

10th annual CBC drive climaxes Sunday with radio-telethon

The 10th annual fund drive for Cancer, Bay Cliff and Crippled Children (CBC) climaxes Sunday with a radio-telethon.

A relatively new addition to the fund drive, the 2nd annual Bowling Tournament wound up action Saturday night with five being announced. Top places went to Larry Lambert in the men's division and Dorothy Jenerou, in the women's division.

Seventeen talent performances have been scheduled for the Palm Sunday radio-telethon at the St. Francis de Sales Parish Hall beginning at 1 p.m. and running until 9 p.m. In addition, an arts and crafts table, a plant sale, bingo, cake raffles, clowns, pizza, popcorn and ice cream sales, and booths have been scheduled for the day's event.

Mike Brooks, chairman for CBC, said that this year's fund drive proceeded well. "The CBC bowling tournament was even more successful than expected," Brooks said. "Last year they made $569 and we expect more this year."

Brooks added that other committees have done exceptionally well, saying that things are "ready to roll" for the telethon Sunday.

"I have talked with the different committees and they seemed quite satisfied with the way things went. We are definitely going to meet our goals, maybe a little above," Brooks said.

Brooks added that his job was not too demanding and that much of the credit should go to the individual committee members.

"Most of these people have been doing this for several years and don't have to be told what to do," Brooks said. "They just pop a figure head on top and hope he doesn't embarrass them too much."

Publicity Chairwoman Anna Sjogren indicated that while things appear to run smoothly they usually run behind but things should be "up to par" with a few finishing touches remaining.

"For three years we've been over our quota and I know we will be over the quota this year," said Sjogren.

The CBC Radio-Telethon will be aired in color, with the exception of the bowling tournament, for the second time, Sjogren said.

Sjogren also announced the phone number for calling in pledges during the broadcast, 541-6925.

One of the groups scheduled for the talent show is the Munising Vanguard Singers, comprised of 26 men. The repertoire of the Vanguards ranges from semi-classical, patriotic, and religious to show tunes, modern, light and humorous music, according to Sjogren.

Paintings and prints have also been received by Steve Johnson, Karl Krummy, Gary Tomiko, Helen Davenport, Margaret Cantrall, Jean Thomas, Mary Chartier, Norma Johnson and Theresa Neville. The Kiwanis Club has also donated a painting by Al Deane to CBC. The prints and paintings will be up for bid sale.

All paintings and prints will have minimum bids placed on the item by the artist, with no bid being accepted lower than the marked bidding price. Bidding will be open until 6 p.m. on April 3.

In addition to the paintings and prints, craft items have been donated by Carol Stoll, Margaret Peck, Hazel Hughson, Mildred Fulkerth and Joan Risik.

Five basketballs, two footballs and a baseball are scheduled to be auctioned off during the program also.

Basketballs have been autographed by the 1977 Emeralds Freshmen, jr. varsity, and varsity basketball teams; the 1976 girls basketball team, and the Milwaukee Bucks.

Football have been autographed by the Detroit Lions and the Green Bay Packers. An autographed baseball by the Milwaukee Brewer will also be auctioned.

The Radio-Telethon will be seen on Manistique Cable TV Channel 2 and aired over WTIQ Radio.

Milliken told DNR action could cost area $11 million

by Mark Eisenlohr

A local representative of the Upper Peninsula Travel and Recreation Association (UPTRA) has told Governor Milliken that Schoolcraft County stands to lose $11 million next summer because of a fish planting policy adopted by the Department of Natural Resources.

Rick Pawley, district representative for UPTRA, told the governor in a meeting between UPTRA and Milliken two weeks ago in Hancock that salmon planting in the Manistique River has been discontinued by the DNR. As a result, Pawley said, Schoolcraft County could lose an estimated $11 million generated by sports fishermen angling for the popular coho.

Pawley said $11 million figure was determined by using sales taxes of area businesses during the period of spawning, usually in October. That figure is then multiplied by three, which Pawley said is the number of times that the money will turn over in the community.

Reasons for the discontinuation of the planting were listed at Indian-related. Pawley said the fish have been getting caught in the gill nets commonly used by Indian fishermen.

Since the gill nets kill fish, sports fishermen have less fish to catch, and appeal for fishing in the area declines.

Richard Schorffaar, Great Lakes Fishery Supervisor at the Marquette Regional office of the DNR, said that the fish planting was discontinued partly because it was "senseless to plant them (the fish) in the face of Indian fishing."

Schorffaar said that in 1976 some 31,500 coho were planted in the Manistique River, most of which were reared at the Thompson Fish Hatchery.

Comments from Indian officials were unavailable at the time the Pioneer-Tribune went to press.

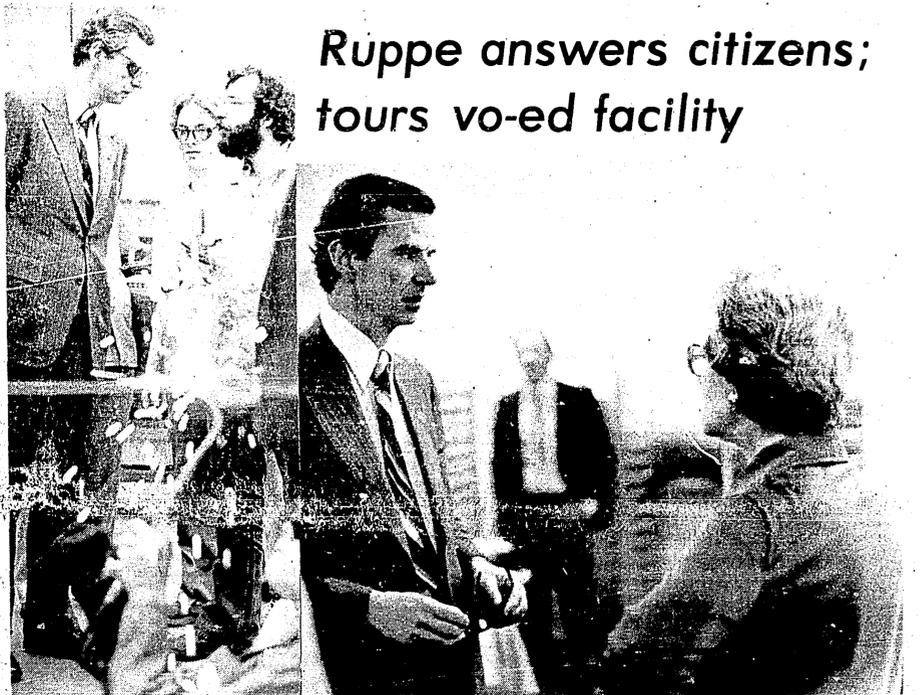

Pawley also indicated in his report to the Governor that tourism revenue for Schoolcraft County will be better this year than last year, with some 75,000 brochures on Big Springs spread throughout the mid-western states.

In a luncheon meeting held atop the six-story Detroit Northern Savings and Loan Building overlooking Houghton and Hancock, Governor Milliken told UPTRA officials and district representatives that tourism continues to be the most promising area for substantial growth in the Upper Peninsula.

The governor noted that tourism was one of the most compatible industries, and was stable and productive even periods of high unemployment.

UPTRA President Keith McLeod of Marquette, who presented the governor with a resolution of appreciation, said that he was highly pleased to learn that Milliken has requested a nearly 17 percent increase in state funds for the association's 1977-78 budget.

He expressed the association's gratitude to Milliken for "continually and vigorously supporting the programs and activities of UPTRA" and added that the support has assisted the organization in increasing its promotional programs by over 76 percent during the past six years.

City sewer plant bids opened on April 7

Bids will be opened 7:30 p.m. April 7 for one of the largest construction projects in the history of Schoolcraft County—a new secondary sewage treatment plant for the city of Manistique.

City Manager Robert Risik told the city council at its regular meeting Monday night that he's expecting plant bids to total 4½ million, with another $325,000 to $375,000 for a televised sewer inspection system and grouting.

"I'm anticipating several dozen bids," Risik said. He said bids will be coming from firms throughout the midwest on the plant planned for the west of the Manistique River.

The project will be funded 100 percent by Environmental Protection Agency, state and HUD money.

Risik also reported on progress on the city's water filtration plant, saying that it was 90 percent completed. The power switchover to the new building was made last Thursday, he said, and lab work is now being done in the new structure. Also, all major equipment has been installed, with more than half of it already in operation.

Improvements to water lines should be completed sometime this summer, he added. Completion of the entire water project is slated for mid-September.

In other business:

—City Manager Risik said he would ask the public safety director to study complaints of excessive speed on Arbutus Avenue east of the state police post and make a recommendation.

—Risik said 1,000 seedlings have been promised by the Soil Conservation Service to replace trees cut down because of Dutch Elm disease.

—Upon request of Councilman Doug Rose, Risik said he would provide a list of names and the amount of loan money each received for house rehabilitation during the operation of the HUD funded Community Block Development program. Rose said he wanted to know if persons renting a house qualified for money under the program.

—Risik said that the lawn around the old water tower will be re-landscaped following damage done by city crews repairing a major city water main during a recent rainstorm.

—In response to a comment from Councilman Bob White about city properties having junk cars, Risik said city ordinances will be enforced during a spring clean-up, and violators with junk cars on their premises will be ticketed.

—The council recommended that Mary Moffat be appointed to the Schoolcraft County Tax Allocation Board. John Prater, Judge of Probate, is charged with making the appointment.

—The council adopted the uniform traffic code for the city. It will take effect on April 11.

Dr. Wehner selected for NMU award

MARQUETTE—Dr. Merle E. Wehner of Manistique is among three Upper Peninsula residents who have been selected to receive Northern Michigan University's "President's Award for Distinguished Citizenship" at NMU's Spring Commencement Luncheon on Saturday, April 30.

