School board asks for 4.5 operating mills

by Mark Eisenlohr

In an attempt to correct an operating deficit the Manistique Area Schools Board of Education has set its June 13 request for millage at 4.5 mills.

The decision came at the regular board meeting Tuesday, May 10, after Superintendent Richard Bonifas told the board that the current tentative allocation budget adopted by the Manistique area board leaves a $338,000 deficit.

Bonifas indicated that the 4.5 mills, if passed, would produce about $340,387, which he said, approximates the deficit.

The board was told that in considering the amount of millage to set they could, (1) minimize the millage amount in hopes that the small amount of millage would be successful in having the people support it, or (2) they could request an amount that would run a comparable educational program similar to the one run in 1976-77 school year.

The second proposal also allows for the addition of a high school guidance counselor, a high school nurse and a part-time electronic instructor to be shared with the Delta-Schoolcraft Intermediate District. Adjustments would also be made at the assistant principal level.

The board also set the levy's term at one year. The current 13 mills that the school has on the rolls would expire at the same time.

Should the 4.5 mills be passed, the operating millage for the school would be in comparison with other school districts in the upper peninsula.

Manistique currently operates on 20.5 mills. School districts in the upper peninsula last year operated on an average 25.5 mills.

Bonifas also told the group that for each mill, or fraction of a mill, above the current 7.5 mills the board receives from the allocation board they could refuse to assess that amount if the millage election was successful.

"Our current allocation budget is tight, and when you consider the low price of energy, negotiations and inflation it is impossible for this district to provide the same services that it did in 1976-77 for 1977-78, unless additional revenue is made available," Bonifas told the board in a memo.

In discussing the millage request, board member Denton Nelson said, "It is our duty to determine what mills we need for our children and try to sell it to the people. 'If they don't buy it then we'll have to live on that revenue.'" Nelson said.

The board was also told that in percentages, the proposed Schoolcraft County budget has increased by 28 percent, while the school increased their budget by eight percent.

Board member William Mueller made a motion that the request for millage in the June 13 election be set at 4.5 mills and that it run for one year. He withdrew an earlier motion requesting the 4.5 mills for a two-year period.

Mueller's motion was supported by James Goudreau. All six board members present at the meeting voted in favor. Board President Harold Cochran was absent.

In a related action, the board voted to approve a list of election workers for the June 13 election.

Included in that list are: Mrs. Loretta Pistulka, Mrs. Helen Peterson, Mrs. Merle Bauman, Mrs. Helen Berger, Mrs. Ann Willcock, Mrs. Bonnie Anderson, Mrs. Helen Lynts, Mrs. Margaret Fountain, Mrs. Lorraine Ranguette, Mrs. Amanda Carlstrom, Mrs. Eleanor Gierke, Mrs. Francis Weber, Mrs. Roberta Smith, Mrs. Gunhild Stoor, Mrs. Ingrid L. Anderson, Mrs. Ilene Pierce, Mrs. Kay Reid, Mrs. Roymayne Dewey, Mrs. Betty LaBar, Mrs. Ellen Faye Aldrich, Mrs. Myrna Hubble, Mrs. Merle Lamirand, Mrs. Shirley Barr, Mrs. Lynn M. Norton, Mrs. Evelyn MacGregor, Mrs. Sandy Letson, Mrs. Alveda Terrian, Mrs. Bernice Price, Mrs. Emma Jean Lustila, Mrs. Fern Streeter, Mrs. Jean Lustila and Ms. Arlene L. Bryant.

In other action, the board:

- voted to approved $4,604.96 in building and site bills.
- voted to continue membership in the Michigan School Board Association. Membership dues are $900.

- accepted bids for a 1969 school bus. High bid came from the Bethal Baptist Church, $1,203.07. Other bidders were, Dixie Baptist of Clarkston with a $203 bid; and Bus Mart with a bid of $656.01. The board approved selling the bus to Bethal Baptist.
- opened bids for 550 feet of nine gauge chain link fence. Bids included: Rodgers Sales, $1,954.02; Sears and Roebuck, $2,638.17; and C and L Harware, $2,621.98. The board voted to refer the bids to committee.
- voted to request that the City of Manistique pay for a portion of the costs involved in maintaining the school and public library. In the past, the school has maintained both the school and public library. Funds were also available from penal fines in District Court.

Hospital seeks new director of nursing

The director of nurses at Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital has been asked to resign from her position, according to officials at the hospital.

Fran Holthus, hospital director of nurses, has been asked to resign from her position after what the hospital administrator called an "internal management decision."

Jim Gardner, hospital administrator, said that Holthus had been asked to resign last week. Gardner refused comment on the reasons she was being asked to leave the hospital.

"I have been forced to make a difficult management decision to relieve a person from a position in which they did not function satisfactorily," said Gardner.

Holthus, who was contacted at a Michigan Nurses Association meeting in Lansing told the Pioneer-Tribune that she would not be resigning.

