Along the Sidelines

By Dave Rood

Nothing like murder story

There is nothing like a good murder mystery to while away the idle hours, and having read one or 11 in the last week or so, here is the conclusion here that they are all just as tough to write.

Any minute now the Sideliner is going to haul off and write himself one or 11 and retire at a very early age on the earnings to be had from TV royalties and movie rights and assorted accouterments.

There is really no great need to concern yourself with plot. Having analyzed what passes for plotting in the most recent examples that come to mind, it will be relatively simple to adopt the same formula and localize it with the characters with whom I am familiar, and, perhaps, with whom the regular readers of this column are familiar.

Traversty McGoof, bon vivant, world traveler, northwoods guide and gourmet cook, is sitting peacefully in his rowboat on the shores of Indian Lake one evening, pondering the true significance and inner meaning of the fact that one oar is longer than the other, when his attention is distracted by the sounds of scuffling on Boob Jetty's dock. Boob Dock's jetty. (Sometimes it's difficult to remember which is which.)

There is a splash, an ominous silence, and then the sounds of footsteps rapidly retreating along the right-of-way leading back to County Road 421.

Old Trav, being swifter than most, quickly deduces that some sugar beeter has dumped his garbage in the lake, and is madder than hops.

"Hey!" he says, with one of his original sayings, "hey you!"

He has too late a start to apprehend the culprit, but when he returns to the end of Boob Jetty's dock (or Boob Dock's jetty) he finds, not garbage, but Miss Sylvia Shapely, gurgling away in the water and mad as you name it.

Luck is with Miss Shapely (and Old Trav, ho ho ho!) because the water at the end of the dock is only two and a half feet deep. With the cement overshoes she is wearing she was landed upright, and would be screaming her fool head off except for the fact that she is bound and gagged.

Good Old Trav makes the mistake of releasing her gag and for the next 30 minutes is exposed to Miss Sylvia's alternate blubberings and screams, conducted at very high decibels while she modestly tries to rearrange her 38-24-32 figure in the 32-24-30 bikini she happens to be wearing.

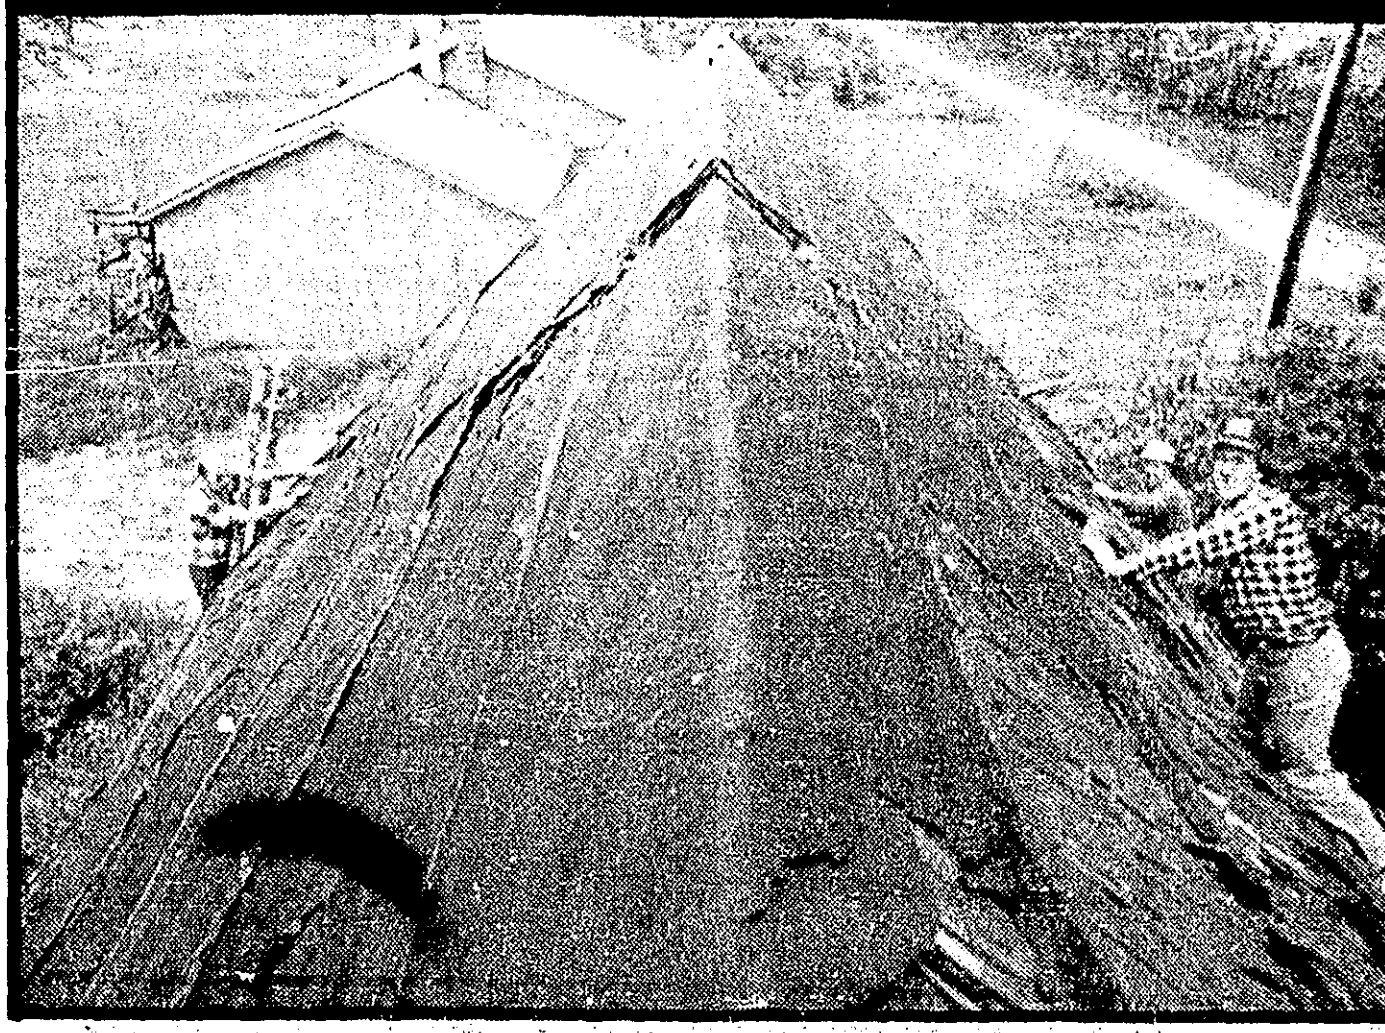

Basically, from this point on, the plot follows a familiar pattern. Old Trav ingratiates himself with Miss Sylvia, who turns out to be a mixture of both good and bad (ho ho ho!) and then consults with his friend Harold the Stone Salesman, an elderly but harmless eccentric who wallows in extravagant splendor in his lakeside villa next door.

Harold the Stone Salesman warns him about becoming involved, but Good Old Trav, who in his waning moments of consciousness gets a toehold on the villainous booger and topples him head-first into a nearby Jackpine, where the sheriff, alerted by Harold the Stone Salesman, finds them both rendered hors de combat, if you'll pardon the expression. (It's an adult novel.)

The fadeout comes with Good Old Trav reclining blissfully on the chaise longue in his modest fishing shack, with his good friend Sylvie Shapely can say Jack Robinson, or whatever it was she was saying when she was dumped off the end of the Boob Jetty's dock (or Boob Dock's jetty, I keep forgetting which one it is.)

KIWANIS MEMBERS from Manistique are involved in a project to help the Schoolcraft County Historical Society in their efforts to relocate an 80-year-old log cabin 14 miles north of town on M-94. Kiwanians are taking the roof of the structure before National Guardsmen enter with heavy equipment to move the heavy timbers. The cabin will be dismantled, moved and re-erected at the old water tower park. It will serve as an additional museum. Working on the cabin are: top photo, Jack Reque, as seen through the partially dismantled roof. Bottom photo, Reque (on left side of roof) and Gene Nagel (foreground, right side) and Bill Geeseman. School board approves bids for gas, fuel oil

With a little different atmosphere prevailing than was present the two previous meetings, the Manistique Board of Education met Tuesday night to discuss somewhat routine business.

During the hour long meeting, board members acted on only three items but discussed several other agenda items. Only a handful of people were in attendance for the meeting, a sharp contrast to the 100 plus people that had been in attendance the last several meetings while board members and school officials pondered budget problems.

The board was met with a rather pleasant surprise at the meeting during the reading of gas, fuel oil and motor oil bids.

Gas bids for the new year reflected less than a one cent increase over last year, while fuel oil showed only a 3.5 cent increase. Superintendent Richard Bonifas indicated that he was happy with the new bids.

The lower fuel bids should help the financially troubled school district, Bonifas said.

Bonifas told the school board, for their information, that gas prices in 1973 were listed as 18 cents a gallon, with fuel oil costing 12.5 cents per gallon.

By the end of 1973, Bonifas said, gasoline had risen to 29.2 cents a gallon with fuel oil reaching 26.9 per gallon.

At the end of 1974, the school district was paying 38.3 cents per gallon of gas and 31.3 cents for fuel oil.

All those gas, fuel oil, and motor oil bids were awarded to Wood's Distributing of Manistique. Wood's distributes Mobil products.

Final quotes on the gas, fuel oil and motor oil bids were: Gas—39.9 cents per gallon up to 35,000 gallons; Fuel Oil—36.9 cents per gallon up to 80,000 gallons; and motor oil—single weight, 55 gallon drums, $1.25 cents per gallon with quart cans, $1.40 cents per gallon. Multi-grade motor oil, 10W-40, was listed at $1.45 per gallon in the 55 gallon drums with quart cans sold at $1.70 a gallon.

Diesel motor oil was listed at $1.30 per gallon in the 55 gallon drums.

Board members approved the bids subject to committee action.

Board members also approved the construction of a school sign on the corner of Cedar and Main Streets. The sign will be built by high school students enrolled in the vocational education classes and is expected to be completed this fall.

The structure to be built of brick, will sport a rustic type sign reading "Manistique Area School." The 14-foot by eight foot structure also will house a planter.

