newspaper mentioned. The Tribune, previous to the recent primary election in Illinois, published daily fascicles of reports and bills filed by city employees and paid out of the city treasury when no work had been performed for the city.

Mayor Thompson has built up a wonderful but sleek-producing machine in Chicago. He may enjoy wealth-ing in the political and civic fifth which is the outgrowth of the conditions created by and through his machine, but he should not have such sensitive factories when the newspapers stir up the dirty mess for the information of the public. It isn't any credit for a man who has any personal pride of the right kind to be the head of such a machine as that which holds Chicago in its grip. The people of that city, by a majority of some thirty or ninety thousand, have expressed at the polls their liking for the political and civic fifth in which they wallow, but the method and wantonness of Illinois, outside of Cook county, have sweepingly condemned it.

THE SOLID VOTE

Democratic candidates for president always start counting their prospective electoral votes with the solid south. Up to the present time they have always been safe in doing so and there is nothing to indicate that there is going to be any immediate change in this situation.

The republican vote is much more flexible. Although republicans have been in power more than have the democrats since the beginning of the civil war, there is only one state that has been consistently republican in national elections throughout that period.

Minnesota is the next most consistent democratic in a national election although it has had a good many democratic governors. Its one defection from the old party was in favor of Roosevelt and the Bull Moose attempt at a third party.

All others of the more or less republican states have at one time or another yielded to the seductions of Cleveland, Bryan or Wilson.

The interest in these facts lies in the evidence furnished that the vote which has kept the republicans in power most of the time since the civil war is distinctly an independent vote.

CAN YOU PROVE YOUR RIGHT TO VOTE?

The right to vote is only one of many important rights which may be difficult to prove without legal evidence. Because a birth record is the best evidence of age, parentage and citizenship, and because of the importance to the individual and to society of careful birth records, the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor in a pamphlet recently issued recommends better birth registration as the first measure in a Children's Year follow-up program.

Only 25 states and the District of Columbia now keep birth records with sufficient accuracy and completeness to admit them to the U. S. birth registration area. These states are California, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin. They represented, in 1919, 18.4 per cent of the population of the country.

Children now being born in the remaining 25 states representing almost half of the population may be seriously embarrassed in not possessing a birth certificate when the time comes to prove that they are old enough to go to school, to leave school, to go to work, to vote, to marry. They may have trouble in proving their title to inherited property in the absence of proof of parentage, and their right to hold public office or receive passports for foreign travel may be questioned if evidence of citizenship furnished by a birth certificate is lacking.

The community also is handicapped in undertaking measures for the protection of life and health if it does not have vital statistics based on satisfactory birth and death records. Important welfare work for mothers and babies is impossible without careful birth registration. The phenomenal growth in "birth waiting" of babies in England during the last five years is attributed to the Notification of Births Act of 1915, which made notification within 3 days compulsory throughout the kingdom.

Vigorous effort for one year, declares the Children's Bureau pamphlet, would place every state in the United States in the birth registration area. In communities in which there is a good law, not sufficiently enforced, a birth registration test is recommended in states where there is no adequate law, campaigns for better legislation should be waged.

ARMENIANS HAIL AMERICAN PEOPLE AS THEIR SAVIORS

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS ARE LIVING TODAY BECAUSE OF U. S. AID.

MAKE BRAVE FIGHT THEMSELVES

New York—Charles V. Vickrey, secretary of Near East Relief, has sent the following cable message from Constantinople to Near East Relief headquarters in this city:

"Have just returned from a thorough inspection of conditions through out Armenia. The premier, president, governors, mayors and all authorities agree that Armenia was saved last year by the flour and other foodstuffs sent from America. Hundreds of thousands are living today who would be dead had it not been for your timely relief. They are devoutly grateful to their saviors in the United States.

The Armenians are thrifty, hard working and industrious. Considering their handicaps they have made remarkable progress towards self-support. Hundreds of thousands of them are still homeless refugees from Turkish Armenia.