"Yes, I have been asked to resign," said Holthus. "But no, I do not feel in good conscience that I can do that."

Gardner would not say what would happen if Holthus did not voluntarily resign but indicated that the hospital is currently seeking a new director of nurses.

Holthus began her duties as director of nurses on September 1, 1975. She was active in instituting cardio-pulmonary resuscitation classes currently being conducted throughout the county.

"Patient care at Schoolcraft Memorial has continued to improve under Holthus's term as director of nurses," said Gardner, "as I trust it will continue to improve in the future."

Holthus was previously employed at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, Mi.

Fair, dairy sponsor school essay contest

ESCANABA—"What I Have Learned While at the Upper Peninsula State Fair" will be theme of this year's essay contest sponsored by the U.P. State Fair and the Bancroft Dairy.

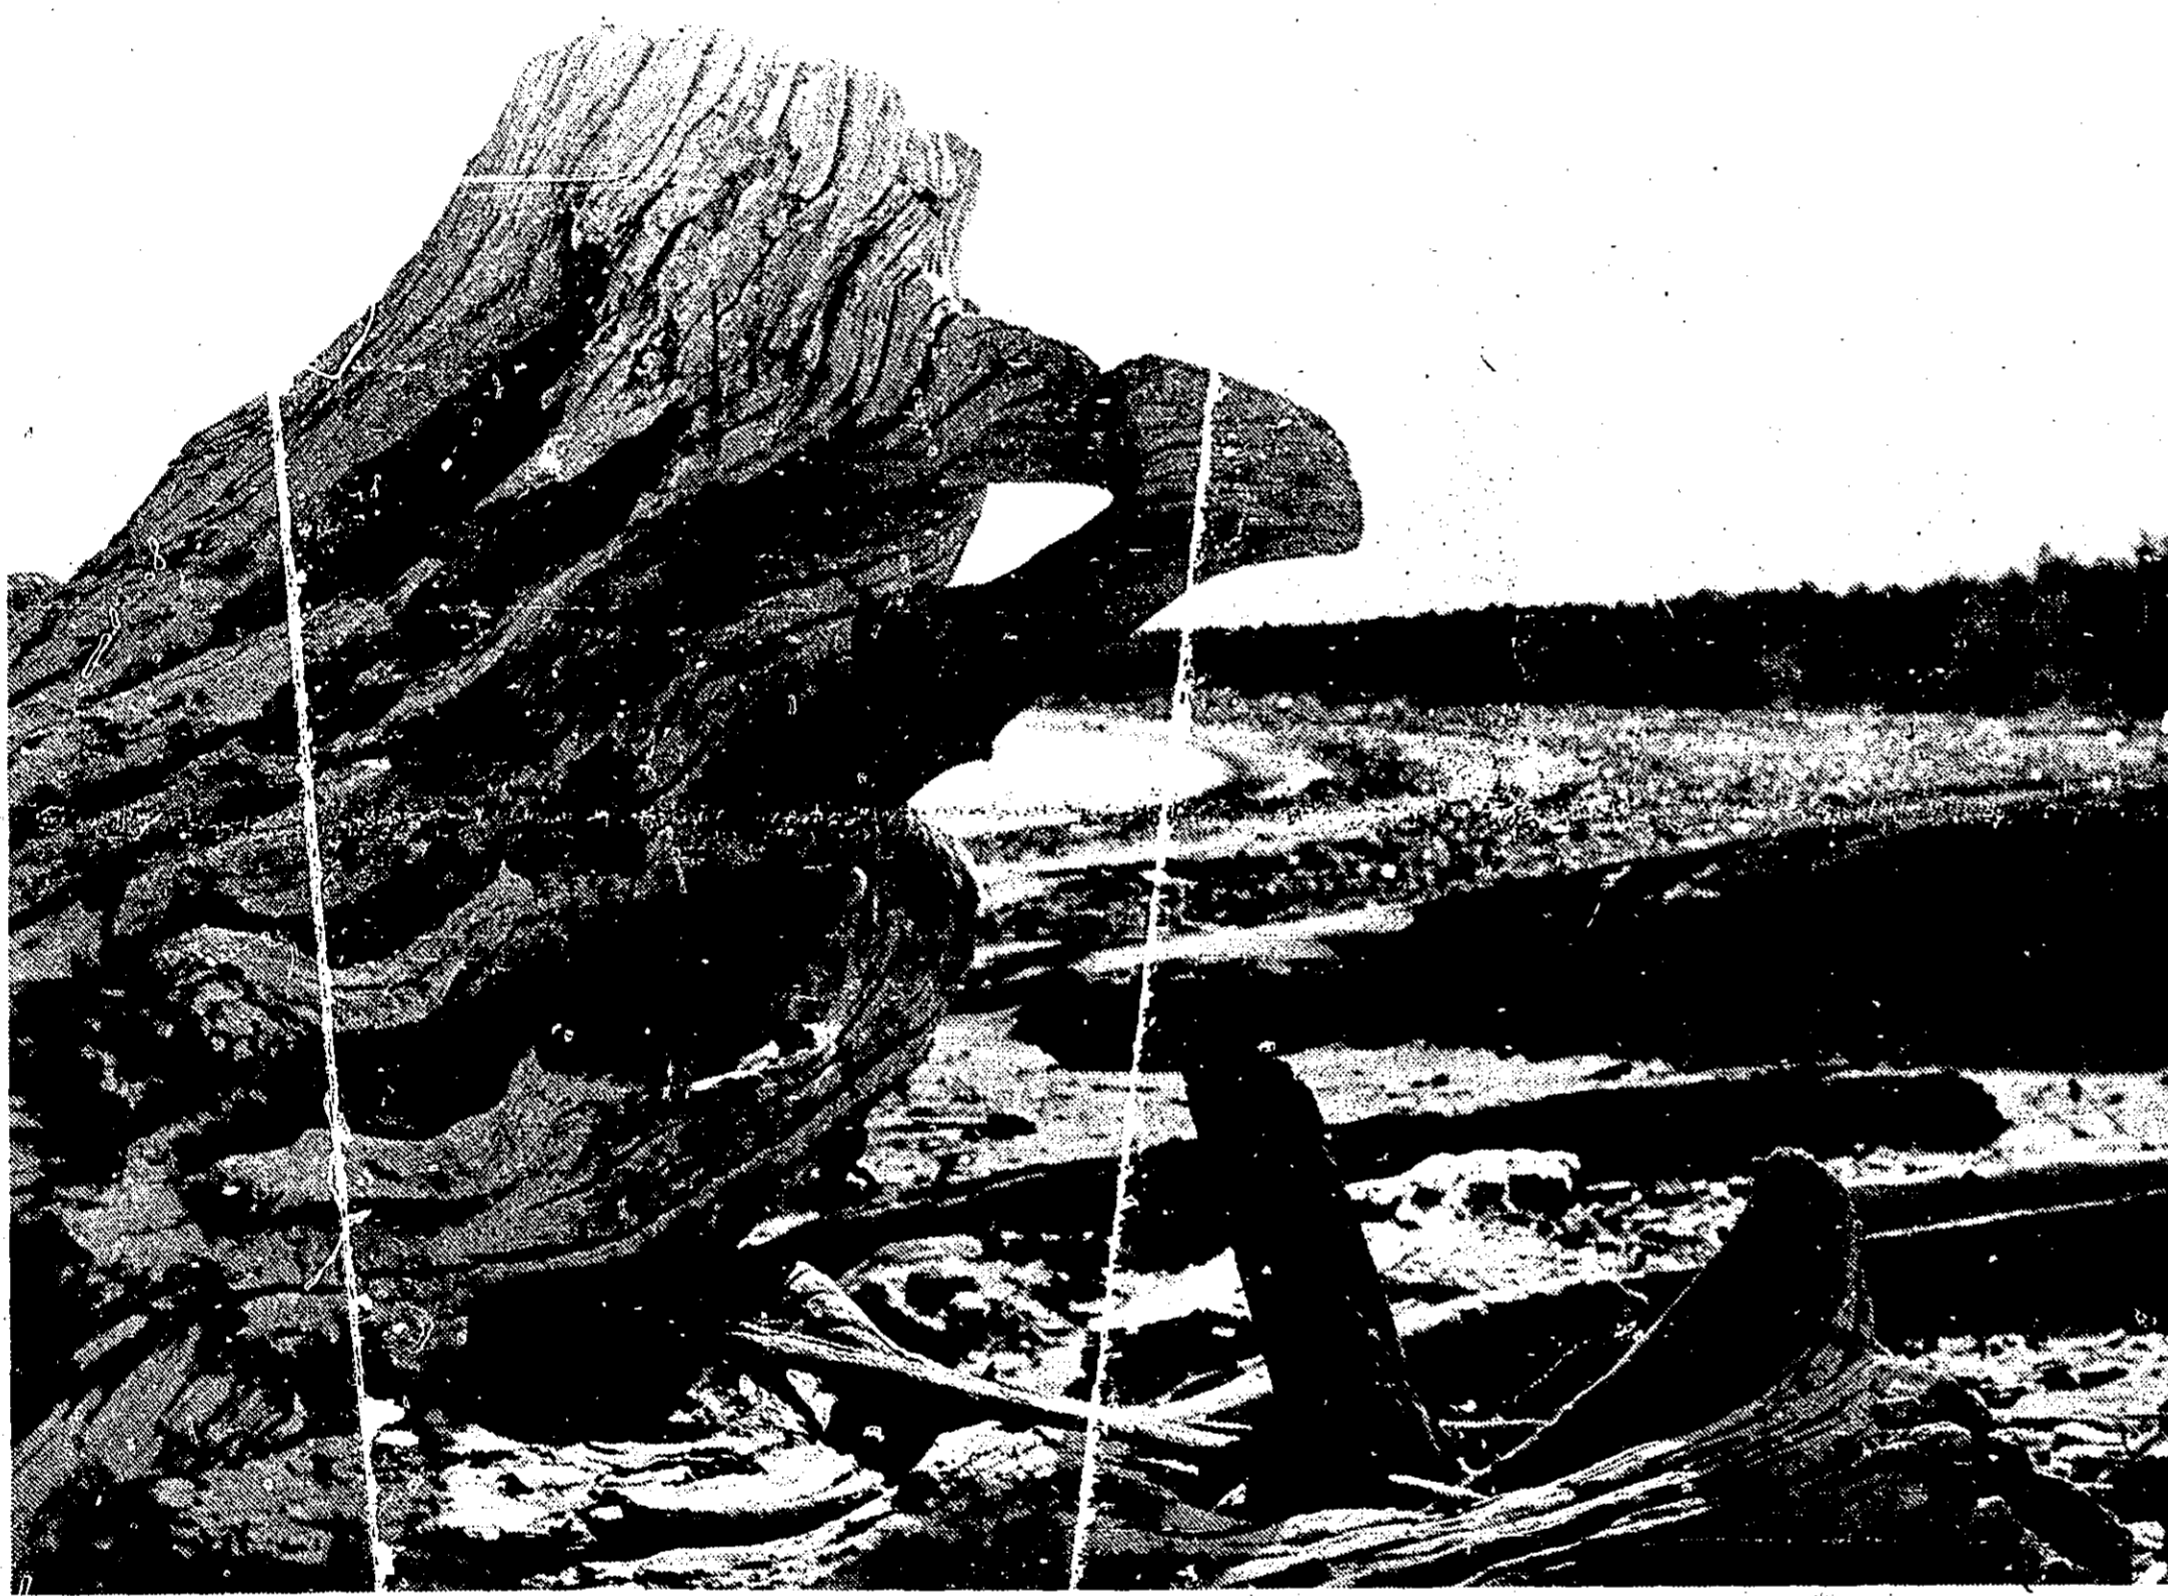

"The essay contest will take the place of the cover contest sponsored in past years," stated Dick Ostrander, U.P. State Fair manager. He added, "We wanted to do something special to commemorate the 50th Anniversary of the fair (1927-1977)."

The essay contest will be open to all elementary and secondary school students from across the U.P. In an effort to insure fair competition, students will compete in six grade divisions, as follows: Grades 1-2, 3-4, 5-6, 7-8, 9-10, and 11-12. Only one entry per contestant will be allowed.

