THE KING PIN
by R. Jack Jaster

THE EXPRESS TRUCK fell on some "Be Careful" signs when it toppled off the platform at the Depot last Saturday morning. "Always be Careful," and "When in doubt be sure and take the right course," were hanging on the truck, and yet it had the audacity to tip over.

WHEN SOME OF OUR merchants get out in their display windows to change the scenery it turns out to be a little demonstration instead. So many folks go by that they have to wave first one arm and then the other, sometimes giving a half-way salute, and a nod of their head between times in way of greeting.

WONDER IF THESE guys who invent the automatic wind shield wipers could invent some kind of an automatic handkerchief. That's what the sufferers from the first fall colds are wondering too. Sniff, sniff, and a couple more sniffs, a nice red nose, shivers in the sunshine—just an old fashioned fall cold.

A SAUER KROUT salesman who visits Gladstone homes has his own troubles. Two years ago he was selling sauer kROUT cutters for another company and he disposed of so many in Gladstone that he baited the housewives he visits now make their own sauer kROUT. He liked that idea two years ago, but now—nix.

STUNNY ALL THE PLANS that are developed, and observations that are made while folks sit with a churchlike mien listening attentively to a sermon.

FALL IS A BEAUTIFUL time, a quiet season when Nature seems to be preparing the world for slumber. Flowers and vegetable gardens have been raked into piles and yards are undergoing the fall clean-up.

corner through the Christmas holidays, and past the first few months of the new year, lurks the glorious spring and summer.

THIS IS A FUNNY WORLD, and we folks are still funnier. We don't think we have any particular interest in the home town, but when we get away from it, first thing we know we find ourselves raving to someone about its beauties.

maintaining the individuality of their business.

The R. C. U. was organized in June twenty four years ago when a small group of merchants met together in their wholesale buying. It was the first group buying organization in the world, and now has grown to be the largest. There are 40 Michigan stores affiliated, and only one other besides the Erickson store in the upper peninsula. Twenty six states are represented stretching from Pennsylvania to the Pacific Coast. The main buying office is in New York, where the buyers are on the alert to pick the good things from the vast manufacturing district. A large warehouse is located in Chicago, and another in St. Paul that serves the west.

"R. C. U. stores have the same buying advantages as chain stores, Mr. Erickson said.

"Buying in big lots for 1933 stores as they do give them the same price advantages as chain stores, as an individual store, and change his merchandise and policy accordingly."

Twice a year all the R. C. U. merchants meet at the Palmer House at Chicago where a complete showing of the season's merchandise is displayed by the manufacturers. Two semi annual group meetings are also held.

Ready to Wear on Increase
The sale of ready to wear is greatly on the increase, Mr. Erickson said. A few years ago there was considerable home sewing, but now that women are offered attractive styles at more reasonable prices, made possible by the increased production of ready to wear, these departments are taking the place of the yard goods shelves.

"As much easier to fit the body than the maid," Mr. Erickson said, and there's a lot of logic in that. Women as a general rule haven't the mind set on a particular style of garment when they come in to make a purchase he finds, but if they have, a salesman is seldom able to recommend them on a different model.

"Better merchandise at lower prices," is the theory that Mr. Erickson has followed in the progress of his business, and he believes that thru the R. C. U. affiliation he is better able to serve the public.

GOOD RECORDS MADE IN PRODUCING PORK
That Michigan farmers are able to step up in front ranks when awards are made for the growing of pork on a production basis is indicated by early reports of the pig crop contest made to the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College.

The best results already reported are those obtained by C. N. Easton, Saline. Mr. Easton has already marketed the five litters of pigs which he had entered in the contest. These litters contained 43 pigs which weighed 6,660 pounds.

The pigs, which averaged more than two hundred pounds in weight at six months of age, were of such good quality that they brought a premium of 20 cents per hundred-weight above the day's market. They were raised from purebred Poland China sows.

Thirty-one Michigan farmers have entered swine in the pig crop contest this year, and the winner will designate as Michigan Champion Swine Grower for 1928. Cash awards will also be given to the leaders in this contest.

The early reports show that good brood stock, proper feeding practices, proper sanitation, and adequate control of intestinal parasites are needed to put the grower up among the winners in a pig crop contest.