Others are Freida Engblom of Iron Mountain and Jayne K. Hiebel of Marquette.

Consisting of an engraved bronze medallion and a citation, the award was established in 1974 by NMU President John X. Jamrich to "recognize publicly individuals who have provided unselfish support of civic, social and cultural activities."

This will bring to 24 the number of U.P. leaders selected for the honor.

Dr. Wehner, a native of Cooks, has practiced medicine in Manistique since 1947 when he established the original Manistique Clinic.

Since that time, he has been extremely active in community affairs. Dr. Wehner is president of the Area-wide Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Schoolcraft County; a member of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Manistique and the First Manistique Corporation; and is a member and a former president of the Manistique Industrial Development Corporation.

He is a former District Governor of Lions International (District 10), a former president of the Manistique Medical Association and former chief of staff of Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital.

In addition, Dr. Wehner is a member of numerous medical associations including the American Medical Society, American Academy of General Practitioners, and the American Psychiatric Society.

A U.S. Army veteran and an active member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, Dr. Wehner is a graduate of Andrews University and received his doctor of medicine degree at Loma Linda (Calif.) University.

He and his wife, Laura, have a son, Nicholas, who resides with them in Manistique, and a daughter, Mrs. Karen Hunter, who lives in Gladstone.

Ruppe spikes rumor of Superior-Manistique link

Unemployment and industrial development were two key areas of concern addressed by Congressman Phil Ruppe during his Friday morning visit to Manistique.

Ruppe pinned his hopes for job development in the U.P. to a bill pending in Congress that would grant investment tax credits for industries that move into rural areas of high unemployment.

However, Ruppe had no specific hope for job development in Schoolcraft County. "It's hard to speak in terms of a specific county," the Congressman said.

Unemployment and industrial development were two primary areas of concern in a recent public opinion survey of Schoolcraft county residents.

Eleventh District Congressman Ruppe, R-Houghton, conducted a two-day, four-county "town meeting" tour of the Upper Peninsula last Friday and Saturday, marking Manistique as the initial stop.

Ruppe told approximately 50 people gathered at the Ramada Inn early Friday morning that a number of proposals currently at various levels of government should be labeled with a "not."

Included was an off road vehicle policy banning ORV's from federal land; a policy that President Carter is now considering. Ruppe said it should not be passed.

"I don't want to do this would be increasing taxes," said Ruppe, pointing to tax increases generated by the popularity of off road vehicles, especially in the Upper Peninsula.

"The whole thing is a big mistake and the President should scrap it," Ruppe added.

The ban on off road vehicles on federal land is being recommended to Carter by the Commission on Environmental Policy. Carter is reportedly going to rule on the policy on April 20.

Ruppe also criticized a $50 rebate proposal by President Carter to stimulate the economy, saying that it was "not as good as a permanent tax cut."

"It's my understanding that the rebate would put money into the people's pocket," Ruppe said. "But I understand that it has been proven that people will tend to take this money to the bank, where as if a permanent tax revision were initiated there would more likely be a tendency to spend the money."

Ruppe said that putting the money in a bank will not help stimulate the economy and that a guaranteed decrease in taxes would be more beneficial.

Ruppe said, however, that the rebate program is "better than no tax program at all."

The question of Federal funding was raised by Manistique Area Schools Superintendent Richard Bonifas, who also commended Ruppe for helping Manistique obtain Upper Great Lakes Regional assistance for the development of the school's vocational satellite center.

Ruppe told Bonifas and the audience that the government should not impose the many requirements that it attaches with federal monies and should give more general assistance aid.

He acknowledged that school administrators at the local level should have more input as to how the money is to be spent.

Project Seafarer was called inefficient by the Congressman. He said that should be reason enough for the communications network not to build anywhere.

Following a brief talk and an hour question and answer session, Ruppe took a tour of the new high school, concentrating on the vocational wing where he talked with teachers and students and seemed generally impressed by the facility.

Ruppe was led through the school by students Tom Broullire, Mia Males and board members Jim Goudreau and William Mueller.

Ruppe also said to the Pioneer-Tribune that a rumored waterway link between Lake Superior and Manistique probably will not become a reality.

"That's been an on and off again rumor," Ruppe said. "I doubt if it would come to pass. That's a public works project without too much long term good after the monies have been spent."

As for the potential for the development of Manistique Harbor, Ruppe said the initiative must come from the local community and not the Federal government.

Scoliosis screening program begins April 5

Manistique Area Schools and the Schoolcraft County Easter Seal Society will be conducting a Scoliosis screening program in area schools beginning on April 5.

Scoliosis is the medical term for curvature of the spine. It refers to an unnatural lateral curvature of the spine that can easily go unnoticed because it occurs in healthy, vigorous, attractive, growing children. If scoliosis goes undetected, it can sometimes lead to more serious conditions at a later time in a child's life.

On April 5, Dr. Gerald Davis from Marquette and his trained Scoliosis staff will conduct a training session in the Manistique area. Dr. Davis will be training responsible individuals, who will examine children in grades 4 through 12 to see if their spines are developing in a normal, healthy manner and specifically looking for signs of Scoliosis.

The screening will be subject to permission of parents or guardians. Consent forms will be sent home by the school for those children whose grades will be screened. Parents will be asked to respond if they do not wish their child to be screened.

The Easter Seal Society is happy to help support this program because curvature of the spine does exist among growing children in Schoolcraft County," said Jill Carter, program coordinator.

Persons who have any questions or are interested in the program can obtain additional information by contacting either of the two county coordinators, Jill Carter (341-5817) or Joan Risik (341-5053).

Enthusiastic people are the kind of people who really make the world go around. Things happen, things are done when one has enthusiasm.

I was reading Norman Vincent Peale's book entitled "Enthusiasm Makes the Difference." I came to this section about the guy who sells pies and I know for a fact that we will stop at a restaurant just because they make home-baked delicious pies.

If you can cook well, you have a rare talent indeed. I'd be first in line to buy a home-baked pie because I'm lacking in time to do these things. Now I'll quote you from Peale's book:

"I spoke one night in Indiana to a large crowd at dinner. Sitting beside me at the head table was the president of the organization that had staged the affair. He was a most interesting and enthusiastic man. We had a stimulating conversation about various matters and I was impressed by his lively manner and alert attention. This was a man who seemed to be enjoying life immensely. He told me he was in what he considered 'the greatest business in the world.' This statement interested me and I asked, 'Just what is the greatest business in the world?'"

"I make pies," he said with a smile, "and what this country needs is good pies, the kind I make."

"I drew him out and discovered that formerly he had been a salesman. He did pretty well on his job but the results were scarcely spectacular. Then one day something happened that was to determine a new career for him. He ate a piece of pie. This epoch-making piece of pie was served to him in a plain little restaurant in a small town where he had stopped for lunch. Never had he tasted pie like this! It was a delicious work of art. On his rounds the following week, he stopped in again. The pie was just as delicious. This routine went on for some weeks. Then one day the pie turned out to be just another piece of pie: tasteless and commonplace. So he asked the restaurant owner what had happened. The man explained that the woman who baked the pies was taken ill and could no longer deliver.

"To my dinner companion, this news came as a major disaster. No more of those delicious pies! On his way home, still shaken by the news, he remembered that his wife had culinary skills. As a matter of fact, she used to bake superbly, but recently she had fallen back on the bakeshops for desserts.

"Whereupon, my enterprising friend persuaded his wife to bake a half-dozen assorted pies. He sampled one and it was great. He took them to a local restaurant and invited the proprietor to sample them. The restaurateur bought all six and ordered more. Pies in bakeshops were then selling for 39 cents but my friend thought his were worth 75 cents and asked for that sum. The restaurateur said the price was high, but not if it kept customers coming back. The home-baked pies were an instant success and the man's wife went into the venture full time. Business grew so rapidly that additional helpers soon were required. Ultimately the couple had a large pie plant that delivered fresh baked goods each morning to all the restaurants.

"The man beamed. His voice vibrant with conviction, he assured me that the original homemade quality and the personal touch still distinguished his product. Being a born pie lover myself, to the distress of my waistline, I shared his enthusiasm. That night when I reached home I made ready for bed, a knock came. There was a bellboy holding two pies that my friend had thoughtfully sent; one apple, the other cherry and every bit as delicious as I expected them to be.

"Here was a man who really tried enthusiasm in his job and with an amazing result. I gathered from others that his enthusiasm, triggered by the excellent pies, extended to the community at large in which he took considerable leadership. He found that enthusiasm makes the difference, a real difference, whether for pies or whatever your commodity happens to be." Unquote.

EARLY TREES AND SHRUBS

Trees and shrubs that arrive while the ground is still frozen can present a problem. However, with proper care these plants can be kept healthy up to a month before planting.

Trees and shrubs are marketed in three basic ways: packaged or bareroot, balled and burlapped, or in containers. Each form requires slightly different holding techniques. In all cases, the goal is to prevent the plant's root system from drying out or freezing.

Packaged plants should be removed from their packages and inspected as soon as they arrive. Any damaged or dead parts should be cut off.

If the temperatures is above freezing, these plants may be held one or two days in a shaded, cool spot. To prevent dehydration, the root system should be covered with damp moss, peat, wood chips, leaves or other organic material.

If planting must be delayed for more than two days, the plants must be heeled in. To heel them in, dig a small trench in a shaded area, put the root system into the trench, cover it with a suitable organic material and water.

This arrangement should keep the plant in good condition up to a month if it is periodically checked and watered as necessary to keep the roots from drying out.