A cement bench will also be included in the overall sign area for the benefit of passersby. The money to build the sign will be taken out of building and site funds.

The board also officially ratified an auxiliary workers contract that will extend to June 30, 1978. Pay increases will also be retroactive to July 1, 1977.

Teamster Local No. 328 approved the contract as negotiated on Sept. 14.

Some of the basic changes include: an hourly rate adjustment of 20 cents per hour from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1977. A five-cent increase in the hourly wage will be given to the teamsters on Jan. 1, 1978 to run to June 30, 1978.

An increase of one personal day for a total of two personal days.

Super Med continued as hospitalization insurance with employer picking up any increases.

Sample changes in hourly rates as listed in a memo from the superintendent to the board members include: clerical staff increased from $3.51 to $3.71 cents per hour; Cooks increased from $3.48 to $3.68; Custodial staff increased from $4.31 to $4.51; and bus drivers increased from $4.94 to $5.14 per hour.

An additional five cents will be added to employee paychecks in January.

Bonifas noted that the Manistique Area School District is competitive in wage rates with other school districts in the area.

In other business, Virginia Stark questioned the superintendent on the recent circus that was held in the school gym. Some damage to the gym floor resulted from the animals and equipment being placed on the floor.

Bonifas noted that the school has the insurance policy taken out by the Manistique Band Boosters, sponsors of the circus, and is attempting to receive money to cover expenses involved in repairing the floor.

In other action to come before the board: Bonifas indicated that a Lakeside fifth grade teacher may be on the payroll by Monday. He said a qualified person is interested and Bonifas said he is waiting for a letter of intent before he comes to the board with a recommendation.

Supr. Bonifas also informed the board that a transient officer has been hired by the Intermediate School District and will be in the Manistique area on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Bonifas also informed the board that professional mediation will resume on Oct. 5, at 7 p.m. The board and professional staff have yet to reach an agreement over the new contract.

Teetering Paul Bunyan's fate in council's hands

Paul Bunyan is teetering, the Manistique City Council learned Monday night. And the council put off any decision on the plywood structure's fate until its next meeting on Oct. 10.

"If we don't take it down, we'll have to shore it up," City Manager Robert Risk said the council. Risk said earlier efforts to repair and repair the facade next to Lincoln School had all failed.

He noted that if the high school wood shop made another one, it would still cost the city $700 to $800 to put it up and make it secure.

The structure, erected in 1960 by the Manistique Centennial Committee, was turned over to the city. City crews have maintained the calendar of events marquee on the structure since that time.

The council, after considering disposal of the sign, tabled any action until the next regular meeting.

In other business, the council heard comments from Rev. Ingmar Levin, pastor of the Zion Lutheran Church, concerning ambulance service at football games. Rev. Levin said that no ambulance was on hand at the Gwinn-Manistique junior varsity football game last Thursday, and an injured Gwinn player was transported to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital on a pick-up truck. Risk responded that the school apparently did not request an ambulance to be stationed at the field. "Unless the school asks for services, we don't provide them," he said.

Contacted by the Pioneer-Tribune, Superintendent of Schools Richard Bonifas said that because of the costs involved and proximity to the hospital, the schools were not ordering an ambulance to be stationed at football games. A stretcher and a station wagon or pickup truck will be available, he said, while the ambulance may still be called for very serious injuries.

In other action, the council: accepted a request from North Shore, Inc. for sewer and water line extension to a planned HUD middle-income housing project along additions to Park and Washington Streets.

agreed to lease land to the Department of Natural Resources at the end of Cedar Street for a new boat launch on the Manistique River to augment the Wyman Nursery launch. The city will retain a 66-foot right of way for Cedar Street in the 10-year agreement, for which the DNR will pay $1 a year.

accepted a low bid of $1,465 from OK

Auto Supply of Ishpeming for a steam cleaner. Manistique Auto Supply bid $1,579 and Burrigade of Nagaamtee, $1,515.50 for a Hony model 530 and $1,795 for a model 610.

accepted a low bid of $2,987.69 for chain link fencing to be installed at a new west-side park. Century Fence Co. of Waukesha, Wis. bid $3,057, and Midland Fence Co., $5,054.

learned that the Manistique Volunteer Fire Department will host the annual U.P. Firemen's Tournament July 27-29, 1978, involving 10 departments. Risk said the department's requested for a $3,500 donation will be considered during budget discussion for the next fiscal year.

authorized the city manager to advertise for bids for two new single axle dump trucks when enough federal revenue sharing funds become available.

authorized Risk to advertise for bids on gasoline.

adjusted John Mathews, HUD programs coordinator, from half time to two-thirds time employment. Doug Rose cast a no vote. Risk said Mathews' $6,600 salary would be covered by the Community Block Development Grant Program.

at the recommendation of the city manager, raised Mike Fakety's salary from $14,000 to $14,700 effective Oct. 3 in his position as superintendent of public works.

learned from City Attorney Mike Brooks that the council may not rezone city property until newspaper notice is given 15 days in advance of a hearing. The council had moved at its last meeting to rezone an area bounded by an extension of Washington Street on the north, a tourist service zone on the east, and US-2 on the south. The matter will be heard again on Oct. 24 for a final decision.

Big Boy being built here

Excavation work has begun on a new Big Boy Restaurant to be constructed on E. Lake Shore Drive on the north side of highway US-2.

Larry Stein, partner in the Stein Brothers firm that owns Big Boy Restaurants in Escanaba, Menominee, Ironwood, Iron Mountain, Houghton, Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette, said the new restaurant should be open by the end of the year.

Manistique Rentals Inc. is doing preliminary clearing and excavation work. Brandt Construction Co. of Escanaba holds the construction contract for the 4,160 square foot restaurant.

Stein said the facility, which will seat 150 persons, will employ from 50 to 60 workers, part-time and full-time.

He added that the restaurant will use the latest single-floor architectural style for a Big Boy, and will have the largest parking area of any of the Steins' restaurants in the U.P. Partners besides Larry Stein are Aaron Stein of Escanaba and Philip Stein of Ishpeming.

According to Stein, the decision to place a Big Boy franchise in Manistique was based on many requests from Manistique residents visiting other Big Boys in the U.P.

Grave exposed

A 50-year-old unmarked grave has been exposed by erosion on the north side of Lakeview Cemetery.

An official with the city's department of public works said the grave was reported about two weeks ago. A portion of a wooden coffin was exposed.

A sign was erected to keep persons from removing the hillside sand until repairs could be made.

However, more erosion has been caused by children playing on the slope, and the rainy weather. The official Wednesday said a barrier will be installed immediately and a bulldozer brought in to push rocks and sand up against the 30-foot slope.

Public works officials ask that no sand be taken from the slopes surrounding the cemetery and children be told not to play on the north side.

Tribune staff changes

The Pioneer-Tribune announces the addition of Ed Zaskie to its new staff as reporter-photographer and the naming of Mark Eisenlohr as advertising director.

Zaskie, a native of Jackson, holds a bachelor's degree in journalism from Michigan State University. He also worked in public relations for the U.S. Army while stationed in the Federal Republic of Germany from April 9, 1972 to April 7, 1975.

He received his degree with honors from MSU in June, 1977. Prior to entering the Army, he completed an associate's degree in engineering from Jackson Community College in 1971.

This past summer, he served as a volunteer writer for the Glenmary Research Center, assisting Roman Catholic parishes in three southern states. Single, Zaskie is a member of the Sierra Club.

Eisenlohr, who has served as Tribune reporter-photographer since October 1976, has assumed duties in the advertising department. He holds a journalism degree from Ferris State College, Big Rapids. He succeeds Martha Parks, who left the paper in July.

"The assignment of Mark and Ed on the Tribune's news-editorial staff should help to improve our service to advertisers and readers," said Arnold Mackowiak, general manager. "We're glad that Ed has joined us to continue our expanding news coverage efforts."

Couple exchanges vows

Miss Sharon Kay Chartier and Kenneth Woodrow Haines, Jr. were united in marriage Saturday, Aug. 20, at 4 p.m., in a garden setting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lowe in Cassopolis.

Rev. James Sparks performed the single ring ceremony. Tony Maloche, guitarist and soloist, sang his original composition "Love One Another," preceding the ceremony and "Wedding Song" and "Follow Me" as part of the ceremony.

The marriage vows were exchanged at the base of three huge boulders with the blue sky and stately trees of Big Rock Valley forming the background.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. and Mrs. Clyde Oliver Chartier of Manistique and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Woodrow Haines of Union Springs, Ala.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length sleeveless gown of ivory quina. A short capelet, attached at the neckline, fell to the waist in back and tapered in front to cross and form a sash belt over the full skirt. She carried a predominately off-white nosegay with touches of peach made of ivy and dried flowers. It was tied with brown velvet ribbon which fell into streamers.

Miss Lois Barret served the bride as maid of honor.

David Strlekar served the groom as best man.

The brides mother chose a sleeveless formal length gown of polished knit in shades of green and rose on a white background. It featured a soft draped neckline and princess line skirt. Her corsage was of dried flowers to complement her gown.

Immediately following the ceremony, champagne was served on the patio around the pool area.

Later a buffet dinner was served in the beamed dining room of the Tower's 120 yr. old home. A centerpiece of dried flowers in the bride's favorite colors and peach colored tapers adorned the table.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Edward Atkinson and Mrs. David Strlekar, friends of the bride.

The wedding cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Duane Jackson. It was iced in ivory and peach and decorated with tiny baskets of miniature straw flowers.

The couple departed for a honeymoon in Indianapolis, Ind.

Along with parents of the couple out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ryan Chartier of Harvey; Mrs. Donald Noble of Superior, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hoholick and Mr. and Mrs. Don Bruno, all of Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. and Mrs. John Livesay and family, Mrs. Carol Porter and daughters; Mr. Gregg Schumann, all of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Walter Haines of Van Wert, Ohio; Col. Senior Citizens

by Eileen Males

The other night I was watching the Match Game with Gene Rayburn as host.

He did an imitation of an elderly man that "got my dander up." It was done in such poor taste. The supposedly old man wobbled from side to side when he walked and looked and acted like someone who didn't have all his marbles.

Well, if I were an oldster I would protest vehemently about the injustices done to their age group by the TV media. The older people I know may have more wrinkles, gray hair and a few minor afflictions but they are by far more interesting, smarter than any other age group and they have a good sense of humor besides being bright, alert and fun.

