

If your water tastes better, here's the reason

by Arnold Mackowiak

If the clear liquid you're drawing from a city water tap looks and tastes like the real stuff, there's a good reason.

The City of Manistique has completed a $7 million project to expand and upgrade its water filtration plant. And the result is supposed to mean better quality water and more of it for the city's future.

City officials will unveil the new filtration plant on the Indian River across from Riverside Park on Wednesday, Oct. 12. A dedication ceremony for the new facility will take place at 2 p.m. An open house for the public will follow and run from 2 to 4 p.m.

The population of the city would have to more than double to exceed the capacity of the plant," said City Manager Robert Risk. The plant has been given a 25-year life expectancy, Risk added, but he said the plant could last far longer.

Risk and Jerry Richards, water plant superintendent, detailed some of the benefits of the new plant:

-a second reservoir doubles the city's water storage capacity from 500,000 gallons to 1 million gallons.

-an expanded treatment process, in its first full week of operation, removed 100 percent of the coliform bacteria, 100 percent of the discoloration, and 84 percent of the turbidity of water entering the plant from the Indian River. For the same week last year under the old process, 100 percent of the bacteria was removed, but only 46 percent of the color and 10 percent of the turbidity. Turbidity refers to suspended particles.

-an anti-corrosive agent will slow corrosion of household pipes and city mains in the distribution system.

-no new change is expected in the city water rates. The rates were increased about two years ago.

-the additional reservoir will enable the city to supply Manistique's daily water needs—about 1 million gallons—without pumping. The plant has a capacity of pumping 2.2 million gallons per day.

-a diesel generator supplies electrical power to the plant, to enable operation during a general outage.

Richards outlined the treatment steps at the new plant, which has been built on the previous facility near the edge of the river.

A new intake crib has been constructed in the river, allowing a gravity flow of water into the plant.

In the pump room which formerly comprised the entire plant, one new pump and two water turbines have been added to three old pumps to send water through the facility.

Water is passed to a first mixing tank, where alum is introduced to act as a settling agent. Then the water is sent along to a slower mixing tank. The entire settling process takes about two and a half hours.

Next, the water moves along to filtration tanks inside the plant, where sand and crushed coal picked up particles. The solids are then pumped to outdoor basins, where the residue will be cleared periodically and taken to the county landfill.

The clear water will be stored in the reservoirs and pumped to the water tower near Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. Chlorine is added early in the process to disinfect the water, and added again as a residual against bacterial contamination. Levels of chlorine are adjusted according to quality of the river water.

Fluoride also is added near the end of the treatment process, about one part per million.

Chlorine and fluoride had been added to city water before, Richards said, but color, taste and odor had not been treated under the old process. As a result of high turbidity, the city's water did not meet federal safe drinking water standards.

"Already some community people have made comments about the difference in the water," Richards said. However, he said many users may not notice a change until older water is flushed out of dead ends in the distribution system.

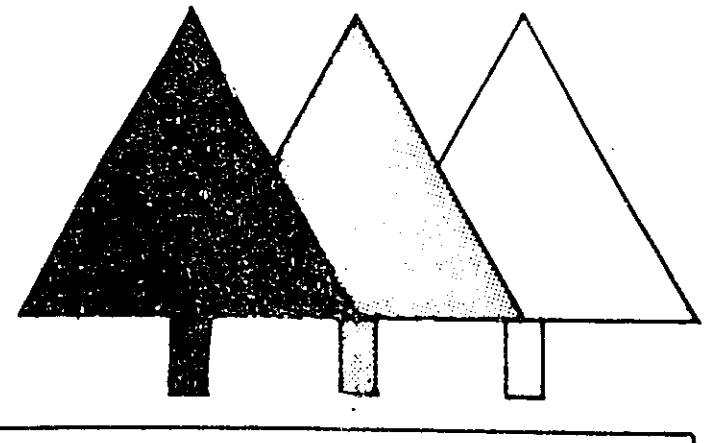

The new treatment plant which has been in operation since mid-September, will run 16 hours each week day and eight hours each weekend day.

Gridor Construction began work on the new plant in the fall of 1975. Sub-contractors included Hobolik's of Manistique and Paul Electric of Iron Mountain.

Financing came from $2.2 million FHA grant. Not all of the grant money has been used, Risk said.

County board to check costs for dam repairs

The Schoolcraft County Board of Commissioners has taken first steps toward solving the problem of a weakened Manistique Heights Dam.

At a special meeting Tuesday night, the commissioners took three actions on the Indian River dam that crosses the level of Indian Lake. The board:

-agreed to obtain the names of engineering firms from the DNR and other sources and request proposals for cost estimates of an engineering study on repairing or replacing the dam.

-freed the Indian Lake Property Owners Association from any need to collect petition signatures to force the county board to act. Thus far, more than 100 had been directed.

-elected a committee of the board to meet with Prosecutor John Thompson to draw up a resolution leading to county ownership of the dam and new legal levels for the lake under the State Inland Lake Level Act.

"There was no point to letting this slide for another year," a relieved Elmer Garvin, secretary of the association, said after the meeting. "It looks like we've got them rolling now."

Earlier in the meeting, Garvin accused the board of "sitting on its fanny" by not assuming control of the dam and seeking repairs that DNR officials have said are needed.

Association members have said that the steel and wood structure, also known as the old brewery dam, is deteriorating. They have demanded that a washout of the dam would drastically lower the level of the shallow lake, and threaten the city's drinking water supply.

