NEBEL TELLS OF A. E. F. PILGRIMAGE

MUNISING JUDGE OF PROBATE GIVES SPLENDID TALK ON ARMISTICE DAY

Richard W. Nebel of Munising, judge of probate of Alger county, gave a splendid talk Monday night at the banquet for former service men and some of their friends observing Armistice Day. Judge Nebel told of the American Legion convention held in Paris about a year ago and which he attended as a delegate from his Legion Post at Munising.

It was a pilgrimage back to those places of the World War days, and especially to the field where fallen comrades had been buried under French soil to return no more to the native land for which they had fought a manly battle. Judge Nebel declared in the course of his talk.

Soldiers Very Friendly
"Between the soldiers of the different nations allied in the war, there was the friendliest of understanding. The same spirit of friendship was manifested by people in all walks of life in Belgium, but in France the civilians showed a coolness that indicated a lack of understanding of the American view point, and perhaps even a jealousy of this Nation."

The delegates from America were anxious to present the correct American viewpoint. Judge Nebel toured through different countries in Europe and was able to relate interesting experiences in all of them. He declared that former service men on the return journey were generally agreed that France was debt to America but that it should want to pay, just as any private individual would want, for his own interests, to pay all obligations incurred.

He referred to President Coolidge's Armistice Day address over a radio hook-up in which the Nation's chief executive had declared a policy of a policy that would never again send American soldiers to European soil. Judge Nebel declared this declaration of policy came with good grace from an outgoing executive, being entirely from partisan interpretation.

He stated that if France and other European nations hate America now after our attempt to help them in the world war, and for view with suspicion our interference in the future, He compared their quarrels to family squabbles, which they should settle for themselves.

Over 100 at Banquet
More than a 100 were seated at the splendid set tables arranged by the ladies from the Presbyterian church. In addition to the talk by Judge Nebel, there was a selection of blue ball in which she was concealed until the playing of "America" by Mrs. Skogquist.

Jimmie Grant and his orchestra played during the banquet, furnishing some fine music. J. A. Sturgeon presided at the banquet. In the evening, those celebrating Armistice Day, gathered at Terrace Gardens where a program of dancing was carried out by the large crowds was in attendance.

MEANEST PERSON OF 1928 HAS QUALIFIED

The meanest person of the year has again qualified. It is the one who went to the cemetery to steal flowers from the graves of the dead. In one case a grave was covered with flowers which were then added the touch of the loving hand. The flowers were completely dug out. It is hard to imagine any one so heartless as to steal from the dead. And if the flowers are transferred to the grave of another the feeling on the part of the next of kin is one of grief rather than satisfaction.

Rev. Colenso, Pastor Here For 6 Years, Came to America in 1911

Rev. H. W. Colenso came to Gladstone in 1922 and has served the Alice Memorial Methodist church as pastor since. The church was organized in 1907 and for many years had a series of ministers who remained for short periods. Rev. Colenso has found Gladstone church interesting to him and has stayed in the face of repeated offers to leave in larger fields.

He came to America from England in 1911. He has many interests there today, and his voice takes on a new note when he mentions the home of his boyhood. He completed his seminary and college education in England and had his first experience in the ministry. He served the Methodist church at Newberry for six years before coming to Gladstone.

The church organizations have been built up during his pastorate and the congregation has had a healthy growth. A number of church improvements have been made. In 1925 a sum of $5,500 was expended in enlarging the church building, including a new range for social gatherings. A new kitchen was built, new furnace installed, and the building was cleaned and repainted on the outside.

Rev. and Mrs. Colenso and their family made a trip back to England in the summer of 1926. Upon their return in September they had a real surprise awaiting them. News of the construction had been arranged for the complete reconstruction of the parsonage. New kitchen equipment including a new range and sink was purchased for the church basement in 1927.

SUCCUMBS FROM FOOTBALL INJURY

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR CARL BJORK, CONDUCTED MONDAY AFTERNOON

Death came to Carl Bjork, age 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Bjork Saturday morning at 7:30 as a result of a kick in the stomach which he received in a football game with an Escanaba team on Sunday, Nov. 4. He was taken from the field suffering intense pain, and on Tuesday morning when his condition became alarming, he was removed to the St. Francis Hospital of Escanaba. An operation was performed that morning. On Wednesday he rallied somewhat and at first hopes were held for his recovery. Thursday morning another operation was performed in an attempt to save his life. His condition weakened following the operation, and he died at 11:30 a. m. on Wednesday morning. His brother Henning, who attends Washburn College at Crawfordville, Indiana, arrived at the bedside shortly before death came.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the home at 1319 Minnesota street at 4:30. Rev. Paul Palmquist officiated. Pallbearers were schoolmates of the unfortunate young man, Myron Goodman, Arthur O'Brien, Hilding and Gilbert Olson and Henry Blomquist, and Stanley Nyberg. During the service quartet numbers were sung by Albin Nelson, Walter Olson, Nels Swenson and Ewald Erickson. Interment was made in Fernwood Cemetery.