I saw these comments in an article which expresses some of my feelings:

"The television industry pays too much attention to the 'Pepsi Generation' and not enough to older folks, say several congressmen and a coalition of the elderly."

"Are we so victimized by our own stereotypes that we only recognize as elderly those television characters who are toothless, sexless, humorless, witless, and constipated?" asked Rep. Claude Pepper, chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging.

Pepper, a Florida Democrat, marked his 77th birthday Thursday by conducting the hearing into how television portrays older Americans.

He was incensed over a routine performed by "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson.

"Is Johnny Carson's repertoire so limited that he cannot afford to sacrifice Aunt Blabby, his sick parody of the elderly woman?" Pepper asked.

Executives of the three major networks said they feel programs treat the elderly fairly. They said the new television season features more programs of interest to the elderly, including shows on retirement, housing, medical care, diet and recreation.

They also said more family shows this season will show the older member in a favorable light.

Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., at age 23 the youngest member of the House committee, suggested that older people boycott products they find to have offensive commercials.

For instance, he mentioned a lemonade drink advertisement that shows two elderly men playing checkers absent-mindedly.

Maggie Kuhn, 72, national leader of the Gray Panthers, said the image of the elderly on TV has improved in the last two years, but is still inaccurate.

"TV images perpetuate and reinforce the myths that old age is mindless, sexless, useless, powerless and diseased," she said.

Nicholas Johnson, chairman of the NATIONAL Citizens Communications Commission, noted that "The cultural traumas inflicted upon our parents and grandparents will be upon us soon enough, unless we snap out of our complacency and sensitize the media to the fact that America is populated by something more than the Pepsi Generation."

How do you know if your plant needs repotting? It's easy: look at its root system. The easy way to make an inspection is to knock the plant gently from its pot by inverting it and tapping the pot sharply on the edge of a counter. The soil itself must be moist when you try this trick; if it's dry the soil ball won't budge.

If the roots are thick and matted, it's high time to shift your plant to a larger pot. Choose one whose diameter is no more than two inches greater than that in which the plant has been growing. Fill in around the old soil ball with commercial potting soil from your florist; ordinary garden soil lacks both nutrients and organic matter. Firm the new soil well, using a trowel if necessary; if it's too soft, any water you apply will quickly run through the new soil, leaving the original soil and its roots bone-dry.

Send flowers by wire.

Emeralds lose to No. 1 Miners and the rain

The Emeralds' 14-12 loss Friday to Negaunee obviously did not help their position in the Mid-Peninsula Conference standings.

But it did help the Miners in the Class C state ratings. Following their victory in the rain, Negaunee moved from No. 2 to No. 1 in the Associated Press poll released this week.

But despite the loss to the top-ranked Miner squad, Emerald Coach Dan Skatzka believes his charges still have a chance for a share of the 1977 title.

"I could see a team with two losses possibly trying for the championship," Skatzka said. "We've got a real good chance for at least a tie."

He went on to say the team attitude is good. "We're about as good a football team as there is in the U.P.," he said. "We can play ball with anyone up here."

The Emeralds showed it, too, against the Miners. After playing deep in their own territory in the early part of the contest because of strong Negaunee punting, they launched a 79-yard drive that culminated in a two-yard run by Doug Bertrand for the first TD of the game. The PAT try failed, however.

The 6-0 margin held until the third quarter, when Gary Garceau scored on a 21-yard run and Pete Chevrette booted the extra point to make it 7-6 and give Negaunee the lead for good.

The Miners padded the margin in the fourth quarter when Larry Rasmussen crashed in from the one and the extra point made it 14-6.

Manistique rallied, scoring on a punt blocked by John Pelon at the Miner 30. Ken Beckman picked up the loose ball and scampered in from the 15. The PAT attempt failed.

The Emeralds engineered another drive late in the quarter, but ran out of time with the ball on the Negaunee 25.

"Penalties hurt," Skatzka said, noting his squad's 80 yards in assessments to 5 for the Miners. He particularly pointed to a 15-yarder called for unsportsmanlike conduct that was called when the Manistique bench protested a Miner defensive action. The Emeralds had the ball on the Miner 45 at the time.

Skatzka credited the offensive line with an outstanding job in the first half. The line includes Randy Schnurer, Ed Roddy, Forrest Hedglen, Kevin Beckman and Tom Anthony.

Skatzka also said the rain hurt Manistique more than the rushing-oriented Miners. Even so, the Emeralds Passed for 102 yards by completing 7 of 12 attempts. Negaunee had 14 yards through the air on 1 of 6 tries.

Manistique outrushed the Miners, 174 yards on 47 lugs to the hosts' 122 on 31 tries, and collected 16 first downs to Negaunee's 5. Manistique fumbled once and Negaunee, twice.

D.J. Brady again led the ground game with 81 yards on 24 attempts. Doug Bertrand chipped in 55 yards on 12 carries and Tony McLaren added 33 on 7 tries. Quarterback Norm Jahn collected 75 yards on 6 completions among 11 throws.

League JV showdown: Emeralds vs. Ishpeming

An early showdown for supremacy in the Mid-Peninsula Conference junior varsity race is set in Manistique at 7 p.m. today when Ishpeming invades the Emeralds' turf.

The Hematites and Manistique share 2-0 marks in league play.

Last Thursday, the Emeralds blasted Negaunee 34-0, bringing their record up to 3-1 overall.

The JVs dominated the contest, scoring at least one touchdown in each quarter. In the first period, Rob Cook made it to the end zone on a 30-yard option to open the scoring. The PAT attempt failed.

In the second quarter, Scott Weber went up the middle for 10 yards for the next score. Brian Smith passed to Weber for a two-point conversion. The Emeralds concluded the first half scoring with Steve Hicks going up the middle for 10 yards and a TD. The PAT attempt failed.

Smith connected with Brian Hewitt in the third period for a 70-yard pass play, good for another six points. The PAT try was no good. Weber tallied the final touchdown in the fourth stanza when he returned a Miner punt for 72 yards. Cook busted in for a two-point conversion.

A top defensive effort were turned in by Bob Minor, tackle. Coach Dan Skatzka also credited offensive interior linemen with a fine game. They are Mark Burnis, Tom Broullire, Ben Godlewski, Paul Swanson and Gene Wood.

Smith and Jim Demers intercepted two Negaunee passes.

Rudyard, 3-1 next for Emeralds

The Manistique Emeralds Traveling Road Show has one more stop before playing at home on Oct. 7.

For the fifth straight week, the Emeralds will play an away game when they journey to Rudyard Friday night to face the Bulldogs, 3-1, in a non-conference contest.

Coach Dan Skatzka said Rudyard still is strong on personnel, as many residents of the area still haven't left following the closing of Kincheloe Air Force Base.

The Bulldogs, featuring a speedy backfield, run from the old single wing. The only other U.P. school using the old formation is Ironwood.

"I've never run into a single wing before," Skatzka said. "It's a new experience for me." The Emeralds still favor the Wishbone T and the option. After Friday, the Emeralds will have their first 1977 home game against Norway on Oct. 7.

Rudyard's only loss was to Gwin, 25-0.

Black Bears host DeTour

The Big Bay de Noc Black Bears hope to get untracked at home Saturday when they entertain DeTour.

"We're really hoping to get some points on the board," said Coach Paul Babladelis. "We've got our offense going."

The Black Bears, 0-3, still are looking for their first touchdown of the season. They were blanked 12-0 by North Central on a muddy, water-soaked field during Saturday's rain.

The Jets scored both touchdowns in the second quarter. Tom Dombrowski reached the end zone first on a 11-yard run. Later, Dave Dupart connected with Todd Paquette for a 65-yard touchdown pass play.

"We reorganized our defense and they didn't score the second half," Coach Babladelis noted.

The Black Bears, who netted 126 total yards, were one foot away from scoring in the final quarter when time ran out.

Pacing the Bear defense was John Lucas, with 6 solo tackles and 8 assists. Lucas played middle linebacker on defense and upback on offense.

Frosh 0-4

The Emerald freshman griders didn't have a chance to reverse a bad trend Wednesday. The freshman scheduled game with Saul Ste. Marie was cancelled because injuries left the Emeralds with too few players to field a squad.

After their 28-14 loss to Negaunee on Sept. 21, the freshmen fell to a 0-4 record for the season.

Trailing 14-0 by halftime, Manistique scored in the third quarter when Joe Vaughn ran for a three-yard touchdown. A PAT try failed. Leo McNamara and Greg Putvin teamed for another Emerald TD when they combined for a 25-yard pass play for a six-pointer. McNamara added a two-point conversion on a run.

But the Miner's 14 points in the second half kept the Emeralds out of reach of an elusive win.

Four coaches have volunteered their time to the freshman team without pay: Brian O'Dell, Tom Miller, Dan Skatzka and Paul Cappoferri. Eighteen players currently are on the roster.

Girl cagers top Big Bay 51-44

The Manistique Emeralds girls' basketball team beat the Lady Bears of Big Bay de Noc, 51 to 44, Tuesday night.

The resolute Lady Bears gave the Emeralds a rough time with their accurate outside shooting ability. However, Emeralds Karen Krusic and Mary Gregurash scored a game total of 15 and 14 points respectively to give their team an edge. Jackie Krusic scored 10 points to round out the scoring for the Emeralds.

High scorer for Big Bay de Noc was C.

LeGault with 13 points. Their leading rebounder was C. Segerstrom with a total of 14.

The Emeralds girls' basketball team dropped a decision to highly rated Escanaba, 63-53, last Thursday night. The host Eskymos of Escanaba collected a total of 40 fouls. However, the Emeralds failed to take advantage of this by only sinking 14 of their free throws.

The Emerald's junior varsity girls' basketball team scored an impressive victory, 42-22, over the Big Bay de Noc Lady Bears Tuesday night. Becky England led the scoring for the Emeralds with 19. Mary Walter had nine points. Every player on the Emeralds' team got into the game.

The Emeralds did not fare as well Tuesday, however, in losing to the Escanaba Eskymos 49-17. High scorer for the Emeralds was Pattie Hoholik with 7. The Emeralds' top rebounder was Becky England with seven.