Contacted by the Pioneer-Tribune on Wednesday, City Manager Robert Risk said the main problem with a dam break would be an extraordinary amount of dirt and other suspended solids coming down the river.

More than 20 persons attended Tuesday night's meeting, including lake property owners, state and township officials. Association members said that the county should assume ownership of the dam because the structure is related to the well being of the lake and the city of Manistique. Presently, the association owns the dam.

Merwin White, former county commissioner and lake front owner, said loss of the dam would threaten flooding of the west side of the city. But Gene Johnson, engineer for the county road commission, said he doubted serious flooding would occur if the dam washed out.

Ken Mortensen, county commissioner and association trustee, outlined steps following the adoption of a county resolution. First, he said, the county drain commissioner will draw up a special assessment district including all property owners to be benefited by repair of the dam.

Circuit Court would then hold hearings for people in the district, confirm the boundaries of the district and legally set the lake levels. A winter drawdown level and higher level for other seasons have been recommended.

"We would definitely hope to get work started by next spring," Mortensen said after the meeting.

Leon Cook, representing the DNR told the county board that the state agency would pay into the assessment district an amount in proportion to its holdings on the lake, reportedly 22 to 23 percent of the frontage.

Also during the meeting, Spence Frankovich, Hiawatha Township supervisor, complained that the board wasn't adequately funding the drain commissioner's office for his duties.

Drain Commissioner Archie Carpenter said the board has provided him with $350 for the year for salary and expenses.

High School returns to Class C

Manistique High School's official enrollment has decreased by 32 students, changing the school's athletic competition rating from Class B to Class C.

This was one of the many facts revealed by the fourth Friday enrollment counts of the Manistique Area Schools Friday.

Compared to last year's count, total enrollment decreased again -- this year by 13 students. Last year's total was 1,830 students, a drop of 100 from the previous year.

However, this year's Kindergarten count showed an increase of 20 per cent.

"I find this the most important and encouraging aspect of the fourth Friday count," Superintendent Richard Bonifas said.

"This means that more young people with kids are coming into our area and staying," he said.

Bonifas said the Kindergarten total of 153 students was the highest since he became superintendent five years ago.

"It is encouraging for the future of our schools to have so many youngsters in at the bottom," he said.

Manistique High School, with an enrollment this year of 685, is far short of the 715 students needed for it to stay in Class B status.

Other enrollments of the school break down this way: seventh and eighth grades 105 and 144 respectively; sixth grade 108; fifth grade 92; fourth grade 104; third grade 92; second grade 119 and first grade 102.

The total for secondary schools was 950, including students from special education classes.

The fourth Friday count, once verified, will be a basis for determining the amount of state aid the district is to receive this school year.

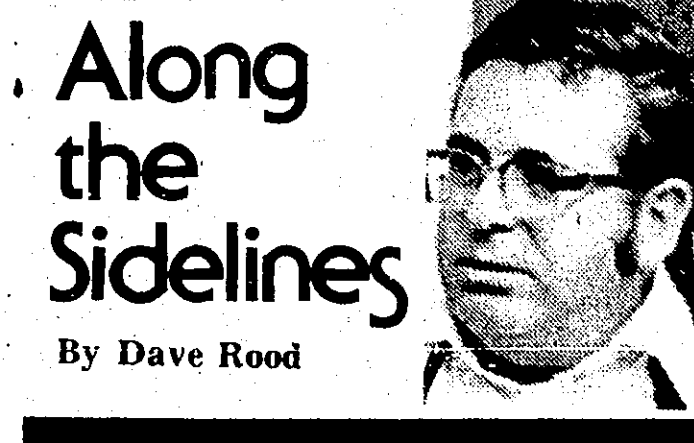

Story of Great Lakes' first ship

On Sept. 18, 1679--almost 300 years ago--a small sailing ship slipped out of the harbor at Washington Island and headed northeast across the top of Lake Michigan, bound for Niagara Falls with a valuable load of furs.

The ship was the Griffin, the first sailing ship on the Great Lakes, built by Rene Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle, as part of his plan to establish a commercial empire covering America's inland seas.

LaSalle's dream was wrecked along with the Griffin in a savage September storm, but his and other visions of wealth helped to open the entire Great Lakes region, today the very heartland of America's world of commerce and industry.

The voyageurs and coureurs de bois came in search of fur, while the Jesuit priests that followed were hunting for converts. The military followed as the strategic value of the lakes and the land increased with the tension between the French and the British. Furs and soul conversion went into an eventual decline, but the earth held even greater riches of a material sort, and the miners and the timbermen came in a wave that brought people and established schools and developed commerce.

Along the Sidelines
By Dave Rood

the land, nor with its people.

Our forest land is coming back, and the value of our wood products and resources mounts annually. New processes and new veins have revived the mineral potential. More and more tourists seeking relief from the cities have discovered this land of ours.

Population growth and its inevitable pressures, increased industrial demands for our raw materials, fresh water--these are all factors that will figure in the development of this area in the years to come. These are material things, tangible factors, that can be computed.

Non-computable, however, are our greatest assets. Mile after mile of uncluttered, sandy beaches; the quiet, deep beauty of our forests; the swoop and angles of our hills in their autumn colors, the majesty of the lakes pounding against the stubborn shores.