If packaged or bareroot plants arrive in freezing weather, they should not be put outdoors. A shelter or garage where the temperatures will not fall below 40 degrees F is best. Temperatures above 40 degrees may cause premature budding or flowering. Again, the plants should be covered with organic material and watered as necessary.

Balled and burlapped plants can often be held a few days without any special care. The soil ball usually holds enough moisture to protect the roots from dehydration. Do not open the ball itself until planting because this may damage the roots. Check the soil to make sure it is not excessively dry. Water if necessary.

If balled and burlapped plants must be held for more than three days, cover the ball with organic material and water it periodically to prevent dehydration.

If these plants arrive in freezing weather, they may be kept outdoors if the dirt ball is thickly covered with mulch to protect the roots from freezing. Because the plant is dormant at such temperatures, it will not need watering. When the weather warms up, however, check the soil water if it's dry.

Plants in containers can be handled in much the same way as balled and burlapped plants. Before planting, water thoroughly and removed the container. This allows you to check the roots for abnormalities before planting. If the roots are extremely curled and twisted, you should exchange the plant for one with normal root growth.

Cub Scouts and family members of Pack 402 enthusiastically watched and cheered at the annual Pinewood Derby that was held at the High School Gym Wednesday night. Officiating at the evening's races were members of the Peninsula Stock Car Association: Leroy Sovey, Bob Jones and Russ Ross, all of Escanaba.

Three months ago the scouts were given a block of wood, four plastic wheels and axles. From these parts, the scouts and their helpers made pinewood cars that they raced down an incline track.

Three craftsmanship trophies were awarded to the boys who did the most with the material in the car kit. These winners were: first, Tom Peters; second, Karl Heinrichsen; third, Bill Young.

Individual winners of the den races

were: Den One, Carl Hubble; Den Two, Don McPhail; Den Three, David Zenter; Den Four, Tom Williamson; Den Five, Tony Boyer; Den Six, Richard Koski; Den Seven, Jim Rasmussen; and consolation winner, Steve Godlewski.

The Pack championship run-off was won by David Zenter, with Jim Rasmussen, second and Carl Hubble, third. The three winners and Steve Godlewski, who won fourth place, and Richard Koski, who won fifth, will go to Escanaba on Saturday, April 2 to compete in the Red Buck District competition at the Teamsters Hall, beginning at 2 p.m.

The next Pack meeting will be held at the Manistique High School on Wednesday, April 27.

Group seeks to organize singles

Is there a need and a desire to form a club to offer support and avenues of growth to single persons and single parents living in the Manistique area?

That is what one group of persons is trying to determine. Initial indications are that there is a need for a club of this sort in the Manistique area.

Members of the group currently feel that by-laws from the Singles and Solos Club in Escanaba best fit their needs.

Information will be gathered in the future from that club, to assist the club in Manistique.

Interim officers have been elected and include: president, Pat Housley; vice-president, Mary Moffat; secretary Sheila Clement; and treasurer, Ron Patrick.

According to a release from the club, membership is composed of persons who are "single by reason of death of a spouse, married, who will work together for their mutual benefit to improve their own personal lives, to resolve their special problems, and see to the well-being of their children."

By offering support in social and educational ways, the group hopes to assure the healthy maturity of both child and adult.

In addition, programs of group activities in which participation will be geared to satisfying experiences; providing children with a sense of shared experience and normal relationships; providing interchange between single parents and offer assistance on matters relating to their special problems; and to further understanding among single persons and the community they live in.

"The single person in our society is isolated to some degree. If a parent, the difficulties of providing for both ourselves and our children a reasonable, normal equivalent of family life, are increased by the isolation.

"Therefore, through the exchange of ideas between a handful of single persons, and with the aid of several agencies of Schoolcraft County, we have formed this organization here in our community to support one another," the release states.

The new club will be operating under an advisory committee to be comprised of members of the Community Action Agency, Ministerial Association, mental health dept., social services dept. and attorneys in the Manistique area.

Interested persons may attend a few social events before deciding to become a member. The next meeting is scheduled for April 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the high school.

A fish fry has also been planned for April 1, at 6 p.m. at the Fireside Inn for members of the Singles and Solo Club and interested persons. Contact Pat Housley (341-6761) or Liza Nelson (341-551) if interested in attending the fish fry.

MARCH 31-APRIL 9

Senior Citizens

by Eileen Males

Enthusiastic people are the kind of people who really make the world go around. Things happen, things are done when one has enthusiasm.

I was reading Norman Vincent Peale's book entitled "Enthusiasm Makes the Difference." I came to this section about the guy who sells pies and I know for a fact that we will stop at a restaurant just because they make home-baked delicious tasting pies. I think of all of our senior ladies who could go into a "pie" business because, man, can our gals bake! So often the ones who have these talents usually say "There's nothing I can do."

If you can cook well, you have a rare talent indeed. I'd be first in line to buy a home-baked pie because I'm lacking in time to do these things. Now I'll quote you from Peale's book:

"I spoke one night in Indiana to a large crowd at dinner. Sitting beside me at the head table was the president of the organization that had staged the affair. He was a most interesting and enthusiastic man. We had a stimulating conversation about various matters and I was impressed by his lively manner and alert attention. This was a man who seemed to be enjoying life immensely. He told me he was in what he considered "the greatest business in the world." This statement interested me and I asked, "Just what is the greatest business in the world?"

"I make pies," he said with a smile, "and what this country needs is good pies, the kind I make."

"I drew him out and discovered that formerly he had been a salesman. He did pretty well on his job but the results were scarcely spectacular. Then one day something happened that was to determine a new career for him. He ate a piece of pie. This epoch-making piece of pie was served to him in a plain little restaurant in a small town where he had stopped for lunch. Never had he tasted pie like this! It was a delicious work of art. On his rounds the following week, he stopped in again. The pie was just as delicious. This routine went on for some weeks. Then one day the pie turned out to be just another piece of pie: tasteless and commonplace. So he asked the restaurant owner what had happened. The man explained that the woman who baked the pies was taken ill and could no longer deliver.

"To my dinner companion, this news came as a major disaster. No more of those delicious pies! On his way home, still shaken by the news, he remembered that his wife had culinary skills. As a matter of fact, she used to bake superbly, but recently she had fallen back on the bakeshops for desserts.

"Whereupon, my enterprising friend persuaded his wife to bake a half-dozen assorted pies. He sampled one and it was great. He took them to a local restaurant and invited the proprietor to sample them. The restaurateur bought all six and ordered more. Pies in bakeshops were then selling for 39 cents but my friend thought his were worth 75 cents and asked for that sum. The restaurateur said the price was high, but not "if it kept customers coming back." The home baked pies were an instant success and the man's wife went into the venture full time. Business grew so rapidly that additional helpers soon were required. Ultimately the couple had a large pie plant that delivered fresh baked goods each morning to all the restaurants.

"The man beamed. His voice vibrant with conviction, he assured me that the original homemade quality and the personal touch still distinguished his product. Being a born pie lover myself, to the distress of my waistline, I shared his enthusiasm. That night when I reached my room and made ready for bed, a knock came. There was a bellboy holding two hot pies that my friend had thoughtfully sent; one apple, the other cherry and every bit as delicious as I expected them to be.

"Here was a man who really tried enthusiasm in his job and with an amazing result. I gathered from others that his enthusiasm, triggered by the excellent pies, extended to the community at large in which he took considerable leadership. He found that enthusiasm makes the difference, a real difference, whether for pies or whatever your commodity happens to be." Unquote.

EARLY TREES AND SHRUBS

Trees and shrubs that arrive while the ground is still frozen can present a problem. However, with proper care these plants can be kept healthy up to a month before planting.

Trees and shrubs are marketed in three basic ways: packaged or bareroot, balled and burlapped, or in containers. Each form requires slightly different holding techniques. In all cases, the goal is to prevent the plant's root system from drying out or freezing.

Packaged plants should be removed from their packages and inspected as soon as they arrive. Any damaged or dead parts should be cut off.

If the temperatures is above freezing, these plants may be held one or two days in a shaded, cool spot. To prevent dehydration, the root system should be covered with damp moss, peat, wood chips, leaves or other organic material.

If planting must be delayed for more than two days, the plants must be heeled in. To heel them in, dig a small trench in a shaded area, put the root system into the trench, cover it with a suitable organic material and water.

This arrangement should keep the plant in good condition up to a month if it is periodically checked and watered as necessary to keep the roots from drying out.

If packaged or bareroot plants arrive in freezing weather, they should not be put outdoors. A shelter or garage where the temperatures will not fall below 40 degrees F is best. Temperatures above 40 degrees may cause premature budding or flowering. Again, the roots should be covered with organic material and watered as necessary.

Balled and burlapped plants can often be held a few days without any special care. The soil ball usually holds enough moisture to protect the roots from dehydration. Do not open the ball itself until planting because this may damage the roots. Check the soil to make sure it is not excessively dry. Water if necessary.

If balled and burlapped plants must be held for more than three days, cover the ball with organic material and water it periodically to prevent dehydration.

If these plants arrive in freezing weather, they may be kept outdoors if the dirt ball is thickly covered with mulch to protect the roots from freezing. Because the plant is dormant at such temperatures, it will not need watering. When the weather warms up, however, check the soil water if it's dry.

Plants in containers can be handled in much the same way as balled and burlapped plants. Before planting, water thoroughly and removed the container. This allows you to check the roots for abnormalities before planting. If the roots are extremely curled and twisted, you should exchange the plant for one with normal root growth.

Cub Scouts and family members of Pack 402 enthusiastically watched and cheered at the annual Pinewood Derby that was held at the High School Gym Wednesday night. Officiating at the evening's races were members of the Peninsula Stock Car Association: Leroy Sovey, Bob Jones and Russ Ross, all of Escanaba.

