NO MOURNERS PRESENT AT PUBLIC BURIAL

It sounded like a machine gun in the distance. Or it might have been noise of a sputtering motor, or even the feeble efforts of a bunch of firecrackers set off at an interval time. But it was neither. It was just William Marshall and Gus Feldt, local firemen, opening up one source after another, pouring out five cases of confiscated beer being destroyed under the watchful eye of Chief of Police Erick Lindahl and F. J. Hall of the Michigan State Police, representing the Department of Public Safety. William carried the rubber cup but Gus didn't, and it was easy to see that he was going to smell like an old time brewer for the rest of the day, at least. There were seven gallons of moonshine destroyed at the same time, but the noise was lacking made up for probably by the strong smell that permeated the atmosphere. There were several interested spectators, but no mourners at the burial.

Chats with The Editor

THE Delta Reporter believes in the primary election system and has been one of its staunchest advocates in the face of a determined attempt at various times on the part of partisan politicians to belittle its efficiency as a means of selecting the best candidates. And at this time it can be admitted that where there are several candidates in the field, it is easily possible for a minority candidate to secure the nomination, a situation none too advantageous for the taxpayers in many instances. But, and this is the point we want to bring out at this time, where there are two parties of equal strength, one party is almost certain to nominate a qualified candidate and the question that arises are those like Delta where one party absolutely dominates. This is brought home to us a very good reason why there should be two political parties, for our system of government, by precedent, is based upon that theory.

Insofar as county or state politics is concerned, it matters not what name a political organization may assume. Results are what count. Michigan under Democratic rule, Republican rule or any other party rule, will continue to function effectively and the efficiency of its various departments will be determined by the individuals in the various branches rather than by the name of the political organization under which they may have happened to be elevated to the office.

Today's primary was a quite one. The results may not have been altered by a much heavier vote. But the fact remains that the November election may be looked forward to as a more formal one, a condition that would not exist if there were two strong parties in the field instead of merely the Republican party as is now the situation. It was a commendable campaign, free from political bunk and the few seekers or those who were put up by narrow interests with a selfish purpose, were eliminated as they deserved to be.

But experience may not always be as gratifying and a little preparation is preferable to regret. We hope to see the day and not too far ahead, when there will be another major political party active in our public affairs.

WHAT part does punishment play as a deterrent to crime? Considerable, and it has often been brought to light that the fear is even more penetrating than the punishment itself. Just last week a man, young in years (he is only 30) but worn down and haggard in appearance turned himself over to the Detroit police. Back in 1919 he had been employed as a bank clerk and made away with $18,000 when the temptation was too great for him. He made a get-away married and had what appeared a contented home, but inside of him conscience was wrecking its penalty, and fear of the arms of the law was weighing him down.

When he surrendered to the police he looked like an old man twice his age. Fear of ultimate discovery caused him to give himself up, he told the official to whom he surrendered and confessed his guilt. And fear was perhaps what caused him to surrender, but back of that fear was the great lesson that experience had taught—there is no happiness founded on cheating. Stanley Bush, that is his name, had learned that no matter how glib his lips may appear on the surface, unless it is honest and truthful at the core, nothing is set in. He was down to a point where nothing else mattered except to pay the price that civilization imposed.

There are other people who go through life with a supposedly carefree attitude made possible by material possessions, but such are never happy because the foundation for it is not honest.

MOTOR boating is coming into its own and the opinion may safely be advanced at this time that in another two years Little Bay de Noc will be dotted with pleasure seekers throughout the summer months. Folks have tired of motoring as the major recreation, except for trips taking them over long distances, and they are now ready to turn to something else. For those who, like our residents, have an ideal body of fresh water, the transition is an easy one and one that will be looked forward to with a great deal of pleasure.

Already this summer there were several additions of crafts privately owned for recreational purposes. This is only the forerunner to what is really going to happen. While a few years back before the popularity of the motor cars took hold, Little Bay de Noc was used by many boatmen. Those of the present generation are going in for larger and faster boats so that the sport will have taken on a zest not previously experienced. The demand of the age is for speed and it is being developed on the water as well as on wheels.

