Route 'D' is approved

The Manistique City Council Tuesday changed its preference for new US-2 bridge over the Manistique River, bowing to the state's choice for expansion and rerouting of the highway.

In return, the city received a .43 acres of and, a new entrance to the municipal marina, and assurances that the Department of State Highways and Transportation "will investigate the pedestrian safety hazards involved at the intersection of the nounced its preference for alternate E in the state's plan. That route would have required a bascule bridge near the mouth of the river. As it turned out, the alternate would interfere with planned senior citizens housing on the east side of the river and a secondary waste treatment facility on the west side.

Route D, which calls for a bridge just north of the marina, has a price tag of $5,093,000.

Green boxes full of trouble

by Mark Eisenlohr

Those big, bulky waste receptacles, commonly referred to as the green boxes, that are scattered around the county are still causing some township supervisors a lot of grief.

For the past few months complaints have been rolling in at least two townships on a regular basis. Most concern the scenery, or lack of it, at the dumping stations.

Hiawatha and Thompson Townships seem to be registering the most complaints, mostly evolving around full overflowing boxes. Other townships report some unhappiness with the over-all system, but nothing serious. Still some others are perfectly content with the whole thing. Thompson Township will be holding a special election Feb. 15 to renew one mill to pay for the boxes. That one mill was originally voted in three years ago when the townships were forced to close their dumps and seek an alternate method of disposing garbage.

Harbor View Towers and the marina entrance area," according to the resolu-

Moved by Councilmember Mary Moffat. i resolution accepting alternate D in the state's highway plan was approved without dissent. Moffat and Councilmembers Bob White, Doug Rose, and Peter Mathson voted yes. Mayor Frank Hewitt, who said later that his funeral business might be affected by the route change, abstained. Under the resolution, the city approves the use of Alternate D, which would expand US-2 from its present two lanes to four or five lanes and eliminate at least live houses and as many as three businesses along Arbutus Avenue. "The City of Manistique further aproves the closing of the Cedar Street drive to the marina parking lot, and waives the right to an appraisal of the aforementioned land ands."

In exchange for giving up .21 acres of property to the state, the city accepted .43 acres between the marina and the new highway's right-of-way, and relocation of the marina entrance to south of the Hewitt Funeral Home.

Councilmembers expressed a concern that the safety of pedestrians, espescially senior citizens from Harbor View Towers, would be threatened by the relocated and expanded highway.

"I would say there'll probably have to be some signalling devices," W.F. Wines, representing the highway department, told the council that would be up to the department's traffic and safety division. he added.

After the meeting, Wines said final approval is yet needed from the Bureau of Outdoor. Recreation of the Department of Interior, the Department of Natural Resources, and the Environmental Protection Agency before plans can proceed on the project.

Wines, acting supervisor of right of way planning and location, said it would be "a couple of years" before construction is begun.

Homes lying in the path of the planned route are those of Bud Malloy, 239 Arbutus Ave; Mrs. J.S. Wilde, 235 Arbutus Ave.; Gottfrid S. Johnson, 229 Arbutus Ave.: Beryl Jones renting a home at 243 Arbutus Ave.; and a home rented by Michael Olson, 233 Arbutus Ave.

A garage owned by Curran Chevrolet-Oldsmobile that formerly housed Peterson's gas station, also lies within the right of way. The Messier-Broullire Funeral Home was to receive an option to sell, as the right of way touches the rear of the building, but no state official had contacted the business as of Tuesday.

"Gus" Gustafson, owner of Gus's 76, said he probably wouldn't relocate "for the simple reason property is too expensive to relocate." His service station is in the way of a rerouting of Arbutus Avenue to existing US-2.

Tuesday morning's meeting of the council continued discussion on the rerouting after Monday night's regular session, which adjourned at 9 p.m.

Several area residents were at the Monday meeting to voice their opinions on the route chosen by the state.

"This means the end of the nicest street in Manistique," said one resident. "You will lose $10,000 a year in taxes; you're just trading these homes for a slab of cement." The resident is one of the five who would have to sell their homes. Other members of the audience at the city council meeting Monday night voiced their objections at the route. But according to the council, their hands were tied in the situation

"Any further consideration on this matter the state would consider blatant stalling and would seek other action," the council was told.

"I don't like to see anybody's home taken," said councilmember White. "They're more or less telling us that it's going to be route D. We could take and vote for "Zee" route and they'll give us D anyway."

City manager Robert Risik discounted voting for the favored E route.

"This would put three projects in the same place," said Risik. The E route would go where the planned sewage plant and the planned senior citizens housing project are located.

Following a recess motion to reconvene on Tuesday to discuss the routing, City Manager Risik told the board that HUD would allow the city to continue with the community development program for one more year. Earlier, concern was voiced whether HUD would continue to allow the city to participate after it spent some $75,000 in HUD funding on ineligible activities. Risik told the council that during a meeting with Rich Paul, HUD community development director, Blanche Gavin, program director and Lana Vacha, local representative in the HUD community programs, in Detroit last week that an agreement had been reached which he considered "very fair, considering the nature of our wrongs.

WIDE SHADED BAND shows future expanded route for highway US-2 in Manistique as a result of city council action Tuesday morning. The highway will be enclanded to four or five lanes and eliminate at least five houses and possibly three business buildings along Arbutus Avenue. Present entrance to the municipal marina will be closed, as shown by X's and relocated to the east (narrow shaded band). Striped area shows property that will be turned over to the city in exchange for the loss of the marina entrance. Construction is not expected to start for two years.

Withheld state aid crimps schools

Manistique Areas Schools will receive only about half of its earlier anticipated Feb. 1 state aid payment, but it remains to be seen whether the district will have to borrow before its current $150,000 loan falls due on April 1. Superintendent Richard Bonifas explained that the district will get only $48,727 in state aid because of the state's "red balances."

The district was informed in a Jan. 19 letter that the remaining half of the February payment "may not be released by the State Treasurer until July unless funds become available at an earlier date," according to a letter from the

"Because the other townships didn't live up to their music and keep a clean dump, the state closed all of the dumps,' Anderson explained. "We kept a clean dump, and we were told so. Our dump was locked when it was closed and we had a man there when it was open," he added. Anderson has reported some trouble with the new system mainly with the scheduled pick-up. Problems have also come up with the location of the township and the tourist season.

