BOOSTER CROWD TO BACK TEAM

500 LIME RUNNING SPECIAL COACHES TO MANISTIQUE NEXT SATURDAY

WANTED—Three Hundred Men, women, girls and boys, to have one of their lives. Boosters of the high school football team which plays Manistique at Manistique next Saturday, are planning a head hunting party.

Arrangements have been made for running a special coaches on the Soo line train leaving here at 7:30 Saturday morning and returning, the train will leave Manistique at 4:55 in the afternoon arriving at 6:30. A round trip fare of $2.86 has been made for the occasion and boosters confidently look for 300 or more local Gladstone fans to accompany the team.

Friendly Rivalry Rivalry between this city and Manistique has been keen, strong but friendly. It is the desire of those behind the movement to show Manistique that Gladstone has the solid support of her football-loving citizens and that the boosters appreciate the fact that a good team can be enjoyed while opposing teams are contending for the glory.

LATE PAPER TODAY BECAUSE PRESS BREAKS Starting off with an apology is not exactly the newspaper man's ideal, but the indulgence of Boston readers must be begged on this occasion because of the lateness of the paper today.

ABOUT THE WEATHER Data is furnished by the local office of the Weather Bureau at Escanaba. Generally fair tonight and Friday; Temperature for the past half week.

CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP

With this issue of The Reporter, a change of management takes place. W. R. Jaeger, who has guided the destinies of this publication with success for a number of years, retires from the business, which has been taken over by H. F. Ullah and Frank Kraus, both of Escanaba.

The public is asked to suspend judgment until the new men have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the prevailing office conditions. An outline of the aims, purposes and policies of the new firm will appear next week. Briefly stated, they are to attempt to accurately reflect the true Gladstone spirit in a cheerful, helpful, optimistic manner and to "shoot square" with everyone in the community.

SAD DEATH OF CHILD SWALLOWS MRS. WM. McDONALD DEADLY POISON

Another Gun Man SRETCHES THE ROPE Chicago, Oct. 17.—Frank Zagar, convicted of killing two men in a holdup was executed in the county jail at 8:17 o'clock this morning.

TRAGIC DEATH AND ACCIDENTS AT BIG MEMORIAL MILL

TION FLY WHEEL OF WELLS LUMBER COMPANY GOES THROUGH THE ROOF

The bursting of an eighteen foot fly-wheel of the new mill and factory generator which furnishes current for the electrically driven machinery of the J. W. Wells sawmill and hardwood floor factory, at 715 "Clock" Tuesday morning, completely wrecked the brick engine room and a spoke of the wheel weighed more than a ton went thru the roof of the sawmill, about 150 feet away, and instantly killing Edward Wilson, 2400 Broadway.

Miraculous Escape The crash came so sudden that the first time the men at the mill and factory knew what happened was when great pieces of the broken wheel came crashing thru the roof and landed around them. The fact that more were not killed is nothing short of miraculous. Only two sustained personal injuries and they are not regarded as serious.

Flying Debris When the wheel broke, people in the street near the mill were attracted by a great crash, and there was a scurry to get under cover. Pieces of broken cast-iron and brick filled the air and came falling to the ground all over the yards.

Supper Big Success The Harvest Supper held in the Methodist church parlor last night was an immense success. The fare was delicious and the large crowd surely appreciative. The money box yielded $152 and the ladies realized $21 of that total.

Entertainers Aid Mrs. Fred Anderson was hostess this afternoon to the Ladies Aid of the Swedish Lutheran church. A very lovely lunch was served after the usual business of the meeting. There were many women present from the Aid and outside.

An Accomplished Visitor Miss and Mrs. J. P. Foy, 245 1/2 Benjamin street, are entertaining an organization of more than ordinary ability in the person of Miss Winifred Hull, of Evanston, Ill. who thrilled a large audience in St. Paul's church in Marquette, last week by her marvelous work of the recital given at that time.

State Asylum Needs More Help; Appeals to Local Officials Judge of Probate Yelland received a letter from the officials of the state hospital at Newberry yesterday in which that institution is making an appeal for more help both female and male in the hospital.

No Relief in Sight The short skirt decreased by fashion has at least one redeeming feature. Women won't have to elevate them when a poor innocent mouse comes gamboling round.