MAIL order houses are finding mounting difficulty in maintaining their sales volume since the people have learned that better satisfaction is derived from buying articles over the counter. So that some have now adopted the policy of preparing postage. This may result in some sales increase but we doubt that it will record a lasting benefit because even with prepaying of delivery costs, the advantage is still with the live home merchant. The mail order still expects the two important things—sending the money with the order and selection of merchandise without the opportunity to see it and test its true worth. While exchanges are not discouraged, unpleasant delays and experiences are inevitable and the wise and thrifty buyer prefers to eliminate these by buying right in the first place.

LABOR DAY is an important national holiday and should never be passed over without proper celebration. It is gratifying to those interested in the activities of Gladstone to notice the capable manner in which the observance was proved for. While it is true that plans were not formulated until a late date, the plans arranged were carried out in an orderly and desirable manner giving to the occasion an importance and a dignity that easily might be overlooked without some public demonstration to emphasize the importance of our national life.

The day is past when it is considered that there is an abundance of leisure for the citizens of the town. The people of this Nation are engaged in. Today a man, or a woman, is neither a worker or a shirker. And the activities of this year's observance was that it was witnessed by the railway brotherhoods, whose members saw fit at the same time to recognize another worthy local endeavor, the playground provided and being equipped by the Parent Teacher association, to whom has been devoted the proceeds of the day's activities. The members of the railway brotherhoods are an important adjunct to the life of Gladstone. Those engaged in the scheduling, running and equipping of our railway service represent the pick of local work men, and along with the fact that they are large in number, makes essential their participation in all local activities in order to assure the city's progress and growth.

We hope to see more activity in which all the citizens join.

THERE were no surprises insofar as the results of the primary for the county offices. The race between Judge of Probate Judd Yelland and Acty. Turalv E. Strom had been reckoned as close and it remained so until the last precinct was counted for. On the face of it, both candidates conducted a dignified campaign and now that it is all over there is no cause to regret. Mr. Strom showed that he was a strong candidate in his home city of Escanaba where he won by handsome majorities in every precinct, while in Gladstone and in the townships Judge Yelland came through with a big enough majority to off set his losses in the country seat.

The people of Gladstone are particularly gratified about the re-election of Glenn W. Jackson as prosecuting attorney. They themselves were almost solid in their support, giving his opponent, George Carr, but 37 votes, and besides this outside in the county. Prosecutor Jackson made notable gains over the incumbent for him two years ago when he entered the political field. This was also true of Escanaba where the people have had an opportunity to notice the conscientious, capable, honest and sincere manner in which he has handled all the legal affairs of the county, where it pertained to the prosecution of cases or the cooperation given the other departments.

Sherrif Elmer Swanson was given a handsome majority as seemed proper in view of his record. It demonstrated again that people appreciate faithful service and resent the attempt of a few in any clique to handicap a candidate or offer opposition usually for selfish motives and in order to embarrass the incumbent of an office the duties of which are most difficult. The enforcement of the prohibition laws is a most difficult task for any officer and Sherrif Swanson has been sincere in his efforts to enforce it in a manner that reflected the sentiment of the people of the county he served. When those who are engaged in selfish motives and in order to embarrass the incumbent of an office the duties of which are most difficult. The enforcement of the prohibition laws is a most difficult task for any officer and Sherrif Swanson has been sincere in his efforts to enforce it in a manner that reflected the sentiment of the people of the county he served.

County Clerk Rene Labre, appointed by the County Board last October, received the nomination and his position of confidence which this writer believes well placed.

THE state results were also as predicted with the exception perhaps of the race for lieutenant governor. At this writing it appears that Lauren Dickinson was nominated, defeating Fred L. Woodworth of Detroit and MacArthur of Easton Rapids. Woodworth was expected to get a large majority in Wayne county to offset Dickinson's vote outside, and he may yet be given enough in later returns to bring this about, although the present Lieutenant Governor ran much stronger than expected, as did also the other candidates who were expected to run a very poor race. Gov. Fred W. Green's nomination was expected and his margin of almost three to one caused no surprise generally. His opponent, George Welsh, was beaten before the contest started because the Governor's record was impressive enough to assure another term, even with strong opposition in the primary. And the opposition could hardly be rated as strong, but for the Gov. Green will have to face that kind of opposition in the November election when he will be opposed by William A. Comstock of Detroit, who is not new in the political field, and for the second time nominee of the Democratic party for the office. Comstock is a pleasing and effective campaigner, and he should give the Governor a race, hardly effective enough however to offset the Republican majority and the precedent of a second term.