Three months ago the scouts were given a block of wood, four plastic wheels and four axles. From these parts, the scouts and their helpers made pinewood cars that they raced down an incline track.

Three craftsmanship trophies were awarded to the boys who did the most with the material in the car kit. These winners were: first, Tom Peters; second, Karl Henriksen; third, Bill Young.

Individual winners of the den races

were: Den One, Carl Hubble; Den Two, Don McPhail; Den Three, David Zenter; Den Four, Tom Williamson; Den Five, Tony Boyer; Den Six, Richard Koski; Den Seven, Jim Rasmussen; and consolation winner, Steve Godlewski.

The Pack championship run-off was won by David Zenter, with Jim Rasmussen, second and Carl Hubble, third. The three winners and Steve Godlewski, who won fourth place, and Richard Koski, who won fifth, will go to Escanaba on Saturday, April 2 to compete in the Red Buck District competition at the Teamsters Hall, beginning at 2 p.m.

The next Pack meeting will be held at the Manistique High School on Wednesday, April 27.

Group seeks to organize singles

Is there a need and a desire to form a club to offer support and avenues of growth to single persons and single parents living in the Manistique area?

That is what one group of persons is trying to determine. Initial indications are that there is a need for a club of this sort in the Manistique area.

Members of the group currently feel that by-laws from the Singles and Solos Club in Escanaba best fit their needs.

Information will be gathered in the future from that club, to assist the club in Manistique.

Interim officers have been elected and include: president, Pat Housley; vice-president, Mary Moffat; secretary Sheila

Clement; and treasurer, Ron Patrick.

According to a release from the club, membership is composed of persons who are "single by reason of death of a spouse, married, who will work together for their mutual benefit to improve their own personal lives, to resolve their special problems, and see to the well-being of their children."

By offering support in social and educational ways, the group hopes to assure the healthy maturity of both child and adult.

In addition, programs of group activities in which participation will be geared to satisfying experiences; providing children with a sense of shared experience and normal relationships; providing inter-organization between single parents and offer assistance on matters relating to their special problems; and to further understanding among single persons and the community they live in.

"The single person in our society is isolated to some degree. If a parent, the difficulties of providing for both ourselves and our children a reasonable, normal equivalent of family life, are increased by the isolation.

"Therefore, through the exchange of ideas between a handful of single persons, and with the aid of several agencies of Schoolcraft County, we have formed this organization here in our community to support one another," the release states.

The new club will be operating under an advisory committee to be comprised of members of the Community Action Agency, Ministerial Association, mental health dept., social services dept. and attorneys in the Manistique area.

Interested persons may attend a few social events before deciding to become a member. The next meeting is scheduled for April 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the high school.

A fish fry has also been planned for April 1, at 6 p.m. at the Fireside Inn for members of the Singles and Solo Club and interested persons. Contact Pat Housley (341-6761) or Liza Nelson (341-551) if interested in attending the fish fry.

Indian health care needs studied

The Sault Ste. Marie Tribe of the Chippewa Indians is launching a comprehensive study of the health care needs of Indians in the eastern Upper Peninsula. Counties included are: Chippewa, Mackinac, Luce, Schoolcraft, Alger, Delta and Marquette.

The study, funded by a $55,000 grant from the Indian Health Service, will be conducted in conjunction with the University of Michigan's School of Public Health.

One priority of the study is to review and assess existing health services available to all Indians in the area. Detailed demographic and geographic health profiles of each of the seven eastern counties of the Upper Peninsula will be developed to determine whether Indian health care needs are being met by existing services.

The projected completion date of the study is July 1978. Results and recommendations will be submitted by the Chippewa Tribe of Sault Ste. Marie to Congress.

Diet and dental caries

Whether you develop dental caries does not depend entirely on what you eat. But because your diet is the one major factor involved in the development of caries that you can control, it is very important.

According to Rachel Schemmel, professor of human nutrition at Michigan State University, a well-balanced diet that provides plenty of calcium and vitamin D and some flouride is important to keep teeth healthy and enamel strong. However, even well-developed and strong teeth get caries, she points out. This may happen because three factors are involved in dental caries; tooth structure, which is determined genetically, the presence of bacteria in the mouth, and diet.

Visitors restricted due to flu

Hi everyone, Easter is well on its way and it looks like maybe a little bit of spring will be coming with it. This coming Sunday will be the big event for C.B.C so we can look forward to watching many talented people from our area perform for this worthy cause. I for one will be watching and I'm sure everyone here will be too.

It has been pretty quiet around here this past week as we have had visitor restrictions due to the flu. Our Bingo Volunteers had to cancel their afternoon event last week and we had to have bingo without them.

With the help of Mrs. Jasmin and Norma Houghton, we managed to carry on as usual with treats for the day provided by the Gulliver Favor Committee which has chosen the month of March to provide treats for bingo day. The treats were good, gals, and I'm sure glad you brought them in as it really made our day.

Our V.F.W birthday party went very well this month and a very large group was entertained.

The United Methodist Church women sponsored a St. Patrick's Day party and served a very nice luncheon for the patients. A sing-a-long and bingo game were held and of course everyone enjoyed that. The ladies also donated several bingo prizes. Many thanks to both groups.

Birthday greetings for the first two weeks of April go to Annis Fox, April 6; and Delia Vassau, April 12. Have a nice week everyone.

The Big Bay de Noc Board of Education has two vacancies to be filled in the annual school election on June 13.

The terms of Carl Van Remortal and LaVina Bennette are expiring. School officials remind voters that the last day to register for the election is Monday, May 16, at 5 p.m.

Prospective candidates may obtain nominating petitions from the school office or by contacting Carol Morrison, 644-2309. Petitions must be filed with Morrison, board secretary, by 4 p.m. Monday, April 11.

At recent school board meetings, the board revealed that it may be faced with additional borrowing to meet financial obligations.

In action taken at a special March 1 meeting, the board moved to centralize special education services in Manistique for students in grades 9-12, with the intermediate school district providing services.

A request for payment of medical bills was heard on a student who was injured at school, but no action was taken. The board asked the superintendent to check into the necessity of the garages at Cooks and Garden continuing to have electricity, and to investigate items stored there that may be sold by bids to the public.

Memoirs

By Mark Eisenlohr

THIS IS THE LAST PICTURE owned by Ed Ekdahl of Manistique. It shows the Western Lumber Company, which later became the Goodwill Brothers box factory.

1895 grad list

I have received some interesting comments on last week's column. One of which was from Mrs. Helen Olsen who corrected some information contained in the story.

It seems that the building that currently stands next to Curran's is not the old opera house, which I had believed it was.

The opera house was located just north of the building which stands next to Curran's, which incidentally, was the building that housed the roller skating and indoor baseball referred to in last week's column.

In talking with Mr. Dehlin last week, he showed me a list of names contained on a graduation list for the eighth grade in 1895. I didn't have enough room last week to run them so I'll mention them this week.

They are: Addie Ashford, Mattie Aiken, Florence Atkins, Fred Benluy, Elsie Brown, Grace Cady, Maggie Costello, Alice Coffey, Delia Donais, Jesse Davidson, Kati Kearus, Joe Kimball, Kittie Mutart, Gertrude Orr, Lillie Orr, Nora Olmstead, Fred Paulsen, Kittie Wells, Laura Williams and Myrtle Nicholson.

The list was difficult to read and some of the names may possibly be misspelled but they all graduated into the high school on June 26, 1895.

In talking with Mr. Ed Ekdahl this past week I learned that it was he who had been skating with Mr. Dehlin on South Manistique and broke his nose.

Lawrence Gorshe brought me a list of acts that appeared in Manistique at one time.

Some of the vaudeville acts included song and dance teams, acrobat and contortion teams, trapeze-roman ring teams, strong man acts, escape artists using straight jackets and handcuffs, magic and illusions, quartette and solo singers and slack wire walkers.

He also mentioned one act, a hypnotic act, in which the hypnotists would place a subject in a trance and display the subject in the window of Rosenthal's Store (now Lauermans) for two days and two nights, and when awakened, had no knowledge of what transpired during those two days!!

Recently Robert LaLonde of Stephenson sent me some caricatures of prominent men in the Manistique area at the turn of the century. They were drawn by cartoonists belonging to the Newspaper Cartoonists' Association of Michigan. Beginning next week we will feature one with each column.

Turn of the century 'Indian Town'

The accompanying reproduction of a map drawn by Agner Dehlin of Indian Lake shows the general layout of Indian Town as it appeared some 70 years ago.

Dehlin said that he used to deliver groceries to residents of the town and feels the map is fairly accurate. All the roads within the town were sand. In addition, no person owned property and thus no taxes were paid.

Indian Town was located on the west side of the river near where Soo Edison maintains an office.

Numbers on the map represent houses believed to be occupied by the following people:

- 1-Robert Casemore; 2-John Sjolberg; 3-John Petersen; 4-Andrew Tennant; 5-Billingham; 6-Fugerie; 7-Swanson; 8-Tebo; 9-Herman; 10-Sideback; 11-Swartstrom; 12-Gotberg; 13-Hutchinson; 14-Charles Turk; 15-Sjolberg; 16-Pete

- Lindenthal; 17-Helmika; 18-Robinson; 19-Anderson; 20-Adolf Leney; 21-"Bling" Isaccs; 22-Bert Isaccs; 23-John Williams; 24-Adolf Johnson; 25-Williamson; 26-Frank Anderson.