A Word of Farewell

In relinquishing the ownership of The Reporter, the writer does so with a feeling of both pleasure and regret. After a residence in Gladstone of almost ten years it is a little hard to break away from the familiar surroundings. We believe however that every man should make the most of his opportunities and as it has always been the desire of the writer to enter the daily newspaper field in a larger city, the present move makes possible this desire.

We have only kind feelings toward the people of Gladstone—even our few enemies—and it is with deep regret that we leave. After taking it easy for awhile and possibly spending the winter in the south, we will enter the daily newspaper business in Wisconsin or adjoining states, should a desirable opening present itself.

Large Crowd Gathered The news of the disaster soon spread to all parts of the city and hundreds of people were soon on the scene viewing the wreck. Women were seen running around the yards of the plant in search of their husbands and the excitement was at a fever heat for some time after the accident, until it became generally known that only one was killed, and two slightly injured.

Edward Wilson, the unfortunate man who lost his life, was 28 years of age and is survived by a wife and one child, Edward Lawrence, age 3 years. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been made.

Facts About Lower Prices

You want to know the truth about how the market is going and we want you to have it. Shoes have dropped about 15% in men's women's and children lines. Not so much because hides have been selling so low that there is hardly any market for them, but because the manufacturers want to keep their employees working until the low priced hides are tanned. Most of them are operating at a loss right now.

The same thing is true with the woolen market. If the wool growers were forced to sell at present prices there would be many bankrupt farmers and they must hold for better prices. All winter goods have been made up from high priced wool. The manufacturers have reduced their prices only about 15%.

Cotton goods in all lines have dropped from 15% to 33 1-3%. Many manufacturers are closed rather than operate their plants at a loss. But when the low priced cotton comes in they will be able to resume operations.

Underwear is scarce and still high in price. For the reason that none of the mills made up anymore goods than the merchants had ordered in Advance. All this seems to forecast a slow drop this fall but a low priced market for spring.

Yellow Men Sleep

Like the push of a subterranean river their voices came up a choking rumble. Inside they stirred up out of the slat. In the waning daylight the light fell back, and Levington had no choice but to get up. He got a boy from the hall a flash of power. They were coming behind him, score upon score, the halfpainted earth giving up her strongest.

Their faces were hunched and pinched, grimy. Each man had a weapon. They were a terrifying rabble. Strong arms curved each cable that had heretofore curled the memorial clay for the souls of Korea. There were also daggers and pointed horns and a number of dull swords.

From the houses beneath the city wall the women and old men ran to the gates and swung them shut; but they could not hold back the advancing workers. There was strength in the arms that had toiled so long underground; they have power in the twisted bodies. It was a mad holiday of revolt. The big gates were pressed in.

Wives and maidens of the monsoon ran across the lawn. Kalka, Turkish, and Arabian; delicate feet were nimble beyond the fountain and the feminine cries were forbidden music to the invaders. But there was first

The Migue Hurried On, Resisting as Lava

A man's work to be done. The soldiers hurried on, resisting as lava. Black faces, and gray and brown, whined and crunched upon the rug. It was early, and the palace was half asleep. In the throne room, filled now with golden light, a woman fled, trembling. Beyond were the moanful apartments. This soft and ancient and bedded among his feathers and silks and fans, like a precious bird. His black eyes darted, his slaves went low, but he gave small heed to the soft that profaned his chamber. He was dreaming, perhaps of dainty white uncles and the tinkle of wind-bells. The soldiers of his companions argued with fat and drums. How the traces, teeth of an earthquake came in a final crash.

Here, on the walls, hanging amid the most prized possessions of the king, in silken beams of Italy, and eveled knives of Hindu hid principles were the weapons recently taken from Andrew March, also the machine gun. It had been bought for better luck. He repossessed himself.

Down a corridor that thudded with the lust of leached men, Levington went to Helen's door, and made the nearest of his followers remain outside. They clomped and contented themselves with exploring passages and winding stairs, and galls and secret rooms from which their lords and ladies once and constant were routed. Levington entered, and he closed the door behind him, and narrowly missed the slash of a sword in the hands of the familiar Chinese servant. He took the machine from Fu, and commanded it to be ready. "Where is my father?" asked the prince.

"He is with another division of the men. We will go to him directly. You led your story very well."