The winning entry in each division will receive an AM-FM portable transistor radio valued at $25.

All essays must be 200 words or less in length and be typed or legibly written on an 8 1/2 x 11 sheet of paper. Entries must be sent to the Upper Peninsula State Fair, Fairgrounds, Escanaba, MI 49829, prior to July 1.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners on stage in front of the grandstand audience on Tuesday, August 16.

This piece of gnarled driftwood juts out from the shore along Manistique Harbor. In the past few weeks, sea persons have been out gathering the driftwood—pieces smaller than this—to use in a variety of crafts or just to pile around their home. With the new crop of wood after the winter season, the picking has been pretty good. The driftwood could have been covered up, however, as reports came in last week that it was snowing in Marquette and Shingleton. (Tribune Photo by M. Eisenlohr)

Soil program offers conservation aid

A temporary program providing up to 80 percent cost-share assistance for practices designed primarily to solve soil or water conservation problems caused by drought is being implemented in 41 designated counties in Michigan according to R.A. McCarty, county executive director of the Schoolcraft County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office.

All counties in the Upper Peninsula except Keweenaw County have been designated.

Only practices that will produce immediate benefits and that can be completed by Nov. 30, 1977, are included in the DFCP.

Emergency assistance for flood is not applicable to Michigan. Consideration will be given to selected areas where the effects of the drought have been particularly critical or where the concentration of program funds can be expected to result in maximum impact in overcoming drought-related problems.

Some of the practices included in the DFCP are developing livestock water to prevent erosion; emergency modification of irrigation systems for conservation of water; establishing or re-establishing or improving permanent vegetative cover; water catchments; constructing or restoring terraces and diversion systems; establishing or re-organizing stripcropping systems; restoring or maintaining windbreaks; wind control measures; conservation tillage; interim cover; mulching to stop soil erosion; vegetative row barriers and restoring or maintaining plantings for forestry and wildlife purposes.

The initial sign-up period is May 9 to May 27, however, applications will be taken after May 27. Detailed information may be obtained from the Schoolcraft Co. ASCS Office, Box 127, Engadine, MI 49827; phone 477-6461.

Council takes look at suggested tax break

by Arnold Mackowiak

Are city residents in line for a property tax break? Councilmember Doug Rose says they are.

Other councilmembers aren't so sure. But the City Council will be taking a longer look at Rose's proposed budget, which is intended to cut the current operating millage levy from 20 to 16.975 mills.

