U. S.— That's "Us" And Post Office Is "Our" Business Says Postmaster Miller

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In reviewing the various businesses of Gladstone, the Post Office, Uncle Sam's business, could not be omitted. Postmaster Frank Miller has been requested to prepare an article, and his story throws some interesting light on some features of the post office unfamiliar to the average individual.)

Having been asked to write something about the post office and its operation, I am at a loss to decide just where to begin and where to leave off.

Going back about eleven years when the writer entered upon the duties of postmaster at the Gladstone office, city delivery had just been established under former postmaster O. L. Metz.

In 1920 the number of patrons who had extended orders to join up with the established routes had grown to such extent that another route was added and another carrier, Wm. McCormick, appointed.

At the present time the territory not served by city carrier is considerable but unfortunately most of it is in the outlying districts which are not impressed by street lighting, continuous walk and heavy numbers as required by the post office before delivery can be extended.

The office force consisting of three regular and one auxiliary clerk has not increased or decreased during the period mentioned, the window and box service being lighted as delivery is extended.

Clerks are required to take exams on mailing schedules once a year and must constantly study the changes which appear from day to day in the schedules of trains, changes in names of post offices, establishment of new offices, etc.

There are many features of the post office which are not touched on in this brief article for the benefit of the patrons of the office, but I fear that even though the editor might be good enough to devote the space, the subject is so vast that it is rather dry reading and I read it all in a quickly forgotten manner.

To suffer woes which Hope thinks infinite; To forgive wrongs darker than death of night; To defy Power which seems omnipotent; To love, to bear; to hope full of hope crumbles; From its own wreck the thing it contemplates. Neither to change, nor falter, nor repent; This, like the glory, is no boastful prey; This is alone Life, Joy, Empire and Victory.

WEDNESDAY of next week is Memorial Day. The Nation's soldier dead are commemorated on this occasion. This the Nation does, in a fashion. And yet how easy it is to forget! The men in the Revolution, in the Civil War, Spanish-American, in the great World War, and in the numerous other conflicts, they fought, bled and fell, first to establish it, a free Republic, government, to perpetuate the Union and then to uphold the principals for which it stood.

WHEN men and finally eight blocs while you then from generation open spot their air!

The government called them to the colors, and they answered the call. History has recorded the justness of their cause. Those who died on the battlefield, or in the trenches never knew. They answered the call of their country and paid the supreme price. Those of us who live after them are reaping the benefits. And we fully appreciate the unselfish service that has been rendered in the past.

SINCE commenting on the unlikelihood of Michigan's endorsement of Chase S. Osborn for the vice-presidency receiving serious attention at the National Republican convention at Kansas City on June 12, because of Michigan's being already counted to the Republican column, this writer has taken note of another angle to the situation which has some greater significance to the possibilities. It is—Chase S. Osborn has strength in the south, notably in Georgia where he spends much of his time, and with the Democrats almost certain to nominate Al Smith, a vet and otherwise objectionable to the south, there is a chance for the Republicans to break into the "solid South."

Michigan has reacted favorably to the suggestion and its delegates will be united in backing the former Governor of Michigan when his name is placed in nomination by Judge Jayne of Detroit. Just how much strength will be won from other directions remains to be seen. Political leaders who predict the nomination of Herbert Hoover for the presidency point to the need of a vice-presidential nominee with strength in the agricultural sections because of the accepted belief that the secretary of commerce is far from a favorite in that quarter. This was partly borne out in Indiana where Senator Watson, a favorite son candidate, with the aid of the machine politicians, was able to win the delegates in the primary. Michigan's former governor perhaps would not be so great an aid with the farmers but it can be shown that his following in the south will desert the Democratic ranks, it is possible that this advantage would offset whatever disadvantage is incurred by the party in nominating a candidate from a state whose electoral vote is already taken as assured.

Throughout the discussions now circulating there is one reassuring feature—there are few of question the fitness of Michigan's candidate.

THERE is talk now of marking all cities for the guidance of an traveler. Frank Betts, superintendent of the Mononomee county road commission, writes the state department suggesting that the names of the towns be placed on signs facing upward, in letters large enough to be seen from a convenient altitude and along the main highways also numbered so as to be seen from the air, allowing pilots to travel from information now available on all road maps. G. C. Dillman, deputy commissioner of the state highway department, says the department is favorable to the suggestion, with one possible change, that of numbering the towns, this so that larger numerals be provided than would be possible if necessary to spell out the entire name of the towns and cities.

With such provincial already receiving consideration it can be seen that in a very short time it will be easy to travel by air as by motor. It must be remembered in this connection that up to eight years ago only a few highways were numbered for any distance, and these only in the most progressive states. Now with the federal highways marked from east to west and north to south a motorist may select a highway as he does a street in his own home town and travel for hundreds and even thousands of miles without making a single change in the number. Knowing this to be true, it is not difficult to vision the air markings and what effect they will have on travel by plane.