Love and reason are seldom on speaking terms.

six uninvaded states. These are in New England. Although a new disease of man, tularemia has been recognized in 42 states, in the District of Columbia and in Japan, but in no other country. Of 614 reported cases in human beings 23 have resulted death.

It is thought that work of caution is needed for the hunter. Beware of the wild rabbit which is too easily captured—it is probably a sick rabbit. Many stories are told of rabbits that have been killed with sticks or that the house cat or dog has easily run down—these are probably infected rabbits.

Tularemia is an American disease discovered here, and almost entirely confined to the United States, though some cases have been reported in Asia. The disease affects the spleen and liver of rabbits, producing decay of the tissue cells of these organs. Its presence can be detected by the many small white spots or splinters on the liver and spleen of an infected rabbit.

Man contracts the disease readily while dressing rabbits. The infection passes from the rabbit's liver through sores or cuts in the person's hand and thence through the entire system. An ulcer is the first result followed by an enlarging of the glands at the elbow and armpit and a fever that confines the stricken person to bed for two or three weeks.

The wearing of rubber gloves while cleaning rabbits is said to be an absolute protection. Eating the meat from an infected rabbit is not harmful if the meat is well cooked as a temperature of 133 degrees kills the infection.

Tularemia was first discovered in Tulare county, Cal. from which it took its name. This was in 1910 and Dr. C. McCoy of the United States Public Health service made the discovery. The disease became engrained into the jack rabbit population of the west, and then, as a disease of rabbits and of man, it steadily advanced across the continent, invading state after state until now, in 1928, there remains only

INFECTED RABBITS ARE DANGEROUS TO HUMANS

Rabbit hunters be careful! This is the warning that comes from the Wisconsin conservation commission just before the opening of the rabbit season because of the discovery that some rabbits in Wisconsin have become infected with the disease called tularemia. Just how general the infection of rabbits cannot be stated, but it will be well to be careful while dressing rabbits. Michigan rabbits may be also infected, particularly in the woods along the border.

BEGIN WORK ON LIGHT SYSTEM

POWER COMPANY INSTALLS BETTER LINES, REDUCES RATES

A crew of ten men began work Monday morning on the village lighting and power system owned by the Escanaba Power and Traction Co., and will spend about ten days making the necessary changes in the plant that will insure a much better and cheaper light and power. This work has been under consideration ever since the purchase of the plant by the Light and Traction Co., but was impossible to proceed with the necessary repairs until a complete survey had been made of the lines and testings of the several transformers.

The 6,000 voltage line from Kipling will be used and every line in the village will be replaced by a much heavier one than now in use. All the transformers will be replaced with new ones and more conveniently located. The light wires used from Gladstone and around the village with the obsolete transformers are the source of the causes of complaint by the patrons and with these changes now being made a much better light and more power will result. The work will at least ten days to replace the network of wires but the crew will remain until it is completed. The service will not be cut off only for very short periods of time and will not interfere with any of the household work.

Complaints against the service have extended over a period of years since the village was first wired for light and power service. The light wires have become more numerous in recent years because of the extensions to the lines, adding more patrons for both light and power without improving the lines or transformers. Often the household was unable to use the electric water and winger at the same time because of the lack of current power. It was a task to heat irons for the family ironing and the electric power had serious trouble keeping their machinery going with the current at hand. The Light and Traction Company have decided in this condition and began immediately to survey the holdings for the purpose of making the changes necessary for better service.

With the improved service in lights and power also comes the announcement of a reduction in rates on power and lights. All bills on and after November 1 if paid before the 15th, the rates will be at the rate of 11 cents per kilowatt for lights with a reduction of 10 per cent off the bill. Power rates also will have a reduced rate over the old schedule. The minimum rate has also been lowered from $1.50 to $1.00 per month.

CATTLE BOUGHT AT LOCAL FARMS

LOWER MICHIGAN MEN MAKE SHIPMENTS TO ST. PAUL AND CHICAGO MARKETS

Seiler and Drott of Ida, Mich., have been in the neighborhood for several days and will remain a week longer purchasing cattle for shipment to the Chicago and St. Louis markets. This is their fourth visit into this vicinity purchasing cattle and have always shipped out several carloads each time. They were here shortly after the Mississippi floods of two years ago and shipped three carloads to the Illinois market. Cattle for slaughter are bringing good prices this fall but the prices paid for dairy cows are now higher than they have been for several years. One farmer this week received a price of $300.00 for two cows and others report the same fact. The demand for fresh milking cows is greater than the local supply but there are also buyers from other communities making trips here trying to purchase good milkers.

