BIG CROWD ENJOYS SOLD THE PICNIC

Over 400 Soo Line Employees, their families and friends boarded the special train to Mill Cocks Lake last Sunday to take part in the annual Soo Line picnic. An enthusiastic crowd was gathered at the last minute to take care of the crowd. The train arrived at the Lake about 10:30 and the day of sports began. There were varied contests for men, women and children, and prizes for these had been donated by merchants of Gladstone and Escanaba.

Among the local prize winners were Mrs. Caspard Pazo, carrying off first honors in the husband calling contest, Mr. McKnight winning first in the boat race, with Elmer Vandenberg close second. William Smith won the prize for the Soo Line employee having the largest family on the picnic. The contest was first in the fifty yard dash, and Rufus Dunn came in for second.

The final hearing on the proposed paving of Wisconsin Avenue between Central and 10th streets will be held Monday night in the City Council rooms. At that time City Manager F. R. Buecher was authorized to construct a storm water relief drain of about 500 feet on 8th street connecting with the main drain to the Bay. Work on this was deferred pending the approval of the State Board of Health on the blue prints. Work was started last week and it is expected to be completed before the hearing on Monday night.

Rev. Palmquist Admits Pet Hobbies Are Slinging Horseshoes And Working With Young People

Rev. Paul Palmquist, who came to Gladstone in June of 1927 to accept his first charge, Pastor of the Swedish Mission Church, had no definite idea of entering the ministry when he began his studies at North Park College, in the fall of 1921. He had been reared in a Christian home, with Christian ideals firmly implanted in his mind by a youth, but it was at North Park College that his desire to become a minister became definite. He continued with the 3 year theological course at North Park, and in June of 1927, came to Gladstone.

"My most interesting work is that with the young people," Rev. Palmquist stated. He worked with them, and a similar organization from the Escanaba Swedish Mission church, last season presenting an Easter Cantata, he refers to these rehearsals as one of the most pleasant experiences he has had since coming to Gladstone. He enjoys his co-operation, enthusiasm, and seeing young people enter readily into their part of "young things."

Sunday School of 100

The Sunday School of Rev. Palmquist considers the most outstanding organization of his church. The membership is 100, with twelve classes and as many teachers. T. Sohberz is the Superintendent. A campaign which added thirty new pupils to the roll was held in spring and the classes have grown under Rev. Palmquist's guidance.

"The mission church has a reputation for its willingness to lend a helping hand to people in need. Throughout the year and especially at Christmas time, considerable social work is done in the form of sending out clothing to needy families in need. Their method of raising funds at all times for this work is that of conducting four offerings Sunday after Sunday. The first for foreign missions, second for the home missionary field, third for the support of the church, and the fourth for the home church.

Slinging Horse Shoes, Hobby

When asked his net hobby, Rev. Palmquist stated that he first began to sling his garden in the rear lot, and then admitted enthusiastically to slinging horseshoes. He plays every chance he gets, and thinks it's a great game. He has a number of slinging clubs, and he is his first venture with pulling weeds, and he seems to be enjoying that experience too, though much less the horseshoes.

Unity in Religion

Rev. Palmquist believes that all of the churches should unite in a common effort made to win people for the Church and Christ.

He has a growing tendency, that has been felt throughout the Christian world to disregard things trivial and minor, and to concentrate on that which is most important. It is my belief that a united effort would help to offset this. In union there is strength, an old proverb which has been true for centuries.

"I would like to see some united effort made to win people for the Church and Christ."

Rev. Palmquist succeeded Rev. Frank Skoog to the pastorate of the local church. Rev. Skoog is now located at Chicago, but spends his summers at Spread Eagle. Among the later pastors of the church are Rev. John Hulten, Rev. I. Lonquist, and Rev. I. Hovem, the latter of whom was in Gladstone for seven years.

The congregation was organized in 1894, and the church building was erected in 1904. It was rebuilt during Rev. Hoven's pastorate, and additions were made while Rev. Skoog was here.

Rev. Palmquist points to P. L. Lindblad other individuals and the cooperation of the church organizations as being invaluable assistance in his church work, and of deserving of credit for the advancement that has made since his taking charge. Rev. Palmquist has made many friends since his coming here a little over a year ago, but he has not forgotten those who are within his own congregation, who have been glad to see him succeed at his first pastorate.

