

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS
By Mrs. Oscar Brandy of Detroit

DEAR MRS. BRANDY:
I have been reading your column and have decided that you're the one I want to confide my problem to. I have been keeping company with a girl for the past eight months, and am very much in love with her. When I first started calling on her each time I brought some small gift. However, I cannot afford to do this each time I call, and now she sort of expects me to. This I know from my own observations, and have been told so by others. Do you think she is justified in expecting this? If not, would you discontinue her company? I cannot think of this because I like her very much. Please tell me what you think I should do.
IN DOUBT,
I think your young friend is a very inconsiderate young person, don't you? Of course you are not expected to come with a gift at each call. If she makes her dissatisfaction and desires known to you, I would politely tell her my opinion in the matter. If you do not necessarily have to give it up, I think if you explain it to her, she will see where she is at fault, and come to your way of thinking in the matter.

DEAR MRS. BRANDY:
Do you believe that a man can love two women at the same time. I am that has caused me many days of anxiety and restlessness. These girls are wonderful and both dear to me. I am in a position to marry, and could give a wife a wonderful home and all the things that she would care for but the question is which one shall I marry? You are a woman and can advise me which step you think right to take. I will describe these girls and then you will see that I am sure in a frightful predicament. One is a girl many years junior and a girl that would make an ideal wife. She is fond of children and loves a home and all that it means. She is a great housekeeper, wonderful companion, when with her I forget that the other girl exists, but am reminded very often through letters. I thought that the other girl would be my wife but since we meet I see this new girl, know that I cannot marry her and for the affair I have had with this companion, I have succeeded to forget her but have been unsuccessful in this attempt. I am with her as much as possible and don't seem to care about others, and her company at all ask. Now that I have described the girl I thought I would marry, until fate threw this other girl in my way. This girl is my own age, and has worked in offices many years, and would make a good wife also. She is very set in her ways. She isn't aware of the fact that I love another and expects that we will marry soon. How can I tell her? As I have said she is so much older than the first girl, she will feel badly when she hears that I love another. I want your honest opinion Mrs. Brandy, can a man love two or is the feeling I have for the older girl one of the deep regard and respect or what do you think? Let me know which you think would make the best wife I will do as you say. I know that you will be able to advise me as I have read your column and think it wonderful. Waiting to hear what you think.

Sincerely George H.

GEORGE H. TIME alone can answer your problem for you. Do not act hastily in the matter of your lifetime, but wait, and you will be able to choose for yourself the one you love. If the situation remains the same as you say, you will be compelled to hurt the feelings of one of the girls, about waiting. I think that perhaps one of the girls will change her attitude toward you. I also will say that I think you at fault for encouraging the attention of the other marry the other. Are you sure you are sincere in your love in this latter girl when you had already promised to the first. The only thing for you to do, is to wait, and let time decide. As you say, you have only known this younger girl for a short time, and after becoming better acquainted, your love may return for the first.

DEAR MRS. BRANDY:
I am a girl of 21 and last summer I kept company with a young man 7 years my senior. I let him and on my return I began going out with another I year my junior. Although I don't care for him as much as I do the first, recently I met the first young man and all my former emotions returned and he still seems to care for me although he knows I go out with another. What can I do to win back his love?

BLUE EYES
You're the problem of many is it not? I think if the first young man really cares for you as you say you think he does, he would seek your company as he formerly did. However, he may be holding back, because he knows you are going out with another. If you really are desirous of "winning back his love" you might arrange a house party or some similar gathering, and extend an invitation to him.

SHATTERED IN BATTLE
MICHIGAN VETERAN IS
WINNING WAY TO PULPIT

Next May a man with a wooden leg and a shattered arm will enter the pulpit of a Presbyterian church whose members are in America. That day will mark the return of Ernest Vanden Bosch to active service for God and Country. To the American Legion and the United States Veterans' Bureau it will be positive proof of the wisdom and justice of leaving nothing undone for the country's disabled veterans.

Vanden Bosch, one of the men Michigan beat when the country called for defenders in 1917. He went with F company of the old 32nd regiment of the Michigan National Guard, which became the 12th Infantry.

The Michigan boys helped turn back the Kaiser in the Second Battle of the Marne. A lot of them paid their young lives to do it. A lot more paid with shattered legs and arms, and long months in hospitals. Many who didn't make heavy payment on the spot are still paying in bitter installments of suffering and privation which their wives and children must help bear.