"Without modern agricultural implements, with an insufficient number of oxen and with an inadequate supply of seed wheat they have succeeded in raising food supplies that will carry them until mid-winter. Supplementary supplies must be provided until the recently signed peace treaty with Turkey can be made effective and security given under which they can return to the site of their ruined homes and regain full self-support.

"Everyone joins in high praise of the magnificent life saving—if not nation saving—work of Col. Haskell in the flour distribution of last winter. Since the withdrawal of Col. Haskell and the American military mission last August the relief work is being continued under the civilian direction of Capt. Yarrow and Strong.

"The American civilian personnel of Near East Relief operates an orphanage at Alexandropol that contains approximately one thousand Armenian war orphans. Another orphanage at Kars accommodates six thousand orphans. There are three thousand at the Erivan orphanage and smaller orphanages at other centers.

"These orphaned boys and girls constitute the hope of the future for the Near East. American philanthropists through Near East Relief, is rendering an inestimable service in promoting good will and international friendship. A few millions of dollars today in the form of food, education and industrial training for these orphans may save billions of dollars to-morrow in warfare and international strife."

AMERICAN RELIEF REACHES 100,000 IN THE NEAR EAST

The Near East Relief work is divided into three branches, with offices in Beirut, Alexandropol and Constantinople. The latter station, having a personnel of 200, is caring for 32,000 orphans, 12,000 hospital cases and 9,500 in industrial work, giving direct aid in money, clothing and soap to temporary refugees. The committee here visits needy homes, arranges employment and other aid affecting 12,000 people.

In the Caucasus the work now is concentrated at Alexandropol under a personnel of 25 Americans, where 24,000 orphans are fed and lodged. Refugees from Cilicia, on account of banishment in the French zone of Syria, have greatly increased. Col. Coombs, managing director at Constantinople, commends the spirit of sacrifice among American relief workers, which more than offsets the lack of some in experience.

When Americans became beleaguers of the hand-infested interior, Col. Coombs wrote a circular letter informing the personnel that they were free to leave when they felt conditions warranted it, but only the former soldiers quit their posts. Even after Adana was surrounded Miss Doris Nevin, the late composer's daughter, of Pittsburgh and Miss Ruth Henry of Amherst, Mass., voluntarily braved a journey through the Turk lines to take charge of that branch. This was only one of several similar incidents.

After Thorough Trial a Detroit, Mich., Man Endorses Pe-ru-na

The following letter written from Detroit, Michigan is no snap judgment expressed on the merits of Pe-ru-na, the well-known cathartic remedy, but rather a mature, sober opinion formed after a full year's trial. This is the way Mr. Michael Fako of 306 East Palmer Avenue, in the Michigan Metropolitan, writes: "After using PE-RU-NA for about one year I may say I have found it a very good medicine for catarrh. It has helped me a great deal and I am very well satisfied. I have gained in weight, eat and sleep well, my bowels are regular and better color in my face."

"PE-RU-NA has done wonders and to me is worth its weight in gold. I shall continue to use PE-RU-NA as long as I live and recommend to my friends who are troubled with catarrh." Nothing can be more convincing than an endorsement of this nature from an actual user. There are many people in every community whose experience in using Pe-ru-na, has been identical with Mr. Fako's. It is the standby for coughs, colds, catarrh, stomach and bowel disorders and all catarrhal conditions. Put up in both tablet and liquid form. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

Yellow Men Sleep

By
Jeremy Lane

Illustrated by IRWIN MYERS

"I talked with Helen about these men," said March. "They are the sons of captive mothers and fathers. Their blood is pure, or has already been duplicated in the city. That is their crime; they are not bled, or necessary to the land, and so, as outcasts, are sentenced to live here. The women are not all dead, but the children are not always born hearty, but I understand that the babies are taken to the city, to be raised in the houses of the white men. The legs and backs of the male children are spotted, in order to slip any future revolt. The arms are left unburnt, for the sake of labor. It is well thought out."

"The devil's own scheme," said Con. "There are pure Japanese here, pure Persians, the Lord knows how many different elements not desired for the purposes of empire."