THE exchange table is graced this week by the arrival of a newcomer in the newspaper field. The Mt. Morris Times, founded by Ralph C. Gillett, the publisher is not a newcomer in the ranks, however, being identified with the Montrose Record and Clio Messenger. Mr. Morris is a prosperous little community north of Flint and if the first edition of the Times is any criterion of what is to follow, and we believe Editor Gillett will make it so, a bright future lies ahead, not only for the newspaper but for the town itself which has been without newspaper facilities up to this time. A town without a newspaper is like a ship without a rudder—it may keep moving but never gets anywhere.

THERE is a great satisfaction derived from the finding of the two fliers who tried to pilot the Greater Rockford to Sweden. Lost for two weeks in the ice-bound fields of Greenland and given up by their friends at home as lost, the glad news was flashed over the entire country as the greatest event of the day's news, which it was. And Michigan is proud, too, because good Prof. William H. Hobbs, in charge of the University of Michigan exploration of Greenland, was the rescuer. A smoke screen was seen by the Hobbs' party and the fliers found, not much the worse for their experience but trying to get to a point of communication before their rations gave out.

MEMORIES

Items of interest of Gladstone and its citizens of years ago.

TEN YEARS AGO (Reporter, Sept. 3 and 4, 1918). Dr. Geo. UPPER PENINSULA

Caught 6-foot Fish. St. Mary's—The "whale" has been captured. The monster, whose antics in St. Mary's river has caused a fiery debate between fishermen and those who have seen the evidences of a giant fish was caught by William Szopala, a Sault Ste. Marie butcher, at Pine Island near Sugar Island. The "whale" proved to be a sturgeon, six feet in length and weighing 125 pounds.

Congressman Frank E. Bohm of Newberry, our representative from the 11th district in Congress. He received a fine complimentary vote in Tuesday's campaign, having no opposition. The Democratic party has not placed a candidate in the field, making an unexpected result more certain.

September 25 and 26, according to George H. Harvey, of Laurium, secretary of the association.

Mr. Harvey has announced that he has received acceptance to speak at the convention from at least three men prominently identified with the bottling and carbonated beverage industry in the state. Representatives of numerous supply houses also will be present.

Iron River—Three Covington men, Emil Kallio, 22, John Rasmussen, 25, and Joe Naalinen, 33, were arrested by Max Isager and M. D. Hayes, conservation officers, for fishing with gill nets in Cable Lake, Hematic township. Arraigned before Judge Carley, they pleaded guilty and each was fined $25 and $7.15 costs. Unable to pay, they were committed to the county jail in Crystal Falls for 30 days. Efforts were being made to raise the amount of their fines.

To Patrol Roads.

Houghton—Working in co-operation with the sheriff's office, two state police, Edward O'Boyle and William Irish, arrived in Houghton to spend the remainder of the summer here on special duty. The officers will devote most of their time to patrolling the county highways to enforce the traffic regulations. Particular attention will be paid to reckless driving, according to Mr. O'Boyle who is in charge of the continent assigned to this district. Cutting traffic on curves and hills where the driver cannot see the road ahead are two of the most

ESCANABA—A slight increase in the school tax rate for the ensuing year is noted in a report issued by the board of education which sets the budget for 1928-29 at $231,260 against $222,553 last year, an increase of $9,007. The school tax rate this year based on a valuation of $8,593,579 will be 17.51 mills or an increase of .39 mills. With an estimated income from sources other than taxation of $80,881.31, it will be necessary to raise $150,378.67 by taxing an increase of $3,074.56 over last year. The difference between the budget increase of $9,007 and the tax increase of $3,074.56 is due to an income of approximately $6,000 or five per cent of the primary school money which has been withheld for two years.

OLD WOODSMAN IS FOUND DEAD

"BOB, THE LOGGER" WAS KNOWN TO EVERY CHILD IN THIS VICINITY

Robert Thompson, age 65, known to many only as "Bob, the Logger" was found dead on the floor in the basement of the dwelling house on the John Gessner farm near Trenary Tuesday. Thompson was employed as caretaker of the farm and was last seen alive a week ago when Mr. Gessner left the farm. The body was discovered by Mr. Gessner upon his return. He apparently had died of a heart attack the day after Mr. Gessner left.