- 27-Abra Hanson; 28-Pete Hyhland; 29-John Petersen; 30-Schofield; 31-Fred Davis; 32-Knutson; 33-Nels Nordville; 34-Fred Nordville; 35-Hod Davis; 36-Fred Johnson; 37-Lundberg; 38-John Olson; 39-Charlie Knoph; 40-Knutting; 41-Pete Andersen; 42-Ness; 43-George Smith; 44-Guan; 45-

- August Carlson; 46-John Carlson; 47-Sett-ergren; 48-William Johnson; 49-Sundell; 50-Johnson.

- 51-Gus Swanson; 52-Ness; 53-Carlson; 54-John Palm; 55-Carlson; 56-P.M. Peterson; 57-John Knoph; 58-Paulson; 59-John Kline, Sr.; 60-John Kline, Jr.; 61-Erickson; 62-Hough; 63-Nord; 64-Lindreen; 65-Smith and later, John Leonard; 66-Ox-lund; 67-John Little; 68-John Norton; and 70-Chippewa Ave. (number 69 was inadvertently skipped).

The Voice of Schoolcraft County Since 1876

Seafarer veto is good news

Governor Milliken's decision to exercise his veto over project Seafarer was good news to the majority of the residents of the U.P. The overwhelming opposition to the project has been obvious for many months and the only question we have is why the Governor waited so long before making a decision.

Congressman Phil Ruppe saw that the project was doomed many months ago and has since lead the fight in Washington to put an end to it. Just recently, Ruppe was testifying before the House Armed Services Committee in the hope that the Seafarer funds would be dropped from the committee's budget request.

During this past fall's presidential campaign, both Cong. Ruppe and his Democratic challenger Fran Brouillette, elicited promises from their party's candidates that Project Seafarer would not be built in the Upper Peninsula if the majority of the people opposed its construction. The Defense Department, under both the Ford and Carter administrations, stated that Seafarer would not be built in Michigan if Governor Milliken opposes construction of the system.

The Governor has now taken a stand. Opposition to the project in Congress is growing. It is high time that the Navy was told, by either the Department of Defense of the President to withdraw from the U.P. and return to the drawing board.

The Navy has had 19 years of research and has spent countless millions of dollars on first Project Sanguine and now Project Seafarer.

During all of that time, the viability of either project has not been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Armed Services Subcommittee. In its report issued last month, the subcommittee recommended that the project be halted until it can be established that the "system satisfies all operational requirements of our submarine forces."

The time has come for the Navy to cut out the public relations campaign, cut out the wasteful spending of tax money and move on to developing a system that will work.

We are in complete agreement that the U.P. could be put to better use than the construction of Project Seafarer. Governor Milliken should be congratulated for finally taking a stand on this project and we urge that he continue his efforts to see that his veto power is upheld.

Income Tax: beyond cussing and discussing

With the April 15 income tax deadline fast approaching, cussing and discussing of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has reached a new peak.

For as long as we have had an income tax in this country, taxpayers have been devising schemes that would eliminate their tax burdens. The government has sanctioned many tax dodges for wealthy individuals and for big businesses in the form of tax credits and depletion allowances, but the individual has had to fend for himself. Often, this has meant that the individual who is least able to pay has borne the largest tax burden.

Hope, however, is at hand for those who have found God and are willing to use religion as the ultimate tax shelter.

A minister in Modesto, Calif., says that almost any American can legally avoid paying federal income taxes in his earnings. All the wage earner has to do is become a minister and found a church; and, according to the Reverend Kirby J. Hensley, head of the Universal Life Church, there are few difficulties involved. All it takes, says Hensley, is a $2 one-shot fee, $24 a year for a church charter and a few pointers on how to get a home-made parish recognized by the tax man.

"Moneysworth," the consumer newsletter, gives the details of this "religion to riches" scheme. Hensley's outfit, which won a California court case upholding its legal status as a church and its right to tax exemption, is not much more than an ecclesiastical diploma mill conferring the title of minister on virtually anyone who drops Hensley a letter containing the required two bucks. His standards are not much more stringent for granting a church charter; after a minister has practiced for a year, during which he has filed quarterly reports of weekly services, he certifies to Hensley that his church has both a secretary and treasurer and a congregation of at least three; Hensley then mails the minister a charter for his own church. The minister need not give up his present job. In order to keep the charter in effect, the minister mails Hensley the monthly $2 dues and continues to hold services. (According to the baiding, bespectacled Hensley, in the last 13 years, he's chartered more than 10,000 churches and ordained about 3.5 million ministers.)

After receiving the charter, the minister takes the document and records showing

Publisher's Corner

by Frank Senger

that he's been olding weekly services attended by at least three people down to his local IRS office. He asks to file for exemption number 501C3.

Spokesman for the IRS are reluctant to endorse this scheme, but Moneysworth found no one who would say that it is illegal. Rod Yound of IRS told Moneysworth, "We look at each case individually."

The next step in the path to tax-free living may smack of lunacy, but it's sane indeed: the minister indicates to the IRS that he's taken a vow of poverty. He then closes all accounts held in his name and transfers his assets to his church's ownership. His paycheck from his regular job must also be deposited in his church's accounts. Further, he will not pay himself a salary as minister - a minister's salary is as taxable as a bricklayer's. Instead, his church provides him and his family a tax-free "allowance" to live on, and what the IRS calls a "parsonage allowance" to pay either his rent or his house payments and maintenance. If there's any cash left over, the IRS insists that it go for "church business."

But that need not limit the canny minister. He will, of course, have to buy books, subscribe to magazines, travel and attend movies and plays, all to give himself the knowledge he will need to function as a modern, well-informed minister. In addition, he may need to establish a place of retreat where he and his parishioners go to recharge their spiritual batteries; the fact that he may choose to locate his retreat in Easthampton in August, or Key West in February, or Las Vegas anytime, does not alter the fact that it can be treated as a religious expense for legitimate "church business."

A vow of poverty could make a person downright rich.

Money talks.

Special thanks to Dr. Merle E. Wehner, Mayor Frank Hewitt, and Rep. Charles Varnum, who took time out from their busy schedules to come down to Lakeview Lanes on March 26 and say a few words to our bowlers, the people who came to watch and cheer, and our video-tape which will be aired on Palm Sunday, April 3 - Ch. 2, Cable TV, Manistique, at 11 a.m. and 9 p.m. Thanks to Gerald Renk of Mstq. Cable TV for all of his time spent in taping the program.

We gratefully acknowledge and thank the tournament's "Poster People" who took time out for CBC: Roy Bodette, American Cancer Society; Lorraine Flusek, Crippled Children and Adults (Easter Seals); and Anita Meier, Bay Cliff Health Camp. Thanks, also, to Ray Krusic, owner of Lakeview Lanes, who donated the bowling fees to the bowlers for the CBC Finals.

Thank you to the many area businessmen who donated prizes to our finalists and to our four auto dealers who donated the four trophies to be presented on Palm Sunday during our radio-telethon from St. Francis De Sales Parish Hall.

Last - but not least - THANK YOU BOWLERS! through your generosity, goodwill and enjoyment of bowling - we have a new facet of CBC. To quote Bill Hackney, "Manistique's bowlers are having fun giving, so that others can go on living to have fun." Unquote.

We sincerely THANK YOU one and all. Anna J.M. Sjogren, Publicity Chairman CBC, 1977

A tale about a cat with a shaggy tail

Seul Choix is not only the name of a Pointe. It is also the name of a cat.

Yes, this is yet another pet story. But take heart in the fact that it is not a shaggy dog story. It is, rather, a tale of a feline with a shaggy tail.

Seul Choix, whose name in English means "only choice," was appropriately named because she was the last of four six-week-old kittens that were dumped in the parking lot of the Ramada Inn last summer.

One by one, employees at the Ramada and passersby mercifully took a kitten home. But until one nice young couple discovered her, no one could see past Seul Choix's outwardly dumb, tabby appearance.

The unexpected intelligence of the creature was evident the very beginning. Instead of quietly going with the nice young couple, this black-striped creature hid under a bush until dragged out, fighting all the way.

One learns over an extended period of time not to generalize about cats. The lesson took hold one fall evening when 10-week-old Seul Choix leaped into a bath tub full of hot water and screamed for someone to critique her breast stroke.

Not only are cats supposed to loathe water, they are not known for doing the breast stroke. Even awkwardly.

Fortunately, a soft-hearted, 75-pound male Airedale who also lived in the house was a gently swimming critic. He consoled her after she was removed from the tub and tried to lap her furry body dry with his big, friendly tongue.

An unseemly camaraderie between the two creatures grew from that day on, even though Seul Choix acquired a rude habit of chomping on the huge dog's rear legs.

Side Tracks

by Arnold Mackowiak

Come to think of it, she had a similar display of appreciation for her kind master, nipping at the back of his legs while he walked down a hallway or went into a closet.

A few months later, when she began to cry out the window at the nice young couple taking the big Airedale for a walk, it was assumed that she merely desired her freedom.

Once allowed outdoors, however, she followed her great canine companion (who was bored with her by now) around the block as he made his appointed rounds.

It was no fluke. Time and again, Seul Choix was let out with the dog to go for a walk and the foursome of humans and animals stayed together for a nightly journey in the neighborhood and returned home together.

No, cats are not supposed to go for walks with dogs and humans. But Seul Choix is different.

Why, one time she even turned off water from the kitchen sink tap-on COMMAND, yet. Perhaps, though, such incidents are best left unmentioned. They would not win favor among the human intelligentsia.

Dear Cousin Al, cut the sarcasm

Dear Cousin Al: Your last letter was pretty sarcastic. You said if I couldn't get mugged in Detroit, the least I could do was get shot by a Mafia hireling. You said you watch TV, so you know big-city newsmen are always fighting with crooks.

Al, I know you wrote that letter after watching that new TV show, "The Andros Tapes." I know you were trying to be funny when you asked if I had Jimmy Hoffa hidden in my roltop desk. I know you think those TV shows are a lot of baloney and that writing for a big newspaper is no more dangerous than clerking in a Kmart.

