County on federal list for aid in near-drought

The 15 counties in the Upper Peninsula and eight counties below the bridge may be in for some help from the federal government because of near-drought conditions which swept most of the area last summer.

Schoolcraft County is one that list for federal aid to be given primarily to farmers and private individuals.

A request has been made to President Carter by Gov. Milliken to allow persons in the 23 counties to apply for limited disaster funds according to the governor's special aid in the Upper Peninsula, Bruce Lindstrom.

The federal aid will be in the form of emergency loans for water drilling for individuals and grants for farmers on an emergency feed program.

Payments would be in the form of a small interest rate loan with a long rate of repayment. The grants would cover 80 percent of the cost of grain and shipping. "This is normal with federal grants," says Lindstrom. "The federal Government usually gives only 80 percent with the other 20 percent coming from local sources."

Water problems are still being reported in Schoolcraft County as the water tables continue to drop even more from the record low last summer.

Area residents have experienced a general problem with water, with some service to well owners being cut off totally.

Under the program, those needing to drill new wells or to deepen existing wells would receive the low interest, long rate emergency loan. Applications should be made to the Small Business Administration offices.

Farmers should apply to the Farmers Home Administration for the emergency funds of 80 percent under the feed program. While the request for federal money has not yet been approved, Lindstrom indicated that there was a good chance that the request would be granted.

"We've been pretty fortunate on requests made thus far," said Lindstrom. It is not known when the request would be approved but it is expected shortly.

Lindstrom also indicated that applications for the loans may not be as numerous as first planned with some well owners waiting to see if water tables will rise again after the spring thaw.

"People don't want to pay back a loan if they don't have to. Many of them will wait and see what happens this spring," Lindstrom said.

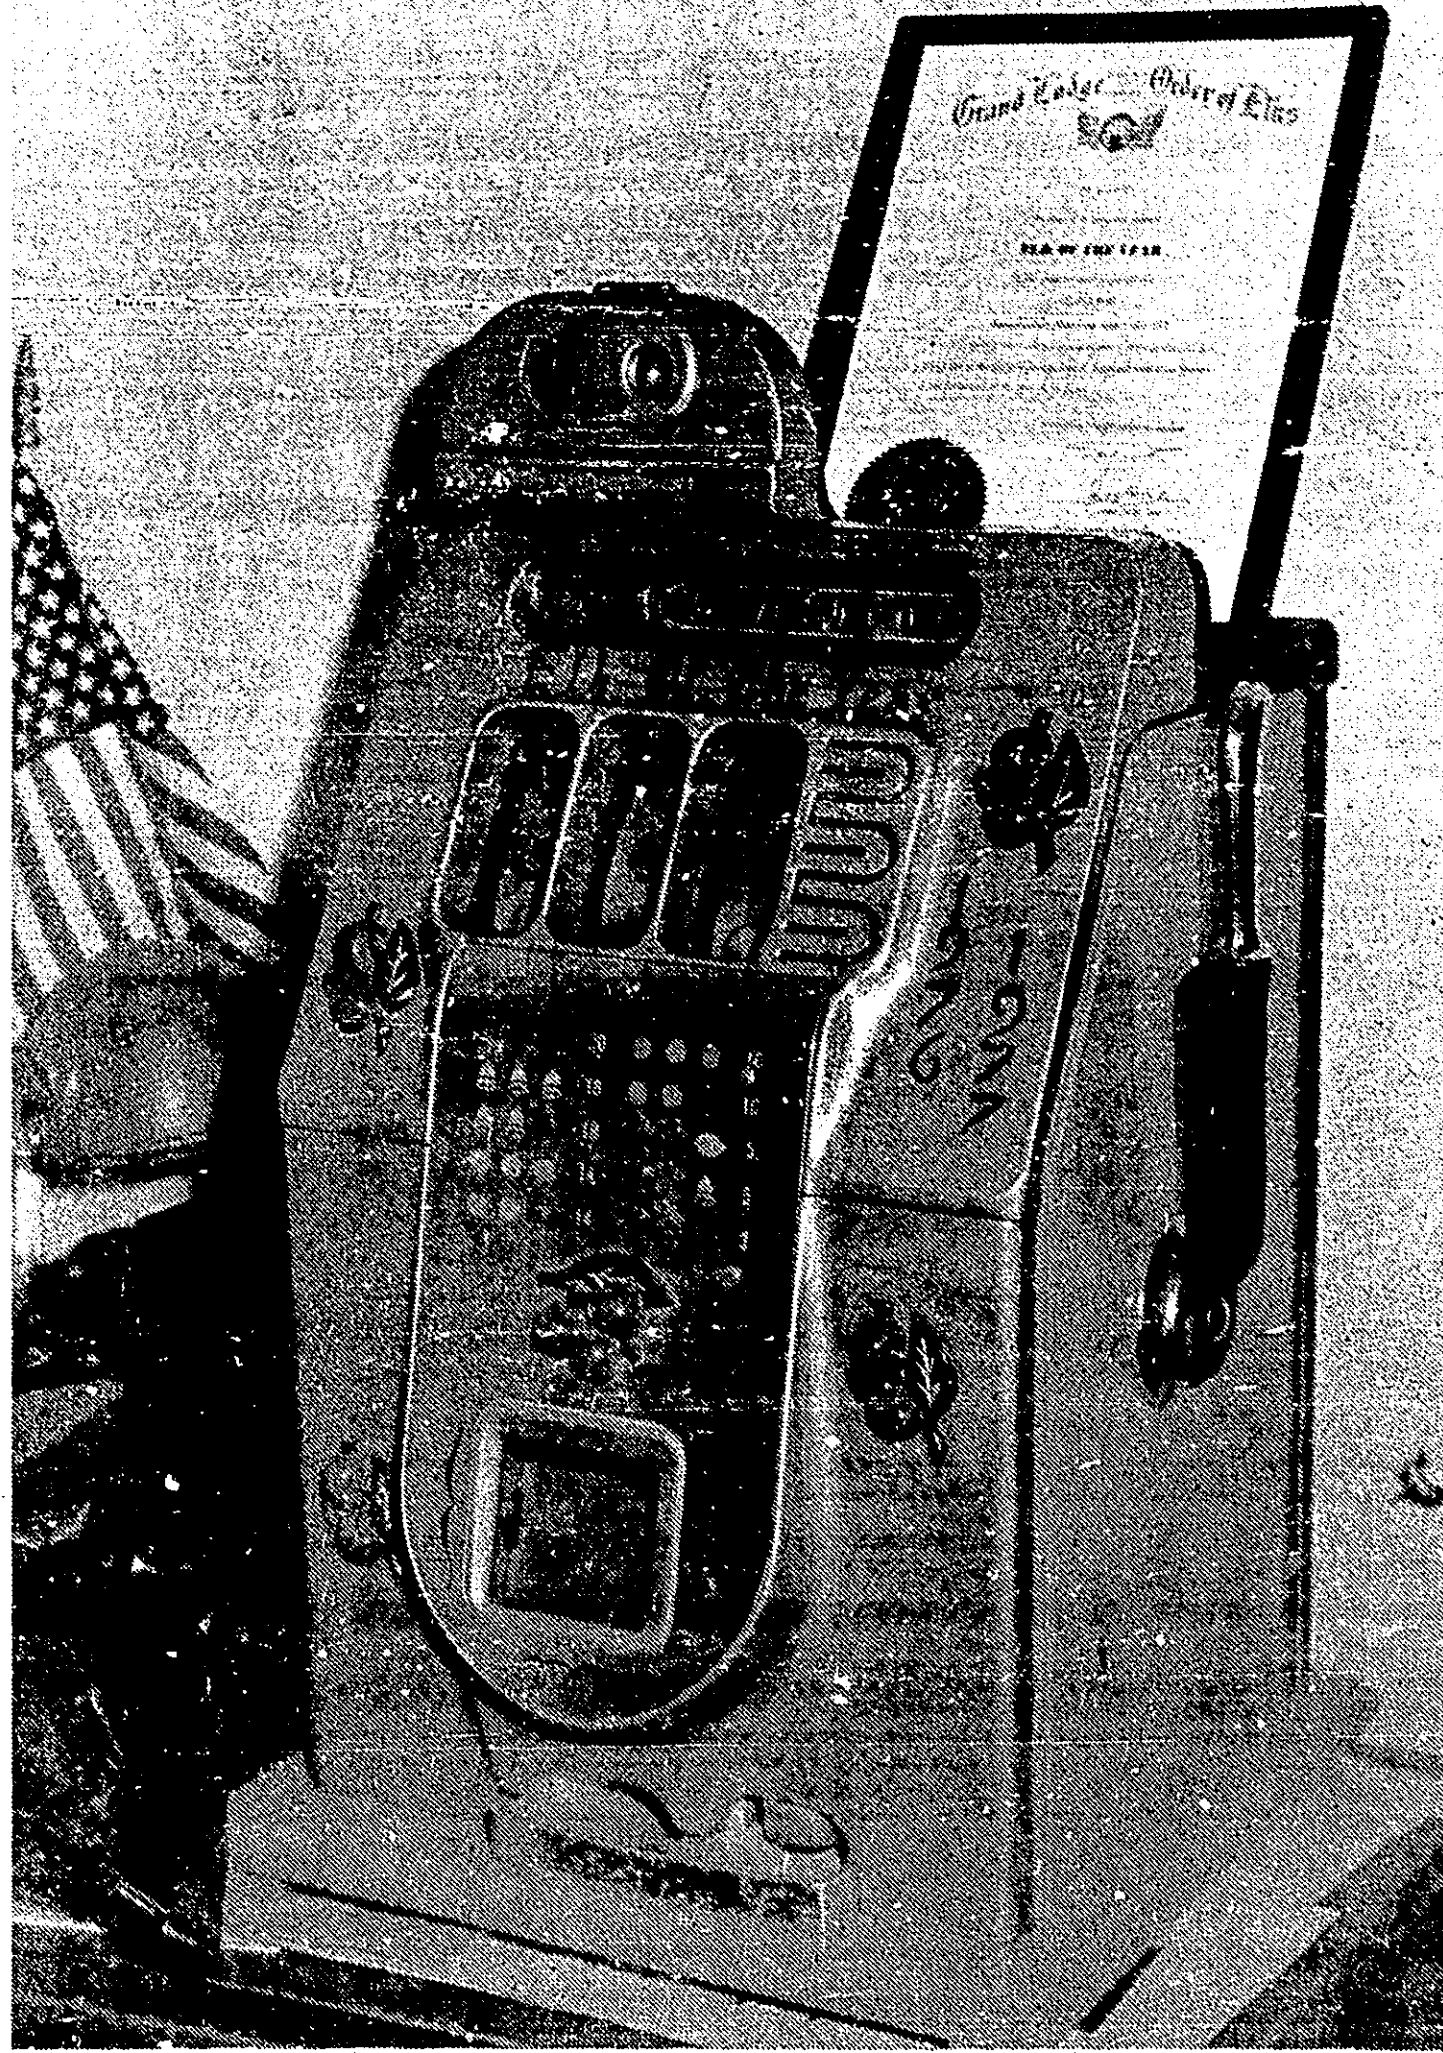

Depending on the type of spring that we have and the amount of precipitation over the summer months we could be back in the same boat, without the water, next year. "We are at an extreme low with water tables right now," says Elsmore Eltzroth, Michigan Department of Natural Resources geologist. "Without above normal precipitation this summer we could be back in the same predicament as we are this year. Hopefully it won't be as bad."

A slow spring thaw would contribute to the recharge of the water Eltzroth said, while a fast thaw would allow more water to run off rather than absorb into the ground.

"With just about any type of snow melt we'll see water levels go up," Eltzroth said. "It's just a matter of how much they'll go up."

According to the 1977 Farmer's Almanac, this summer will be a dry one with below average precipitation until September and October when the precipitation will fall in above average amounts.

So if the Farmer's Almanac holds true, the Upper Peninsula is in for another dry season. Unfortunately, the hardest hit will be the well owners and farmers.

Gift slot machine confiscated

PAINTED GOLD AND INSCRIBED "George Mero, Elk of the Year 1976-77," this old-fashioned nickel slot machine was to be presented in a special Elks Club ceremony honoring George Mero next month. But the old machine was confiscated Friday by Garry Soorus, Michigan Liquor Control Commission enforcement officer for Delta and Schoolcraft counties.

Soorus said that though it hadn't been determined whether the machine would pay off, it does accept nickels, and he confiscated it as prima facie evidence of gambling. Club officials said that Soorus had inspected the club the previous Friday, and had not objected to the unused machine, which was being stored in a club office. Soorus, who carried the machine out escorted by a city patrolman, said a hearing would be held on the matter in the near future.

Medicare open house on Sunday

With the last remaining work now finished and out of the way, the Schoolcraft County Medicare Facility has announced that it will hold an open house from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 27 at the Medicare care facility on Main St.

Facility Administrator Denny Boyd said that all work with the new addition and remodeling has been completed.

The facility has added 17 new patient rooms and a chapel, along with a general storage, maintenance housekeeping and dining rooms.

Total construction for the work ran approximately $615,000.

Administrator Boyd indicated that the room created by the addition and remodeling is an asset to the community.

"All the employees and everybody in Schoolcraft County should be proud of the newly renovated facility," Boyd said.

"This serves a need that is vital to the area," he continued. "We're pretty well set as far as the needs of this community are concerned."

Boyd indicated that within 10 years it may be necessary for yet another addition due to increasing population.

The facility was first built in 1968 and then remodeled in 1971.

The original facility was built in 1968 with a 40-bed capacity. Then in 1971 after some extensive interior remodeling was done, the facility made 48 beds available to the county.

The facility now has some 75 beds available. However, Boyd said that since they opened the new wing, a large percentage of these are being used, with only one or two vacancies left.

The facility, employing 55 persons, is certified by Medicare and Medicaid, state and federal programs designed to help those needing medical assistance.

Several donations were received for the new chapel area.

Those donating items for the chapel were: organ, Junior Women's Club; altar and lectern and one pew, Friday Volunteer Bingo workers; cross, Manistique Elks; one pew, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jaynes; one pew, 1st Degree Knights of Columbus; one pew, in honor of Mrs. Nicholas Frankovich, Sr.; cabinet, easy chair and table, Manistique Women's Club; $100 the Curtis Community Ladies Aid; and carpeting, the Manistique Ministerial Association.

Tour guides will be available and refreshments will be served during the open house.

STATE SAVINGS BANK President Clyde Strasler, right, and First National Bank and Trust Company of Marquette Vice-President Harold N. Herlich Jr. announced Tuesday that State Savings Bank will act as a satellite office and offer trust services from the Marquette-based trust company. Herlich will be in Manistique on the second Thursday of the month to help those desiring trust service. (Tribune Photo)

Trust service offered at State Savings Bank

Clyde L. Strasler, president of the State Savings Bank of Manistique, has announced that trust services will be offered by the First National Bank and Trust Company of Marquette through the State Savings Bank.

Trust services, offered for the first time in this area, will include estate administration, personal trust, corporate trust, pension and profit-sharing administration, guardianships, escrow agent, paying agent, custodian and trust investment accounts.

Harold N. Herlich, Jr. vice president and trust officer of the First National Bank will be at the State Savings Bank on the second Thursday of each month during bank hours to meet with anyone interested in services offered by the trust department.

Appointments may be made by calling the State Savings Bank and can be held at either the bank, investor's home or office.

Strasler indicated that by offering a branch office of a trust company area residents would be better served with the more convenient location and personal attention offered.

Money put into trust would also stay in the Manistique area to be invested in new business or existing business in the area.

The trust department of the First National Bank and Trust Company is one of the largest departments in the Upper Peninsula with assets over $35 million. It has been established since 1926.

Garden man killed in fall

A 19-year-old Garden man was killed in a 44-foot fall at a Marquette construction site of the Upper Peninsula Power Co. on Monday, Feb. 21.