He leaves no surviving relatives that are known and no funeral arrangements have been made. The body was taken to the Anderson Funeral Home to be prepared for burial.

"Bob, the Logger" was known to every man and child in the vicinity. He was a well known woodsman having spent more than 20 years in the various camps of the big lumber companies and small loggers as well. Many still remember him as a young man working for Slickner and Johnson, on the Whitefish river when the virgin timber was cut in that territory. Always boasting whether in camp or in town, his stories of great loads and big hauls soon gained for him the name of "Bob, the Logger". Children learned to know him by that name and no other and many never learned his real name. He was a happy-go-lucky jack of the old school, a character who knew his rivers and woods and delighted in telling the tales of the early hardships of the rivers and camps when lumbering was a real test of man's endurance. No book of fiction could be stranger or more vivid of the early logging days of the Whitefish than the stories of Bob, the Logger as told by himself in the bunk-house after the days work or in town when the drive was ended and the "one winter's hardihood and sorrow" were forgotten in the lumberjack's celebration that followed.

CONCER-SANTO PLAYERS CLOSE ENTERTAINMENT

The Concer-Santo Players closed their week's entertainment Saturday night to a well filled tent of admiring theatergoers. Their performance was well received and pleasing to the audience. The disagreeable weather of the week held back the attendance.

DIPLANE LANDS ON COW IN FIELD

TWO PLANES MAKE FORCED LANDING ON WHITEFISH FARMS SUNDAY

Bonen's Waco biplane of Escanaba flying from Newberry where Bonen and Bone as pilots had been doing some passenger flying at the Luce county fair, was forced down on the Gus Roberts farm at Whitefish Sunday afternoon. Ernie Berg of Ishpeming was piloting the biplane with Joe Bohn as a passenger. The plane was noticed by a number of people at Bethany Hall flying real low as though in preparation for making a landing and in a few moments after circling around once the plane hit the field some in an easterly direction. A cow directly in the path of the plane was struck and for fear frightened was none the worse for her experience. The cow ran towards the river after being hit and no amount of coaxing could bring her back with the rest of the herd for several hours. She felt she was due for some honors from the others after being hit by a plane.

The plane wheeled into a wire fence after hitting the cow breaking a wheel and damaging the left lower wing. A Ford wheel was put on and the wing given some repairs and the plane was able to take off Monday afternoon for Escanaba. When over the Berquist home on the east side of the Whitefish river the engine stopped and the plane was forced to land in a field a short distance because of its speed and land on its return.

An Iron Mountain plane of three seater capacity was coming from Manistowic at the same time with the Bonen plane and witnessed the engine stopping and saw the plane seeking a field also because of the heavy downpour of rain and flew over to Eddie Johnson's farm a half mile away where he made a safe landing but because of the muddy condition of the field he was unable to take the air again until the following day. Hundreds of people went out to the fields on Sunday and Monday to view the planes and watch the take-off on Monday.

Bringing a New Kind of Store-Service to Your Door

- a Store Service founded on the Golden Rule;
- a Store Service attuned to local needs;
- a Store Service backed by National Resources buying goods for more than a thousand Stores;
- a Store Service that will inspire confidence in our merchandise;
- a Store Service that sells for Cash, eliminating expensive Credit and Delivery overhead;

WHEN Mr. J. C. PENNEY opened the small store in Kemmerer, Wyoming in 1902, he had a vision of Local Service for that community.

That first small store filled a definite need. It proved its worth to the people of Kemmerer, thru Service—in Ideals, in Merchandise Values, in Thriftiness.

And every J. C. Penney Company Store—this Store—must prove its worth as a LOCAL SERVICE ENTERPRISE.

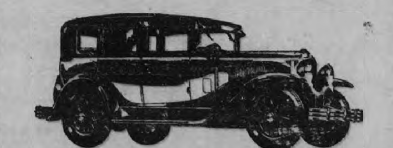

Because we operate more than a thousand stores does not reduce the individual store's responsibility; THIS STORE, and this store alone, must PROVE itself as a definite asset to this community and must fill a tangible shopping need to its people.