The prosperous conditions in the local dairy field is attested by the increase in business at the local cooperative creamery during the past year. During the month of September a total of 24,000 pounds of butter was churned, or 5,000 pounds more than during September of 1927. Other months showed the same increase over 1927. The butterfat paid to the farmer held a very high price throughout the summer when the peak of the deliveries is on. A better grade of cattle is gradually being introduced into the community and more interest is taken in what will likely prove to be the best proposition for the local farmer.

THE TARIFF

Tariff "hokum" in this campaign as in many previous campaigns is the mainstay of the Republican party for continuance in power. A drab picture is painted by Republican orators and Republican newspapers of the results that would follow in the event of the election of a Democratic president.

The implication is carried that the Democratic party favors a tariff that would prevent competition between American and foreign labor. It is repeatedly stated that the Democrats wish to throw open the doors to foreign merchandise at the expense of home industry.

A statement of this kind must come from persons who are unformed or who wish to deliberately misrepresent the tariff question.

The difference between the position of the Democratic and Republican parties on the tariff issue can be briefly summarized by saying that the Democratic party views the tariff as an instrument of national policy, to be framed in accordance with the needs of industry, agriculture, workers or consumers. The Democratic party does not advocate tariffs higher than would equalize the difference between costs of production abroad and at home. The Republican party has a single aim: to protect industrial profits, and to protect them if necessary at the expense of all other interests.

Tariffs can protect only those industries which might have foreign competition. This leaves the effects to a few and leaves others in the same position that they occupied before. Any product which we now export must be produced as cheaply here as it can be made abroad and tariffs will have no effect on its price or the wages in that industry. Furthermore we are making every effort to build up a foreign trade. But the goods sent out must be paid for by those who receive them. This can only be done by allowing them to pay us in goods. Tariffs higher than equalized costs prevent this, shut off our trade, and depress the industries which export.

In reports on foreign trade of the Department of Commerce (of which Mr. Hoover is secretary) home ideas have been plainly conveyed that, in the long run, imports must equal exports. In other words we want to sell to foreigners we must buy from them.

In his acceptance speech Mr. Hoover stressed the desirability of cheapened transportation so that the benefits derived from cheap power and skilled labor America could be developed as the greatest of exporting nations.

Then he advocates a tariff so high as to exclude from the American

To the 5000 who daily become owners of the new Ford car

The service obligation of the Ford Motor Company and its dealer organization is now growing at the rate of 5000 cars a day. It is to these new car owners that this message is addressed.

The new Ford is a remarkably fine car for one that costs so little. It is simple in design, constructed of the finest materials, and built to unusually close measurements.

These are the reasons it performs so wonderfully. These are also the reasons its service requirements are so few and the up-keep cost so low.

When you receive your new car, the dealer will explain the simple little things that should be attended to at regular intervals to insure the best performance. He will also tell you something of his own facilities for doing this work promptly and at small cost.

With the purchase of your car, you are entitled to Free Inspection Service by your dealer at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. This service is due you and we urge you to take full advantage of it. Proper care during this breaking-in period means a great deal to the life of your car.

Included in the Free Inspection Service is a check-up of the battery, the generator charging rate, the distributor, the carburetor adjustment, lights, brakes, shock absorbers, tire inflation and steering gear. The engine oil is also changed and chassis lubricated.

No charge whatever is made for labor or materials incidental to this inspection service, except where repairs are necessary because of accident, neglect, or misuse.

The labor of changing the engine oil and lubricating the chassis is also free, although a charge is made for the new oil.

We believe that when you see the good effects of this inspection you will continue to have it done regularly throughout the life of your car.

Wherever you live, you will find the Ford dealer very helpful in keeping your car in good running order for many thousands of miles at a minimum of trouble and expense.

He operates under close factory supervision and has been trained and equipped to do this work promptly, thoroughly and economically.