Carl had completed his junior year at Gladstone High School. An affable disposition had provided him with a wide circle of friends, many of whom called at the home before the service to express their sympathy to the grief stricken parents. Surviving are Mr. and Mrs. Bjork, one brother, Henning, two sisters, Hazel, now in High School and Helen, a younger sister.

The sympathy of the entire community is with the bereaved family in their tragic sorrow.

LARGEST CROWD WITNESSED ESCANABA-GLADSTONE GAME

The crowd that witnessed the Escanaba-Gladstone high school football game was the largest on record here, the receipts exceeding even those of the game played between the two teams at Escanaba a year ago. In 1927 at Escanaba field, the receipts were $720, according to figures available here and Monday here they totalled $325.50. Only about $60 was accounted for by those of the reserved seats at left in 1927.

"England is staid and unchanging," Rev. Colenso said, "and I feel that along at an even tempo."

Had to Overcome Baffulness
Although Rev. Colenso is recognized as a fluent speaker now, he recalls that he experienced difficulty on the platform when he started his career. His first audience was a gathering of a ministerial association in England. After that he (Continued on Page Eight)

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS CELEBRATE WITH "SKIP"

SCHOOL NIX, NOT AFTER WINNING THE BIG GAME WITH ESCANABA

Monday afternoon, that's the way the High School students sized up the situation Tuesday morning. Groups gathered around Delta Avenue expressing their enthusiasm for a little while, and then most of them departed for Escanaba to gloat over the defeated.

Their tales include visits to the Escanaba and St. Joseph High Schools, elevator rides and lunch treats.

A crowd of about forty girls who visited St. Joseph's High school were treated to candy, and the students even gave nine rabs for Gladstone High.

Classes with the few stragglers were maintained through out the day. But on Tuesday morning the "skippers" got their punishment, and the sentence to make up their lost time at after school classes. Not so good, but the fun was great while it lasted.

CRIMINAL ARMY NATION'S MENACE

JACKSON SAYS LAXITY OF ENFORCEMENT BREEDS CRIMES. RESPECT FOR LAW

Prosec. Atty. Glenn W. Jackson, speaking Monday before members of the Rotary club, gave an enlightening picture of the serious situation that has developed in the United States, an army of 35,000 criminals constituting the greatest menace. The rate of crime increased from two and one tenth per cent per hundred thousand of population in 1910, to 11 per cent in 1926, a wave unprecedented in the history of the United States.

Atty. Jackson said many citizens blamed the law the presumption being that it developed killers. Yet, he stated, European nations with a larger percentage of their population involved in the conflict, have not seen troubled times as we have seen, and there percentage was below that of the United States even before the great increase here. In fact, the percentage of crime, among the alien population, and yet statistics will show that these same people are there to pay the penalty.

More Killers Than Officers
There were 118,000 deliberate killers in the United States in 1926, Atty. Jackson brought out, with only 50,000 policemen. Only a few are ever apprehended, and of these a still smaller percentage is convicted to be made to serve jail sentences.

Statistics show that there is only one chance in 13 that a law-breaker will be made to pay the penalty. A society imposes for stated criminal offenses. It is this laxity of enforcement which is brought forth by the alien population, and yet statistics will show that these same people are there to pay the penalty.

Chicago has been the center of much crime activity and the laxity of enforcement is brought forth to mind in regards to automobile theft. Continued on Page Eight

HUNTERS SWARM WOODS ISSUE 250 LICENSES

Men in hunting coats, cars loaded with baggage, some of them dusty from travel from distant points was the picture of the stream of cars passing through Gladstone Wednesday and Thursday enroute to hunting camps in the vicinity. Hunting camps owned by the local men are well equipped with all the conveniences of modern life, and many of them are well acquainted with the north woods during the deer season.

Otto Haberman reports that 250 licenses have been issued and anticipates that the number will reach 350 by the end of the week, in comparison with the 250 that were issued last season. Thirty non-resident licenses have been issued. The fee for non-state licenses requiring a $50 fee are procured at the County Clerk's office on Friday.

The license this year gives the hunter a button which he wears on the coat for the convenience of the game warden.

The season is open until November 30th. The law provides that it is not permissible to use artificial light or dogs in hunting, or to kill deer in red coat, while in the water, or any female deer more than three in possession is one male with not less than three inch antlers under the camp license, and unlawful to have in possession more than thirty days after the close of the season.