The new Buick is the new Style

More than handsome... more than luxurious... a wonderful new type of motor car beauty... a thrilling turning point in body design

It will be initiated, of course! The new, the fine and the beautiful always inspire emulation. But so great is the cost of building the magnificent new Fisher bodies for the silver Anniversary Buick that imitation will be possible only to such outlier cars, and even these will find difficulty in following where Buick leads!

$1,650,000 has been expended in manufacturing the dies alone for the new Buick bodies and the gracefully curving side panels which form one of their distinctive characterizations. Every inch of most expensive steel panning work employed on any automobile in the world.

He was brought to a local hospital the same evening. A scalp laceration 10 inches long was found, with the scalp torn from the bony structure of the left side.

Another Raid by Dickie
Iron River—Continuing his efforts to wipe out the illicit liquor traffic in Iron county, Sheriff Dickie and his aides swooped down on nine speakeasies, further to build up his record as the "raiding sheriff" of Michigan.

Those arrested were: Rudolph Zidar, West Cayuse street, second offender. Grant Patterson and his wife, Elizabeth, Frenchtown, Stella Tallia, Frenchtown, second offender. Walter Turpin, River-side, poolroom operator. Jack Gustafson, Keweenaw, Herman Sertation, Maple street, second offender. Walter Johnson, James location. Jennie Jackson, old Baker shaft.

Old San Francisco

BY ALICE LOWE MILLS

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" in a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

"And that would be a crime!" he objected quickly. "Your hair is so splendid to be covered. No, on second thought, let me see your hair without anything to cover your hair!" But the look in his eyes indicated that if she wore a mussed bun he would love her just the same.

Dolores was slightly abashed by such ardent admiration, although she found herself wanting him to say love-like words and hold her fast forever. Nothing else could keep back the sob which was necessary forgiveness of the fact that her grandfather was dead.

"The Chinaman was going to see," they asked Dolores curiously what they had to do for Buckwell. "I don't know just what, but they will make it pretty uncomfortable for him. In fact, it will be the last of Buckwell as a power in France."

"There is nothing he can do unless he is locked up and under guard, and we know that he is trying to have the old business arranged. I have not had a chance to tell you—my uncle is no longer doing Buckwell's real work. There was a time of it in Terry's voice."

"Oh, Terry, I am glad," cried Dolores impulsively more for the sake than her own, because she knew what a headache the combine had been to him. "What made him give it up?"

"Why—why, I told about what a rotter Buckwell had been to you and uncle also found out that Buckwell had double crossed him on a deal, so he said he was through. I hope he meant it. I believe he did."

"Against this rode on in silence. "You see so far, away," complained Terry from his corner of the carriage, "may I come nearer?" Dolores was glaucously delectable, and he was fearful of startling her.

"Yes—you may," she replied so faintly that if he had not already moved nearer he could not have heard.

you for my very own, dear—soon!" "And I want you to have me!" replied Dolores. Their eyes melted into each other's. "I could not have lived through the last few days if it had not been for you."

"God bless you, my darling. But when will you marry me?" "Almost any time, Terry. I don't think it would be disrespectful to grandfather's memory. It is so lonely at the ranch alone, and if Senor Buckwell takes it away from me I wouldn't know what to do."

"You know I am not," replied Dolores with dignity. "I am going to marry you because—I love you. And she looked at him with such an adorably sweet expression that he wanted to crush her in his arms and never let her go."

"That is the first time you have said it, sweetheart! Glad, but it sounds great!" At this point in their conversation they drew up to the entrance of Lu Fong's Cafe. They quest for the head of the Inner Circle had led them to the threshold of a dangerously famous cafe as expected within the Golden Gate.

"Wait until we return," Terry instructed the driver. They entered the dimly lighted cafe. Dolores appeared as out of place as an exquisite in a rank and file, sweetheart! Glad, but it sounds great!"

"Don't worry, dear: we will not have to stay here long. Lu Fong has an office some place in the building. I will find out how we get to him."

Still holding her projectile in the arm, Terry beckoned to a waiter. As the white aproned servant approached Terry said, "We must see Lu Fong at once; it is important."

The waiter stuck his shiny black tray under his arm and eyed Dolores with interest. "I'll pass on the word. I don't know much about the inner designs of the place myself. Take a seat while we're waiting," and indicating a small table near the doorway, he went out white-tine.

American beer and whiskey were the popular beverages, and they were served in great profusion. Whiskey was bought by the barrel and was a tremendous source of graft for some of the white bosses.