Goose season

SENEY--The Seney National Wildlife Refuge has announced that limited goose hunting will again be allowed in a portion of the Seney Goose Management Area.

The goose hunting season within the open portion of the "management area" begins Oct. 1 and ends Oct. 30 unless the total kill exceeds 700 birds, based on the best estimates of state and federal officials, at which time the hunting season will be closed earlier.

Check hunting regulations for '77

DNR Regional Law Supervisor Bernard Morgan reminds Upper Peninsula hunters of three specific hunting regulations:

The Upper Peninsula Oct. 1 duck season opens at 7:35 a.m., not 10 a.m. as has been erroneously reported in several instances.

Shooting is not legal if a weapon of any kind (rifle, bow, shotgun or pistol) is in the which permitted shining if the weapon was locked in a trunk are no longer in effect.

Flourescent orange caps, coats or jackets must be worn between Oct. 1, 1977 and March 31, 1978 while hunting with firearms. The only exceptions to this so-called "Hunter's Orange Law," Michigan Public Act 68 of 1977, are waterfowl hunters in boats or blinds and persons hunting bobcats, crows or turkeys.

What really happened to the brewery in 1908?

On December 10, 1889, Samuel Brown was officially recorded in the United States land grants as the legal owner of a tract of land located just three miles north-west of Manistique.

It is believed the tract was awarded during a homestead era of land giveaways by the government. That land, after changing hands, would become the site of the short-lived, and sometimes controversial, Willebrand-Manistique Brewing Company.

According to an abstract of the land supplied by Pete Cherneski, the rights to build a dam on the Indian River, presumably where the present brewery dam is now located, were given to the Chicago Lumber Company.

But that was in 1888, one year before the land became titled to Brown. It is a mystery that may remain a mystery until someone can come forward with an explanation.

However, the abstract records, three years after Brown gained control of the land, he sold it. That much is known for certain. And then eight years later, it was sold again. This time to the Manistique

Memoirs

By Mark Eisenlohr

Brewing Company in 1900. The land sold for $5,000 on a warranty deed.

It is possible that the brewing company had a rough time at the start. For in one year, it was mortgaged to the Chicago Lumber Company in 1901—the Manistique Brewing Company was liquidated and became the Willebrand-Manistique Brewing Company.

The abstract doesn't say if Willebrand bought the fledgling Manistique Brewing Company, or if he was part of the original business. Another mystery that may remain for some time.

Over the next eight years, the abstract records some minor mortgages and the repayment dates. And then in 1908, it records that Sheriff Magnus Klagstad issued a Sheriff's Deed on the property and planned to sell it at a public auction.

No explanation, at least one a layman could read, was provided. However, using past information, the Sheriff's Deed was issued about the time that the brewery burned to the ground.

It is possible, then, that the Willebrand-Manistique carried no insurance, or at least minimal insurance. Faced with a destroyed business and debts to various creditors, it was forced to sell their land.

That theory tends to hold at least a little water, for the Sheriff's Deed listed the property as worth $22,000. It also showed that the brewing company owed one Henry C. Wideman, a trustee, $20,000.

The next recorded transaction is a quit-claim deed issued to Weideman for $1 for the land owned by the Willebrand-Manistique.

Weideman kept the property until 1928 when it was sold to P.N. Hopkins, who in turn kept the property until 1962 when it was sold to Cherneski via and Estate Sale of Mabel Hopkins, the wife of P.N. Hopkins.

It is interesting to note that the house now occupied by Cherneski is the original house that was built on that land. It has gone through extensive remodeling. Nonetheless, underneath that new wood lies a bit of history.

It is also interesting to point out that across the road where the brewing house itself was located, remains the original basement, now supporting a brick styled house built by the late Leon Wood and occupied by his family.

So two pieces of history was preserved. But wait. Right next door to Cherneski, just a few short yards north, is the house that was built by the brewing company to house its offices. That, too, has been remodeled, but nonetheless, is still there.

And of course, right where Cherneski's garage is located sat the bottling works. Company employees would haul the "best beer around" across the road to be bottled and shipped out.

And what they call the brewery dam is still there. Although a little different, possibly, than the one used by the brewery and built by the Chicago Lumber Co., it still lies in the same location.

But there is still a little mystery surrounding the brewery. And a little controversy. Like the stories told about the burning of the brewery.

How did it start? Was it set afire on purpose? Just what were the assets of the company? Was it doing poorly business-wise?

Those are some of the questions that come to mind. The answer could lie in the last two questions, if the answers could be found.

According to several old timers of the area who remember the brewery or who grew up around that time, it is believed that the brewery was burned to the ground in order to put it out of business. The arsonist reportedly took a trip up the river for the foul deed.

Names were mentioned, sometimes changing depending on which person relates the story, but in all cases the circumstances are the same. Which leads one to believe that there is some validity there somewhere.

In any case, the facts as told are that a certain bottling company hired a person to set the Willebrand-Manistique Brewery on fire because competition from the local beer was just too great. Which at least tells us that the beer must have been good.

But that's about it. A few mysteries still surround one of the most unique breweries in the Upper Peninsula.

Next week we'll take a look at the brewery operation itself and some comments from Cherneski and Louis Sauheil, and 80-plus year old resident of Manistique who remembers Willebrand and his sons.

Monday night I had the distinct pleasure of working with members of the Kiwanis Club on a project of some historical significance.

As a community project, Kiwanis members volunteered their services to the Schoolcraft County Historical Society in preparing an 80-year-old log cabin to be moved from its site 14 miles north of town to the old water tower park.

The job sounds easier than what it actually was.

Kiwanis were to remove the roof of the structure so that National Guardsmen could enter with heavy equipment and remove the logs to be transported into town.

The cabin traces its beginnings back to the Hiawatha Colony when the original owner was a member. As the story goes, he was disgruntled and wanted out. However, other members didn't see it like that, and burned his cabin down.

But, the court didn't think to highly of that, and ordered the cabin rebuilt, away from the colony. It was rebuilt on the property now owned by Fred Jones, out M-94 past the Four Square Church.

The cabin will be brought into town and re-erected as part of a park museum.

But, Monday night Kiwanis members were still working on the roof. Actually, we got a lot accomplished for a rainy, dark night. It reminded me a little bit of the old fashioned work bees or barn raisings that used to be held.

Especially when members of the Schoolcraft County Historical Society brought forth sandwiches, chili, coffee and cake. Better food was never tasted.

Paul Bunyan's last stand?

Paul Bunyan soon may vanish from Manistique, unless some local organization or concerned citizens group takes his cause before the city fathers.

City councilmembers Monday night debated the merits of retaining the facade structure near Lincoln School. One piece of the plywood outline of the legendary character already has fallen. The paint is faded on the 17-year old structure, which does not have the firmest support.

And the fact that old Paul is situated in an area adjacent to the Lincoln playground can cause a few jitters about its stability.

Plans to repaint and repair the facade, which also serves as a community marquee for local events, also have gone away.

And now, councilmembers are balking at spending from $500 to $800 to either repair or replace the landmark.

The city has been responsible for Paul ever since the 1960 centennial committee turned him over to the council, and city crews have changed the lettering on the marquee over the years.

Many people have expressed an interest in preserving Mr. Bunyan, both as a focal point for community events and as a tourist attraction. These persons should show up at the next city council meeting on Oct. 10, when a decision on Paul's fate is expected.

We believe the structure is worth replacing or preserving, and necessary money should be spent toward making it sturdy and safe, as well as attractive. And if the city refuses to take action, we're sure there are enough interested individuals around to produce a few volunteers to do the job.

There really is no reason the council should hesitate in its decision. The Paul Bunyan sign is the only purely community-oriented calendar in the area. Its disappearance would leave a definite gap in public communication. Its current sorry appearance also presents a bad image for the city, especially for visitors and tourists.

Beyond a new face for Paul, councilmembers may be wise not to get the big guy rooted too well in his spot at the intersection of US-2 and M-94. He may need to either be moved or replaced again if plans to reroute US-2 through the highway are realized within the next few years. By that time, the city may come up with something more unique to identify this forest and water-rich area on the windward side of Lake Michigan.

But until then, Paul needs better treatment where he stands right now.

An auditorium causes lopsided pain in neck.

Upon the occasion of my most recent birthday, my son Nerd presented me with a bottle of vitamin pills and a bottle of gin. "For your health and happiness," he explained. The kid is only half bad.

The most touching birthday gift came from my baby sister, Linda. It was my old address screwed into a jagged hunk of wood. The wood was rescued from the pile of rubble that used to be my boyhood home at 1020 Pine Grove Ave. in Fort Huron.

Lately I have done much sobbing, because 1020 is being replaced by a parking lot.

Along with the sobbing came some vivid reminiscing about what pains in the butt my four sisters were to their only brother.

Linda thought I had the 1020 address to hang on my apartment wall, maybe I would shut my big mouth. Probably not. From my biggest and oldest sister, Terrible Jean, there was a mere birthday card.

She included a note saying I had finally written something with which she agreed— explanation of Billy Carter's popularity.

I said Billy draws crowds to carnivals because he is such a tremendous comfort to all otherwise respectable families that must put up with an idiot brother.

If it can happen to the president of the United States, it can happen to anybody. "It happened to our family," Terrible Jean said.

Several readers have questioned the truth of my contention that Terrible Jean has always abused me terribly.

If the above paragraph is not evidence enough, hear this:

The birthday card she sent me was one she received herself four years ago. She pasted a strip of paper over the message written to her, so she would have room to call me an idiot.

"Excuse the patch job," she wrote in a postscript, "but you are not worth 40 cents. I swear to God I do not make these things up."

The most frequent complaint I hear about Detroit's Renaissance Center is that there's no place to park. I spent several days investigating this problem, on the scene, and I have a solution.

Across the street from the center there is a large parking lot that is usually mostly empty. Several signs say only lawyers can park there.

Just a few steps down the street is the University of Detroit Law School. The quickest way to find a parking place at the Renaissance Center is to enroll at U-D and earn a law degree to be validated at the lawyers parking lot.

At Whiting Auditorium in Flint, you can get a lopsided pain in the neck. In the several balconies that line both sides of the theater, the seats face straight ahead. If you sit in a normal posture, the only thing you can see is the people in the balcony on the other side, staring back at you. To see the stage, you must turn your head permanently in that direction. "Now I know how it feels to watch half a tennis match," the man beside me said.