THIRD DEFEAT OF SEASON SUNDAY

Gladstone's last amateur team suffered its third defeat of the season at the hands of the Wells team in a game played here. The locals have been having a rather easy time of it soundly their way to victory when that was necessary and at other times with good pitching and good fielding holding their opponents down to fewer runs than they were able to garner. But Sunday Burns, on the mound for Wells had the edge and he held the locals down to two hits and three runs while his team garnered six hits and five runs off Buddy J. Gibbs' pitching.

Gibbs has been pitched down in lower leagues and has a good record. He was effective after the first inning but the three runs scored then by Wells and the two that came after were enough to win with Burns as effective as he was. A walk, two singles an error and two hits were enough to win on singles by Burroughs, Greazy and Switzer. The other was made by Burns, who was out by Gibbs and a sacrifice by Derwin.

The locals will play against the Escanaba Indians at the C. N. W. diamond at Escanaba next Sunday.

Chats with The Editor

THE radio has contributed much to humanity, and perhaps the opportunity it gave to listen to the acceptance speech of Herbert Hoover may be listed as one of its most notable contributions to the American public.

There was a time, back in 1920, when this writer was among those setting Hoover down as unworthy of the high office of President of our Nation. Then he appeared to us as a seeker of office, also we recall nothing he said personally to indicate this. Now it appears that the office is seeking the man.

SPACE does not permit a reprinting of the article. The cost of living, unemployment, a farm relief plan and better distribution, the immigration problem, labor unions, business and an aid to its conduct, the merit system in the employment of government workers, and every other phase of our American life is intelligently discussed from a broad standpoint that emphasizes the thought of real leadership.

That expresses a thought that our political parties seem to overlook—IT'S FINAL PURPOSE IS HAPPIER HOMES. The thought has been too much of business, big business, especially in the period and since the war the tendency has been toward the concentration of wealth and power, and the happiness and condition of the home has been secondary to the economic system.

The Republican candidate also shows a broadness of vision on the question of religion. The one paragraph he devoted to religion, which reflects a more vision than all the prejudiced material that will be injected by biased minds. Said Hoover:

"In this land dedicated to tolerance we find outcasts of intolerance. I come of Quaker stock. My ancestors were persecuted for their belief. Here they sought and found religious freedom. My blood and conviction I stand for religious freedom, both in act and in spirit. The glory of our American ideals is the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience."

Herbert Hoover met all issues squarely and discussed them in good understanding language. If he gave the less attention than some of our editors would we would say it was on prohibition. He speaks of it as what it really is, a part of the Constitution, but without attempting to say whether it was enacted as such by a fair vote of the people representing a majority or by an organized minority taking advantage of the topsy-turvy condition, immediately following the World War, when millions of homes made happy by the safe return of their young men, had little thought for such a minor thing as prohibition. Said Mr. Hoover on the subject:

No one denies the right of any citizen to work and vote for repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment, but the Republican party does deny the right of anyone to seek to destroy the purposes of the Constitution by the infraction. Modification of the enforcement laws which would permit that which the Constitution forbids is nullification.

Not very comprehensive, and yet the candidate shows such indisputable qualities of leadership that he may be expected, if elected President, to tackle it at the proper time and in the proper way. A real leader never waits to be forced to decide on a course—he shows the way.

WHY the apprehension about BIG business? Well, money itself is not a curse, but the insidious uses to which it may be put is a most deplorable one, and the concentration of too much of it presents a power too great for our government to cope with. For instance there came to the editor's desk today a copy of the Congressional Record in which it reproduced the testimony introduced in the investigation of the public utility lobby maintained to discourage public ownership of water, light and gas plants, to put through legislation favorable to these private corporations. It presents a shocking picture. We wish every true-blooded American would read the testimony. A fund of $1,100,000 was used to subsidize newspapers, bribe public officials and ex-former officials, engage college professors to speak, institute accurate teachings in our universities, among them such proud institutions as Harvard, and in countless other ways to "educate" the people to think just as the monopolies want them to think. The word "educate" is the one these propaganda artists use among themselves but publicly they use a better term, "inform." Former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, who in Congress was known to have opposed the power to be obtained after he was defeated in 1924 is alleged to have accepted a $20,000 fee for lobby work in Washington. Other prominent individuals received sums much larger than that. School textbooks were edited to provide favorable "information," and in the state of Connecticut thousands of copies of a "catechism" had been distributed and were being used to educate the students in the upper grades to see the desirability of private in preference to public ownership of utilities.