THE River Reporter boasts: A report in this issue of some 5 arrests for violation of the liquor laws will stand, no doubt, as the best sort of evidence that Incon county has a sheriff who campaigns energetically against the bootlegger. The number of cases in excess of any reported in an upper peninsula county for a single term of court and is, perhaps, a new record in criminal practice in northern Michigan. Our good friend of the River paper seems to glory in the number of arrests without regard to the number still remaining in the illicit business. By his own admission the war against blind pigs has continued relentlessly during at least the past two years, and yet it seems there are as many as ever before. This being so, WHAT GOOD HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED? ED

Our impression is that as long as there is a demand there will be a means of supplying it, and so long as the profit in the trade is larger than may reasonably be expected from a legalized business, there will be some engaging in it. To conduct uncutting warfare and wholesale arrests may serve to catch the blind pigs and may even raise the retail price of the moonshine, but not in a single instance have we been able to notice a letting up of the demand. Iron River may have arrested 56 last week and every week in the following as long as the demand remains as it is, it is almost certain that the city will not remain without blind pigs.

WAYNE County has purchased Fort Wayne from the United States, the purchase price having been set by an appraiser at two and one-half millions. Fort Wayne is located in the southeast end of the city of Detroit and has served as a land mark almost since the time when the white man first set foot in the territory now Michigan. It is a spot with a historic background the state could ill afford to have destroyed, and Wayne County's action will be approved throughout Michigan. It seems that the government is actuated by little sentiment of a historical nature. Not so many months ago it was learned that Old Ironsides, the famous old vessel, was to be done away with, perhaps a target for some more modern ship of war. The American Legion and other organizations responsive to a public demand inaugurated a campaign to raise funds with which to purchase the vessel, that it may be kept for future generations. Landmarks are as thoughtfully done away with. Hundreds of millions are spent in preparation for an unseen war, and yet no funds may be spared for sentimental reasons, those connecting the past with the present.

Michigan, as a state overrun by the armies of several nations, has several odd forts. There is Fort Mackinac on the island of that name; there is Fort Williams at the northern tip of the upper peninsula; Fort Brady at the Soo is still occupied by troops and we hope the day will never come when there is any thought of demagoguing it to make way for the modern trend of events. Around each of these places there has been some portion of our history recorded, about all of which the student of history may read, but which is never as forcibly brought home as when recounted in the atmosphere in which it occurred. This writer will remember Fort Carey, in the province of Manitoba just outside the city of Winnipeg, where the old Hudson Bay company established itself in its early trade with the Indians. It was the meeting center for all for hundreds of miles around and on the occasion when hostilities with the Indians seemed probable, was the rendezvous for all seeking protection. Its outer walls, buildings and even the position in its corner of the location, have been well preserved and each year attract thousands of visitors.

GLADSTONE's winning of the Class C honors in the first annual upper peninsula field and track meet held at Houghton last Saturday is an occasion for commendation. Coach Keil and the boys who trained to make the showing possible are deserving of the congratulations showered upon them since their return and the Delta Reporter takes this means of publicly voicing the approbation which is in the minds and the hearts of all citizens who take an interest in their school's activities and willing to bestow credit where it is due.

Escanaba also needs to be congratulated for winning the honors in the Class B. Nothing succeeds like success, and success comes only to those who apply themselves to the task in hand. Field and track events are not overly spectacular and the training for them is much less so. For many nights after school had closed, Gladstone's representatives at the meet have had to undergo a grueling routine. To have tried and won is reason for satisfaction; but better to have tried and lost, than not to have tried at all, that is the rule of life that our athletes are practicing.

MICHIGAN State College seems to be constantly in a state of upheaval. The latest is the resignation of Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield as president, a move that has been expected since last summer. Robert S. Shaw has been named to succeed him, a move which is entirely unobjectionable as he has on three occasions served as acting president during the intervals when changes were being made. He has been most successful in that capacity and it is to be hoped that now he will meet with the same results with his elevation in office. Michigan State is a college that the state may take pride in and its influence in the educational life of Michigan will be even more pronounced with an established policy adopted and followed by those in charge.

Assuredly it must be loved to have a birthday, especially when it can be observed as well as the 50th anniversary of the founding of the city. The Eccentric. The special edition issued by Editor George R. Averill and his staff would be a credit to any organization from a mechanical point of view, and from a reader interest standpoint, it is unsurpassable. The benefit of historical facts brought to light only by exhaustive efforts of a painstaking and intelligent staff, and they need to be congratulated as much as do the latter in the achievement. A newspaper so good on even this one occasion would have won for itself an everlasting place in the hearts of those it aims to serve.

SEBASTIAN S. Kregge, wealthy owner of a chain of stores, prominent anti-saloon league contributor, who was in the public limelight during the past several months because of the sensational disclosures in his various divorce actions, issues a statement declaring he is going to do it, his wife, who, he says, married him only for his money. The very fact that he must issue a statement to tell what kind of a man he is, suggests that there must be little else about him, other than money. He might start his reformations with himself.

CURRENT COMMENT

(St. Ignace Republican News)

The approach of summer has brought the advance guard of the perennial mendacious invasion of the upper peninsula. St. Ignace, at the gateway of the territory, receiving the first shock of the attack, in full view of the State and Federal authorities, the result of the professional beggar which emboldens rank imposture and fraud.

Huron County (Bad Axe) Tribune Distance lends enchantment to the view, if you quote correctly. Thus we find the Gladstone Reporter referring to Ex-Governor Chase Osborn as "Michigan's foremost citizen."

"No harm in that. We also are in favor of nominating and electing Chase as the Vice-President. The convention might go farther and do much worse.