Caught in Blast of Shell
Vanden Bosch was caught in the blast of a H. E. shell. When he came out of an army hospital a year later his left leg and left elbow were gone. Undismayed by his condition, the veteran was determined to become a minister. The government gave the necessary help. His was a clear case. He went through Hope College at Holland, Mich., and now is studying at Princeton Theological Seminary in Princeton. After six years of a struggle against his physical handicaps, he is nearing his goal and will be ordained into the ministry of the Presbyterian church next May.

The government has taken good care of Vanden Bosch. But many of the men, who, like himself, paid for America's security along the Marne that August day seven years ago, have not had the ready help that came to him from a grateful nation. Vanden Bosch pointed this out in moving for The American Legion's endorsement for a $5,000,000 endowment fund to assure these men help of some form, and to care for the orphans of those now past help.

Knows of Other Fortunes
"While it was not necessary for me to call upon the Legion for help, he states, "I know that others have not been so fortunate. I am fully in sympathy with this drive for funds."

Income from the Legion fund will be used to bring relief to disabled veterans who have just as valid but not as clear-cut a claim for help as Vanden Bosch. In the past the Legion has assisted thousands of such men prove their claims to the government and has given independent aid to others whom the government could not reach. The endowment fund will assure the continuance of this work and will enable the Legion to provide good homes for the children of the men for whom help comes too late.

hats, lost on August 7, while driving in an automobile on M-12 near Rapid River.

In a communication from this party, she states that the man's hat was "blue felt, the child's, brick red silk taffeta, poke bonnet style, and the ladies, light blue silk taffeta, with pink and gold cloth on the rim, which was rolled, and broad across the front." Pictures were inclosed to aid in their identity. The hats were supposed to have been picked up by some one in a truck heading towards Marquette.

25 Years of Firestone Service to Highway Transportation

25 years of anticipating the requirements of motorists—making manufacturing processes more certain—producing a higher standard of quality—25 years of unswerving adherence to the Firestone pledge, "Most Miles per Dollar"—summarizes Firestone's record of service to car owners.

Firestone factories have grown from a small building approximately 75 x 150 feet to mammoth plants having floor area of over 60 acres—from a capital of $50,000 to over $50,000,000—from an annual sales volume of $100,000 to over $100,000,000—all in the short period of 25 years.

This Firestone record could only have been made through furnishing the public with outstanding values and, consequently, your assurance of quality and lowest prices.

If you would like to know more of this wonderful record, ask your Firestone dealer to send you an illustrated folder.

With today's high cost of crude rubber and other raw materials, Firestone's opportunity to serve the public was never better, due to its great volume and special advantages in buying, manufacturing and distribution.

"FOR THOSE WHO GAVE THE MOST"

The American Legion Endowment Fund that the local Legion officials in charge of Commander Thomas T. Tuntant are this week soliciting every red-blooded American to subscribe for...

from permanent confinement in lunatic asylums by this direct, personal service of the Legion. There is no criticism of our government in this particular example but the government machinery must remain mechanical and is not able to give that physical and humane touch necessary.

The Legion maintains the natural home of the orphan and the aged. The local Legion and this always means maintain that home. Where no parent survivors or no home seems possible, adoption into a family of carefully selected character is the objective.

During 1924 more than 5,000 men died in the United States from disabilities directly traceable to their World War service. They have not been meritorily killed in action but needlessly scarred and maimed and tortured these long years, going at last to a rest they have earned not once but a thousand times. And the widows and the orphans are here in more numbers today than yesterday, and more tomorrow than today.

The quota for Rapid River for this Endowment Fund to take care of the disabled and the poor little tots who have been orphaned is $165.00. It is our duty to remember the disabled veterans together with the indigent orphans of veterans and to assist them in their need. It is an obligation we owe to them and we should give our whole hearted endorsement to their drive which will bring blessing and strength to our country.

TRAGEDY OF WOODS NOT HARD TO AVOID

"Lost" Person Need Only Retain Presence of Mind.

The tragedy of incidents like that of the hunter who perished in the woods within striking distance of help is heightened by the circumstance that, barring disabling accident, they almost invariably are avoidable.

Yet fatalities occur with amazing frequency under conditions closely resembling those in which Lloyd Youm lost his life. Investigation shows in more than 90 per cent of 100 that the primary cause of death is exhaustion.

It has now become a race between the excess party, or lack of utmost fatigue. No ordinary physical body can long sustain the pace that the hunter by this time has imposed on himself.

YOUR HEALTH

GRIM FAIRY TALES FOR YOUR CHILDREN

(By Dr. B. S. Herben)

Distributed by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

Did you ever hear anyone make one of these statements:

"Well, Bobby has to have whooping cough sometime. He might as well catch it from Susan Lee and get it over with!"