"Youatory is correct. I will be as without being. I spoke rapidly the day's pointing. They saw the use they were made. It was sufficient, they were content."

She had ness of the original in her step. assurance of an American girl. Levington bowed and bowed. He managed to say, "Are you ready to see on a long journey?"

"Does my father wish me to go?"

"Yes," he lied.

There was nothing of human about her now, unless in the faint shadows below her eyes. Neither American nor Asia unified could have produced her sweetness, this frank perfection. She heard the rush of madmen through her palace—all the dead, sanguinary confusion above and around—yet did not tremble. It did not occur to her to be afraid. She thought best to obey. Her eyes were fixed to other issues. The wise writings of two continents had tempered her mind. The those who knew the fruits of one land or one age only, Helen was wide awake some of life in a sense pattern, and though her innocence was young and softly cloaked, it shone in her eyes, and was mysteriously conveyed to him.

She smiled a little, "I do not see what is to come."

"Will you give the order to prepare many chambers immediately for a long march."

"Has not my father done so?"

"I agreed to arrange for it. He is occupied at present. Can closed again. He went to the door and signaled to the nearest rioter, who stopped his play of forming a rounded column, and came shuffling across the threshold of the palace. He stated the need to the city, who spoke to the prince. He said in his own language that the prince, when a surprise had been expected, should have repeated the order to the man from the street. He stood, almost himself, having expected a death-blow instead of oral instructions and crawled out of the door.

"There are mountains to the north," said the prince to Levington.

"And forests," he added. "Do you think there is a better direction for us? We must not tarry."

"No. We go to the north."

Fu Ah then received further personal wishes from his mistress. To Levington she explained:

"I am sending him up the stairway for things I shall require. Kindly go with him and see that he is not struck dead by your butchers."

Levington bowed again, solemnly, and his cheeks burned. Her bitterness was iron. Had he not upset the world?

Resorting to Fu Ah down the corridor. Con went up with him to see what gross mischief was being worked in the higher floors. The top of the stairs was chugged by two bodies, miners who had failed to quell two stairways of warriors, who also lay quiet now a little way down the hall. The tide of dwarfs had passed on.

While Fu Ah delved in treasure of silk and leather and silver, Levington found an outer window. Far along the road beyond the city gates he noted two slaves mounted on camels. The boys were leaning at their feet, most, southward, their mission to bear word of alarm to the distant company of riders. Con examined the carbine in his hands. Resting the barrel upon the latch of the open window, he aimed very carefully, and pressed the long trigger. He repeated this process four times at the three ready to go downstairs with the old servant.

"When we leave," he said to Helen, overcoming a reluctance to speak, "these little boys from the mine will close the gates after us. You warriors, by returning will be unable to force an entrance until you have gained a greater distance to the north."

"Do not say 'you warriors'!" She hesitated, then added: "Do not heed my words, they are empty. I would not turn back."

"He came out to him.

"A princess may speak as she chooses," said Levington.

"Not to her!"

The city was conquered, overrun. The new caravan was being prepared for immediate departure. Con, feeling that he was not needed elsewhere, had a strong reason for remaining where he was, against the possibility that some bold pillaging party might come and find her alone.

He endeavored to assist in the hurried gathering together of lovely garments, but he was useless. Also, the delicate spies that arose from certain of the houses were like a ship's sails in a storm.

The door opened. The silent figure of Chee Ming stood before them. He robe torn, and marks of violence about his head, steady, gray-faced, tense with anger.

Helen passed behind the banister chair. She took a sudden renewal of the ages of many years. Con sensed the situation, and waited. The visit advanced upon the rug.

"I go," she said in English. Chee Ming replied shortly in foreign speech. "I go at once," she repeated, and her persistence with the English succeeded in clearing the air. It was his declaration of choice. Chee Ming was speaking to her, a great respect spread over his yellow face. His eyes were upturned to her. His dream comes was crumbling. The prince appeared not to hear him. She said abruptly: "I am speaking to you. I shall do the work of the Holy Spirit."

These two volumes were placed on top of the machine. He asked: "How Ming had turned to the white man, Levington, said, "I am still free your prisoners?"

Helen added: "Mother once tried to

TRAM STRIKES AUTO; DAGGETT MAN IS KILLED

Memoriam Ernest Melchior, 26 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Melchior of Wallace, and operator of the Cichlor creamery at Daggett, was instantly killed about 10:30 p.m. last night, when the car in which he was said to be driving alone, was struck by the south bound passenger train at Daggett.