The memory of these intangibles is what keeps the U.P. alive in the hearts of those who left to find opportunity elsewhere, and found with it the jam and crush and roar and swirl of the big city. It is what the visitor to this area discovers to his amazement and joy that such things are still possible in an age where beauty and majesty are too often overwhelmed by new cars and split-level suburbanism, color TV and swimming pools.

The glamor and the glitter of neon and glass and steel inevitably fade in comparison to the sweep and majesty of a Lake Superior sunset, the roar of a Tahquamenon, and the cry of a loon in the stillness of Kich-ili-ki-pi. These have remained unchanged in the 300 years since the Griffin sailed to its uncertain fate, and for many persons represent all that is good and great in this Upper Peninsula that we call home.

US-2 route planned

ST. IGNACE--Proposed widening of U.S. 2 on a 50-mile stretch between St. Ignace and M-117 would result in unacceptable environmental impacts," the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation has been told here.

Wayne Schmidt, staff ecologist for the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, said his organization also is totally opposed to construction of a new east-west highway in the Upper Peninsula on an all new right-of-way.

Instead, Schmidt said at the public hearing, MUCC believes that any improved facility between St. Ignace and M-117 should be constructed on an existing alignment inland from Lake Michigan. That portion of U.S. 2 between those two points now closely follows the Lake Michigan shoreline and is considered one of the state's most scenic drives.

Schmidt said two alternative inland routes exist that would avoid the need for widening U.S. 2. One is M-123 and M-28 from I-75 to Marquette, which would involve a major change in location of the four-lane east-west route across the U.P. The other is M-123 and H-40 from I-75 through Trout Lake and Engadine back to U.S. 2, a distance of about 60 miles.

22 accidents

State Police at the Manistique Post report 22 accidents in their area of responsibility for the month of September. Also, 170 citations were handed out in the traffic division. The post reports 54 arrests which were non-traffic related.

What to look for when buying a pumpkin

It's nearing the "trick or treat" season and many consumers will be in for a real treat if they shop around for their pumpkins.

"Many shoppers are not aware that they have two choices when purchasing pumpkins," says Marilyn Mook, Extension foods and nutrition specialist at Michigan State University.

The two varieties are the jack-o-lantern and pie pumpkin. The latter pumpkins are more hollow in the middle, and the flesh is thicker on the inside. Pie pumpkins are not as hollow in the center and the flesh is thicker.

Mook advises shoppers not to confuse the two when shopping. "A pie pumpkin does not make a good jack-o-lantern, nor will a jack-o-lantern pumpkin produce enough meat for a good pumpkin pie," she says.

When shopping for pumpkins, look for bright-colored ones that are firm and free of blemishes. A fresh pumpkin will keep for about a month if stored in a cool dry place.

Pumpkin seeds produce a snack liked both by adults and children. The seeds should be washed first to remove fibers (the stringy substance). Mix two cups of pumpkin seeds with 1 1/2 teaspoons butter, and 1/4 teaspoon salt. The mixture should then be spread in a shallow pan and roasted about 20 minutes in a 250-degree oven.

Pie pumpkins can either be baked or steamed. To prepare, cut the pumpkin into small manageable pieces, remove the seeds and stringy pieces. Cube, then peel. After the pumpkin is cooked, it can be pushed through a sieve to remove remaining fibers. The pumpkin can be used in pies, breads, soups, puddings or as pumpkin butter. As a vegetable, pumpkin is especially good when mixed with carrots, rutabagas, or half with mashed potatoes.

Cooked pumpkin can also be frozen in small portions.

Pumpkin is a member of the winter squash family and is rich in vitamin A, a nutrient necessary for growth, good eyesight and healthy skin. Mook says that one-fourth cup of pumpkin will supply the whole day's allowance of vitamin A.

What's Cooking: 'Cheesy Egg Bake' for brunch

By Carl Olson
Michigan Department of Agriculture
Entertaining to me has meant having a group of people over for a semi-formal (not too, because I'm quite casual) dinner with wine, good friends, and stimulating conversation.

We've discovered another great way to entertain, however, the weekend brunch. It's a lot of fun and more relaxing.

Friends of ours have a marvelous screened-in porch with brick counters and a built-in barbeque. This is a beautiful setting for a warm-weather brunch but we make do nicely in our apartment.

What to serve at a brunch? You have a great variety to choose from. I've had Quiche Lorraine, Eggs Benedict, Ham and Pineapple Shishkabobs, Sweet and Sour Spare Ribs and it's all been a taste treat. Also, the Michigan Department of Agriculture recommends fresh fruits from your local markets.

A recipe we tried recently was for "Cheesy Egg Bake" and you might want to experiment with it when you have a brunch.

In a saucepan, combine two cans of condensed cream of chicken soup, one cup of Michigan grade A milk, four teaspoons instant minced onions, and a teaspoon of prepared mustard. Cook and stir till smooth and heated through. Then add two cups of shredded process Swiss cheese and stir till it melts.

Pour one cup of the sauce into each of two 10 x 8 x 1 1/2-inch baking dishes. Break six eggs into the sauce in each dish and spoon the remaining sauce around the eggs. An option here is to stand one-inch thick buttered French Bread slices around the edges of the casseroles with crusts up.

Bake in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes or till eggs are set. Garnish with snipped parsley and serve immediately.

What a way to start the day off late.

Home repairs

ESCANABA—Applications are being sought in Schoolcraft County for Community Action's winterization services, according to Clifford Arntzen, project director.

He indicates the best time to do winterization home repairs is during the coming months before the cold season set-in. Otherwise repairs would be limited during the winter.