I shouldn't complain about Disney World, says Art McCafferty of Ypsilanti. He claims he was at an amusement park "so bad the spook house consisted of a blindfolded walk through their Porta-john."

"Chorus Line" is not the most exciting musical I've seen in Detroit in the last few years. "Selma" is. That's Tommy Butler's spirited salute to Martin Luther King Jr. The music and the foot stomping and the message are all marvelous. "Selma" would make a great TV special, if TV producers only had that much sense.

My wife and I caught "Selma" at the Music Hall toward the end of its run. Pat noted that ours were the only white faces in the audience. After the show we went to the Soup Kitchen for jazz, and Pat noted that ours were the only people there with gray hair. "Everywhere you take me," she said, "we are usually the oldest people or the whitest people in the place."

"Why is that?" I told her it's because I have spring in my heart and watermelon in my soul.

My recent column on the Bible brought me more and more quotations from that good book. Probably the most succinct was Proverbs 18-7: "A fool's mouth is his destruction, and his lips are the snarl of his soul." At least it doesn't say anything about my typewriter.

Mercer Ellington and the Duke's orchestra gave a fine concert at the Pontchartrain. After the show Ellington joined the crowd downstairs around Ernie Swan's piano.

When Ernie congratulated Ellington on his concert, Ellington replied, "Coming from you, Ernie, that is a real compliment."

I don't report this exchange of praise to make Ernie feel good. I do it to prove to my wife that part of my job is sitting around piano bars.

Any ideas to combat bat horde?

Bats and humans have never been the greatest of friends, but it seems that lately bats have been in the news more than ever before.

Almost every family has had the occasion to chase a bat that may have wandered in through the fireplace or an attic window. Women go into hysterics and some poor man is dispatched to administer the coup de grace with a broom to the unsuspecting bat.

I had never given bats much thought. Oh, once in a while I would notice them swooping around just at dusk. I can remember seeing them while fishing many an evening, but until the last few months, that was about the extent of my interest in bats.

Then sometime ago, I was shown an ad from the Christian Science Monitor for bat manure. The ad claimed that bat manure was the finest of natural fertilizers, but all I could think of were the poor people who had to go into the bat's caves to harvest (if that's the right word) the bat manure.

Later on last summer, I was privileged to participate in a local "bat night." I'm sure many of you can remember as a youngster gathering around a back yard fire after the sun has set and watching the bats swarm overhead and swoop to within just a few feet. It was a kind of an eerie feeling as a kid and age hasn't changed it all that much.

Bat night was a great success at recapturing some of my lost youth and I had just about put bats out of mind until an article in a recent edition of the Milwaukee Journal caught my eye.