THE record of the testimony covers 26 pages of fine print and touches almost every phase of our every day life in its aim to control public opinion, even chautauques. The trusts paid according to the value of the services, judged usually by the amount of public opinion the "servant" was exempted to sway. College professors were paid varying amounts, although privately treated with contempt by the publicity specialists. Many made bids for a share of the slush and it is noteworthy that the record shows a request for $202,800 from a source that makes a point of advertising its nonpartisanship and impartiality. This is the United States Daily, of which David Lawrence who is a political correspondent for several small city dailies, is the head.

It is an alluring picture painted by Mr. Lawrence with respect to the result to be expected from this $202,800. "State regulation as against Federal would be continuously emphasized, and there would be ample opportunity to put out that private initiative was the governing influence in the development of the communities, thus erasing in the background any thoughts that might have been lurking there on municipal operation. The cumulative effect of this advertising campaign should be not only to convince Congress that the utility problem is a local one, thus discouraging interference, but also to emphasize to the States that the utilities should be kept in their own hands."

The most extraordinary part of the Lawrence proposal is his argument that these propaganda editorial advertisements would be effective because his paper has established such a fine reputation for nonpartisanship. He says:

"The United States Daily is held in high esteem because it is a fact newspaper, containing no editorials or interpretations of its own, and being absolutely nonpartisan, it carries extraordinary amount of prestige and influence." The above disclosure serves to impress upon the public mind the absolute need for careful selection of its reading material. When the source and intention is known there is no danger the reader has an opportunity to judge it in the light of counter information but when the tricks are resorted to as has been the case with the utility trust, there is a source of real danger to the Nation and the investigating committee that has succeeded in bringing the light of publicity to bear on the true situation has done a real service.

There has been so much of this scandal during the last two Republican administrations that it is bound to handicap Hoover, even though it is known that he as well as President Coolidge have been sincerely honest in looking after the public's welfare. Hoover, as president, should be a strong enough leader to discourage much of the exploitation of public privileges that has been rampant since the war.

HAD the Democrats presented their strongest candidate, Al Smith, in 1924 the party might one be in power and perhaps, who knows, the Nation might have fared better in the last four years. President Coolidge has served a definite purpose. He has been honest, sincere and conservative during a time when such qualities were desirable in a marked degree to offset much of the unrest that existed. But history is not expected to record any outstanding accomplishments during that period. Whatever little constructive legislation may have been enacted will be more than lost sight of in the face of the many scandals that have been brought to light. The leadership was sufficiently weak to encourage tactics of this kind on the part of the selfish interests engaged in actual profit without regard to common decency or the future welfare of the nation.

The American people can picture a leader of the type of Teddy Roosevelt allowing such practice not long to continue. The risk would not have been permitted to squeeze through our courts without paying the penalty their misconduct deserved. Prompt and severe justice dealt out to a few would soon have discouraged the others. We would expect Mr. Hoover to be a leader of the Roosevelt type in dealing with such situations.

GOV. Green's proposal to make a survey of the feasibility of constructing a bridge at the straits to connect the upper and lower peninsula is another encouraging feature of the present campaign. There are about eight miles to span and this would cost an enormous sum but the Governor's present suggestion does a way in which it might be done at a cost within reason when it is remembered the great service that would be made possible. He would employ prison labor to break and haul the stone for approaches for both sides, thus reducing the distance by a long way. Prisoners are now kept at a cost to the state and they are fast more by idleness than by labor. So that part of the cost would really be a benefit.

The three ferries now employed at the straits have been inadequate to take care of the traffic during the peak period this year. The state now has over a half million dollars invested in this service and it is quite evident that much more must be invested if the traveling public is to be accommodated in the future. How much better a bridge would be? We hope the survey discloses the plan to be workable.