The home weatherization work is designed to stop cold infiltration, heat loss through conduction and save energy, he explains.

Some services offered are: Insulation, storm windows and doors, weather stripping, attic vents, foundation and roof repair.

The program is available to those meeting income guidelines, he says.

Those desiring the winterization services may apply at the following locations:

—Ruth Petick's office, area representative for the Manistiquie area, at the Schoolcraft County Courthouse, phone 341-2452.

—Mary Kelly's office, area representative for the Germfask area, phone 586-9821.

—Charles Burton of Germfask, phone 586-3893.

Emeralds flatten Rudyard; gain 490 yards in offense

Saying it was one-sided probably doesn't do it justice.

The Manistique Emeralds did everything to Rudyard last Friday, except to take over the host's concession stand sales, as they puffed the Bulldogs 46-0.

The victory pushed Coach Dan Skatzka's team to a 3-2 mark overall, while Rudyard noted down a notch to the same record.

"We expected them to give us a real good game," Coach Skatzka said. "We scored two of their touchdowns, so quick they kind of got out of it."

The Emeralds rolled up 490 yards total offense and held the Bulldogs to only 68 yards.

"I've got to give a lot of credit to the offensive line," Skatzka said. "They just did a super job."

Halfback Doug Bertrand led the scoring attack, tallying four touchdowns.

Summary of the scoring:

First quarter-- After receiving Rudyard's first punt, the Emeralds drove 67 yards in a 14-play campaign capped by a 34-yard pass from Norm Jahn to John Pistulka for the first TD. D.J. Brady added the two-point conversion.

Their next time with the ball, Manistique went 57 yards in 10 plays, with Bertrand busting in from the seven. A Jahn-Pistulka pass connection was good for the PAT.

Sports Pioneer-Tribune

Second quarter-- On their third possession, the Emeralds marched 65 yards and another TD, with Bertrand cracking through from the one. Jahn ran for the PAT to make the score 24-0.

Third quarter-- Taking the kickoff, Manistique cruised 72 yards, with Bertrand scoring a nine-yard run. D.J. Anderson tossed to Gary Kaiser for the PAT.

Bertrand scored another TD on a two-yard run that followed a drive ignited by an interception of a Bulldog pass by Tony McClaren on the Rudyard 45. The PAT try failed.

Fourth quarter-- Following another pass interception, this time by Bertrand, D.J. Anderson connected with Jeff Larson on a 25-yard pass play for the final touchdown. Tim Tufnell ran it in for the two-point.

Manistique dominated every statistical department, as follows: yards rushing, 336 on 51 carries to Rudyard's 55 on 34 tries, yards passing, 104 on 7 of 15 attempts to the Bulldogs' 13 on 2 of 13 and two interceptions; 35 downs, 18 to 5; and yards penalized, 35 to 60.

Bertrand led all ground-gainers, rolling up 132 yards on 17 carries. He was followed by Brady, 107 and 10; John Pelon, 77 on 7; and Jahn, 56 on 5.

Jahn completed 5 of 10 passes for 76 yards, while Anderson hit 2 of 5 for 28 yards.

Defensively, Bertrand stood out with 5 solo tackles and 2 assists. Pistulka collected 6 solos and five assists, and Ed Roddy had 4 solos and 4 assists.

Some can't forget what Knights did

Emerald fans will remember it well. The 1975 season when the Norway Knights blasted Manistique 54-0.

"They really rubbed our nose in it," Coach Dan Skatzka recalls of two team's last encounter. "A comment was made after the game that Manistique kids were not mature enough for Norway."

Observing the lopsided score, he added, "we're looking to turn that thing around." And the Emeralds will have their chance against the Knights Friday night in their belated first home contest of the year.

Norway, 2-3 on the season, was bolstered recently with the return of five players, including three starters, who had been ineligible because of disciplinary reasons.

Skatzka expects tough competition from the Knights, like to throw the ball as many as 20 to 25 times per game out of an 11 formation. They also feature a big physical line.

After unbeaten records in 1975 and 1976, this year the Knights have defeated Munising and Westwood, while falling to Crystal Fall Forest Park, Kingsford and Iron Mountain.

Skatzka is hoping for a big home crowd to welcome the Emeralds back for one of only three home games on the schedule. Kickoff is at 7:30 p.m.

The Emeralds' Cheryl Turan (white) shoots before trying to score in girls' basketball action against Westwood last Thursday night. Also, ready to assist Turan in the play is Karen Krusic, overtime. Manistique won the game 36-32 in overtime. (Tribune Photo)

JV Emeralds face Norway here tonight

After a loss against currently top seated Ishpeming 28-8 last week, the Manistique JVs hope to bounce back against Norway in football action here at 7 p.m. today.

Junior varsity coaches say the Manistique offensive front line can do the job of blocking for the backfield success that was lacking in last week's game. Even though top yardage gainer Scott Weber is out with a broken arm from last week's game, the coaches are optimistic.

Last week's loss left the JVs with a 2-1 record in the league and a 3-2 record overall.

Manistique's scoring plays came on a 40-yard run by Weber and a point after conversion run by Rob Cook.

The only other scoring threat for the Emeralds came just before halftime when quarterback Brian Smith completed a 40-yard pass to end Brian Hewitt. The half ended with Manistique on the one-yard line.

UPBACK JOHN MILLER eludes a Red Raider in the Black Bears' loss to DeTour Saturday. (Tribune photo)

Black Bears adjust for Bark River

The Big Bay de Noc Black Bears will look a bit different for their away football game with Bark River-Harris on Friday. That is, if Coach Paul Babladelis's plans bear fruit.