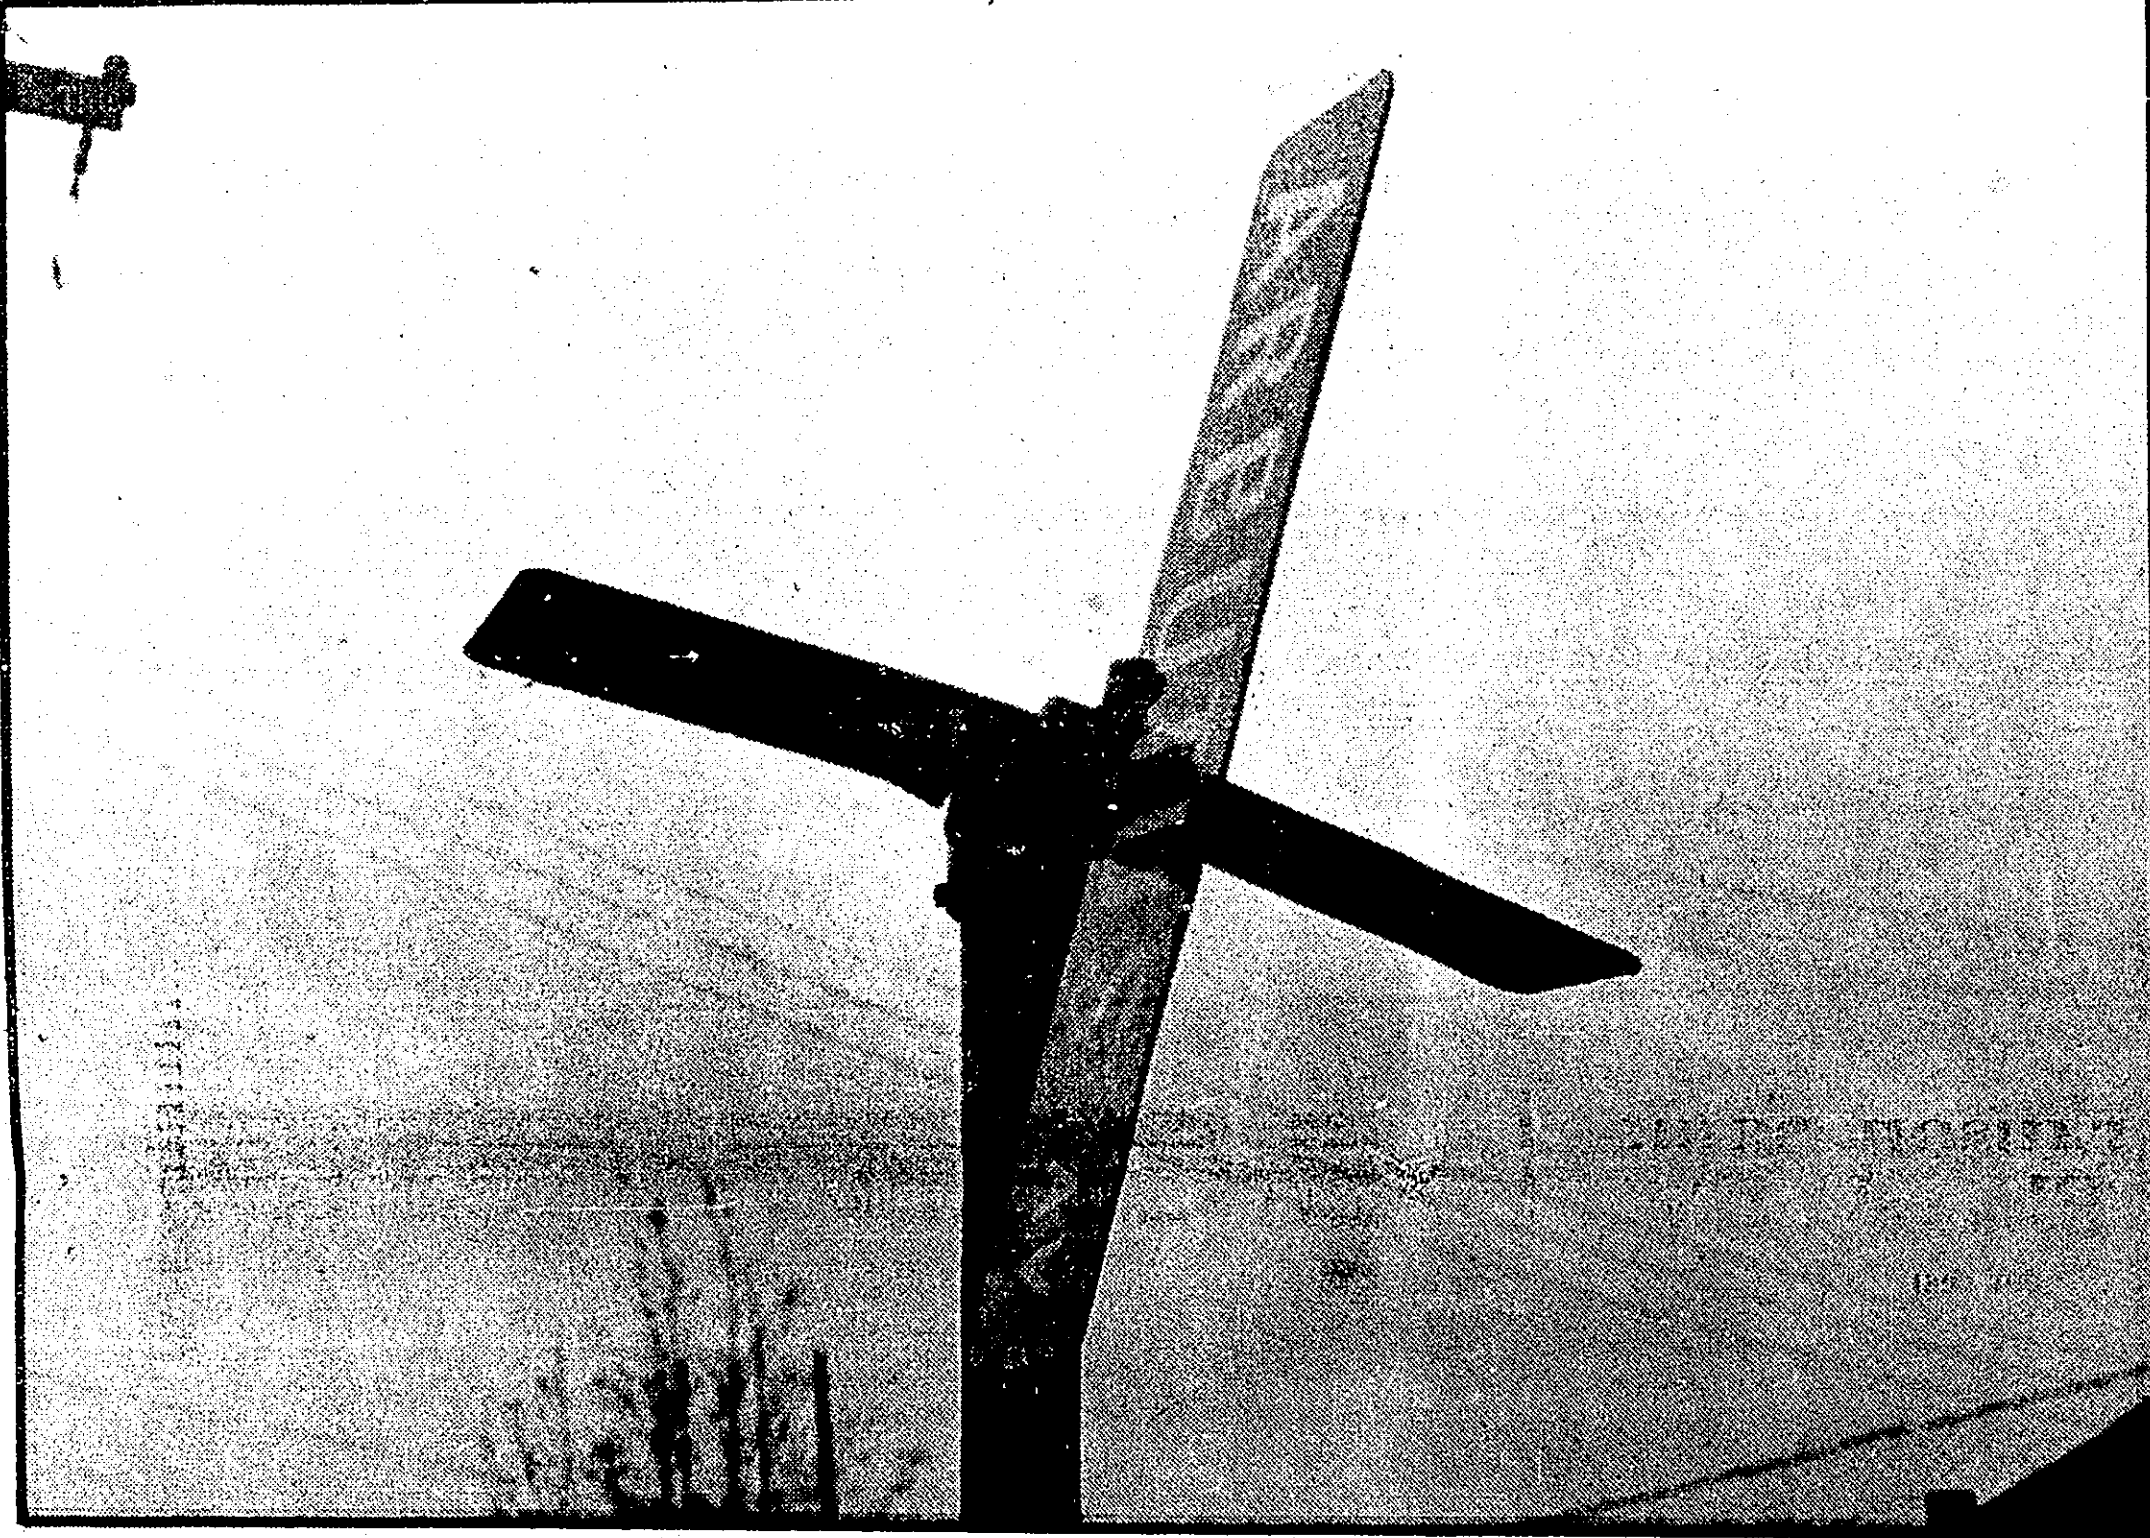

It seems that the citizens of Hurley, Wis. were invaded by bats. The bats were attracted by the bright lights and the problem has been intensifying the past couple of years, diminishing only in winter when the bats hibernate.

By daybreak, the bats cover the doors and ceilings of store entrances and as many as one hundred bats were killed in one doorway.

Where did the bats come from and why were they so visible these past couple of years?

Although there is no hard proof, the theory runs that the bats came from the abandoned iron mines that surround the Hurley-Ironwood area. The mines have been filling with water and the bats have had to leave in search of new homes.

No one has come up with a solution to the problem. There has been some concern expressed over the danger of rabies from the bats and help has been sought at both the state and federal level. However, Hurley and Ironwood residents were taken to shooting the bats with BB guns until a more permanent solution to the problem could be found.

WHEN VANDALS have "fun," every taxpayer pays a bit of the bill. Pranksters apparently had a field day recently bending several street signs in Manistique. The damage will be costly in terms of city crew repair time, and materials.

Residents should report any acts of vandalism to city police as soon as possible. (Tribune photo)

Fruitless attempt to outwit sleep

Sleep is one of those necessary activities of life. It also can be one of the most self-indulgent.

We may keep a precise count of the number of hours we get each night, then expect a couple of extra hours on the weekend as our birthright. We may demand the extra time to "balance" inadequate sleep over the previous few nights.

But, then if Charlie down the street gets up to go fishing at 5 a.m. and leaves a note on your door saying "You missed the sunshine," you may feel as if you've lost some social status.

Some may even try to outwit their body's need for rest in an effort to get needed work done.

"This is ridiculous," one college junior said to his roommates as he slammed down a history text. "I can't get any studying done while you guys are around. By the time I get to bed, it's one or two a.m. and I haven't got any work done and I can't get up in time for breakfast."

Studying at the library was no answer either, what with those big lounge chairs providing an instant invitation to Z time.

To this enterprising collegian, the answer was to hit the sack around 7:30 or 8

Side Tracks

by Arnold Mackowiak

p.m., while the rest of the dormitory world was either making vain attempts to study or playing broomstick hockey in the halls.

Then, he reasoned, he would arise at 3 a.m. when everyone else slept. A few hours of silent study and breakfast afterwards. Sounded ideal.

But it didn't work. For one thing, the conscious world paid no attention to the innovative sleep schedule. Doors opened and closed, radios from other rooms sifted in sounds of hard rock, and muted voices uttered disbelief and wonder over the ingenious study plan.

Puffy-eyed, the enterprising student awakened at 3 a.m., pulled on his glasses and opened a geography text.

Then the silence was broken. One roommate sat up in bed, still sleeping, and announced his reaction to a peculiar dream.

"Not bad. Not good," he sleep-shouted. Then there was the restless mattress-pounding of another dozing roommate who was on the varsity wrestling squad. Grunts and pillow take-downs, no less.

Add to these distractions a few intermittent bathroom calls by a third roommate, and it became clear that the sleeping population was virtually as inconsiderate as it was when awake.

Similar deductions prompted other students to study all-night and morning before a big test, or work 24 hours straight on a research paper, then sleep 12 hours, work 24 again and sleep 12. And those tactics were employed as much to force the body to sleep soundly as they were to meet a cram schedule.

Tales of the sleep habits of Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Edison and other great figures of history reveal that the number of hours of sleep you get is far less important than what you do with your waking hours.

Maybe I'll consider that after my next nap on the couch.

Renting can be complicated work

Renting an apartment or house is more complicated than simply selecting a place, paying the rent on time and expecting full satisfaction from the landlord. Much misunderstanding and frustration can be avoided, however, if tenants understand and exercise both their rights and responsibilities.

Before searching for an apartment or house, figure out your finances and set an absolute limit on what you will spend for housing. To prevent temptation, don't even look at places renting for more than that amount. Remember to include all the extra expenses such as parking, maintenance work, water, garbage, electricity and heat which may not be covered by the regular rent.

If utilities are extra, ask the utility company for past records of utility bills and be prepared for higher utility bills due to increasing energy costs. When utilities are included in the rent, see if there are thermostats to regulate the heat or the place may be freezing in winter. If you are a low-energy consumer, you may also want to check the energy habits of the other tenants. Otherwise, your rent may reflect the other tenants' use of electricity.

It's the tenants' responsibility also to look closely at an apartment or house before deciding to rent it.

Consider the sound-conditioned construction of the place. Generally, the more solid the walls, the quieter the unit will be. Try out the range, refrigerator, dishwasher, exhaust fan and garbage disposal to see how well they work. Look around for storage space and electrical outlets in each room. Check the bathroom drains, toilet, shower and tub to see if they are in good working condition. You may also want to turn on hot water faucets to see if you can get hot water in both places at the same time.

Understanding the lease is another responsibility of the tenant. A lease may be either a written document or an oral agreement between a tenant and the landlord outlining the conditions mutually acceptable for the rental place. Both are legally binding but a written lease may give you more security if a problem arises with the landlord.

What's Cooking: Peaches

by Carl Olson Michigan Department of Agriculture

This is a great time of year to be writing about Michigan fruits and vegetables. It's harvest season and markets are overflowing with produce fresh from the fields.

Among my late-summer favorites are peaches. I really miss them when they are not available. Incidentally, Michigan is usually around sixth in production among the 50 states, with the crop running between 40 and 60 million pounds annually, says the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

A great fruit for just eating out of hand, peaches are also versatile in the kitchen. One intriguing dessert my wife and I have prepared is Michigan Caramelized Peaches.

Peel six or seven peaches and cut into thick slices. Put them aside in a colander for about two hours to allow excess juices to drain. They'll darken a little but it doesn't matter.

Place the fruit in a deep pie dish, leaving at least 1 inch of space above the peaches. Now whip 1 1/2 cups of Michigan Grade A heavy cream until thick. Add one tablespoon of vanilla and continue beating until the cream is very firm.

Spread the whipped cream over the peaches and place the dish in the freezing compartment for two hours.

Here's the interesting part. Preheat the broiler and sprinkle 1 1/2 cups of brown sugar over the top of the whipped cream. It should be not less than one-half inch thick and should completely cover the cream. Place under the broiler, no more than 4 to 5 inches from the heat, and broil for 2 or 3 minutes, or until the top is hot and crunchy. Unless to say, serve at once.

The Indians could send a rallying cry many, many miles by drums. Each drummer, stationed on a lonely ridge, would listen for the sound of distant drums, and relay the message to others waiting across the valley. Overnight a dozen tribes could be rallied to a common cause. We don't need such crude methods of communication today. Men with a common purpose can join forces around the world at a pre-arranged time.

BELLS AROUND THE WORLD

World Wide Communion Sunday is such an expression of unity. In every Christian land the church bells will summon men and women to the Lord's Supper on this Sunday. And the universality of this great religious event will not depend on bells-ringing the message from town to town. It will depend on folks like yourself coming to their Church to receive this Holy Sacrament.

The piano takes the lead, plinking out the melody. The bass soon provides the boom-pah, boom-pah of its deep voice. The tamborines and gourd add a little rhythm to the piece, while the kazoo help out on the melody.

It's not the 76 Trombones found in The Music Man, but it is an exceptionally fine band comprised of senior citizens from around this area.