I'll admit I haven't yet used information received from a reliable source to black-mail a congressional subcommittee into reopening an investigation into the CIA's involvement in the disappearance of Judge Crater. In fact, I am still searching for a wino to be my reliable source.

But that doesn't mean there is no adventure in my new job, Al. It doesn't mean I never risk my skin to get a column written before the presses roll. You should have seen me the other day.

I was seated at my typewriter in the Free Press Building. I face the window. Suddenly a burly guy in dirty clothes brushed by me and opened the window wide. This was a freezing day in February, Al. I was instantly buffeted by a terrible wind which chilled my bones and flapped the paper in my typewriter, flap, flap, flap.

All around me reporters abandoned their desks and fled to a safe corner of the room to cover out of the wind. But I stayed at my desk and watched investigatively as the burly man climbed out into the wind, two inches from certain death. The noise of traffic came in on the buffeting wind.

"What is going on here?" I asked the burly man.

"I am washing the window," he said, snapping his leather harness to hooks on each side of the window. Obviously, he had been expected.

It was apparent that the burly man expected me to desert my typewriter and join the corner coverers. I could sense his surprise when I remained at my post.

The wind was buffeting my hair in every direction and at times I could not see through my forelock. The paper in my typewriter kept going flap, flap, flap ne'er ceasing, constantly resisting the pressure of the typewriter keys.

But I kept right on typing, Al. You would

by Jim Fitzgerald

have been proud to see me. I was working on an important column about the thickness of the carpet in Sen. Joe Mack's office. My deadline was near. There was no way I was going to quit.

The burly man had to close the window while he washed it. Fortunately for me, he had a slow, deliberate squeegee. This gave me blessed respite from the buffeting wind. I was able to regain my composure and prepare myself for the renewed onslaught when he raised the window again to re-enter the room.

The buffeting was worse than ever, and the flap, flap, flap was louder. But I continued typing and, as the burly man closed the window again, he looked my way. In his eyes I saw grudging respect.

"I will not be buffeted," I said.

"You are pretty brave for being so unburly," he said.

It was a splendid moment, Al. Right then I knew I had been right to move to a big-city newspaper, despite the dangers. And don't think my only risk is being buffeted. There is also the risk of being squeezed to death between the doors of a Free Press elevator.

Three elevators stop at our floor. Their arrival is signaled by lights which seldom work, so you never know which doors are going to open. The doors remain open for only one second.

You can see the danger, Al, and the gamble. If you have guessed right, and are waiting in front of the right elevator, one second is enough time to jump inside. But if you have guessed wrong, you must run several feet to reach the open doors.

Sometimes you make it, and sometimes you get horribly squeezed. Towards use the stairs. No one has even seen me on the stairway. Adventure is my life.

So, Al, don't write me any more sarcastic letters about the dangers of newspapering in the big city. All the heroes are not on TV.

What is happening to junior high curriculum?

Sixth graders planning to attend the seventh grade at the central facility next fall have been given lists of required courses and optional courses for the 1977-78 academic year. Required courses are English, mathematics and geography. Optional classes, from which two are to be selected, plus one alternate, include: art, world of construction, band, choir, and physical education.

The public was given to understand that the new, larger central school building would permit the expansion of the junior high curriculum. But next year's offerings for seventh graders do not include any science or reading classes. Why?

Marvin Frederickson, high school principal, responds:

"The junior high program has been improved in the following manner:

1. Junior high choir may be elected for the first time.
2. Art is a new addition.
3. Swimming instruction has been added to physical ed.

Pioneer-Tribune

4. Wood shop is offered in both seventh and eighth grade on a weekly basis.
5. Basic English and basic math are offered on both grade levels.
6. A semester of Home Economics is offered to girls and boys in grade 8.

"The junior high curriculum - both grade seven and eight could be improved even more if we had the financial base to hire additional staff. With additional staff we could have:

1. Home Economics in the seventh grade.
2. Communication skills in grade seven and eight.
3. Individualized reading skills.
4. Health."

On a desolate hill
It is not strange that someone chose this lonely spot to erect a reverent memorial. It was on a desolate hill that three crosses stood many centuries ago... the Cross of the Saviour... and of the penitent... and of the scoffer.
Always these crosses have seemed to belong to the desolate hills of life. When a man feels the crushing burden of worldly care upon him, when he trudges the steep trail of pain and alone... then, either he will claim the Love and Strength of Christ as did the penitent, or like the scoffer he will let his unbelief destroy his soul.
But no man should wait for a time of desolation to make life's most joyous decision. It can be made today... and sealed with years of happy service in the church of one's choice.

Seafarer veto is good news

Governor Milliken's decision to exercise his veto over project Seafarer was good news to the majority of the residents of the U.P. The overwhelming opposition to the project has been obvious for many months and the only question we have is why the Governor waited so long before making a decision.

Congressman Phil Ruppe saw that the project was doomed many months ago and has since lead the fight in Washington to put an end to it. Just recently, Ruppe was testifying before the House Armed Services Committee in the hope that the Seafarer funds would be dropped from the committee's budget request.

During this past fall's presidential campaign, both Cong. Ruppe and his Democratic challenger Fran Brouillette, elicited promises from their party's candidates that Project Seafarer would not be built in the Upper Peninsula if the majority of the people opposed its construction. The Defense Department, under both the Ford and Carter administrations, stated that Seafarer would not be built in Michigan if Governor Milliken opposes construction of the system. The Governor has now taken a stand.

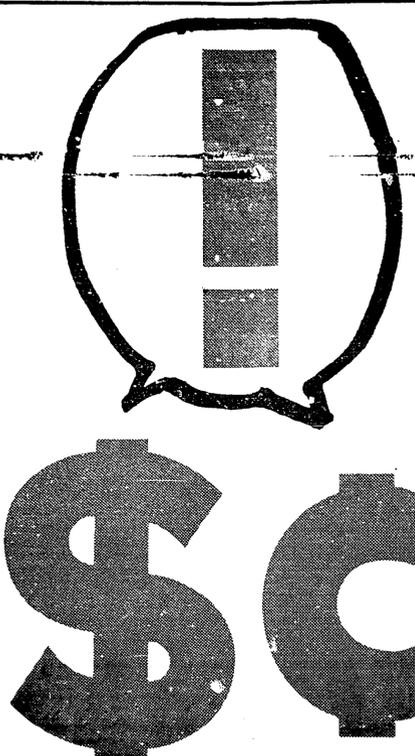

Opposition to the project in Congress is growing. It is high time that the Navy was told, by either the Department of Defense of the President to withdraw from the U.P. and return to the drawing board.

The Navy has had 19 years of research and has spent countless millions of dollars on first Project Sanguine and now Project Seafarer.

During all of that time, the viability of either project has not been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Armed Services Subcommittee. In its report issued last month, the subcommittee recommended that the project be halted until it can be established that the "system satisfies all operational requirements of our submarine forces."

The time has come for the Navy to cut out the public relations campaign, cut out the wasteful spending of tax money and move on to developing a system that will work.

We are in complete agreement that the U.P. could be put to better use than the construction of Project Seafarer. Governor Milliken should be congratulated for finally taking a stand on this project and we urge that he continue his efforts to see that his veto power is upheld.

Money talks.

CBC Committee delivers thanks

To the Editor: The 1977 CBC Committee wishes to thank the Manistique Pioneer-Tribune for its excellent news coverage and promotion of the second Annual CBC Bowling Tournament.

To Pat Erickson, tournament director and Bill Hackney, tournament originator - HATS OFF!! You did a great job!!! A lot of time and effort went into this project for CBC and we really appreciate it. Special thanks to Dr. Merle E. Wehner, Mayor Frank Hewitt, and Rep. Charles Varnum, who took time out from their busy schedules to come down to Lakeview Lanes on March 26 and say a few words to our bowlers, the people who came to watch and cheer, and our video-tape which will be aired on Palm Sunday, April 3 - Ch. 2, Cable TV, Manistique, at 11 a.m. and 9 p.m. Thanks to Gerald Renk of Mstq. Cable TV for all of his time spent in taping the program.

We gratefully acknowledge and thank the tournament's "Poster People" who took time out for CBC: Roy Bodette, American Cancer Society; Lorraine Flusek, Crippled Children and Adults (Easter Seals); and Anita Meier, Bay Cliff Health Camp. Thanks, also, to Ray Krusic, owner of Lakeview Lanes, who donated the bowling fees to the bowlers for the CBC Finals.

Thank you to the many area businessmen who donated prizes to our finalists and to our four auto dealers who donated the four trophies to be presented on Palm Sunday during our radio-telethon from, St. Francis De Sales Parish Hall. Last - but not least - THANK YOU BOWLERS! Through your generosity, goodwill and enjoyment of bowling - we have a new facet of CBC. To quote Bill Hackney, "Manistique's bowlers are having fun giving, so that others can go on living to have fun." Unquote.

A tale about a cat with a shaggy tail

Seul Choix is not only the name of a Pointe. It is also the name of a cat. Yes, this is yet another pet story. But take heart in the fact that it is not a shaggy dog story. It is, rather, a tale of a feline with a shaggy tail.

Seul Choix, whose name in English means "only choice," was appropriately named because she was the last of four six-week-old kittens that were dumped in the parking lot of the Ramada Inn last summer.

One by one, employees at the Ramada and passersby mercifully took a kitten home. But until one nice young couple discovered her, no one would see past Seul Choix's outwardly dumb, tabby appearance.