"(Doc) DeFoe in Charlotte (Rep.)" Most of us are thankful for the relief that has followed in the wake of the election of Woodrow Wilson. We were all under something of a nervous tension when questions having to do with the imprisonment for life were at stake. Having been convicted of first degree murder, both boys would have been legally murdered for a term of capital punishment; was in case in Michigan now. Try and visualize the day of execution waiting for the day of execution. This is a good time for Charlotte and other county people to give a thought to this matter of capital punishment. Every two years we have to have it discussed once or twice and each time there is waiting for the day of execution. AL SMITH

AL SMITH because of his religion, because the Democratic party is neither a hand of bigotry nor an institution of ignorance. The South would not command the following as it is a short-coming. It is a pity that the South is so nearly a "sinking hulk" in the hands of the Democratic party and Senator Walsh in order to seek personal political revenge, because of his refusal to accept Al Smith, as they felt he was "measured with DeWitt's" of money. Neither the South, nor the Democratic party, nor any other party has ever gotten anywhere merely by being "anti." Today the party has no outstanding candidate save Al Smith. The South today stands a political orphan atoll. The south represents practically one-third of the Union. Politically it has no representatives save in those offices where, by Constitutional requirement, it elects its own representatives. There is not a single Democrat in the South in the President's cabinet. Florida has never in its history had any citizen a member of the cabinet of the United States. It has never had a president or a vice president. It has never had a member of the Supreme Court of the United States. In fact, it has never been politically recognized. The alliance at this time of the South with New York, will mean the nomination and election of Al Smith, and the restoration to the South of its part of political power, and rights.

Town Talk

Published by Cloverland M. & S. Co.

Spring is upon us again, and with the advent of balmy days the return of the robin with the first buds turning up in evening concerts, with the vacant lot ball teams getting actively in motion, it is a thought that everyone would be persuaded with the spirit of clean up and fix up, which we are mighty glad to see.

THE SOUTHERNER'S VIEW

Huron County (Bad Axe) Tribune We hear a lot these days about what the South thinks of Al Smith. Al Smith has become a national character and national characters command the interest of the general public. After spending the winter among Southern democrats this writer is convinced that the great majority of the voters there are against Smith and are frequently of the opinion that they would prevent his nomination if they could but they can't. After Smith is nominated, as he will be, these anti-Southern democrats, many of whom don't know the war is over yet, would vote for him just as soon as they as they ever voted for any other Democrat. PIONEER PASSED AWAY SATURDAY

AMOS DURANCEAU WAS RESIDENT OF TOWNSHIP SINCE 1850

Amos Duranceau, 83, a resident of Masonville for the past 77 years, passed away at his home at Masonville Saturday morning at 4 o'clock after an illness of three weeks due to asthma and disabilities incident to his age.

Mr. Duranceau was the oldest resident of Masonville township, his residence dating back to the year 1850. He was born in Canada, Oct. 14, 1844, and came to Michigan with his parents when a child of three years. The family first resided at Flat Rock, moving to this locality two years later, engaging in farming and lumbering. The parents then attended the Adams Rice farm before the Civil War days, dividing their time in clearing up some land and tending the dinner table in the Lacanawh river for the late Senator Isaac Stephenson. Cows were used to drag the logs to the river where they were driven down and rafted to the mill at Flat Rock, with the construction of a mill at the present location of Masonville in 1850. Mr. Duranceau sold the farm to Adam Rice and moved to the location that has been the home of the deceased for 60 years.

Mr. Duranceau would often recount the hardships of the early days of the township. One could hardly more than a trail passed through here going to St. Jacques where there was a small settlement. This trail was used by a government mail carrier who carried mail from Green Bay sometimes going as far as St. Ignace. There was also a small settlement at what is now known as the Old Mill site. The seat of the county and township government was located at this settlement before its removal to Masonville from where the county government was later moved to Escanaba.

Mr. Duranceau as a young boy witnessed a number of fights between the Menominee and Chippewa Indians. The Menominee Indians would come up from the Green Bay waters in boats and would be met by the Chippewas as they came down through the Narrows at Gladstone. The Chippewas would use their rendezvous before sailing out to give battle. The Indians were friendly with the white settlers scattered throughout the country but were often on the war-path against neighboring tribes.

Mr. Duranceau was always fond of the water and the woods and did considerable trapping and fishing until two years ago when his health began to fail. He was sprightly in his step and walked very erect up to his last illness. He is survived by his wife, and two daughters, Mrs. Mary Scott and Mrs. O. E. Neveu of Masonville.

The body was prepared for burial at the Alto Funeral Home and moved to the family home Sunday afternoon. Many friends called at the home Sunday afternoon evening to pay their last respects to the pioneer. Many floral and spiritual offerings were received at the home, testimonials of the esteem in which the deceased was held by the community.

Funeral services were held at St. Charles Catholic church Monday morning at 9 o'clock with Rev. Fr. Jos. E. Guertin as the celebrant at the requiem high mass. The church was filled with relatives and friends and a long cortege followed the remains to its last resting place in the local cemetery.

Out of town relatives were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Derocher of Escanaba, Miss Julia Duranceau and Charles Duranceau of Flat Rock, George James and Henry James of L'Anse. The pallbearers, old friends of the deceased, were J. Wright, William H. Rebbin, Ed. Short, Charles Anderson, Andrew Nelson and Henry Rice.