Exceptionally fine because they took a first place at the State Fair in Escanaba this year. But awards are just acknowledgements of previous achievements.

And the Senior Swingers have already achieved.

"One of the definitions that the dictionary gives for music is the art of putting sounds together in beautiful or pleasing arrangement. This well may be true but we at the center have our own definitions when come to the kind of music the Senior Swingers' band and chorus produces," says Sharon Gardner, activities director at the Senior Citizens Center, and band leader.

"First on the list is fun with a capital F. Not far behind are comradeship, self esteem, a learning experience and the real value of bringing joy to others," she says. And the band really brings joy to the area people. Ask them. From the Medicare building in Manistique to the Bishop Noa Home in Escanaba, senior citizens are entertained by the musical group.

Or it may be the students of Doyle School, or the students of Hiawatha School, which the band visited Wednesday, Sept. 28.

"You know I ran out of my vitamin and hormone pills," says Tillie Tennant, the confessed joker of the group. She was referring to a skit she wrote last fall for members of the group.

"When we first started playing, people used to put all these chairs out and we didn't need them. We move around so much," Gardner said, as members of the band echoed, "We don't need them," during a recent band practice held at the center.

"Did you miss me while I was gone," says Tillie, as the group responds in unison with a yes. Tillie recently spent several weeks in the east.

"Music has always been a part of my life," a more serious Tillie said later in a phone interview. She has been with the band since they first formed two years ago.

"You do more than just play," says Tillie, who added, "to tell you the truth I like to show off. I get a kick out of that."

Tillie says she'd like to do a solo before an audience sometime but admits she doesn't have the nerve to sing alone. With a laugh she adds, almost as a warning, "My voice needs cultivating before it gets plowed under."

Other band members echo the thoughts of Tillie when she says the band does more than just play.

Pete Gorsche plays the banjo for the group and has been involved with the group for a year.

"We feel as though if we can make somebody smile, somebody that maybe hasn't smiled for a long time, we're doing something," Gorsche said.

"Of course we have a director that's putting a lot into the group because of her knowledge in music," he added.

Gorsche, like other members of the group, feels strong about the leadership of the band.

"If you don't have a good boss you're not going anywhere. If we didn't have a director we wouldn't have the show," Gorsche said. But he is quick to add that individual members of the group are just as important.

"She's got a group of people that are doing things now that didn't think they would be doing a year ago," he said. Band members haven't forgotten the first director, either. Norma Johnson started the band two years ago, but because of time limitations had to resign as leader.

Band members said that without her to start the band two years ago, they wouldn't be where they are today.

When first started, the band and chorus were billed as the Kitchen Kut-Ups. But they changed that name to Senior Swingers to more accurately describe the group and to escape an image.

"We're trying to get away from the image of the old foggies," said Gardner. "They do all the old songs—nothing against old songs—but we like the new songs better," she said.

"Other bands don't always sing either. If they do, they're really bad."

Senior Swingers have had a lot of practice singing, though. It's not just singing for an audience. On bus trips to perform, the group sings all the way there. They perform, and then sing all they way back home again.

Tillie interjects again, "I have to leave early today to play for a funeral," as the group breaks out in laughter.

"There's a secret to the band's success says Gardner, "I'd say at least two out of three times we play we try to include the audience. That's why people think we're so good."

Gardner enjoys leading the group. It's evident in the way she talks of them and their performances.

"We try to perform with gusto and bring a smile to a face. Not just an ordinary smile but a smile sometimes formed on the lips of someone that had forgotten how, or a gleam to a pair of eyes whose owner thought there was nothing left he really wanted to see," says Gardner of the band's objectives.

The band is becoming well known and respected in the community and around the U.P. As Gardner says: "You might say we're the top salesman in selling the idea that recreation is important to everyone."

But as Elhel Nelson, the oldest member of the group at 80 years old, puts it: "It's nice for us old duffers. It gives us something to do."

When should corn silage be harvested?

Corn silage harvesting will soon be occurring. The moisture content of corn silage at harvest is a very important factor because it determines how good the silage will be as a feed.

Corn silage should be harvested between 28 and 40 percent dry matter. Usually when the kernels are dented the silage would be about 30 to 32 percent matter. Often the corn suffers from a frost before the dent stage and appears to be dried down enough to make silage.

However, the whole plants is probably not dry enough, only the leaves are dry and stalk and ears are very wet. The stalk and ears contain the most moisture and it takes a few hard freezes before dough stage corn becomes dry enough to make good silage.

Checking the kernel moisture content on any grain moisture tester is an easy way to see if the corn is ready to make into corn silage. Kernel moisture of 30 to 40 percent or 60 to 70 percent dry matter would equal a whole plant moisture content of 70 percent moisture of 30 percent dry matter and would make excellent corn silage.

Corn silage harvested too moist will undergo excessive fermentation and produce excess acids. Cows will not eat as much of this type of silage and this will result in lost production.

Silage can be too dry also, but this doesn't occur as often as the too wet silages. If too dry, the silage will mold.

Remember, good corn silage is made at 28 to 40 percent dry matter of when the

Complete training

Graduates of Manistique High School, they joined the Navy in December 1976.

UREA ADDITION TO CORN SILAGE:

This may be the year for adding urea to corn silage at harvesting. The reason, the price of soybean meal has risen to its highest since 1974. For the past couple of years soybean meals has been reasonably priced but the price this year may remain at the current high level.

By adding urea at harvest, the protein of corn silage can be raised and result in a substantial feed cost savings. Instead of feeding a 20 percent protein grain ration, a 16 percent protein ration could be used and this would result in a great economic savings.

The recommended level of urea to use is 10 pounds per ton mixed into the silage. A metering device can also be made simply by having a container attached to the silo blower that will hold about 60 pounds of urea.

A plywood box with a slanting bottom will work nicely and plans for construction are available at the extension office.

For a complete corn silage feed for hifers in addition to the 10 pounds of urea, two pounds agricultural gypsum and two pounds trace mineralized salt can be added to a ton of silage. This will make the feed a complete ration with no added supplementation needed.

AVOID SILO GAS POISONING:

Nitric oxide gas is a colorless, odorless gas produced by reduction of nitrate when silage acids are formed. Nitrogen dioxide, a reddish-brown gas, and nitrogen tetroxide, a yellow gas, each have a sharp irritating odor. All three gases are lethal and may be present in any silo, at least for several days after filling.

The gases are heavier than oxygen and accumulate just above the silage surface, in the silo chute, or the feed room. Be sure to ventilate the silo and feed room adequately by removing the door just above the silage level, and open doors and windows of the silo room to the outside. Run the blower for several minutes before entering and leave it on while working in the silo.

Carbon dioxide is produced rapidly by fermentation after ensiling. The concentration may be so high as to exclude oxygen from the silo air and cause sickness or death. Never enter a sealed silo without proper equipment and never enter any silo soon after filling unless someone is available to help in an emergency.

CAPACITY OF SILAGE WAGONS:

How do you calculate the tons of corn silage on a chopper wagon? Here's how:

One ton of 30 percent dry matter corn silage equals 100 cubic ft. Example: 14 ft. long wagon, 7 ft. wide, 5.5 ft. high of silage 14 ft. x 7 ft. x 5.5 ft. = 539 cubic ft. 100-5.39 tons corn silage.

Rule of thumb: 14 ft. forage boxes are rated to hold about 5.0 tons 30 percent D.M. corn silage; 16 ft. boxes about 6.0-6.5 tons 30 percent D.M. corn silage.

Let your fingers do the walking; Dial-A-Ride with us!

The elderly of Schoolcraft County are finding that it is cheaper and more convenient to ride Dial-A-Ride than to own and operate their own vehicle.

The Schoolcraft County Commission on Aging sponsors the elderly and handicapped Dial-A-Ride program. It is under the direction of Schoolcraft County Transportation Co-ordinator, Eileen Males.

The Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation have provided three vans for the program. One van is located in Germfask with two vans serving the Manistique area.

One van serving the Manistique area is specially equipped to handle the needs of the handicapped and wheelchair user. The van, however, may be used by anyone of any age.

The vans are primarily used for the elderly of Schoolcraft County, but if the schedules are open, any adult who is without transportation may call the Senior Services Center for a ride.

The in-town ride fee for persons 60 and older is 25 cents for one way trips.

Out-of-town trip fees are somewhat higher and are posted in the vans.

Some of the fees are: Indian Lake-50 cents, Cooks area-$1. and the Gulliver area-$1.20. Out-of-town residents are urged to call one day in advance so schedules may be drawn up.

The fees only pay for a very minute cost of the operation for these vehicles. CETA-Green Thumb-The Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation and the Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners, all in their own endeavors support this program.

The Schoolcraft County Easter Seal Program has pledged financial support to supplement the handicapped van.

Besides paying the drivers, money is required for a dispatcher clerk, bookkeeper, maintenance, repairs, gas, oil and insurance.

This service, so vitally needed, is very much a part of our county society.

For convenient transportation call Manistique, 341-2021. Germfask residents may call 586-9697.

Geri Stoken: As part of her duties at the center, Geri acts as dispatcher and bus driver for the Senior Citizens Transportation Program.

Joan Kriesch: Before making her bus runs, Joan checks over the mechanics of the van to insure everything is in proper working order. She was photographed checking the tires for proper wear and tread depth.

Geri Stoken: Loading a patient at the Medicare Facility. Wheelchair users are loaded in the van and anchored into place to prevent accident.

Lois Lausten: Currently a resident of the Medicare Facility, Lois finds the Dial-A-Ride vans convenient to use.