"They don't pick up the boxes as often as they should," he said," and U.S.-2 runs right through the township so we get a lot of extra garbage from passing motorists. The tourist season also overworks the boxes.

"But, we have as much trouble with our own people as with people from other places," Anderson added.

The township residents each pay $10.54 for the service. That figure, as in other townships, is based on a 1970 population census.

Merwin White, director of the Alger-Schoolcraft Department of Public Wurks, responsible for the pick-up, says that garbage is picked up twice a week and three times a week during the summer months.

The department operates one truck and employs one man, which White feels is adequate to cover the job.

"The only time it really taxes us," said White, "is in the summer months and of course, in the winter months if the roads are really bad."

Extreme cold, like that which has been experienced all over the state this year, also slows down the hydraulic system on the truck. The truck has a hydraulic front loader which lifts the boxes and dumps them in the truck. A compacter then for courthouse

Work is proceeding on a bronze cast mural display scheduled to adorn the main lobby of the new Schoolcraft County courthouse building.

County officials have commissioned Jack Anderson, artist from Lake Linden, to do the work for a fee up to $15,000. According to County Clerk Fred Lesica, the bronze presentation will include one major mural plus 10 to 12 smaller bronze plaques to be arranged throughout the lobby.

Under the theme of "law, order and justice," the large mural will feature scenes of the area's historic, economic, and wildlife attributes, stemming from a center piece of bronze.

The scenes will be repeated on separate plaques, captioned with brief descriptions, and placed at individual locations in the lobby outside of the circuit courtroom. Money for the artwork is to come from a contingency fund in the $2.2 million county building project. A total of $100,000 was left in the fund as of Dec. 31 to cover such items as equipment, shelving, landscaping and miscellaneous needs in the new building.

In February of 1976, the county commission gave the county building authority in charge of the construction, a verbal go-ahead to provide for an artistic presentative in the new building.

In December, county commissioners were called to meet with Anderson and the building authority to discuss a specific plan and fee from the board, only Commissioner William Tennyson attend-

Commissioner William Olesak objected to the plan at the board's Dec. 21 meeting, but his motion to disapprove it died for the lack of a second.

Lesica said the mural and plaques are board. expected to be completed over the next few months. Anderson has cast a number of noted bronze sculptures, including a statue scrap the traffic ordinance code and of Bishop Baraga at L'Anse.

City Clerk Patricia Erickson and Councilmember Moffat also attended the meeting in which the HUD officials told them that the Manistique community development program was "the worst one that they have on their books.'

Under the settlement reached, HUD would deduct from future programs a minimum of $75,000 due to ineligible costs. Because of the deductions, City Manager Risik said that some programs would have to Le cut, including the industrial park, westside park and the comprehensive community planning. Those three would be dropped altogether with water lines receiving a $5,000 cut and the community center project losing $20,000. In other action taken by the city council during Monday nights meeting:

reduces the amount of garbage to cubic feet. The truck is capable of holding 6-8 full boxes, or 34 cubic yards.

According to some townships, the DPW is not providing all of the services listed in the contracts. White says that he does not disagree with that claim.

"If we don't charge enough to provide those services listed in the contract, then we don't do it," White explained.

He listed a 23 cent jump in fuel oil since the program started and an initial low estimate of the amount of refuse that the county townships, and three townships in Alger, would be throwing out.

White feels that the misplacing of the boxes created some problems; not enough boxes where the people are and too many in the outlaying areas. Boxes that are close to town, where the densest population of the township residents can be found, are subject to local abuse, he said.

"The boxes that are to close to the town are used by the townspeople," White said. He added that the Christmas crunch found some city residents using the townships boxes.

The city maintains its own garbage collecting service but only on a once a week basis. White feels that if the city resident doesn't want his garbage laying around for a week, he dumps it on the townships.

The summer tourist season also puts a heavy strain on the garbage refuse. According to White, at least one publication in the state told tourists of the placement of these boxes and that they were their for the tourists use.

"This is not the case," said White. The DPW is currently holding its own financially but is trying to acquire some commercial accounts to ease the burden. Six boxes are currently rented by downtown businessmen for their private use.

Most townships seem happy with the system. As one township official said, "We love it, no way would we go back to the dumps." However, these townships seem to be located in the out county areas, while information was being withheld by the the unhappy ones are closer to the denser population and the heavier tourist traffic.

Between 1940 and 1970, both the county and Manistique have experienced a decline in population according to U.S. Census figures. But Tansey said that computer counts based on births, deaths, and migrations reveal that in 1975 the county's population had climbed to 8,775, up from 8,226 in 1970.

In the same period, Manistique had increased from 4,324 to 4,415.

According to Tansey's figures, the county will have 9,454 residents in 1908.

An entertaining 'school'

The date is Feb. 24 for the entertaining and informative Home Maker '77 Homemakers School, sponsored by the Pioneer-Tribune.

The public is invited to the St. Francis de Sales parish center for the evening show with Home Economist Dolores Bittner providing an entertaining program of recipes demonstrations.

According to Miss Bittner, it is possible to enjoy homemade foods which not only taste delicious, but are colorfully appealing to the eye as well. She adds that there are many convenience food products one can use in cooking "from scratch" which save time, yet still result in delicious homemade goodness.

Miss Bittner will demonstrate some of these "old fashioned" speedy foods from breads and main dishes to desserts.

Miss Bittner is an experienced demonstrator-lecturer who travels over 40,000 miles a year through several states. She is part of Homemakers School, a 28 year experienced lecture-recipe demonstration program.

The two and one half hour show is free to all and will prove to be a delightful, entertaining program. Recipes will be selected from the Home Maker '77 Cookbook which will be given free to all audience members. The foods prepared on stage will be given away as prizes at the end of the program. Dozens of other prizes will be awarded, including 20 bags of groceries. Each person attending will in upcoming issues of the paper.

receive a free gift bag of coupons and samples.

Miss Bittner has met and worked with the Pioneer-Tribune staff and local supermarket managers and merchants in preparation for the upcoming Homemakers School. Appliances will be provided by local merchants to completely organize a backstage kitchen for preparation of the foods and an on-stage kitchen for the actual demonstrations.