REAL ESTATE DEALS SHOW CONFIDENCE

Recent sales and trades in real estate of the village and neighboring district show the confidence that people have in the future of the village as a farm marketing center since they have become reconciled to the fact that lumbering is no longer to be the principal industry. There is available timber for the operation of a mill here and the employment of many men for a number of years but the closing down of operations by the Collins and Lumber Co. and the uncertainty of the lumber market is keeping prospective buyers from locating here.

The farming industry should be bolstered up and encouraged so that with the decline in the lumbering industry the other will gradually take its place as the leader in the community. In all communities where the manufacturing industry is the principal industry there has been a period of business depression when the lumbering ceased. In many cases it practically wiped out the town because the surrounding country was not suitable to farming or favorable to the establishment of other enterprises. The jealous spirit or negligence of the business leaders of the community is not to be faulted for a campaign for a change from the one industry to the other also contributed to the gradual decline of a once prosperous village.

It has been suggested by one prominent business man that one kind of an organization should be formed to establish a closer business relationship between the merchant and the farmer. There has been little co-operation between the farmer and the merchant, each striving to get along solely upon their own initiative. Associations or clubs of kind in the past have been failures and when they are spoken of now it is received by some with a benevolent objective in view co-operation and a willingness to be active in promoting and undertaking that will be a benefit to the community as a whole. The organization should flourish. There is always a surplus of produce and hay but the co-operation with the farmer to help him dispose of this surplus is his best advantage. Every fall several carloads of beef cattle are sold to outside buyers at varying prices and it is believed this manner of disposing of stock could be improved upon. The services of the county and state agricultural experts could be procured to a better advantage by the co-operation of the merchants.

The farm known as the Harrison farm two and one half miles north of town has been purchased by Walter Busch. This farm has been vacant since the removal of Richard Harrison to the west three years ago. There is over 60 acres of cleared land ready for cultivation. Louis E. Thibault recently purchased the Ed Hill farm four miles north of town. This farm has been idle for many years but Mr. Thibault has already started work for a crop this year. He is a jobber for the Bay de Noc Co. and will use the farm for pasturing stock and raising produce for his camp use. The Carl Person home was sold to Herman Stenlund when Mr. Person moved to Broncktown, Wis. where he remains in the employ of the Collins Bros. Lumber Co. Sam Minor Sr. has rented his farm at Oser and moved into the Ewald building. Mr. Minor was a resident of the village for many years prior to moving to the farm 2 1/2 years ago. Very few houses are available for rent at the present time and although the mill has not been in operation for two years men have found ready employment on the roads, woods and nearby mill work. It is reported a case of business depression so the conditions here appear as well as could be expected.

TO INSTALL 110 FOOT FIRE TOWER AT FARM LAKE

A 110 foot fire tower was received here Tuesday to replace the old one located at Farm Lake. The present tower is only 60 feet high but the department of conservation is gradually replacing the old ones with the 110 foot towers. The additional height will give a more commanding view of the surrounding country for the detection of forest fires.

TRACK TEAM GOES TO ROCK SATURDAY

The high school track team, sixteen in number, will go to Rock Saturday to take part in a dual meet with the Rock high school team. This is the first season for the local athletes in track and field work but they have taken the work seriously and are determined to make as good a record as made in basketball during the last two seasons. The boys have had no experience in track but Coach Nelson is giving the polish to the boys green and otherwise natural ability to run and jump. Rock already has had two or three years of track work but the local leads are out to bring home the ribbons. They will enter every event except the hurdles.

Robertson in the mile has clipped it off in very fast time with no one to urge him on. Williamson in the quarter and half-mile event is certain of a place. R. Christiansen in the high jump has made some excellent marks and Wayne Young in shot, hammer and pole vault is first all-around man. He may also be entered in the 100 and 220 yd. events.

WALLED PIKE FISHING GOOD IN BAY DE NOC

Walled pike, or dory as they are more commonly called, are giving local fishermen an opportunity to put their rods and also to tell their friends of the big one that got away. The fish are game and a great deal of sport is found in trolling over all fishing for them. Many good ones have already been made this season barely started. The catching is probably the best to date although good catches are made in the evening. The bay is patrolled with boats every morning at evening. The dory fishing usually starts thru the month of June.

No catches have yet been reported by trout fishermen because of the high water in rivers open to trout fishing. Anglers can find the streams in full week with the best condition when the season is open in earnest.

GRASS FIRE THREATENS MILL YARD WEDNESDAY

A grass fire south of the mill station, caused from a spark from the Soo train, got away at 10 o'clock out of the station. Tuesday night threatened the post yard adjacent to the mill and for a moment the fire spread rapidly in the direction by a strong north wind. The J. Wilford and Fire Warden, Eph Parent was called and with a crew of men fighting the fire was crushed soon whipped the fire under control.

YOU need no more of a laboratory than the second hand of your watch.

Tick off the warm-up period—the seconds or minutes between the first explosion and the moment when you know she'll pull the load.

That's the critical test of gas goodness which poor, adulterated fuels can't get by.

Maybe they can fool you on a false kind of quick ignition from injections of light, power-shy kindling elements. But the slow draggy warm-up gives the show away. INSIDE OUT

A Weekly Panorama or Events in the National Capital by Peter Kravetz, Special Correspondent for Delta Reporter

REPUBLICANS of western agricultural states have an Al Smith worry. With Hoover as the party nominee, with a certain farmer vote, these Republicans see Al Smith running away with the big city vote. In the Republican primaries, Hoover has been strong in the cities; weak in the rural sections. But in the election, Al Smith, rather than Hoover, would be the urban favorite. The question arises with Republicans whether it would be safe for the party to nominate a candidate who is weaker rather than strong with agriculture.