SENATOR Arthur Vandenberg who last Friday completed a visit of all the upper peninsula counties, created a favorable impression throughout our Houghton-Land and his presence of an annual visit as a means of keeping himself posted on conditions existing here is the most encouraging aspect. We believe the Senator is sincere in making the promise and that he will live up to it, so that the Upper Peninsula may in truth feel that it is well represented in the upper chamber of Congress.

SCHOOLS OPEN ON AUGUST 27.

RURAL AND HIGH SCHOOL OF MASONVILLE NOW READY FOR CLASSES

The high school and the rural schools of Masonville township will open for the fall term on Monday, August 27th. The school board decided at a special meeting held last Thursday evening at the Masonville school, it has been customary in recent years to open schools the week before Labor Day which allows for the earlier closing of term at the longer holiday period at Christmas. Repairs, decorating and painting in the rural and high schools have been completed and the buildings are ready for occupancy. The schools at Minor's and North Delta have been equipped with desks and an adequate supply of good water is to be had right on the grounds.

The special meeting held in the Masonville school was called for the purpose of discussing the closing of one of the rooms of that school. It was believed by the board that the higher grades of the Masonville school would be better served by attendance at the high school building here and also would be more economical for the taxpayers. The attendance in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades has decreased considerably during the past ten years and the pupils could attend the local high school to better advantage. The matter was freely discussed and while it would be beneficial in some cases it was shown that it would work a hardship upon a number who live back some distance from the Masonville school necessitating a walk of nearly two miles daily to attend the local high. The school board decided to continue the two rooms for the present session.

Miss Ina Short who has taught the higher grades and served as principal of the Masonville schools for a number of years will teach the fourth grade in the local school. Miss Ruth Mooney having resigned. Vacancies in Mathematics has not as yet been filled but will be before the opening of school as a number of applications have been received to be acted upon.

CARS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

OCCUPANTS ON WAY TO ESCAPE WHEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE WHEN CARS COME TOGETHER

Six occupants of a Buick touring car driven by Emil Lamberz had a narrow escape early Monday morning when it collided with a Hudson car a short distance above the Rapid River Falls. The party was on its way to the Buckeye camp where they are employed after having spent the week end at their home. A heavy fog in the vicinity of the Rapid River falls made vision difficult and the two cars came together almost head on. The Lamberz car went into the ditch and turned over but none of the occupants were injured. The Hudson car was driven by a Marquette man employed in Escanaba and he was on his way to his work after spending the week end at his home. Joe L-Bumbard passed by a few minutes after the accident and brought the party back here. Both cars are a total wreck.

Washed in the MAYTAG in 2 to 7 minutes

SUCH remarkable washing speed was unthought of before the Maytag originated the Gyra for a m washing action and heat-retaining cast-aluminum tub. Yet it does the dirtiest garments as carefully as if done by hand—washes by water action alone.

This effective but careful method washes the stubborn edges from the collars and cuffs, the ground-in dirt from play clothes or overalls without hand-rubbing. An average washing takes about an hour.

The Maytag Roller Water Remover has a large, soft top roll and large, hard bottom roll. They exert even pressure on all parts of the garment, and spare the buttons.

You may use a Maytag for your next washing without cost or obligation. You will find that it brings washday happiness. You will discover why it won world leadership. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

Our Reporter Observes

THAT it takes the visitor to Gladstone to appreciate the opportunity that our local industries provide. They are eager to learn their products and processes of manufacture, while many of us local folk have lived here for years and haven't made those inquiries ourselves.

THAT filling stations seem to be over on the increase. One can almost agree with the poet who wrote: "Never mind little vacant corner. Don't you cry. You'll be a filling station By and by."

THAT although the city dumping grounds is definitely marked out, some folks think that any place about the bluff that's convenient for them is the city dump.

THAT talk of the Fair, and advertisements announcing it, makes one think of autumn.

THAT, "mosquitoes are supposed to be gone," one authority on the great open spaces tells us, but by rights they're not supposed to be all, and there's plenty of them in the woods even now.