Rose told councilmembers of his proposal at the public hearing on City Manager Robert Risk's recommended balanced budget of $925,750 Monday night.

The councilmember proposed a total balanced budget of $885,230, achieved by "making a few changes to represent what I feel are more accurate estimations on our revenues and removing what I would term as 'slop' in our expenditures."

Rose said millage savings could be realized by not transferring $54,500 to the water-sewer fund.

"I believe that the water-sewer funds should be supported primarily through revenues generated from water and sewer bills. The $54,500 that I mentioned is being provided by ad valorem taxes and therefore the taxpayers are paying 2.77 mills to support the water and sewer fund, and this is not including the $27,000 hydrant fee."

As an alternative, Rose proposed raising water and sewer bills to "make the water and sewer fund self-sufficient."

"My proposal would not increase the water rate of the minimum user, most benefitting the senior citizens and small users," he said. "It would raise the sewer rate and thus the total bill $2.40 per quarter or 80 cents per month."

City Manager Risk responded that water-sewer bills already are likely to be increased to help cover a $500,000 storm sewer separation project beginning in the fall.

"If we adjust the rates now and again for the storm sewers they could go to between 60 and 75 dollars," Risk said. "As it is, we face the possibility of going as high as 50."

Risk has submitted a budget requiring the same 20-mill levy as last year, and allowing for no capital outlay, "which will necessitate the city's replacing much of its rolling stock over the next two fiscal years," he said. "However, with a stimulated local economy and city-wide reassessment, it is my hope that this may be accomplished without any increased burden to the taxpayers."

Mayor Hewitt said he would not want to be part of lowering millage this year, then have to raise it again in 1978 to meet equipment replacement needs. He moved to table resolutions adopting a budget, and a special meeting was set for 7 p.m. Monday to consider the proposed budgets.

The council also directed City Attorney Mike Brooks to prepare an opinion on the armory trust fund, from which $6,175 was transferred to the general fund in the proposed 1977-78 budget. Dick Ketcik, speaking for the armory, said he believed the money was restricted for use in the new facility.

"I'd like to know how this money could be transferred into the general fund and disappear," Ketcik said.

Rose said the council had an earlier opinion that armory fund money could be used only in construction and outfitting of the building, and leftover money could be transferred back into the general fund.

In other business, the council:

- took under advisement a complaint from boat launch users about a 50-cent charge for use of the launch area opposite the marina.

"Why should one small group in the community have to pay for one part of the recreation facilities while the rest using most of the recreation facilities don't have to pay anything," questioned Bob Kaner va, of 337 Lake St. He said boat owners are being unfairly singled out, while tennis and baseball field facilities are rent-free.

agreed to check the old water tower for use as a tourist center this summer by the Manistique-Schoolcraft County Chamber of Commerce. The city manager doubted the soundness of the structure based on DPW reports and had favored waiting until next year, when funding was foreseen to convert the area into a "Pioneer Park."

tabled an offer to paint the Paul Bunyan facade on the west side for $500, for further consideration. "I think it's served its purpose and it's going to become more of a liability than an asset to the community," said Rose, who favored cutting it down.

was informed by Risk that national guard units would not be allowed to fix a walking bridge over the Indian River by the waterplant unless a special insurance policy and materials were provided. The city manager was to check for local contributions.

was told by the city attorney that the VFW Post wants to trade a 28 x 150 foot piece of property adjacent to the city garage for the city's claim to a railroad right of way north of the post. The matter was to be studied further before council action could be taken.

voted to go into executive session regarding a civil suit filed against the city by Gifford Smith, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Willford Johnson.

"It is my opinion that if we discuss it in open session it could adversely affect our chances," City Attorney Brooks said.

The Johnsons contended in the suit that the council had by resolution directed former City Manager Rush Cattell to purchase property they owned for a price of $35,000 early in 1976.

After the executive session, councilmembers made no comment on the suit.

Norman named water chief

Paul Van Norman, 29, has been appointed as chief water plant operator for the City of Manistique's new water filtration plant, City Manager Robert Risk has announced.

Van Norman has been chief operator for the village of Blissfield, Mich. for the past five years. Prior to that, he served four years in the U.S. Air Force, operating both water and waste water facilities in South Vietnam and South Dakota.

A native of Hudson, he began his duties for the city on Monday and will be joined by his wife Carol and son Paul Jr. upon the completion of the school year in Blissfield.

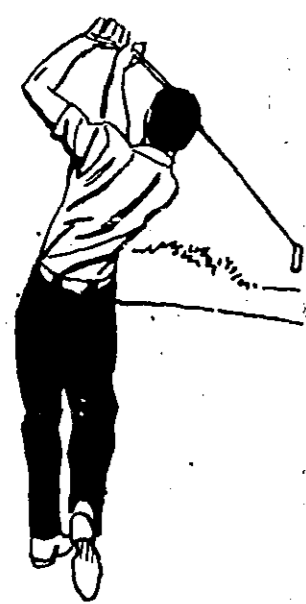

Risk also announced the appointment of Michael Paketty as superintendent of the public works department effective July 1, following the retirement of Ray Linderorth on June 30.