BUT DID Andrew Wilson really mean it—that is the immediate reaction to the left-handed nomination of the Secretary of Treasury paid to Hoover. If he really is for Hoover will he suggest the Pennsylvania delegation go to Kansas City, unopposed? That question is asked everywhere. The story is told in Washington that Mellon really said truly vainly Coolidge—that he said what he did to scare the anti-Hoover Republicans into turning to Coolidge. But the intention is to be placed on Mellon's cautious words all depend upon whether you talk to anti-Hoover or Hoover Republicans. A week ago Mellon is reported to have told Senator Curtis that he is opposed to Hoover.

FROM OUT of the agricultural belt comes a hot from Governor Michigan, hearkens, writing the industrial east that it had better give heed in an agricultural revolt if it is proposed in party sections. The Michigan statement has given eastern Republicans some thing to consider.

THE INDIANA result—the defeat of Hoover by Senator Watson—was a real blow to Hoover because it gave expression to the agricultural revolt for him by the farmer. The farmer has had a real rough enough on Hoover. In Indiana it was not the cities to Hoover, yet the anti-Hoover vote in rural sections was very large that he really called up a sizeable majority. The farmer, when he casts a certain state of mind runs up in his mind and votes against Hoover.

HOOPER AT this time undoubtedly has the edge and doubtless the industrial east, plus the patronage delegates of the south, can force his nomination. This will happen unless the eastern Republican takes quick notice of the agricultural revolt. The Republican can win only by carrying the agricultural states. Al Smith is the big favorite of western states. He only needs one or two western states to be elected.

AL SMITH'S nomination is not yet clinched—not by a long way—but popular belief is that he will win, at the Houston convention. Indeed the conviction is strong that Al Smith will win that discussion turns to the Vice Presidential nominee. Obviously politics here for the Al Smith running mate to be selected from one of three or four states—Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee or Kentucky. But it doesn't matter that if Al Smith is nominated, the Vice Presidential nominee will be one of the following—Governor Donahoe, Ohio; Evans Woodlen, Indiana; Representative in Congress Cordell Hull, Tennessee, or Governor Barkley, Kentucky. Just paste that in your hat until you hear from Houston.

SHOULD HOOVER become the nominee, it is the purpose of the Hooverites to nominate an eastern Republican, one was enough to offset the west strength behind Al Smith. Senator Edge, New Jersey Republican, was among those who figures he may turn up as a Hoover running mate should agriculture fail to defeat Hoover in Kansas City. And Senator Moses, New Hampshire, is also regarded as a potential vice president possibility.

VICE PRESIDENT Daves, Business man, banker, economist, first director of the budget, soldier and agricultural sympathizer has a big following over the country, east, west, north and south, has not and will not turn a hand to win the nomination. He unhesitatingly recommends his old friend, ex-governor Frank O. Lowden, ideal of agricultural states. Gen. Daves is decidedly anti-Hoover. He does not care for Hoover's brand of republicanism and sees Hoover making a very weak appeal to agricultural states which must be carried if the Republicans are to win. Organized labor is opposed to Daves.

SENATOR JIM REED is almost in feeling that Al Smith of Tammany will yet be defeated. He is not sure to give up. His kick is in the wall, true enough, but that's when he fights the hardest. He may say a lot of things before now and Houston that will jar Al Smith's political teeth. Reed is the one Democrat who has a ghost of a chance to defeat Smith, but there is

"SHIPS OF THE DESERT"

Repeating the government's historical experiment of forty years ago when camel transportation was introduced in the west, "Ships of the Desert" are tried out to carry tourists to the Oasis of Bisika in the Coachella Desert, east of Los Angeles. The first party to try the mode of desert transportation via camel from the railroad to the oasis, were an Algerian touch to the area which is being developed as another of the fashionable desert resorts.

Camels in such modern times as ours will be barred.

There is a nerve and action in this mode which outlines Miss Edna Conway and her mount against the deep blue of the desert sky.

Do You Eat Cottage Cheese? No? Read This and See What You're Missing

By Walter C. Lind
Consumers Milk Products, Gladstone, Escanaba, Manistowick. (Development Bureau News)

Let me prescribe the diet of a country and I care not who makes its laws.

The above is a saying of Dr. Harvey Wiley, famous food specialist who did much in his day to correct the terrible diet to which at that time the American public was subjected.

I am not an expert dietitian. I have not studied the subject of diet exhaustively. But I know that if more people realized the great muscle, bone and teeth building qualities of the delicious food known as cottage cheese or Dutch cheese, they would be found more often on American tables—in restaurants and hotels as well as at home.

What Fools These Mortals Be!

When it comes to diet, the average American is a queer bird. Time and again he has deserted good wholesome food for the fanciest things—meats full of starch and goo and sticky sweets—that play havoc with his tummy. These things are coming to realize that three quarters or more of our physical ills come from improper food. Common sense might have told us this long ago, and it is strange indeed that we keep on digging our graves with our teeth when we should know better.