The cafe here was a room of many doors. To all who save the matter their consideration, it was easily observed that one door never opened into the room. It was an exit only, but bore no label. What happened to the people who crossed its threshold at rare intervals was a source of much speculation.

Those who came out by another exit never told of their experiences while still others never reappeared to give an account of themselves. It led to a certain backroom and from thence down, down into the maze of underground passages where one was as lost as in the labyrinth of Corinth without a guide.

Singing entertainers, both men and women, worked their way through the aisles or seated at a table now and then to help along the general hilarity of the evening, which had not yet reached its height.

Dolores shuddered and turned away as she saw a young white girl having dinner with an apparently wealthy Chinese merchant. There was a lustful gleam in the man's eyes, and the girl set her hand in three tries to the Barbary Coast, caused laugh that meant their evening together was just beginning.

"It reminded Dolores of her encounter with Buckwell, and she wondered how any girl could endure the society of a Chinaman. Her three tries to the Barbary Coast were awakening her mind to life as it was lived by people who did not care or whose ideals were of an entirely different calibre from her own."

Looking away from the ill suited couple, Dolores noticed a man—all alone at a neighboring table. He was laughing and going through the motions of making an imaginary something—arms perhaps—sit up and jump over his head. She wondered why his face should be so white and pinched.

"A second-hand job!" "Is this a second-hand shop?" asked the young man. "Yes, sir," came the reply. "Well, I want one out on this watch."

REEBE IN ENTIRELY NEW ROLE—"FEEL MY PULSE!" Whether Bebe Daniels saw the idea during her recent illness with influenza or speculation but it is singular to note that the title of her newest starring comedy for Paramount is "Feel My Pulse," which will be at the Riothe Theatre Friday.

The story by Howard Emmett Rogers, "Feel My Pulse" concerns the activities of a girl who is near-invalid in her own mind. Certain situations, however, help her regain her health.

Production on "Feel My Pulse" was headed by Gregory LaCava and with Richard Arlen opposite Miss Daniels. Other members of the cast are George Irving, Melbourne MacDowell, Charles Selton, Heinie Conroy and William Fawcett, who does some great work as a boot-legger chieftain.

Monte Blue, star of "Across the Atlantic," the Warner Bros. production at the Riothe Theatre, Saturday was born in Indianapolis, Ind. in 1891, and educated at Purdue University.

In "Across the Atlantic," Mr. Blue is cast as an heroic aviator who, suffering from amnesia on an account of war injuries, steals a plane and flies to Paris where he saves his sweetheart, who has believed him dead, from a mistaken marriage.

The dramatic red head plays the part of a girl of the underworld, a was laughing and going through the motions of making an imaginary something—arms perhaps—sit up and jump over his head. She wondered why his face should be so white and pinched.

followed of "the mob," as a scene is called in the parlance of the underworld. Miss Bow's part is pure drama and she is declared to rise to new heights as the screen's most popular actress.

Richard Arlen, who scored such a triumph in "Winas," has the surprising lead opposite the star, and the direction was in the hands of William Wellman, the youthful director who made the epic "Winas" and "The Legion of the Condemned."

Eleanor Boardman, demure heroine of "Barbets" and intensely human wife in "The Crowd," has scored her greatest triumph in what is perhaps the strangest role she has ever played. This is the role of Tilly, girl of the underworld, in "Diamond Handcuffs," Cosmopolitan's vivid drama of love, diamonds and secret haunts of a great city.

Primarily the story is one of human greed—with a great diamond's sinister shadow launching intrigue, their warfare and deceit. Miss Boardman plays a girl of the underworld, torn between infatuation with a gangster ruler and the true love of a young star clerk.

The desire for the sinister diamond that runs like a nemesis through the story plunges her into the center of a gangster war.

Observations and Comment by Alice Fox

MICHIGAN IS REPUBLICAN and heart and will remain so. That what Charles Beecher Warren, of Detroit, delegate at large, from Michigan to the National Republican Convention in Kansas City has reported to President Coolidge. Prohibition is not an issue as far as Michigan farmers are endorsing Hoover too. According to Mr. Warren there are no issues as far as Michigan is concerned. They're Republicans at heart, regardless of campaign platforms, and will vote Republican without considering the qualifications of the man. Mr. Warren no doubt thinks Michigan folks are Republicans straight, good blind ones.