"We're going to the air more," the Black Bear coach said this week following Big Bay's 28-8 stinging at the hands of DeTour on Saturday. "We're going to have a more balanced attack."

Coach Babladelis is switching quarterback Lon Hider to tailback, moving Fred Fox to Hider's old spot. Paul Lang also will move from tackle to end, to become a target for Fox, along with Hider.

The Black Bears, who have favored the standard I formation, also will try the old T formation in an attempt to improve blocking patterns.

Last Saturday, Big Bay scored its first touchdown of the year on a 10-yard pass from Hider to Barry Hardwick in the second quarter. A run by Fox for the two-point conversion gave the Black Bears an 8-6 lead.

The Red Raiders regained the lead before halftime, with John Bailey hitting Larry LaPoint for a 10-yard pass and a TD. The PAT failed.

DeTour ripped Big Bay in the fourth quarter on two touchdowns and a safety.

Deep in their own territory, an errant Black Bear center snap on a punt went out of the end zone for a DeTour safety. A Red Raider drive capped with a 28-yard pass for a TD put the Black Bears further in the hole.

DeTour ended the scoring with a 50-yard bomb from Steve Anderson to Mark Andrezak in the closing minutes.

"They ran a man in motion consistently," Coach Babladelis said. "It kept our linebackers honest."

Big Bay's next home game is set for Oct. 22 against North Dickinson, a homecoming encounter.

Salmon snagging legal in river

Brad Durling, DNR regional fisheries biologist at Marquette, recently emphasized what all good sportsmen should know...that fall-run salmon can be taken legally by hook and line.

Snagging or foul-hooking salmon not only dilutes the satisfaction of taking a fine pink, coho or chinook but it spoils the fish for those who fish legally and within the sportsman's code of ethics, Durling says.

Pink salmon are already moving into rivers for spawning and because of low, clear waters, they are extremely wary, according to Durling. The angler should approach the fish with great caution, keeping a low silhouette and moving slowly...once within range, "pinks" can be fished with the same techniques used for coho and chinook salmon.

"The most productive technique involves the use of spawn bags, weighted sufficiently to get near the bottom and drifted with the current on as short a line as possible to eliminate drag. It may take 50 or 60 drifts in the same place to entice a spawning pink" but a fair-hooked fish is top compensation for patience.

Pink salmon can also be taken on small spoons or spinners, as can the cohos and chinooks that will be following up river later this fall.

Durling said that in addition to personal sportsmanship and consideration for other anglers, there is another good reason why salmon fishermen should concentrate on getting the fish to strike rather than attempting to foul-hook them. Except for a small stretch of water near the mouth of the Manistique River, foul-hooking is illegal throughout the Upper Peninsula.

How they cooled Manistique beer; what was the Buck-Eye Railroad?

Memoirs
By Mark Eisenlohr

"It was pretty good beer. They provided good competition to other bottling works who, allegedly, hired a young man to burn the building down. He took a trip up the river for what little money he got." So relates Pete Cherneski, 70-year-old resident of State Road.

Last week Cherneski provided this column with a copy of a land abstract that traced the history of the short-lived Willebrand-Manistique Brewery. It opened the door to allow a little light to shed on the history, but it also revealed a few dark corners that remain in existence.

Like, was it really arson? Just what were the assets of the company? Was it doing poorly business-wise? Did someone else pay to have it burned or did the company do it itself?

Cherneski was born the same year the brewery burned to the ground. All he remembers is what was told to him by others. He is a native of Manistique and grew up on the State Road-brewery area.

Long time friend, Louis Sauheilt, 80 years plus, remembers a little more. He also spent many days hunting with young Theodore Willebrand.

During its heyday, the brewery used to sport eight vats, used in the beer making process. After it burned, Cherneski remembers the vats were put to use in preparing the rods for winter travel.

We used to use them for snow rollers after it burned down. Two teams of horses would be ahead pulling and one team of horses would be behind pushing," Cherneski said. The vats were between 10 and 12 feet tall.

Cherneski remembered that the old State Road little resembles State Road now. And when he tells you that he and his family owned the first lumber built house on that road, it's easy to understand. About all that remains the same is the approximate location of the road.

"This whole area was swamp," said Cherneski of the brewery area. "It was so bad they put in a corduroy road—built with sawdust and bark underneath the sand."

There were logs used as a base, laid lengthwise, to keep the wagons from sinking in the mud," recalled Cherneski. It was probably a good thing that the road was well built, according to Cherneski, as Indian Lake used to be the site of many parties. The whole town would turn out on July 4th at Indian Lake," said Cherneski.

Cherneski is one of eight children, one of whom includes a twin brother. He remembered that the birth of twins to his mother created some problems.

When Paul and I were born, mom couldn't furnish enough milk for us. The doctor found an old cow that would provide us with the right kind of milk and gave it to mom.

She started with that one cow and eventually raised 18 cows," Cherneski said. Those cows were enough to start the family in a little dairy operation, the first in the area.

At that time, milk sold for four cents a quart. We used to deliver milk twice a day. We had this old horse that we had to pick up and put on the road to get him going in the morning," Cherneski said, as a broad smile creeps across his face.

"The extra milk and cheese she always gave to people who didn't have anything." It was an interesting time to raise cows, according to Cherneski, since the family had no pasture of their own. The cows grazed along the side of the road.