FINALLY SUBDUED ESCANABA JINX

1928 TEAM WRITES FOOTBALL HISTORY FOR GLADSTONE HIGH, 21 TO 6

There must be a beginning to everything. Likewise an end; the history of football for Gladstone High School came Monday afternoon when Coach Kneil's football team defeated the Escanaba High gridiron warriors to the tune of 21 to 6. The "jinx" was dispersed for once and who knows, perhaps for all time.

Gladstone made three touchdowns two by Beach on one by Liberty, and the latter kicked goal for the extra point after each touchdown. The visitors made one touchdown and that came in the third period.

Pass Work Perfect
The first period was scoreless and the teams played about even. Escanaba was getting the advantage on its punts at the beginning but Liberty came through stronger towards the end of the period and Gladstone had possession of the ball on Escanaba's 32 yard line when the first play started the second period. Gladstone worked a smart play, a pass DeLoough to Liberty who caught it beyond Escanaba's 27 yard line, evaded the Peltola tackle and ran for the first touchdown of the game.

The second touchdown came on exchange of punts, the locals came in possession of the ball on Escanaba's 27 yard line. After two attempts with small gains, once by Beach and then by DeLoough, Beach crashed thru for 19 yards. Beach made another first down with two line crosses, bringing the ball to the three-yard line. Three more attempts gained little, but on the fourth attempt Beach crashed through for a touchdown. Again Liberty followed with a beautiful kick. Escanaba's offense was held to a 14 to 0.

Late in the third quarter, Gladstone found itself with its back Continued on Page Eight

Terry Duran as a hard boiled gout out to collect a fortune out of which he had been cheated, and Norman Harris, the bridegroom, brought forth many laughs. Mrs. J. A. Sturgeon directed the play.

Other numbers of the program that won the applause of the audience were two vocal solos by Mrs. M. C. Gunter, and a violin and piano duo by the Misses Angela and Agnes Peterson. A talk was given by Rev. S. Maier, and Theodore LaPorte entertained with humorous stories in the usual pleasant manner.

Whenever a leader in whom the people have confidence proposes a plan, it is not only readily approved but acclaimed as something very much worth while. And it is this degree of confidence which the American people have in Herbert Hoover that should lead much import to the good will touch which he has arranged to start next week Monday.

It is typical of the President-Elect that he wished to secure first hand information. A study of his life and his first hand discloses that tendency and ability to get to the bottom of things and then to build solidly from the bottom up.

Another encouraging feature of the trip is that it sets a precedent, indicating that the new executive will not propose to hamper himself by confining his endeavors to methods and procedures established by his predecessors in office.

He will travel in the grand States battleship, the Maryland, but it nevertheless will be a peace mission, one that holds out good promise for a more neighborly understanding among the nations of the American continent.

For Hoover has already shown himself to be unselfish and sincere in his dealings, and he is diplomat enough to bring home to the other nations the important fact that the citizens of the United States are willing and anxious to see the peoples of other nations progress and prosper, just as they themselves are ever seeking for constant and continual betterment.

TAKE America's policy toward Nicaragua as an example. Many citizens of the United States have believed and continue to believe that it was wrong for this Nation to have maintained a force of U. S. Marines to police another nation, and to remain there for several months with the announced intention of seeing to it that its election was conducted properly.

It smacks too much of autocracy. President Coolidge has been incapable of "selling" the policy of his administration. What he has said on the subject has not served to promote a better understanding.

The policy was discussed in the recent election. It could not really figure as an issue but it was early established that the Democratic administration under Wilson that had preceded the present Republican administration had set the precedent, in Mexico as well as in Nicaragua.

But Hoover when he returns for his inauguration will probably have some definite and sound ideas. Perhaps he will approve the present policy. This writer rather hopes and expects something better.

ANOTHER precedent is set by Gov. Al. Smith. Democratic aspirant, who on Tuesday night delivered a message to the American people over a radio hook-up. It was a fine thing to do—fine for the Nation and fine for the minority party, and for these reasons.

First because Gov. Smith proclaims an American policy when he reminds the people that "the man selected by the voters last Tuesday to lead the country was not the President of the Republican Party, but President of the United States."

Second, because the overzealous partisans who follow a leader blindly, disappointed in the outcome of the last election, might be influenced by their leader's declaration to look upon their defeat from a broader aspect. The party should benefit if it follows Gov. Smith's suggestion to build a program and not to rely on the mistakes of his office.

"The Democratic party would not be in a position four years from now to solicit the confidence and the support of the American people, if during that period it neglected to build up a constructive program and relied upon the failure of the opposition party."

That was the trouble with the Democratic party in the last election—it relied too much on the mistakes of the Harding and Coolidge administrations, and little or nothing to offer in its own behalf. That was true in the national election and much more so within this state. It did much criticizing and had little constructively to offer.