Douglas Harbensi was pronounced dead on arrival at Marquette General Hospital. Harbensi's death was reportedly caused by internal injuries he sustained in the fall at the Presque Isle construction site.

Harbensi was reported to have been guiding a load of metal plates through an open grating when he apparently slipped and fell through the opening to the concrete below.

Harbensi was employed by a Massachusetts firm that is involved with expansion of the power plant at Marquette's upper harbor.

The accident remains under investigation.

The body is at the Messier-Broulliere Funeral Home in Garden.

Prosecutor unveils 'diversion program:' volunteer work

by Mark Eisenlohr

If a new program initiated by Schoolcraft County's newly elected prosecuting attorney works out, courtroom dockets could become less crowded and streets much cleaner.

Prosecuting Attorney John Thompson laid out the groundwork for a "diversion program" at a noon meeting of the Manistique Rotary Monday afternoon.

Under the program, persons cited for minor offenses would be given a choice of going to court or working off their "sin" by doing volunteer work for public good.

"The prosecutor's responsibilities include when not to prosecute as well as when to prosecute," Thompson said. Persons committing minor offenses such as littering or having an open intoxicant in a car would be eligible for the program.

"This is not a shirking of duties," emphasized Thompson, "but rather aligning the crime or act with that of the individual person."

Thompson indicated that any offense where the community is not harmed or victimized could fall under this program.

Those who compound their offense by resisting, arrest, or becoming abusive towards the law officer would find that they are no longer eligible for the program, the prosecutor added.

Second time offenders also would not qualify for the program.

Thompson is hoping that this program will instill respect for law enforcement agencies by the people of the community, while giving first-time offenders the chance to put themselves back on the right track.

"If you got caught the first time and had the book thrown at you, it could set the tone for your attitude towards law enforcement," Thompson told the Rotarians.

"If a person is able to work himself out of a situation it might impress this person a little more respect for the law. You're also saving people from having to come into the criminal system," he added.

"We're going to give them a chance to earn their way back," Thompson said. "We're going to fit the situation with charges and try and do what's right by the community."

Thompson indicated that the program is merely in formulative stages and that he is not sure how the program will be received.

"If it's good then we will continue, if it's a failure then we'll throw it where other failures are thrown," the Ann Arbor native said.

Thompson added that the diversion program approach has already been offered to two individuals who heard about the program and volunteered to participate.

Under the program, reliable people in the community would be asked to supervise and find public service jobs for individuals contacting them.

Thompson emphasized that he would not direct the program but would refer offenders to the "resource people" in the community.

Thompson said that it's doubtful that anybody has a foolproof plan for preventing the occurrence of minor crimes.

"But by offering to try and help a minor offender and try and change his attitudes maybe we can keep him from goofing up."

"This way he can't be mad at the system if he comes back again," said Thompson. One of the reasons, Thompson said, for initiating this program was the lack of proper alternative methods for dealing

At-thay an-cay be quite an ock-shay

Surely spring cannot be very far away. I overheard the little girls down the block talking Pig Latin the other day. Wasn't that always a sure sign of spring—jump rope, jacks, mumble peg and Pig Latin? Listening to the girl's chatter reminded me of the spring I learned the language.

Madelyn

I never could figure out why it was called Pig Latin, but I do remember discovering it. It was a wonderful secret language (I thought) between my friends and me. It was like speaking in code. We spoke it everywhere, and constantly, driving our mothers crazy with it.

When the family went to Canada that summer to visit my grandparents, I was delighted to find that my summer friends could also speak the language. I assumed then that everyone my age knew it. It never occurred to me that anyone else might share our secret until the night my grandfather hurried me off to bed with, "Am-scray on the ortin-skay." I understood the first part all right, but no amount of coaxing would get grandpa to explain the rest. He simply grinned at me, and winked.

The following summer I learned by grandfather not only spoke and understood Pig Latin, but he possessed an ability to speak in a curious doubletalk. It meant absolutely nothing, so it couldn't have been a new secret language—had I learned it—but grandpa was so fluent he could fool almost anyone into thinking he was speaking some exotic foreign tongue. Or so it seemed to me. I saw him take advantage of its use only once.

Mother, my grandpa and I were visiting Toronto. We had been to a matinee and were headed towards our car in a crowded parking lot when we noticed a disheveled, dirty looking man making his way unsteadily towards us. Today we'd call him a wino—in those days he was a bum. There were many bums in the cities but I had not seen one before.

Presumably he meant no harm but my grandfather quickly steered mother and me to the far side of the car. He then returned to the driver's side and pretended to be unlocking the door.

The bum stumbled closer. He had one hand out and was mumbling something to my grandfather, who pretended at first not to hear. Finally grandfather straightened, looked at the bum and said something that sounded like, "Ow bow chee wowsky, botten zee orskay." The drunk, eyes wide, stopped in his tracks. Grandfather repeated it. The drunk stared a few seconds, shrugged, and shuffled away, glancing over his shoulder once or twice while forming little circles around his ear with his right hand.

I had an awful time trying to keep from laughing out loud—yet mother and grandpa got into the car as if nothing at all had happened. The incident was never mentioned.

After that my interest in Pig Latin began to fade, and because my grandfather was so quiet about the Toronto incident I never pestered him to teach me his magical lingo.

I've always been rather sorry about that.

Sounds great. Contact the Extension Office for reservations. An article entitled "Youth," by Samuel Ullman caught my eye and I thought I might share it:

"Youth is not a time of life. It is a state of mind. It is not a matter of rosy cheeks, red lips and supple knees; it is a matter of the will, a quality of the imagination a vigor of the emotions. It is the freshness of the deep springs of life.

"Youth means a temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over the love of ease. This often exists in a man of 60 more than a boy of 20. Nobody grows old merely by living a number of years. We grow old by deserting our ideals.

"Years may wrinkle the skin but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. Worry, fear, self-doubt bows the heart and turns the spirit back to dust.

"Weather 60 or 16, there is in every human being's heart the lure of wonder, the unfailing child-like curiosity of what's next, and the job of the game of living. In the center of your heart and mind there is a wireless station; so long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer, and courage, you are young.

Sweet: 73-65 win over Escanaba

Part of the Manistique Emeralds' formula for a successful season is a victory over Escanaba.

The Emeralds took care of that part of the equation Tuesday night by upending the Eskimos 73-65 in a stirring overtime contest.

The victory set the Emeralds' record at 13-5 as they journey to Gwinn tonight for the final regular season game of the year. Next Thursday, Coach Seb Rubick's team will face the Model Towners again in the Class B district tourney at Manistique.

If anything was needed to bolster the Emeralds' confidence in pulling out a win against a strong defensive ball club, Tuesday night helped.

But Coach Rubick avoided any boasting about the outcome.

"They've got a good team and we've got a good team," Coach Rubick said. "We just lucked out." Nonetheless, the smile on the coach's face showed the satisfaction of defeating the Class A Eskimos for the second time in three years.

Against the physical Eskies, the Emeralds needed a solid performance from 6-foot-5 forward John Pistulka. They got one, as he led all scorers with 29 points and pulled down 14 of his team's 33 rebounds. Escanaba also came up with 33 board grabs, indicating the tightness of the battle.

Quarter by quarter summary:

First: Emeralds 14, Escanaba 13
The Eskimos took the lead at 7:32 when Bob Boyle sank a layup on a fast break. The two squads swapped baskets as Escanaba bothered the Emeralds with an adhesive man to man.

Manistique took the lead for the first time at 1:39 when Pistulka broke through for a driving layup to make the score 12-10. He added another dog shot and Mark Young hit a free throw to end the period.

Second: Escanaba 24, Emeralds 20
Manistique unloaded its own full-court press in the opening minutes, and forced some Escanaba turnovers. When Norm Jahn, coming off the bench for Don Videtich, sank a five-footer on a fast break at 5:11, the Emeralds led 24-19.

That lead was short-lived, as the Eskimos connected for two three-point plays, a jump shot and a driving layup to take a 29-28 lead while Manistique was in a zone.

With Boyle hitting from the outside and Rick LaFleur penetrating, the Eskies claimed a 37-34 lead at the half.

Third: Emeralds 16, Escanaba 14
The Emeralds returned to a man to man but slid behind 51-44 when LaFleur hit a layup on a fast break at 2:17. Pistulka a driving layup, a 12-foot jumper and a tip-in at 1:01 to close the gap to one.

Fourth: Emeralds 13, Escanaba 12
Manistique got a boost when John Sankovitch, who punished the Emerald defense with three driving layups in the third quarter, drew his fifth personal.

After Videtich hit a 20-footer at 6:20 to hand the Emeralds a 52-51 advantage, the lead changed hands seven times before Mark Masters netted a free throw at 1:29 to knot it at 63-63.

Manistique got the ball again after an Eskey lane violation, and called a time out with 20 seconds left. Two Emerald shots missed the mark in the final few seconds, and Escanaba recovered the ball with one second left and called a time out. A 60-foot desperation shot was no good and the game went into an extra period.

Overtime: Emeralds 10, Escanaba 2
Young hit the first and only Eskey bucket at 2:30. After that, it was all Manistique as Videtich hit an 18-footer and Rick Berger sank a free throw and stole the ball and scored a key layup at 1:24.

When Young fouled Masters with 46 seconds left and the reserve forward tossed in both free throws, the Eskimos were against the wall. It was Young's fifth. Videtich later added one freebie and Berger two in the closing seconds to polish the prize.

The Emeralds outshot the Eskimos, gaining 28 of 55 tries for 51 percent, to Escanaba's 25 of 69 for 36 percent. Pistulka was 11 for 18, 6 for 9 in the first half.

Team summaries follow:

Manistique-Videtich 7-1-1-15; Jahn 1-0-0-2; Berger 4-6-1-14; Kaiser 1-0-3-2; Pistulka 11-7-4-29; Masters 0-3-3-3; Patz 4-0-2-8; Strasler 0-0-1-0; Taylor 0-0-1-0. Totals: 28-17-16-73.

After taking control early in the contest, the Emeralds dallied with the St. Ignace Saints but posted a 66-57 victory Saturday night.

Pistulka had 24 points and Berger 20, but the Emeralds didn't show all the luster of earlier games.

Coach Seb Rubick did get a chance to substitute freely as early as the first quarter, as the Emeralds turned a 4-0 deficit into a 23-6 lead by the end of the period.

A sticky Manistique press was responsible for much of scoring, with many of the Emerald baskets coming on layups.

In the second period, the Saints started their own press, but the Emerald lead went to 29-10 by the 5:01 point. From then on, the Saints got more help from their 6-foot-7 center Mark Olsen. Olsen scored on two tip-ins and three jump shots to help pull St. Ignace to within 8, before Berger netted two free throws to put the gap at 35-25 by the half.

In a sluggish third quarter, the pressing Saints crept to within four, 44-40, when Ron Belonga hit a layup at 2:11. An 18-footer by Videtich and two free shots by Gary Kaiwer placed the margin at eight, 48-40 by the end of the period.

The Saints never got closer in the final period, as Pistulka hit four buckets and one free throw. Dave Strasler hit the Emeralds' last basket, an 18-footer, at 2:49. From then on, four freebies accounted for the rest of the Manistique scoring. For the night, the Emeralds hit 26 of 61 attempts from the floor for a 43 percent shooting average. St. Ignace hit only 22 of 57, 39 percent. Manistique also had the edge in rebounding, 37-31.

Emerald matmen close on an upward note

The Manistique Emerald wrestlers may have finished their season in better shape than past years, and probably in more ways than one.

Besides sending three wrestlers to regional tournament action in Marquette last Saturday, they finished the season with a "pretty sizable improvement" over last year, according to Emerald wrestling coach Paul Cappoferri.

"Wrestling is a sport you can't learn in one year," Cappoferri said. "The more mat experience the better wrestler you'll be."

"We qualified three for the regionals and came very close to qualifying six. It was another indication that we're getting a little better on the mat," Cappoferri said. Junior Brian Fountain (165) took a third place medal while Senior Jeff Tufnell (105) and Junior Kevin Beckman (178) took fourth place prizes at the Marquette regionals.

The Emeralds will have two seniors leaving this year, which is sort of a mixed blessing for the coach.

"These two weight classes (Tufnell's and Rick Cook (132) are going to be tough to fill because of the experience people we have in them," Cappoferri said.

With only two wrestlers leaving, the Emerald team will have some experience remaining behind. Combined with the new junior high wrestling program, it should leave the wrestlers in pretty good shape next year.

"Empty weight classes were probably our weakest point," said Cappoferri. "We didn't have anybody in the 98 or 138 classes. I think they will be filled next year with the new junior high program coupled with the increased interest in the sport of wrestling."

Departing senior Jeff Tufnell is the first wrestler at MHS to finish the season with 20 wins. Senior Rick Cook also proved to be a solid wrestler with a departing average of .500 average.