Paketty, who resides at 520 Garden Ave. with his wife Sarah and their eight children, has been an employee of the city for 29 years.

'White water experts' look for quick rivers

Ever since Burt Reynolds paddles diagonally across the movie screen a couple years ago we've received dozens of spring calls from "white-water experts" looking for the downhilliest rivers in Michigan. Even though several of these instant enthusiasts professed years of experience in rowing canoes, we're mighty reluctant to steer unknown qualities amongst known obstacles--far too many people drown, get lost or have heart attacks by ignoring personal limitations.

In matters of canoeing, even naive sons get their wallets wet occasionally and I can't think of a more spectacular dunking than the one involving a former associate from Escanaba--who w/1 mercifully remain anonymous--and a spring outing on a Delta County river.

Te water was unusually high but this was of little concern to Canoeer Anonymous and his friend, for this was a familiar river and they were men of experience. As they raced downstream they drank in the beauty of spring along the river banks..... with a supplementary nip from their snake bite kit from time to time. It was a pleasant trip.

Light Side of Outside

Even the steel cable spanning the river ahead was of no concern, for their canoe had often slid under it with room to spare...but it was a little worrisome to suddenly discover that high water had lowered the cable to belt buckle height. During the ensuing ruckus the canoe wallowed under, leaving its occupants attached to the cable where they skipped on the current like a leader dangling from an alder branch. Amazingly, they hand-over-handed it to safety and were reunited with their canoe the following day...far down stream.

It would have made an excellent movie...even Burt would have been envious.

Boiler blows door off, sends it to rest on post: Populist Party popular

Do You Remember:
 -the wooden railway that ran from Jamestown carrying the lumber from the mill down to the docks?
 -the street past the street past the Ossawinamakee Hotel to the dock. Twice a day one or two of the lumber trains arrived, generally consisting of two train cars loaded with lumber and pulled by a large horse.
 -Sometimes the "engineer" and "conductor" would lie asleep on top of the lumber, but old Dobbins kept right on going...
 -the curtain roller factory located near the lake on the eastside which promised to be a valuable addition to Manistique industries but for some reason fell flat after a short existence.
 -that after each election the band would turn out and serenade the winning candidates, who as a rule, treated the boys to cigars.
 -Charles Coon, who had so many irons in the fire at the same time that it became a slogan when a man was very busy to say he "had more business than Charles Coon."
 -most of the land around Arbutus Avenue and Maple Street was a fenced in cow pasture. On the corner of Maple and Arbutus stood a crude band stand built of two-inch planks, where the Manistique Cornet band gave concerts at times. It became quite popular as an evening meeting place for loving couples.
 -Later when the colony in Hiawatha was organized, Uncle Abe Byers used to go down there afternoons and evenings and elaborate on the advantages of the Populist Party, which was very popular then. Although a very old man, his voice could be heard all over town.
 -the Fourth of July celebration was held under the trees on a lot on the corner of Lake and Main Streets. There would be a few refreshment stands. Somebody would read the Declaration of Independence and the band would play. In the evening the day would wind up with a dance at Union Hall.
 -the first lime kiln was located on Main Street on the way to the cemetery and that the late Virgil was the first lime burner.
 -George McCracken, the painter, who besides his trade found time to enter politics. Once during the campaign, he had an argument with an opponent, and came out with a Gsfigured optic. He went to a local print shop and had handbills printed and on the heading stood, "Slightly disfigured but still in the ring."
 -the artesian well at the Cookson-LeRoy corner was drilled with the aid of a steam driven drilling machine. In charge was a man by the name of Green, who drilled most of the wells in the city, some of them flowing wells.
 -Luis Pelkie had charge of the boiler supplying the steam and one day just when he was in the act of taking down his dinner pail the boiler let go and Mr. Pelkie was thrown far up in the air and landed in the street, unconscious.
 -He was carried into a nearby house and Dr. O.C. Bowen attended him and he recovered in time without any serious results. The force of the explosion can better be imagined when it is known that the door of the boiler was thrown up in the air and landed in a fence post on Main Street.
 -It was so deeply imbedded in the post that it could not be removed and it remained there for a number of years.
 -the editors, newspapers and printers that have come and gone. At one time there were no fewer than six newspapers in this city.
 -the difference between the relations of parents to their children now and in former days. It was well illustrated by the story of the old general who was talking to a young lady whom he had taken into supper. Before them on the plate was a chicken.
 -"After all, general," said the young lady, "there is nothing in the world like the liver wing of a chicken."
 -"Well", replied the general, "do you know I never tasted one, for when I was young my parents ate it, and now my children do."