"But how did you begin to persuade them?"

"I thought of my grievances and made the most of that. It appears that they have at different times cherished the idea of a revolution, our Arabian friend was one of the candidates for leadership, years ago, he says, but his legs were too bad. They had to give it up. Isn't that the bitterest humor?"

"I won't go anywhere again without learning the language," said Con.

"It was almost as if they had been looking for us," added March.

"I hope we can make good your promises."

"I hope they can protect us."

"Curious game, isn't it?" mused Levington. He was thinking now of Princess Helen.

"Yes, not much elated over our deliverance," objected the elder comrade.

"Walt Whitman said that if a thousand perfect men were to appear before him he wouldn't be surprised."

"Is that the way you feel?" laughed March.

"Yes. That's one book Helen ought to have. Wait until I show her what the matter with Tan Kuan."

"You might do that yourself," said the father, and the conversation lapsed.

Distantly Levington heard the miners rousing the camels for another day's work.

"It must be almost daylight," said March.

"All the same down here, but I suppose they can track us in the daytime."

"Back at my desk, in the days before I found Chee Ming," said March. "I was depressed because I felt I should never reach the heart of the Gobi. It seemed to me the same as heaven to me, and all my dream leaders had failed, toppled down. But even in my younger days, I never imagined a world like this."

"That first big surprise stretched me," said Con, "when we ran into the yellow slaves. The palace made me numb, and the agonizing of your little process finished me—victorious, aces and almanacs. If I had not seen my own father go down under koreeh, I wouldn't believe that either. No, it is, I think nothing on God's Footstool will ever startle me again."

"The white men lay for more than an hour talking in whispers and peering out into the great dim city. No daylight could enter here, only the noiseless dance of orange-tinted shadows upon the further wall. At moments they could hear something of the nearest vicinity of the miners, in another section of the subterranean passages. Then, abruptly, the arch at the left was darkened by large familiar forms, the soldiers."

"There was a score of them, with smoking torches. A long limp bag was dragged upon the floor. The first glance about this part of the cavern was a disappointment to the big-framed warriors; but they had not completed their search. Swords clanked down against the rock floor as they opened one end of the sack. A black serpent slipped out at their feet. From the elevation, Levington saw the snake lift its head and rapidly towards the legging of the nearest, who showed it away with the blunt of his sword. The other soldiers stood still. His small eyes were like jewels. A hither thing was sensed in a ring just back of its head. Holding their torches high, the soldiers waited, and as the snake seemed disinclined to set, one by single caught its black length upon his scabbard and lifted it upon the ledge as high as his head. The serpent might go where they could not see. It remained still in the new position, in rather an angry mood, and then started upward. It did not come toward the white fugitives, but mounted the uneven walls opposite, until the leathern eyes on the hands of the man below was nearly played out. Presently the serpent had strided the cavern and was nearing the American. Silently it progressed, from one shadow to the next. When the thing caught on a rocky point, the warrior moved with whirl his end of it, and the other would go free. The snake paused with trembling rage at the distance. Levington had drawn his turban down over his neck, with face pressed to the rock. But he could not withhold a glance at the approaching snake and his heart beat heavily with terror. He steeled himself to hold perfectly still. The eyes of the reptile were upon him, now within two yards of his head. The long, silent body slid up to him. Under its dusky skin were golden markings, like sunlight on stagnant water. A forked white tongue flicked in and out in a kind of smile.

There was no hesitation. The snake was leaping, gliding onward across the ledge. Con's soul was gripped in horror, but as if the searching party had reckoned on forcing the fugitives to betray themselves by some outcry of alarm, the snake struck and bit.

Levington saw that two white strangers crouching great trouble for the miners could not become very popular. March also understood. He said simply: "Take me before your men."

"Is there anything you can say?" asked Con.

"Only what I told them before," replied March. "We represent a nation that is as good as gone. Tan Kuan as these workers can be, if we can get back there to tell the story. I can make that clear, at least."

"They may not be in a mood to listen."

March smiled sadly. "Moods," he began, but shook his head.