Let us consider this dairy, clean, healthful food, cottage cheese. It is a substantial food and not in the least expensive. It can be served in many different ways that will add zest to any meal, and it contains three of the most important food elements—lime, protein and vitamins—in generous amounts.

How Cottage Cheese is Made

Cottage cheese, as produced by Consumers Milk Products and other upper peninsula dairies, is made under strictly sanitary conditions. All animals and other apparatus must be kept clean to make palatable and wholesome cottage cheese. A good grade of milk is carefully processed. The milk is first pasteurized, then run through a separator. The whey is then cooled to 90 degrees Fahrenheit and after the proportion of 20 per cent is added to thicken.

After the milk has thickened a matter of seven to ten hours—it is cur into cubes. Water at 150 degrees of heat is added until the mass reaches a temperature of 104. The whey is then drained off and cold water is used to chill and wash out the cheese. This is done also to cut down the acidity of the cheese and keep it from getting rubbery.

The product then undergoes two hours drainage in a spotlessly clean

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Picture, Inc. Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

Synopsis
Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores occupy the old Vasquez ranch handed down from the first Vasquez on a grant from the King of Spain. The prospect that came to San Francisco by the discovery of gold in California missed the Vasquez hacienda whereas Dolores was not kept abreast of modern progress. But the Vasquez acres are coveted by Buckwell, a speculator from San Francisco. His lawyer, Brandon, with Brandon's nephew, Terry, are sent to the ranch to see that it does not fall to accomplish his task, but Terry falls in love with Dolores. Buckwell is incensed by the failure and plans to void the old Spanish Vasquez land grant and evict Vasquez. Terry is furious and goes to warn Vasquez.

They both burst into merry laughter and Terry got no time in presenting the remaining flowers with due formality.
"Thank you," smiled Dolores joyfully, passing it in her hand with true Spanish hospitality.
"I would like to bring you an arm full of American Beauties, their color is like your cheeks," Terry's admiration was making him surprisingly complimentary.

"It is strange that you came out here. I was wishing you would," confessed Dolores with a winking glance.
"You were?" That's what, but why is anything wrong?" Terry suddenly remembered what had brought him to the ranch and his built, bearded hatter gave way to an ex-courier.

"Grandfather is ill with worry about the ranch being taken away from him. We don't know what to do. For years eyes were opened wide in territory."
Dolores did not have any hesitancy about confiding private troubles to Terry, by some miracle it seemed to make her feel better.

"That's a funny thing," exclaimed Terry. "I came out here because I was afraid your grandfather did not understand how grave the land grant situation was."
"Yes, I think he does, but he is unwilling to take advice from outsiders."

"I'm not an outsider," quickly objected Terry and Dolores just as quickly agreed. Neither of their realted boys had been taking for granted in so short a time, nor how strange their sympathetic loyalty would have sounded had anyone been there to hear.
"I am afraid Grandfather would not listen to a relative of Mr. Brandon's."

"Kiss me, my brother, I beg!" he said, startled at her own effrontery, Dolores clutched her throat in a futile effort to suppress the thing she had just said.

"Never mind," consoled Terry dolefully. Then he regarded Dolores silently for what seemed to be a long time before adding, "At least I will try and talk with him anyhow, and in case I fail I hope you will let me know if you need me." Taking out a card he offered it to her.

"Thank you, Terry," she said gratefully. "I will, and she clutched the card without looking at it and held it out. Terry smiled and held out his hand.
When Dolores' delicate fingers touched his palm he forgot all other promises but her, and the sacred vows that he hoped to make some day with her.

They were rudely recalled from their enjoyment of each other when Vasquez stalked out into the patio, coldly furious at seeing them together. Dolores pulled her hand from Terry's warm clasp and drew back anxiously, afraid of the impending outbreak.

"Good afternoon, sir," greeted Terry, meeting the old man's eyes coolly.
"The name to you, Senor, and may I, as head of the house, inquire your business here?"
"To warn and help you, sir," Terry's eyes did not waver.
"Why should you infer that I require your help?" inquired Vasquez in stiff indignation.
"Please, Grandfather," quickly interposed Dolores, "allow him to speak!"
The old man looked from Terry to the beloved Granddaughter,

Francisco and the Vasquez family has dwelt here in peace and happiness since 1776.
Terry sank back helplessly. The fire in Vasquez's eyes showed that he was inwardly raging at the bare thought of such an action.
"When they fight, you will be powerless, sir," Terry was doing his best.
"No! No!" Vasquez's voice rang out in protest and cursing to the mantle he took the famous old weapon from its case in the wall.
"This sword," he explained proudly, showing it to Terry, "has protected this land and the Vasquez line since Spain's conquest in California—and it will not fail me now."
"Unfortunately," pursued Terry, "the politicians of San Francisco have no respect for traditions and a man's feelings. They are careless when it comes to securing what they want and perhaps the greatest trader of them all is determined to add your ranch to his holdings because he knows that its value will increase as the city extends this way."
"My ranch is not for sale, no matter who wants to buy. I once killed a man, Senor, because he was too close to me. He would kill my brother—I will not hesitate to inflict a similar punishment on any man who dares trespass on my property rights." While Vasquez spoke he was reimpaled with his youthful fire and courage—his spirit was magnificent! "Let us go out into the sunshine, Senor; it will be more pleasant."
As they approached the doorway