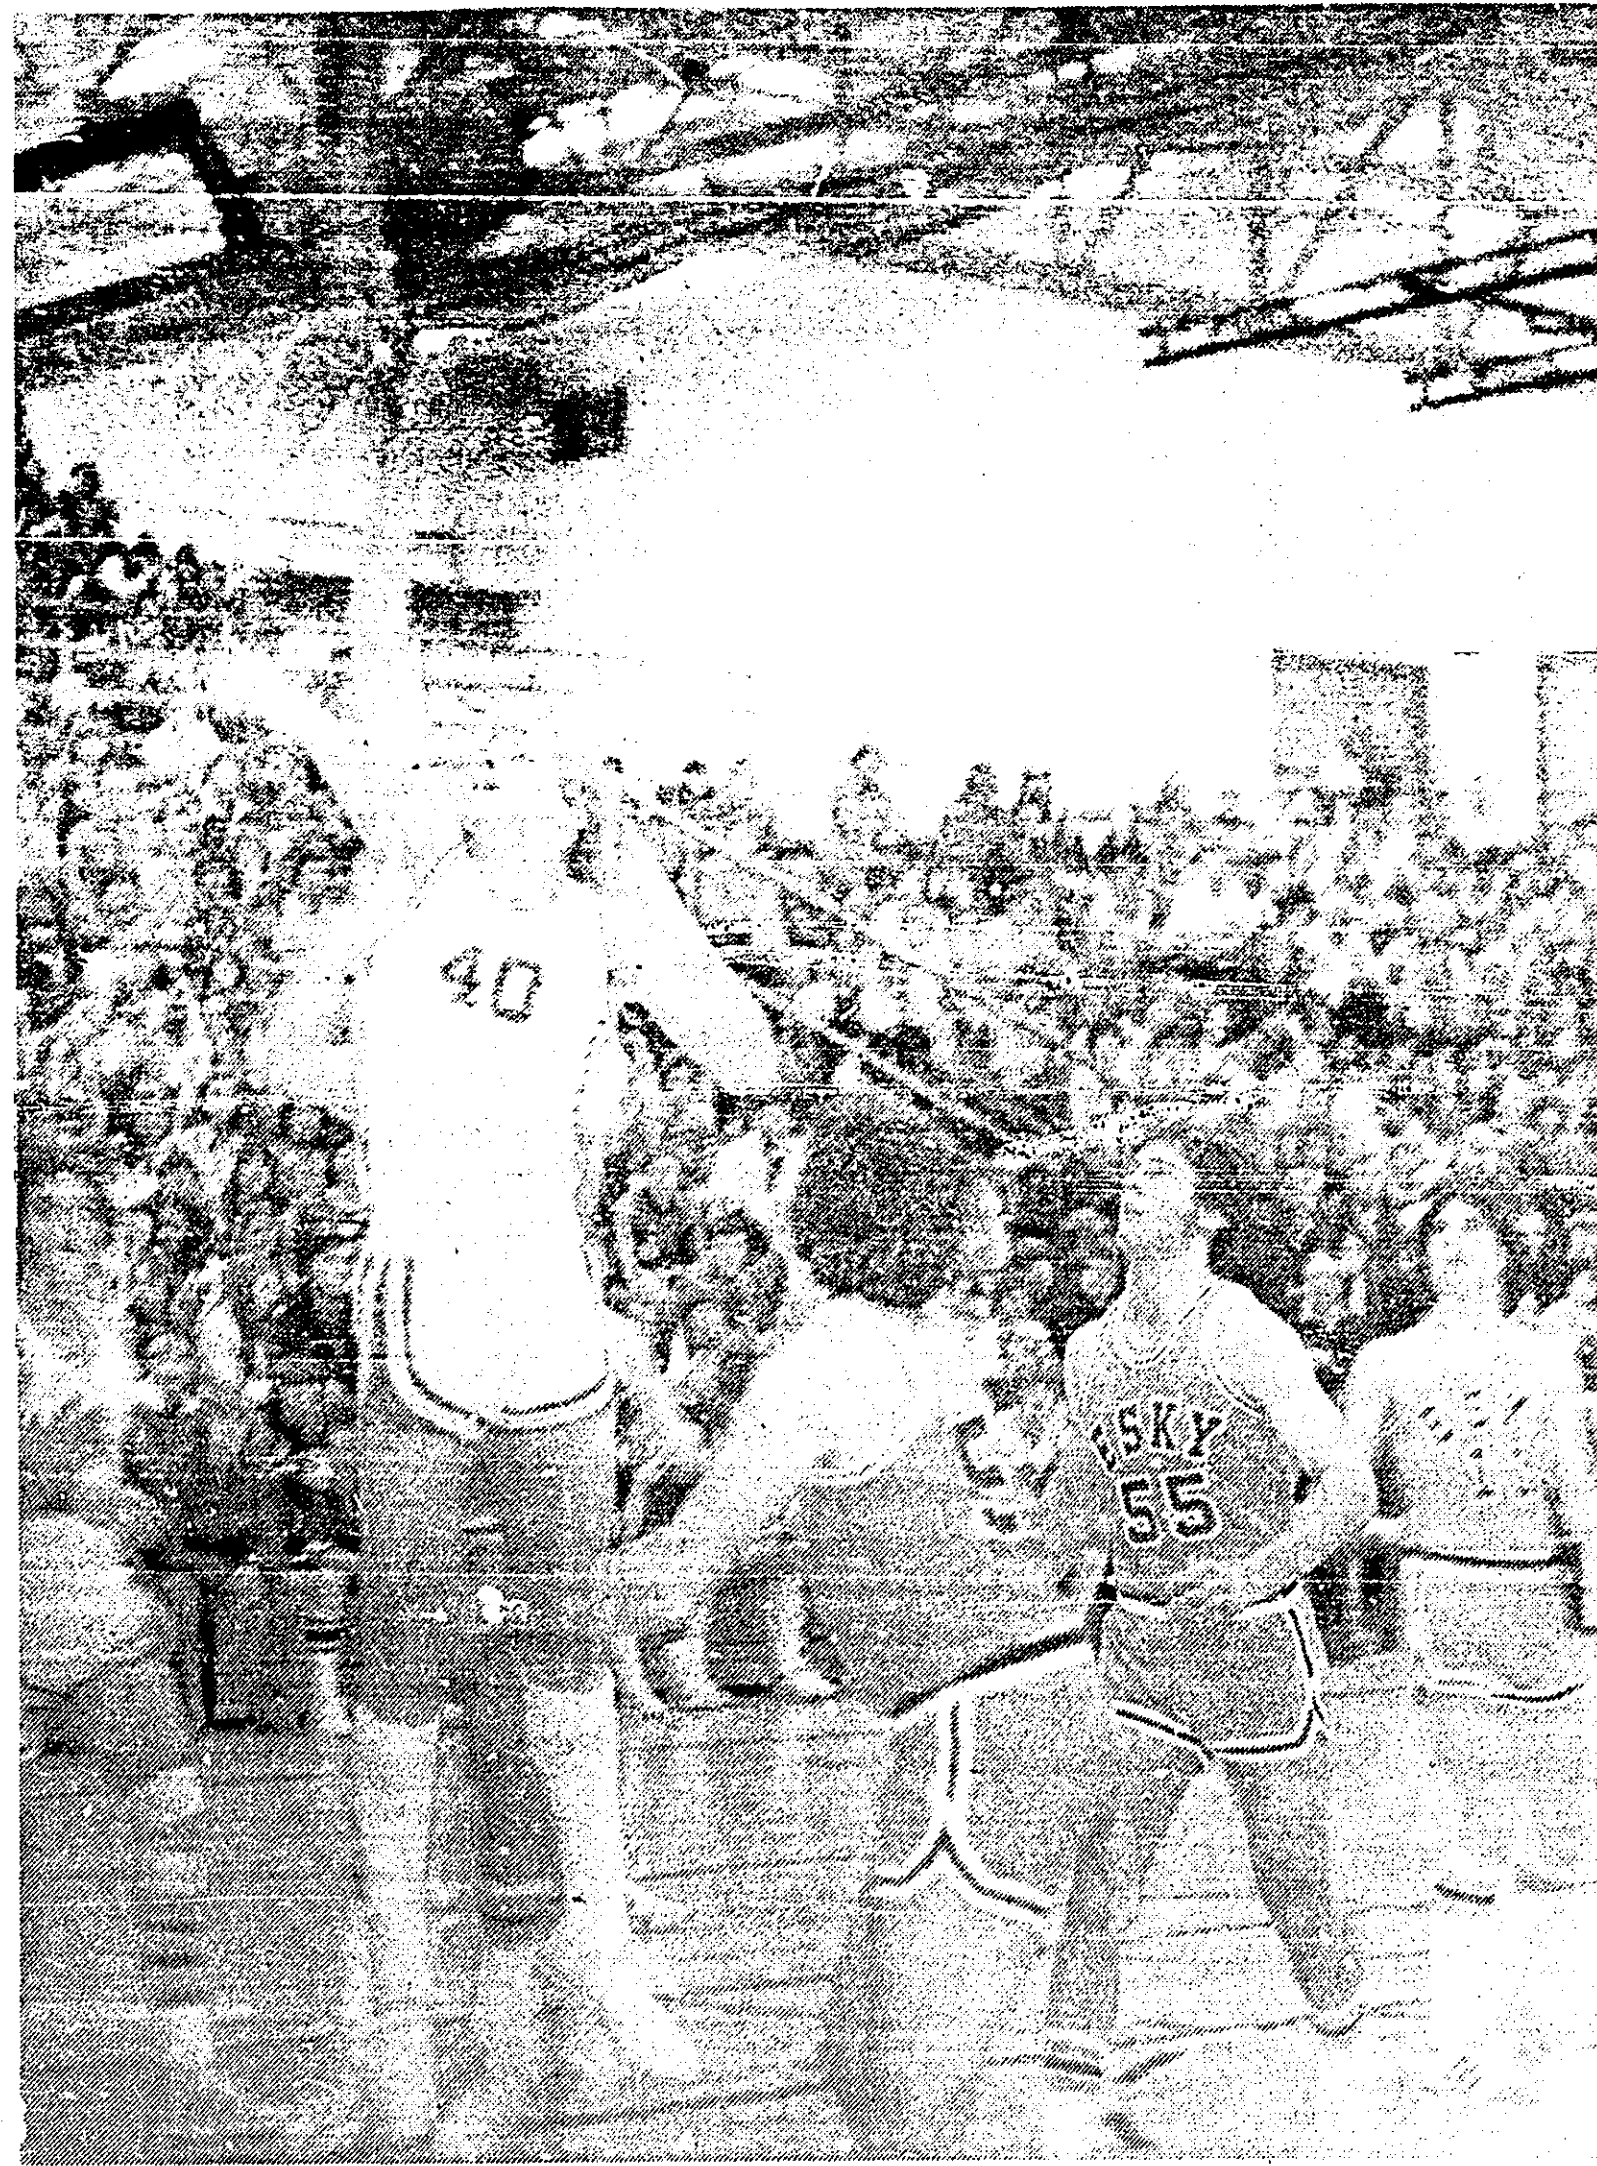

Returning players next year include: freshmen Dave Mohn, Paul Swanson and Steve Hicks; sophomores Ron Leny and Shad Holmberg; and junior Kevin Traven, Doug Bertrand, John Pelon, Brian Fountain, Kevin Beckman, Jay Bowman and D.J. Brady.

Cappoferri felt that home court crowds also played a big part in the outcome of the matches gaining some close decisions.

"We'd like to thank people for their support and patronage. It really helped to wrestle in front of a respectable crowd. It adds a little more intensity to the match," Coach Cappoferri said of the 100 or so spectators that attended the home matches.

"This is another indication that wrestling is becoming more popular. With increased participation and dedication we'll turn the wrestling program all the way around," the coach said.

JV Emeralds win 3 more

The Manistique junior varsity Emeralds were obviously up for the challenge of Escanaba Tuesday night, ripping the visiting Eskimos 82-75.

"I can't say enough about the effort these boys put out to beat a good Escanaba team," Coach Bob Ryan said. "It was just great."

Manistique scored the net in the first quarter with 29 points to 18 for Escanaba. The Emeralds kept up the pace in the second stanza to take a 51-35 lead into the lockerroom at halftime. The Eskimos surged back in the third period, pulling to within 9, 64-55, going into the final frame. But behind balanced scoring and defensive containment the Emeralds secured the win.

Jim Curran led Manistique with 24 points, followed by Bill Giles with 16, Tim Tufnell with 15, and George Danko with 10. Ray Hockstead pumped in 24 for Escanaba.

The win pushed the Emeralds' season mark to 15-4, with a final game remaining at Gwinn tonight.

On Saturday, the Emeralds overcame a 41-40 third quarter deficit to beat St. Ignace, 54-48.

The see-saw contest witnessed the Saints pulling out to a 12-11 first period advantage, and then the Emeralds taking a 30-27 halftime lead. Manistique lost the lead again in the third quarter, but a fourth quarter display of defense that held the Saints to seven points helped produce a victory.

Curran topped the Emeralds with 19 points, while Danko chipped in 14. For St. Ignace George Simmons meshed 22.

Frosh bow to Escanaba, 61-52

The Emerald freshmen trailed from the first quarter and lost to Escanaba 61-52 Tuesday afternoon. The Eskimos ran up a 18-10 first period lead and ran it to 55-33 by the end of the third quarter.

Top scorers for Manistique were Ben Godlewski and Paul Culey with 12 apiece. Brian Hewitt netted 9.

On Saturday, the frosh beat St. Ignace for their 10th victory of the season. After a 10-10 tie at the first stop, Manistique squeezed out a 26-24 halftime advantage and expanded it to 42-35 by the end of the third quarter. Godlewski led the Emeralds with 16 points, with Jeff Savoie contributing 15.

On Tuesday of last week, Gladstone tripped up the frosh 62-46 after a 20-point second quarter spurt. The Braves had a 17-14 first period lead and expanded it to 37-22 by halftime. The scoring was about even for both teams in the second half.

Savoie paced the Emeralds with 19 points, followed by Godlewski and Brian Smith with 10 each.

Take a break March 21-25

If you haven't been off the farm or out of the house most of the winter and the blahs are getting to you, take a break and brighten your spirits at MSU's Farmers' Week, March 21-25.

The week's activities contain about 175 educational programs on such diverse topics as vegetable gardening, consumerism, family nutrition, small and large scale farm management, natural resources, and beekeeping.

Nationally known speakers are among the more than 300 specialists addressing participants of these sessions and those attending the 27 breakfasts, luncheons and banquets on campus. Some of those speakers include: Gov. William G. Milliken; former Delaware governor, Russell W. This year's Farmers' Week theme is "Learning Your ANRs", which stresses the accomplishments of students and alumni of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources (ANR).

MSU's number of ANR students has doubled in the past five years, and is now well over 3,200, 70 percent of them coming from nonfarm or urban backgrounds. The number of women students enrolled in agriculture and natural resources has increased by 30 to 50 percent each year over the past four years.

More than $2.5 million in farm-oriented exhibits will be located in the MSU stadium, on various nearby parking lots and on university farms. Farmers' Week visitors will also have the opportunity to tour Michigan's Artrain which will be on the campus rail sliding, just south of the stadium March 10-28.

The entire day event is full of association meetings, educational meetings in every crop area and Farm Management programs. A special program this year will be operating and managing small or limited acreage farms.

Again this year the SCD board is offering a $25 scholarship toward expenses of a farmer interested in attending Farmers' Week. The scholarship is awarded on a first come first serve basis, so call the SCD office if you are interested.

Third graders get glimpse of courthouse facilities

Scouts, leaders to journey to 1977 jamboree

Sharing the spirit of brotherhood with khaki-uniformed friends from Main to Hawaii, some 36 Scouts and four leaders from the Hiawathaland Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be attending this year's National Jamboree at Moraine State Park, near Butler, Pa.

Scouts attending from this area will be: Greg Dahlin, and Craig Woerpel, of Escanaba; Ted Hentschell of Manistique; Steve Tackman, Anders Nyberg, Jim Leughbaum, all of Gladstone, and Robert Gauthier, Bark River.

According to Butron H. Boyum, President of Hiawathaland Council, the Jamboree is specifically designed this time "to offer boys a chance to learn leadership and program ideas which they can apply upon their return home to improve the quality of Scouting. It will be a once-in-a-lifetime experience for most of them."

A cavalcade of events will depict the heritage of Scouting and the range of its program for the nearly 40,000 young men and their leaders in attendance at the jamboree.

Major arena shows are scheduled for the opening night, Aug. 3, and the closing night Aug. 9. Visitors will be welcome to these, as they will be to the jamboree site itself daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Voyageurs back in canoes after icy river walk

The "La Salle Voyageurs" are back in their canoes for the first time in nearly two months, paddling down the ice-clogged Mississippi River.

The voyageurs had been walking since Dec. 19, or nearly 400 of the 3,800 miles, in their attempt to retrace Rene Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle's journey to New Orleans in 1681.

The Coast Guard gave the travelers permission to put their canoes in the river, Feb. 15, after two boats broke up a nine-mile ice jam at Catro, Ill.

The group will continue their journey despite perils in river navigation with sunken barges sent to the bottom by ice floes.

Three members of the group are still in the hospital following a semi-truck accident in Hebron, Ind.

All three are reported in good condition and will attempt to rejoin the crew later on. One member, Jorge Garcia, was listed in critical condition following surgery but has continued to improve.

Two other members, Steve Marr and Cliff Wilson, were admitted in serious condition with numerous broken bones and lacerations.

In addition to the accident, the group has met with extremely cold temperatures as the nation chattered in the "coldest winter in 100 years."

Cold temperatures began for the crew as early as November; by mid-December these low temperatures had affected more than the voyageurs' physical comforts.

Ice shelves began forming on Lake Michigan, and in East Chicago, Ind. the crew decided to take to land.

The Voyageurs arranged to have the canoes shipped to St. Joseph, Mich., while they began an 88-mile trek overland to the downstate city, where they hoped to find open water on the St. Joseph River and get back into their canoes.

However, the St. Joseph River was frozen, as was the Kankakee, another river that the voyageurs had counted on in their travels.

It was after almost a month of walking when the accident occurred near Hebron, Ind.

Those wishing to send get-well cards to the three remaining in the hospital can do so by addressing them to the Porter Memorial Hospital in Valparaiso, Ind.

The Manistique School and Public Library has been keeping an up to date file on the voyageurs. Clippings, pictures and letters relative to the current hazardous trials and tribulations are posted for perusal of students, faculty and patrons of the library.

MRS. GROVER SPAULDING, Peninsula Historical Society member, and Mrs. William Thill and grandson Jeremy examine some of the old catalogs the Thills found while tearing down an old turkey house. The Thills purchased the old Elliot Sisters farm in Sac Bay in 1971 and have remodeled the interior. They have attempted to keep the original decor whenever possible.

'Turkey nest' a real find

What was first thought to be an old turkey nest turned out to be a real find for Mr. and Mrs. William Thill of Fairport.

The Thills, who live in the historic Elliot Sisters farm in Sac Bay, were tearing down an old turkey house when they discovered an old wooden box nailed shut. At first glance they thought it to be a turkey nest.