IT DEVELOPED from conversation with numerous of the bootleggers by the person who conducted the casual inquiry that the bootlegger's interest is not in presidential campaign but in the question of who is going to be sheriff, mayor or chief of police of his city or county.

SO WHILE dry organizations are meeting and exulting about the presidency, the bootlegger, scarcely knowing that there is a presidential election at hand.

WHAT DOES the bootlegger think about the presidential contest? The dry forces have been meeting here, yonder and you and doing a lot of resolving, but there has been no convention of the bootleggers—perhaps because of the lack of sizeable auditoriums in the various cities.

BUT SINCE the bootleggers to be found in most any community of the land, have not written any resolutions or proclaimed from any platform, it is necessary to interview them individually and personally to get their views.

NATURALLY ONE might expect the liquor peddler to be working night and day for the election of a President of his views.

THE RADIO appears to have taken all the joy out of the campaign. Those who love campaign excitement are missing the thrills because there are no thrills.

WHO DO you favor for President? was asked of a bootlegger. It doesn't matter to me who is elected, he said.

WHAT DO you think about the law enforcement issue? was asked still of another in a certain state. It's my view that a little more enforcement would be a good thing for my business.

BACK STAGE DRAMA OF CIRCUS LIFE IN NEW FEARS BE PERFORM

A regular big time circus performance, with side shows and huge menagerie, figures in a motion picture offering for "Three King Marriages," the first National Picture featuring Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes, which comes to the Rialto Theatre on Friday.

The Al C. Barnes Circus was used to supply atmosphere, real circus performers, clowns, barkers, and even "roustabouts" for this thrilling and human tale of life under the "big top." Every phase of circus life is portrayed, since the film troupe joined the circus at Tucson, Arizona, lived with it during its homeward loop showings to winter quarters in California, and worked with the circus throughout the production.

OLD INDIAN TRADITION IS EVIDENT IN FILM

There is an ancient Indian tradition among the settlers in the Ince Valley Section of the Mojave Desert that the Great Spirit has carved monuments to the men and animals who have died in the rocky hills to the east. It is easily understood. Even today, it is said, hunters gaze in awe at these weird rock formations and listen to the echoes.

The hills are tangled masses of decomposing granite that rise a thousand feet or more from the desert level. Rain and frosts have smoothed all the sharp points. Caves abound. Many of the scenes of Fred Thomas's Paramount picture, "The Pioneer Scout," were made there. This picture is showing at the Rialto theatre Saturday, October 20.

On one of the rocky inclines there seems to be the face of a bearded old man in bas-relief facing the setting sun. On a jutting ledge the outlines of an enormous eagle at rest can be seen. At another point there seems to be the head of a buffalo.

A few miles away there are springs that bubble warm water the year round. They are called the "Woman Springs," said the Indians used to take their old squaws there to spend their declining years.

THOMAS MEIGHAN IN THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE "THE RACKET"

MANY THRILLS IN MEIGHAN PICTURE

Action and thrills are superbly pictured in "The Racket" Thomas Meighan's latest starring effort. No underworld thriller has equalled this stirring and realistic interpretation of municipal graft and gun-play and Thomas Meighan is unfolded in the most convincing characterization of his brilliant career.

As Captain McGuire, fighting and fearless police officer, the popular Irish star is shown in a new kind of role, and he packs a celluloid wallop that wrings universal plaudits wherever the picture has been shown.

"The Racket" is one underworld film that rings true. Its situations are real, and its characters genuine and colorful. The action is as plausible as it is spectacular.

Meighan was never better cast in any picture that he has made. As the handsome police officer, he fits singularly in contrast with his arch-enemy, Nick Scarzi, portrayed by Louis Wolheim, the "ugliest" man on the screen.

Car pike, notorious bad actor of the fish family, is constantly punished by the department of conservation. A crew of two men are just about ready to close up an active season of work in dragging this unwanted inhabitant out of the lakes of Michigan.

The fishing crew, goes about the job in a business like manner. They have ten 300 foot nets of inch mesh which are set in the lake. They are lifted daily and all the gar pike are promptly despatched.

Daily catches run as high as 70 to 80 and after the first day fishing drop off rapidly until two or three are taken. The party seldom remains on a lake longer than 5 or 6 days.

Other states which will have the new license plates for 1929 are: Alabama, California, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Utah and District of Columbia.
