SEEKS TOURIST HOTEL

EXPERIENCED HOTEL OPERATOR TELLS LOCAL COMMITTEE PROJECT PROMISING

Members of the operating committee representing the Gladstone City Club reported at Wednesday night's meeting the plans outlined to them by an experienced hotel man, and who indicated his interest in the local project. The report for the committee was made by R. J. Riley, who with the other members attended a conference with the hotel man on Tuesday night.

Suggest Sites
This hotel man declared that at least 75 per cent of the business that would be done locally would be drawn from visitors and tourists, and that to be successful it would have to be so built and located as to offer the greatest attractions to that class of trade. He stated it is his belief that the hotel should be located near the shore, within a foot of 10th street if a suitable site could be secured, and this with the beautification of the shore line would offer attractions unsurpassed by any of the resort hotels now in the business.

Such a structure, built along modern lines, entirely fireproof but without expensive adornments, would prove itself a mecca for tourists seeking the greatest natural attractions, all of which could be found here. He expressed it as his belief that it should contain not less than 75 rooms, so arranged that part of them could be shut off during winter months when the hotel would be slack. Contrary to the common belief, he gave it as his opinion that the summer business would make the business a paying venture even with a moderate rate charged, much less than is usually charged at similar hotels. If Gladstone will interest itself in the building of such a structure, he indicated his willingness to furnish it and operate it, and pay a rental high enough to give the investors a return on their money.

Discuss New Business
Charles Sundberg, of Grand Rapids, a furniture maker, and Fred Lindberg of this city, a boat builder, trained in the business, were guests of the club, and the directors are going to investigate possibilities in these industries in which these men are interested. The meeting was attended by over 30, a fine attendance for this time of year when the weather is away from the city. It was held at the Riello Club rooms where Mr. and Mrs. Corbett served the business luncheon.

Rev. C. E. Olsson Grew Up In An Orphanage; Had $10 at 17, And Desire to Become A Minister

Rev. C. E. Olsson, for seven years, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Church, was left an orphan at the age of three years, and obtaining the education that would admit him to the ministry meant fight every inch of the way. He came to America with his parents, at the age of three. His father's death shortly afterward, was followed by his mother's in a few months. The boy was placed in an orphan's home in Lindover, Illinois where his first years of strong determination to become a clergyman grew as he reached manhood.

$10 In His Pocket
"How I was going to obtain the education, and where the money was going to come from, I did not know," Rev. Olsson said, "and to this day it all seems like a miracle to me that I did come through alright."

At the age of 17, full of hopes and promise for the future with $10 in his pocket, he entered Augustana College. He knew that when he became of age he would receive an inheritance of $25, from his parents, and $150 from an uncle, and of further finances he had no assurance. "In those days it wasn't like these days, when a boy goes to school by holding part time jobs," Rev. Olsson stated.

His first job was as a janitor, working with the school overlooking his tuition. That summer he went back to the orphan's home to pay off his debt before he could begin his entire course. At the beginning of his third year of college life, he received $100 from his stepmother. At the close of his college course he worked for two years to pay off his debt before he could begin his entire course. He finished school with a debt of only $500.

Each family will bring their own picnic luncheon, and coffee, cream sugar, and ice cream will be furnished on the grounds.

500 MILLERS TO PICNIC AUG. 2

ANNUAL GATHERING TO BE AT MILLE COQUINS LAKE FOR THIS YEAR

The annual Soo Line Shop Employees picnic, the fourth gathering of its kind, will be held this year at Lake Mille Coquins, about 80 miles east of here on the Soo Line railroad and about the same distance away on Highway U. S. 2. Committees are already at work making plans to make it the biggest and best outing. The general public is invited to participate and special excursion rates will be made for those traveling by train. Last year the picnic joined with the railroaders in making the outing a great success and if this year's gathering eclipse's it, it will be a real one.

Plenty to Enjoy
Fine facilities are available at Mille Coquins for an enjoyable outing for entire families. There is a fine sandy beach for bathing; boats for rides on the lake and for fishing excursions. Then on the grounds there will be races, contests and games, the feature of which will be the baseball class between the rip track and round house strong men.

The picnic will be held during the afternoon and evening at Terrace Gardens. There will be an afternoon of games and contests featured by the baseball game between picked teams. There is strong competition, and the outcome of the game will be eagerly watched by members of the two city forces.

Each family will bring their own picnic luncheon, and coffee, cream sugar, and ice cream will be furnished on the grounds.

THEFTS ADMITTED IN LOCAL HOMES

Albert Ross, alias Edwin Cook, who is one of a gang of four, is being held at the County Jail at Escanaba in connection with stealing from homes in Escanaba and Gladstone. Ross admits he and his crowd visited about twelve Gladstone homes during last week, stealing six fur coats, several neckties, and other jewelry, a sum of $150 and a suitcase from the Glad Jacobson home at 915 Michigan avenue.

The suitcase, the property of one of the Lippin Amusement Company employes who was stopping there, was returned.