Gov. Smith has announced that he is through with public life. That is a proper thing to declare and it may have been stated in all sincerity, but a public character cannot easily retire and there will be those who will be looking ahead to his re-entry. Perhaps in four years he can travel about this country and better acquaint himself with the needs so that more definite policies may be outlined. Such an understanding would have strengthened Gov. Smith in the last campaign.

However if the President-Elect succeeds as well as his supporters expect, it will take a mighty strong organization to dialogue him four years hence.

High school athletics are not carried on simply to win games, however much satisfaction there is in the winning. It seems to us that athletes first of all inculcate the lesson that to succeed one must prepare properly, put forth every last ounce of effort, and cooperate effectively with the other forces employed. The satisfaction in winning should come because of the realization that these forces have been coordinated successfully.

And so it is with the season just closed in football by the Gladstone high school. Members of the team have worked hard preparing themselves, have listened to the counsel of a good coach in whom they had confidence, and then went out and worked together to the limit of their respective ability. Result? Seven successive victories, the last against the Escanaba High, whose team has ruled supreme for 27 years.

The difference between success and failure is ever so little. Being just a little bit better in some one little thing is what determines the result. Escanaba has held the edge in the last six years in which games were played with Gladstone. This year the tables were turned. The Escanaba Daily Press congratulates Gladstone and assumes a gracious position toward the winner in the following editorial:

Gladstone high school's victory over Escanaba Monday followed the normal flow of the "dog-eat-dog." Gladstone has more than merely a good team. It is a great team—one that could be depended upon to give a good account of itself against any high school opponent. The gallant fight Escanaba waged against the Uphays was entirely satisfactory to the followers of the Highlanders. No stigma can emanate from a defeat at the hands of a superior adversary.

Because it was Gladstone's first victory over Escanaba in a quarter of a century, it was more than ordinarily sweet to the Uphay players and fans and no one here desires, in any way, to discount or detract from their achievement.

To Coach Kiel and his players, who throughout the season have demonstrated their "class," Escanaba extends congratulations. They earned their success.

ANY discussion about the mythical championship of the upper peninsula makes good reading, but like running in a circle—you don't get anywhere. Both Gladstone and Ironwood played through the season without defeat. The latter school has already made a claim for the crown, presuming that it has played a "heavier" schedule. That is a matter of opinion, each to a man, most suitably.

Maybe Gladstone is stronger than Ironwood, and maybe the opposite is the situation. That will never be settled and really is not material. The fact of the matter is that the team gave its best, and that was enough to bring honor and glory to the school's history. Citizens are proud of the boys and will wish for them as they are now preparing themselves.

THE deer slayers are at work, the writer among them. This is being written as we are preparing to make the departure into the woods. About 60,000 hunters are estimated to hunt in the upper peninsula this season. Needless to say that a good proportion of them will fill their licenses, for deer are plentiful, as much as ever. The kill is a distinct loss and yet it is not the most serious with which this district must contend. The hunter who goes out during the season is more likely to observe the law. Considerable progress has been made since the days when the hunter resented the license fee and limitation of his kill. Now it is generally recognized that regulation is essential to the preservation of the species and those of this mind cooperate fully with the Conservation Department.

The real problem is the out-of-season hunter. It is a common belief that more deer are killed out of season. Headlights present the most serious menace. Those who indulge in the practice seem to become imbued with the killer instinct to such an extent that they can not resist the temptation to go out on nights that favor their unlawful operations. It is a most difficult evil to check, because while disinterested citizens know of the parties engaged in headlighting, they are reluctant to make reports to the game wardens, and the latter are handicapped in checking night time activities.

Some progress may be made until such time as the game law violator is recognized as a menace to the preservation of natural resources and reported promptly as such.

THIS is the season for the underdog, just as was shown in the football games between the colleges earlier in the season. Schools that have been defeated regularly by the larger universities have come forward to assume the upper hand. Then Gladstone did it at Escanaba and Menominee to Marinette, Nice Armistice Day!

THOSE going into the woods need to remember the ordinary precautions in the handling of firearms. Hunters accustomed to the woods need no warning and those coming from the cities are hard to reach, so that there is no need to go into a repetition of details. The bad feature of the hunting season is that it gives opportunity to some people to carry guns who should never be permitted with them.

THE need is nothing more than a condition of better understanding and appreciation—each needs the other—this is becoming more true each year.

That was one declaration made by Brook Jones, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen & Engineers, speaking before a booster meeting of the Gladstone City club just last week. Mr. Jones' talk showed a great deal of deep thought by a student of human nature. And the important point is that the visionary differences between business man and worker are being wiped away by such meetings as those where all meet on a common ground to discuss their problems—workers in a Common Cause," as Mr. Jones expressed his thought.