The demonstration table will be surrounded by a mirror system which will enable c, ch audience member to readily view the actual food preparation. In all this preparation. Dolores will be assisted by several Manistique area people.

The Pioneer-Tribune encourages everyone to attend the Home Maker '77 Homemakers School. Further details of the Home Maker '77 program will appear

Frost-free freezer may not be wise investment

A frost-free freezer may not be such a wise investment, says Anne Field, Michigan State University Extension family resource management specialist. "Unlike refrigerators, freezers need to be defrosted only once a year and most families need to clean out and re-organize remaining food packages once a year anyway," she points out. "The freezer can easily be defrosted at that time. And you'll save money because frost-free freezers are more expensive to operate.

Defrost the freezer when it's not so full. If you only have a few packages inside, leave them there and simply move them from one part of the freezer to another as you work. Or you may take them out and place them in a picnic cooler or cardboard box lined with newspaper. If there's room in your refrigerator, stack the packages there.

"Be sure to unplug the freezer to avoid the danger of electrical shock".

You can melt the ice faster if you place an electric fan so that it will blow warm room air into the freezer. Do not put the fan in the freezer where it will get wet.

Or you can speed up the defrosting process with your canister vacuum cleaner (if it has a blower outfit). Remove the dust bag and wipe out any loose dust inside the vacuum. Attach the hose to the blower outlet and blow warm air into the freezer. Ice will be loosened in a few minutes. Use a firm plastic scraper or nylon spatula (the kind you use with nonstick pans) to scrape off the loosened frost and catch it in a plastic dishpan or bucket. Newspaper spread on the bottom of the freezer catches stray pieces of ice and spills. Never use anything sharp to remove

If your freezer has a drain hole, be sure the pan it drains into is large enough to hold the water. Cold water can also be poured over the frost to hasten melting, but there will be that much more moisture you need to mop up. Never use hot water, because that tends to build up pressure on the evaporator.

When all the frost is melted, wipe up excess water. Wash liner with a solution of one tablespoon baking soda to a quart of water. Wipe with clear, water, then dry thoroughly before the food is put back.

Winter scene sets marriage

A beautiful winter scene was the setting of the marriage between Donna Marie Fillman and Ernest C. Haas on Dec. 22, 1976, before a glowing and crackling fire in the fireplace at the home of the groom's parents on Gooseneck Lake.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Edward Fillman, wore a light blue dress with off-white lace, and carried a dozen long-stemmed red roses.

The Maid of Honor was Deborah Fillman, sister of the bride. She wore a light pink dress with off-white lace and carried six pink sweetheart roses. Jerry DeJong, brother-in-law of the groom, served as Best Man.

Pastor Charles Reed, of the First Baptist Church in Newberry, performed the wedding ceremony while Mrs. Marion Haas, mother of the groom, played Christmas carols, "Silver Moon," and "Theme From Romeo and Juliet" on the organ.

The exposed-raftered living room, where the wedding took place, was decorated by a 14 foot Christmas tree, balsam boughs and candles on the fireplace mantle, strands of golden bells, and pots of poinsettas. After the ceremony the guests enjoyed a sit-down dinner of ham and assorted salads prepared by Mrs. Phyllis Fillman, mother of the bride, and Dianne Brown, sister of the bride. A three-tiered wedding cake was baked by Ester Fillamn, aunt of the bride, who decorated it with red roses. Besides Phyllis Fillman, Dianne Brown and Victor J. Haas, father of the groom, other wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. Larry Fillman and son Bryan of Newberry; Nyela DeJong, sister of the groom, son Mike and daughters Michelle and Marsha of Holland; Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Sherk and sons Ben and Jon of Marquette; Michael Anderson of Newberry, and Mrs. Charles Reed of Newberry. Larry Brown and Jerry DeJong photographed the wedding. After a stay in Manistique, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Haas celebrated Christmas at Gooseneck and then returned to Newberry where the groom, a 1970 graduate of Western Michigan University, teaches eighth grade English and the bride, a 1970 graduate of Newberry High School, is the secretary of Superior Studs, Inc.

Falling into hobbies

Nearly everyone these days has some kind of hobby: ceramics, macrame, needlepoint, decoupage. Most of my friends have taken up a hobby of some sort - simply because they thought it possible they could do it. Some of them are doing very well.

One gal I know was so fascinated watching her daughter learn the potters art she bought her own wheel. Now, two years later, she sells her stuff through a little gift shop.

Another friend plunged headlong into decoupage. She began with the usual little plaques, went on to little boxes, bigger boxes, and soon she was turning out purses, beautifully lined and attractive. I was really impressed when she sold one for fifty bucks.

I have never "taken up" a hobby. I seem to fall into them - either in self-defense or by pure accident. The kids always had some project in school that needed my help and some of them were interesting and fun to do, but I discovered there wasn't much interest outside the classroom in things like plaster of Paris Hogans, or seed paintings. When my friends and I were all expecting babies everyone was knitting little things, so I took up knitting too. They told me anyone who could read could knit and it was true. I knit several pairs of booties and never had two the same size. I finally tried making scarves for the family, but gave that up by popular request. The scarves were too full of holes to be very warm.

I intended knitting a hat for my daughter and that's how I fell into crocheting. bought a pattern book, three shades of mohair yarn which made my nose itch, and opened the book to read "Ch. 6". Aha! A friend bailed me out of that one but the hat looked more like a fuzzy snood. At least it was finished - and so was I. With crochet. When I read about all the people who consider cooking a hobby, and who win prizes in contests with their creations I'm encouraged again. I fell into cooking too the family likes to eat. After all, I've had only one batch of chocolate greasies out of all the brownies this year. Maybe I could turn one of those flops into a big winner at next years bake-off. Now that would be an accident.

Each project and each leader's technique are unique. This, along with our own personality keeps 4-H alive. Mo mother, who for the most part, usually was my leader, taught me that I should strive to do my best and not just to forget the blue. ribbon or go to the fair. This is the same thought that I have tried to convey to my 4-H'ers. It is nice to win that blue ribbon but it's even nicer knowing that you've done your best and that you can be proud of your work."

Big Bay de Noc cagers on short end of big score

Being on the short end of big scores is not customary for Coach Dave Pelletier's Big Bay de Noc Black Bears.