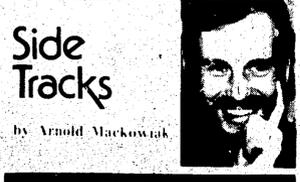

The unexpected intelligence of the creature was evident the very beginning. Instead of quietly going with the nice young couple, this black-striped creature hid under a bush until dragged out, fighting all the way.

One learns over an extended period of time not to generalize about cats. The lesson took hold one fall evening when 10-week-old Seul Choix leaped into a bath tub full of hot water and screamed for someone to critique her breast stroke.

Not only are cats supposed to loathe water, they are not known for doing the breast stroke. Even awkwardly.

Fortunately, a soft-hearted, 75-pound male Airedale who also lived in the house was a gently swimming critic. He consoled her after she was removed from the tub and tried to lap her furry body dry with his big, friendly tongue.

An unseemly camaraderie between the two creatures grew from that day on, even though Seul Choix acquired a rude habit of chomping on the huge dog's rear legs.

Side Tracks

by Arnold Mackowiak

Some to think of it, she had a similar display of appreciation for her kind master, nipping at the back of his legs while he walked down a hallway or went into a closet.

A few months later, when she began to cry out the window at the nice young couple taking the big Airedale for a walk, it was assumed that she merely desired her freedom.

Once allowed outdoors, however, she followed her great canine companion (who was bored with her by now) around the block as he made his appointed rounds.

It was no fluke. Time and again, Seul Choix was let out with the dog to go for a walk and the foursome of humans and animals stayed together for a nightly journey in the neighborhood and returned home together.

No, cats are not supposed to go for walks with dogs and humans. But Seul Choix is different.

Why, one time she even turned off water from the kitchen sink tap-on COMMAND, yet. Perhaps, though, such incidents are best left unmentioned. They would not win favor among the human intelligentsia.

Dear Cousin Al, cut the sarcasm

Dear Cousin Al: Your last letter was pretty sarcastic. You said if I couldn't get mugged in Detroit, the least I could do was get shot by a Mafia hireling. You said you watch TV, so you know city newsman are...

by Jim Fitzgerald

Al, I know you wrote that letter after watching that new TV show, "The Andros Targets." I know you were trying to be funny when you asked if I had Jimmy Hoffa hidden in my rollock desk. I know those TV shows are a lot of baloney and that writing for a big newspaper is no more dangerous than clerking in a Kmart.

I'll admit I haven't yet used information received from a reliable source to black-mail a congressional subcommittee into reopening an investigation into the CIA's involvement in the disappearance of Judge Crater. In fact, I am still searching for a winner to be my reliable source.

But that doesn't mean there is no adventure in my new job, Al. It doesn't mean I never risk my skin to get a column written before the presses roll. You should have seen me the other day.

I was seated at my typewriter in the Free Press Building. I face the window. Suddenly a burly guy in dirty clothes brushed by me and opened the window wide. This was a freezing day in February, Al. I was instantly buffeted by a terrible wind which chilled my bones and flapped the paper in my typewriter, flap, flap, flap.

All around me reporters abandoned their desks and fled to a safe corner of the room to cover out of the wind. But I stayed at my desk and watched investigatively as the burly man climbed out into the windmill, three floors above the street, two inches from certain death. The noise of traffic came in on the buffeting wind.

"What is going on here?" I asked the burly man. "I am washing the window," he said, snapping his leather harness to hooks on each side of the window. Obviously, he had been expected.

It was apparent that the burly man expected me to desert my typewriter and join the corner cowerers. I could sense his surprise when I remained at my post.

The wind was buffeting my hair in every direction and at times I could not see through my forelock. The paper in my typewriter kept going flap, flap, flap ne'er ceasing, constantly resisting the pressure of the typewriter keys.

But I kept right on typing, Al. You would have been proud to see me. I was working on an important column about the thickness of the carpet in Sen. Joe Mack's office. My deadline was near. There was no way I was going to quit.

The burly man had to close the window while he washed it. Fortunately for me, he had a slow, deliberate squeegee. This gave me blessed respite from the buffeting wind. I was able to regain my composure and prepare myself for the renewed onslaught when he raised the window again to re-enter the room.

The buffeting was worse than ever, and the flap, flap, flap was louder. But I continued typing and, as the burly man closed the window again, he looked my way. In his eyes I saw grudging respect. "I will not be buffeted," I said.

"You are pretty brave for being so unburly," he said. It was a splendid moment, Al. Right then I knew I had been right to move to a big-city newspaper, despite the dangers. And don't think my only risk is being buffeted. There is also the risk of being squeezed to death between the doors of a Free Press elevator.

Three elevators stop at our floor. Their arrival is signaled by lights which seldom work, so you never know which doors are going to open. The doors remain open for only one second.

You can see the danger, Al, and the gamble. If you have guessed right, and are waiting in front of the right elevator, one second is enough time to jump inside. But if you have guessed wrong, you must run several feet to reach the open doors.

Sometimes you make it, and sometimes you get horribly squeezed. Towards the stairs. No one has even seen me on the stairway. Adventure is my life.

So, Al, don't write me any more sarcastic letters about the dangers of newspapering in the big city. All the heroes are not on TV.

Income Tax: beyond cussing and discussing

With the April 15 income tax deadline fast approaching, cussing and discussing of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has reached a new peak.

For as long as we have had an income tax in this country, taxpayers have been devising schemes that would eliminate their tax burdens. The government has sanctioned many tax dodges for wealthy individuals and for big businesses in the form of tax credits and depletion allowances, but the individual has had to fend for himself. Often, this has meant that the individual who is least able to pay has borne the largest tax burden.

Hope, however, is at hand for those who have found God and are willing to use religion as the ultimate tax shelter.

A minister in Modesto, Calif., says that almost any American can legally avoid paying federal income taxes in his earnings. All the wage earner has to do is become a minister and found a church; and, according to the Reverend Kirby J. Hensley, head of the Universal Life Church, there are few difficulties involved. All it takes, says Hensley, is a $2 one-shot fee, $24 a year for a church charter and a few pointers on how to get a home-made parish recognized by the tax man.

"Moneysworth," the consumer newsletter, gives the details of this "religion to riches" scheme. Hensley's outfit, which won a California court case upholding its legal status as a church and its right to tax exemption, is not much more than an ecclesiastical diploma mill conferring the title of minister on virtually anyone who drops Hensley a letter containing the required two bucks. His standards are not much more stringent for granting a church charter; after a minister has practiced for a year, during which he has filed quarterly reports of weekly services, he certifies to Hensley that his church has both a secretary and treasurer and a congregation of at least three; Hensley then mails the minister a charter for his own church. The minister need not give up his present job. In order to keep the charter in effect, the minister mails Hensley the monthly $2 dues and continues to hold services. (According to the balding, bespectacled Hensley, in the last 13 years, he's chartered more than 10,000 churches and ordained about 3.5 million ministers.)

After receiving the charter, the minister takes the document and records showing that he's been holding weekly services attended by at least three people down to his local IRS office. He asks to file for exemption number 501C3. Spokesman for the IRS are reluctant to endorse this scheme, but Moneysworth found no one who would say that it is illegal. Rod Young of IRS told Moneysworth, "We look at each case individually."

The next step in the path to tax-free living may smack of lunacy, but it's sane indeed; the minister indicates to the IRS that he's taken a vow of poverty. He then closes all accounts held in his name and transfers his assets to his church's ownership. His paycheck from his regular job must also be deposited in his church's accounts. Further, he will not pay himself a salary as minister - a minister's salary is as taxable as a bricklayer's. Instead, his church provides him and his family a tax-free "allowance" to live on, and what the IRS calls a "parsonage allowance" to pay either his rent or his house payments and maintenance. If there's any cash left over, the IRS insists that it go for "church business."

But that need not limit the canny minister. He will, of course, have to buy books, subscribe to magazines, travel and attend movies and plays, all to give himself the knowledge he will need to function as a modern, well-informed minister. In addition, he may need to establish a place of retreat where he and his parishioners go to recharge their spiritual batteries; the fact that he may choose to locate his retreat in Easthampton in August, or Key West in February, or Las Vegas anytime, does not alter the fact that it can be treated as a religious expense for legitimate "church business."

A vow of poverty could make a person downright rich.

What is happening to junior high curriculum?

Sixth graders planning to attend the seventh grade at the central facility next fall have been given lists of required courses and optional courses for the 1977-78 academic year. Required courses are English, mathematics and geography. Optional classes, from which two are to be selected, plus one alternate, include: art, world of construction, band, choir, and physical education.

The public was given to understand that the new, larger central school building would permit the expansion of the junior high curriculum. But next year's offerings for seventh graders do not include any science or reading classes. Why?

Marvin Fredrickson, high school principal, responds: "The junior high program has been improved in the following manner:

- 1. Junior high choir may be elected for the first time.
2. Art is a new addition.
3. Swimming instruction has been added to physical ed.

Pioneer-Tribune Q & A

- 4. Wood shop is offered in both seventh and eighth grade on a weekly basis.
5. Basic English and basic math are offered on both grade levels.
6. A semester of Home Economics is offered to girls and boys in grade 8.

"The junior high curriculum - both grade seven and eight could be improved even more if we had the financial base to hire additional staff. With additional staff we could have:

- 1. Home Economics in the seventh grade.
2. Communication skills in grade seven and eight.
3. Individualized reading skills.
4. Health."

When a man feels the crushing burden of worldly care upon him, when he trudges the steep trail lost and alone - then, either he will claim the Love and Strength of Christ as did the penitent, or like the scoffer he will let his unbelief destroy his soul. But no man should wait for a time of desolation to make life's most joyous decision. Department of Natural Resources

Things to see and do in Hiawathaland

Lake Gogebic walleye studies clarified

An estimated 56,000 adult walleyes were present in Lake Gogebic during the summer of 1976, according to a report recently released by Buddy L. Jacob, Department of Natural Resources district fisheries biologist. The report also concluded that the walleye population could sustain considerably more fishing pressure and harvest without being harmed.