There are really no classes existing or necessary in America. All must be employed in gainful occupations to be independent. The man who works is as much a businessman as the one who is in trade—only sells services, the other commodities. Both are necessary and the ethics of modern business is that a transaction is proper only when all parties in the deal are benefited by it. The worker must be willing to earn his wage and the business man must sell at a fair price. That is the ethical thing.

Mr. Jones covered some important points. All of them boil down to the quotation at the head of this editorial, the need for better understanding. There are businessmen who cannot or will not concede a point and there are working men the same way. This class is the exception but it is the element that causes whatever lack of understanding exists. The worker cannot have a good job with good wages unless business conditions are good. Likewise business cannot flourish unless the worker receives better than a living wage. Prosperity is mutual.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Delta City Reporter Thursday evening, Nov. 14, 1918 Ernest Gundison, who with his wife was taken to an Escanaba Hospital about a week ago, both suffering with pneumonia, died at five o'clock Monday evening. TWENTY YEARS AGO

The Gladstone Delta, November 14, 1908

The Buckeys is a busy place, with the building of the new mill. The big concrete work of the veneer mill has been completed. The machinery will be placed on concrete foundation. Work was pressed on the hoop department, which is a wing opening to the south from the center of the mill. Messrs. Wilford have introduced several new machines into the flour mill, to supplement the old ones, of which several were supplied to them in years gone by. They include a new boiler, and some machinery for handling and weighing the wheat in preparation for the grinders.

The second high school team was defeated by St. Joseph's of Escanaba by a score of 10 to 9 last Saturday on the grounds here.

A. E. Neff this spring planted two acres north of his old cemetery with alfalfa. The hot dry summer failed to discourage it, and it has taken root and a good crop is expected from it next year. If Mr. Neff's experiment is successful, it will be possible to find some value for the outlying portion of the city. There are a thousand acres in the city limits that might be utilized in this manner.

The axe factory closed Saturday for the annual deer hunt. The whistles blew early in the afternoon, and the employees assembled over at the tool room to feed their faces on fruit, and receive their pay checks. Mr. Marble delivered a brief address to the force with a few practical suggestions on preparation, and underground trips.

"There is one more chance," said the dwarf. "The Shrine of the Golden Door is an evil place that is frequented by my unworthy brother but I do not believe that even he would dare to risk taking the young lady to that infamous place."

"Backwell would dare anything," replied Terry. "Come, let's try it. And with the dwarf pushing ahead they continued at a faster pace than before."

The iron door leading into the Den of a Thousand Sins blocked their progress. The dwarf knocked. The panel opened and the same wrinkled face of the old Chinese woman peered down upon them. She scowled. The dwarf spoke to her rapidly in Chinese but she scowled harder than ever.

"Here, try this," said Terry and reaching into his pocket, brought out a handful of gold coins and offered them to her. Her only reply was to slam the panel in their anxious faces.

"If Dolores is in there we'll soon know it. Come on, we'll go back and get Lu Fong. He will know the way to get inside." And Terry grasped the dwarf by the hand and fairly dragged him along as they rapidly retraced their steps.

CHAPTER XX

The Feast of Desire
It was a gala night in the Shrine of the Golden Door, or the Den of a Thousand Sins, as it was more popularly nicknamed. All the wealthy notables of Chinatown were gathered there to celebrate the annual Feast of Desire—a revel of exotic oriental splendor that attracted jaded appetites and opened tired eyes in eager anticipation.

Within the huge circular room was an enormous table placed directly in the center. It was laden with every conceivable kind of food. Overhead a great heavy brass crystal chandelier, ornate with scroll and dragon design, brilliantly illuminated the interior of the room.

Around the walls were soft, low divans strewn with bright silk cushions. Deep Persian rugs were spread about the floor and hung from the walls, where their soft rich colors reflected and subdued the brilliant light in the center.

Upon the divans a dozen or more Chinamen lolled in luxury. Some were fat and gross; others lean, sallow and evil, but all were clad in the most insignificant and colorful gowns. In front of each divan was a small low table, handsomely inlaid with mother of pearl. Each table bore a brass tray upon which were placed candies and other Oriental sweetmeats, cigarettes and curious long-stemmed pipes.

At one side of the room where it could be viewed from all the divans was a cleared space where painted girls were swaying in wild abandon to the wailing music of a reed orchestra. Over it all arose the subtle aroma of heavy incense. It was a scene at once so fantastic and bizarre that it was hard to believe that it occurred in a thriving city of the Western world. The East with all its lore and charm was transplanted to that room with a truthfulness that could not be denied.

The music ceased its wailing. The dancers left the floor. Behind the orchestra the curtains parted and the slender graceful figure of a young girl darted onto the floor. Her beautiful body was so plainly clothed in a film of pale gauze. Her limbs were entirely bare and her luxuriant golden hair fell about her shoulders half revealing, half concealing the charming figure beneath.