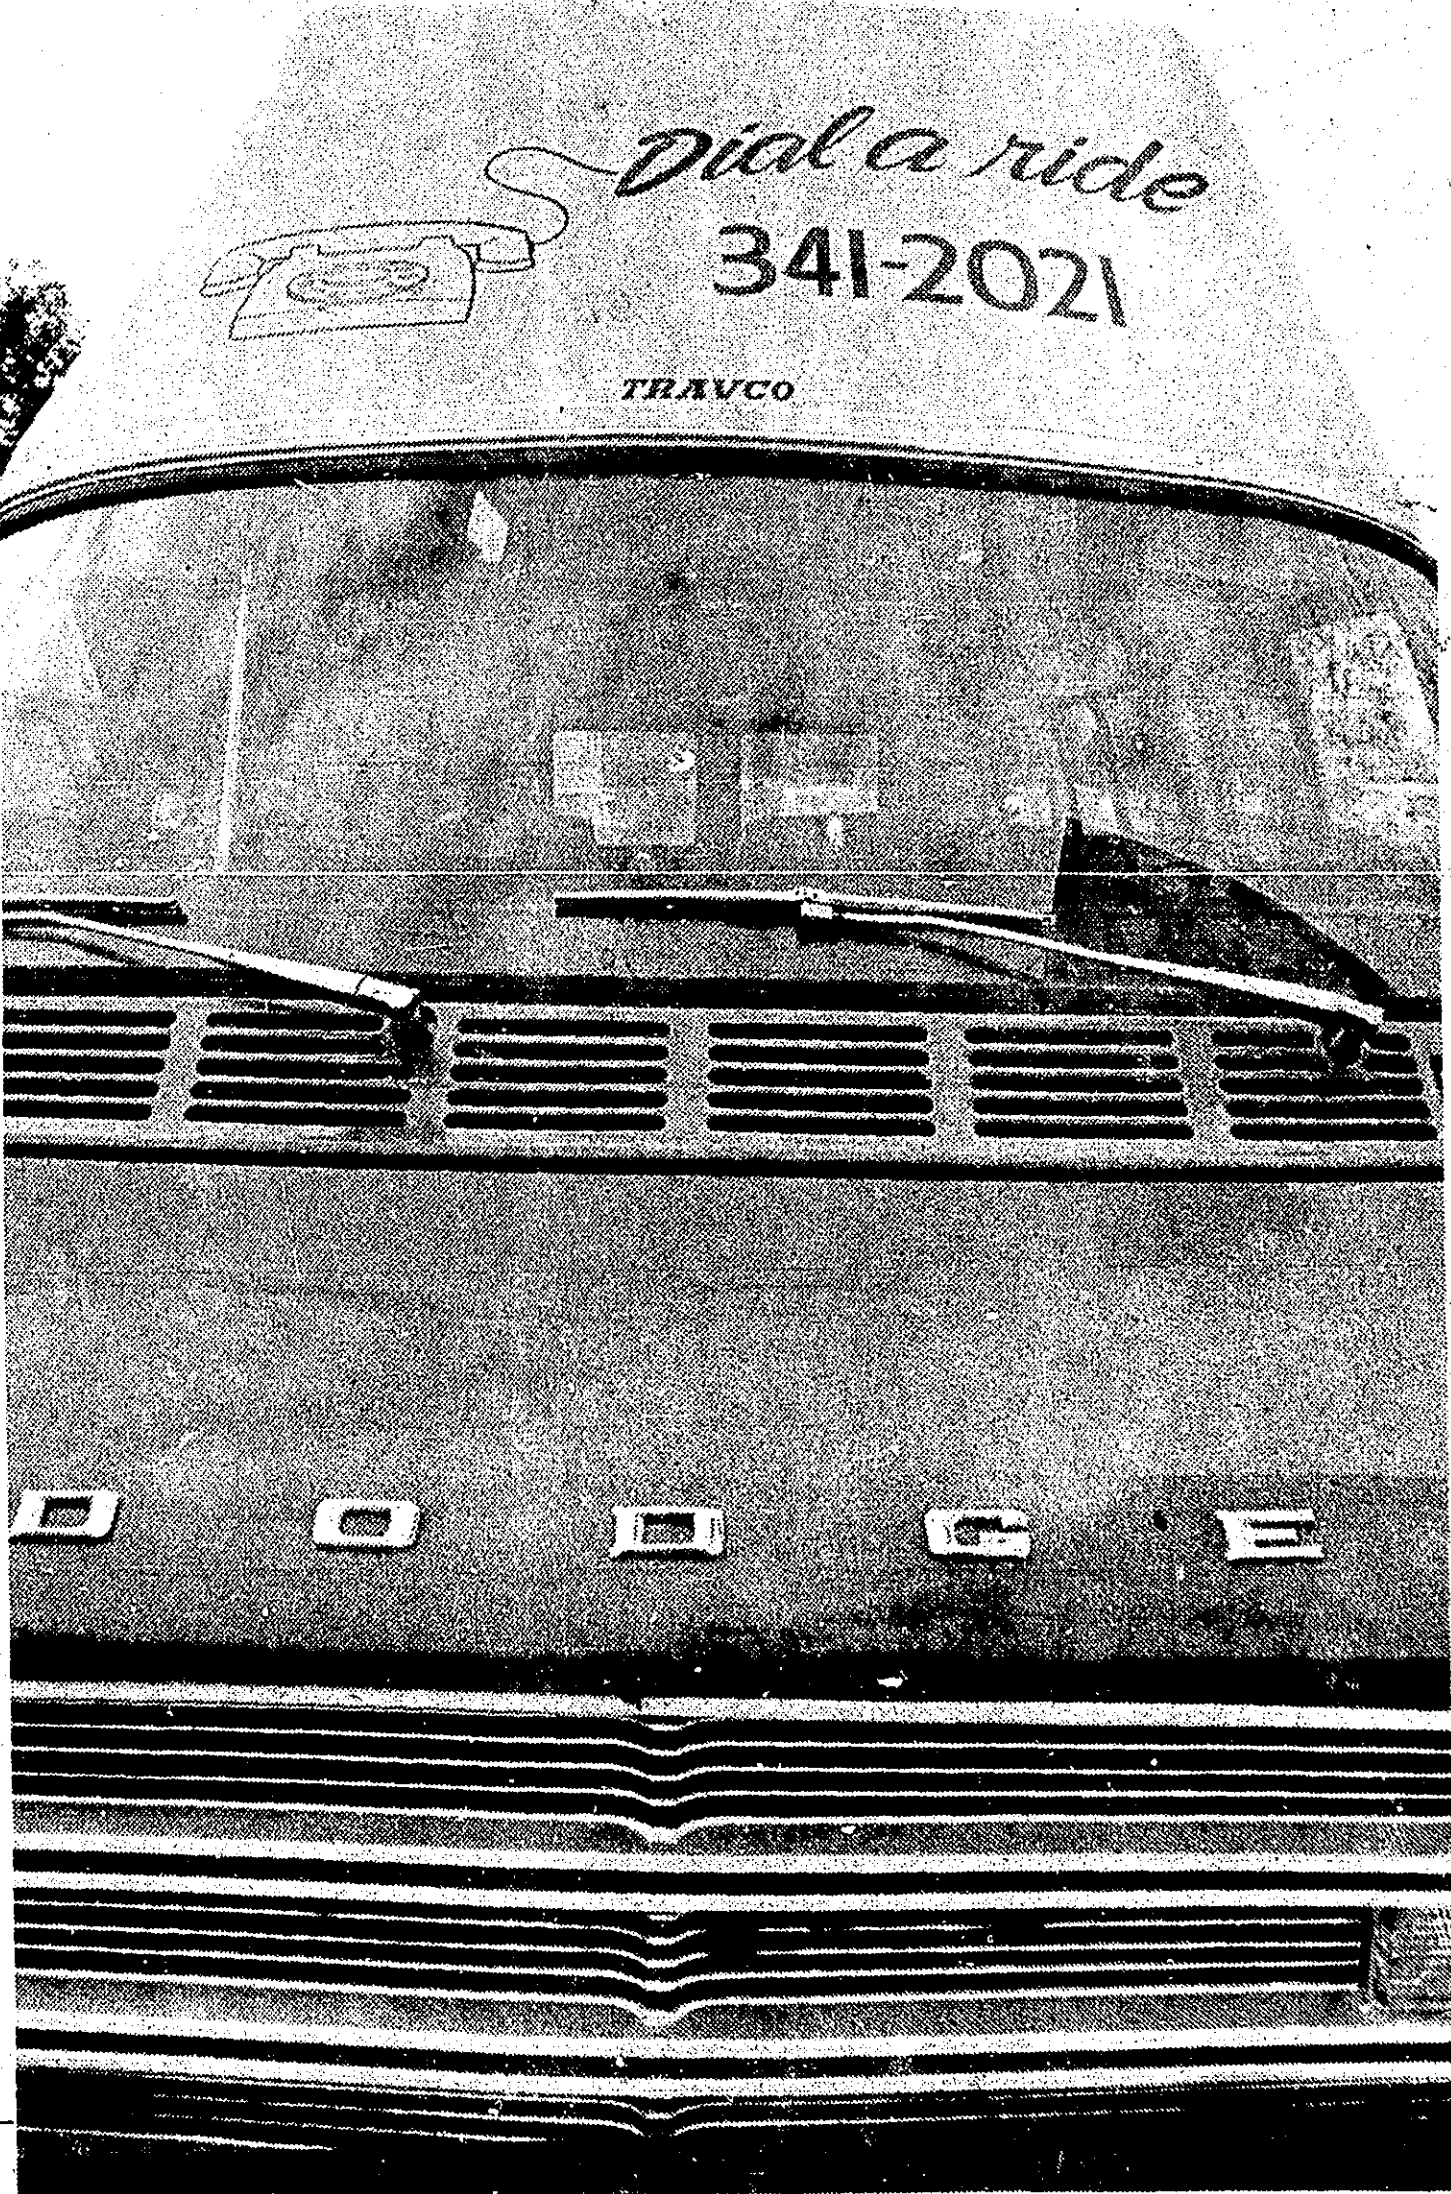

The many hats of Eileen Males: Mrs. Males is responsible as transportation co-ordinator, for the operation of the Schoolcraft County Dial-A-Ride programs.

Edna Fiegel and Grace McLaughlin, presidents of Harbor View Towers: "Very cheap and very affordable," says Grace, "I take it whenever I can ride it: Shopping, senior citizens meal programs and the Sunday afternoon trips when they have them. I also use it to visit friends and that type of thing." Daily Runs are made to the Harbor View Towers at 11:15 a.m. for the Nutrition program, and at 1:30 p.m. for downtown shopping.

Edna Boehm: As a wheelchair user, Edna finds the Dial-A-Ride program ideal for transportation. Handicapped persons and persons confined to wheelchairs may take advantage of the special lift outfitted on one van.

The Dial-A-Ride van: You can ride by calling 341-2021.