The three men passed into the larger portion of the cavern, where the reddish roof was marked with the flare from the burning gas below. Several women cried out sharply at sight of the white men and like timid animals to their rock-pockets over the walls. Their skirts were brief and ugly. Several very young children darted after their mothers to the safety of dark familiar haunts—two young to have been "spoiled." It was only a period of months before they would be taken into the city, to be sold as slaves in the houses of the soldiers, the circulation of their blood retarded, their very souls distorted. Returning to the mine a year or more after, they would be lost and strange and as if orphaned, among their own kin. Their family life did not receive sanction of the state.

The frightened women left behind them. Jars stood close to the fissure from which came the fire. The contents had been prepared for baking. Con sent down to salt at the open jars. March and the Arab passed together, and Levington waited, feeling himself useless in such a conference. He was more interested in finding an exit.

To the left was the passage leading to the foot of the sitting shaft. He noted a long vine that came down over the loose gravel like a guide-rope. Con climbed into the enlarging daylight toward the top. Sunlight, the old enemy, was beautiful. He was thinking that in Tan Kuan they have either too much sunshine or too little. The pale, haunted faces of the children below troubled him. An intense light was blinding him from above. A flash of desert days came over him oddly, a swift reminiscence of pain and thirst, gone in the space of one upward step, yet leaving a dryness in the throat. Con realized that the only trees within a thousand miles were the half-grown oaks outside the casements of the principality.

"Now the air changed in his nostrils and he caught again the hot, ever-present currents of the sand. When the green blots left his eyes he raised his head above the level of upper earth and stared away. The city, less than a mile distant, was shimmering behind head-waves, at moments dimmed by clouds of dust that rushed across the valley. He squinted to find the path they had taken last night through the fog, with the sleepers rising to find them. A dromedary with baskets and a driver was coming out at the big gate. Out to the south, was motionless horseman, the sun flashing from his silver and steel. He seemed to be guarding the horizon. He was one of the scores who sought a trace of the fugitives. But nearer, along the road, was a third rider, canteering between the green squares. Con's heart beat violently. He recognized the gray cloak of his princeps.

She rode under the full blaze of high morning sun. The pony moved briskly. The watcher was puzzled to see why she came out in the great heat, leaving the shelter of the palace tents. She was alone, save for the far figure of the sentinel. She was mounted perfectly, and this was comforting to Con, who longed for more signs of her western self. She reached the cut in the hill, the head of the ravine, and there drew rein. Tightly he recalled that this was the point of their first meeting, where her uplifted right arm had saved him, while with the left she concealed her face.

He swore to himself that he was presumptuous in imagining she had ridden there for any reason connected with himself, unless she was seeking to discover the white disturbers of the empire and give them over to the vizir. Con argued with himself that she had gone to the ravine before she knew he existed, that probably she had rode there each day for a constitutional, since there was nowhere else to go. Yet his emotions had their final say.

Lifting himself out at the mouth of the shaft, he glanced up and around. The sun was scorching. If he attempted to move along the face of the hill he could draw the eyes of the sentinel and the end would come quickly. Con's turban and blouse were white and he felt that he must be glowing like a gem on the dun hillside. Greater than this difficulty was the fear that Helen would ride on or turn back before he could reach her. Nothing short of a word with her would suffice, although he could not recall that he had anything to say.

Presently the Sergeant had circled the cavern and was nearing the Americans.

sign of fear, they had failed. Neither American had so much as winked while the sinuous thing writhed past without striking.

The hunters passed on to the next cavern.

CHAPTER XI.

"You Are Making Me Unhappy."

Con heard his friend breathing once more, exhaling pent air. They were some time before moving out of the tight place.

"A merry little worm, wasn't he?" whispered Con.

"Are you chilled?" asked March, whimsically.

"You are chattering too," retorted the young man.

"I wonder if they left any of those behind, for our benefit?"

"I saw only the one, so I know it was real," said Levington. "Gobi police dog. I'll never forget the glance he gave me—yellow diamond eyes. And, do you know—?"