The reed pipes took up their wailing. The dance began. The pleasure-seeking Chinamen sat up with awakened interest. They followed every suggestive motion of the lithe swaying body as it displayed the wisdom of the ages in its interpretations. As the dance ended a low sibilant sound of drawn breaths was plainly audible. It was followed by a burst of applause as the dancer swiftly ran through the curtained doorway. The Chinamen moved restlessly.

From another doorway Backwell entered, accompanied by the manager. They walked to the center of the room. There was a dead silence. The manager held up his hand. Every eye was turned upon them. There was a dead silence.

"By the courtesy of this gentleman," he began indicating Backwell, "we have arranged for your pleasure this evening something out of the line of our usual entertainment. Something different. There will be an auction. You are to have the opportunity of bidding upon one of the most exquisite jewels in existence." He paused dramatically. "Look!" he continued. They followed the direction of his outstretched arm.

A door opened and Dolores was thrust into the room. The door closed behind her. She was dressed in a gorgeous light-fitting gown that displayed every contour of her figure. Her lovely hair hung loosely about her shoulders. As she gazed at the scene before her, an agonizing look of horror crossed her face. She turned to flee but the door did not budge as she tried to force it.

Backwell advanced toward her with a smile of appreciation for her appearance. The manager grinned broadly. All around the room the Chinamen sat up in eager interest. The manager and Backwell escorted Dolores to the banquet table. Helpless and terrified she looked around at the eager, vice-marked faces turned toward her. In vain she sought for an avenue of escape. For the sign of one friendly face and mortified she sobbed convulsively. But there was no pitying repose. Nothing but a sea of faces and eyes that burned with desire and greed.

The manager cleared a space in the center of the table. Backwell climbed upon it and faced Dolores after him. Then he faced the pleasure seekers and raising his hand for silence asked, "How much am I bid?" he smiled triumphantly as he looked down from the improvised auction block. "Who wants this lovely dove of virtue and beauty?" Dolores shuddered.

Backwell noticed and smirked at her in contempt. "Fifty thousand dollars!" Backwell eyed the bidder with disdain. "One hundred thousand dollars," said another emphatically. "Two hundred thousand," bid another, a shriveled Chinaman. Backwell became interested. "Think, gentlemen, where have you ever beheld such a paragon of youth full beauty and virtue and all I'm offering is a paltry two hundred thousand dollars. Why that amount would scarcely pay for jewels to decorate her slender throat. But it did not mean that interest in the girl on the block had abated. She was desirable as a prize. Backwell turned from one to the other of the active bidders—heek-heek-heek-calling.

"Five hundred thousand dollars!" The bidder, a heavy paunchy Chinaman, grinned in anticipation of his success. The excitement was acute. This was an enormous sum. A fortune in itself. Backwell was very pleased.

Another figure arose and approached the table. A tall gaunt Chinaman with a hideous pockmarked face. His eyes were fairly agitter with lust. There was a pause. Backwell watched him intently for a bid. The Chinamen scrutinized Dolores from head to foot. She shrank away from him in stark terror and looked pleadingly at Backwell. But he ignored her and catching the rouse's eye waited patiently.

"One million dollars!" bid the old Chinaman in a clear voice. (To be Continued)

Observations and Comment by Alice Fax

CHICAGO DOESN'T get much more, but they have a habit of putting on a little more there all their own state occasions. They greeted Al Smith by bits of flying paper that filled the air, and a number of their first celebration of Armistice Day showed a similar imitation paper blizzard.

AN IRISHMAN who has reached the age of 123 years has been presented with $15, by King George. When he reaches 130 it is understood that the King will send him $16. That guy sure has lots to live for.

PROBABLY ninety-nine out of every hundred tourists who traveled over our moonic Bay this past week exclaimed, "Aint Nature Grand." That's the way an expression sticks. Somebody saw an old maid removing her false hair one night, and accidentally sighed, "Aint Nature Grand," and folks have been applying it ever since until it has become about the most apt description of any bit of beautiful scenery. And grand "aint" what they mean a tall tale, just a case of four out of every five having it.

NBODY KNOWS YET what Mr. Coolidge is going to do after he leaves the White House in March. He will go on the supreme court bench, but at any rate he'll have enough words left to last him passing out sentences for the rest of his life.

IN THE FIRST SIX months of this year, Chicago is reported having 41 fewer murder crimes than during that period last year. First thing we know they'll be having a crime week to catch up.

