Song for September

(Note: Written a year ago, "September Song" was the first place winner in the 1976 Michigan Associated Press news-writing competition, in the personal column category. Personally, I regard it as the best thing I have ever written.)

Now is September, the time of the equinox.

Now is the time when nature's constant change accelerates and the cycle of life takes a more obvious turn. It is another ending and another beginning, and a reminder that all of us are controlled by laws and forces beyond your comprehension.

You can feel September in the Upper Peninsula as the wind freshens to the northwest with a new quickness that carries the familiar smell of autumn and deep lakes far to the north.

The pastel blue of summer's sky is replaced with a deeper, colder hue, and the surface of the lake turns a sullen slate gray as if it resented being rubbed the wrong way by September's wind.

Summer's silence lingers on in the deep Michigan forest where the cones have fallen on the pine needle carpet. Spots of red and yellow on the maples and birches and beeches are vivid badges against the deep green vest of the pines, and the rustling wind sends the vanguard of falling leaves scurrying to their winter resting beside the deadfall.

The sun slides behind the horizon earlier in the evening, often behind low clouds streaming against the western sky, hurrying to a rendezvous of sound and violence somewhere in the equinoctial future. The first flights of, and migrating birds seek their lonely way, and down on the beaches the big lake's waves cleanse away the leavings of summer.

September's sun in northern Michigan is not dependable, as if unable to choose between the close warmth of the summer past or the cool aloofness of the winter to come.

The household changes, too, meshing into the routine of school hours. For most the time of vacation is past, and the great highways vacating across the countryside seem silent and deserted without the press and crunch of vacation travelers.

September's flowers stand bright and brave beside the drying husks of the early annuals. Even the weeds have started to wither, and in the gardens the tall corn still stands proud with its full ears and the tomato plants bend under the heavy burden of their summer's work.

Nightfall brings the sudden coolness, the musky and familiar smell of autumn. Late in the month, the harvest moon, rising at nearly the same hour for several nights in a row, will loom larger than life as it lifts over the horizon, a red-gold signal that summer is done.

This, then, is the time of the equinox, with constant guides recording the familiar changes. It is a time for memories of other days and other autumns, for the days of happiness we choose to remember and for the days of sadness we cannot forget. Autumn is the quiet before the violence, much as we stand on the silent sand by the lake and watch the heavenly horizons flash their signals of an approaching electrical storm soon to crash and thunder all about us.

September and the changing of the seasonal guard come as reminders that our days and our times too will change, and that our role in this vast and limitless, ever-changing universe is only as meaningful as we ourselves choose to make it.

Our thoughts and our deeds may soon be buried by the shifts and changes of an uncertain world whirling its way through an unknown sky, but they will always be known and remembered by ourselves, by those who love us and remember us, and by the Creator who has chosen to place us in this particular world at this particular time.

School board pares $65,000 from budget

by Mark Eisenlohr

All the janitors got sick. The board balanced the budget. There may be another millage election.

But in spite of all that students made it to the first day of classes Tuesday without any trouble.

For some school officials it was a busy week preparing for the opening day of school after the summer recess. And it hasn't been without its problems.

The Manistique Board of Education kicked things off on Wednesday of last week by taking some $65,000 out of the school budget to balance the expenditures versus income columns in the school books.

Part of reducing the budget meant only hiring one janitor to replace two that the district lost last spring.

Apparently, the majority of them didn't show up for work Friday, calling in sick.

Superintendent Richard Bonifas then issued a statement that all sick janitors must have a doctor's excuse before they would be allowed back to work. On Tuesday, only about half of the staff were back on the job.

When contacted by the Pioneer-Tribune, Union Steward John McAlpine had only this to say: "All I know is that I was sick last Friday."

Bonifas is expected to take some form of disciplinary action later this week, if janitors have not shown up at work with physical exam.

That action could mean an oral reprimand, suspension or firing.

The budget balancing came at a special meeting of the board last Wednesday, Aug. 31. For the past several months the board has been contemplating budget problems. Over the last few weeks, it has been extensively going over budget cuts in an effort to reduce the expenditures.

At the opening of the meeting Wednesday, the board was faced with eliminating a deficit of $65,000. But administrative work saved it from much of the work.

Bonifas proposed a series of reductions amounting to about $55,000. The board approved them.

The board, still faced with a $10,018 deficit, passed an $8,000 cut in heating and electricity.

Bonifas indicated that this wouldn't have been his first choice, but said that through good sound conservation of heat of electricity it shouldn't be difficult to attain the reduction.

The board then decided by a four to three margin to reduce bus schedules to comply strictly with state transportation guidelines. It is estimated that the move would save $2,000.

By following strict state guidelines buses wouldn't stop more than four times in one mile, elementary students may be allowed to walk up to a half mile to the bus stop and secondary students may walk up to one mile to save on fuel.

Denton Nelson made the motion on reduced bus activity. Casting negative votes were Margaret Waters, Billie Doyle, Dr. Bruce Steinfeldt. Voting for were Nelson, John Mincoff, Virginia Stark and Jim Goudreau.

Board members indicated that the balanced budget allows the school to start but that much work is still needed to be done on the budget. A balanced budget is also a state requirement if a school wants to receive state aid or borrow against anticipated state aid.

The board passed over suggestions by Dr. Steinfeldt in eliminating all extra-curricular athletics, eliminating all extra student body activities, closing Doyle School and putting the saved money into a foreign language program.

The administration's cuts included elimination of one elementary teacher, elimination of one custodian, cutbacks on many travel areas and elimination of substitute teachers.

Under a memo issued by the administrative office, possible area reductions and their savings as presented for board consideration were: elimination of athletics, a reduction of $2,316 after computing the budget ($19,975) minus current obligations ($5,659) minus receipts ($12,000.) Continued reduced athletic programs mean a $7,975 deficit to the district. The figure was reached by computing the budget ($19,975) minus receipts ($12,000.)

elimination of student body activities, resulting in a budget reduction of $6,101. Included are savings in teacher salary ($3,990); student body travel ($1,000); student body teaching supplies ($1,150); miscellaneous student body ($100); student body bus drivers ($630); and retirement salaries ($231.)

In other business at the special meeting Wednesday, the board:

opened bids for the school's $420,000 loan against its state aid.

The First National Bank of Manistique submitted the low bid of 3.6 percent interest rate on $220,000. The Citizens Commercial Savings Bank of Flint submitted a bid of 3.9 percent interest rate on up to $420,000. It was indicated by the board that should state approval come through, it will award the first $220,000 to the Manistique bank and the remaining loan money to the Flint bank.

Volunteers raise $1,270 for telethon campaign

The twelfth annual Jerry Lewis Telethon Day Telethons against 36 related types of muscle destroying disorders was again aired in the Manistique Area this past weekend. Members of Job's Daughters, Bethel 69, were on hand to answer the phones.

The 12 girls started their elaborate phone answering service at 7 p.m. Sunday and continued through the night until 5 p.m. Monday, Sept. 5.

Jerry Lewis and his volunteers have made the end-of-summer weekend something of a nationwide folk festival with involvement and commitment by all ages," said Audrey Jenks, area volunteer telethon chairperson.

And involvement there was. Members, took in phone pledges totaling $1,270, an increase of almost $200 over last year. The pledges came in during an estimated 150 phone calls answered by the girls.

We (Job's Daughters) manned the phones for 24 hours. We locked ourselves in and didn't leave until we were through," said Jenks. The girls, answered phones and slept and ate at the Masonic Temple in downtown Manistique.

Now that the pledges have been made and names recorded, the Daughters will mail a pledge card and an addressed envelope to the donors. In turn, they will mail their pledges to the Escanaba chapter of Muscular Dystrophy. From there they are sent to New York. "Last year, our area donated some $1,000 through pledges," Mrs. Jenks said. "We had almost 100 percent collection, too."

Mrs. Jenks added that collection should run the same this year, saying that response is "generally quite good."

"Mrs. Jenks said that the volunteers have received very few crank calls since they began three years ago. In fact, we only got one this year. All he did was call and hang-up a few times."

During their stay with the phones, the girls had some conveniences donated to them by local businesses.

They included a television to watch the telethon, compliments of Hulla's TV. Cable service was provided by Manistique Cable Co.

They also had milk and ice cream from Bancroft Dairy, and food from the A & W, Norden's and Red Owl.

"The merchants were very willing to help us out," said Mrs. Jenks, who added that the number of donor merchants is down this year "only because we limited ourselves to a few merchants."

"There are very few passive viewers (in this telethon)," noted Mrs. Jenks. "To watch is to participate and the feeling of witnessing people actively involved in a good and solid cause from Manistique to Las Vegas and across America is good. The whole thing strikes a responsive chord in the public."

Supervisors oppose ag district

Opposition to a 20-acre lot size agricultural district that is to be included in the new Schoolcraft County Planning and Zoning report was heard at the regular meeting of the commission recently.

Several townships officials attended the meeting on Aug. 23 to voice their objections to the lot size. Supervisors contended that such a restriction infringed upon a person's right to buy and sell property as he saw fit.

Commissioners argued that the 20-acre lot size would insure the protection of the agricultural industry within the county from sprawling housing developments.

Supervisors also expressed an interest in re-learning enforcement procedures on section of the planning and zoning ordinance. Current enforcement is difficult to manage, the supervisors contended.

The commission has asked the Central Upper Peninsula Planning and Development (CUPPAD) for an opinion.

An extended discussion of the green-belt zoning was also included in the meeting. The green-belt district would provide a 30-foot strip around inland lakes that would be preserved in its natural state.

The minimum building at back from the water's edge would be 50-feet. An allowance for trimming and pruning a 50-foot-wide viewing strip within the 30-foot zone would be allowed.

The next meeting of the commission has been set for Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m. Agenda items include discussion a resource production district, public lands, district, open space, timber production districts and industrial-commercial districts.

Boosters to assist school cause

In an attempt to draw more attention to reductions in the school program, the Manistique Booster Club has agreed to serve as a nucleus for a community information campaign.

"I think we should get back to basics and get it (the school) back to what a school should be," Jesse Schurer, club president, said at a club meeting Tuesday night at Manistique High School.

Schurer told approximately 20 teachers, citizens and school board members at the meeting that once school officials provide the club with detailed information on present cuts in the school program, club members would get the word out to other organizations in the school district.

Complete information on program reductions, plus cost estimates on reinstating curriculum items was to be available by the next regular school board meeting on Sept. 13. Boosters said they planned to invite representatives of interested clubs and organizations to the meeting.

Boosters and members of the audience reviewed a partial list of instructional program cuts the school board has enacted in an attempt to present a balanced budget for the 1977-78 school year.

Course offerings that have been dropped for this year include Spanish I and II, advanced typing, German II and III, two Shop I classes, three Shop I classes, elementary art, elementary gym, elementary music, seventh grade home economics.

Margaret Waters, school board member, suggested that the Manistique school program be compared with that of Gladstone and Sault Ste. Marie to show how much more is offered at other schools in the U.M.P.

The possibility of discussing a millage election on Nov. 7 was discussed, but school board members have indicated they will wait for public pressure before calling another election this year.