Don Luis galloped up on his horse and waved good to Dolores. Terry's heart dropped a beat when she raised her bouquet in answer to the salute. And his thoughts were in a tumult where he saw the man dismount and greet Dolores by pressing her finger tips to his lips. He could not hear Don Luis say "Behold what I have brought you, my loved one!" but he saw a long jewel box presented to Dolores and could tell that the gift was more intimate than he wanted any man but himself to enjoy.
"Ah, thank the Good Mother that I have lived to see this joyful day," sighed Vasquez, smiling happily as he watched the little scene. Terry looked at him quickly, his brows puckered in a boyish frown of interrogation.
"The last of a family as proud and as glorious as my own," continued Vasquez, waving his hand toward Don Luis, the only one to whom I would trust the happiness of my child.
"Terry frowned inwardly. He had dared dream such glorious plans for Dolores and himself, and all the time she was promised to the picture-show Spaniard!
"I thought—she—had never been way from the rancho," Terry could not understand it.
"That is true except as regards calling on friends. They were called together—their traditions are the same as ours. For the daughter of a Vasquez to marry other than a man of her own blood would be to court the bitterest of woes."

The Great Washday Liberator—the New Maytag

OVER a million women have turned to the Maytag as the great washday liberator. The Maytag has eliminated hand-rubbing entirely, even of the most stubborn edge dirt of collars and cuffs. It has changed the tiresome washday to an easy pleasant task of an hour or so.

The cast-aluminum, heat-retaining tub has liberated the women from reheating water on hot washings. Then, too, it empties and cleans itself in a few seconds. The Soft Roller Water Remover of the New Maytag hugs every fold and seam in the clothes—the clothes dry evenly and quickly. Buttons are spared and no hard-to-iron wrinkles are pressed into the clothes.

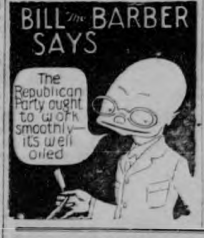

PHONE Do your next washing with the New Maytag. A telephone request brings you one without cost or obligation. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

RECREATIONAL EXHIBITS FEATURE OF EXPOSITION

The sixth annual Outdoor Life exposition in Chicago came to an end Saturday May 12, with an attendance not quite so large as last year's, owing largely to counter attractions in Chicago.

The Republican Party ought to go on smoothly. It's well Oiled.

Commercial exhibits at the show were secondary to the recreation exhibits. The latter were of a size and scope unapproached in previous years, the largest displays being made by Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Canadian province of Ontario.

THAT even the dandelions are welcome. The first few that blossom forth look like beautiful flowers to us, until their yellow heads dot the lawns and hill sides.

THAT storm windows are being haul'd off, and the father of the house is generally being pestered to do the annual spring odd jobs, everything from spading the family garden plot to powdering on loopy curls and hings.

THAT our new poster boards in places where they are screening piles of rubbish and debris from the public eye, have created much favorable comment.

THAT folks who have come up in some neck of the woods live there as much time as they can these days.

THAT the big orange letters painted on the arterial highways can't fail to make a driver do just as he looks down on the road to see the sign.

THAT the remains of campfires in the woods, empty bean cans and sticks for roasting visners tell tales of meals in the open already.

THAT the City clean up has provided the inspiration to lots of folks to continue the good work all around their premises.

I've Come Back to Buy ... I couldn't find anything that stacks up with today's Chandler

"En Passant"

Observations and Comment by Alice Fox

A COMPOSER OF ORIENTAL music in an address said: "Jazz music is a modern combination of rhythmic devices which were known to the Chinese more than two thousand years ago."

So jazz is merely an experiment, known only through the finished product is going to be like. At least we must have a new model coming anyway.

THE FIRST STRAW HAT walked down Delta Avenue the other day, and in less time than it takes to type it, the clouds gathered, and the water showered down. It's nobody else but John Weatherman who's holding up the straw hat season.

HAIRPINS ARE OUT OF LUCK to pin up the flowing locks, but they still are useful for something. From repairing radio sets to taking alarm clocks apart. Whenever a mechanic gathers his monkey wrenches and screw drivers together and begins some kind of a repair job, it won't be two minutes before he's looking all over the house for a hairpin. So to hairpin manufacturers don't have despair because their product has lost its original intent and taken its place in the tool chest.

THE WORST OF HAVING a reputation is that Babe Ruth is expected to make a home run every time he comes to bat. He'll be expected to make a whole lot of hard ball assertions over every he makes a speech and Charlie Green and a few other fishing shavers are expected to bring home the limit of trout every time they stand out of the city limits with their fishing apparatus.

ONE EDITOR SAYS THE back seat drivers are changing these days. They're not the same old cuckoo that used to sit back there and tell you how to negotiate your chariot. Back seat drivers have become back seat reformers who want to dictate to a fellow how to plant his garden, feed his dog, so to church, and what not. But anyway they must be a big improvement. Just so they let him drive his own car, that's the thing.

OTTO HABERMAN is fishing trout again. Every chance he gets, he takes his hook and line and zooms off to the Days River or Haymeadow the place he last heard of someone getting trout in, usually. He fishes and returns, and comes with his bag unassailed by the odor of fish. Otto's disgusted, and you can't blame him. Here every season for a long time, he's been fishing for trout, and that's all it amounts to. Otto thinks the fish have his number now and when they see him just appear on the scene, the word is just passed around among them that it's Otto trying it again, and they don't interrupt his efforts one bit. Even all the little trout have had Otto pointed out to them by their grandfathers and he's just plain out of luck.