"What?"

"He had a smell," whispered Levington.

March laughed quietly and said he did not doubt that.

"There was a house in Dowagiac," continued Levington, "a very old house. The walls were full of murder, and worse. A poor lady lived there, with a number of miseries, such as name and occasion. Her apron was always torn. She didn't do the murder. It did her. I was small then. I remember the broken plaster that came down upon the beds, which were gray and rotten, jumpy—ribes under the stove and under the table—the cats whose fur was stiff with garbage, and the grasshoppers that hung on the parlor curtains. Well, in that house, there drifted this same cold, poisonous smell."

Andrew March was very grave now. "I do not doubt that, either," he said.

Levington turned his way further out of the crevice, to a position better for breathing, although still in the shadow. He rolled over upon his back, and drew up his knees, with a deep sigh.

"That house would be proud of me if they knew, and if I was able to bring back a straight story of this country, the source of the world's koreeh."

"Yes, that house, and many others. I am glad you feel as you do."

"If suppose our government would ask the Chinese government to cooperate in reaching and controlling Tan Kuan."

"And the Russian," added March. "They are badly hit."

"Do you think it is possible?" asked Con.

After a silence, the elder comrade said slowly: "To be frank, I have had faith and lost it, and regained and lost it so many times that I cannot say it is my duty to try, but I can't say any more than that."

Levington felt the curious depression again in his friend, an alarming warning that the Arab had appeared behind them, entering.

MUCK LANDS YIELD BIG CROP

EDWIN ERICKSON HAS UNUSUAL SUCCESS WITH POTATOES ON NEW LAND

(From Bark River News)

Edwin Erickson whose efforts to redevelop a piece of muck land was given notice in an early issue of the News is making extraordinary progress. It will be remembered that the treatment of the land consisted of a dressing of manure, a heavy application of lime and an application of phosphate. The potato crop on the field thus treated will probably hold the record for this section this year. The potatoes are sound, unusually large, bright and free from scab. They resemble greatly the famous Idaho potatoes, grown under irrigation. In size, quality, and general appearance. Moreover, Mr. Erickson by a careful selection of seed has secured a crop of uniform conformity to type.

A part of the field was plan 1 to beans with excellent results despite the looseness of the ground and the otherwise apparently unfavorable conditions for this crop. When the present owner took over this farm a few years ago it was impossible to drive a horse through the same field. The ultimate value of the land cannot of course be measured by the returns of one year but it looks as though Mr. Erickson is experimenting and blazing the way to the successful reclamation of the large areas of muck lands in this territory.

UPPER PENINSULA NEWS

Ironwood—After but short deliberation, the Ironwood board of education unanimously selected Dr. Fay R. Rice of Las Cruces, N. M., as superintendent of schools to succeed E. T. Dufeld, whose resignation became effective Sept. 1. A telegram was dispatched to Mr. Rice to inform him of the board's choice. Mr. Rice will be hired at a salary of $4,000 and will give a contract for one year.

So—Arrangements have been practically completed for the organization in the Soo of a new lumber operation which will within the next sixty days, erect a modern handling factory and wood working plant on property adjacent to the newly erected Jones plant on the Seymour road, near the intersection of Eastwater avenue. The negotiations which have resulted successfully were put through by the Industrial Affairs committee of the Civic and Commercial club with A. L. Ferguson and A. W. Dawson of the committee, taking a leading part. Within a few days actual work on the construction of the main building will begin and as soon as a lumber plant of the I. R. Duff Co. company of Park Lake, near Cadillac, Mich., will be dismantled, and its machinery will be brought to the Soo. The plant will operate at the start with from thirty to fifty men, and will employ 100 within a year. Its output will be between $100,000 and $200,000 worth of handles of all kinds annually. There is great demand for this product and those lacking the shipping facilities are already secured of an instant market for everything they can possibly produce. The main building will have dimensions of 100 by 50 feet, as compared to 100 by 30 feet at the Jones plant. The building will be similar to the one in the Soo. Similar plans adjusted to one another because the muck in both sections of the city are of a wood working establishment, the ultimate possibilities of which are very great, indeed. The main plant will be accompanied by a master controlling plant, packing rooms, etc.