But after looking it over and opening it they found several old catalogs, song books, ect. that were apparently preserved there by the Elliot sisters.

The Elliot sisters were three spinster ladies who had lived in the house for most of their life. Since none of them had ever married, day to day farm chores were left to them.

The catalogs and books belonging to the Elliot Sisters were all circa 1900. They included, "The Ladies Birthday Almanac," "Ailments of Females," "The

YCC Camp set

SENEY—Seney National Wildlife Refuge will conduct a Youth Conservation Corps Camp in the summer of 1977. This will be the fourth year Seney Refuge has hosted the program.

As in past years, the Seney Camp will be non-residential, with selected enrollees commuting to work daily during an eight-week period beginning June 20 and ending August 12.

The Youth Conservation Corps was established to offer qualified youth gainful summer employment in the healthy atmosphere of public land and water areas of the United States, while furthering the development and maintenance of natural resources. The program is planned to be a well-balanced earn-work-learn experience with environmental learning and awareness included as an integral part of all work projects. The YCC Program is not a recreation camp program and all selected enrollees will be expected to participate fully in all work and education activities.

All youths who are at least 15 but not yet 19 are eligible to participate in the program. The Seney Camp will employ 20 youths, 10 boys and 10 girls, this summer. Interested young adults should contact their high school guidance counselors for additional information.

'Roots' are old stuff to outdoors critters

Currently a national password among television viewers, roots are old stuff to the critters that roam the outdoors in search of food and fun.

For instance, during this most critical season on a deer's yearly agenda, whatever possesses them to be loyal to a scraggly old cedar swamp that promises only hunger? Even when steered to a land of groceries he's just as apt to migrate back to a near-empty larder, simply because he's always wintered over there.

Seems pretty dumb and yet he shares this strange quirk with thousands of sportsmen who have hunting and fishing roots imbedded deeply in a favorite forty or stretch of rapids. Those familiar woods and water may not have been productive for a decade but as long as that old sittin' stump is still intact and the water still flows dark and deep where a 16-inch speckled trout once lived, those roots hold fast. Old neighborhoods have an appeal all their own.

It's part nostalgia, of course -- if you followed your father along the same pathless ridge where you now lead your son, it becomes a most pleasurable link between past, present and future.

Anticipation also is a most powerful force and old haunts and successes fan the flames better than anything.

Fellowship, too, has a role in maintaining roots...perhaps those long-time companions could operate as enjoyably elsewhere but it's much too great a risk for experimentation.

Mainly, though, it's a special type of friendship which one develops through years of association with a special clump of birches, a rocky bluff...yes, even the unseen root which has made a career of collecting trout lures. It is a good feeling to find them waiting for you, year after year.

It is nice to think that wildlife places similar values on their chosen forties...but it is sad to think of the price which some of them have to pay for their roots.

Seney Refuge open until Monday

SENEY--The Seney National Wildlife Refuge will remain open for ice fishing, snowshoe hare hunting, cross-country skiing and snow-shoeing through Feb. 28, according to Refuge Manager Jack Frye.

On March 1 the refuge will be closed to all public use activities in anticipation of the return of the Canada geese to start another year of nesting and raising young.

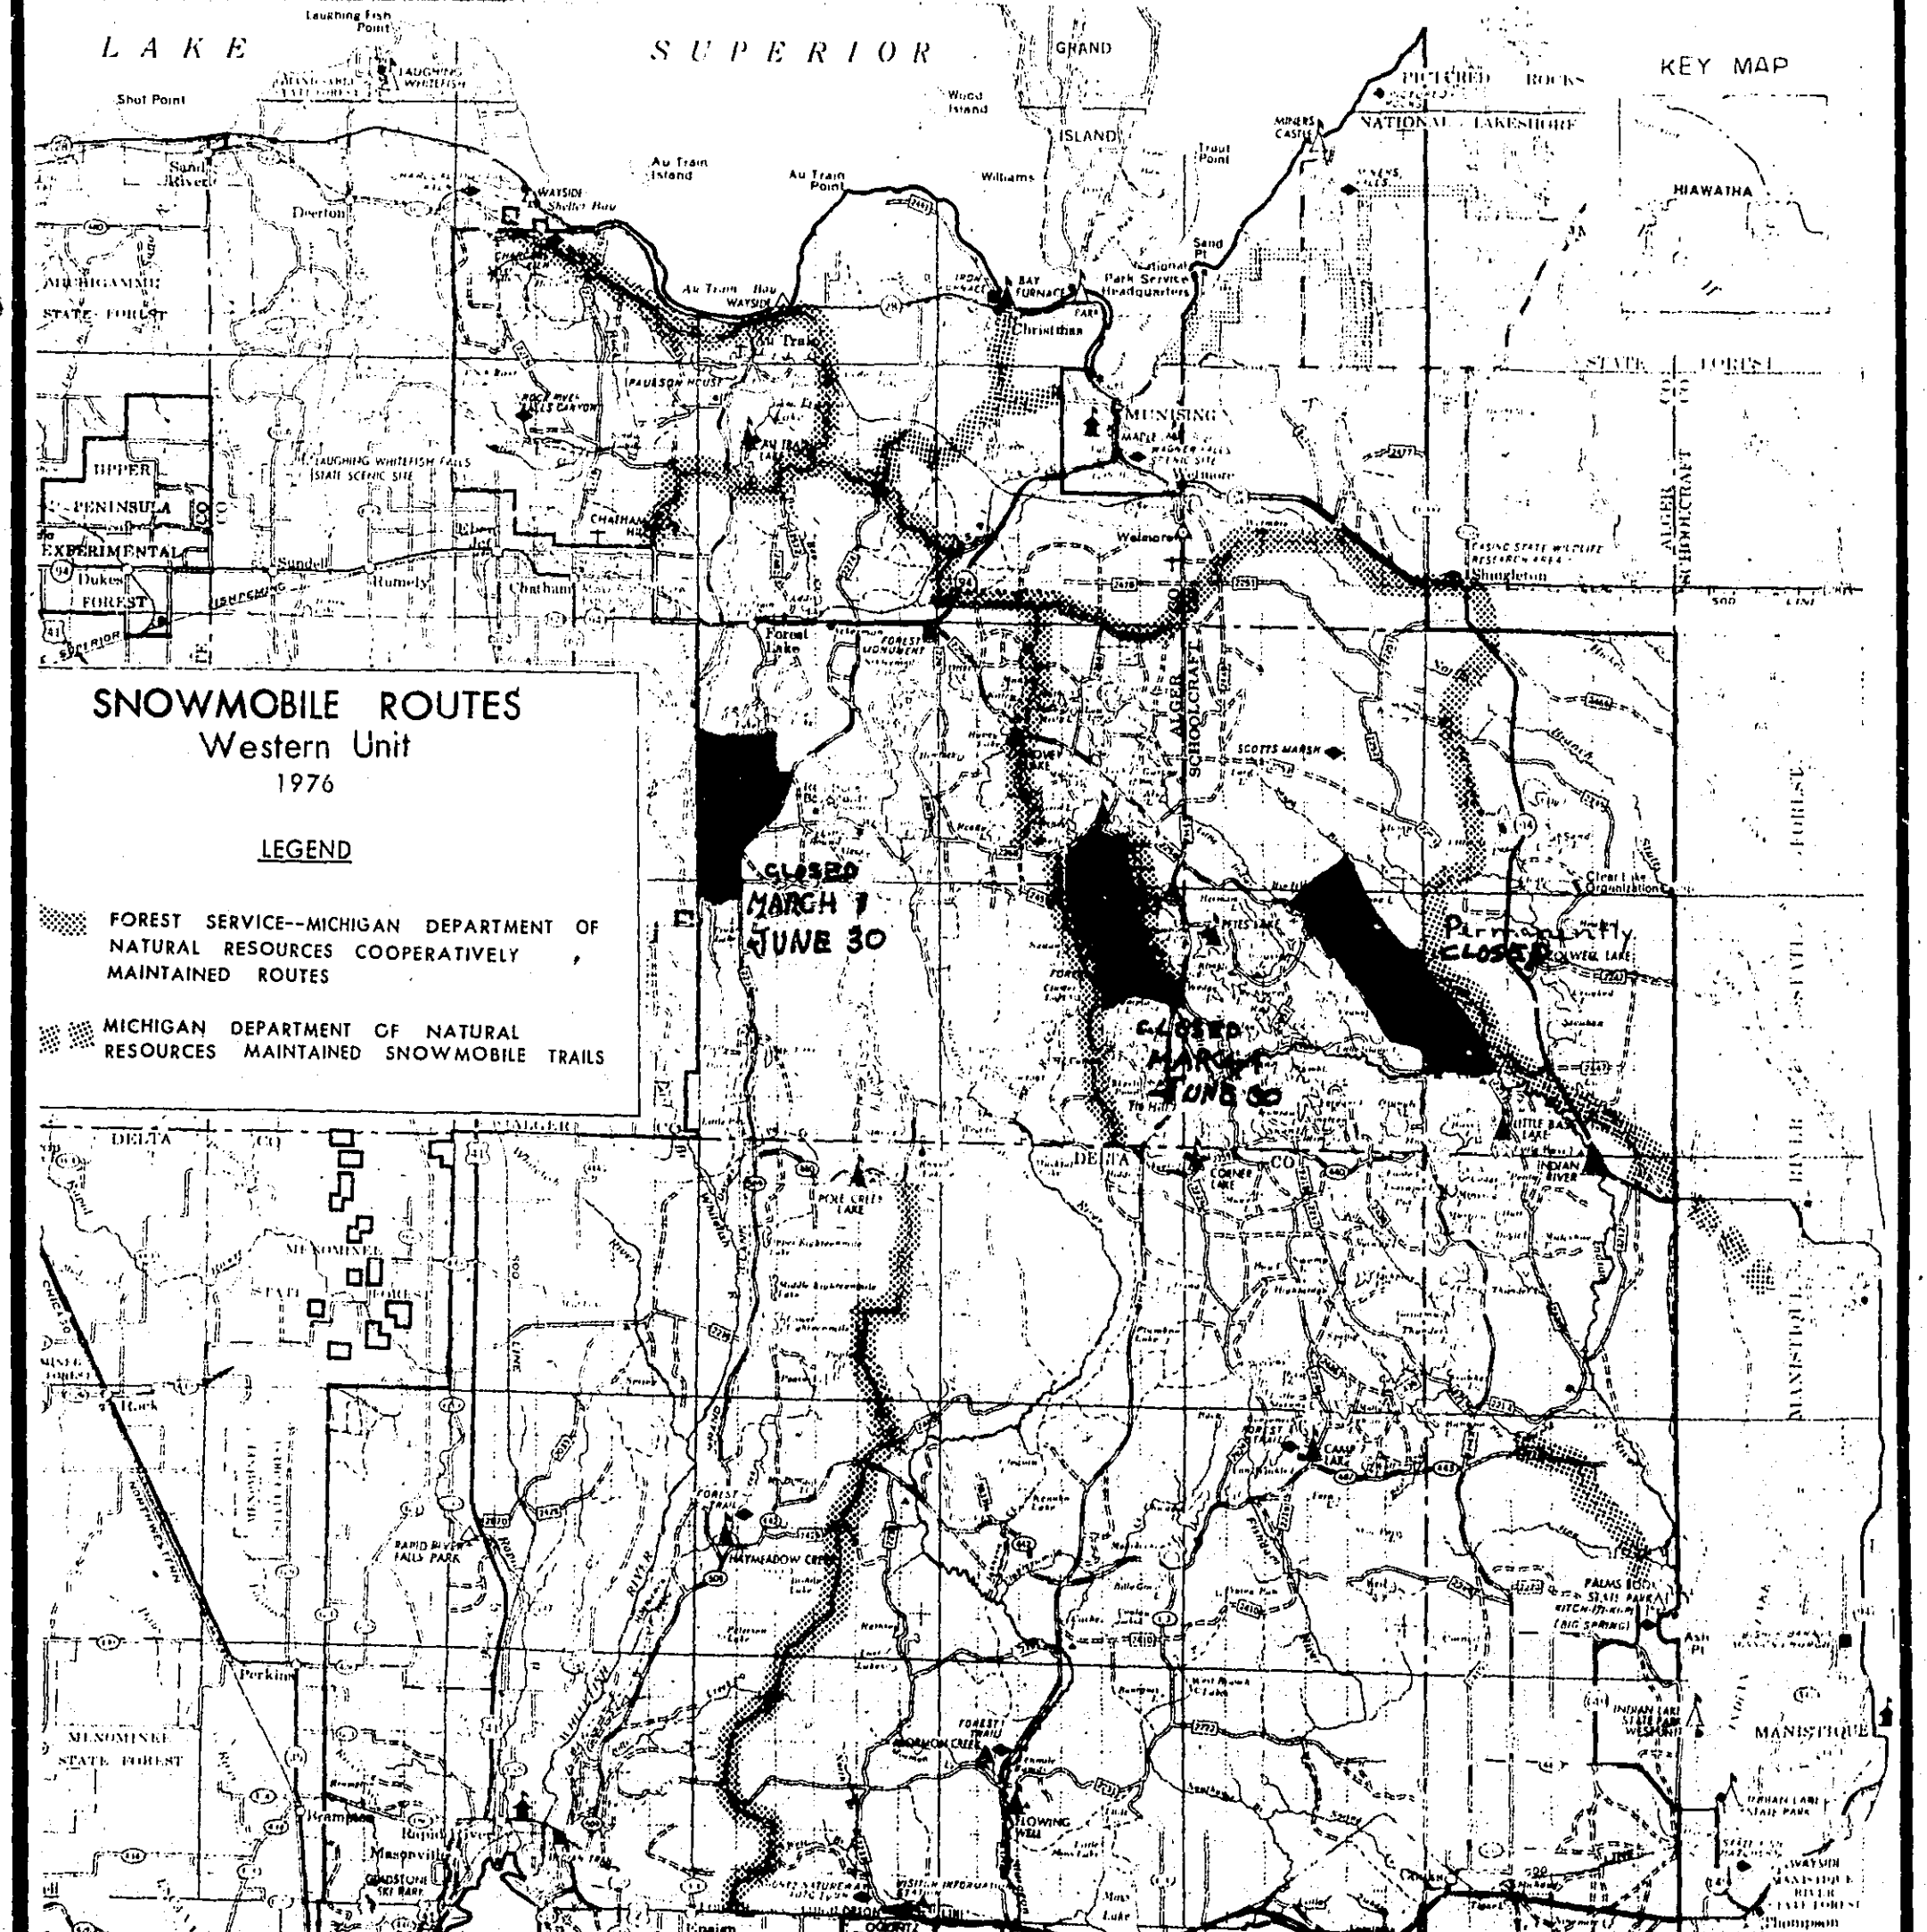

The geese have returned as early as March 1 and as late as March 29, with the average return date of March 13.

The Refuge Visitor Center will re-open on April 1, with exhibits and displays to interest nearly all people. Programs are available to organized groups upon request at that time.

Comparing new, old fuel bills

Q - How do electricity and fuel bills compare between the old and new high school buildings?

Pioneer-Tribune
Q & A

A - Comparison of electrical and fuel bills throughout the district is not a favorable one when it comes to determining operation and maintenance cost. Superintendent Richard Bonifas says. A number of factors must be considered in making comparison, according to information released by the superintendent's office:

HEAT
In the heating area, the Lincoln School changed from coal to fuel oil to natural gas. Lakeside School was modified from propane to natural gas. Central School went from coal to propane to fuel oil to natural gas. Area elementary schools outside of the city limits have been on fuel oil.

Fuel oil prices, to the Manistique Area Schools over the last five years, have risen from 12.85 cents per gallon to the current price of 33.4 cents per gallon. (1975-76 No. 2 fuel oil cost the district 36.9 cents per gallon.)
Fuel oil costs have been increased to the district approximately 20.5 cents per gallon. This is from 12.85 cents to 33.4 cents.