A guide to adoption: it's like a marriage

Ed. Note. Gail Ulrich, adaptive worker for the Department of Social Services has prepared "Room for one more?" feature for the Pioneer-Tribune. Response in past months has been good, according to Ulrich. The following article by Ulrich details some of the problems associated with one part of the adoptive segment—the older child.
 "Orphans of the living" probably best describes the children available for adoption today, according to Gail Ulrich, adoption worker for the eastern Upper Peninsula Department of Social Services. "Their natural parents were not capable of providing for them and either released them voluntarily or had their rights terminated through court action," Ulrich said.
 "Many of these youngsters are eight years of age and older. They stay with foster homes until adoptive parents can be found," she added.
 Ulrich said that the biggest need for adoptive families stem from those willing to adopt older children. She indicated that infants are simply unavailable "in any number."
 "Society's acceptance of unmarried motherhood, abortion and zero population growth have all contributed to the lack of families for older children," Ulrich said. Older children have opened up a whole new dimension, Ulrich said.
 "Working couples, single parents, and parents in their 50's and 60's can be considered as suitable for the older child," Ulrich explained.
 Ulrich said that in talking with prospective families, the same worries surface when an older child is suggested. The following questions and answers, prepared by Ulrich, are representative:
 Suppose a 13 year old is placed with us, is five years long enough for him to feel a part of our family, to become our own?
 Yes. Adoption is often similar to marriage with a honeymoon period in which good, almost false behavior goes on followed by a more natural time when a child and family begin to be their normal selves.
 Also, using age 18 as the probable end of the relationship is not necessarily realistic. Older youngsters are quite often behind their age group in school because of their family problems. As a result they will not have finished high school at age 18.
 Again, many young people continue to live with parents for sometime after 18, until they can find jobs and begin saving the necessary money for independence.
 A family that represents love, caring and permanence is bound to have a lot of influence on an adolescent who has known only insecurity in the past.
 What type of background do these children have? Are they delinquents?
 Very few of the older children available are classified as delinquents. One of the main reasons is that young people considered delinquent are seldom interested in being adopted.
 The current Michigan Law requires that a child 10 years of age and above must agree to his own adoption in writing. Instead, most children interested in adoption come from a background of neglect or abuse. They have usually been in various foster homes for two years or more while their legal status is being determined. So these children come committed to adoption by their own consent.
 Can I receive help in supporting this older child?
 Some developments in adoption law and policy have occurred to encourage older child adoption. Subsidy, similar to foster care payments, and medical funds are quite often available to help with the...
 There are many advantages to adopting an older child. School claims them during the day and friends keep them occupied a great part of the other time leaving parents with time for their own interests.
 Yet they are old enough to provide conversation and companionship. The rewards of seeing the growth, stability brings is a great one. An adolescent needs parents to if they are to become an acceptable member of the community.
 For more information on available children, contact your county department of Social Services office at 341-2114.

New superintendent at fish hatchery

LANSING—Warren G. Yoder has been named superintendent of the Thompson Fish Hatchery in Schoolcraft County. The announcement was made by John A. Scott, Fisheries Chief of the Department of Natural Resources.

 Yoder joined the DNR in August, 1966, as a fisheries biologist at the Marquette Reserach Station. Two months later, he transferred to the Grayling Reserach Station where he specialized in fish disease. Yoder is transferring to the Thompson facility from the Platte River Hatchery near Honor. He earned bachelor and master of science degrees and biology from Northern Michigan University in 1960 and 1966.

Cemetery reconstructed

by Mark Eisenlohr

"William Gratham, age 3, died by falling off the cliff at Fayette."

"Maria Dehuehler, died of cholera in 1885."

These are just two of the epitaphs that can be found on grave markers in the old St. Peter the Fisherman Cemetery in Fayette. At least 88 known graves are in that cemetery.

In the past several years, the wooden crosses, wooden gate enclosures and wooden headboards had deteriorated to the point where written inscriptions were illegible.

But crosses, headboards and grave enclosures are being restored to return the old cemetery to its original condition.

The work is being done by Fayette employees of the Department of Natural Resources. As part of a winter project, Doug Smith, Fayette carpenter, has been involved in restoring the intricate grave markings.

"The names were not always legible and more often than not, words would appear in one of several foreign languages," said Smith about some of the difficulties encountered in reconstructing the headstones.

The names that appear in the cemetery reflect some of the diverse backgrounds and nationalities of the people who worked at Fayette and whose descendants now live on the Garden Peninsula.

"With the cooperation of the Garden Peninsula Historical Society we were able to determine the inscriptions on the headboards and the locations of many of the 88 known graves," said William Manning, Fayette State Park Manager.

A working knowledge of language has also helped Smith in deciphering some of the markers and inscriptions. It's a difficult task says Smith when only parts of words are still legible.

"I know a little German so I can tell that this, for instance, is probably Dutch," Smith explained, pointing to barely visible lettering on a weathered grave cross. "The languages are similar so it helps."

He admits, though, to having consulted Dutch and German dictionaries to aid in decoding the inscriptions.

Smith is reconstructing the grave markers using new wood and then applying a wood preservative and bleaching oil that will eventually give the new markers an "old" look.