Ross was taken by Chief Lindahl through the streets of the city, and he pointed out the houses he had entered, and told of the articles stolen. He confessed to having entered the John Erickson home on Minnesota avenue last week, making two or three passes containing about ten dollars. He was caught by Charles Brotherton of Escanaba, employed by the Gladstone Steam Laundry, who was looking for him through the alley in back of the Erickson home. The money was found on Minnesota avenue, but he made a check-up nothing was found to be missing. Likewise, trace of the owners of the fur coats which he claims his gang stole, has been found.

Ross is described as a half-wit, and little confidence is placed in his story by authorities.

He claimed not to be wise to all the secrets of the gang, having been with them for only three months. He said the stolen goods were sent to Menominee until a sufficient quantity had been gathered. Then they were taken to Chicago and sent to Ross told of following the Lippin Amusement Company in their equipment. They were not connected with the Carnival in any way, but found that the shows attract people from their homes, and produce a good opportunity for their theft.

He claims they have committed about 300 holdups and burglaries during the past few months in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan cities.

He said that the executive conference of the Rotary clubs for the 10th District of Rotary International which is being held at the Gladstone club and will be in attendance at the sessions which will be conducted on Thursday and Friday of this week.

Chats with The Editor

THE national election comes in November and that is the time county officers will be elected but solar as Gladstone voters are concerned, along with those of the rest of the county, the real contest for the county offices is in the primary that takes place on Sept. 4, when Republicans will have a choice for a few of the offices to be voted for. As there is no Democratic ticket in the field, the Republican nomination is as good as being elected. Delta once had enough Democrats to give the Republicans a race, that is once in a while, but now it is so long since they've engaged in a contest that the voter takes it for granted that a single ticket will be in the field when election time rolls around.

It may be that with the minority party staging an effort to come back in national affairs that some of the old-time Democrats will come to life again, but the chances are against their being enough of them to exert their influence. And in case Al Smith is defeated, not the least probable, there is even less likelihood that the party will ever amount to anything again. Which means a continuance of the one-party system and a lessening of public interest, for it must be admitted that a division of thought on political issues is essential to widespread public participation.

There should be two major parties engaging in political contests and the one being generally recognized that there is no noticeable difference in the two major parties in national affairs, there are even fewer local differences and the need is emphasized for the advocacy of something new by a newly created political organization. As a suggestion, why could there not be a Progressive party advocating a County Manager form of government?

In trying to answer that question, please bear in mind that under the present system there is no centralized authority, no provision for co-ordination of the work of the various county departments, and even with honest and capable public officials there must be some waste of time, money and effort.

THE charge that the present state administration has been extravagant in the expenditure of state funds cannot be substantiated for some time to come, considerably after election time has come and gone. There are two incontrovertible facts in connection with higher revenues—first the gas tax was raised from two to three cents per gallon, providing some $9,000,000 more from that source for the past year; the property tax for state purposes was raised about $7,000,000, from about Seventeen million to Twenty four million dollars in round figures. That would indicate that the administration has had more funds to handle for the will not alarm the people until such time as it can be judged in what manner the funds were expended. That is really what counts.

It was charged at the time of the last legislative session that the outgoing administration had left a deficit aggregating about $4,000,000, and while after reading both sides to the controversy that developed this writer never believed that there was an actual deficit, we have felt that that too, was a matter for the time to determine impartially. If there was such a deficit, the administration should find it within its power to reduce the state levy during the second two years of its incumbency, this granting that Gov. Fred W. Green will be re-elected as now seems very probable.

We reiterate that results are what count. According to financial statistics prepared for Michigan by the Department of Commerce, the 1927 per capita expenditure was $11.84, and for the year before under the former administration $10.42. That means that the rate was $1.42 for each of the 4,443,000 people estimated to be living in Michigan at the present time. A tidy sum, but not an alarming one if it was wisely expended.

THOSE new traffic lights installed some few weeks ago at the intersection of Delta-Ninth street, cause more trouble for local motorists than they do for the strangers. This is because the local motorist is so accustomed to guiding himself according to traffic that many times he completely overlooks the injunction to stop for the red light, whether or not there is a way traffic against him. This condition is obviously going to continue until the lights are remembered as a fixture.

There has been some confusion as to when a turn is permissible on the red. With red against the driver, only a RIGHT turn is permissible and then only after a stop and start when it does not interfere with traffic having the right of way. Motorists should try to remember always to get into the line of traffic on the side from which they expect to make a turn. In other words they should look to the right when intending to make a turn in that direction, and to the left when intending to turn left. These simple rules will facilitate traffic, and failing to be understood will prove more troublesome than if there was no traffic light to serve as a guide.

WHILE on the subject of traffic, pedestrians are reminded again to FACE TRAFFIC when walking on highways. This means that they must walk on the left side of the road. Failure to observe this rule is going to cost someone dearly, perhaps it will mean a life. Between the Buckeye Addition and Kipling conditions are especially dangerous and at night when a driver is blinded by incoming lights it is almost impossible to distinguish bodies. With the bathing season on and many cars stopping at the tourist park, there are many pedestrians on the Lake Shore drive and they, too should remember to keep to the left of the road. This is for their protection and not for the convenience of the motorist. He is perfectly willing to turn out, but sometimes he may not see the reason while he should. And it is the pedestrian who would suffer.