Kids from town would also be out on the State Road with their cows, something that irritated Cherneski just a little bit.

"Instead of watching the cattle the kids would be swimming in the swimming hole and Paul and I would have to watch their cattle too. It used to make us so mad," recalled Cherneski.

Ironically, close friend, Louis Sauheilt was one of those kids who swam rather than watched.

But, Cherneski and Sauheilt developed a friendship over the years that has lasted to this day. Sauheilt was on hand recently to offer a few comments on the brewery and the era of life surrounding it.

Sauheilt used to hunt with Theodore Willebrand, the son of owner Willebrand, who bought into the brewery operation in 1901.

"They used to shove! the left over settings out the door and give them to the cattle," Sauheilt remembered.

He also remembered that his family would buy the Willebrand-Manistique beer and bury it in the ground in back of their house. Then, after pouring water over it every day, they always had cold beer.

"The guy who brewed the brewery down used to work at the sporting house," Sauheilt said. "Sporting house" was what houses of prostitution were called in those days.

Sauheilt also remembered the first owner of the land the brewery eventually sat on, Samuel Brown.

He was a civil war veteran. Oh, he used to come to town with his old long coat and cap with a crossed guns on it. He homesteaded that whole area," Sauheilt added.

It was a better beer than outside beer. People really liked it," Sauheilt confirmed.

There is probably much more on the brewery and its existence in the business world. But space does allow us to go into it in great detail. An then, too, certain aspects remain unknown.

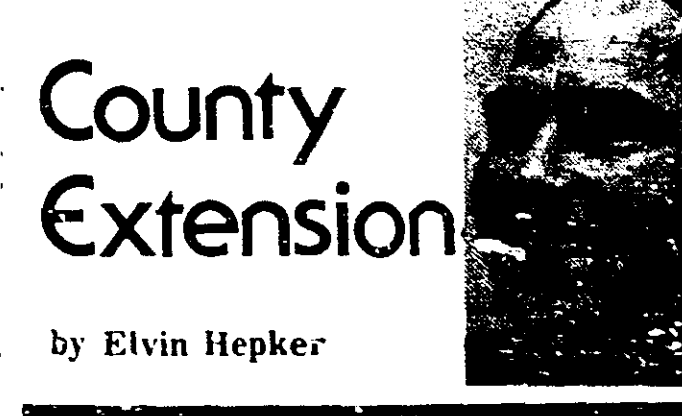

Mrs. Martha Shampine LaCroix of Trenton, sent this little note along: Many years ago my father, Simon Shampine was a section boss on the railroad for the Buck-Eye Railroad and we lived at the various lumber camps during the winter months. One was near Gould City and the other was near Rapid River at North Delta."

Sounds interesting. I have never heard of the Buck-Eye railroad and wonder if any readers have.

Now's the time to check bats and mice

County Extension
by Elvin Hepker

As the weather cools down in the fall, many wild animals begin to look for a cozy place to spend the winter. Most are content to remain in the wild. But some—including bats, rats and mice—are more than willing to take up residence in human dwellings.

When this occurs, Glenn Dudderar's phone begins to ring. Dudderar is an extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, and he's the person people call when they want to know how to get bats out of their attic or a skunk out from under their porch.

"The first thing to realize when you have wild mice or bats moving into your home is that your house isn't a snug and tight as it ought to be," he suggests. If animals are coming in, you're going to be wasting energy by pouring heat out those entryways. So, for two reasons, you'd better get out the caulking gun or the hammer and nails and close those openings."

Once you've closed up the pathways into your home, you're left with the problem of how to deal with the animals that have already entered.

Bats will often get into an attic or top of a garage," Dudderar says. They don't do a lot of damage, but their droppings and urine can make a smelly mess. There is also the possibility that they might be carrying disease. The reason most people want to get rid of them, though, is that they're just plain afraid of bats."

The best way to deal with bats that blunder into a house is to open doors and windows, chase them out and then cover the ventilator or other openings with small mesh hardware cloth or caulking.

Odoriferous chemicals—such as mothballs—bright light and high frequency sound will usually repel roosting bats, Dudderar says. He emphasizes using large quantities of mothballs—five pounds for every 2,000 cubic feet of space—and persistence in using other repelling methods.

If you're going to use bright lights in the attic, use many and turn them on and leave them on for a week," he says.

Likewise, if you rig up a silent dog whistle to a wind source, leave it running until the bats clear out. Don't give up on it because it hasn't worked after a few hours.

Any attempt to repel bats should be done before cold weather set in, he notes.

House rats and house mice may live in the fields during the summer, but they rely on man for most of their food and shelter. Wild mice—such as the common field mouse and the attractive white-footed or deer mouse—may get into your home in search of food and shelter, but they are not well adapted to live there.

If you're trapping rats or mice, use a lot of traps baited with a 50-50 mixture of peanut butter and oatmeal with a little salt, he suggests. If you try to get by with just one or two traps, the animals will become trap-shy before you can catch them all, he explains.

FEEDER CATTLE SALE: Don't forget the Annual Bay de Noc Feeder Cattle sale Tuesday, Oct. 11, at noon at their sale yard in Rapid River. We expect over 1200 head of cattle. These will be comprised of about 700-800 head of calves and 300 yearlings and 100 Holstein steers.

We are optimistic about this year's sale with the extra surplus of grain in the country. The prices could be somewhat higher than last year.