State and federal projections call for energy cost increases of approximately 10 percent per year for the next five years.

The estimates call for public institutions to be paying 68 cents per gallon for No. 2 fuel oil in 1979-80.

Lincoln, Lakeside and Central are on natural gas. Consequently, some comparisons could be made by using these three schools.

The increased cost at Lakeside for the month of December in 1975 compared to the month of December of 1976 is approximately 100 percent.

The increased cost at Lincoln for December of 1975 compared with December of 1976 is approximately 195 percent. The increased cost at Central for December of 1975 compared with December of 1976 is approximately 60 percent.

In December of 1975 the cost was $6,432.35. In December of 1976 the cost was $10,302.09.

It should be noted that 1976-77 rates have increased 35 percent.

Depending on locale, "degree days" have increased approximately 30 percent. The total comprehensive high school complex approximates 200,000 square feet. The old high school facility approximated 85,000 square feet.

During 1975-76, portions of the new facility were heated from the Central heating plant.

Contractors responsible for heating and ventilating in the new building are still adjusting mechanical equipment. Such adjustments are necessary for the building to operate most efficiently.

ELECTRICITY
Manistique Area Schools has electricity provided by three different companies, Edison Sault, the Michigan Wisconsin Power Company, and the Upper Peninsula Power Company. All of these companies charge a different rate for their services.

One of the elementary schools consistently has a higher electrical bill comparably than the other elementary schools. The main differences are in a higher base rate for electrical services and in building use. This elementary school cost the district $3.05 per membership student during the month of December 1976.

Another elementary school that cost the district 50 cents per member during the month of December 1976—quite a contrast on per pupil basis.

The Central facility electrical bill in December of 1975 was $1,783.64. In December of 1976 it was 1,932.65.

It is interesting to note that the cost per junior-senior high school student membership for the month of December 1976 was $2.03. This would mean that the Central Junior-Senior High School facility cost $1.02 less per member per month than the elementary school using $3.05 per member per month.

Citizens of the Manistique Area Schools district are utilizing the new facility extensively. Community activities start as early as 6:15 a.m., and in many cases continue until 11 p.m.

Bonifas said the operation of the new facility does cost considerably more than the operation of the old high school. "If we are to consider inflation, educational program, both regular and vocational, as well as community use, we have a much more realistic basis upon which to make comparisons between the old and the new," he said.

Got a school question that's bugging you? Maybe the Pioneer-Tribune can help.

Manistique Area schools touch so many parts of the community and have an impact on its current and future well-being. In an attempt to broaden the opportunities for communication between school and the public, the Pioneer-Tribune welcomes questions on matters of school policies, programs, financing, or other areas of public concern.

We'll try to find answers and publish them in a regular column feature called "Q and A." Send your questions to Pioneer-Tribune, Box 431, Manistique, or talk to us personally.

Memoirs

By Mark Eisenlohr

THIS IS A FIRST in a series of three pictures owned by Mr. Ed Ekdahl of 508 Park Ave. The photo was taken in 1887, looks north on Chippewa Ave. Houses on the west side of Chippewa were owned by J. Robertson, J.J. Jennings (city clerk), Alfred Dufstrom (county clerk), Sol Reid, J. Remell, C. Adkins, Benson, Bayless and Casmore. Buildings on the east side were the Fire Department, J. Dufstrom (lumber inspector), J. MacLough (Soo Line agent), William Nelson, (sawmill laborer), Charles Hare (saw mill laborer), and Gust Anderson (sawmill laborer and city alderman).

Dinner for four was 3 dollars

"We did our swimming on the west side in the Indian River near where the homes are built now. We used to go down by the sawmill until they put on a restriction that you had to wear bathing suits," Ed Ekdahl, lifelong Manistique resident, remembers.

Mr. Ekdahl invited me over to his house last week for an informal talk on Manistique, its growth and its past; a talk that covered many facets of life in Manistique as it was in years gone by. "Manistique has come a long way. We have more homes, a new high school, and a new courthouse.

"The new high school and courthouse are the third high school and courthouse that I have seen built in my time," says the 88-year old Ekdahl.

Ekdahl, now retired, keeps busy by gardening and ground upkeep at the hospital, medical clinic and the city hall.

Ekdahl, now a little hard of hearing, paused frequently during the chat as his mind skipped over the many moments that make up his life.

"I remember when I was going with my wife. My father thought it would be nice to take the four of us to Fayette for a picnic.

"We loaded up the car with the picnic basket stuffed under the seat and started down the rutted roads.

"Well there was a can of gasoline under the seat as well and by the time we got to Fayette our picnic food was ruined.

"So we asked at the Fayette Hotel, which served meals, how much it would cost. The clerk there said it would cost us each 75 cents.

"Well, father was just furious, he thought that was too much money. But we had to eat. It cost the four of us $3. And we had a nice meal, of course."

Mr. Ekdahl remembers life was rough in Manistique. "We had some pretty tough characters," says Mr. Ekdahl.

"I remember though, the words of one of our school teachers who came from Boston. She was upset because we used to tease the lumberjacks when they came into town.

"I remember that she said, I come from Boston where we had courtesy. But I have never seen anybody so courteous as the Michigan Lumberjacks."

"The lumberjacks were always good to the children of Manistique," says Mr. Ekdahl—as he thinks back to when the lumberjacks would throw the kids quaters and dimes.

Mr. Ekdahl remembers that Seny was as wild as they say and remembers the advice given to him when he was in town: "Take your money and put it in your socks and wear them to bed."

The Ekdahls have been married for 65 years and during that time have never smoked or drunk, something that may have been difficult to maintain in 1908 when the town had 35 saloons and 11 churches. Mrs. Ekdahl is the oldest member of the Baptist Church.

As with most people who lived through as full a life as the Ekdahls have, Mr. Ekdahl believes that times were better when milk sold for 5 cents a quart and steak for a quarter. When the butcher gave away soup bones and liver.

"People in my time were more happy and contented. There didn't seem to be any of the grumbling nowadays. We did everything for ourselves, nobody else did it. I think that gave us more enjoyment," Mr. Ekdahl says, whose own personal philosophy is "never sell any one short." And somehow, I believe he never has.

Country cousins, this is Detroit

Smoking ban a losing battle

It may have been a noble effort, but the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners is fighting a losing battle in defending its courthouse smoking ban against state social services employees who are ignoring it.

Under rules and regulations the county board adopted in September, employees were prohibited from "smoking anywhere in the courthouse except in employees lounge." And for the public: "No smoking anywhere in the courthouse."

By and large, county-paid employees and officers have been observing the ban in the new building. But social services workers, whose department rents office space on the second floor, are paid by the state. Smokers in the group have felt no obligation to abide by the adopted rules.

In response, Commissioner William Tennyson made a motion at the December board meeting to bounce the department from the building if it did not comply with the regulation. An argument was advanced from then Commissioner Merwin White that in signing its lease, social services accepted the building rules.

But a reading of the actual three-year rental contract between the Building Authority and the DSS will reveal no mention of abiding by building rules. To the contrary, the contract does include an attachment that list the lessor's responsibilities to the state.

The list includes a presumption that smoking in the offices would be permitted, requiring the county to furnish janitor services and supplies: "This service shall include...empty ashtrays and wastebaskets daily..."

The issue is on the county board's Monday night agenda for action. It's occupied too much of the board's time already, but the board should give some ground and allow state employees to smoke in a limited area on the second floor.

Booting out a $14,000 a year renter because he has a commonly accepted habit of smoking on the job, doesn't seem like a smart alternative.

Dear Cousin Al:

This will probably make you mad. I went to a Detroit Tigers party the other night. I tweaked at the Bird's curis and I got an apology from Jim Campbell.

I know what you are wondering, Al, and I am sorry. You are wondering why I didn't invite you to the Tigers party. You are wondering why I invited you to Detroit to see a cultural play at the Fisher that you didn't like, but I didn't invite you to meet the Tigers you have loved since they played at Navin Field.

I couldn't help it, Al. The Tigers gave this party for newspaper and TV-radio people only, and there was a big guy at the door eyeing nametags. Celebrities like Sonny Eliot were there. It is funny so see him along with all those large, handsome fellows who read the news on Channel 4. They look like Vikings and Sonny looks like the guy who sat in the end of the boat and called strokes when the Vikings rowed to America.

This party was held in three big rooms at the Detroit Athletic Club. That's the DAC which you probably read about when the women's libbers forced their way in the front door. It used to be that women had to use the side door. I've been there twice now since I moved downtown. Both times I came in the side door because I thought it was the front door. That will give you an idea of what a posh palace the DAC is -- and what a hick I still am.

This was the fanciest free-load I've ever been to, Al. There couldn't possibly have been more booze and food, even if the Tigers had been the Yankees. I went around urging people to pour their drinks back in the bottles, so maybe the Tigers could afford to buy a secondbaseman. No one thought I was very funny, including Jim Campbell.

But Campbell did say he was sorry about locking me out of Tiger Stadium for five innings in 1972, even though I had a ticket to get in. You remember me crabbing about that before. It was the second-to-last game of the season and we had to beat Boston to make the play-offs. Campbell said the crowd was a lot larger than expected, and that's what caused the foul-up which left me on the outside screaming for justice. He said it would never happen again. I asked if he meant the foul-up, or the large crowd. You know me, Al.

Incidentally, I'll bet you gulped when Tiger Stadium caught fire the other night. Me too. I like the old place better than anything, but the Tiger brass want a new stadium the worst way. As you know, Al, I

If It Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

I live in the same building as Campbell. I would like to tell you I saw him sneaking down the stairs carrying two cans of kerosene the night of the fire. But I didn't. He was carrying a package of marshmallows.

George Kell made a little speech at the party. I still consider him the world's most optimistic baseball announcer. The cause is never lost. George keeps Tiger fans listening and hoping by continually reminding them that the tying run is at the plate and the winning run is in the waiting batter's circle. When things get really rough he might say the tying run is in the locker room sneaking a smoke, and the winning run is coming on a bus from Toledo.

Al, I didn't see your favorite Tiger announcer, Ernie Harwell, at the party. But you'll be impressed to learn that I received a letter from him this week. He's in Florida, so I guess announcers begin spring training even before the pitchers and catchers.

Harwell wanted me to know he is married to my wife's twin. Mrs. Harwell has also dedicated her life to shopping in stop action, with no purchases made before a fresh sun rises, while Ernie languishes in her flat wake, wondering if he'll ever reach home again. I wrote and told him not to die on third, no matter what, because George Kell believes in him.

Al you probably want to know the same thing everyone else asked me. Does Mark Fydrich really look like Shirley Temple? Yes. His ringlets are golden and tumbling. If the Bird doesn't pitch well this season, he can still draw a crowd by tap dancing down the center field bleacher with Willie Horton.

It was a great party, Al. You would have enjoyed everything except going home with me. I walked 20 minutes right through downtown Detroit, at midnight, and there wasn't a mugger to be seen. But don't give up, Al. There may be one coming in on a bus from Toledo.

How your sweet tooth can hurt

"Watch out! Your sweet tooth may be killing you," read the headline in an issue of the Michigan Journalist. As someone with a better than average sweet tooth, it caught my eye and I naturally read on further.

WARNING: The Surgeon General Has Determined Sugar Consumption is Harmful To Your Health.

An ominous warning like this may soon become reality. Evidence now points to sugar as increasing the risk of coronary heart disease and heart attacks.

FACT: The average American consumes 102 pounds of sugar every year. Half of this sugar is used in coffee and tea, sprinkled on cereal or used in cooking. The rest is contained in foods such as soft drinks, cakes, cookies, pastries, candy and ice cream. This estimate does not include all the non-traditional sources of sugar in the American diet--canned soups, luncheon meats, salad dressings and Worcestershire sauce.

FACT: Even honey, molasses and brown sugar, the "natural" sweeteners heralded by health food enthusiasts, are now under indictment as contributing to heart disease.

FACT: Researchers believe high sugar consumption is a significant factor in producing greater quantities of fat in the blood, hyperlipidemia. Hyperlipidemia victims run greater risks of developing heart disease, heart attacks and other arterial disorders.

Twenty years ago cholesterol, a fat-like substance found in all animal fats and body fluids, was first implicated as a cause of hyperlipidemia. Saturated fats, found in red meats, whole milk, cream and coconut oil, raise cholesterol levels in the body. Americans were advised to restrict their intake of saturated fats.

But recent research indicates that sugars are a more significant factor in causing hyperlipidemia than starches or even saturated fats. Sugar consumption in America has doubled in the last 70 years, while fat consumption has risen by only 12 per cent. Yet, since 1900, deaths attributed to heart disease and heart attacks have increased greatly.

The average American's diet is 15 percent protein, 40 percent fat and 45 percent carbohydrates. Forty percent of those carbohydrates are consumed as sugars, according to Dr. David Basset of the University of Michigan Medical School.

Many cardiologists and physicians are currently cautioning patients to reduce their sugar intake--even though all the evidence is not in.

A study by John Yudkin, a British biochemist and physician, found that subjects exposed to a high sugar, low saturated fat diet for more than 25 years suffered a significantly higher incidence of heart disease and heart attack than subjects on the same diet for less than 10 years.

But the case against sugar is not yet closed. Both Yudkin and Basset suspect hormonal differences can effect sugar metabolism in different individuals and populations. Yudkin is exploring this line of research.

In the meantime, Basset recommends that sugar intake be reduced to 30 percent of total carbohydrate intake and that half of the fat-intake by consumed as unsaturated fats.

If sugar is finally identified as one cause of heart disease, all Americans will be forced to seriously review and perhaps change their eating habits.

All of this research is great. But with the increasing dangers from PCB's, triglycerides, DDT, cyclomates, tobacco, sweets and the hundreds of other things that are being discovered what's a person to do. No matter what you eat, drink or smoke it seems it will shorten your life expectancy. Ignorance may have been bliss, but life was sure a lot simpler when you didn't know that everything you did was harmful to your health.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in decades, the Manistique Harbor has completely frozen over. The bitter winter of '77, plus a lack of major Lake Michigan traffic has combined to put the harbor in cold storage. The search goes on to expand the use of the facility, designated as a federal refuge harbor. (Tribune photo)

Manistique Harbor in cold storage

The frigid February wind whips over the Manistique Harbor, a lonely place these days.

The harbor completely froze over this winter, for the first time since anyone has kept track.

For a great many years, when car ferry service operated regularly between here and Frankfort, ice over the dredged channel remained broken up throughout the coldest months.

But the big ferries have been gone for several years now. Today, the harbor used primarily by light recreational craft and fishing vessels.

Some residents may be surprised to hear it, but the harbor is far from dead. The water facility is designated a federal refuge harbor, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers still maintains its east and west walls.

According to the corps' recently released 1977 report on Michigan harbors, the most recent project to increase the depth of the channel has totalled $3,329,004 in costs to June 30, 1976. The channel work was authorized by Congress in 1950 and was completed in 1961. Of the cost figure,

Side Tracks

by Arnold Mackowiak

$1,615,688 went for new work, $1,396,983 for maintenance, and $316,033 for rehabilitation.

Channel depth is now 18 feet, with a width of 215 feet.

Harbor statistics compare fairly well with other small harbors that enjoy commercial traffic on the Great Lakes. However, though the Manistique Yacht Club has a large out-state membership and commercial fishing boats ply the local waters, other navigation has been limited. Why?

One reason is the harbors' location, on the "lonesome side of Lake Michigan," as Bob Walters, yacht club commodore, puts it. Manistique Harbor is one of the few such facilities on the southern shore of the U.P. and the winds are stronger on this side of the lake.

While isolation from other commercial harbors seems to be a constant geographic factor, there is another factor that bears one further exploration. That is the distance from here to St. James Harbor on Beaver Island. It's 42 miles. From Charlevoix, out of which a regular ferry services operates to the island, the distance is 33 miles.

Granted, the metro Detroit area is more directly accessible from Charlevoix, and the tourist dollar talks louder in that corner of the lower peninsula.