MANISTIQUE is staging a Home Coming celebration next week August 5 to 12. Nothing particularly startling in that, but it is noteworthy that the citizens of that city have manifested a spirit of aggressiveness that has kept their city very much alive during a time when many breaks were going against it. This spirit has succeeded in bringing Manistique to a point where it may now look forward to the development of its resources on a plane that will assure the steady and continuous growth of the city and county, so that those who elected to remain on the grounds to fight a game uphill battle will reap the benefit of their faith in their home city.

Manistique suffered as did many cities that were bannished through the production of war products. It, too, its furnace, its chemical plant, and some allied industries were practically snuffed out when the armistice was signed. Property was shot to pieces and property valuations tumbled. Those more concerned with money making than with the principle of the fight wisely pulled up stakes and embarked for more promising fields. But Manistique was not dead! Not so until its citizens agreed that it was. Instead of any such agreement the leaders reorganized their Chamber of Commerce and set about to rebuild again.

New Manistique is becoming known as a desirable stop-over for tourists. That is a growing business. It has some good farm land and the chances of its development are now better than ever before. The paper mill remained a going concern throughout the flutter and helped to keep the city on the map. The city's future now assured, the old timers, among them those who became "afraid of the cars," may now return and celebrate the "Home Coming," an event made possible by the citizens with vision who remained on the job even when times looked dark and gloomy. May the celebration be a most successful affair, a credit to the citizens not afraid to shoulder the burden of arranging it. That is the spirit that builds real cities.

MANY cities are now being urged to provide airports to prepare for the development in the flying field that is development at a rapid pace. As is the usual case, community newspapers are among the first to get before the people the need to foresee the future and to provide for it. The day is not far distant when the town without a landing field will be in the same predicament as is the one today without a main highway close to its door. It simply will not be on the map.

A city like Gladstone is an odd fix. Its proximity to a larger center, like Escanaba, where the need is being met adequately renders it less important for early action. For the time being at least it is but another of the conveniences that we must rely upon from our neighbor city. There being little likelihood of definite action, it is not amiss to be satisfied, especially since our neighbors have been setting a pace to lead in the development of living as a means of transportation and communication in this part of Michigan.

Gladstone has plenty of level land, now idle and without value, which might readily and without too much cost be transformed into a desirable landing field. Again it takes vision to see the opportunity. And the visionaries so often are without the financial essential to make their dreams come true. For a proper balance of the two qualities!

RAIN is nature's balm that soothes many ills. Aside from its value to farm and garden produce, consider its value as a deterrent to the forest fire menace. Up to very recently, when many weather set in, the sun had scorched the fields and forests and members of the conservation department were faced with a serious task of putting out the fires that were starting all over this section of the state. None of them reached serious proportions because they were promptly placed under control, but without rain there was no telling what the developments might have been.

Charles Coon of this city, deputy game and fire warden, had one experience that gives the uninitiated some idea of the seriousness of the fire menace. He had gone up the Escanaba River to keep in touch with the game warden on an about noon engaged in a conversation with some Escanaba picnickers. The visit was a short one and Mr. Coon had turned away to return to his car when he was summoned hurriedly. The camp fire had spread via the dry grass. As customary he carried picks and shovels in his car, and he and the men in the party were forced to extend themselves for more than three hours before the fire could be brought under control. Failure to control it would have meant the destruction of a fine area of second growth.

Whenever rain interferes with your work or play, just remember its value in other directions. You won't feel so bad.

GLADSTONE'S experience with sneak thieves who harass the homes is not unlike similar experiences in other cities of the same class. In fact it is noticeable that nearly all towns and cities are bothered with the same trouble. Usually it is found, when an arrest is made, that it is the work of boys not possessed with sufficient moral character to resist the temptations they are subjected to. Many housewives become careless about leaving their homes unguarded and it is the easiest thing in the world for those so minded to take advantage of the opening. Others see how easy it is and are prompted to try it themselves. After reports of a few thefts, homes are better guarded and generally the practice dies down—until carelessness again makes petty stealing easy.

The youth who can resist the temptation to take what belongs to others is in a sorry plight, and sooner or later he will realize it, likely from behind prison bars, where society has had to cast him in order to protect itself. The best thing that can happen to such a character is that he is caught early in his career in order that he might learn the lesson that honesty is the best policy.

HERBERT Hoover has taken a lesson from the past and conferred with Senator Hiram Johnson on his arrival in California. It will be remembered that in 1916 Charles Evans Hughes "high-hatted" the then popular senator, and the Republican lost the state after it had been counted safely in the GOP column.