"I'd rather have Betty get measles while she is little than to have her catch it when she is older. It is less dangerous for children!"

These are some of the grim tales that are told by one neighbor to another. You have heard them. So have I. I wonder how many deaths of little children have been caused by the attitude of parents toward some of these "children's diseases," measles, whooping cough, chicken-pox, mumps and scarlet fever, etc.?

Did you ever rebuke people for repeating such tales by telling them that in the United States during one year there were nearly 12,000 deaths from measles? Did you ever tell them that over 90 per cent. of deaths from measles occur in children under five years of age? Pneumonia and other serious conditions often follow measles. Give them these facts when next you listen to such fearful falsehoods. Tell them too that almost everywhere whooping cough causes more deaths than scarlet fever—and who does not dread scarlet fever? Tell them that 90 per cent. of the fatal cases of scarlet fever occur in children under ten.

THESE DISEASES ARE DANGEROUS! Tell them that CHILDREN DO NOT NEED TO HAVE THEM.

Measles is highly contagious before the rash appears. It is spread by discharges from the nose and mouth. Scarlet fever is probably spread in the same way and may be contagious from the beginning of the inflammation of the nose and throat until after convalescence. Whooping cough is also spread by secretions of the nose and mouth and is most contagious during its earliest stage, though it may be passed on in its late stages. Mumps is spread in like manner but before the symptoms appear.

It is vital then to see that children do not at any time exchange with each other the discharges from the nose and throat.

Help spread the truth about these diseases and never tell a Grim Fairy Tale yourself!

FURIOUS RIDING PLOT IN NEW GIBSON MOVIE

Madly galloping horses ridden by reckless Universal Ranch Riders in desperate attempt to keep in sight of Hoot Gibson, most reckless of all horsemen, will contribute an atmosphere of the cattle range to the dramatic action of "The Saddle Hawk" Universal Gibson Production which comes to the Community theatre next Saturday.

This latest starring vehicle for Gibson is a straight Western story and was filmed in one of the biggest cattle raising sections of the United States, Eastern Oregon, not far from Pendleton, home of the famous annual Round-up. The story was written especially for Gibson by Raymond L. Schrock and Edward Sedgwick.

Marian Nixon is the leading woman of the cast which includes Jode Sedgwick, Frank Campeau, G. Raymond Nye, Charles K. French, William Steele, Fred Hames and Tote Ducrow. Among the thrills in the picture horseback and a battle between a sheriff's posse and a band of outlaws.

"The reckless Ace" the first vehicle of Reginald Denny, Universal star, on his recovery from injuries suffered in an automobile accident, is taken from "Love Insurance," a novel by Earl Derr Biggs in which the true whimsical humor of life is the chief element. It comes Monday and Tuesday to the Community theatre.

The author's work has been reflected in many popular Saturday Evening Post stories and novels. One of his chief works was Seven Keys to Baldpate.

PERMANENT RELIEF? YES!

HEALTH TALK BY P. G. MELLON D. C., PH. C.

It has been said that health results obtained through Chiropractic spinal adjustments are but temporary effects, which disappear as soon as adjustments are discontinued. In a few cases this may be true, but when this happens it is generally because the patient quit at the first sign of improvement.

When the patient, whatever his complaint, persists in taking adjustments until his chiropractor gives the word to quit, he has reasonable assurance against the recurrence of his old complaint. That this is so is shown by the statements of Mr. William Wenninger. The first, dated August 1, 1923. "Every night for nine years I had cause to complain of pain in the back. After my third Chiropractic adjustment I noticed relief. I have had thirteen adjustments and now feel no pain."

WM. WENNINGER

And the second, dated June 15, 1924 "I am still entirely satisfied with the results I received from Chiropractic adjustments. I have not only received results for my back, but also for several acute conditions."

studies in the way of individual ambition and achievement. But community prosperity is not built on the foundation of malice and hatred. And the future prosperity of the typical small town can never be subject to the hazard that confronts it at the present time.