Historical meeting

An important meeting of Schoolcraft County Historical Society will be held Thursday Sept. 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of the high school.

Annual dues of $2 per member are now payable. New members are invited. There will be a program of interest and future plans will be discussed.

Christmas in September?

IF YOU'VE BEEN thinking this has been a strange summer you're not the only one. This Anamyllis Lily (Christmas Lily) recently bloomed at the Jim Worley residence, 648 Park Ave. They normally only bloom during the Christmas season and only indoors. This one was planted in the Worley garden last spring and several weeks ago showed signs of budding. Could it be the weather? The plant is a two-year old transplant from El Paso, Tex., given to the Worley's by relatives. (Tribune photo)

Big Bay de Noc board borrows; sells property

Big Bay de Noc Board of Education members, meeting throughout the summer, have made decisions regarding requests that should see several changes in the school system this year.

Toppling the list is the adoption of the resolution to borrow $175,000 for operational purposes against anticipated state aid.

The school district currently levies 18 mills for operational purposes, receives an additional 8.4 allocated and has set aside 4.7 mills for debt retirement for the 1977-78 school year.

The board has also accepted bids from the State Bank of Escanaba at 3.5 percent interest for the $175,000.

Sales of school property have produced additional revenue for the district including the sale of the Garden School to Ross Peterson for $21,000; Cooke's Garage to Ed Cole for $4,050; and the Nahma garage to William Pilon for $857.89.

Officials indicated that the money will be deposited in the Building and Site fund to be utilized for future building expansion or site development.

Personnel around the school have also changed over the summer recess.

In personnel-related action the board has:

accepted the resignation of Ken Pond, hired Mrs. Avis Lelo as nutritionists co-ordinator to replace Mrs. Camilla Haindl as head cook, accepted resignation of Kim Musgrave.

accepted the resignation of Mrs. Curry.

accepted resignation of John Patricia Renton, home ec teacher.

hired Miss Nancy Maloy as kindergarten teacher.

hired Roxanne House as band instructor.

hired Mrs. Kathy Peltin as home ec teacher.

hired Mr. Lee Potvin as Industrial Arts teacher.

Spanish teacher and football coach.

Some curriculum changes have been made, most notably that of reducing graduation requirements for physical education from two years to one year. The physical education program was cut back to 1½ hours per day for secondary and elementary physical education will be taught by the physical education teachers.

Kindergarten will remain on full days, the board decided, rather than cut back to a half day. The board had considered the reduced program in an effort to cut costs.

A Manistique rendezvous

Two sisters parted in their native England more than 20 years ago, lived on opposite sides of the globe, and were reunited again in Manistique recently. Barbara Holder, sister of Thelma Popour of 801 Garden Ave., flew around the world to make their meeting possible on Sunday, Aug. 14.

"I'm just happy to see all of Thelma's friends," said Barbara, who moved to Australia in 1965. The sisters hadn't seen each other since 1964, when they reunited briefly during a visit in England.

Thelma and Barbara, whose maiden name was Wood, grew up in Yorkshire, England. Thelma came to America in 1956 and met Terry Popour in Michigan and eventually settled in Manistique.

Barbara, on her first trip to America, flew first west to England to visit family and friends before catching a flight across the Atlantic. She says she has been impressed with the friendliness of Americans, though the monetary exchange has proved to be confusing to her.

"Another amazing thing is the shop people in the stores," she added. "They really seem to care."

Barbara and her husband Peter live in Kenip's Creek, about 40 miles from Sydney. They have two children—a son who is a "jackaroo," or cowboy, and a daughter who works for the Commonwealth Police Force.

Barbara, who said she's "having a ball," left Aug. 27. She said she's "definitely coming back in three years for Barbara and Peter's 25th wedding anniversary.

Marsha enjoys physical activity. The usual stuff like swimming, camping, walking and ice skating.

She also has an interest in stuffed animals—and parents.

You see, Marsha is just one of many children available for adoption through the Schoolcraft County Department of Social Services.

Marsha, 13, is in junior high special education. She entered the Special Olympics this year competing in the balance beam.

Marsha recently moved to a foster home from a residential facility for children with emotional difficulties and has adjusted very well.

She was excited about moving to the foster home and is even more excited about being adopted into a permanent home. Marsha is a budding adolescent who really needs the stability of a permanent home.

Would you consider giving her that home?

A Manistique rendezvous

Two sisters parted in their native England more than 20 years ago, lived on opposite sides of the globe, and were reunited again in Manistique recently.

Barbara Holder, sister of Thelma Popour of 801 Garden Ave., flew around the world to make their meeting possible on Sunday, Aug. 14.

"I'm just happy to see all of Thelma's friends," said Barbara, who moved to Australia in 1965. The sisters hadn't seen each other since 1964, when they reunited briefly during a visit in England.

Thelma and Barbara, whose maiden name was Wood, grew up in Yorkshire, England. Thelma came to America in 1956 and met Terry Popour in Michigan and eventually settled in Manistique.

Barbara, on her first trip to America, swam first west to England to visit family and friends before catching a flight across the Atlantic. She says she has been impressed with the friendliness of Americans, though the monetary exchange has proved to be confusing to her.

"Another amazing thing is the shop people in the stores," she added. "They really seem to care."

Barbara and her husband Peter live in Kemp's Creek, about 40 miles from Sydney. They have two children—a son who is a "jackaroo," or cowboy, and a daughter who works for the Commonwealth Police Force.

Barbara, who said she's "having a ball," left Aug. 27. She said she's "definitely coming back in three years for Barbara and Peter's 25th wedding anniversary."

Marsha needs a home

by Gail Ulrich
Adoption Worker
Department of Social Services

Marsha enjoys physical activity. The usual stuff like swimming, camping, walking and ice skating.

She also has an interest in stuffed animals—and parents.

You see, Marsha is just one of many children available for adoption through the Schoolcraft County Department of Social Services.

Marsha, 13, is in junior high special education. She entered the Special Olympics this year competing in the balance beam. Marsha recently moved to a foster home from a residential facility for children with emotional difficulties and has adjusted very well.

She was excited about moving to the foster home and is even more excited about being adopted into a permanent home. Marsha is a budding adolescent who really needs the stability of a permanent home.

Would you consider giving her that home?

Obtain more information about adoption by contacting the county department of social services.

What's Going On

The television serialization of the novel "Roots" made all of us more aware of our own roots. Dorothy and Carroll McClish recently returned to Manistique after a 7,000 mile roots trip.

Their search began in London, England where they enjoyed one week in June during the Queen's Jubilee. After returning to the states they traveled north from their home in Naples, Fla. to Philadelphia, Pa. and then to Nova Scotia. Ignoring the popular ferris they drove the entire trip which included stops at Prince Edward Island, Cape Breton, the Gaspee Peninsula, Chateau Frontenac, Quebec and then on to Ottawa.

In Ottawa they looked for the home in which Dorothy's mother had been born but found that it was located in the area now covered by the waters of the St. Lawrence Seaway. They did visit the town in which her mother had been baptized and were able to take pictures of the area. Dorothy's mom, who is in her eighties and lives in Munising, was especially pleased to see the pictures and to reminisce about her childhood.

Following their return to Manistique in mid August the McClishes headed south to St. Joseph to visit their daughter Sue Dunn and granddaughter Sally and other friends in the area. Sunday they returned to Manistique where they will visit friends and relatives before returning to their home in Naples. They are former Indian Lake residents.

Glen and Sarah Bignall had Europe brought to them. House guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Octernaud of Paris, France. Other guest included Rev. and Mrs. Donald Arey and family of Toledo and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hamill of Long Beach, Calif. Daughter Chris has been home enjoying her mom's good cooking before leaving to intern in radiology at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City. Julie Thorell will be leaving to intern in Howell. Both girls recently completed their academic training.

They were notified that Barbara had received a $1,000 academic scholarship which she may keep for four years as long as her grade average remains at a 3.5 or better average.

Rate increase

LANSING—The Michigan Public Service Commission has approved a rate increase for Cloverland Electric Cooperative, Inc., of Dafer, raising the utility's revenue by $418,697, or 14.6 per cent overall.

As a result, a residential customer using 500 kilowatt hours of electricity per month will pay $20.40, up $3.05 from the present monthly rate of $17.35.

The commission also adopted a fuel and purchased power adjustment clause for the utility, with bimonthly hearings and an annual reconciliation of expenses and revenues.

Cloverland Electric serves 11,000 customers in the eastern end of the Upper Peninsula, including rural portions of Chippewa, Luce, Mackinac, and Schoolcraft counties and Drummond Island. Its last general rate increase was in August 1975.

Players announce 77-78 season

The Players de Noc, Inc. theatrical group, have announced their 1977-78 season, their 12th season of presenting live theatre to area residents.

In addition, the Players are opening this year's season ticket drive, offering five "broadway shows for the price of four."

On September 9, the Players will open with four performances of the Tennessee Williams drama, "Summer and Smoke," a simple love story of a somewhat puritanical southern girl and an unrepentant young doctor.

"Play it again, Sam," by Wood Allen, is scheduled for December. The play is a comedy about a homely hero who has this thing about Humphrey Bogart.

The musical, "I do! I do!" will be the third production of the season. The musical comedy about Michael and Agnes, the birth of their children, quarrels, money problems and love is told in a warm sentimental style. The musical will be presented cabaret-style.

In March, Players de Noc, will be producing "Norman, Is that You?" a comedy about a dry cleaning man from Ohio who loses his wife to his brother and his son to a limp-wristed boy who likes night-gowns from Saks.

The final production of the season, which will be presented in May, will be "The Company of Wayward Saints," a comedy that won the McKnight Foundation Humanities Award. The "Company" is a different type comedy about a company of actors and their problems with auditions for different roles in the play, to arriving late at the theatre, and includes the audience in their presentation of the play.

Season tickets are priced at $11 and can be purchased by writing to Players de Noc, Inc., P.O. Box 45, Escanaba, Michigan, 49829.

Beginning with "Summer and Smoke" Players de Noc officials have announced, certain time for all plays will be at 8:15 p.m.

Memoirs

By Mark Eisenlohr

It was a quiet street

Main Street, one of several, was a quiet street. Except at the hour when the high school set the boys free. The girls were also released at the same hour. But being of more refined nature, they were never much trouble. The houses on the street, basking in the warmth of the spring during the day, and shivering under a blanket of cold by night, stood imperturbably throughout the day awaiting the release.

The houses always withstood the attacks on their dignity, long enough to let us pass through to our own warm homes, to be subjected to assaults on white picket fences, green, lush grass, and impeccably swept sidewalks yet another day.

With the longer days of spring, we were able to finish our dinner well before dark, leaving us enough time to meet in the street with friends. A game of street hockey was usually in order. If not that, then it was down to 'Ole man Nelson's' shoe store to prop ourselves perpendicular against his wall, with our feet in a parallel position to our backs.

On those particular days we would watch as old what's-his-name made his way down the street, just about dusk every evening, going from first one side and then to the other and back again, lighting each kerosene globe that hung from the pine posts.