CURRENT COMMENT

A TREASURE CHEST (Chas Tessevan in Noway Current)

Every community has in it a few fine men who are always willing to dig up their money for anything that will advance the interests of their town. On the other hand, there are always a few who will sit back and refuse to help any cause that isn't to their own immediate personal and material interest. The tightwad appears to have about as good a time as the general citizen. Of course his skin is thick and the facts of ridicule and arrows of sarcasm have had no effect whatever upon him. The fact of the matter, he is so blinded by the glitter of his own money that he can't see an inch from his nose. About the only satisfaction such a man has as the days pass by, is to know that the people are patiently waiting for him to pass in his checks so they can get his money and see what it will buy them. Every community has such persons—maybe we have them right here. When they wander on when they so want their names will very probably not even be placed on readable tablets. Their money, however, will be spent very probably in riotous living. The departed friend is in fact a treasure chest to the succeeding generation.

STATE "PORK" DISTRIBUTION (M. H. DeFoes in Charlotte Republican)

Ninety-two Michigan cities and villages will participate in the "pork" distribution made possible through a clause in the last gas tax law. This is the best state example of what has been meant all these years by the federal "pork" legislation, which is included in a measure to bring it votes on a roll call. In Eaton Rapids and Bellevue are included in the present plan of distribution devised by the last legislature. This is a neat trick, as no doubt a welcome dividend in all these communities. But what does it mean? Simply this, that the money collected for more roads is being diverted from the original purpose of the gas tax—new roads. The state must shortly pay attention to the side road problem and maintain the network of highways is complete proceeds of the gas tax should go largely for new construction. The money sent the several communities will not result in a single instance in better local taxes—the state payment merely becomes an "extra" for something else. With this taste of the old "pork" it isn't going to be any easy matter for future legislators to discard this scheme of disbursement or something akin to it in local benefits.

CONGRATULATIONS, CRYSTAL FALLS (Iron River Reporter)

Cystal Falls constantly keeps furnishing west side municipalities and other upper peninsula cities with what their determination of purpose, unity of thought, and unselfish cooperation and leadership can achieve, even under adverse conditions.

Not long ago the fruition of these combined qualities gave Cystal Falls the American Legion memorial known as the Cystal Inn, a magnificent structure filling a vital community need.

On Saturday of this week Cystal Falls will celebrate and dedicate a nine-hole golf course which has few peers in the upper peninsula. With righteous pride, Cystal Falls has hidden all come, see and use, if they desire, the new links.

The leadership and the kindred forces that have given Cystal Falls this constructive piece of work should have commendable and praiseworthy recognition. The task has not been small nor without its obstacles. In the past few years Cystal Falls has had a bad break, industrially, and enough misfortune to discourage more timorous men. But had

Potato Seed Production (Manistique Pioneer Tribune) If the soil and climatic conditions are deemed favorable, and the cooperation of farmers in the Upper Peninsula is forthcoming, it is possible that a Green Mountain Seed Potato Project may be launched here another year, similar to the Triumph and Irish Cobbler Projects being carried on in the Dakotas. E. F. Johnson, General Agricul-tural Agent of the Soo Line Railroad and K. P. Bemis, Manager Seed Department, Albert Miller and Company, Chicago, spent a day with County Agent Stewart on a tour of inspection of potato fields in the county and in conference with a number of growers. "They were very well pleased with the possibilities for seed potato production in Schoolcraft county," says County Agent Stewart, "and they also stated that the outlook in Chironwa county was very good."

MARTIN VICTIM OF WAR WOUNDS

DEATH RELIEVES SUFFERING OF YOUNG MAN WHO SERVED HIS COUNTRY

Arthur J. Martin, 35, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martin who reside on a farm four miles north, passed away Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock after an illness of several years. He was an ex-service man having enlisted in the chemical warfare service shortly after the outbreak of the war. Illness due to the nature of his work in the service resulted in a general breakdown in his health several years ago and he suffered a paralytic stroke from which he never fully recovered.

Mr. Martin entered a government hospital at Maywood, Ill. and later was at a hospital at Washburn, Wis. where he spent nearly two years but when his condition became more serious and little could be accomplished by his removal to his old home. More strokes followed and practically made him a cripple but he was always cheerful and made light of his sickness.

Arthur J. Martin was born here February 11, 1893 and lived here all his life. He is survived by his wife and two little children, besides his parents and several brothers and sisters. Funeral services will not yet be arranged but will probably take place Friday morning at 9:00 o'clock from St. Charles Catholic church.

DELICIOUS CHERRIES GROWN BY MILKES

Red, ripe cherries of the new Richmond variety have been raised from a number of trees on the Milkes homestead near Farm Lake disproving the belief that cherries cannot be grown on the sandy, plain soil. Mr. Milkes has given many samples to his friends and if one did not know just where the cherries were grown they would believe they were the Sturgeon Bay cherries.

Mr. Milkes believes cherries could be made productive in this region with the proper care and with the many acres of suitable lands it would be worth the venture. He will plant more trees until the orchard will take up all his time for its care.