Train Going East

The train does not stop at Daggett and it is said to have been going at a fast rate of speed when it hit the Melchior car. Ernest Melchior, for some distance Melchior's skill was badly crushed and his body badly injured.

The automobile was smashed beyond repair. It could not be learned today whether there had been any one in the car besides Melchior, for he was picked up by the train crew and brought to Memorial, where the body was taken to the Square People's undertaking parlors.

Since Saturday

The car had evidently been in the center of track just to the south of the Daggett depot when the train struck it.

Railroad employees think the automobile or a part of it must have rolled under a part of the train, as one of the baggage cars, which was set off at Memorial had steps on one end broken off and on the other end completely off and a journal smashed. This they say could not have happened unless coming in contact with something and with great force.

THAT DULL ACHING

DON'T worry and complain about a bad back and aching knees. For weak kidneys, lame and aching back, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your druggist. Read this statement:

"Mrs. Ernest Gilbert, 515 N. Tenth street, Gladstone, says: 'I once used Doan's Kidney Pills and I am only too glad to tell what they did for me. I suffered with my back but my kidneys after I did my washing or sweeping. When I would bend over I could hardly straighten up. My kidneys felt miserable as my back was so lame and stiff and I could hardly get up. I had a dull, steady ache just over my kidneys that had me feeling wretched. It was tired at the time and felt very bad. I was nervous and irritable. Black spots before my eyes bothered me. I was often very dizzy and my kidneys were irregular in action. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in my family with good results so I decided to try them. I bought a few boxes and they completely cured me. There are no pills like Doan's'."

October Weather Is Helpful to Shortage Of Hard Coal Again

October whether is one of the best elements in keeping down the coal shortage, according to a local coal dealer this morning when he said:

"It sure is fortunate that this weather has come this year. Although there is quite a supply of soft coal in the local yards, the shortage of anthracite (hard) coal is acute and must be reckoned with."

Other cities in the peninsula report a similar shortage of hard coal, going to show that the guarantee made by the government some months ago to have a specified amount delivered to make ports has not been carried out.

Many people who have stoves and furnaces in Gladstone which use anthracite are beginning to wonder from where their winter supply will come.

Many are getting new heating devices rather than pay the high price of hard coal, while some are resorting to the use of wood and oil.

The months of October so far this year has been more like summer than it has fall. Many stoves and furnaces which heretofore were burning at this time of the year still stand idle, no signs of fire having been started in them.

WHAT MENOMINEE PAPER SAYS ABOUT GAME

The following account of the American Legion football game last Monday in last number in which the locals were defeated 14-6, appeared in the Menominee Herald:

Sutliff started it off with a long plunge through center. Edmermann was in line to block the play, but Sutliff evaded him and ran for the end. He was stopped by the first touchdown and John Kellner, Menominee's find as a kicker placed the ball between the crossbars. The first score was made throughout the game. It was easy work after the first rally.

Telch got started on one of his end runs and surprised the Menominee line to which the Gladstone 30 yard line. A pass to Jaeger brought in the second touchdown. Kellner again kicked goal. It was only a short time before the Menominee line intercepted a pass and ran 30 yards for the third touchdown within 5 minutes. Kellner missed the kick.

Paul Christensen grabbed one of his favorite passes intended for Gladstone. He threw it to the end, but it was intercepted by the Menominee line. The Menominee line intercepted a pass and ran 30 yards for the third touchdown within 5 minutes. Kellner missed the kick.

It was a really marvellous game. The Menominee line was helpless as the Menominee men began working into them, all the while progressing through Gladstone territory by weak cuts. At receiving passes Paul Christensen showed up to form as he did in the Iron River game.

Edmermann and Kellner both did good work, both offensive and defensive, although they claimed that the job was too easy. Edmermann was not affected by the heat, and according to custom allowed the doors at the stadium when Gladstone attempted to get through.

Paul Christensen was making true his reputation as a star player. He was unable to get out of the stadium, but did not get into any more trouble than he had in the last of the field for a touch down. The only other touchdowns were scored by the end runs. Smiley Telch demonstrated that he was a star player and a football runner of great ability.