THAT folks rush into Swenson's intending to make just a hurry-up, they get parked on a deep cushioned mohair suit, and they stay and stay.

THAT "winch we could bottle up some of this heat for winter" is a general comment.

Jim Grant returned last Friday from Perryville Ky. He has been traveling with the Chautauque circuit for the past several weeks.

INSIDE

A Weekly Panorama of Events in the National Capital by Peter Keegan, Special Correspondent for Delta Reporter. FRANK O. LOWDEN, it can be stated authoritatively, will cast his vote for a Republican President, though he was previously disappointed with the agricultural policies adopted at the Kansas City convention. It will be recalled that he even withdrew his name as a candidate. He may sink a bit, but he is not taking seriously the great Hoover's acceptance speech out of the way. Lowden possibly may be persuaded to make a statement on behalf of his party though he is not expected to become active in the campaign. The cause of agriculture is not his, he is far more interested in that cause than he is his party's cause, but, after all is said and done, he is a Republican.

THE REPUBLICAN national committee has established a special colored bureau at its headquarters. It took this step to offset a reported effort of the Democratic national committee to line up the hundreds of thousands of colored voters in New York City, Chicago, Cleveland and other large centers of the colored population. For several years, a negro of the big cities of the north is no longer a chattel of the Republican party, he has shown considerable political independence in recent years and in New York city as many negroes vote the Democratic ticket as the Republican ticket. Al Smith's "personal liberty" views meet with the approval of thousands of negroes of the populous west.

WASHINGTON WEATHER has been hard for days. Though both parties maintain headquarters here, the weather is more discussed than politics.

"YOUNG TEDDY" ROOSEVELT was a visitor at Republican headquarters here the past week. He failed to register as a "prominent politician". As a candidate for Governor of New York, he received a presidential year—he received an Al Smith walk. Reports from New York are that he is not taken seriously as a candidate for publication, but she takes a deep interest in all public questions and she give her brother lessons in politics.

REPUBLICANS EXPECT a big Hoover vote in the ten states of the "solid south", but doubt if they will be able to carry any of them. Reports from North Carolina and even Virginia. Some Democrats are bold enough to claim Pennsylvania for Al Smith, but though the Republican majority may possibly be somewhat reduced, the keystone state appears sure to remain Republican by a majority that will be a big one. It is 1856 when Pennsylvania went Democratic last.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS say that Al Smith has made a mistake in waiting until after Hoover has spoken to deliver his acceptance speech. They assert that since the Democratic party is a minority party, with odds to overcome, that Smith, instead of trailing, should have obtained the jump on Hoover by speaking first. But Smith, it is said, chose to delay his acceptance speech with the idea of conducting a rather short, but very brisk campaign. When once he starts he wants to keep things moving.

BETTING IN NEW YORK is 6 to 5 that Al Smith will carry his home state. Republicans, however, believe that they have a most excellent chance to give the New York majority to Hoover. It is their contention that thousands of Republicans who have voted for Al Smith as a candidate for Governor will not vote for him for President.

SENATOR JAMES E. Weston fought hard against Hoover's nomination, beating Hoover in his home state of Indiana, and delivering heavy blows at the Kansas City convention, but he is now one of Hoover's advisers. Following is a consulting Hoover last no time in consulting Watson on the farm question and other matters and has depended upon him to aid in the campaign in the middle west.

SENATOR CHARLEY Curtis landed at the Republican vice presidential nomination, but he still thinks the convention would have acted with better wisdom if he had been made the presidential nominee.

Elliott Germaine has returned from Manistiquette where he has resigned his position with the Pioneer Tribune. Mr. Germaine will be employed by the Escanaba Daily Press.

Allen Richards, daughter of Mrs. Phil Richards, was returned from a two weeks visit with relatives at Green Bay.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" by Warner Bros.

Bitting her lip to keep down the sobs and blinking fast to keep back scalding tears, Dolores removed the lace shawl from her shoulders and placed it gently beneath her grandfather's head.

Bowed in grief, she lingered to offer a prayer for his soul and noticed that the Vasquez sword was lying beside his still white hand.

Without hesitancy she picked it up. Through tear blinding eyes the family crest and famous inscription appeared dim and far away, but this superficial blur did not cloud their meaning.