HOLMSTROM BOY AGAIN IN ARMY HOSPITAL

Dexter Holmstrom is again in the Station hospital at Fort Riley, Kansas, due to the injuries he received several months ago when he was thrown from his horse and suffered a broken leg. Last week he went out on the table and had the leg re-broken and set. It has been giving him much pain but according to his letter to a friend here he is feeling better and believes he will have a good leg after all. Dexter is in the U. S. Cavalry stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas, but at present his address is Station hospital, Ward 1.

A Torrent of Soapy Water Kept Hot by

The Cast-Aluminum Tub

THE Maytag was the original synthetic foam washer, which makes water do the washing. But the Maytag does more than that—it keeps the water hot to expand the meshes of the clothes, loosen the dirt and aid the cleaning action of the soap. It also keeps the soap thoroughly mixed with the water where it will do the most good.

These are some of the reasons why the Maytag washing faster—an entire washing in an hour or so; washes cleaner—collars, cuffs and grimy overalls without hand-rubbing; washes delicate garments hand carefully.

Wringing the clothes is easy with the marvelous New Maytag Soft-Roller Water Remover—another exclusive Maytag advantage. It is practically automatic in every operation.

Calls Your Attention to SOUTHEASTERN MICHIGAN

The 300-mile shore line of Southeastern Michigan, curving northward from the Ohio border on Lake Erie, follows the busy Detroit river, rounds beautiful Lake St. Clair, the Flats and St. Clair river, bounds the mighty waters of Lake Huron and forms the outline of the Thumb by circling Saginaw Bay.

This water-bordered land, cooled by the gentle breezes from two of the Great Lakes, is one of the Wolverine state's ideal vacation sections.

Dynamic Detroit, the automobile and aviation center of the world, with its beautiful suburban development, has many sister cities in the form of Kalamazoo, frequently called "the Carlsbad of America" because of the popularity of its mineral baths; Port Huron, with its sloping white sand beaches at the headwaters of the St. Clair river; Pontiac, the thriving manufacturing center, joined with Detroit by the nation's greatest highway; and many other thriving towns. All hold great educational, scenic and recreational interest.

"En Passant"

TOURIST FRIENDS
 Cars, craved with dust, with luggage strapped to running boards, occupants, men and women, knickerbockers and dusters, looking a bit dusty too, is the picture of the average American tourist manning the average automobile through Gladstone these days. And the local tourist park is attracting many of them. Driving past at the summer home, the car is contented and seated around a campfire enjoying their meal. Tents are scattered here and there, and the means of travel, every thing from crowded roadsters to tourist buses, are parked here and there.

DRIP, DRIP, DRIP
 During a heavy rain storm, a man passed beneath an awning of a down town hotel, and he will tell you that somewhat. Coatless, with white trousers and Oxford, he seemed fearful of the havoc that the rain could wreak. He hurriedly hurried on, but he was not to be hurried. He had to wait for a few seconds, and he had to wait for a few seconds. He had to wait for a few seconds, and he had to wait for a few seconds. He had to wait for a few seconds, and he had to wait for a few seconds.

SNO GOOD
 One skating fan was wishing for an artificial ice rink the other day. Yes, that and bathing in the middle of January, initiation snow to ski on all summer, and by that time we wouldn't know what we wanted any of the time. "Alvance makes the heart grow fonder," and any other heartening proverb like that you can think of.

ALBIN DIDN'T CATCH THOSE
 Albin Nelson, while in Detroit, viewed some pickled that were supposed to be representative of the largest available. They were only about twenty inches in length, the size that fishermen around here don't even mention with their big nets. Mr. Nelson gave the poor fish a squelching look, and told the manager in charge of the aquarium that he'd send him some Pike some day.

WHICH IS WHICH
 An advertisement in a City paper announces that no building permits for air castles are obtainable. What do they mean by air castles, fly dreams, or sky scrapers?

THAT'S NOT NICE
 There was supposed to have been a total eclipse of the moon on July 23rd, visible only in South America, Australia and eastern Asia. Has some place to have an eclipse.

Observations and Comment

By Alice Fox

He waited for a few seconds, and then setting the hat back on his head started out fearlessly through the shower. He didn't care if he did get wet, good and wet.

IN THE WRONG PEW
 By night, these prize fights ought to be recorded in the financial column instead of on the sport page. Tex Rickard says the fight between Henery and Tarnney didn't pull the crowd he had anticipated, and the cash receipts suffered accordingly. And that would be an opportunity for the one value on fights to be covered in the stock reports.

YOU TOO BRUTUS
 "Aw! there's no Jennie Street up at Rapid River," one resident from that town told us after reading our comment last week about the old time settler who was unable to direct a visitor to that street. So that makes two Rapid River residents who don't know they have a Jennie Street. Well it's there some place or other.

Must be nice to wake up and find you have something like that that you don't know anything about 'till it puts a couple of good cookies in your pocket for a mid-afternoon luncheon, forgetting all about 'em and then suddenly running your fingers into 'em. Must feel just that about same way right.

They marvelled that anything so lovely as Dolores could live in the sordid vine covered house with its cracked masonry and neglected grounds.