We could still use a few more helpers for the sale. If you have a few free hours on Sunday or Monday, Oct. 9 and 10, we need cattle sorters, ear taggers, ect. to help with the sale.

Big Island Lake in roadless area

Five areas covering a total of 29,500 acres of National Forest land have been identified and added to the inventory of roadless and undeveloped areas within the Hiawatha National Forest. This announcement has been made by Forest Supervisor Merwyn Reed in Escanaba.

These five areas were included in a total of 36 proposed areas recommended by the public in a series of workshops held in the State of Michigan in recent months. Two of the proposed areas are Carp River and Horseshoe Bay in Mackinac County. Two of them, Delirium and Fibre are located in Chippewa County and the Big Island Lake is in Schoolcraft County.

Awana clubbers visit Tahquamenon

Sixth and eighth graders of the Manistique Awana club went with their leaders, the Rev. Ron Allen and wife, to Tahquamenon Falls on Oct. 1.

Also, sixth and eighth grade girls will be spending a two-day outing with their leader, Mrs. Peterson at the Breezy Beech Resort.

The following persons became new members of the Awana: Sixth graders John Walker and Billy Peterson and seventh grader Nancy Klus.

Undermining tax relief

From time to time we've expressed reservations concerning the administration of the state property tax. The system has a lot of inequities and efforts to correct them just don't seem to get the job done.

Allan C. Schmid, president of the Taxpayers Federation of Michigan, Inc., has brought to our attention another example of this.

Schmid has protested as "arbitrary and illegal" the instructions of homeowners who paint their home or make other improvements.

Now, that has been customary procedure, a procedure that has caused a lot of hard-pressed taxpayers to let houses go without repairs because they feared increased taxes.

The Legislature addressed that problem and passed in 1976, Public Act 293, in an effort to correct it. The law states that taxpayers can make improvements to their homes totalling $12,000, $1,000 per year for three years, without affecting the true cash value and the assessment of the house.

The lawmakers, in effect, told the assessors that they were to determine cash value as though the improvements had not been made.

On July 21, the State Tax Commission issued instructions advising assessors to add to the true cash value of the property the difference between the value of the house before the value of the house after the repairs.

The assessors are to do this in the fourth year after the date of repair. This ruling puts a limit on the tax break the Legislature granted.

As Schmid pointed out in a letter to Ward G. Dexel, acting chairman of the tax unit, this rule making by the tax men cancels out relief given to the taxpayers.

Schmid wrote: "By the July 21 instructions the STC has been so insubordinate as to use an act intended to give relief for the purpose of increasing the tax burden once more. You are enforcing the imposition of increases in assessments wherever repairs are made, rather than giving relief. This is a cruel hoax on the people of Michigan."

The tax federation president went on to point out that the STC has, in its instructions neglected to provide for depreciation on the repairs, telling assessors to increase the property value in the fourth year the full value determined at the time the repairs are made.

Schmid urged the STC to comply with the law and stop rewriting the "law of the land for the purpose of adding to the peoples' burdensome burden."

At least one assessor has notified the STC that he will not comply with the instructions which he believes do not conform to the law.

Joel Welty, assessor of Prairieville Township near Delton, in a letter to the agency on Sept. 6 advised them that the effect of the STC instructions is directly opposite to the Legislature's intent and he would not follow them.

The STC of course, claims its instructions are a logical interpretation of the Legislature's intent, consistent with the constitutional mandate to set property values for tax purposes at 50 per cent of current value.

No doubt this is a hassle that will wind up in the courts some day.

Let us say now though, our sympathies are with the taxpayers, it is indeed a cruel hoax when a tax break granted the Legislature is modified drastically by an agency set up to administer it.

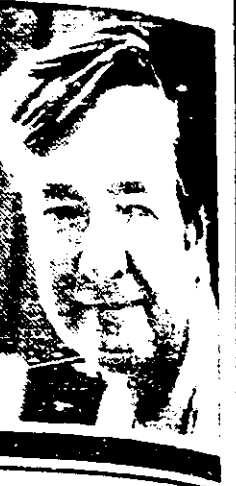

It seems to us this is something the Legislature should investigate. If the lawmakers didn't mean paint jobs and other repairs on homes weren't to be considered in assessing home values, just what did they have in mind?

They owe it to the taxpayers and-for that matter to the STC, to make their meaning clear.

If It Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

This is going to be about nuts. Not the ordinary variety of nut which most often occupies my typewriter. Not such a nut as that Pontiac woman whose letter arrived yesterday. She was angered by my recent column which implied the loss of Groucho Marx was greater than the loss of Elvis Presley.

She wrote: "According to your picture, I figure you and Groucho were born a few months apart. Perhaps you should retire, because once those old arteries start to get hard, our minds simply cannot function properly."

Groucho died at the age of 86. That is several years older than my mother. That Pontiac woman is obviously some kind of a nut. But not the kind I want to tell you about today.

I am thinking about Double Kay bridge mix nuts. Warm-fresh-out-of-the-revolving-tray-in-the-white-case-in-almost-any-drugstore nuts. Delicious.

When I clerked in a drugstore 35 years ago, my idea of a rich man was the guy who bought those fancy bridge mix nuts. I used to swipe a handful when the pharmacist was pharmin'. And there was no better eating. But for 10 cents you couldn't buy enough to plug a soda straw.

When investin'; money in those days, a boy had to think of quantity as well as quality. That's why I bought Holloway suckers instead of Heath bars, and jawbreakers instead of caramels.