His nature lacked the "something" that goes to make up the finer things of life, and when Dolores gazed at a slight smile of amusement suffused his face, her pride and courage impressed him merely as an elaborate expression of heroics.

When the first sound of the old mission bells broke the twilight stillness Buckwell's smile faded. He shivered perceptibly, uncomfortable from the shawl-like sound.

Dolores had not taken her accusing eyes from his face. "A Vasquez avenges a Vasquez!" she said in a penetrating whisper.

Buckwell turned quickly. With sword unsheathed, as though it were a cross, she stood motionless. Twilight shadows played about her head and formed a flickering halo—as if she were sanctified to be the avenger of her blood.

A trifle awed and miserably annoyed by the mournful ringing of the bell, Buckwell backed away. Dolores followed slowly, still holding the sword of vengeance before her and still silent and grim as if moved by some phantom spirit.

Buckwell could not shake off the fear that was clutching his heart. Anything connected with religion or the supernatural touched his greatest weakness. The life of deception he had led and the sins he had committed against his own race made him fear the vengeance of his own Gods as well as the possible ill will of the Christian deity.

Backed into a niche in the Chapel wall, Buckwell came to a stop and instinctively extended his arms in protection. His hand came in contact with something unusual to the touch and turning around he recoiled at the sight before him. It was a statue of the Virgin Mary! More awed than ever he turned away and resting his head against an outside sill removed his hat to wipe his moist brow.

pression became more and more terrified. As his terror grew the mask of western veneer, that he had so painstakingly trained his features to assume vanished. The heathen soul of the Mongol was revealed! It was the first time outside of his own quarters that Chris Buckwell had been thrown off guard. His features sagged, his eyes became squinting slits and even his long carefully trained mustache drooped. He was unmistakably the face of a Chinaman peering at Dolores as though he resolved to confront all the devils of his own belief and conscience. It was a horrid countenance, livid and stricken.

"Oh! You hideous thing!" she breathed in repulsion. A terrible resolution of feeling took possession of her. The man she and her grandfather had trusted and honored with their hospitality was nothing more than an Oriental! He had held her in his arms—touched her with his lips! It was all too hideous to think about, and with out warning Dolores—the last of the famous old family—bore down upon him with the great sword, determined to avenge the insult.

A new horror seized Buckwell when he realized that he had dropped his mask and revealed his real self to Dolores. An end to action by her menacing approach, coupled with the realization that his secret had been discovered, he turned and ran from the missing link—a man fleeing from a wild beast. The mournful deathknell followed him down the hill and far along the road on his way back to town.

With intense vehemence Buckwell cursed the weakness that had caused the disastrous revelation. He day August 22nd and 23rd at the knew that Dolores had penetrated Rialto Theatre.

his disguise and again he emitted a volley of oaths. "Women always sensual, too!" he mused. "Hell, I might better be dead than have her tell what she knows—an investigation would make a bad matter worse. There is only one thing to do—set rid of her—it can be done easily!" and Chris Buckwell resumed his old snarl of confidence while his scheming brain began devising plans for Dolores' abduction.

Jannings' American debut in "The Way of All Flesh" was a sensation. "The Street of Sin" will doubly establish his reputation among us.

The story, set in the southern London slums, is the star's own creation. It was written from his original idea by Josef von Sternberg and Benjamin Glazer and was directed notably by Mauritz Stiller who seems to sense fully the particular genius of the German actor. Jannings portrays a brutal role, that of a half-ing king of Linschows whose regeneration is finally wrought through his last and biggest act of evil.

Jannings' latest characterization is written with a mighty hand, about a human one. The majority will agree that it is worth seeing more than once.

Norman Duchaway of Norway, spent the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Duchaway.

EMIL JENNINGS IS GREAT IN "THE STREET OF SIN"

If we needed any further proof that Emil Jannings is the screen's greatest character star, "The Street of Sin" would suffice. This master stroke of motion picture literature with its daring treatment and amazing fidelity to life will color your thoughts for months.

It shows Wednesday and Thursday August 22nd and 23rd at the Rialto Theatre.