Don Luis has gone—I am not proud of the second story his blood has told—he is cowardly! I hate him! "There, there, my dear," and not knowing what else to do he oated her hand over and over again.

"You are within your rights," said Terry, returning the paper. "I have no legal right to stop you; however, I suggest that you wait.

The afternoon sunlight was casting fantastic shadows on the ground as they stood by the old brick grounds, but just when the surveyor accepted the letter from Terry a different, a taller and more waterwing shadow fell between them.

Looking up, they saw a white haired old man standing before them with upraised sword. On his wrinkled face there was an expression of grim determination and anger.

"Be gone!" he ordered, brandishing the sword.

"That is enough," interrupted Vasquez. "Senor, show me your hand and with your forgiveness for my anger, and so, you defended my little girl!"

"I have driven them away!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "I shall not take my home away from me—it is all I have!"

Don Luis had watched and listened to the entire proceeding with growing surprise. It was unthinkable that the Vasquez ranch was to be seized. He knew the property was invaluable and had counted upon acquiring all the acres when Dolores became his wife—in fact that was the reason he wanted her.

"I am afraid it does," replied Dolores sadly. "We refused to sell and are being forced out by an unprincipled politician who will take our land."

"Carranza!" exclaimed Don Luis, taken aback to curb the outbreak. It was an expression of some disappointment, not regret for Dolores' misfortune.

"Water Melons each 15c"

"Raspberries each 35c"

"Calif. Peas dozen 40c"

He could think of no quicker way out of the situation and he had no desire to waste a moment in futile courting since the true state of affairs had been revealed.

as your friend in the very man who employed my uncle to buy your property. When you refused to sell Backwell decided to release the Vasquez and grants involved, then he became fascinated with your granddaughter and when she repulsed him he next step was to hire surveyors to map out the land for him. It is against the law, but he is influential and can do it. He wants much acreage around San Francisco as he can get."

There was more that Terry could have said but Dolores had warned him never to mention her trips into town, nor anything detailed about the ball hour at the Crystal Palace. She wanted to spare her Grandfather as much anguish as possible.

"I am grateful, senor, for all you have done," Vasquez inclined his head politely. "It was my error not to heed your warning yesterday."

"Oh, yes, Grandfather," she interrupted. "I am more than believe in him!" her eyes sought Terry with their wonderful message of love.

BESSMER—All of the property owned by the Charcoal Iron Co. of America, at Marquette and 25,000 acres of timber and land holdings in Gogebic and Ontonagon counties have been taken over by the Filliam Bonifer Lumber company of Escanaba, it was announced by E. E. Redmond, local representative for the James E. Lacey company, operating agents for the receivers who have been in charge of the Charcoal Iron Co. since its liquidation.

The figure involved in the transaction was not made public, but it is known that a cash sum was paid for the properties through the receivers by the purchasers.

Marquette holdings include a saw-mill and lumber plant, roundhouse, store and office building, boarding house, 43 residences, 160 acres located in the south part of the village and considerable railway equipment.

The land purchased by the Bonifer company consists of 25,000 acres located in Marquette and Wakefield townships in Gogebic county, 1,000 acres in Ontonagon county. Although the new owners have made no initial announcement concerning their future plans, it is known they also are doubling the capacity of the Marquette mill. L. E. Redmond, who has been in charge of the Charcoal Iron properties in Gogebic county the last few years, stated that he did not know who will act as a representative of the Bonifer company.

Galloping Ghosts of the Whispering Campaign

As soon as I was mentioned as a candidate for the office of Probate Judge the whispering campaign began. My clients were told that they would lose my services as a lawyer. That would be terrible. My friends were told that I would lose a valuable law practice. More ghostly horrors. So when I sent out sixteen letters (which my opponent chooses to call circulars) on June 21st, asking men whom I considered my friends, to get some petitions for nomination signed I made certain statements in that letter about continuing my law practice. I did not make this statement specific enough. My opponent in his long and tedious argument to the people in last Sunday's issue of the Press printed a part of the statement, and omitted a part which modifies and explains the part he did repeat. I give the paragraph in full herewith. The small type is the part my opponent printed, and the capital letters portion is the part he omitted, as follows:

"I might add that I expect to continue my law practice and handle the office of Judge of Probate AS IT IS HANDLED IN OTHER COUNTIES OF THE STATE BY ACTIVE LAWYERS WHO FIND THAT SEVERAL DAYS A WEEK IS ENOUGH TO TAKE CARE OF THE PROBATE COURT, ESPECIALLY WHEN THE OFFICE IS SUPPLIED WITH A COMPETENT REGISTER."

This statement, or the first part of it at least, has been seized upon by my opponent to make an argument that I would be a PART TIME judge on a FULL TIME salary.

I was prosecuting attorney of this county on one occasion for four years and at a later time for six years. The people of the County know whether or not I was a part time prosecutor. No one will deny that I was always on the job, giving the people's business my best attention and all the time it needed. And I think my record in that office is a guarantee that the work of the probate office will be handled in a thorough and efficient manner. Yet, when I was the prosecutor, I had, like all prosecutors have, my civil law practice, just as I have now, and much the same as it is now. My public work never suffered. My civil law practice enabled me to make a living, together with my county salary, so that I could steer clear of the temptations of grafting.