IF YOU WANT TO SEE a myriad of little black things that are going to be bright flaky little gold fish one of these days, you ought to take a peak into the big tank in the basement of Mrs. Ray Gaskay's home on Minnesota Avenue. The baby gold fish lie quietly in the bottom of the tank most of the time, but a bit of fish food brings them quickly to the surface.

The tank, which is just a hot water tank with one side removed, is only the "winter home." In the summer time they repose peacefully in a concrete swimming pool dug in the ground in the Gaskay back yard. Mrs. Gaskay has found that they grow faster there and show their appreciation of sunlight and air by their liveliness. One is reminded of a collection of minnows upon seeing the little black creatures and can't help but marvel at the change that nature will make as they grow.

CAN YOU JUST PICTURE the perplexity of the dear old lady who wrote plaintively to the director of a radio station to find out how to slow down the music for dancing. She had tried all the notes without success. She probably wanted to do a little butterfly solo walk.

THE BUCK FEVER of yore often has been given way to the buck fever. As soon as our hunters get back we'll have enough fresh stories to keep us going good and strong for another year.

They don't have to get a buck to have the buck fever though. They see whole herds of them strolling along over the hills, regardless. And it's always the other fellow in the party who misses his shot, just a couple of jerks away, looking right at it, and all that about the buck kicking up his legs and beating it off for the jungles again. You've all heard that kind.

Well you can cast aside all the favorite recollections of deer stories you have because when this year's hunters have returned, deerless or not, it means no difference, they'll all have the buck fever.

"AND HOW," is John Voss's favorite expression, and he just naturally gets it in the Radio Theatre Ad.

ONE RADIO ANNOUNCER had a slippery voice and he let it slip when he announced during a program at one of the Metropolitan hotels. "This program is coming to you soon the Grand Brawl room of this Hotel."

G. E. DEHLIN RIGHTFULLY feels just like Bobby Jones these days. He has a big shining cup which proclaims him Gladstone's golf champion. But Gus kind of a modest like, keeps it in the back of the store on a table instead of putting it out in the display window where he always places the high school cups. He has it all the same though, and if Charlie Green, or any of the other Gladstone golf boys were to beat him in the future Gus will hold forth the 1928 cup.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF ALRIGHT. We read of a Greek woman who not only bobbed her hair, but had two permanent waves during her life. According to that about one hundred years hence, men will be tucking their George Washington curls behind their ears too.

THAT no matter what the hue of the sky, it looks like snow to somebody these days.

THAT cars piled high with knapsacks, and a couple of stove pipes protruding here and there are familiar sights with the hunters off for their annual pursuit.

DEER HUNTING SEASON OPEN

MANY HUNTERS HERE START ANNUAL TRIP INTO THE WOODS

Several hundred hunters have pitched their tents, repaired camp or parked their autos in the deer country of the Whitefish valley for the fifteen day hunting season which opened yesterday.

Hunters from the southern part of the state began arriving Saturday and each day saw the number rapidly increasing until the opening day when it was estimated that the greatest number of hunters to ever make the village their headquarters had arrived. Rooming places have been filled and the restaurants taxed to their full capacity. On Tuesday the Delta cafe served 250 meals and short orders. The stores have been busy in supplying the hunters with needed camp and hunting supplies during the week and will continue to receive orders from the hunters from after they are settled in their camps.

"Repeaters" Mostly
The most of the hunters from the southern part of the state who are hunting here have hunted here in other years and are returning well satisfied with the opportunity afforded for the filling of their deer license. A number of new hunters have come this year and will very likely make this territory their permanent grounds in the future. One party of hunters from Pontiac who have been hunting here for years have purchased several hundred acres of land east of Farm lake as a hunting preserve. Many attended or camped in the vicinity of the Eighteen, the Haymeswood and on the plains between the Bliss creek and the Big Gulch.

Local hunters have their camps in readiness for the season and will spend as much time as is possible or necessary for filling their licenses. Some of them will take a vacation from their work for a week or ten days while others will spend only the week ends at camp. Woodsmen who have been working in the Whitefish territory all summer prepare the camps and lawns plentiful but seldom a buck was seen. It is the belief of many that there should be a change in the season to open and a closed season with one deer as the limit. Many dogs, lawns and bucks whose horns are under the size prescribed by law are killed and left in the woods according to the old woodmen and hunters who report having found the carcasses of the animals.

Many Cars Used
Cars of all descriptions have brought the hunters to the hunting grounds. High priced sedans, open cars and trucks have arrived loaded with the camp equipment and supplies necessary for a two weeks of roughing it in the woods. Several cars with a good sized house built on them have stopped here on their way to the woods where the car with its improved home will provide suitable quarters for the party of hunters. The heavy fall of snow on the first day of the hunting season last year and the crust which formed shortly after, were a hindrance and a closed season with one deer was an unsuccessful one for many. The notes made by the hunt in traveling through the crusty snow gave warning to the deer long before the hunter had an opportunity to see it. Many hunters had to leave the woods before the season closed because of the danger of being forced to leave their autos in the woods all winter and in a number of cases it took several days to get some of the cars down from the vicinity of the "18".