A new brook trout develops

LANSING—Michigan anglers may soon be catching bigger brook trout from the state's inland trout lakes, the Department of Natural Resources says.

Development of a new brook trout from strains crossed between fishes from the Assinica region of Quebec and domestic species have produced a brook trout that is faster growing, grows larger, and is capable of reaching an older age.

"In the DNR's Pigeon Lakes Research Area, the Assinica brook trout grew several inches larger than any brook trout previously had in those lakes," says DNR Fish Biologist Dave Borgeson. "These fish grow to between 16 and 18 inches in length where previously brook trout rarely exceeded 14 inches in those waters."

"We've since tried them in many waters throughout northern Michigan. But it's too soon to tell how they're doing."

Borgeson says the Assinica brook trout was originally brought to New York after officials there began looking for an ideal fish to bring into the state. The result was a bigger, faster growing and older brook trout.

Many of the original crosses and headboards had intricate designs with raised letters, requiring skillful work to reproduce.

"I had to hand letter the words on the new crosses," said Smith, "and then cut them out with a knife."

"I can reuter around the background but then I have to use the carving tool for the letters," Smith said.

Families were big during Fayette's heyday, and Smith has had to work on several markers for the same family.

"One family, the Rochefortes, had 16 markers in the cemetery," Smith said.

Smith said that many of the markers were "just plain interesting."

"One child died of a dog bite—the dog probably had rabies but they just say he died of a dog bite—another child fell off the cliff," Smith related.

"Others might have frozen to death out on the ice or a whole family might have been wiped out with cholera."

Smith is also working on restoring grave enclosures, or picket fences, that surrounded individual graves.

He is aided somewhat in this area by measurements taken of the picket fences when the state purchased the park in 1959. According to Manning, it is hoped that the cemetery will be open this summer for park visitors.

Work on the restoration of Fayette itself continues, although Smith says it is a slow process.

"Just normal maintenance work is enough to keep one person busy," says Smith.

Will the restoration ever be completed? "I think they'll still be working on it when I retire," said the 36-year-old Smith.

Former resident restores home

ESCANABA—Mrs. Sally Nelson of 516 S. 11th St. has spent the past year transforming her 70-year-old house into a beautiful restored home. While she's quick to admit there's no way she has done it all alone, her touch is evident throughout.

Mrs. Nelson, a former resident of Manistique, was featured in a recent issue of the Delta Reporter, Gladstone.

She has used pale tones of gold in the main rooms on the first floor and carried out the color scheme with a paper on the stair using greens and golds. She says the woodwork, which is golden oak, needed no work. The floors, which are made from imported Swedish hardwood, were sanded and Mrs. Nelson has used area rugs to highlight them.

When her children are all in school, she says she may return to school and pursue a career in interior decorating. She has already taken a course through community schools which whetted her appetite.

Mrs. Nelson grew up in Manistique, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wilson. She describes herself as a "homey person" who learned how to cook and bake at an early age. When she was first married she says it was very difficult to cook for only two rather than the nine others she was used to.

Ever since she was 15, Mrs. Nelson has worked at one job or another. She is currently working parttime at the House of Ludington where she has been employed for the past seven years.

She and her husband, Art, who is a salesman for Northern Motors, have three children, Julie, 11; Todd, who will soon be 9; and Jason, 3. They are members of the Bethany Lutheran Church.

McManus returns

Nay Electronics Technician Third Class Tomas J. McManus, son of Agnes McManus of Box 136, Manistique, recently returned from an extended deployment in the Middle East.

He is a crewmember aboard the frigate USS Pharris, homeported in Norfolk, Va. While deployed, his ship operated as a unit of the U.S. Middle East Force.

During the cruise, he and his fellow crewmembers rescued the crew of the 48-foot yacht Balthazar 11, which had become disabled after losing her rudder in a storm in the Indian Ocean. After a seven-day search, covering 11,000 square miles, the Pharris located the stricken vessel approximately 525 miles southeast of the east coast of Africa. The yacht was towed to Djibouti, on the East African coast for repairs.

While deployed, he and his fellow shipmates had the opportunity to visit Rota, Spain; Djibouti; and Bandar Abbas, Iran.

A 1974 graduate of Manistique High School, he joined the Navy in January 1975.

Kiwanis schedule work bee

Dave Neville of the Manistique Public Safety Department was the guest speaker at the Kiwanis noon meeting at the Ramada Inn, Wednesday, May 11.

John Lindroth was in charge of the speaker last week and introduced Mike Younce, general manager of WTIQ.

Younce presented a program entitled "The Sounds of America." The program was directed at free speech in radio and media in general.

The F.C.C. license act of 1934 has put many restrictions on the broadcast media, according to Younce.

He listed equal time, public service and restricted advertising as a few.

Younce told the Kiwanians that about 99 percent of the homes in the United States have radios.

In other Kiwanis news, a work bee will be held at the Little League field this Saturday, May 14, at 9 a.m.