So the Bears will be seeking a winning way Friday night in a game at Eben.

Big Bay fell to a 6-7 mark on the season with losses Tuesday night to Bark River, 88-56, and North Central last Friday, 80-62. Tuesday night's game was an especially frustrating one.

"We led midway through the second quarter," Coach Pelletier said. "Then the roof caved in. There wasn't anything that looked like basketball the rest of the night."

Blitzed by Bark River,'s 1-2-2 zone, the Bears trailed it each quarter stop. 17-14, 39-30 and 63-45. A 25-11 shipping in the final frame sealed the rout. Leading the Broncos, who moved their Central Upper Peninsula League record to 7-1, were Al Capparert with 26 and D Corrigan with 20.

Greg Pelletier talled 16 and Ki Miller, 14, to pace the Bears.

Last Friday, Big Bay was outscore each quarter but the fourth to be clin by the Jets in a non-league contest. Pelletier again led the Bears with points. Miller added 12. Team summaries:

A mid-winter visit to Fayette

Fayette is quiet during these winter months. Aside from a few snowmobile tracks, there's hardly a trace of anyone braving the snow and cold to visit the historic townsite. Wandering through the place - abandoned even now by tourists, one can get a feeling for the history of this once bustling town.

US-2 route not a defeat and the second second

After more than a year of public discussion, city council hestitation, and then a "wrong" selection on the state highway department's multiple choice list for a new US-2 route through Manistique, the state's originally recommended route "D" has won out. But that does not mean, however, that the city has lost.

The upshot of the council's reluctant acceptance of the four to five lane routing is that several homes and as many as three businesses will be removed, as they stand in the right of way for the new highway.

The council found itself virtually painted into a corner by the time the state offered an exchange of land agreement with the city in return for acceptance of the "D" alternate.

In December of 1975, the city council announced its perference for either route D or E, both of which called for a new Manistique River bridge near the lakefront. There was also some business support for a northerly route (A, B, or C) that would establish a new bridge upstream from the present one, and possibly bypass most of the city's residences and businesses.

The public again heard the state's preference for route D, which would shave the entrance to the municipal marina, at a public hearing in January, 1976. After the membership of most of the council changed in the April election, the matter was reopened with a special meeting in the summer. And in September, the council announced its preference for alternate E, which called for a bascule bridge closer to the mouth of the river.

But at the same time they city was planning for the construction of a secondary waste treatment facility on the west side of the river and a senior citizens housing center on the east side.

Both stood in the way of route E.

Perhaps some time and confusion could have been averted if the obstacles to the route had been clearly weighed in earlier discussion, but that is not the point to be made here.

Rathar than viewing the experience as a "loss" to the power of the state highway department, the city may see the D route as the best one in the long run.

For one thing, the route will channel US-2 traffic close to the lakefront, the city's most obvious attribute. And a great deal of the business and industrial districts will be visible from the new bridge over the river. That factor has been critical in the adjustment of northern lower peninsula communities that have adjusted to bypass by Interstate 75.

Understandably, the council and the community cannot be indifferent to the immediate loss of tax base, and the uprooting of homes and businesses in the right of way. But neither should the city be indifferent to the opportunity the new route may present for Manistique's future stability and growth.

more money, or he'll quit. Gus should move his office into the rear of a dry cleaning shop, behind a door that won't open unless the clerk presses a button hidden below the cash register, on the same shelf as his gun.

Harrison is currently paid $36,300 for running Michigan's lottery. He'll soon get a six percent raise to $38,200. At the same time, state legislators are getting 26 percent raises, to $24,000. Legislators control Harrison's salary.

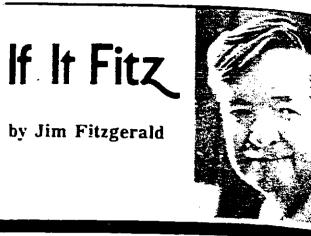

Gus is miffed. He says a six percent hike is insulting, when inflation has been 20 percent. He recently said he likes his job "but if things stay the way they are, the only way I'll be able to improve my mental health and attitude will be to get out."

The same week Harrison was beefing about his pay, he also announced the newest lottery gimmick. Beginning next spring, there will be a daily numbers game paying at least 500 to 1.

"The new game comes closer to the illegal form of gambling than anything we've probably done," said Dave Hanson, one of Harrison's aides.

Close isn't good enough. If Harrison wants to become as rich as Edward G. Robinson in a 1930 movie, he should quit playing footsie with the law. He should operate like a total crook.

Harrison's new game will be competing directly with the illegal numbers racket. He can expect trouble, and he should prepare for it. For instance, he should order state troopers to install running boards on all patrol cars. This will facilitate getaways and make it possible for troopers to shoot up opposition candy

In Lansing there is always a great need for jobs to give defeated legislators who are not strong enough to survive amputa. tion from the public payroll. They would make fine runners. What they lack in speed they would make up for in shiftiness. Instead of funneling lottery profits into the state's general fund, Gus should stuff the cash into a brown paper bag and hire George Raft to deliver it personally to the Legislature, twice a day.