Down the street, following close-but, not too close-making the same zig-zag course as their predecessor, came the twins and their cousin Jim. He carefully removed each globe from its iron holder, blowing the tiny flame out, and ever so carefully replacing the globes, so as not to break them.

It drew a smile to our faces, not to big as it was an old trick. It was started almost three years previously by some kids of a dinker who passed through to log a few pines for the men at the C and L and then moved on.

Main Street

This photo of Cedar Street looking north just might jog a few memories on just what the town looked like some years ago. Frank Senger, publisher of the Pioneer-

Building. Just forward of that on the left side would be the First National Bank building. The first canopied building on the left proclaims "Ice Cream Sodas."

Ever since then it had been done, mostly by the twins and their cousin Jim, about once a month. Nobody ever did quite imitate the antics of the originators, though.

No harm ever came of it. Old what's-his-name just retraced his steps and for the extra time he picked up an extra $2 from the city. Nobody had ever done it more than once in a night except this one time, just after the drifter left town, the twins did it twice.

Well, the old man got so mad he chased the both of them right into the pucker bushes down by the flume, collecting an extra $4 from the city that night.

Along about the time the street lamps were all lit for good, we'd normally make our way home. I had the farthest to go so it was usually me who parted the group first.

I'd take what's now called Cedar Street down to the flume cut-off and cross on the foot-path, stopping occasionally to reach up and feel the water as it rushed to reach up and feel the water as it rushed to reach up, churned, and finally made its way below me to continue on to the paper mill. Once across, I'd make my way across the ladies' house lawn to a little wood house that modestly provided 10 of us-mom and dad and us eight youngsters, of which I was the oldest-with a place to stay.

But this particular night, nobody felt much like going home, least of all me. It was then that Slim (we always called him Slim because of his long, lanky body) told us that he managed to 'remove' several of his dad's nickel cigars.

For some reason, that fact didn't exactly excite us, but there was something Slim wasn't telling us. With very little prodding we headed down, on Slim's suggestion, to the back of Rosenthal's store, two blocks from Nelson's Shoe, fortunately not a long walk.

Once there we found that the cigars weren't the only inducement to corruption that Slim offered. There, hidden among the empty boxes of ladies' unmentionables, were seven bottles of "Golden Grain" beer.

With a puff and a bottle, we settled down in the alley, the creek flowing gently by, and enjoyed our new-found excitement for the next several hours.

Shortly, I decided it was time I got myself home. I could well imagine what dad would say--what with school the next day and chores that still had to be done. I'm not sure what did it, the fresh night air mixed with the beer and the cheap cigars or the anxiety of coming home late, but at any rate, I was quite sick when I finally stumbled up the walk to that little wood house.

Dad didn't say much--just looked, smiled, and shook his head, and off he went back to bed.

He knew it would be quite some time before I decided to "let myself go," again. And, you know, he was right.

4-H participation was high for county fair

The Schoolcraft County Fair for 1977 is now over, and many thanks are due those persons who made it all possible. The fair began Friday at 3 p.m. with the registration of the many exhibits that were on display all weekend long. The number of exhibits was over 1,000 with more than 450 individuals participating. Of the exhibits entered more than 300 were 4-H. We were pleased with the variety of exhibits, and anticipate the number and type of exhibits will skyrocket for next year's fair.

Another success was the 4-H Chicken Barbecue which was held both Saturday and Sunday. We attribute the sell out success to our volunteers, some of which are: Mr. and Mrs. Pete Derber, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Mayer and Dawn, Mrs. Paulene Carley, Melodie and Ben Carley, Tom Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Fred MacGregor, Elizabeth Anderson, Janine and Michelle Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsley Frenette, Rosalie Herro, Robin and Nikki Herro, Ruth Casteel, Martha Flusek, Lorraine Flusek.

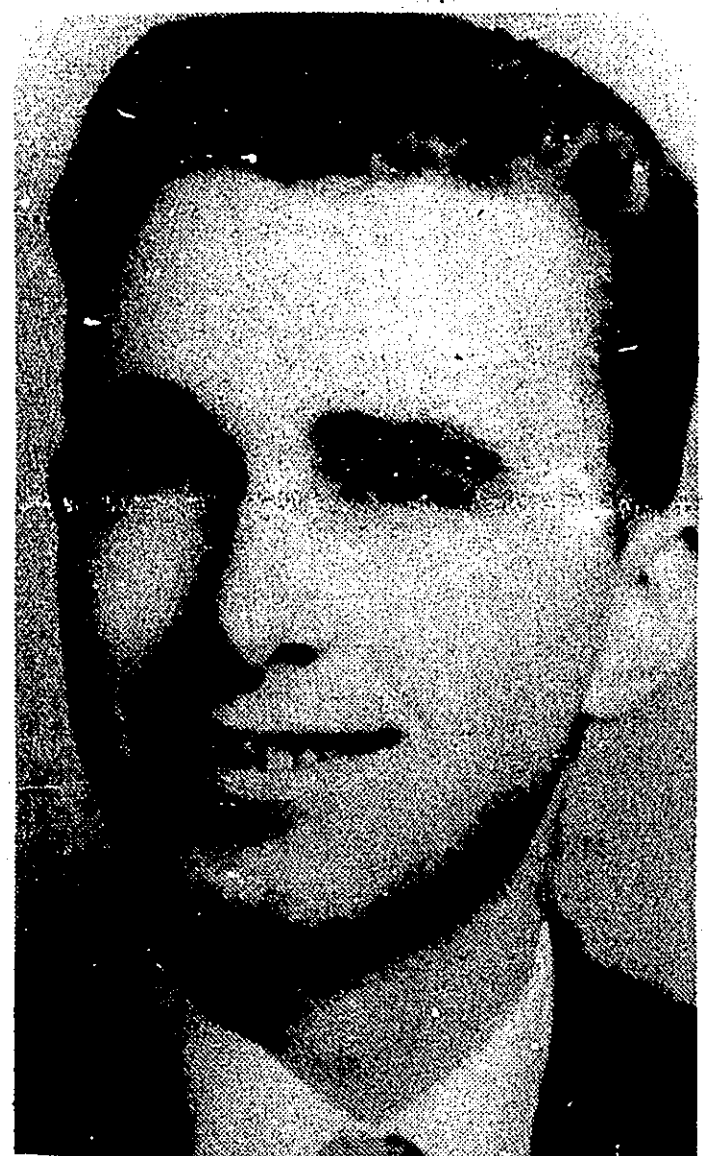

Without a doubt all of the youth who attended the fair found the 4-H painting club game booths. Club Leader, Mrs. Jean Anthony said the games were well attended and a real excitement for the kids. We hope to see a greater variety of 4-H club games at future fairs. Games and booths can prove to be a profit maker for and help any club attain group goals. Mrs. Anthony's group has plans for a trip to Cedar Point with their proceeds from the fair game booths.

We were proud to present this year's fair as a beginning to a bright future for county fairs in Schoolcraft County. The 4-H programs and participants can help to make this goal a reality. Many thanks to everyone who had a part in making this year's fair the beginning we had hoped it would be.

Another side of freebie situation

Marshall Spiegel is mad at me because, he says, I called him a hooker and a freeloader.

Spiegel is an automotive journalist who writes for Auto Reports magazine. In the September issue, he reacts angrily to a column I wrote last May.

Along with hundreds of journalists from all over the nation, I had been invited to the Napa Valley in California for the unveiling of Ford's new sports car, the Fiesta. Ford offered to pick up the tab for plane fare, three days in a fancy hotel, meals, golf, tennis and other goodies.

My newspaper does not allow its employees to accept such magnificent freebies, so I declined the invitation. Three weeks later, I was still subject to spasms of uncontrolled sobbing. I wouldn't recognize a Fiesta if it parked in my navel, but I know I would have loved the wine in the Napa Valley.

However, if I had sipped and sipped at the Ford table, would my bread and butter not smell of payola? Would I urge readers to buy Fiesta, not because I liked the car, but because I liked the wine?

These seemed like fair questions to ponder into my typewriter on a chilly May day in Detroit, the same day hundreds of less cautious newsmen were risking their souls to play golf in the sunny Napa Valley. While I was wishing them a terminal sunburn, I wrote this:

"The next time you read a rave review for an auto, you might wonder if the writer inspected the car while golfing in Florida, and who picked up the tab."

This is what teed off Marshall Spiegel. His retort included this paragraph:

"I've eaten Chrysler's hors d'oeuvres, Ford's steaks, GM's caviar, and American Motors' hot dogs. And I've toasted with Porsche's beer, Mercedes' champagne, and Datsun's sake. I've seen some great motorcars, and others that range from fair to poor. In each case, the carmaker obviously wanted me to write nice things about its product. I always wrote what I believed regardless of who picked up the tab."

Well, I wouldn't call Spiegel a liar. I might call him a glutton, and I might wonder if everything he eats tastes slightly of motor oil. But I'm in no position to judge his integrity, as I've never read what he wrote about GM cars after eating GM caviar.

But I did read what Len Barnes wrote after returning from the Fiesta party in the Napa Valley. Barnes is editor of Motor

If It Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

News the Auto Club's Michigan magazine. Barnes allowed Ford to pick up his tab, but that didn't stop him from rapping the car. Barnes pointed out that the Fiesta couldn't be towed from the rear. He also compared the Fiesta to the Chevette and said the Fiesta's important components are more apt to be damaged in a crash. Obviously, Barnes didn't feel obligated to pay for his supper.

Tom Freel is contributing editor at Motor News. He thinks it is sometimes a necessary evil for writers to freeload on the auto companies. "But when the writer's trip or something has been paid for by the company, he should tell his readers that in his copy, so they know where he is coming from," Freel told me.

Obviously, Spiegel and I wouldn't be having this debate if there were no cause for some suspicion. Even he admits, "There are some journalists whose heads can be turned by golfing trips to Florida." But, as any writer will tell you, it is always the other guy who takes a dive into the corporate grease.

How does the freebie situation look from the other side? A Ford employee gave me a copy of a letter sent by Henry Ford to all of his executives. It outlines "Standards of Corporate Conduct" pertaining to the acceptance of gifts by Ford employees. The most succinct paragraph says:

"The acceptance of a gift or favor... by a Company employee from any supplier, dealer, or customer... is prohibited. This is not intended to eliminate the acceptance of such items as a calendar, note pad, pencil or tie clip bearing the identification of the sender."

Instead of hosting the Napa Valley extravaganza, why didn't Ford simply send the media calendars illustrated with monthly pictures of the Fiesta?

Because it is more blessed to give than to receive. And if you don't give enough, you won't receive enough. Amen.

School back to normal?

The football season has opened, classes have started, and everything has returned to normal at Manistique Area Schools, right?

Wrong.

Everything may seem normal, unless you happen to have a child who wanted to take Spanish I or II, advanced typing, German II or III, or elementary art, gym or music.

They, among other curriculum items, are not being offered this year.

And despite the cuts, including the closing of Mueller School, dropping one guidance counselor, and not replacing one elementary teacher at Lakeside and one high school social studies teacher, the school board still will be hard pressed to come up with a balanced budget this fall.