WHAT IS AN EDUCATED MAN?
 By Dr. Paul E. Voelker
 The popular notion of what constitutes an educated man might be adequately described in the cartoon—bulging eyebrows, thin hair, toothbrush-rimmed spectacles, stooped shoulders, ascetic features, pebbled nose, and an emphysematous protrusion of books.
 Men who have not gone through college often say, apologetically, "You know, I never received an education." As a matter of fact, some men who have been self-educated have never been educated, and others who have never been inside the walls of a college or university, are highly educated.
 To be educated means to have developed one's abilities, to have sharpened one's intellect, to have broadened one's vision, to have intensified one's purpose, to have made an acquaintance with the best things that have been done by human beings and to have an acquaintance with the works of the Creator.
 An educated man must know how to explain himself. He must know how to read and write, not only words, but the other symbols that are expressive of ideas.
 An educated man must be able to think. Some of our big business men are splendid examples of men who have been self-educated in the process of being able to hold their minds in one subject until every phrase of it has been carefully considered. To think means to place ideas into relations with each other. A man who merely reads books is not necessarily a thinker, although he knows the contents of the book. He may be like a parrot reproducing the ideas he has read. An educated man thinks of the ideas that he reads.
 The educated man has acquired an appreciation of some of the finer things in this great beautiful world of ours. It requires an education to enjoy the sunset, the birds, the trees, the flowers. It requires an education to discriminate between jazz and music, to select literature rather than trash, to enjoy people of like make-up rather than those who are coarse in their tastes and enjoyments.
 Last summer, in conversation with a little girl seven years of age, I learned that she had said to her mother, "I don't believe that man is a college professor. He just asked someone how to spell 'co-operate'." Her idea of an educated man was "a man who could spell." An ignorant imagines that an educated man must know all about everything. This is not the case. The well-educated man is less apt to know facts than some men who are not so well-educated. His education has lifted him above the facts. He will not make statements or draw conclusions until he has the facts. His education enables him to interpret the facts, which is something that cannot be said of the man who merely possesses the facts and has not developed the capacity to reason out the meaning.
 An educated man has a definite set of attitudes that are commonly called character. He has a spirit of good-will toward his fellowmen. He desires to exercise co-operation in the building of his community. He has a sense of honor in the performance of his obligations. He feels responsible in such matters as paying his debts, meeting his friends half-way, doing such things as will make his town and his country better, and, finally an educated man has an appreciation of things that are spiritual. He can appreciate that in the great process of evolution it was mind acting upon matter, love driving back chaos, that have constantly lifted life to higher and higher planes.

THE SMALL TOWN
 (Ogle County Reporter)
 There never was a time when the small town, from a commercial standpoint, was being weighed in the balance as in the present era, and this is true. There never was a time when unanimity of purpose in behalf of the survival of the small town and an impulse of co-operation, coordination and fraternal and good will cohesion on the part of commercial factors of any small town were of more vital moment than right now.
 Enthusiasm for perfected highways, for traffic arteries connecting large population centers is of natural inspiration. Concrete roads represent developed enterprise in keeping with the times, but the establishing of these perfected roads means diversion of business to the larger towns.
 The small town if its commercial factors are alive and alert to their peril is face to face with a struggle for veritable existence. If such fight is to be waged with any hope of ultimate success, it should engage an allied, harmonious effort on the part of these most vitally concerned—the merchants and business men of the town.
 No town can prosper without unanimity of purpose. No town can hope to survive in the face of present and developing conditions with the commercial factors of that town divided into factions and waging internecine warfare against each other. No town can expect to exist with warring elements seeking to drive each other out of business and out of town.
 No town was ever built on a foundation policy of disintegration. No sound doctrine of enterprise promotion was ever convoked on the theory of destroying or driving away individual factors in the achievement of community prosperity.
 Towns that succeed and expand in population and in enterprise possess business men that seek to attract and to retain other enterprising factors, not to hamper and drive them away. The old adage "live and let live" is not defined on a basis of prices. It is meant to imply treatment of your neighbor of a sort calculated to permit him to live and to contribute to the attainment of your livelihood.
 A town is precisely what its people choose to make it and commercially it is just what its commercial factors choose to make it.
 There may be a certain gratification of ulterior inclination in placing ob-

IT HAS LASTED

Gladstone People Must Believe Such Convincing Testimony as Mrs. Lefebure's
 No one in Gladstone who suffers backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains or distressing urinary ailments can afford to ignore this twice-told story of a Gladstone resident. It is confirmed testimony, telling of lasting benefit from Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. It's evidence that no man or woman in Gladstone can doubt.
 Mrs. Teles Lefebure, 206 Third St., Gladstone, says: "My back was weak, stiff and sore. I was obliged to be driven most all the time. Dirty spots drove over me when black spots floated before my eyes. My kidneys were disordered, too. After using a box of Doan's Pills, I was rid of the trouble." (Statement given May 17, 1925)
 On September 29, 1924, Mrs. Lefebure added: "Doan's Pills cured me and the cure has been lasting."