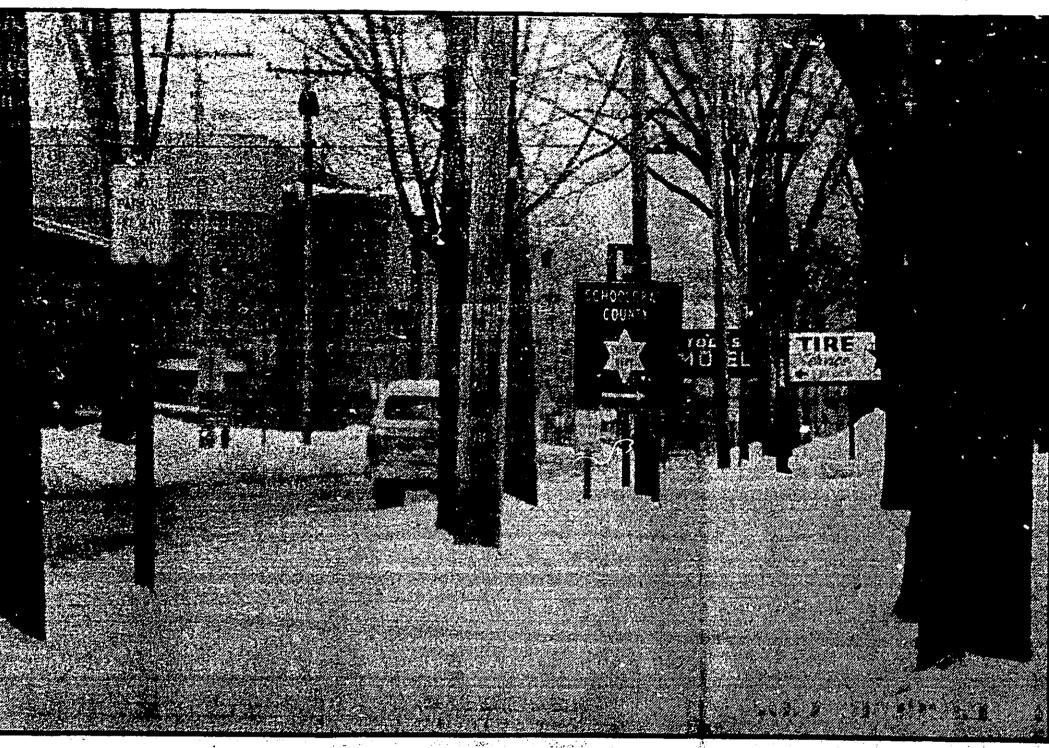

If Harrison follows my suggestions, no one will be able to distinguish his game from the illegal game. People accustomed to buying numbers from crooks will buy them from state employees without noticing the difference.

As the money gushes in, more running boards could be installed. Within a short time, the state would be getting all the money bet on the numbers. The real crooks would be forced to switch to something honest to make a living. Or run for public office.

Thus all that money which formerly supported crime would not be going to Lansing to support corruption. That's progress plus riches, all thanks to Gus

What a job--getting paid for drinking beer

I've got a number of friend who would like the job that John G. Kegel has in Milwaükee.

Kegel gets paid for drinking beer. There's a little more to it than just sitting around hour after hour quaffing brew after brew. Kegel is the brewmaster for the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. and each day has to taste the beverage made at each of the company's seven plants in the U.S. His job is to check the aroma and taste of the product that last year moved from Schlitz breweries in more than 22 million barrels.

Test tasting beer is a big part of the brewing process, not only with Schlitz, but almost of 130 or so American breweries. According to an article in the Milwaukee Sentinel, the hometown of several of the major breweries, corporate testing panels check for uniformity and quality that their distinctive blending, fermenting and aging processes perform on barley, rice or corn, hops, yeast and water.

Anheuser-Busch, Inc. (brewers of the world's largest selling beer, Budweiser) has three testing panels at its St. Louis, Mo., headquarters and two employee panels at each of its eight breweries. In addition to people, Schlitz uses a computer to keep track of its tasters' evaluations of competitive products. As a regular beer drinker, you may think you notice the difference in beer tastes, but according to the experts, most beer this is it. We are suddenly faced with drinkers don't have the sophisticated reality. Many numbers players rely on "dream get his 26 percent raise or George Raft books" to help them get lucky. The books intrepret dreams in terms of numbers. If you dream of lions, for instance, the book might tell you to bet 416 because that's how many years it will be before Bill Ford fires Russ Thomas.

Harrison should publish the Michigan Lottery Dream Book. To justify the expenditure of public funds, the dream interpretations should have social significance. If you dream of Gov. Milliken, you should bet 156 because that's how many years it will be before he looks old enough to be Ronald Reagan's younger brother. the one who never gets the girl.

Gus has been selling lottery tickets -at fixed locations. This wont do for the numbers game. The real crooks supply runners who give customers door-to-door service. A bettor can get his money down before he pulls his pants up in the morning. Harrison must do at least as well.

would fine out the reason why. The Legislature would also be wise to appoint an ad hoc committee to study exactly how Harrison accomplished the numbers takeover. It is entirely feasible that his methods could be applied profitably in other areas of government. Booze, for instance. The state Liquor Control Commission is selling a lot of liquor now, I suppose. But what if the Legislator brought back Prohibition? The possibility sloshes the mind. State booze salesmen could move in on bootleg. gers the same way Harrison ate up the numbers crooks. It would be easy.

The trick is simply to do the same things the crooks do, except send George Raft to Lansing twice a day with a brown paper bag full of cash.

And if that's too hypocritical for your stomach, you could always go into business manufacturing running boards.

'Fiery' Pete met terrorism

Pete was a guy with bright red hair and a personality just as fiery.

But fiery in the sense of infectious enthusiasm.

The worst thing wasn't that he'd beat us almost single-handedly at what we called touch football. The worst thing was that he was 21 (old, old, old to us high school seniors), and only 5-foot-5 with stubby hands. Stubby hands that rarely missed a pass or a "touch," which under our rules legally permitted anything short of instant hospitalization.

Pete didn't make the rules. He just expanded on them.

And when he did hit a wee bit hard, you knew it was out of sheer roughness, and not malice. You could tell by his quick laugh it was merely pent-up agressiveness from a pint-size body.

When our games graduated into tackle affairs every Sunday afternoon, Pete still 2) Some assessors are not qualified to was the fiercest player, though we played without any helmets or pads. Sparr Tech would be akin to Blaney Park A and M up here. Pete thought our motely group played tougher than his high school alma mater, where he starred as a safety.

But Pete was always telling us we were better than we thought we were, funnier than anybody else he knew, and companions worth the time.

He went on to do a four-year hitch in the Army, then I lost track of him. I heard he got married and settled down in Joliet, Ill. Then last week I read the report in the Gaylord paper: "Peter B. Burd, 33, a former Gaylord area resident, was stabbed to death Jan. 10 by an inmate of Stateville Prison in Joliet where Burd was a corrections officer.

"According to prison officials, Burd was stabbed twice in the neck while making his rounds in a cell block. He was pronounced dead at St. Joseph's Hospital. "The assaults were the latest in a series from completing one of those dust bowl of attacks on guards at the prison. Authorities said they have no leads as to who the attackers were." For his wife, three step-children, and Michigan friends who had forgotten him, the shock was great. But somehow we doubt that Peter ever felt the malice he fell victim to--not even toward prison terrorists.