That's why community discussion has started on how to save much of the instructional program that has been lost to budget cuts. And the common answer is more money. That means more voted millage for operations.

The prospect of another millage election may not be desirable, but another vote in the near future seems inevitable. The alternative is further program reductions that would affect far more students.

Owing to past millage request failures by wide margins, the school board is understandably reluctant to approve another election in a negative climate. The board will entertain, however, a public appeal for improved financial support of the school system.

A community groundswell may be starting to build toward approval of adequate millage. Still, the board is probably wise to wait for a clear demonstration that additional millage has a chance to succeed if an election is held this year.

Otherwise, it may take until sometime next year before present program cuts sink into the public consciousness. And by then, more severe reductions will threaten the viability of the instructional program.

If there's a case to be made for another election this year, citizens must get the facts and make their wishes known to the board. It will be their decision to live with, in the final analysis.

Publisher's Corner

by Frank Senger

How does time manage to vanish?

The adage, "time flies" never seemed more apt than during the past few months.

It seems like just the other day that we were looking for the first robin and for the ice to go out of the lakes. Suddenly, it's after Labor Day, there's a nip of fall in the air and summer has given way in the progression of seasons.

If the 70's are noted for nothing else, it will be with our obsession with time. Historians will certainly observe that we were in a hurry to get somewhere, but never took the time to enjoy when we had arrived.

Time, its recording and being on time, are an ever present part of life in the 1970's.

Banks across the country have spent thousands of dollars on signs that flash the time to pedestrians and motorists.

Time is the single most frequent announcement carried on radio stations.

If we have neither a radio or access to bank time and temperature sign, the correct time is never further away than the telephone. Just pick up the phone and dial. A friendly recorded voice will tell you that at the tone, the time will be...

Everywhere you turn, the importance of time and being on time is reinforced.

Have you ever looked at an airline timetable. Flights arrive and depart at 10:13 and 7:51. No flights ever arrive at 6:30 or depart at 8:00.

There's a subtle message that the airlines are trying to impress upon the flying public. Their planes are on time. Absurd as it is to imagine hundreds of flights each day arriving at destinations with split second accuracy, that's exactly what the airlines would have you believe.

Time pieces have always been a fascination of man and never has that been more true than today.