What the People Say-- And the Answer

IN HIS ANNOUNCEMENT IN THE ESCANABA DAILY PRESS OF JULY 22nd 1928

We Find JUDGE YELLAND'S 1928 ISSUE to be:

"The only issue is my long record as a public official. I gladly and anxiously accept this challenge."

"The only reason advanced against the present incumbent is that he has had a long and honorable career as a public official, and especially that he has held the office of Judge of Probate for nearly twenty years. Instead of this being against him, it is decidedly in his favor."

Later on, in the same statement, the Judge says that this is the first time this issue has been raised in a similar election. And so we turn back to the campaign of 1908, when the present Judge was first nominated and elected to this office, and we find him running on the following platform:

Judge Yelland's Letter to Voters, July 27th, 1908

"A Judge of probate is elected for a term of Four Years, but all other county officers are elected for a term of Two Years. It is the universal custom for a person to hold an office for Only Two Terms, except in unusual cases, as where there is no other candidate, etc. The present incumbent, T. B. White, has held this office for a period of Twelve Years, or Three Terms. Other things being equal, it would seem that this is long enough for any person to hold one and the same office."

Judge Yelland's Letter to Voters, August 22nd, 1908

"The point I have been trying to make is that Judge White has held this same office for Twelve Years, and that it is against the policy of our country to hold office, and especially a county office, for such a long period of time. It is bad politics and what is bad politics is bad business."

"Judge White asks the people to continue him in a county office indefinitely, and perhaps for life. The law requires frequent changes in county offices. The trouble with Judge White is, he has got so he feels he owns the office of Judge of Probate, instead of being a servant of the people. If Judge White will in the future become a candidate for some other or higher office, he will have my hearty support, but he has held the office of Judge of Probate LONG ENOUGH and a large majority of the people of this county Demand a Change. A change in any state or county office KEEPS THE BUSINESS PURE, the same as running water or circulating air will purify itself."

Citing the cases of Judge Stone and Hon. O. B. Fuller, and others, the Judge as a candidate in 1908 argued strenuously that the American people do not object to a man spending a life time in political office, if he moves or steps up from one office to another, so long as he does not stay in any one job more than two terms. He also said Judge Glaser was judge of probate for 27 years, because the office then was not important, and the "pay was not much."

While it may be good business to continue in office indefinitely, loyal and efficient accounting officers, like the auditor general or the county treasurer or purely clerical or recording officers—like the county clerk or register of deeds, or law enforcement officers—like sheriffs, etc., still it is a fact that the people have ruled otherwise in the cases of administrative and the Inferior Judicial offices, such as President, Governor, Judge of Probate, etc. On that ground largely, the last Governor Michigan had was defeated for a Fourth Term. The Third Term Tradition had much to do with Mr. Coolidge's decision not to run again. And Judge Yelland was himself first elected on the platform that Twelve Years in the office was enough for a man, regardless of his good record. The idea is not new or original. It is the unwritten law of the American people which has been prominent in our political history.

Respectfully, yours, TORVAL E. STROM.

Why Wait?
Re-roof now!

It's mighty expensive to delay attention to a leaking roof. Falling plaster, ruined carpets, rugs and curtains, damage to furniture and other furnishings! All this costly expense follows in the wake of neglected leaks.

Now is the time to re-roof. Cover those old worn unsightly shingles with Mule-Hide. Thereafter you will have a roof that is all weather proof and fire-resisting. Many Insurance Companies allow a substantial discount in the premium rate when old roofs are covered or replaced with Mule-Hide.

Get our estimate of how reasonable will be the cost of re-roofing your home. We will quote you a flat contract price on the job applied by competent local contractors. Or if you plan to do the work yourself we will furnish the material only.

To make your roofing dollar last — see us first!