Equalization department, by law, are required to perform equalization studies in every township and city in the county each year. To determine the equalization factor needed to reach the 50 percent level we have to divide the assessed value into the equalized value. Going back to our $20,000 True Cash Value example:

Therefore $10,000 E.V. 1.6666 factor $ 6.000 A.V

which is needed to bring this property to 50 percent level. Continuing the example: $6,000 A.V. x 1.66666 - $10,000 x 2 - $20,000 T.C.V.

It will be noted we are only using one property in our example. In the equalization study we are using many properties consisting of both appraisals and sales to arrive at an overall ratio and equalization factor.

The revelation of equalization factors in simplicity is like viewing report cards ranging from passing to failure, with factors of 1.00 to 2.00 or higher.

How do we resolved this inequity problem? Do we demand the county or state to do a better job? There is one basic fact we are all forgetting. The equalization process begins with the assessor. If his assessments are uniform, whether at 50 percent of value or slightly below, the other agencies of this state, such as county equalization, State Tax Commission or the recently-formed tax tribunal will then be able to perform their function equitably when an error has been made.

Remember, the law assumes each assessor is uniformly assessing each property in his unit. Therefore, if we don't have uniformity to begin with the equalization process cannot work to the best advantage of all. The application of an equalization factor in a unit that lacks uniformity only tends to bring low assessments closer to value and recently worked areas, including new constructions, possibly over the 50 percent level. The solution Bismal bottle?

handle the complex appraisal requirements which frequently lead into the courts for defense. The assessing function is becoming more streamlined each year. The laws demand a professional approach to value. Defending appeals requires much more than "I think the value should be ... This solution sounds too easy. Why then are several reasons:

3) Some units cannot or will not hire qualified people to do the job. This may help the budget but does not help the taxpayer who is being unfairly or unlawfully treated with poor, slip-shod assess-

4) an elected supervisor is in bad position as the assessing officer because the peoples vote determine his stay in office.

Periodically, an assessing unit may say, 'Why worry about bringing up assessments of 50 percent level? We choose to go along with the factor and let that take care of the rising economy.

The folly of man to think an equalization factor--that magic number--can resolve all our assessing problems. Alas, if only that were of, we would have Utopia; our nerves would settle to normal and we could put the Pepto Bismal bottle in the last row of the medicine cabinet.

Truch spares no man, so let's go back to where equalization begins; with the assessor. Unless we can join in wedlock uniformity with assessments, our equalization factor only tends to distort the inequity of the assessment roll.

The assessor, that bad guy with the black hat, often is criticized beyond his control of the problem. Therefore, let us face reality that taxes will not go away and as long as they are here, we ought to ensure the existing problems are resolved with better assessing throug. proper funding, continuing education and a dedication to this highly specialized field of Assessment Administration which terminates at our pocket books.

Recalling 'em for sixth grade cagers

To the Editor:

Dear St. Francis parents and fans of the 6th grade basketball team.

I do hope all of you are happy and satisified after watching the basketball game, "whoops," football game that was played at the St. Francis gym. un. Wednesday Jan. 19.

I could not believe what I was seeing happen on the court. St. Francis players were pushing, holding, tripping, slapping and even laying on the Hiawatha players backs and the referee s would not call a foul. I have seen one-sided referees but that was ridiculous. That was the worst job of officiating I have seen on any level of ball playing.

What is hard for me to understand is how the St. Francis coach, who is an official state referee, can condone that type of rough playing, and terrible job of officiating. I would believe that he would tell the officials what they are doing wrong. I sure do hope that he knows better than what happened on the court.

I saw Hiawatha win the ball game in the last few seconds on the first overtime played, before the time ran out. I just could not believe when the St. Francis coach jumped up and hollered that the basket does not count, that the time ran out before the basket was made. I did not hear any horn, whistle, or anyone hollering that the period ran out before or during the shot for the basket. I did hear someone hollering after the basket was made and that was the St. Francis coach. Take that for what it's worth.

I do hope this type of ball playing gets looked into and something is done soon before someone is hauled away to the hospital. (Name withheld on request) talk to us personally.

Jan. 27, 1977 The Manistique Pioneer-Tribune 3B

As one grows older it takes a little more time to do the ordinary chores of daily living. If we are prone to illness or disabilities it will take that much more extensive time to accomplish little things and often times this will cause discouragement and dispair.

As in all things in life, we have to learn to adjust cheerfully in circumstances in which we are placed.

Our attitudes are so important. If we are resentful, discouraged and fearful, this will cause undue emotionally stress and increase illness so induced by these complex feelings.

There is a little story that goes like this, written by Fred Bauer in the "Daily Guidepost'' from which I will quote: "A couple of years ago I bought a 1931 Model A Ford. Other than the fact that it had no roof, no floorboard, no windows and didn't run, it was a great car! With work I made progress on its defects. Still, despite new spark plags, distributor, coil and carburetor, I couldn't get the motor started. When I told a mechanic friend, he suggested Old Nick, a retired garageman who, he said, 'Knows the Model A like the back of his hand.' He was right. Inside of five minutes, Nick had the car running.

'I changed the timing,' he explained. Then he showed me the timing pin and how to adjust it so the pistons fire in order. "Sometimes our timing needs readjustment. When we try to do too much, too fast we are prone to make mistakes and then grow short-tempered with people around us. One obvious solution is better planning. Another is being realistic about time and energy.

Everyone knows that in this day and age no one is turned away from a hospital or nursing home because of lack of money, it sometimes benefits a person if they have none. I hear time and time again abut someone's little life savings going down the drain in a three months stay in a nursing home.

I believe in setting up a prepaid funeral for $1,499, because anything over $1,500 will penalize you.

Well, enough of the sermon.

Discovering porky's place in ecology

HOUGHTON--The porcupine means many things to many people.

To the city dweller, the porcupine is feared for its mythical ability to throw quills at unsuspecting victims. To the forester, the porcupine often is hated for its eating habits which can kill a large tree. To the fisher, a carnivorous mammal related to the weasel, a porcupine is a gourmet feast.