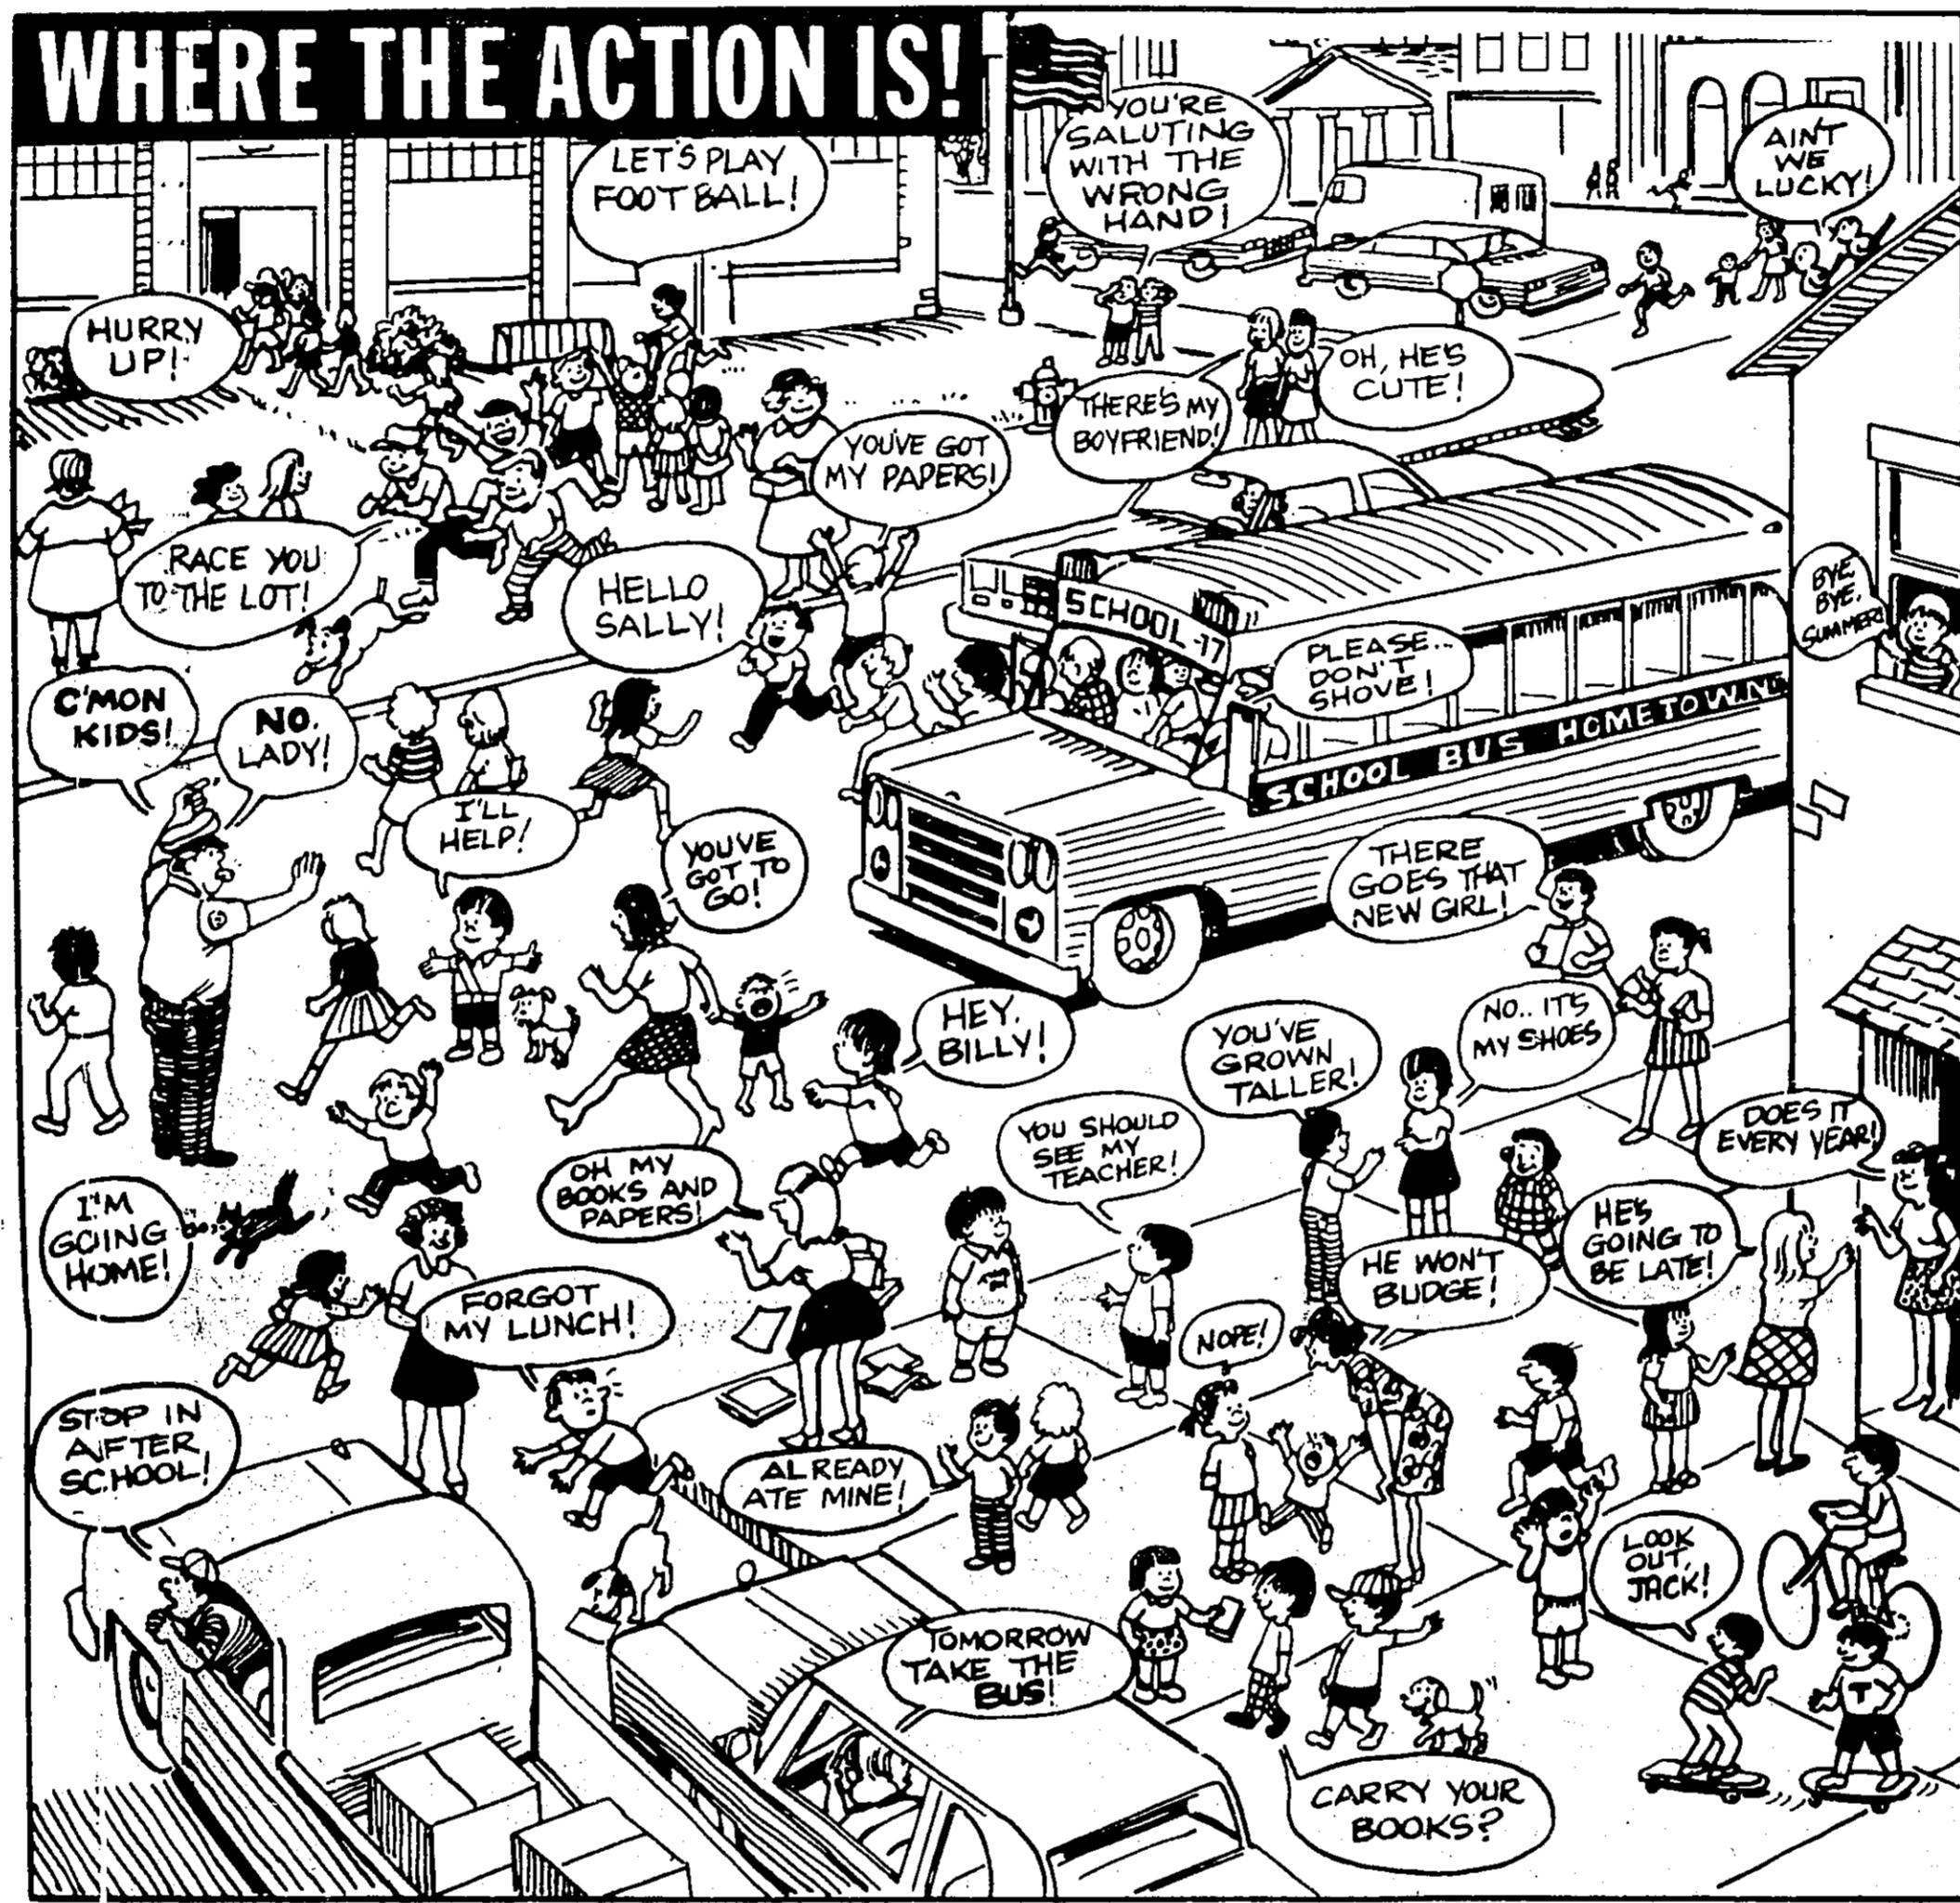

People want their watches to be fashionable, functional and above all accurate. The ultimate in time pieces and the latest status symbol is the digital watch. Not only does it tell the time, but most models give you the day and date plus a digital countdown of seconds.

I'm convinced that the popularity of digital watches is the fact that the wearer seems to control the time. It isn't there on the face of a watch until you push a button and subconsciously it gives you the feeling of having some control over time.

Did you ever stop to think that we seem overly preoccupied with trying to control time? Just look at the hassle over daylight savings time. By moving our clocks ahead in the spring and then back in the fall, we've convinced ourselves that we can control time and add an hour of daylight to the day.

No matter how we arrange it, or how we tell it, there are only 24 hours in a day. That's the way it always was and how it will always be. Maybe we should spend more time on what we do during that 24-hour span than on trying to control and rearrange the hours of the day.

In praise of the Canadians

A few years ago, a Toronto broadcaster made a record that praised the daylight out of "The Americans."

Those who have vacationed to the north recently may realize it's time someone returned the favor:

As a conscientious and concerned American citizen, I'm getting sick and tired of the idle maligning of the good, decent citizens of a great and beautiful country.

It's time someone rose to speak in defense of the Canadians.

Canada, as you may recall from elementary geography, is the big nation that borders us on the north.

Sure, it's easy to take her for granted, to take advantage of her basic decency. But consider what those people have done for us, s'il vous plait:

Who did we turn to when the last freeway interchange was staked out with a McDonald's franchise? Who else would become guinea pigs for the overflow of U.S. gas stations, package food production, automobiles, and Coca-Cola?

The Canadians.

And when the disaster of a recession struck America, who have comfort to hordes of U.S. tourists who could no longer afford a more "foreign" vacation?

The Canadians.

Just think. When the oil fields in America dried up and the haughty Arabs thumbed their nose at us, across whose unspoiled wilderness would we consider constructing the world's longest pipeline?

You're catching on, The Canadians.

And what group of people would tolerate foreign tourists coming in and uttering back-handed compliments such as "Gee! This country is great. It's like America in the 1950s."

Report on 2 state petitions

To the Editor:

This is the latest report to the people who signed the United Involved Citizens petition which is against the proposal of the State of Michigan School Board, Lansing, to have a ruling that two millage election failures would empower area school boards across Michigan to levy an income tax on everyone without a vote of the people.

State Senator Jack Faxon, who is President Pro Tempore, of the Senate and who is chairman, of the Education Committee in the Senate, vigorously opposes the board's proposal.

United Involved Citizens soon will be

The Canadians.

Who have comfort to our weak, afflicted, our draft dodgers?

The Canadians, the Canadians, the Canadians.

Come on. What national group would preface a critical remark about the United States with "but we love the Americans..."

Why, it's the Canadians.

In whose nation is U.S. currency almost as common as its own, sometimes at par value with our dollar, and is accepted without discrimination or complaint (even though their dollar is devalued five cents at similar establishments in America)?

Let's hear it for the Canadians.

Who is trying to achieve a bi-lingual culture, despite the fact that some Americans consider that "other" language a "bastard" version of French (and what kind of English do we speak)?

The Canadians.

Who in the world would make a record about us, praising Americans to high heaven, when our morale was at its lowest in 40 years during Watergate?

Only a Canadian.

Bill Wood Wins Holiday

William Wood, 207 N. First, became the third winner of a free vacation weekend at an Albert Pick Hotel-Motel of his choice when his name was drawn last week at the A.S. Putnam and Co. Raffle Store.

Mr. Wood, a post office employee was a preliminary winner at the Schoolcraft Agency.

He said that he and his wife and probably two or three of their four children certainly plan to take advantage of the free weekend of luxury accommodations and service while enjoying their vacation sometime within the next few months.

Polka Mass

ONE WOMAN came from St. Louis, Missouri and the first Polka Mass held in this area was such a success, that a contract has already signed with the band, Gerry Voelker, to repeat the Mass next year on August 27. About 1800 people attended the Polka Mass held last Sunday, August 28 at the St. Johns Church in Garden. The weather favored the day, and following Mass with communion by Father Peppin, a lunch and street dancing took place from 1 to 6 p.m.

I will try and answer as many questions that you have asked me concerning our grant for our new center.

Question - Why are you remodeling an old building? Wouldn't it be cheaper and better to start from scratch?

Answer - It would probably be better and cheaper to start from scratch but - the federal rules and regulations stated it had to be an existing building. This grant is not for new construction.

Question - How soon are you going to start building?

Answer - Because it is a Federal grant we have to follow specific rules and regulations. First of all we have to hire an architect. His salary will be approximately $10,000 to $12,000. He has to be hired by Sept. 15th. I have sent letters to six recommended firms and we will choose the best for the least amount of money. They will draw up plans and submit and re-submit until we are satisfied. Then before Dec. 20 we have to put out the drawings for bids from a licensed contractor. It is a long, lengthy procedure.

Question - What if the $120,000 that has been designated for the building is not enough?

Answer - In this day and age with the king of building we want and the extreme high cost of building it could run more. We received a grant for $120,000 - $90,000 from the state and $30,000 that we had to raise locally for the total. We had a building fund going to raise $15,000 for an extra add-on. Now they changed the regulations and we can include our new addition into the present building. We had in a previous fund approximately $16,000 for landscaping, furnishings, ect. So we had enough money for the $30,000. If the bids for the building that is being built cost $160,000 the state will give us additionally money if we can raise the cash match. So on $160,000 figure, and its only a figure from the sky because I have no idea what the bids will be, we would have to raise one-fourth of it to receive the total grant. That amount would be $40,000 - $10,000 more than our now required $30,000. I am trying to write this in every day language and hope its not too confusing.

But, in the end, we should have a very lovely Center being approximately 4,000 square feet, with a new kitchen with storage, a new thrift store, a combined large meeting and dining room, a conference room (which will be used for classes such as oil painting, quilting, etc.), a pool and poker room, a lobby, two big offices and of course bathrooms.

So-o-o we are in business. We will keep our building fund going in case our bids run higher.

All I can say...I saw a slogan in Lansing that read something like this... Dreams are made by paying the price to make them come true."

You are paying the price by your monetary donations and your loving concern and support.

My staff is paying the price because the boss is under pressure and is getting grouchy.

The boss is paying the price because her gus are acting up and hurting because of stress.

But when its all over...hurrah...something fine and lasting will be accomplished and a monumental edifice for our respected and loved older citizens will be constructed.

All of you will have to bear with me because this grant is just one of few that are having deadlines to be met and at times I am too busy to sit and talk to you personally for a long period of time but in a few months it may be better.

If you have any questions about our grant or about our new center do not hesitate to ask because it's your building.

There will be another class on 'Willas and Trusts' and Probate by Gibby Wales, Sept. 14th and 21st. This class was so well accepted last spring and everyone should attend it. It is given by the Continuing Education Dept. of Northern Michigan University and sponsored by U.P.C.A.P. Call 341-2021 for reservations immediately.

You may bring one of your children along should you wish.

We wish to thank the following for building fund donations: Mrs. Don Harrington and John & Anna Lasich.

A memorial was given to the center in the name of Hector Popour by Mildred Mattson.

A memorial was given to the center in the name of Adolph Asp by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Chartier.

Mildred Mattson had her own little flea market for us and sold $10.00 of merchandise and gave us the proceeds.

Thrift Store donations came from Wendy Schowe of Sterling Heights, Mich. Betty Quain, and Nancy and Bill Libford and Thor and Florencia Reque.

Ethel Howard and Hazel Hughson brought bingo prizes to the Harbor Towers.

All these acts of kindness are so deeply appreciated and our sincerest thanks go out to you.

The following are wished a Happy Birthday: Blanch Mullen, Addie Case, Eldon Norton, Beatrice Minor, John Fulavter and Lillian Gregoras; Sept. 8.

Medicare patients work on Christmas crafts

Hi everyone. Our summer is about all over and it seems as if it goes by faster than any other season. I really dread the thoughts of getting up in the morning to go out in the cold. It seems like the car never warms up until its time to get out of it to go to work and it takes the next hour to warm up. It's too bad the summer season doesn't last just a little longer.