Swenson-Olson Nuptials

One of the most beautiful of summer weddings took place Saturday afternoon when Miss Rose Swenson daughter of Mrs. Claus Swenson was united in marriage to Einar Olson son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Olson at 4:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed in the parlors of the Swenson home at 902 Dakota Avenue with the wedding service read by Rev. C. E. Olson of the Swedish Lutheran Church. The bride entered the room on the arm of her brother, W. Arthur Swenson who gave her in marriage. They were preceded by the bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Olson, sister of the groom. The groom and his attendant, Noble Swenson entered from another side. The ceremony was performed under an archway made of white asters, with a background formed by cut flowers. Lohrenz's wedding march was played by Miss Marie Bredahl. The bride made a charming picture in a beautiful gown of orchid tulle with accessories to correspond. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby breath. The bridesmaid, Miss Olson, wore a pretty dress of peach tulle and carried an arm of pink roses. At the close of the ceremony, "I Love you Truly," was sung by Noble Swenson. A wedding dinner followed at Jay's Tea Room with covers laid for twenty-five. The tables were prettily decorated in a scheme of cut flowers with tapers. The happy couple left that evening on a wedding trip to Buffalo, Cleveland, Niagara Falls and Canada. The trip is being made by boat. They will return to Gladstone to make their home at 802 Michigan Avenue. The bride is a prominent young woman of Gladstone, and for the past five years has held a graphic position at the N. W. Cooperage Company office. She is a graduate of Gladstone High School and of business college at Kalamazoo. Mr. Olson was also graduated from Gladstone High School, with the class of 1917, and was employed at the Gladstone State Bank as bank clerk and teller for three years. He is a member of the Olson and Hanson Haberdashery, which began business three years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Olson have the congratulations of a host of friends in Gladstone for their happiness. Out of town relatives who were present for the ceremony were Mr. Olson's father, Ole Olson, his brother Evan G. Olson of Chicago, and the bride's sister, Mrs. L. I. Field of Kalamazoo.

Former Residents Honored

Mr. and Mrs. John Ottoson of Evanston, Ill. former Gladstone residents, were the guests of honor at a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Madden Monday night. The party was also planned in honor of Mrs. Ottoson's birthday anniversary.

Social diversions were enjoyed, and a delightful luncheon was served. Mrs. Ottoson was presented with a pretty gift in memory of the happy occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Ottoson are visiting at the Madden home and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Van Bloise on Superior Street.

Honor Guest at Roast

George Pease Sr. was the guest of honor at a surprise gathering of his friends at a roast at Maywood Tuesday night in honor of his birthday anniversary. About fifty friends were present, and spent an enjoyable evening in campfire songs and stories following the serving of a supper. Mr. Pease was presented with a gift in memory of the party.

Mrs. Anderson, Hostess

Mrs. Otto Anderson entertained the Ladies Aid of the Swedish Baptist Church at her home Thursday afternoon. Refreshments were served, and a social hour enjoyed following the business meeting and devotions.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the many kind friends who assisted us in our recent sorrow, the loss of our beloved son and brother. In particular, we are grateful to the kind neighbors whose services we deeply appreciate, to those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral, and the many who sent floral and spiritual offerings, and called to express their sympathy. Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pillotte and family.

Miss Aileen Richards left Monday for Manistowic to spend a few days visiting with relatives.

Now Do You Know?

Last week's cut was none other than that of Delta County Sheriff Elmer J. Swenson, again a candidate for the office in the September primaries. Sheriff Swenson has served the public in this capacity for two years and is seeking a second term. His announcement of his candidacy appears on another page of this issue.

TUESDAY AUGUST 21st

The feature will be "Lovey Mary" with William Haines and Bessie Love. The Stars of west Point together again.

MISS COSTELLO THRILLS

IN "TENDERLOIN"

"Tenderloin," Warner Bros. melodrama of the underworld, starring Dolores Costello with Conrad Nagel, is the Rialto Theatre attraction Sunday and Monday, August 19 and 20. The cast includes Mitchell Lewis, George Stone, Dan Wolheim, Pat Hartigan, Fred Kelsey, G. Raymond, Nye, Dorothy Vernon, Evelyn Pierce and John Miljan. McVillie Crossman wrote the story which was adapted for the screen by E. T. Lowe, Jr. Michael Curtis directed.

"Tenderloin" is an old-fashioned hair-raiser but it is more than that. It is the rugged, glamorous love story of Rose Shannon, dancer at Kelley's Cafe in the Bowery, and Chuck White, swaggering young gangster, member of a band of thieves.

"Tenderloin" is a photoplay worthy of the screen's most popular leading man.