But metro centers in Wisconsin have relatively easy access to the U.P., too. With that in mind, a Lake Michigan ferry or excursion service would have a chance of success.

All that remains is the right boat, the right promotion and the right backer to activate this and other navigator dreams.

Transfer permit duties to supervisors

To the Editor:

If you don't run your government, it will sure run you.

I went to a county board meeting the other night and I actually went home sick. The money we spend for these guys is a total waste. The old members chatted back and forth--a lot of words, but said nothing. Two new members had some good points and good ideas, but the old members knocked them down. I imagine these old members have got things so goofed up, they almost have to stick together and fight the new members, Frenette and Way, as much as possible.

Well, anyway they hired Ed Daunt as building inspector. He is unfair. He does not read you of your rights to the board of appeals. Of course, the board of appeals is all businessmen who sell material and the code book is for big business to sell material. So a guy doesn't stand much of a chance with them if he uses his own materials, for the people in this town want you to buy from them.

I used some of my own material and blocked off some of the winter air in front of my place. I did not waste my money on a building permit for I did not have any waste, and this is really a crime.

They were going to throw me in jail, but the judge let me out on personal recognizance. I ended up going to court two times. The state police hauled me their once; I drove myself the second time.

If they put me in jail it will be a waste of taxpayers' money, also. I still plead not guilty for I have done nothing wrong, and

Letters to the Editor

Letters from readers are welcome. All letters to the editor must be signed; however, names will be withheld if requested. Views given are not necessarily those of The Pioneer Tribune.

I'm still not buying a building permit. I will buy groceries for my family first.

They have not got a case on me for the building permit, so they think they can find trouble with my sewer and water on my farm. So one morning the state police and Mr. McDonald, sanitation man, showed up. Mr. McDonald said he had reason to believe that I had an illegal sewer, a 30-year existing system which has worked good all these years. The open sewer I have is out behind the barn. I put all my horse, pig, chicken and bull manure out there and then we use it to grow our gardens.

Now these same people I have been talking about had a very lightly advertised meeting most of the public knew nothing about. But 12 people got the last minute word and went to the meeting. The meeting was designed to raise the building and sewer and well permits, which would have no price at all, for residential use. Commercial should come under state jurisdiction. On residential, if one were to add on or build, he should advise his township supervisor so he can add the improvements into the individual's taxes. The supervisor should have the right to advise people what they can do with their areas, such as farm, lake, swamp, sand and rock, without going through all this harassment.

If he says you have to build your area up four feet, that's what you have to do. Why should he charge to tell you this, when he is going to get it back in taxes?

The commissioners would do the county more good if they would just pay these individuals and let people develop the area. Instead of allowing mobile homes and houses that can't begin to compare to the state code.

If the commissioners vote these people more money, I would like to have the help of everybody possible to carry petitions to get over half the voting population to drive these old commissioners out. I say knock all the fees out. If anything, let the state send experienced people in to do the job right, and that way, maybe we'll all be treated the same.

Senior Citizens

by Eileen Males

We do have a Social Security representative who comes to the courthouse building and holds his office on the second floor every first and third Friday of each month from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

So often we understand a legal change in laws and requirements much better if we can read about it instead of by verbal communications. The following changes written about in this column should be cut out and kept for future use.

Effective Jan. 1, 1977, the amounts that Medicare beneficiaries must pay for expenses in hospitals and skilled nursing facilities will increase. The hospital deductible, the amount that the patient must pay before Medicare hospital insurance will begin paying, is now $124, up from the current $104. Subsequently, Medicare will cover the balance of hospital care up to 60 days per benefit period (hospital stay).

From the 61st through 90th day in the hospital, beneficiaries will now pay $31 per day with Medicare paying the balance. This is an increase of $5 per day.

After 90 days in the hospital, a patient must pay the total cost of care, unless he or she chooses to use some of the 60 hospital inpatient reserve days available for use over the beneficiary's lifetime, at his or her discretion. After Jan. 1, 1977 a patient must pay $62 a day, up from $52, when utilizing hospital reserve days, with Medicare picking up the balance.

Patients receiving care in skilled nursing facilities will be charged $15.50 per day from the 21st through 100th day of care, increased as of Jan. 1, 1977 from the current $13. Medicare hospital insurance will cover the full cost of care in a skilled nursing facility for the first 20 days following hospitalization, and will pay additional charges over the $15.50 per diem from the 21st through 100th day.

There will be no change in Medicare medical insurance premiums, currently $7.20 per month, nor will the $60 medical insurance deductible be increased for physician care, outpatient hospital services, etc.

For patients eligible for both Medicare and Medicaid, the increased hospital copayment amounts will be picked up by Medicaid, with no additional charge to the patient. Medicare beneficiaries with supplemental insurance policies, such as Blue Cross, should check with their insurance representatives about possible changes in their rates under these policies. Medicare copayment questions can be answered at any district Social Security Office.

SOMETIMES... SO DARK

There is no denying that there's much sadness in the world. And if we let pessimism get the better of us—well, it gets mighty dark sometimes!

But some of the darkness is self-inflicted. The eyes through which we're trying to see are obscured with our own problems. The light of hope is hidden by the frustrations of life.

Jesus Christ should never be thought of as a sad man—even though He was cruelly executed. And the apostles are seldom thought of as tragic figures even though they all became martyrs. And Christianity has been a source of strength and comfort to millions in time of suffering or sadness. It has always been hailed as a joyous religion!

THE CHARM OF VIOLETS

Far and away the most popular of flowering house plants, African violets are easy to grow indoors. They thrive in 70-degree temperatures; they tolerate the dry air and relatively dim light of our homes to a much greater extent than do many other plants; and they blossom unceasingly if given a modicum of care.

Select a north- or east-facing window sill with bright indirect light or shield plants at a south or west window from the direct sun with a gauzy curtain. If you cannot supply natural light, you can still grow African violets equally well under fluorescent lights.

African violets have delicate fibrous roots that are easily damaged by becoming too dry. Strive to keep the soil barely moist at all times. Water the plants with warm water; if cold water gets on the leaves, they develop ugly white blotches.

Preschoolers often change their eating likes and dislikes

FEEDING THE PRESCHOOLER

Sammy is 18 months old. He used to "eat like a trooper," as his father says, but lately his eating has tapered off. His mother is worried.

Susie just turned 2 years old. Her food likes and dislikes change from day to day. Yesterday she wouldn't eat anything but cooked carrots. Today she won't touch cooked carrots. Instead, she wants only bread. Susie's mother is worried.

Tony is going on 3. His favorite foods include mashed potatoes, peas, boiled squash, pudding, stewed chicken, jello - anything he doesn't have to chew very much. Tony's mother is worried.

Bonnie's mother is trying to prepare nutritious meals on a limited budget. But 4-year-old Bonnie won't eat casseroles, soups or other economical "mixed-up foods."

What's a mother to do?

If she's the mother of a preschooler, she might as well expect and accept such food-related behaviors, advised Rachel Schemmel, Michigan State University professor of human nutrition. "All of these behaviors are typical."

Sammy, the toddler, isn't growing as quickly as he did during his first year or so of life, so he doesn't need increasingly large amounts of food. Between his first and second birthdays, his daily energy needs will increase by only about 100 calories. An extra slice of bread, a few soda crackers or glass of juice or one-half glass of milk will supply those calories, as well as other important nutrients. Sammy's mother must be careful to choose his foods - including his snacks - so that he gets the protein, vitamins and minerals he needs without loading up on extra calories. Overfeeding during the preschool years can lead to obesity later in life.

Susie's mother needs to recognize that children do not eat the same amounts or kinds of food every day and that they seldom stay on food binges long enough to do themselves any harm. It might also ease her mind if she remembers that 2-year-olds have limited vocabularies, and the "yuck!" may be the only way Susie has to say that she just doesn't feel like eating carrots today. Children have food moods, too.

Preschoolers commonly reject foods that are hard to chew, spicy dishes and combination dishes. Dr. Schemmel observes, "Finely cutting or chopping tough foods, using cooking methods that soften tough meats, serving plain, mildly seasoned dishes, and serving easy-to-eat finger foods like raw vegetables and fruits are some ways to encourage preschoolers to eat a variety of nutritious foods."

Eating a variety of foods is a good habit to establish early, Dr. Schemmel suggests, because a varied diet is more likely to be nutritionally complete. Offer a variety of foods, she suggests, and encourage but do not force children to try a little of everything. Don't give up if they reject a food the first six times. On the seventh time, they may like it.

"Children have a natural taste for sweet foods, but they must learn to like many other flavors. To do this they need lots of opportunities to try various foods."

The food habits and behaviors children adopt tend to influence their habits and preferences in later years, Dr. Schemmel

Books donated in memory of residents

The Manistique School and Public Library has recently received five books donated in memory of local residents.

"The Fisherman's World," by Charles F. Waterman has been presented in memory of Aldred Neddow by relatives.

"Sports for Your Child," by George Sullivan was presented as a memorial to Sharon Larson by friends of the family.

"Canada and the U.S.A.," by Richard J. Walton was presented as a memorial to Cora Guidebeck by the Schoolcraft County Retired School Personnel.

"The Joy of Eating Natural Foods," by Agnes Toms and "One Potato, Two Potatoes," by Mary and Herbert Knapp were presented in memory of Catherine H. Ahlskog, a former Manistique resident, by friends of the family.

"The Fisherman's World," is a comprehensive fact-filled book on the varieties of game fish found in North America.

"Sports for Your Child," is a guide book to sports for children. More than 50 activities are listed, along with basic nature of each sport, the right age to start and the approximate cost and the value of physical and emotional exercise.

"Canada and the U.S.A.," is a background book about internal conflict and the new nationalism. The book contains a chronological history of Canada, going back to the fifteenth century and discusses the conflict between the French and English settlers up to 1867 when the Dominion of Canada was born.

"The Joy of Eating Natural Foods," is a complete organic cookbook with 2,000 delicious and nutritious recipes.

"One Potato, Two Potatoes," is the secret education of American children; a treasury of folklore for children in dozens of states from thousands of children.

Ann Waltersdorf

'Every Woman Counts'

"Every Woman Counts" will again be the theme of Campus Day for Women to be held for the second year in a row at Bay de Noc Community College March 9. Last year, the event attracted over 500 women from around the Upper Peninsula.

Sponsored jointly by the MSU-Cooperative Extension Service and Bay College, the day will begin with registration from 9-9:30 a.m., followed by the keynote address given by Anne Waltersdorf, a psychotherapist in private practice in downstate Rochester.

Mrs. Waltersdorf received her bachelor's in psychology from MSU and her master's in counseling psychology from Oakland University. For the past six years, she has been associated with the Continuum Center for Adult Counseling and Leadership Training at Oakland, where she worked with literally hundreds of women as a workshop leader and program coordinator.

Married and the mother of two sons, she will speak on the "Joyful Burden of Personal Growth."

Free fuelwood in national forest

District Rangers on the Hiawatha National Forest are locating areas where anyone interested could cut fuelwood free of charge, if it is for personal use.

Persons interested in cutting fuelwood in the National Forest should contact the District Ranger nearest them.

Hiawatha Forest Supervisor, Merwyn O. Reed, has directed his staff to do all they can to make fuelwood sources available to the public under the free use regulations.

Normally, when authorized by a permit, free fuelwood is available only to a person residing within the boundaries of a National Forest. Usually this is a permit that allows a person to cut up and use dead and down trees in a specified area. The fuelwood obtained free cannot be sold commercially. During an energy emergency such as the current one, forest supervisors are allowed to issue fuelwood permits free to any person regardless of where they live.

CUPPAD chooses lakes for study

Four Schoolcraft County lakes were chosen for study during the CUPPAD Water Quality Program by the CUPPAD Commission at its recent meeting in Iron Mountain.

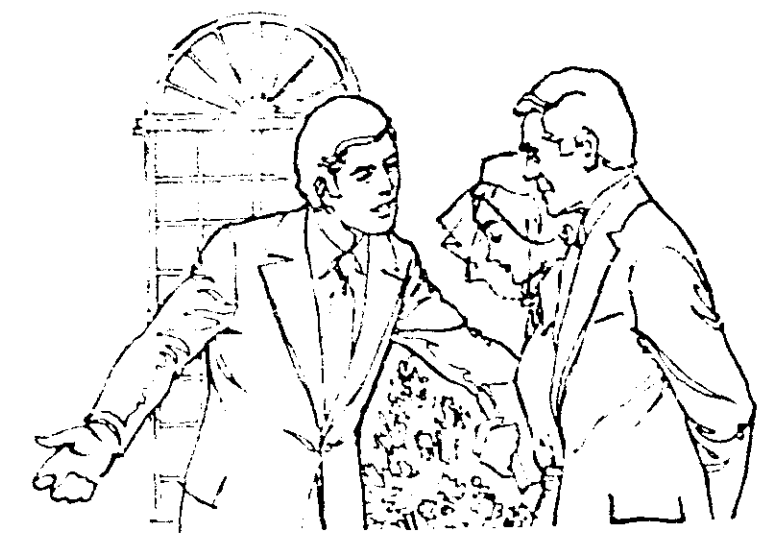

Fifteen of the region's lakes were chosen for the program. The lakes from Schoolcraft County are: Thunder Lake, Corner Lake, Gulliver Lake, and McDonald Lake.

These lakes and their watersheds will be studied and recommendations made as to how present and future water quality problems can be lessened or prevented through development practices.

Keep your cool next summer

by saving your heat this winter.

Good insulation works for you the year-round. And the sooner you install adequate insulation — the sooner you'll reap the benefits. Both in comfort and savings. Insulation cuts heating and cooling costs and saves valuable energy.

In these days of rising costs, good insulation can pay for itself fast!

When building a new home you should insist on the best in insulation. If you live in an older home, have the insulation checked. If the attic floor has less than six inches — you need more insulation. You can do it yourself, too.

WMPCO recommends insulation with an R-30 value (about 10") for attic floors. If you can't install R-30 without extensive remodeling, install the greatest R-value that will fit.

If you have any questions about insulation, talk to a qualified insulating contractor — or give us a call. There's no obligation.

Special treats: Spring Daisy Cake, tea ring

Today fashion is flourishing in the kitchen, and one popular culinary art is cake decorating.

For special occasions many homemakers wish to serve attractive, appetizing desserts which are easy to prepare. Aware of these needs, Delores Bitner, Homemakers School Home Economist, suggests a very special Spring Daisy Cake which suits the lifestyles of modern homemakers.

Begin by baking or purchasing a moist tender angel food cake from your bakery or grocery. To economize, buy it on special and freeze until you're ready to frost with smooth and fluffy Angel Mallow Frosting, tinted according to your preference. This frosting is easy to make using marshmallow creme, and is excellent to work with.

The Sprightly daisies cut from Jets and miniature marshmallows are inexpensive and fun to make. Dipped in a colorful sugar of your choice, they add the custom touch to this dessert.

Spring Daisy Cake, developed by the Home Economist in the Kraft Kitchens, is sweet and satisfying, yet light enough to complement warm weather meals. It's pretty party fare too. Serve it for tea, graduation party, or shower.

Though Spring Daisy Cake was designed to welcome fair weather, the idea needn't pass on to your file for next year when this season ends. Angel Mallow Frosting is a recipe as versatile as it is delicious. It adapts well to a variety of cakes.

Convenient cake decorating can be a never-ending hobby, because there is a constant flow of birthdays, anniversaries, graduations and other occasions which call for a special celebration—and a special cake.

Spring Daisy Cake
Frost sides and top of Angel Food Cake with Angel Mallow Frosting. Decorate with Marshmallow Daisies.

Angel Mallow Frosting:
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons water
17-oz. jar Kraft Marshmallow Creme
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Food coloring

Combine sugar, egg whites and water in double boiler; beat with electric or rotary beater over boiling water until soft peaks form. Add marshmallow creme; continue beating until stiff peaks form. Remove from heat; beat in vanilla. Tint frosting with food coloring.