We have been very busy in our divisional therapy department and we're really working hard on Christmas crafts. Each year we try to stay a little ahead of the coming holiday and someday we're actually going to do it. Our display in Lauerman's window has been a great help to us and we hope to be able to continue to keep it supplied with all our latest creations.

Rev. Steve Graham held last Wednesday's chapel service and we were sorry to hear that it was the last service he was to have here as he will be leaving for another church.

Rev. Graham has been very dedicated to our Wednesday services and has filled in several times to be sure that all Wednesday services were covered. Many

The Problem of Getting Started

Ours was one of those families. They all went to church but me, the breedwinner!

Sure, the others invited me. They coaxed me. Sometimes they almost pushed me. But, let's face it: I figured I wasn't the church-going type. And I resented being urged. After all, it's a free country!

It is a free country. THAT is what got me started. We live in a land where men can believe in God and worship Him according to their conscience. People who believed and worshipped made this country what it is. And millions are still trying to keep it that way.

So one Sunday morning I asked myself: just which side are you on?

From that practical beginning I have gone on to find strength and happiness with my family in the church we attend every Sunday.

My problem was getting started. Maybe it's yours!

AGREEMENT

AGREEMENT made this 16th day of August, 1977, by and between the CITY OF MANISTIQUE, a Michigan Municipal Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the City) and the COUNTY OF SCHOOLCRAFT, a Michigan Municipal Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the County).

I. The City and County desire to develop the parcel of land owned by the City more particularly described as follows to-wit:

Part of the Northwest Quarter of the Southwest Quarter, Section 7, Township 41 North, Range 15 West, City of Manistique, Schoolcraft County, Michigan, described as follows:

Commencing at the West Quarter Corner of said Section 7; thence South 438.26 feet; thence East 286.64 feet to Place of Beginning; thence N37 degrees 11'05"W 300.0 feet; thence N52 degrees 48'55"E 299.82 feet; thence S12 degrees 08'E 93.93 feet; thence S53 degrees 06'45"E 101.7 feet; thence S40 degree 44'10"E 117.15 feet; thence S52 degrees 48'55"W 295.21 feet to the Place of Beginning. Said parcel contains 1.95 acres.

Together with an easement for ingress and egress along all existing rights-of-way in the Cardinal Field area excluding however, that right-of-way presently existing North and East of the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital which shall remain reserved for emergency vehicles only.

II. It has been determined that a more suitable use for the above described property will be the construction of a Fair Building.

III. For the reasons set forth and in consideration of the promises of the parties hereto and other good and valuable consideration receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties agree as follows:

A. The City agrees to convey to the County the above described parcel of property for the sum of $1.00.

B. The purpose of this Agreement is to provide the County with a space for the construction of an 80 by 200 foot Exhibition Building (hereinafter referred to as the Fair Building) which shall be used for a County Fair, exhibitions and other recreational activities.

C. The City shall have the exclusive right to the use of said Fair Building for the maintenance of an indoor ice skating program as weather shall permit.

D. The City shall also have the right to the use of said Fair Building at such other times as it is not in use for activities sponsored by the County.

E. The County shall be responsible for providing the necessary funding to construct the Fair Building and shall provide all equipment and personnel for the maintenance of the Fair Building and shall provide all necessary utilities for the operation of said Fair Building except as herein-after provided.

G. The City shall install a sewer and water line to said facility and shall bear 50 percent of the costs of installation thereof, provided that the City shall not be liable for costs in excess of $2,100.00 for said installation. The County shall reimburse the City for 50 percent of the costs incurred or the difference between the total costs for installation less $2,100.00, whichever is larger. The City shall provide water for said facility without charge.

H. So long as the County shall complete construction of said 80 by 200 foot Fair Building within two (2) years from the date of the execution of this Agreement and so long as the County continues to hold the County Fair on said premises at least bi-annually said County shall not be in default of this Agreement.

I. Default of this Agreement shall be defined as a breach of paragraph H. It is the intent of the City in granting the above described parcel to the County to create a determinable fee simple estate and not a fee simple on condition subsequent (that is to say a breach of paragraph H shall result in an automatic reverter of the above described parcel and any appurtenances thereon to the City).

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals on the day and year hereinabove set forth.

The Chairman then asked of Mr. Frenette, Chairman of the County DPW Committee, if this covered the operation of the "Marblehead Solid Waste Dump", and he informed the Board that it did not; that this is a separate operation, which is controlled by the County Board and operates from a budget allocated by the County Board annually.

Commissioner William Tennyson reported that the County Health Department will be responsible for the total service and administration of the Substance Abuse Program in the County for a trial period of one year. Commissioner LeBrasseur, Chairperson of the Building & Grounds Committee reported that he has received a letter from City Manager Risik, advising him that the City of Manistique will proceed with the repair and removal of the curbing and sidewalks on Lake Street in the Courthouse Block as soon as they receive word from the County Board to proceed. LeBrasseur reported that he has received two bids for the angle-parking project for Lake Street, and that upon receipt of revised quotation which are necessitated by the City's offer to perform part of the project, that this project will get the go-ahead signal from the Board.

Mr. LeBrasseur informed the Board that he had a letter written to the Department of Corrections, State of Michigan requesting that a meeting with the Building and Grounds Committee be held to determine what, if anything, is required, if the County should decide to build a garage adjacent to the County jail. Is that a bean?

IT'S THE BIGGEST BEAN I ever saw. Pete Olsen, State Road, displays two of his gigantic beans found in his garden this summer. The beans are an English strain not common to this area. According to Olsen, a friend from lower Michigan gave him several thousand seeds to try in the northern climate. He planted them, and now has plants seven to eight feet tall bearing beans up to one foot in length.

Pasta goes Creative

By Sandy Bloom
Midwest Roto Food Consultant

There is a whole world of flavor that will combine with pasta to make some of the most succulent dishes ever imagined. Add chicken, cheese, olives, tomato sauce and corn to egg noodles to give a dish its fiesta flavor. Add peas, mushrooms and parmesan cheese to fettucine for tasty side dish.

Pasta has the distinct quality of being able to blend with and enhance other ingredients in a recipe — making it great in salads, soups, casseroles or other main dishes. And since pasta has a delicate yet notable flavor, side dishes are also a good choice with full-bodied or spicy entrees.

Pasta provides valuable nutrients when combined with complete protein foods such as cheese, meat, fish, poultry and eggs. Create a pasta delight!

2 quarts water
2 1/4 cups sliced celery, including leaves

A prime prospect for freezer burn.

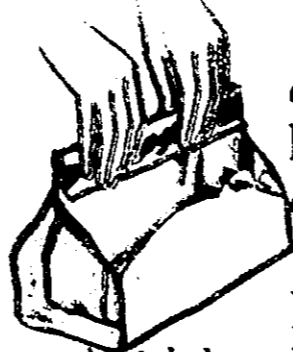

Avoid it.

Wrap in Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap.

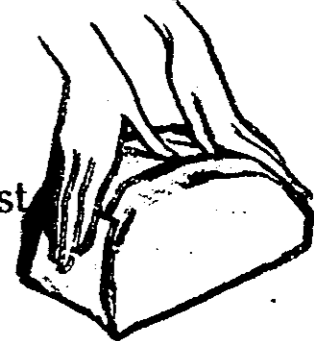

It takes a few extra seconds to rewrap, but isn't a roast beef worth it? Plastic store wrap is fine for display, but it just isn't protective enough for long-term freezing. It lets in air, lets moisture escape, causing meat to dry out and become discolored from freezer burn.

Freeze with Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Place meat on a sheet of Reynolds Wrap. Bring foil up around meat. Double fold. Press down tightly to remove air. Fold up ends to form a tight seal.

There's no better way to freeze meat. Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap molds and seals tightly to keep out air, help prevent freezer burn. Most other freezer wraps and bags can't mold and seal the way Reynolds Wrap can. It's 18 inches wide for full coverage. And so strong, you can cook in it, too. With all you pay for meat, it pays to protect it in the best wrap around. Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap.

Also available in the 14 inch width.

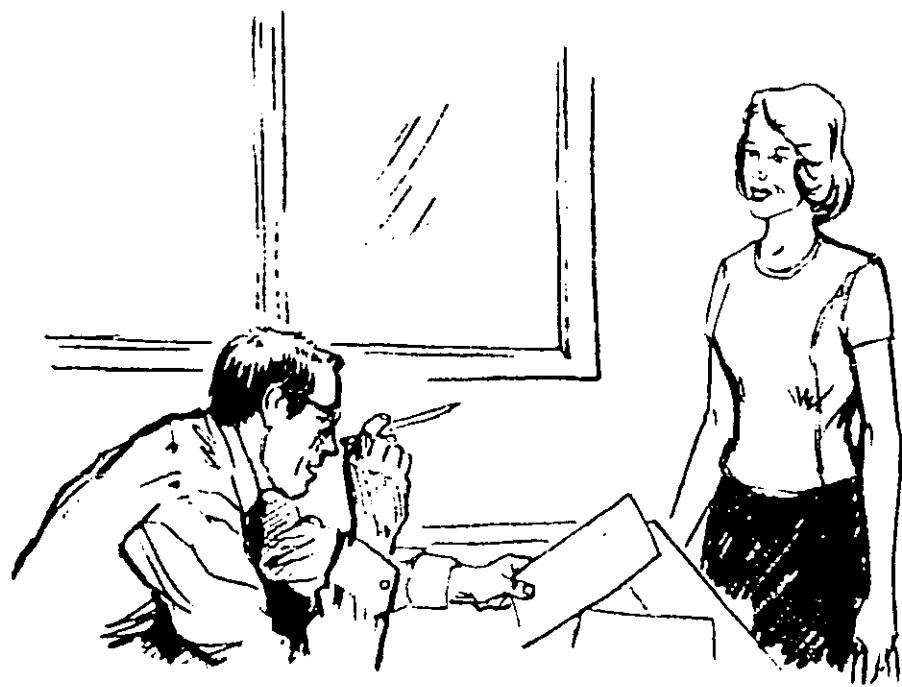

The Best Wrap Around.

PACKIN' SEEDS IN NORTH DAKOTA

"the sparrow of the 30's"

By Louise N. Johnson With the depression still clinging, there was hardly enough left over for 3¢ postage stamps, when we were first married in late 1941. The Misier managed the mortgage payments, furniture installments, plus utilities and supplies for chow, but that did it. They took the whole thing . . . unexpected items like light bulbs, or spark plugs for the 1934 Ford coupe, nicked the grocery fund. Anyway, we managed the winter, but with long awaited spring came needs from every direction, mainly outdoor equipment like a lawn mower, garden hose, rake, spade, hoe, etc.; all things normally taken for granted (get the hoe), they really add up if you need them all at once and we did. So, I thought I'd try to get a job. I taught school in a small town in North Dakota, but didn't know much else. Had no idea what other jobs were like in a city. Went to a free employment office hoping they could help. The gal there said they only had a few openings in factories but she was dubious about sending me. There were no factories in small North Dakota towns then and I had never toured one, not even by movie. I assured her a job in a factory would be fine. Great day for me, from the employment agency they directed me to apply at a big seed company, where they were badly in need of temporary help during their spring rush, (I had spring needs too!).