A probate judge who is not a lawyer might find it necessary to put in all his time in the office. But it is a fact that in nearly every county in the state where the probate judge is a lawyer, that he does some civil law practice outside of his probate work. This is true of Judge Potter of Marquette County, Judge Embs of Iron County, Judge Nebel of Alger County, and scores of others who could be mentioned. It has likewise been true of our present probate judge who now seeks election for the SIXTH TERM.

The circuit court records of this county show that Judd Yelland has been in 38 Chancery cases, and 39 law cases in circuit court since he has been probate judge. He also has appeared in Federal Court during this time. No doubt he has given legal advice to many clients in matters entirely foreign to the probate court work. But he must admit that he has had his LAW PRACTICE since he has been on the probate bench. And he should not be criticised for this, as he is an able lawyer, and has had plenty of time for it, and if his general health had been better, his law practice would have been much larger than it has been.

We all know that the great bulk of the detail work of the Probate Court is done by the assistant to the probate judge, commonly known as the Register, and that the Register is constantly on duty every day in the week, and can take care of much of the work as it comes in, and does so, whether the Judge happens to be there at the moment or not.

The Judge says that he has been advising farmers and laboring men for twenty years without a cent of pay. If he chose to give this advice in return for expected political support, he has collected plenty of pay in the way of votes during all these years. Neither the farmer nor the laboring man owe him anything; they have paid him in full time and again. If he is now asking a life time job for the so called "advice" and "favours" he claims to have done, he surely is demanding a mighty big price.

More light anon. Be sure to Register.

Respectfully yours, TORVAL E. STROM

TUESDAY, AUGUST 7 Norma Shearer, Colorful Role in Monta Bell's "After Midnight"

It was during the filming of "After Midnight," Norma Shearer's new starring vehicle, that there was hardly a taxi to be had in Los Angeles for several hours.

Hundreds of the metered vehicles which usually stream down Broadway out of the spacious boulevards had gone into pictures.

The taxi aggregation represents a mental picture of what Norma Shearer and Lawrence Gray believe can be done by making one cab's earnings pay the down payment on two more ad infinitum. The dream however, is brought to a sudden end by the realization that they can't make the down payment on even one to start the nucleus of the business.

PETER DAHLSTEIN COMMITS SUICIDE

ENTERED LUTHER HOME RECENTLY TO SPEND 'SUNSET OF LIFE'

Peter Dahlstein, prominent resident of Perkins, who entered Luther Home at Marquette a few weeks ago to "spend the sunset of his life" as he wrote in a letter to The Delta Reporter, ended his life last Friday morning. Dahlstein committed suicide by placing a noose about his neck and tying the other end of the rope to a bed post and then rolling off the bed.

Mr. Dahlstein was 73 years of age. Since the death of his wife about a year ago he suffered periods of melancholy, and grieved extremely over her passing. He left a note written in Swedish beside his body in which he stated that cause of his act was to be with his dead wife. A sum of money totaling $435 was found in a pocketbook, he requested to be left to his sister, Bertha, also an inmate of the institution.

Dahlstein was an old-fashioned farmer of the Perkins district for many years and also took an active interest in the Township politics. In the note written to the Reporter under date of July 16th including remittance for his subscription, he stated: "You may remember I have entered the Luther Home for the aged here in Marquette and am setting up my affairs so that I may have a quiet time in my sunset of life." Friends of Mr. Dahlstein believed that his act was not long meditated, but that he feared his moments of depression.

He is survived by two sisters, Bertha, Luther Home, and Mrs. Inezborg Olsson who lives in Sweden.

LOWER PENINSULA NEEDS SANATORIUMS

That the northern half of the Lower Peninsula is in direct need of facilities for the treatment of tuberculosis is the opinion of one plan presented at the Michigan Sanatorium Association on July 27.

Frank and Albert Latimer of Gladstone, superintendent of the Michigan County Sanatorium, and chairman of the meeting, this portion of the state has fallen to him and the remainder in the matter of caring for its tuberculosis people.

"When we consider the great expanse of the country in the upper part of the Lower Peninsula which does not contain a tuberculosis sanatorium," he said, "it can be seen that much remains to be done before all the tuberculous people in Michigan receive treatment as provided for."

At present fourteen sanatoriums are to be found in the southern portion of the Lower Peninsula. Four have been built in the Upper Peninsula, but none are available in the middle section of the state. Tuberculous persons usually are sent from this region either to the State Sanatorium at Howell or to hospitals in distant counties, but increasing difficulty has been experienced in securing admission of patients because of lack of space.

The Michigan Sanatorium Association and the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, which have been active in recent sanatorium building activities in the state, are laying plans to secure action that will remedy this lack of sanatorium beds in the central part of the state.