Marshmallow Daisies
For each Marshmallow Daisy, dip scissors in water. Cut across the flat side of a Jet's marshmallow to form petals. (Each marshmallow makes 4 petals). Arrange 5 petals on waxed paper in a flower design, slightly overlapping tips. Dip inside of daisy into colored sugar to coat cut sides of petals. Cut a Kraft Miniature Marshmallow in half and press, cut side down, in center of each daisy. For each leaf, cut as for single petal. Dip in green colored sugar to coat one side.

A mixer that both mixes and kneads yeast-type doughs does more than just free you from the hard work in making bread, it opens all sorts of new doors to the world of entertaining.

For instance, you can make a delicious treat that's ideal for a special breakfast or brunch, a Swedish Tea Ring. It's made with the multi-purpose basic sweet yeast dough recipe provided in the recipe book for Sunbeam's Dough Hook Mixer.

Of course, all the work of mixing and kneading the dough is taken out of the job when the new Sunbeam Dough Hook Mixer is used. Here's the recipe:

Swedish Tea Ring
1/4 cup warm water (110 degrees F)
1 pkg. Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
3/4 cup scalded milk
1/4 cup Blue Bonnet Margarine, melted
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
3 to 3 3/4 cups all purpose flour

Insert Dough Hooks into Mixer; see instructions. Dissolve yeast in warm water. Scald milk and let cool to lukewarm. Combine margarine, egg and milk mixture and add to yeast mixture. On speed No. 6 (medium) gradually add 1 cup flour, salt and sugar. Mix until blended. Gradually add 1 1/4 cups flour. Turn to speed No. 2 (low). Gradually add remaining flour. Dough will adhere and clean sides of bowl. Total mixing and kneading time using dough hooks 8-10 minutes. Remove dough from bowl. Form into ball and place in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise 30 minutes. Punch down, cover and let rise 30 minutes. Punch down.

To make the Swedish Tea Ring, just follow these easy steps:

Roll dough into a rectangle 14" long X 10" wide. Combine 1/2 cup sugar and 2 teasp. cinnamon. Brush top of rectangle with melted margarine. Sprinkle sugar mixture over rectangle. Distribute 1/2 cup raisins, 1/4 cup Maraschino Cherries coarsely chopped and 1/4 cup nutmeats coarsely chopped over dough. Roll up tightly from wide end (you should have a long tube-shaped roll). Seal seam securely. Form a ring and seal ends together. With a pair of scissors, cut two thirds of the way through the ring at 1" intervals. Twist sections on side. Let rise for 20-30 minutes. Bake at 325 degrees for 30-40 minutes. Top will be golden brown and ring will sound hollow when tapped with knuckles.

If glaze is desired:
Mix 1/2 cup powdered sugar with 1 Tbsp. water. Drizzle over cooled Tea Ring.

Ham en croute, an imaginative main dish

Pastry dough has long been used in creating imaginative main dishes as well as numerous desserts. The British parties, or meat turnovers, are practically legend and deep dish pot pies have endured as an American favorite since colonial times.

The French too use pastry with meat, but in a slightly different fashion. They enclose an entire ham, fillet of beef or pate in pastry dough. Called "en croute" it is an attractive and delicious method of enhancing many entrees.

The following recipe for Ham en Croute incorporates a tangy ham loaf in a rich sour cream pastry. Economical Blue Bonnet Margarine makes the crust tender, flaky and buttery in flavor. Pastry cut-outs add a decorative touch to this unique, spirited loaf.

Serve Ham en Croute with a green vegetable or salad followed by fresh fruit and cheese. This continental dessert is the perfect ending for a delightful meal.

HAM EN CROUTE

- one-third cup BLUE BONNET Margarine
- 3/4 cup unsifted flour
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 3 tablespoons light brown sugar

Stuffed avocado

- 3 ripe avocados
- 2 tablespoons Fruit-Fresh
- 1 can (10 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin oranges, drained
- 1/4 cup chopped red onion
- 2 cups diced cooked potatoes
- 1-3 cup mayonnaise
- 1-3 cup sour cream
- Salt and pepper

With a sharp knife, cut avocados in half lengthwise. Remove seed. Sprinkle cut surfaces with Fruit-Fresh. In a bowl, mix remaining ingredients and season to taste with salt and pepper. Place avocados on serving platter and fill each half with a large mound of tuna mixture. Chill until ready to serve. Serve with thin slices of crisp French bread and glasses of iced tea. Serves 6

 - 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
 - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon dill weed
 - 1/4 teaspoon paprika
 - 1/4 teaspoon cayenne
 - 4 hot dog buns
- In small bowl, combine chicken, cheese spread, onion, pimiento, lemon juice, salt, dill weed, paprika and cayenne; mix well. Equally fill 4 hot dog buns. Makes 4 sandwiches.

- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 3 tablespoons white vinegar
 - 1 pound lean ground cook-before-eating smoked ham
 - 1/2 pound lean ground pork
 - 1/2 cup milk
 - 1 egg, beaten
 - Parsley sprigs
 - Spiced apples
- Cut Blue Bonnet Margarine into flour until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in sour cream until a dough forms. Wrap dough in plastic wrap; chill thoroughly, at least 2 hours.

In a large bowl blend together brown sugar, dry mustard and vinegar. Add ground ham, pork and milk. Mix thoroughly. Refrigerate until ready to use.

On a lightly floured board roll dough to a 12-inch square. If desired, cut out a few fancy shapes from edge of dough to use for decoration. Shape meat into a mound about 6-inches in diameter. Place in center of dough. Bring up edges of dough to completely encase meat mixture. Place seam side down in a shallow baking dish or pan. Brush with beaten egg. Arrange any reserved pastry cutouts on loaf; brush with egg.

Bake at 350 degrees for 1 1/2 hours. Serve garnished with parsley and spiced apples. Makes 6 servings.

Hamburger pizza

A fun idea for your next dinner party is hamburger pizza. A favorite of all ages, this pizza has an unusual crust made of ground beef.

Seasoned ground beef is formed into a circular crust on Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap, then topped with tomato soup and cheese. The heavy duty foil catches drippings plus eliminates cleanup for the busy hostess. A large crisp salad completes the meal.

Kids will love it as pizza is always a favorite meal choice. It might be fun to let the younger members of the family join in on the preparation of the hamburger pizza and then decorate the top. Different variations can be made by the addition of mushrooms, pepperoni, sliced green pepper or chopped onion. The ingredients could be arranged in the shape of a clown's face or spell out a name.

HAMBURGER PIZZA

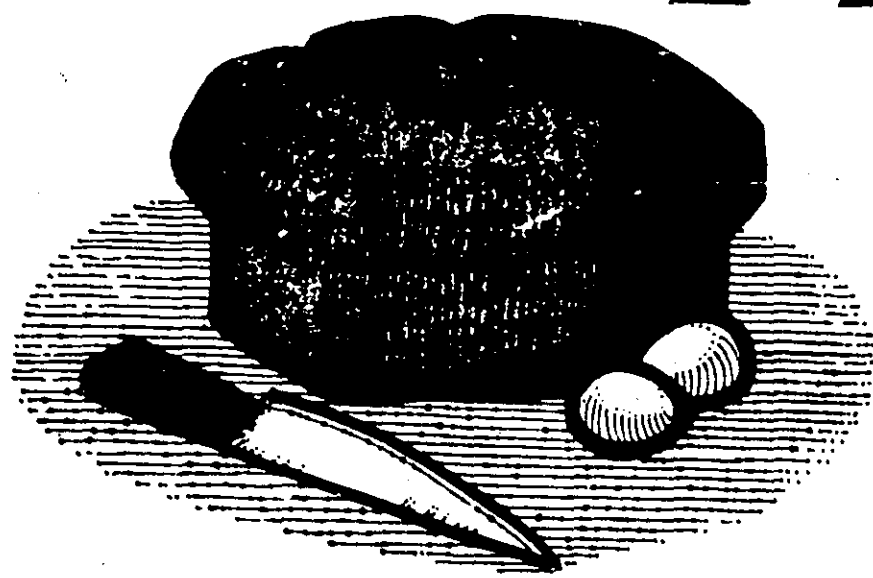

1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed cream of tomato soup
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1-4 cup fine dry bread crumbs

1-4 cup minced onion
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1 medium clove garlic, minced
1-8 teaspoon oregano
1 cup grated Mozzarella cheese

Place a square of HEAVY DUTY REYNOLDS WRAP on a cookie sheet. Mix 1/4 cup tomato soup with remaining ingredients except cheese. Pat meat out firmly on foil into a 10-inch circle about 1/2-inch thick. Press a stand up rim 1-inch high around edge of circle, making meat into a crust. (Rim should be high enough to prevent sauce from bubbling over.) Spread remainder of tomato soup over meat; top with cheese and additional oregano, if desired. Preheat oven to 450 degrees F. Turn up foil edges into a 1 1/2 inch collar to catch drippings. Bake for 15 minutes; cut into wedges to serve. Makes: 8 servings.

Delores Bitner will be demonstrating more ideas using Reynolds Wrap at the Pioneer-Tribune Homemakers School tonight.

Cheesy onion burger buns add spice to a dinner

If you're the one who likes a Big Mac with cheese, onions, tomatoes, lettuce-works-here's a bun to end all hamburger buns. The recipe calls for sharp cheddar cheese and onions, mixed right into the dough. And if that's not enough flavor you can add more with the hamburger.

The one bowl recipe from the Test Kitchens of Fleischmann's Yeast uses the Rapidmix method of bread preparation. This means the yeast and some of the dry ingredients are combined. The margarine and hot tap water are mixed with an electric mixer. Beating at high speed for two minutes dissolves the yeast. The second beating starts to develop the gluten in the flour. Cheese, onion and remaining flour are added after that to give the buns their distinctive flavor.

After a final kneading the dough is allowed to rest for about an hour, or until doubled in bulk. How well it rises depends on the strength of the gluten content in the flour and how well the gluten has been developed during mixture and kneading. Delores Bitner, Homemakers School Home Economist, will be demonstrating Rapidmix recipes at the Homemakers School on Feb. 24.

CHEESY ONION BURGER BUNS

Makes 20 buns

5/4 to 6/4 cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 packages FLEISCHMANN'S ACTIVE DRY YEAST
2 tablespoons softened Blue Bonnet Margarine
2 cups hot tap water
1 1/2 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup finely chopped onion

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Add softened margarine. Gradually add hot tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in cheese, onion and enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on to lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough into 20 equal pieces. Form each piece into a smooth ball; place balls 2 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Bake in hot oven (400 degree F) about 15 to 20 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

Foil-roasted broiler-fryers make elegant dinner fare

Delores Bitner for the upcoming Homemakers School suggests that homemakers take advantage of local sales on whole broiler-fryers to make this delicious menu treat. It only takes minutes to prepare for the oven.

Stuff the broiler-fryers with a combination of seasoned croutons, margarine and chicken broth. There is no messy cleanup because the roasting pan is lined with heavy duty aluminum foil. After the broiler-fryers are placed in the pan they're covered with Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap to help keep meat moist and juicy.

Miss Bitner adds that this is an elegant entree which is perfect for springtime. The addition of fresh asparagus and a garden vegetable salad will make the meal complete. An extra bonus is that cost is kept at a minimum by purchasing whole broiler-fryers on sale and then freezing until needed.

STUFFED BROILER-FRYERS

3 cups seasoned croutons
 1/2 pound BLUE BONNET Margarine, melted
 1/2 cup chicken broth or hot water
 2 whole broiler-fryers, 2 1/2-3 pounds each
 Salt
 Pepper
 Paprika
 Toss the croutons with melted margarine and liquid; stuff chickens lightly. Tuck wings underneath and tie legs to tail. Line shallow roasting pan with HEAVY DUTY REYNOLDS WRAP, leaving a 1 1/2-inch collar around edges. Arrange chickens in pan; breast side up. Brush with shortening; season well, completely cover with a piece of foil large enough to cover chicken and meat sides of pan. To seal, fold edges up and over; press together. Bake in a 450 degree oven for 1 1/4 hours, or until meat thermometer registers 185 degrees. During last 15 minutes, open and turn back foil. Baste with drippings and continue to roast until chickens are nicely browned. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Orange tea cooler

4 cups water
 1 6-oz. can frozen orange juice concentrate (undiluted)
 1/2 cup NESTEA WITH LEMON
 1/2 cup sugar
 In blender container or large bowl, combine water, orange juice concentrate, NESTEA with lemon and sugar; blend at high speed or mix until smooth (about 5 seconds). Pour into thermos; chill in refrigerator with cap off several hours until cold. Shake thermos before serving. Makes about 5 cups.

Crepes glamorous

Some make them thin and some make them thick, some make them the size of 50 cent pieces, other make them big enough to feed Paul Bunyan.

Every country has a version of the pancake but the most delicate and glamorous version of all is the French crepe. This thin crepe can be a magical way to turn plain food into a lovely dish to set before your family or friends.

Our dessert crepe combines the flavor of Taster's Choice coffee with luscious, sliced peaches and a cream cheese filling. They're easy to prepare, fun to serve, and delicious to eat.

Be sure to attend the Pioneer-Tribune's Homemakers School for more recipes using Taster's Choice.

PEACHY COFFEE CREPES

1 tablespoon TASTERS CHOICE
 2 teaspoons boiling water
 1 1/4 cups unsifted flour
 2 tablespoons sugar
 pinch salt
 3 eggs
 1 1/2 cups milk
 2 tablespoons Blue Bonnet Margarine, melted

CREAM CHEESE FILLING

2 1/2 tablespoons TASTERS CHOICE
 1 tablespoon milk
 2 (8 oz.) pks. cream cheese, softened
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/4 cup finely chopped pecans

COFFEE PEACH SAUCE

1 (16 oz) can sliced peached, drained

liquid reserved
 1/2 cup orange juice
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 1/4 cup sugar

2 tablespoons TASTERS CHOICE
 2 tablespoons Blue Bonnet Margarine
 1/4 cup brandy
 1/4 cup chopped pecans

COFFEE CREPES: In small cup, combine Taster's Choice and boiling water; stir until dissolved; set aside. In small bowl, combine flour, sugar and salt; mix well. Remove crepe to a platter. Repeat with remaining batter. Fill crepes evenly with Cream Cheese filling (using about 2 rounded measuring tablespoons for each). Sprinkle each crepe with about 1/2 measuring teaspoon pecans before folding top with Coffee Peach Sauce. Sprinkle with pecans.

CREAM CHEESE FILLING: In large bowl, dissolve Taster's Choice in milk. Add cream cheese and sugar; beat until creamy.

COFFEE PEACH SAUCE: In large saucepan, combine peach syrup, orange juice and cornstarch. Stir with a fork or wire whip until cornstarch dissolves. Add sugar, Taster's Choice and margarine; heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Stir in brandy and peaches; simmer for 3 minutes. Makes 12-15 filled crepes.

NORDEN'S Foodland

When mating food, wine: a few tips

People have been mating wine and food for centuries. Your own favorite combinations may or may not correspond to some of these traditions. Certainly there are no rules but some useful guidelines have been developed.

The first pointer is that some wines are designed to go with food and some are intended to be consumed before or after a meal. The former are traditionally called "table" wines, although they are more versatile than that. They may be white, pink or red, but they share two basic characteristics: they have little or no sweetness, and their flavors are due to natural fermentation of grapes.

The table wine category includes, among others, Burgundy, Chablis, Chianti, some Rhine wine most roses, and also most wines bearing the name of grapes as Riesling and Muscatel. The second group is much more varied and includes wines which often have added flavorings and also dessert wines which may have added flavorings and also dessert wines which may have considerable sweetness derived from natural grape sugar.

It is often said that white table wines go with white meats, red wines with red meats and pink wines with everything. This guideline combined with a little information about the reasons behind it will allow you to follow or depart from it as the occasions arise.

When mating food and wine, we hope the mating of taste and aroma will be a happy marriage for both. The myriad flavors of food are similar to the notes of a scale or the colors of the rainbow. Wine adds a whole new spectrum of possible combinations.