The personnel man there looked over the blank I filled out and remarked that it didn't appear I had worked in a factory before; he seemed hesitant. Eagerly I assured him I could learn. Early the next morning I arrived and waited until the man that interviewed me got there. He talked to me a few minutes, telling me some of the merits of their fine company . . . the lunch room with reasonable prices (me, silently clutching a cheese sandwich in a brown paper bag), adding there was free coffee for those who preferred bringing their own lunch. He was kind. Finally said he'd take me to Mrs. Rubeckening, the floor lady. Down some steps we went to a big room where a bunch of women were peering under shaded lamps on wooden desks on a platform, like a stage around the sides, or so it seemed at quick glance, all I had time for as Mrs. Rubeckening, the floor lady, appeared in a huge splashy red flowered dress. She was twice my size, with dark hair, a big smile, big bosom, and wide back side (big-hearted too, I found out later). She took me up a step or so to the platform area, set me down at what I'd thought was one of the desks, but really a rough, wooden plank-like table with a shaded light spotted on a bare belt about a foot wide. She showed me a lever to push, the belt started moving and soon was covered with small rolling objects; they looked like peas (farm rearing came in handy). They were too, hundreds and thousands of them; an endless stream, bouncing and jostling along!

Mrs. R. said, "I'll show you, honey", and pointed out, here and there amidst the steadily moving seeds there was a broken one, a yellowish one, a white one, or a dingy black one. Only the pale grayish green, the perfect ones, were to roll along on that belt which emptied into a bin on the lower floor level. She said to pick out the bad ones, grab them, but if I missed some the inspector would find them. That shot fear right through me.

So, I pitched right in, flicking my eyes back and forth to make sure no bum one escaped. I had one thing going for me in that I could pick with both hands; forgotten skills, learned helping my mother gather red currants and wild June berries, came rushing back to my rescue. It wasn't long until with a sweeping glance, I could spot the odd balls (peas) and snatch them before they traveled past the point of no return, where the dreaded mighty one would find the flaw. Mrs. R. (the awesomeness of a floor lady vanished after meeting her) showed me how to stop the belt if I needed her. I thought I did, so halted the action and hurried over, telling her I understood the seed-picking part and was ready to learn the next step. I'll always remember, she flashed a wide smile saying, "That's fine honey, but that's all there is to it. Just yank out those bum ones". She patted my hand, "Now, back and at it". I couldn't believe it! Mrs. R. must have noticed my look of panic; she walked over and put her hand on my shoulder, "Honey, you can talk and still keep a close watch." (I had thought . . . no way . . . but maybe there was!) She also reminded me we would soon have a coffee break, a free one!

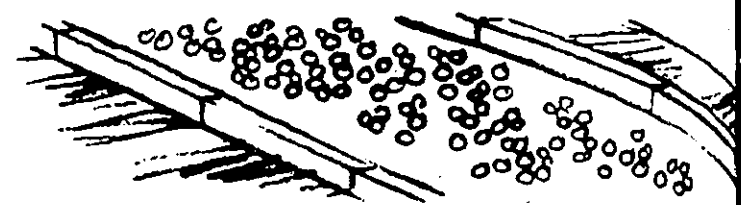

Somehow, the longest day went by, broken by lunch and afternoon coffee. We even worked an extra hour. Getting home that night I was eager to tell about my day. (The Mister hadn't shared my enthusiasm over getting that job and had muttered something about "a lot different than teaching".) Anyway, I told him I was picking seeds all day long, seeds and more seeds. Looking real serious, he said,

"Why you're a sparrow, a busy sparrow. They eat seeds all day too." Later that night he asked, "my little sparrow?"

Of course, sparrows always seem happy and full of joy. I'd really have to go some to make that. Oh, another thing, the seed joggling didn't stop the day. That night when I closed my eyes, I still see those peas rolling along a continuous, never ending trail! I was even alert for respite from my sleep, jerking if it seemed a flawed one was within reach.

The next day I reported for work well before time; the personnel man spied me and called me into his office. (Had I overlooked seeds with bad spots and the inspector found them? I hadn't asked the Inspector, my eyes were only on those seeds.) As I walked into his office, I wondered what he'd look for. He started right in with, "I understand you got along fine your first day, but you can do more." He told me about another girl working there named Irma. He thought we'd have similar interests, so had asked Mrs. R. to put us side by side. Mrs. R. stressed that we could easily keep our eyes on the seeds and talk at the same time. "Otherwise it can be monotonous and it doesn't need to be." Coming in with, "I left instructions to put you on inspection a few minutes every hour too." Then Mrs. R. came to claim me.

She said inspecting might sound awesome but it was done by the girls alternating. It meant looking for bad seeds in the bins . . . grabbing handfuls, dumping them in the heap and looking at them. "Spot check" she called it.

Irma was great, we were inseparable at our desks and away from them. With our eyes on the moving seeds we talked, but mostly chatted off telling one another complete novels or read but the other hadn't, or movies. One day I spent relating the long tale of "Gone With the Wind" elaborating on each episode with Rhett Butler (Gable, our hero!) We rushed back from our coffee breaks to continue. Hours flew by with the seeds rolling did the days.

Glory be, with my earnings we got a lawn mower, a dandy hand push, of course; a hose, several garden tools including a thin, sharp pure steel hoe, some purple petunias! And, with some of the money, we even got a couple of striped canvas chairs. It was real luxury, not to lug the work kitchen ones out in the yard if we wanted to sit there!

The sparrow tag clung a long time, but I didn't actually I felt honored. A real challenge though a distant goal, something to strive for but never to reach. Why sparrows put together Nature's cheerful, cheering squad, or at least belong to it. Neither rain nor sleet, nor steaming heat stops them. They turn the joyous side out, even if they do eat seeds all day, every day, all seasons. And, they do hunt for them, I didn't. Seeds rolled and tumbled plentifully before me, all I had to do was cull out the rejects.

Apples

Spark Autumn Desserts

By Betty Curren Apples are for anytime. And, they can be used almost any way through the entire year. However, during the fall and winter months, apples are in plentiful supply and an especially good buy. Now is the time for the thoughtful homemaker to use this healthful fruit in as many ways as possible.

The most popular fruit grown anywhere, apples have been on the scene before the dawn of history. Many believe that the forbidden fruit which Adam and Eve ate in the Garden of Eden was an apple. And, the story of John Appleseed and his travels around the country planting apple trees are told to every young school child.

Apple Charlotte

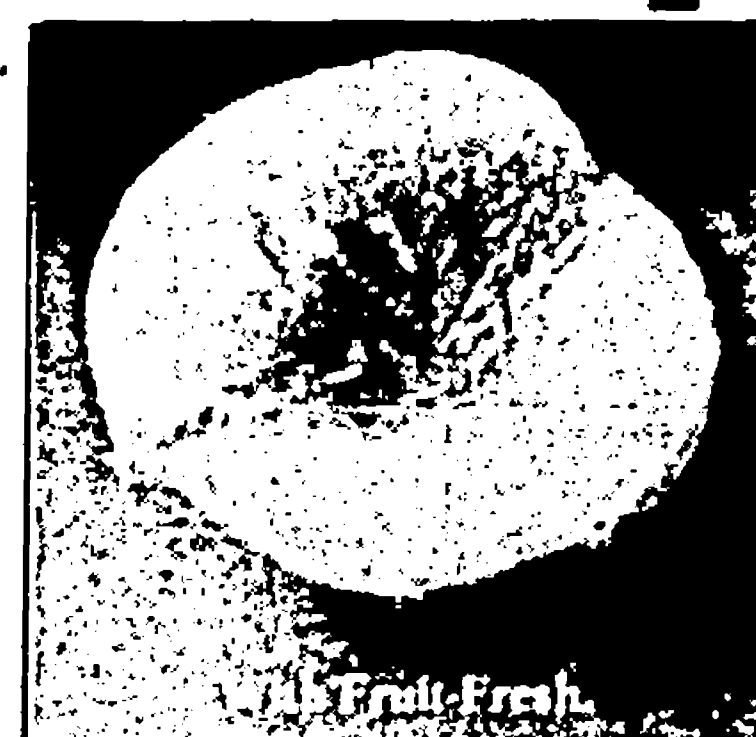

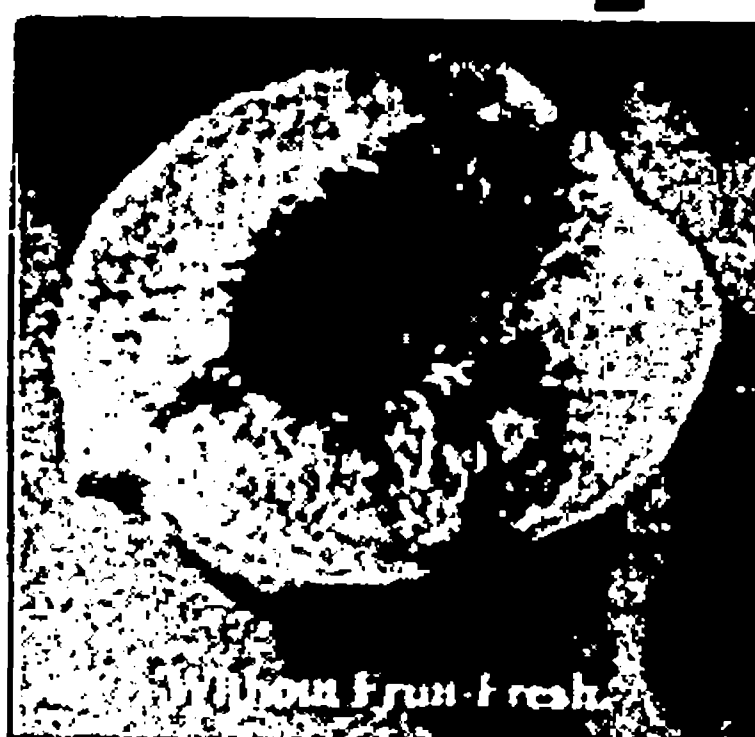

8 or 9 slices 4 to 5 day old white bread
 1/2 cup malted margarine
 2 lbs. tart cooking apples
 2 tablespoons margarine

3/4 cup sugar
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1/2 pint heavy cream

Line a 2-quart casserole dish about 3 inches deep with heavy duty aluminum wrap. Remove crust from the bread and brush the bread well on all sides with melted margarine. Peel, core and cut apples in eighths. Place the apples in a skillet with the 2 tablespoons margarine, sugar and lemon juice and saute the apples, stirring frequently until soft. They should not lose shape.

While the apples saute, line casserole with the bread, covering bottom and sides. (Cut slices, if necessary, to make them fit so all surfaces are covered.) Add the apples, top with more margarine-brushed bread. To serve, bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes or until bread is nicely browned. To freeze, cover top of casserole with aluminum foil, label, date and freeze. To serve, place directly from freezer in the oven. Bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees. Remove foil during last 15 minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

THE PONIES are big in nebraska

By Don A. Atwater They call it the "Sport of Kings" in Europe. In Nebraska it appeals to a much broader segment of the population and it is much more than a sport.