When it comes to the baseball diamond, or grappling with figures over at the City Office, Otto hasn't any worries, but in the trout fishing business, he hasn't a chance.

An enterprising orchestra director has devised a method of keeping his audience from applauding at the wrong time. He's adopted the Stop and Go signal system and uses a pole equipped with revolving signs at the top. "No. Yes," and "Now," and he just turns those around to give the audience their cue to the applauding.

What he should do is to eliminate the hand clapping altogether. Without doubt it's one of the child's habits of showing glee that has stayed with adults throughout the ages. It doesn't mean a thing because audiences applaud thus whether they're pleased or not. Perhaps we can look to this enterprising orchestra leader for a still further improvement which will eliminate the hand clapping altogether, and his story and go signals too.

MUSSOLINI, It is reported, is the owner of a bust of himself. The green bronze head shown is three times the size of a normal head. It pictures the dictator's notion of his own relative importance. But history won't rank Mussolini according to the size of his bronze image.

THE FIRST MOSQUITO regiment has arrived and you can't go out of town without getting a dose of bites to scratch for the next few days.

WE STILL NEED A LAWN area that will grow about one inch high and then quit.

Gene Tunney's Advice To Boys

Another celebrity who knows the value of milk in the diet is Gene Tunney, heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

Tunney said: "If I were giving advice to young boys, I would tell them that nothing could keep them in better shape than right clean living, no cigarettes, no profanity, a fear of an Almighty God, plenty of milk and vegetables and enough sleep."

U. S.—THAT'S "US" AND POSTOFFICE OUR BUSINESS

which I feel should be brought to the attention of mailers, whenever possible and one of them is the advisability of placing the return address on letters.

Omit Return Address
Every year millions of pieces of mail reach the Dead Letter Office for the simple reason that the sender neglected to put his return address on the envelope. Many of these pieces are returned to the sender when something in the contents leads to the identity of the sender. The balance are filed away and the sender or the addressee or both blame the postal service for the loss of their letter.

Another item which is of particular interest to business firms who mail out monthly statements, is the failure to include the house number in the address. From the amount of mail received at this office from business men to their customers which does not bear street address, it would appear that they were timid about asking the customer where he lived whenever they open an account with them. Or maybe they take it for granted that the postal force should know who their customers are and will deliver the letter to him eventually.

In trying to locate the proper addresses of these letters, they are often opened by the wrong person. This usually gets a "rise" out of the person who finally gets his letter with "opened by mistake" on it.

Another little matter which needs constant attention, is to see that the proper amount of postage is placed on your mail before depositing it.

When no postage is affixed and the sender's return address is returned for postage. Where the sender's return does not appear, the addressee is notified to send postage.

If the first ounce is covered by postage and the piece requires more it is forwarded to the office of address marked for collection of the "due" postage from the addressee. If this has ever happened to you, you know how the other fellow feels when he gets yours.

Use Money Orders
One more particularly aggravating item and that is that many people still place money in ordinary letters. This is something that should never be done. It is the worst kind of economy and is not safe. Buy a money order, they are constantly safe from loss, destruction or theft.

The money order division of the post office is a most popular one and is used extensively by all classes. It provides a way to send money to every country in the world and at a small fee.

Last year this office issued 14476 money orders amounting to $39,074. The number of orders paid was 8220 which amounted to $81,126.87. The number of C. O. D. parcels last year was 1259. The number of C. O. D. pieces registered last year was 1963. The number of C. O. D. pieces insured last year was 3912.

The postal receipts, revenue derived from the sale of stamps, envelopes, postal cards, postage due matter mailed, under permit without stamps affixed, box rents and sale of waste paper, amounted to $22,133.89 as compared with $12,404.53 the year ending June 30, 1917 when the writer took charge, an increase of $9,734.14.

At one time the office boasted two rural routes but in 1920 the route known as the Kipling-Dave River was discontinued for lack of patronage.

Derna's Fine Record
The present route served by Terence Derna since its establishment April 1, 1919 is 27.7 miles long and is operated six days per week. Mr. Derna has an exceptional record for service having never missed a day since he entered the service except for his own wedding and for the burial of his parents. The worst storm of winter of summer have not held him back from making an attempt to serve the route and there has been but few instances when he failed to serve the entire route. It was humanly impossible to traverse the entire route with horse or car, he has donned skis and travelled many miles to snowed in farmers with their mail.

The route leaves Gladstone and travels south through Wells then north to the old Duranceno crossing west through the community known as Flat Rock returning by way of the cemetery and South Gladstone. There is being contemplated the extension of this route to return by way of the Brampton Road to serve the patrons living on that road and those on the Skilton road and Flooring Mill Location.

A Rolling Post Office
The rural carrier is a virtually a rolling post office as he delivers mail and parcel post, sells money orders, stamps, envelopes, post cards, registers and insures mail he collects and in addition to his postal duties assists the farmers in making semi-annual crop and stock accounts and is deputy firewarden.

As stated before, there are so many features of the postal service which the public should know, it occurs to me that it might be well to take up the matter again at some future time when such items as the registry, insured, C. O. D. special handling, special delivery, postal savings, and air mail might be discussed.

Information regarding any or all of these features may be obtained from the writer or from the window clerks.