JUNIOR SOLON SAYS CO-OPS ARE NEEDED

The business methods which are good on Main Street will also be good on Wall Street and alone the rural roads of Michigan, according to the opinion expressed by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg in a speech given at Michigan State College, Farmers Day.

Senator Vandenberg stressed the importance of cooperative methods in solving the present problems confronting the farmer day. He said that the 10,000 farmer's marketing associations now doing business have a membership of 2,700,000.

The senator said that, if voluntary cooperative efforts failed to give adequate relief, involuntary cooperation based on a plan similar to that used to make the Federal Reserve system a success might bring the desired results.

Michigan's junior senator pointed out the lack of background to base opinions upon the worth of any specific plan of farm relief, and said that the rejection of one plan should not prevent the trial of other plans.

Senator Vandenberg assured his audience that early congressional action would be taken on the plans advanced to better the condition of an industry which employs one-third of the residents of the United States.

Washington D. C. is one of the few large cities able to boast that it has no municipal debt. All of the operating expenses of the city are paid by the free-spending federal government.

Attorney Sues For Fe IRON RIVER

IRON RIVER—Suits for $1,000 against the Fidelity and Casualty company, of Maryland, has been brought by A. F. Dixon, Iron River attorney. It involves legal services for which Attorney Dixon claims the Maryland company has not paid. The cause is the outgrowth of the death of Louis Leonard, of Crystal Falls, who was killed in an automobile accident on the Chicago Lake road on October 18, 1926, while riding in a car driven by his cousin, Pietro Leonard, of Iron River. At the February term of circuit court the estate of Leonard charged reckless driving but the Maryland company, which held the policy, declined to provide counsel for the defendant. The jury brought in a verdict of no cause for action. Attorney Dixon, it is claimed, was the lawyer who caused lack of assistance from the casualty concern. Since that time he has continued looking for his services, he claims in the declaration.

Norway Coach Claims $25,000 IRON RIVER

IRON RIVER—Damages to the amount of $25,000 is faced by Iron county for a suit filed by the Norwegian Nolle, coach of the Norway high school, who on May 19, 1927, enroute to Houghton with a group of Norway high school youths, was thrown from an automobile when it attempted to avoid a soft spot on U. S. 192 about four miles north of Iron.

Nolle suffered a fracture of the second or third vertebra and at present is confined at the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, with dorsal abscess below the hips. Doctors at this time are not able to say whether he will recover.

In a statement filed with County Clerk John E. Carlson a week ago, Mr. Nolle declares he intends to hold Iron county liable for the full loss sustained by reason of the accident, which he ascribes to faulty marking of a bad spot in the road by the county road commission.

Mr. Nolle, with four high school boys, was journeying to a field meet at the Michigan College of Mines south of Iron. The boys were traveling at a speed of about 40 miles an hour, the party suddenly came upon three poles set upright in a soft spot in the center of the road. The driver attempted to swing around the side but the car swerved and turned over on its side beneath. The boys were unharmed.

Between 40 and 50 persons were in the delegation that attended the session, and while most of them were in a conciliatory mood, some of the more ardent appeared to be eager for an opportunity to start the blue laws grinding again, not only to bar the circus, but as a general measure for putting the lid on all forms of Sunday entertainment in the village. Only when it was pointed out that the village had no show or dance halls that were being conducted on Sunday and that there was nothing upon which a crusade could be based did this militant enthusiasm abate. At the wind-up of the discussion there appeared to be general satisfaction with the resolution adopted by the commission to ask the circus to change its playing date. Exhibition of the circus on a Sunday would be a disaster to the sabbath, it was held, and the moral effect on the community would be bad.

County May Buy Camp Site MANISTOWIC—Supervisors of Schoolcraft county will meet in special session on Friday, August 3, for the purpose of discussing the purchase site of the Indian Lake Camp Site from the A. M. Chebrough estate. Those interested in the estate have expressed their willingness to sell the camp site property and it is understood that it will be offered at public sale in Toledo shortly. This is a general feeling that the county should own the camp site location.

2000 YOUNG MEN RECEIVE TRAINING

Two thousand Michigan young men representing every county in the state, began training in special Citizens Military Training Camp at Camp Custer, Fort Brady, Fort Sheridan and Camp McQuinn, Thursday, July 26. The largest number reported for duty at Camp Custer, where 1,000 or more young men will receive training in American citizenship, military drill, leadership, military duty and other interesting subjects that young men should know. Two hundred and fifty other young men from the Upper Peninsula, and from the Upper part of the Lower Peninsula, reported at Fort Brady, and the other 750 Michigan young men reported at Ft. Sheridan where they will be trained in the cavalry, and Camp Custer, where the field artillery branch is taught. In addition to the military and other subjects every young man will have to select some athletic training that he offers to spend his afternoons at during his training.

Camp Custer has never been in better condition than it is for this year. Colonel Alvin C. Gillen, the camp commander has had the regular army battalion from the Second Infantry, under Major Stanton C. Mitchell, prepare the training grounds for the young men when they arrived. This camp is simply marvelous from every standpoint as a result of the work done by the regular army.
