KEEP DUMPING GROUNDS CLEAR

DEBRIS MUST BE HAULED TO PLACE HALF MILE SOUTH OF HIGHWAY

Masonville township has spent considerable money the past ten days in cleaning up the refuse of cans, automobiles, etc., thrown promiscuously about the plains near the Whitefish hill and on the old Carth road. A crew of men have removed all this refuse to the proper place one half mile south of the hill and in the future a clean place will be kept to see that the ordinance relative to the disposal of refuse is observed. The heaps of rubbish thrown about the plains in disregard of the laws have been an eyesore to all people who enjoy motoring over the plains roads or who are out day picking arbutus or blueberries in season.

The township officials have been criticized for the conditions existing there and numerous complaints were received by them but it is not a fault of the officials but of the local people who made the conditions what they were. The township a number of years ago purchased suitable grounds for the dumping of rubbish and tried to get the people to use it. It was soon disregarded and one load of rubbish after another was strewn about the plains. As one prominent citizen said, "I never knew there were so many automobiles in Masonville township. There are the remnants of a wreck on every half acre."

The dumping ground is easily reached by taking the first right hand road at the top of the Whitefish Hill and driving from one half to one mile south. A strict enforcement of the state laws and township ordinance will be observed by the township officials in the future and all violators prosecuted.

NOTICE

Dumping of refuse on public or private lands other than designated dumping grounds is prohibited by state law. Dumping grounds are located one half to one mile south of top of Whitefish hill. The state law and village ordinance will be rigidly enforced and violators prosecuted.

A Weekly Panorama or Events in the National Capital by Peter Keenan, Special Correspondent for Delta Reporter.

THE DEMOCRATIC convention was the "hottest ever" in the Houston temperature was responsible.

JESSE JONES was a daring man—making the Democrats to meet in a "down south" climate this summer. But he got away with it. Visitors to Houston were impressed with the program and the big Texas city. They traveled across through Texas to gain an impression of the greatness of this enormous state—a state five times the size of New York. But, my, how they were scorched by the sun. But the sun suffered from the constant breeze temper the heat. The nights, contrasted with the days, are cool and nice.

AWAY FROM home, Jesse Jones is a hero. He has been the Democratic party agent, generous with his money. He did the big thing for Houston in landing a national convention for his home town. But strange enough there are those in his home town who are less than welcoming. Other "big boys" of Houston shipped in to help raise the necessary money to entertain the convention, but the big question, etc. but later they did some good thinking because they realized that Jesse Jones got the credit. But Jesse Jones really deserves the credit—lots of credit.

BRASS BANDS and orchestras, imbued with the Al Smith usual worked overtime in playing "The Soldiers of New York." Indiana "Dixie" had to take second place as the Houston Convention.

THE WIDOWS of the late Democratic President and Vice President—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Thomas J. Marshall—were the co-conveners at Al Smith's home. Mr. Marshall's support of Al Smith, however, was qualified to the extent that Evelyn Woodson of the home state of Indiana was her first choice. She was a Deliaite. Mrs. Wilson was an interested observer.

THE NEW YORKER who invaded Houston as Al Smith's enthusiastic were miniature brown-derbies. Al Smith's brown-derby has become as well known to the country as Vice President Davis' trick suit.

A Newspaper photographer proposed to Senator Pat Harrison that he pose for his picture whispering in the ear of a donkey. Pat thought it a fine idea. He gave his consent. But when he went outside of the Rice Hotel at Houston to put into the donkey's ear, he balked. The photographer had a jacket, rather than a donkey, in waiting. Pat knew the difference; the photographer didn't. It took two hours for the photographer to produce a real donkey, a regular Democratic donkey. At last the photo was taken.

CLINTON GILBERT, Washington newspaper man and author of the "Mirrors of Washington," never had seen cotton growing until he went to Texas. "Wonder why they grow so many beans down here," observed Gilbert as he rode on the train going out of the window. A Texan, to his embarrassment, answered that he had mistaken cotton for beans. From a distance, the cotton plant, when about a foot high, has the appearance of beans.

GEORGE BRENNAN, Illinois Democratic leader, doesn't worry about what a party platform declares. Who reads a platform anyhow? Psychologists, he observed, say that only one person in every 25,000 thinks, and in Brennan's opinion an even less percentage read a party platform. The candidate himself is the platform, asserts Brennan.

"I'LL BET," Opined a wag "that Mrs. Coolidge is glad her husband is soon to retire from the presidency so that she won't have to continue smiling for both of them."

THOMAS TANGART was missed at the Houston convention. The colorful Democratic leader, a figure in every national convention for more than forty years, was advised by his physician that it would be a risk to his health to make the trip. Mr. Tangart, who is Democrat of French Lick, Ind., recently celebrated his fiftieth wedding anniversary. He is in his early seventies.