PRESIDENT MICHAEL Hainisch of Austria chooses to run his third term, and he's seventy years old too. His mother, though 87, heads the feminist party, and is actively campaigning for her son.

A WOMAN IN Washington, D. C. was accused by a couple of young men who drove up alongside of the curb and asked her if she didn't want to take a busy ride. No, she didn't, and she told them they were "green or vicious, excitable, and violent, procrustean."

Doesn't that sound like what they sometimes call members of Congress? These dear young men though probably thought she was calling them some endearing names even though she didn't want the ride.

PRINCESS ASTRID, wife of the Belgian Crown Prince has just been told that her knee length skirts are too short. Princess Astrid is a mighty lucky girl if that's the first time she's been told that.

HENRY FORD is closing his automobile plant in Ireland and continuing only the manufacture of his Fiver tractors there. But that's all they need over there anyway.

IN SOUTHERN WISCONSIN, down past Madison, eating seems to be what the residents of the little village worry about. Nearby the little railroad station, where the train stops just long enough to grab the little bundles of mail and stretch a passenger or two, you'll always find a small eat shop with a sign out telling you exactly what they're making, and how much it is. And such names as they choose. "Mammy's Shack" was one, "Ham House" another, and "Flying Inn" was printed on a permanent flying from still another of these eat shops. The Flying Inn advertised chicken diners served on paper plates and a large sign occupied their small front window. "Hot Dogs, and more." The names in themselves were no doubt calculated to whop up the appetite, but somehow they fell far from fulfilling their purpose.

"IT MUST BE A RELIEF to get away from a back town like yours, for a while." That's what a friend wrote us while on our vacation. Not from Gladstone, that accounts for such a statement. Folks are always glad to leave for a while, but they're just as glad to get back, which proves that their heart lies in the old home town just the same.

AN EDITOR OF a paper down South admires Coolidge for his bravery in spending the summer in the north with the wild animals, Indians and treacherous mosquitoes. Just another editor who thinks the folks up north haven't washed off the war paint yet, and still wear scales hanging from their belts. And he's gone and classed Wisconsin folk, three around here and four around there, as Indians too. But Mr. Coolidge probably found them tame compared to the way we can Indian war dance and whose still farther up north. Yah, Mr. Coolidge is a brave man alright, a rose between thorns.

ELECTION DAY is past and the campaign waged by Judd Yelland and Torvald E. Strom for the office of Judge of Probate no doubt brought out many voters, not regular visitors of the polls. Lots of folks are just good plain American citizens and feel it a privilege to vote at all elections. Others there are who need a little propaganda and controversy, as in the case of the office of Probate Judge to awaken their interest.

It all goes to prove that there's a current of patriotism and interest in public business. While the most folks, even though it may be done a Rip Van Winkle sleep while they sit home on some election days.

Crushed to Death. Crivitz—in attempting to undermine a huge rock, said to weigh about 20 tons, John Heinz, of the town of Stephentown, was killed. His body was found imbedded beneath the rock, with his head and shoulder visible. Mr. Heinz, whose home is about three miles from Crivitz and his son, John, Jr., began digging around the rock on their property shortly after noon, yesterday to dynamite it. While he was gone for the dynamite, Mr. Heinz contoured the excavation work and the stone unexpectedly slipped from its position, jamming his body against the heavy clay soil. It is believed when the boy returned and found his father crouched in the rock, he summoned neighbors to assist him in removing the body, but death had already occurred.

Carry Bridge on Trucks. Sault Ste. Marie—A steel bridge 80 feet long, 15 feet wide and weighing 35 tons, is on its way from Senev to Kalden, carried on a fleet of 10 trucks led by Ford McKee, Chippewa county road maintenance superintendent. The bridge was purchased by the Chippewa county road commission from the Senev Land Development company and will be installed over the Muskegon river at Kalden. George Comb, who contracted for driving the piles at the new bridge site was also given the contract for dismantling the bridge at Senev and reconstructing it at Kalden.

$85,000 For Hospital. Sault Ste. Marie—Sault, Ontario, has raised $85,000 in subscriptions toward a proposed new hospital and it is expected that when the goal of $150,000 will have been reached.