It is a major contributor to Nebraska's economy and it netted the state $5.3 million in direct tax receipts last year. And aside from this very important benefit to Nebraska's economy, it is fun. About a million and a half spectators go through turnstiles last year. That figure is certain to be topped this year. What is this benefactor to the state's economy that attracts so many people in Nebraska, we call it HORSE RACING.

Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben first welcomed the thoroughbreds in the 1930s and Columbus track has been in continuous operation since 1947. Nebraska has five thoroughbred race tracks and two that race quarter horses. How important is Nebraska's annual horse racing schedule to the state's economy? Well, track officials and travel industry members contend that the 200 days of racing each year in Nebraska have a pronounced effect on the state's economy. Not only the new jobs at the track pari-mutuel departments and security and concession stands, but also in the communities near the tracks where the influx of thousands of people on race days requires additional workers at the food, beverage and lodging establishments.

Since Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas do not have pari-mutuel betting, the Nebraska race tracks draw heavily from those states. Most out-of-state visitors to Nebraska races are considered tourists. Their non-race expenditures weigh in at an estimated $125,000 a day during the 200 day racing season. Race fan origin at Fonner Park is determined periodically by license plate surveys. These surveys show that more than 77 per cent of the cars in the Fonner parking lot come from out of Hall County and that more than 15 per cent come from out of Nebraska. The last Swihart survey reported cars from 81 Nebraska counties, 23 states and Canada.

The daily average attendance at Fonner Park during the 1976 meeting was more than 5,000. The pari-mutuel handle (total monies wagered) at Fonner was $16 million.

Ak-Sar-Ben officials are intensely interested in the effect their race meetings have on the Nebraska economy. They use surveys, questionnaires and economic estimates to determine who their race fans are, where they come from and where they spend their money. Stan Bowker, Ak-Sar-Ben director of membership activities, estimated that Nebraska's economy gained $28 million from the 1976 Omaha meeting. Ak-Sar-Ben visitors bet $1,250,000 daily and 15,000 of them pass through the turnstiles on any race day.

More than 1400 thoroughbreds from across the country race at Ak-Sar-Ben each year.

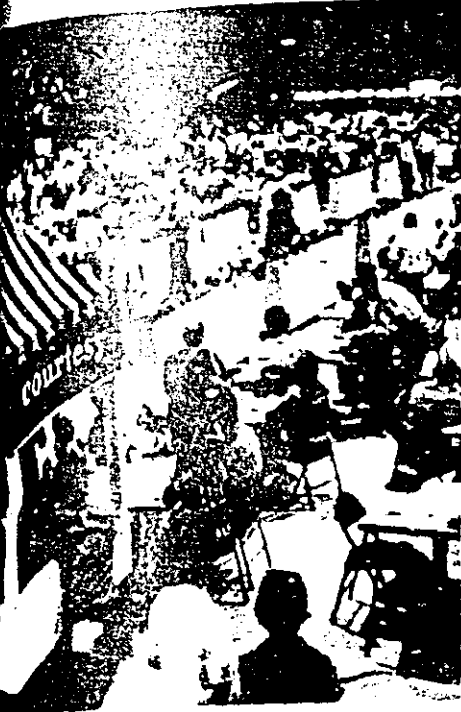

The Nebraska Quarter Horse Racing Association sponsors the Broken Bow at Deshler meets and its goal is to have a full summer of racing meetings throughout the state. Linda Pentzien, an Association officer, believes that thoroughbred tracks along with quarter horse tracks can give Nebraska the best racing circuit in the country. She has been approached by several other county agricultural associations to bring quarter horse racing into their counties.

Warren Albert, general manager of the Columbus Races, says businessmen believe that the five weeks of racing in Columbus generate more sales than any other 10 weeks of the year. He adds 250 employees to the payroll during the racing meeting and pays them more than $125,000 during the season beginning on August 30 and ending October 1.

Nebraska laws preclude sponsors from keeping the racing track. Columbus returned its share to the people in the form of scholarships, free county fair admissions to other county fairs. Of course, a good portion of the profits goes for maintenance and improvement. South Sioux City is the only Sunday racing in the state. Harold Smock, general manager of the track, estimates that the 36 racing days in the fall will bring more than $700,000 into the area. He pays the 250 track boys $105,000 during the season which runs from October to November 27.

Smock said that his daily average of 3,000 fans come primarily from the Siouxland area and east Nebraska. About 50 per cent of Atokad visitors come from Nebraska, primarily Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota, but Smock's surveys have turned up a noticeable number of cars from

The average daily attendance at Ak-Sar-Ben is 16,000. Many enjoy the races from the air-conditioned Turf Garden with color TV.

Out-of-state visitors bet $192,000 daily on the Sunday average betting approaches $320,000. Smock says that Sunday racing is the biggest thing for the thoroughbred tracks and that at Atokad, the Sunday meeting is like having Saturdays a week in terms of receipts. From a tourism standpoint, Sunday racing is especially profitable since most of the out-of-state visitors to the Saturday races stay over for the Sunday race.

Although the thoroughbreds don't run at the Lincoln Fairgrounds last year, this year's meeting should be the best ever. Guy Brandt, Fairgrounds general manager, says that now the $5 million in track improvements and new grandstand are completed Lincoln has the most modern race plant in the country.

One can estimate the exact dollar amount horse racing contributes to the Nebraska economy. But there is a general feeling among track and chamber of commerce managers that it is considerable.

Some facts are known, however. For instance, horse racing creates 5,000 new jobs at the tracks alone for Nebraskans annually.

Communities with racing meetings become home to 4,000 people connected with the race horses. Owners spend $2.5 million a year to maintain and feed the horses. One restaurant owner near a Nebraska track reported his gross profits dropped $300 the day after the season closed. Whatever measurement one uses, Nebraska's travel industry and the general state economy are the big winners from what Ak-Sar-Ben calls the "King of Sports."

The Lincoln Fairgrounds opened this new $5 million racing plant on July 26.

RIDING MOWER

One of a continuing series Remington Reports

Accuracy is automatic with a Remington 742

An automatic lets you get off those quick extra shots. But will it put 'em where you want 'em? Our experts say "yes" — if your automatic is a "Woodsmaster" Remington 742.

When it comes to first-shot accuracy, a 742 is the equal of any hunting rifle. The barrel of a 742 is made from highly polished, forged, machine-formed ordnance steel. Its super-strong action surrounds the cartridge head with three rings of steel. And its pistol grip is designed for maximum control and comfort.

With features like these, it stands to reason the "Woodsmaster" 742 will be as accurate with the first shot as any other hunting rifle. And that's just one reason it's the best-selling automatic center fire rifle around.

How about second-shot accuracy? Now you're talking a whole new ball game. Because the rifle that's going to give you the best second shot is the one that does the best job of helping you recover from recoil and barrel whip and still maintain your sight plane. And that rifle, it seems to us, is an automatic. Naturally, we recommend the 742.

Unlike lever or pump actions, a 742 ejects the empty cartridge and chambers the next round automatically. There's nothing you have to manipulate. So there's no unnecessary motion to disrupt your sight picture or make you change your position or grip. The recoil-reduction system in the 742 turns the initial jolt you'd expect into a softened push. And that means you're set for your second shot quicker.

And we didn't forget value. The surprisingly accurate 742 is also surprisingly affordable. Choose the 742 in one of five great calibers: 6mm Rem., 243 Win., 280 Rem., 30-06, 308 Win. The 742 BDL Deluxe, in 30-06 and 308 Win., has deluxe basketweave checkering and Monte Carlo stock with full cheekpiece (right or left side). There's a 742 Carbine in 30-06 and 308 Win., too. An 18½" barrel and shorter overall length make it great for hunting in the brush. Every 742 features convenient bolt release and cross-bolt safety, receiver drilled and tapped for scope mount, ramp front sight with flat-faced gold bead and adjustable rear sight. All models come with a fast-loading, 4-shot removable clip magazine. Extra clips are available.

Now for the final touch: "Core-Lokt" cartridges. The metal jacket and lead core of a "Core-Lokt" bullet are locked together by the jacket's heavy midsection. So the bullet stays in one piece for uniform expansion and all the one-shot power you need at any hunting range.

Try the CoolRise® method. Do everything ahead of time, and let these special doughs rise in the refrigerator. Go off to the golf course or office, then bake when you get back—anytime from 2 to 24 hours later.

Get a rapid rise the RapidMix way. With this easy method, you can save yourself some time—and fuss. You eliminate the step of dissolving yeast in a bowl of warm liquid.

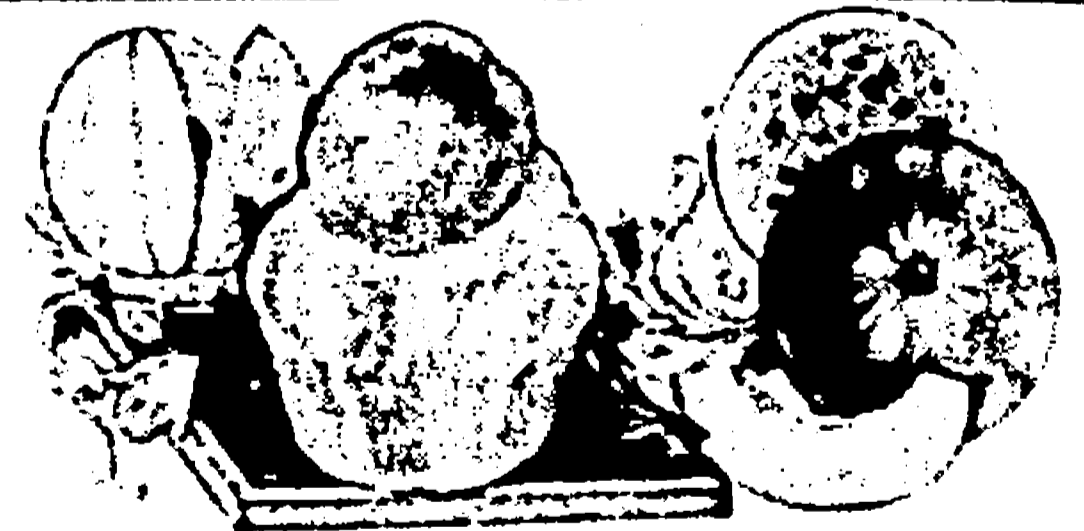

Freeze now, rise later. Got a small family? Whip up a big batch of freezer-dough rolls. Freeze before letting them rise. When you want fresh-baked bread, take out only as much as you need.

Brown and serve 'em up. Prepare specially baked (but not browned) breads, rolls or even pizza. Refrigerate for up to a week. Then brown, when you're ready to savor that fresh-from-the-oven aroma and taste.

Batter up! Certain yeast recipes don't call for kneading. In fact, classic brioches and apple crumb coffee cakes are made from knead-less doughs. Simply mix batter, let rise, then bake.

Of course, you always get more than a rise out of Fleischmann's® Yeast. You get the creative satisfaction of baking from scratch.