Line Center Irving of Bonny Swanson and Jack Boyle both worked at tackle, with Joe Kellner filling in at Stump's place in the first quarter. Coach Boyle was giving all his men a tryout. Paul Christensen twined his back in the first few minutes of play, but was only out a couple of minutes. The Menominee line with men like Neiman, Christy Edmermann, Kellner, Jaeger, Swanson, Boyle and Stump, has few equals if any in the upper peninsula.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. This alone is enough to convince one that it is a medicine of more than ordinary merit. Give it a trial and you will find that it is the best.

FOUR BOOZE VENDERS FINED TOTAL $1,408.72

Marquette—Marquette's booze cases, the result of the raid made some time ago by District Attorney Murphy, assisted by special detectives, culminated this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock before the court. Charles William, E. O'Connell, when the four defendants, The LaDuke, Axel Johnson, Edward Etzel and Victor Johnson plead guilty to the charge of selling intoxicating liquors and were fined $352.18 apiece in all for the four defendants, to $1,087.20.

The four defendants were scheduled to trial this afternoon and when court convened they plead guilty to the charge and the above fines assessed. It caused considerable surprise in the court room, when the defendants pleaded guilty as those who had gathered were expecting to hear a long drawn out fight in court.

When prices come down to earth again it is to be hoped Cupid comes with them. Wedding bells are becoming rusty from too much idleness, and the county clerk and the preachers need the fees.

Yes, little William, when you reach the point where you know it all, you will still have much to learn from the fool.

A kind word costs nothing. But perhaps the absence of a profiteering value is the reason why some people are so sparing in their use in these days of skyrocketing.

Editors as a rule have very little to say of themselves. But that is probably because their critics have left nothing unsaid.

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

A superb, dramatic Paramount-Artcraft feature, "The Miracle Man," which will be on view at the Lyric Theatre next Saturday. Sunday and Monday is declared to be one of the really great screen dramas of recent years. It was written by Frank L. Packard and produced as a stage play by George M. Cohan and packed the Broadway theatre in the season of 1916-17, where it played for many months. The screen version is said to be even more absorbing and thrilling in its development of the striking story, which shows the marvelous transformation under the beneficent influence of an ennobling environment of four of the most notorious crooks of New York's underworld.

Hearing of the healing powers of this old man of the hills, Tom Burke and his band determine to capitalize them to enrich themselves. Little did they reckon that in their new field of operations they were destined to undergo a magical transformation, and this forms the basis of one of the most thrilling stories ever screened.

A cast of unusual strength portrays the exacting roles in the picture. Tom Medford, well known as one of the foremost leading men on the screen, has the chief part. Others are Elinor Fair, Betty Compson, Lon Chaney, J. M. Dumont, W. Lawson, Bill F. Turner, Lucille Hutton and Joseph J. Dowling.

One of the wittiest, most delightful and charming of pictures will be seen at the Gladstone theatre Saturday and Sunday when "The Speeder," a Metro feature starring Bert Lytell, was shown.

This play was adapted from the story of the same name which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and which was written by Frederick Olin Bartlett, one of the most popular of short story writers.
The plot is that of a debonair and lovable young man who, not unnaturally, desires the good things of life. His purse, however, is slender, while his mind, on the contrary, possesses a million but also the disposition of a miser and no capacity for enjoyment. The thought comes to Dick (played by Bert Lytell) that the old man he met getting his need of happiness out of life because he does not know how, and decides to teach him the art of enjoyment.

"You can't take your money with you when you die," he tells his uncle, "so let me show you how to enjoy it here." After some persuasion the old man agrees to this and Dick becomes the spender of his uncle's wealth, bringing him happiness and renewed youth. Love also finds its way into the younger man's life and a pretty romance results when Dick meets the daughter of an old friend and benefactor. The many adventures which befall both old and young men on their quest for happiness is most certainly told while Bert Lytell, in the role of Dick Bisbee, wins both the love and admiration of those who saw him for his natural and manly portrayal of the part, while his boyishness was most infectious. Mary Anderson, in the role of Helen, was delightful, while Thomas Jefferson, in the part of the uncle, old "Tightwad" Bisbee, was splendid. Clarence Burton plays the part of the bully and dishonest office manager and William Y. Mong is seen as Helen's father, known to his associates as "old faithful."