Citing a "good" walleye population and "poor" summer fishing, Jacob suggested, in a letter transmitting the report to the Lake Gogebic Improvement Association and the Bergland and Marenisco Chambers of Commerce, that the DNR and local citizens cooperate in an effort to improve summer fishing. Jacob proposed bringing in a team of professional expert anglers to work with local resort interests in developing and publicizing successful summer walleye fishing techniques.

Jacob further states his "sincere belief" that the Department's annual walleye egg taking program has no adverse effect on the walleye population. "If the estimate of 56,000 walleyes and previous research that about 28 percent of these are females is accepted, then in a typical year such as 1976, we took spawn from only about 1 percent of the total female population," said Jacob. "Since by policy the DNR plants back into Lake Gogebic 10 to 15 percent of the fry produced from the eggs taken and since hatching and survival in the hatchery are much higher than in the wild, it is likely that more fry are planted back than would have been produced had the eggs been allowed to hatch naturally," Jacob concluded.

According to the biologist, fry from the Lake Gogebic egg take have been planted in Beaufort, Fence and Keewaydin Lakes, Baraga County; Grass, Langford, Marion and Presque Isle Lakes, Gogebic County; Chicago, Emily, James, Runkie and Sunset Lakes and Crystal Falls Impoundment, Iron County; Antoine and Eday Lakes and Gene and Groveland Mine Ponds, Dickinson County, and Six Mile Lake, Matchwood and Victoria Ponds, Ontonagon County since 1971.

Beaver and Parent Lake, Baraga County; Dumbell Lake, Gogebic County; Lake Antoine and Gene's and Groveland Lake, Dickinson County, Sunset and Camp Lake, Iron County and Six Mile Lake are scheduled for planting in 1977. "In addition, an experimental plant is under consideration for Greenwood Reservoir, Marquette County to take advantage of the biological situation created by this past winter's low water levels", Jacob added.

The DNR report also cited findings that Lake Gogebic walleyes are growing more slowly than the state average, that there are more old walleyes present than in other lakes and that perch and sucker populations used by walleyes as forage are "stable".

Thompson Fish Hatcheries undergo renovation soon

The Thompson Fish Hatcheries is scheduled to undergo a $2.7 million renovation of its fish hatchery system in the near future, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Scheduled to be completed by 1981 the renovation will increase production of trout, salmon and warm water fish as well as provide for increased water supplies, construction of a new hatchery building and raceways and effluent treatment.

The DNR indicated that the present hatcheries have served well because they were located on the best waters available. Renovation is needed in order for them to continue to provide increased production of warm and cold water fish, officials said.

Six hatcheries throughout Michigan are scheduled for the renovations at a total cost of approximately $10.5 million.

Roadside manners

Early last week, a big, goofy Irish Setter, wrapped in ecstasy over a slipped leash, completely ignored my evasive actions and plowed into the side of my car. While probing his hindquarters in search of broken bones, I shared those trusting eyes with the owner and my son...and wondered about the thousands of highway casualties who suffer alone.

A highway shoulder is one of spring's greatest gifts to wildlife. It provides the first solid footing of the year, the first shoots of nibbling stuff, fresh gravel for rusty digestive systems and chloride residue for tasty licking. But there are thousands of deadly draw-backs....

There are lots of reasons for motorists to avoid collisions with wildlife. Deer and bear can demolish grills, fenders and occasionally, drivers. Skunks--well, you just don't enjoy hitting skunks. And even though I've never known any porcupines that flattened tires, they all look like they could. Squirrels, rabbits, and grouse aren't particularly lethal on the highway but they should be of equal concern to all motorists.

Anything that emerged from the winter of 1976-77 has earned the right to enjoy spring and summer and it wouldn't take much effort on everybody's part to increase their odds of doing so. We don't advocate taking to the ditch to avoid a woodchuck but it's amazing how a few blasts on the horn will send everyone scampering off the shoulders ahead...and just in case they don't, it isn't much of a sacrifice to slow down a bit.

Seems to me that chipmunks and deer have equal rights to upcoming seasons and frequently a slight braking is all the break the finer critters need...you'll feel good, knowing that your efforts have saved feathery, furry lives.

Perhaps not as good as I felt when that big Setter bounded to the end of his chain on my return visit.

What's Cooking: hothouse rhubarb

by Carl Olson
Michigan Department of Agriculture

After having experienced one of the worst winters in history, spring is finally on its way to Michigan. Growing season, of course, isn't for some time yet but there is a fresh Michigan vegetable in produce sections.

It's Michigan hothouse rhubarb and most of it comes from Macomb county, just northeast of Detroit. Nationwide, we're tied for first place with Washington in production of hothouse rhubarb.

"Larousse Gastronomique" says rhubarb originated in northern Asia and was introduced into Europe in the fourteenth century. At first it was cultivated by monks as a medicinal plant, then as an ornamental.

While rhubarb is classified as a vegetable, it is treated mainly as a fruit and the

Cribbage scores

Doyle cribbage club met on March 24, at the home of Vera McFarland. High for the evening was Jack Letson and Vernor Nelson with 985. Low was Grace Jackson and Demaris Jewett with 807. High so far for the season is Jack Letson with 14081. Low is Cliff Smith with 13341. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson served lunch.

Scores for the last meeting of the Mueller Township Cribbage Club are as follows: high for the women, Helen Bennett with 1224; low of 1133, Betty Tuttle.

High for the men was 1183 held by Raleigh Bennett and low as 1079 held by Pat Rosebush.

most common use is for rhubarb pie. For pie, you'll need about two pounds.

If you don't want to go to the trouble of making a pastry shell for pie, just serve stewed rhubarb. Combine one cup sugar with one-half cup water in a medium size saucepan. Cook over medium heat until the sugar is dissolved and the syrup comes to a boil. Reduce the heat and add four cups of sliced rhubarb, cut into one-inch pieces. If you want to add a little different flavor, add one teaspoon of grated lemon rind, too.

Simmer the mixture for ten minutes or until tender but not mushy. This is important, as too many times rhubarb is overcooked. Remove from heat and let stand until cool. Some Michigan Grade A whipping cream is a great topper.

This is a marvelous way to get Michigan rhubarb out of the hothouse and into the kitchen.

ORV Safety training scheduled

Several Upper Peninsula Community School organizations will host training sessions in April for anyone interested in becoming an Off Road Vehicle Safety instructor.

Charles LeValley, off-road vehicle (ORV) staff specialist from the DNR's Law Enforcement Division in Lansing, will conduct the training. The class will stress safe ORV operational techniques, first aid, the law and ethics of recreational ORV use.

Michigan law permits students over 12 but less than 16 years of age to operate recreational ORVs only under the following conditions:

-On land owned or under control of a parent or legal guardian

-Under the direct supervision of a person who is 18 years of age or older.

-Have in immediate possession an ORV safety certificate issued by Michigan or another state or a province of Canada.

Instructor classes will be held as follows: Gladstone High School, April 19, Room 403, 6:30 p.m. and Sault Ste. Marie High School, April 20, Room 330, 6:30 p.m. Everyone interested in teaching ORV safety is encouraged to attend.

Deer loss from malnutrition appears minimal

Despite the extreme cold during the first half of the winter, snowfalls which ranged up to five foot depths and winter severity index figures well above those in 1975-76, the early spring break up has done much to balance the scale.

But DNR biologist caution that any extensive cold spells or late spring storms could still take their toll on the deer herd in some parts of the Upper Peninsula.

In Escanaba, Biologist Dick Aartila reported that deer are moving freely over most of his district, with confinement to yards restricted to north Marquette and Alger Counties. Losses from malnutrition appear to be minimal.

In Newberry District, the deer are still restricted to yards for the most part, as snow depths are still between two and three feet along the Lake Superior watershed. The winter severity index during the week of March 14-21 averaged approximately 20 percent higher than last spring but no excessive winter losses job served as yet.

All biologists report with the hard crust, dogs continue to be a problem and as a result, many valuable animals...deer and dogs...will be destroyed.

Choosing an employment agency

Many people each year find jobs with the help of an employment agency, yet some find disappointment and confusion. This Consumer Comment is designed to help ease some of the confusion surrounding employment agencies by telling what to expect if you decide to use one.

An employment agency acts as a liaison between an individual seeking employment and a business with job openings. When the agency fills a position, it collects a pre-determined fee from either the business or the new employee. If you don't find a job through an employment agency, however, you don't have to pay a fee.

If you decide to use an employment agency, carefully compare the services of several agencies before choosing one. By checking a newspaper's classified advertisements, you may be able to tell which agencies specialize in jobs which would

Consumer Comment

by Linda Joy
Michigan Consumers Council

interest you. But be leery of ads which use fancy language without describing the job or which repeatedly appear offering the same glamorous position.

If an advertisement interests you, call the agency to see if the position is still available or if other job listings fit your qualifications.

A check with the Private Employment Bureau of the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation would tell you how long an agency has been licensed by the state and if there have been complaints against it. The many agencies will request that you sign an application before scheduling interviews for you. Before signing the contract, make sure you understand what the exact fee will be and when it must be paid. In addition, find out what your responsibilities are if, for example, you accept a job but leave after 60 days.

Under Michigan law, if you leave a job before 60 days, the fee must not be more than 20 percent of the wages received. If you work longer, you may be responsible for the entire fee.

Employment agencies charge various fees, but usually the lowest rate is about five percent of the gross wage for jobs paying under $5,000. In other words, generally expect a fee around $250 for a $5,000-a-year position.