HUBERT WORK, who is to retire as Secretary of Interior to become the Republican national chairman, is a physician by profession. He now becomes the party doctor. If the C. O. P. is ill, Dr. Work will be expected to apply remedies that "will be good for what ails it."

The Latest Way "Aren't you happy, now that the furniture people are willing to let you pay for the furniture by installments?" "I should be if they'd let me pay the installments by installments."—London Evening News.

DISCUSSES FINANCE AND IDEALS AT CHAUTAUQUA

GORDON B. SMITH

We hear much of the materialistic state of mind which is possessing the people of the world and particularly Americans. People have been divided into two general classes—the Idealist and the Materialist—and it is the popular notion that there is a clear line of demarcation between the two—that a person in one class does not and cannot possess any of the characteristics of the other class. Gordon B. Smith, a student, thinker and orator of national reputation, in his lecture "Financing Ideals," on the fifth night of the Chautauqua, will contrast some popular fallacies and endeavor to show that the man or woman living a well balanced life cannot be placed in either of these extreme classes, but as a matter of fact, occupies a middle ground—thinking and acting in a practical way some of the principles of the Idealist, and some of the characteristics of the Materialist. Mr. Smith's lecture is an interesting and enlightening one. It is a practical way some of the principles of the Idealist, and some of the characteristics of the Materialist. Mr. Smith's lecture is an interesting and enlightening one. It is a practical way some of the principles of the Idealist, and some of the characteristics of the Materialist.

Heard, But Not Seen "Friend (on next street)—Hello, Smith. I hear you have a message." "That's my brave day," said Mrs. Jordan. "I usually have so much to do that you would probably find my message at my home." "Oh, that's all right, madam," the sucker meat replied. "I'm used to seeing housewives in their kimonos."—Fairbanks.

Catching White Fish With Hook and Line Now Said to Be Possible, and Great Sport

Fishermen in the State, always on the alert for some new sport in the open air, are turning their attention to the possibility of catching white fish with the hook and line. It has been generally supposed by the Michigan fishermen that it was impossible to capture these palatable beauties with tackle. But the Department of Conservation has information from New York State which points out that New York anglers have for years been catching the whitefish and enjoying the sport immensely.

There are several inland lakes in Michigan where whitefish are known to exist. They are found in Long Lake, Alpena County; Torch and Elk Lakes, Antion County; Muskegon Lake and Blue Lake, Charlevoix County; and Higgins Lake, Roscommon County. Preparations for catching this species of fish and the methods used are briefly given herewith. Establish a buoy in the lake; this may be done by using a line from the early summer months but after July it is better to seek deep water. The bait should be made of a right foot pole, four inches in diameter, and attach to it a piece of wire or strong rope. On the free end of the rope, which is a 25 or 100 pound weight for an anchor. The wire or rope must be sufficient to hold the bottom and still leave some of the pole sticking above the water. The depth of the water will determine the length of the wire or rope. In New York fishermen respect each other's baits and never fish at the same place. The sucker meat is taken by removing the sucker from the boat when ready to cast the bait. Two men should take the bait, put the sucker meat on a hook and when the other prepares to lower the anchor, hold the anchor in the middle of the boat and drop it in a dropped from either side if necessary, but may result. With the buoy in place the fishermen proceeds to scatter bait. From 25 feet in all directions. From the buoy in dropping the bait. About a half pint of bait should be used daily for three or four days before actual fishing is started. Canned sweet corn, macaroni, rice, apples, or whole sweet corn is good bait to scatter. Ideal bait for the hook is sucker meat. Remove the skin from the sucker meat (if sucker meat is not obtainable, use the white meat of any fish) place a piece on the hook and lower the line so that the bait is 18 inches from the bottom. Hold the pole very still. If a female whitefish is caught, remove the spawn and liver. Place a piece of the spawn on the hook and then on the very point, attach a small piece of liver. This combination is the very best whitefish bait for the fish will swallow the entire portion without ever stopping to nibble. If sweet corn is used on the hook, put on two kernels that have been well soaked.

Heartbreaking

They were very much in love with each other and the young girl had but recently accepted an engagement ring from her lover. Although everything was perfectly planned for her future, the young man was impulsive to the point of folly. "Tell me, dear," he pleaded, "have you ever been kissed before?" The girl blushed. She did not know what to say for the best. "Well, yes; only twice." She confessed reluctantly. "What?" he shrieked. "Who by?" "Don't be ridiculous, dear," returned the girl. "It was only the church choir and the cracker man."—London Answers.