But to a pair of researchers at Michigan Technological University, the porcupine has meant an interesting project covering over two years and many miles in the Upper Peninsula.

Richard Earle, a Michigan Tech graduate student in biological sciences from Beltsville, MD., became interested in porcupines because of the unique predator-prey relationship between the porcupine and the fisher.

"Most predator-prey relationships are difficult to study because several predators preyon a species," he explained. "But in this part of the country, the porcupine has only one natural predator--the fisher." Earle conducted his field studies in the Upper Peninsula's Ottawa National Forest and the western unit of the Hiawatha National Forest. The Ottawa has a fisher population, and Hiawatha does not. Fishers were trapped out of both forests in the 1920's and were scarce in the Upper Peninsula until they were reintroduced to the Ottawa by foresters in the 1960's to control the porcupine.

Funded by monies from the U.S. Forest Service, Earle and several student assistants combed the two forests to gather data for his master's thesis. They also conducted studies on road-killed porcupines in the areas. Their preliminary findings show a direct link between the upswing in fisher population and the downswing in the porcupine population. Earle compared the fisher's tactics to those used by a mongoose stalking a cobra. "Like most weasels, the fisher is extremely fast and strong. It is able to confuse the

BREAKING TRAIL

In this land of big snow, it's traditional to let others break trail and motorists, snowmobilers, deer and mice all vie for the honor of being sound. Oh, sure, gradeschoolers in their winter cocoons take joy in wallowing ahead of the pack, but once they've reached the wet-sneaker age, even they learn to hold back.

Actually, there's only one person who resents having his tracks cluttered up by other than his own like and he's the cross-country skier. He has a pretty good reason for being unfriendly because there's no substitue for a good ski track...and no way to improve upon it other than with skis.

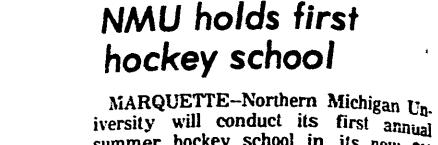

About the worst track-trespasser is the pedestrian, because he's laboring under the false impression that a ski track will provide him with needed support. And it does, about every fifth step...just enough to tease him along and wallow all the symmetry out of twin tracks.

The big dog wallowing behind him doesn't help either, but at least he strays off the track occasionally to sniff a bush or whatever.

Snowshoers? Well, they're not all that hard on ski tracks even though they completely erase that occasional Olympic iversity will conduct its first annual summer hockey school in its new $10 million physical education instructional facility, June 19 - July 15, according to Dr. Robert V. Hockey, head of the department of health, physical education and recrea tion.

The school will be held in three one-week sessions: June 19-24, June 26-July 1, and July 10-15.

"The director of the school will be Rick Comley, head hockey coach at NMU" Hockey said. "He has been very successful in his initial year here, and for the past six summers he has worked as an instructor at the hockey school in Huron Park Ontario."

Assistant hockey coach at Northern, Rod Hooktwith, will work with Comley during the three sessions. He played with the Lake Superior State College hockey team four years and was captain and leading scorer as a senior in 1975-76.

"As the emphasis in these camps is on instruction, we have added three others to the staff who we think will do an excellent job," Hockey said.

Medical Care

Hi, everyone,

January is close to being over and by the time I write my next column we will be into February already. Hopefully the temperature will rise a little more by then. Anymore it seems like a temperature over 10 degrees should be called a heat wave. It has been guite a winter so far.

Our chapel will be in full service starting Wednesday, Jan. 26. Members of the Manistique Ministerial Association will conduct an ecumenical service every Wednesday at 1:30 and starting the services this week will be Pastor Levin. Members of the Manistique Ministerial Association are planning a dedication ceremony for our chapel on Feb. 27 when we hold an open house.

The V.F.W. Auxilary held its monthly birthday party on Jan. 18 and had its usual good turn-out. We have two lovely new singing voices here as we found out when Tillie played the piano. Paula Aldrich sang and was joined by Gus and Anna Nye. The both sing beautifully and the music was enjoyed by everyone. We have had some very nice bingo prizes donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thomas of Gulliver. Also, during the holidays, the First Baptist Church sent up a large variety of gifts for the patients, all of which are being put to very good use. The gifts were lap robes, slippers and other hand made items, many of which were made by Mrs. Albertine Swayer, Many thanks to some very thoughtful people. Birthday greetings for the first two weeks of February go to Free Hollinghead and Emma Kosbohm on F 4, Catherine Winkler Feb. 8, Bert Paige, Feb. 12, and George Cornell on Feb. 14. Have a nice week.

expected eight to 10 percent business increase at the state's 107 winterized private campgrounds, according to Automobile Club of Michigan. "Snowmobilers, ice fishermen and downhill skiers have ideal conditions this winter in Michigan, and up-and-coming sports like cross-country skiing are bringing more people outdoors than ever," state Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

Because of improved trailer insulation, heating and design and more services, staying in a campground during freezing weather is far more comfortable than it used to be even a few years ago, he added. Daily rates at the campgrounds listed on Auto Club's accompanying map range from $4 to $7.50, with most charging between $4 and $5.

East Michigan, with 42, has the largest number of private campgrounds open this winter. Forty facilities operate yeararound in West Michigan, with 18 in the Upper Peninsula and seven in the South-

- Most parks are within an hour's drive of one of Michigan's 58 ski areas and many are near state and federal lands open to snowmobiling and cross-country skiing, plus good fishing lakes.

All listed campgrounds offer electrical hookups, with 85 having heated showers and restrooms. Forty-four have heated activities buildings and 28 have on-site sewage hookups, while stores on park grounds are available in 49.

"A few even offer trailer, heater and snowmobile and cross-country ski rental," Rakte said. Four campgrounds--Whiskey Creek near Hart, Four Seasons at Harrison, Four Seasons at Midland and San Sheri near Frederic-list restaurants on the premises.

Ninety-five percent of the listed facilities are open daily and take reservations for wintertime camping. Auto Club noted that several years ago, many private campgrounds open in winter operated weekends only. Fifty-six state parks also are open for winter camping, but service buildings are closed. Auto Club advised campers planning to visit a state park to call ahead to assure snow plowing.