A woman can appear and get sympathy for having a secret sorrow, but a man who appears that way is called a bore.

Escanaba people will well remember the day the message of the young man's death was received in this city. From then many months ago until today news of the transfer of the body has been awaited.

Careless Hunting Charges By Local Sportsmen Danger

Friday morning registration will be continued the same place and enrollment continued. Exhibits will then be open for inspection. At 11 o'clock the platform meeting will be held at which time many prominent speakers will be present.

Careless hunting has resulted in six persons being injured since the season opened according to a prominent sportsman.

It is alleged that many amateur hunters are entering the woods with firearms which are prohibited and in so doing endangering the lives of other hunters who make their annual visits in the woods.

Yesterday two local men were painfully injured by fine shot because some hunter did not take precaution before they discharge their guns.

A note is on foot to have the license of such men and boys revoked when it is found they are not able to conduct themselves in a safe manner while in the woods.

Free-For-All In Restaurant Ends In 90 Day Jail

Isaac Bodel was sentenced to spend ninety days in the county jail after being adjudged guilty in Justice Glasgow's court Saturday morning where he was charged with assaulting Miss Kosciuszko late last night.

According to the story of different witnesses this morning the two men became mixed up in an argument over a game of cards Friday night and Bodel struck the other man's face and closing one eye.

The police officers were called and took three of the men to the station where they were arraigned Saturday morning.

Arguments and cross arguments featured the hearing Saturday morning.

Stories none of which were the same were told by each witness after which the court pronounced the defendant guilty and declared he was "an undesirable citizen and was not wanted in Escanaba."

He will leave after serving his sentence.

The fight brought light to the police department that moonshine was being sold in the restaurant. The evidence has been turned over to Prosecutor Strom who will order an immediate investigation.

MISSISSIPPI FALLS BACK

SECOND STATE TO SHOW DECREASE IN POPULATION IN 1920 CENSUS

Washington, Oct. 2.—Mississippi is the second state to show a decrease in population in the 1920 census. Its population of 1,759,182, announced today by the census bureau, is 7,932 or 0.4 per cent less than that of ten years ago. Vermont was the first state to show a decrease, its 1920 population being 1 per cent less than that of ten years ago.

The 1920 populations of Oklahoma, Wisconsin and South Dakota also were announced today and each state showed a substantial increase. Oklahoma had the greatest increase, its population of 2,027,564 being 176,409, or 22.4 per cent, greater than that in 1910. This, however, was the smallest numerical and relative increase shown by Oklahoma since its organization was a territory in 1890.

Wisconsin increases 297,979. Wisconsin's population is 2,631,539, an increase of 297,979 or 12.8 per cent as compared with that of 1910. The state retains its present rank as thirteenth most populous state. Its relative increase for the last ten years was the same as that during the previous decade.

South Dakota, with a population of 655,838, an increase of 51,951, or 8.9 per cent, falls into thirty-seventh place, having been passed by North Dakota. The state showed both its lowest numerical and relative increase since its admission as a state in 1889.

Oklahoma passed Mississippi in the standing of the state, the latter dropping several places as a result of the decrease in its population.

SLENDER LINES

A WOMAN who lived on a farm, who claims that her diet is necessary limited to farm products, wrote me recently, asking how she might reduce. The things which I particularly stated were to be avoided, were things she said formed the chief dishes on the table. Pork, potatoes, wheat bread, butter, milk, eggs—all fattening, but all raised on the farm.

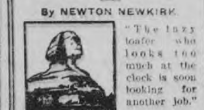

The stout girl should eat fish and oysters and such non-fattening foods.

a certain self-sacrifice on her part, for the fatter the body the greater the appetite. But no fat woman will starve, no matter how little she eats, for the body immediately starts feeding itself from its own accumulated flesh, and reduces itself while keeping up the proper supply of nourishment.