ARMISTICE DAY WAS QUIET AFFAIR HERE

The tenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice ending the World war passed by without any notice being given to it during the day. All stores remaining open with the exception of the McPherson hardware and the barber shops. The high school was closed because of the teachers institute for the day. The canoes on Monday and a number of the students attended the football game at Gladstone.

The Auxiliary of the American Legion sponsored a party in the high school gym Monday evening giving a program of speaking, singing and games. Atty. W. J. Miller gave the address for the occasion. Following the program, dancing was enjoyed by the eighty or more guests present and a lunch was served by the Auxiliary committee.

Henry Kay of Detroit motored here Saturday for a weeks visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kay.

The Rapid River Co-operative Creamery received a substantial increase in its number of shippers this week when the Eben territory began their shipment here. The creamery truck is making two trips a week to Trenary for the collection of the cream.

LOCAL BOY IN NAVY TO VISIT NEXT WEEK

Lyle Trotter who recently enlisted in the U. S. Navy and is stationed at the Great Lakes training station will return for a visit to his home next week having been given a twelve days furlough before being assigned to an eastern station or to a ship. Lyle graduated from high school with the class of 1928 and soon after entered the navy. He is preparing for work as a radio operator and will take an examination before coming home on his furlough if successful in this test he will be sent to Washington for further study.

LOCALS SCORE OVER NAHMA

H. S. BASKETBALL TEAM WINS IN 25 TO 5 GAME FRIDAY

The high school basketball team had very little trouble in disposing of Nahma in the game last Friday night on the local gym floor. The semi-pro town players could make only four points during the game, one from a free throw and four from two field goals. Caswell with four field goals and Trotter with three field goals and a free throw were the high point makers for the locals.

Nahma scored the first point of the game on a free throw and played a fast and exciting game during the first quarter but the locals soon got started on offense and piled up a lead of 12 to 1 before the half ended. A large number of the reserves were thrown into the game and gave a good account of themselves. Although the score was one-sided the game was interesting to the good attendance present. The game developed into a rough and tumble affair at times with Miller and Trotter on the casualty list with a sprained wrist and thumb.

Kenneth Lagerquist had the misfortune to break his right arm while cranking a Ford last Saturday.

The Oster school will open again next Monday following a few weeks' shut down because of influenza.

L. E. Wolfe received a telegram Wednesday telling of the death of his sister from influenza at Ashland.

Mrs. R. C. Young entertained at a lunch Wednesday evening. Her guests were Mrs. Archie Forrest, Mrs. Andrew Hanson, Mrs. George LaBarbanc and Mrs. H. E. Pfeiffer.

Dr. and Mrs. Allen and two daughters arrived yesterday from the lower peninsula making the trip in their family automobile. The doctor will hang out his card at once to commence the practice of medicine.

Lawrence Thurston is at the barber shop in the absence of Archie Forrest while he deer hunts this week.

Harry Buchman leaves tonight to go into training at the Great Lakes Naval Station.

Word reached here the first of the week announcing the death of Mrs. Dan Wicklander at her home in Salem, Oregon, last Saturday.

She is well known here, she and Mr. Wicklander being among the early settlers of Whitefish. They were the founders of the Wicklander farm on the southern extremity of the Whitefish settlement and while the place has changed hands several times since they left, it will probably always be known as the Wicklanders farm.

COME YOU SEVENS
What does your license button say? It is going to bring you good luck? Look over the number on your deer license button carefully and if you have a 13 or 23 on it the numbers when added will have 13 or 23 in its sum, or if it contains all odd numbers and you believe in even ones, or if they are even and you want odd, you had better throw the license away because the jinx will be with you. The lucky guy will be the one who can show how many seven's and eleven's he has in his number.

WELL BALANCED TEAM

Escanaba made a serious threat to score late in the game, making several successful passes, but Gladstone broke them up when the visitors threatened to score and the game ended with the score 21 to 6 in Gladstone's favor.

It was the first decisive victory over the county sesters in a generation, and there was plenty of reason for jubilation. Also it meant the close of a successful football season with seven straight victories and no defeats.

Gladstone had a well balanced line and a splendid backfield. In beating Escanaba, the team accomplished that which has been strived for during several years.

The local's triumph came before the largest crowd of fans ever assembled on the local field, the receipts amounting to more than recorded at the same between the two teams at Escanaba a year ago.

The "Jim's" is broken. The lineups follow and then those in the Gladstone team will perhaps be referred to in years coming when the time when the "Jim" was broken.