Far and away the most popular of flowering house plants, African violets are easy to grow indoors. They thrive in 70-degree temperatures; they tolerate the dry air and relatively dim light of our homes to a much greater extent than do many other plants; and they blossom unceasingly if given a modicum of care.

Select a north- or east-facing window sill with bright indirect light or shield. plants at a south or west window from the direct sun with a gauzy curtain. If you cannot supply natural light, you can still grow African violets equally well under fluorescent lights.

African violets have delicate fibrous roots that are easily damaged by becoming too dry. Strive to keep the soil barely moist at all times. Water the plants with warm water; if cold water gets on the leaves, they develop ugly white blotches.

.Once a month give your plants a feeding with any house plant fertilizer diluted to half the dose recommended on the label. Most African violets that look unhappy have been given too much fertilizer and water or too little light. To keep their fuzzy leaves bright and clean, give them a tepid shower at your kitchen sink once a month.

Finally, to charm a friend with charming violets, send a trio of them for Valentine's Day. It's a way to say "I love you" that keeps repeating itself day after day.

A regular monthly (December, 1976) meeting of the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners was held on Tuesday. December 21st, 1976, at the Courthouse, City of Manistique, Manistique, Michigan, commencing at 7:00 o'clock P.M., E.S.T.

The roll was called and noted as follows: Present were: Merwin White, William J. Olesak, Ernest S. Hoholik, Daniel Klarich. Earl LeBrasseur, William Tennyson and LeRoy Belcik. Absent: None. Also in attendance as observers were newly elected members, Lindsley B. Frenette and Edward Way

It was moved by LeRoy Belcik, supported by William Tennyson, that the minutes of the November 11th, 1976 meeting of this Board be approved as published in the Manistique Pioneer Tribune, a copy of which was furnished each member. Motion carried by unanimous Aye vote.

Thomas Kamppinen, a representative from the D.N.R., Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Section. appeared and spoke to the Board and answered-quostions and have a drawing of proposed signs, in regard to setting-up and operating a County Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Section, under Act 347, P.A. 1972. as amended. Mr. Kamppinen stated that about 70 of the 83 counties already have organized under the Act. He stated that Schoolcraft County has indicated its intent to comply and did appoint a director (Archie Carpenter, County Drain Commissioner) to head this organization, but that no committee or organization, appeal apparatus, fee schedule, or enforcement mural by Sculptor, Jack Anderson, at a provisions have been implemented. Mr. Kamppinen stated that he would meet with the Board and help formulate this program for Schoolcraft County. He stated that with the Civil case now pending such a purpose, and that he was offering against Schoolcraft County, it therefore this motion to voice his disapproval. necessitates this action, and that without it, the County would not be prepared to carry out a Court order should it be ordered by the Circuit Court. Mr. Kamppinen stated in-so-far as the City of Manistique, has not set-up such an organization to control the City, that this responsibility is the County's, and until such time as the City does set-up an organization, the responsibility will be the County's. He stated that Agriculture, logging, and mining operations are exempt from the provisions of this Act. Mr. Kamppinen also stated that the privisions of the Act are such that a program can be set-up to meet the needs of Schoolcraft County; that his departmentwill help in training the necessary personnel, and that he is willing to come to the U.P. and set up a training school if enough interest can be generated. Mr. William Tennyson, then asked that a survey be made of the U.P. Association of Commissioners to determine if there are enough people to warrant setting-up such a training school program. Mr. Phil Pakin, new Schoolcraft County Soil Conservation Agent, asked that the Board set-up the necessary organization to implement the program. That it is not just to collect the fees, but to assist anyone planning to build, so as to eliminate subsequent problems. Thereupon, the Chairman designated the Health Committee of the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners as the agency to carry out the setting-up of an organization for Schoolcraft County, so that it will be able to comply with the provisions of Act 347, as amended. The matter of non-complaince by some Departments guartered in the new Courthouse, with the Rules and Regulations" was discussed. Present were a number of employees of the department of Social Services, along with their union representative, Mr. Joel Secrist. Supervisors from four (4) Schoolcraft County Townships were in attendnace. namely, Walter Andersen, Thompson Township; Clayton R. St. Martin, Seney Township, Maxine, Edwards, of Germfask Township and Louis Lauzon of Manistique Township, with other interested representatives from the four (4) Townships, to present their assessing problem to the Board for consideration and if possible, some help in solving same.

Mr. Louis Lauzon, Supervisor of Manistique Township, acted as spokesman, and asked for help in solving the assessing problems of these four (4) Townships, citing the fact that the assessment rolls should have been signed as of December 31st, 1976, but that none of the has a certified assessor, nor has any assessing been done for the 1977 rolls. Lauzon proposed that the County hire an assessor, and that the costs be borne by a pro-rated share from the Townships, County and Schools. He noted that the amount of tax money received is less than it costs the Townships to prepare the tax roll yearly. After considerable discussion of the problem, the Chairman advised the group, that this being an organizational meeting,

Earl LeBrasseur referring the matter to the Equalization Committee, and as soon as this Committee is announced that they will meet with the Tax Equalization Director, and the Township Supervisors, and try and work out some arrangement to have this work done in time for the meetings of the Board of The Chairman announced that there will be another meeting with representatives of "HUD" regarding a possible grant for low-interest rates for rural housing improvements, on Wednesday, January 5th, 1977, in the Courthouse, commencing at 7:30 p.m. The Chairman asked that as many Commissioners, and other interested citizens attend this meeting and render their input into the need for such a grant. The Chairman referred to a letter he received from the State of Michigan Department of Treasury, State Tax Commission, asking for an expression from the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners regarding the action taken by the City of Manistique as to approval of industrial facilities exemption application No. 76-168, of Manistique Pulp and Paper Co., per requirements of Section 6 of P.A. 198 of 1974, as amended.

A discussion was held, and it appeared that no one was in attendance who could answer some of the questions raised; therefore, it was moved by Earl LeBrasseur, supported by William Tennyson, that this matter be tabled until the regular monthly meeting schedled for January 18 1977, and to invite some one familiar with the provisions of this act, and how it will effect the taxpayers of Schoolcraft County by explaining same to the Board before it takes any action regarding approval. Motion carried by unanimous Aye vote. Moved by Earl LeBrasseur, supported by Lindsley B. Frenette, that the meeting adjourn. Motion carried.