In general, strongly flavored foods call for wines of more pronounced character. Most seafood and some fowl are more delicately flavored than meats like beef and lamb, and therefore call for a more delicate wine. With some important exceptions, white wines are more delicate than red. Hence, most red wines are better matched to most red meats and white wines to most white meats than vice-versa. One doesn't want either partner to a marriage to overwhelm the other.

In general, pink wine (most of which is labeled with the French word for pink, "rose") accompanies the same food as white. American winemakers tend to make pink wines a bit sweeter than whites, but that has nothing directly to do with the color. There are plenty of dry roses. Pink wines do seem to accompany ham better than white or red. Also, some people like rose with organ meats such as calf's liver. Rose can be a delightful wine, and by all means experiment with it, but don't expect it to match everything.

With a little experimentation you will find other pleasing departures from the basic guidelines. Chicken is a good example. If roasted or simply fried as many prefer, it is quite full-flavored. Mating it with a dry red wine (perhaps a Zinfandel) can be very appealing. Many people may drink white wine with chicken only when it is accompanied by a sweet sauce or otherwise very delicate in flavor.

Some meats that are red in color may seem best with a white wine. The particular preparation or method of cooking may give them a more subtle flavor, therefore a less robust wine may be desirable.

If you'd like specific suggestions on mating wine and food, please write to E. & J. Gallo Winery, P. O. Box 1130, Modesto, CA 95353.

Candy-cookie sweet, easy

It is a rare person who is born without a sweet tooth. And this melt-in-your-mouth recipe for Choco Mallow Logs is a winning candy-cookie combination.

Delores Bitner, Homemakers School Home Economist, suggests this recipe as a great choice for a sweet treat to serve guests as well as your family. Choco Mallow Logs are so easy to make—there's no baking involved—even young children can help with the mixing and shaping.

For added color you can use flavored miniature marshmallows and before serving sprinkle additional confectioners' sugar on the rolls.

Because Choco Mallow Logs, developed by the Home Economists in the Kraft Kitchens, are easily transportable; this recipe is perfect to take to school, church dinners and even on picnics. The kids will love them. So why not add this candy-cookie to the menu for your next children's party?

- Choco Mallow Logs
 1 6-oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate pieces
 2 tablespoons margarine
 1 egg, beaten
 3 cups Kraft Miniature Marshmallows
 1 cup chopped nuts
 Confectioner's sugar

Melt chocolate and margarine over low heat. Remove from heat. Add egg; mix well. Cool slightly. Pour chocolate mixture over combined marshmallows and nuts; mix well. Divide mixture in half. On waxed paper sprinkle with confectioner's sugar, shape each half in a roll approximately 8-inch long. Chill several hours. Slice to serve. (May be wrapped in Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap and stored in freezer).

That's a fine kettle of fruit

Aren't you clever putting up your own fruits! No need to let on how easy it is, when you know the tips the experts use. Here are a couple of time and work savers from the people at Fruit-Fresh to make your canning a little bit simpler.

Like most of us who preserve fruit, you probably use a water-bath canner, placing your jars in a few inches of hot water as you fill them. Next time you put your canner (with water) on to heat, put a teakettle on the boil as well. That way, when all your jars are in place in the canner, you can bring the water up to its proper level—about an inch or two over the tops of your jars—with boiling water, and you don't interrupt the heating process already underway.

Being ready beforehand with everything you need saves time, work and helps save the fresh firm goodness of your fruit. Very important to have ready—for canning, or freezing fruit—is Fruit-Fresh. It's formulated to lock in "just picked" freshness and flavor, and help keep fruit from turning brown and mushy. It lets you serve your own home-canned fruit with confidence and pride. Clever home canners rely on Fruit-Fresh. Shouldn't you? Great for fresh-served fruit, too.

Delores Bitner will be demonstrating more ideas with Fruit-Fresh at the upcoming Homemakers School.

Meat-fruit stew a hearty dish

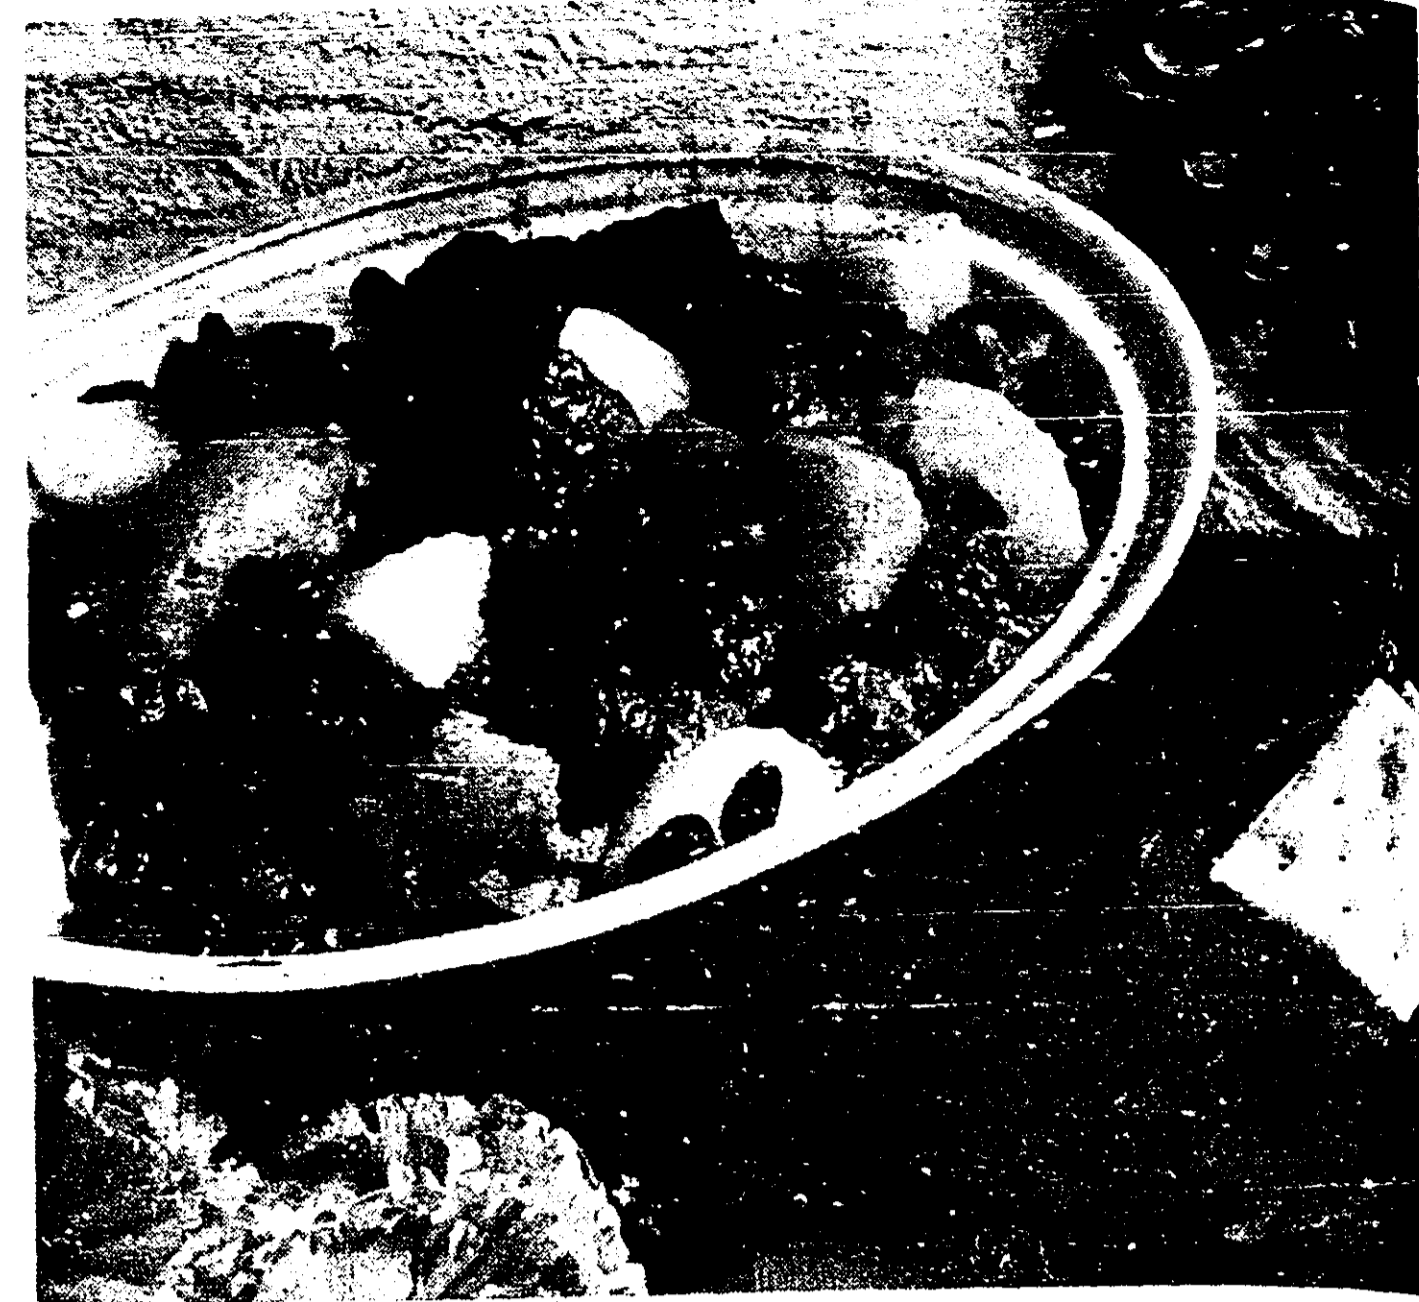

Visitors to Buenos Aires may find it amazingly sophisticated city reminding them of Paris both in appearance and atmosphere. Another surprise may be mealtimes.

The customary South American late dinner hour is even later. Lunch is served about noon and is very substantial meal of many courses. Tea may be served about 5 p.m. and be a very satisfying meal, sometimes including meat. Dinner is not eaten until 10 p.m. or even later.

The Nabisco Test Kitchens have prepared this luscious stew using veal, pork, sweet potatoes, pineapple chunks, and apples. Onions, beef consommé, bay and thyme leaves and green pepper contribute added flavor. Serve for a hearty lunch or a late Argentinian-type dinner.

ARGENTINIAN MEAT AND FRUIT STEW

- 1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 1/2 pounds beef for stew cut in 3/4-inch cubes
- 1 1/2 pounds veal for stew cut in 3/4-inch cubes
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons Blue Bonnet Margarine
- 2 cups chopped onions
- 2 (10 1/2-ounce) cans condensed beef consommé
- 2 tablespoons tomato paste, optional
- 1 teaspoon crushed bay leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 (18-ounce) can sweet potatoes
- 1 (20-ounce) can pineapple chunks, drained

- 2 cups pared, sliced apples
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- PREMIUM SALTINES CRACKERS from NABISCO
- Combine flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper; toss meat until lightly coated. Heat oil and margarine in a Dutch oven. Brown the meat; remove meat and stir in next four ingredients and remaining salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat 1 hour. Add next two ingredients; re-cover and cook 30 minutes. Gently mix in fruits; cook 10 minutes. Serve with Premium Saltine Crackers. Makes (about 1 two-thirds cups) servings.

For variety, add this yam dish to your menus

Yams are commonly thought of as being synonymous with the Fall and Winter holidays—essential to the Thanksgiving menu and other feasts. However, yams are also a great flavor companion to ham and other roasted meats the year around.

Delores Bitner, Homemakers School Home Economist suggests that adding a yam casserole to your regular guest and family menus all year long is an easy and delicious way to add variety to your side dish specialties.

And this recipe for Orange Mallow Yam Bake was developed by the Home Economist in the Kraft Kitchens especially to feature the natural flavors we seem to crave with the advent of Spring. Fresh orange slices contribute a citrus contrast to the canned yams. And miniature marshmallows top off the casserole with just the right amount of sweetness and an attractive finish.

Besides being delicious, Orange Mallow Yam Bake is so easy (it takes only minutes to make it oven-ready), you'll want to fix it often.

Orange Mallow Yam Bake
 2 17-oz. cans yams, drained
 2 oranges, peeled, sliced, cut in half
 1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
 1 1/2 cups Kraft Miniature Marshmallows
 Arrange yams and orange slices in a 1 1/2 quart shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake at 350 degrees, 20 to 25 minutes. Sprinkle with marshmallows. Broil until lightly browned. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Drip coffee makers: the latest rage

Drip coffee makers are all the rage these days and now there's one on the market, the Sunbeam Coffeemaster coffee maker, that has some unusual features designed to produce a consistently good cup of coffee.

The Sunbeam unit heats all the water to 205-Degrees F. and then mixes it with the dry coffee. This produces a brewing effect for a full-bodied, delicious taste.

Another effect is hotter coffee. The 205-Degree cutoff combined with a separate heater that warms the carafe into which the coffee drips and then keeps the finished brew hot produces "piping hot" coffee.

The Sunbeam unit has two separate signal lights, one for the keep-warm heater to indicate the unit is on and one that lights up during the brewing cycle.

The basket has a fine-mesh filter to permit use without paper filters and still make clear coffee. Paper filters can be used if desired to minimize clean-up. The unit makes from four to 10 cups, each a full 5-oz. cup.

Sunbeam's Coffeemaster coffee maker is attractively styled in Harvest Gold with a woodtone face. The glass carafe, which has markings for 4, 6, 8, and 10 cups, has goldtone accents with a coffee brown handle and cover.

Attend the Homemakers School on Feb. 24 at St. Francis de Sales Parish Center sponsored by the Pioneer-Tribune and see the new Coffeemaster coffee maker demonstrated!!!

California: blessed for winemaking

California's unique blessings of soil and climate make it possible for a wine producer to use every style of winemaking from the Rhine in Germany to Chianti in Italy. This differs from European wineries which tend to stick to a basic product; this also calls for a departure from old world labeling methods.

An American wine labeled "Burgandy" is a wine made in the Burgandy region of France, while "Burgandy of California" is a wine made in California in the style associated with the French product.

Just as wine labeling in America has been naturalized so have words associated with wine. A sore of phonetic guide to these follows, showing how they are pronounced in this country.

"Blanc" is the French word for white. Its European pronunciation is similar to what blonde would sound like if you stop just before pronouncing the "nde." In American; "blawnk."

"Vin" is the French word for wine. In Europe it sounds like van stopped just before the final "n." Here, most say it "van;" and, it may be pronounced to rhyme with pin; a great many Americans do, including some purists who speak only French in France.

"Rose" (roe-zay) means pink. "Chablis" sounds like shah-blee. "Sauterne" is the American spelling of a type of wine similar to that of the French wine growing district, Sauternes. It sounds like "soturn." All three are stressed equally on both syllables in French, but Americans usually accent them on the second.

"Champagne" is pronounced in English "sham-pain." The French sound is impossible to render without resorting to phonetic symbols (a little bit like "shah-pon-yuh"), but the English pronunciation is universally accepted.

"Chianti" (kee-ANN-tee) is an Italian word. Rhine (rine) is the name of a German river. The American and European pronunciations differ only slightly.

"Burgundy" (BUR-gun-dee) is an English word; the French name (Bourgogne) from which it is derived sounds something like "boor-gun-yuh," but it is never used to order the wine in this country.

Many varietal wines are made from grapes with European origins. "Riesling" is said REEZ-ling. In American, "Cabernet" is ca-ber-nay, "Sauvignon" is so-van-yohn, and "Chenin" is shen-in.

Zinfandel is said the way it looks, ZIN-fan-del. Although the vine originated in Europe, "Zin" became a famous wine grape right here in America, so that name at least is ours to pronounce as we please.

If you have other questions about wine, please write E. & J. Gallo Winery, Box 1130, Modesto, CA 95353.