I could suck a lot longer than I could chew.

It wasn't just that I wanted to be eating all day. It was also my biggest sister, Terrible Jean. If I finished by candy before Jean finished hers, she always said, "Haha, your candy is all gone and I've still got a lot left." This made me feel bad.

Of course, sometimes she finished first and I said the same thing to Terrible Jean. She would then slug me and that made me feel worse.

But anyway, for many, many years, I never bought any of those nuts. When they were free at parties, I'd gobble a fistful every time the hostess turned her back. When she was looking, I would delicately extract one cashew from the dish and nonchalantly drop it on my tongue, slowly savoring the salt before quietly crunching the meat.

I not only wouldn't pay for my own peanuts, I was sneaky about the way I ate other people's peanuts. I was a peanut phony.

Just a few years ago I decided I was being silly. I was in a drugstore and, by reflex, I was gazing into the Double Kay case and wishing I could afford $2.72 for half a pound of those mixed nuts.

Suddenly I remembered what had happened the day before. My wife had seen me downtown to buy a birthday gift for son Eddie (he had not yet been christened Nerd) to take to a friend's birthday party. The limit was $1, she had instructed, and I followed orders, buying a $1 model car. I also got a 50-cent birthday card.

Pat said I spent too much on the card. "Whoever hear of paying 50 percent of the gift price for the card? The limit is 10 percent," she said.

Which is why I finally bought some mixed nuts. A whole half-pound. I'd show her how really big spenders operate.

The bag of nuts caused quite a stir at home. My wife was the first to spot them. "Who bought the expensive nuts?" she asked.

"I did," I confessed. "You never buy nuts," she charged. "Something's screwy," Eddie agreed. "Dad never buys nuts."

"I simply bought them because I am a big boy now and I can afford them," I explained. "I am no longer a grubby child. If I want some expensive peanuts, I am going to buy them. I am a new man." "I told you there was something screwy," Eddie said.

After my family had its jollies, I began gobbling my peanuts. I felt wealthy and mature. But the nuts didn't taste so good. I didn't even finish the bag.

Now that I am convinced I can finally afford them, I don't buy any more mixed nuts. And I don't get a nostalgic twinge from gazing longingly into a Double Kay case.

Growing up and getting rich isn't all that much. I think I will drive to Southfield and challenge Terrible Jean to a Holloway sucker slow-suck contest.

Protective gear for bartenders

The subjects people choose to study either under government grants or as research connected with an advanced college degree have always fascinated and amused me.

Several years ago there was a lot of attention in the media given to a government grant to study Polish jumping frogs.

And then there was the scholarly thesis prepared by some graduate student on the advantages of one sweeping compound over another for use in sweeping basketball and gymnasium floors.

We are sure the study of these weighty matters will continue as long as there are government programs that must spend money and graduate students that must find an original topic for dissertation.

A study was recently completed, however, that will hard for any governmental or academic body to match in either scope or importance to the well being of future generations.

"Champagne Cork Injury to the Eye" by Sherman H. Sloan, Transactions of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, has got to be a subject that has been of widespread concern.

Sloan details the danger to your eyes from flying plastic champagne corks. His study find that plastic champagne corks covered with wire mesh are harder to control than natural corks.

Fourteen cases of eye injury due to plastic champagne corks occurred in the same hospital over a five year period and were the basis of Sloan's study.

Sloan's study and its findings could have wide spread ramifications.

The surgeon general could require that champagne bottles carry a warning label that uncorking was a health hazard.

Not to be outdone by one government agency, the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OSHA) will probably require bartenders to wear protective eye and headgear.

Before you know it, insurance companies will start asking how often you drink champagne and if you uncork your own. Those of us who are known to pop the plastic cork on too many champagne bottles will be rated and have to pay a higher insurance premium.

States that were not in the champagne producing business would no doubt begin to tax champagne at a higher rate.

Packaging companies would then spend millions on research and develop a cork that was pushed into the bottle rather than popping onto unsuspecting eyes and the problem would be solved.

A courageous road for Bill

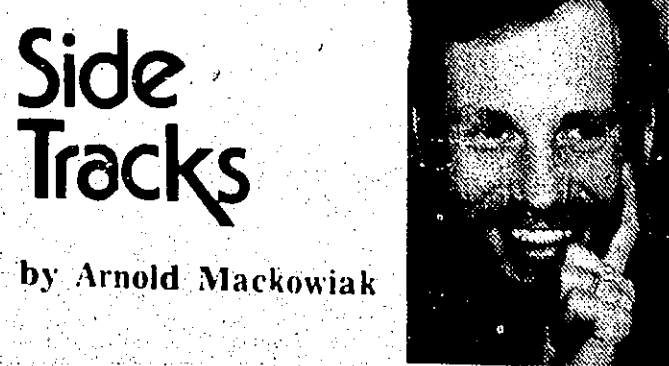

Bill Jay on his bed at his family's home in Tallahassee, Fla.

He opened his mouth to sound out a greeting to his brother. It was a moaning, squeaky sound. But his brother understood the message. Bill had uttered it many times before.

For more than a year, Bill had been paralyzed from the neck down. The strain showed on his taut face as he jerked an arm up, clutching at an extended hand. Physical therapy had returned some movement to his arms, but most of his body lay immobile, unable to change position without assistance.

A different kind of strain also showed in the face of his mother, who was responsible for Bill's care ever since his release from the hospital. It was a tired look, formed by countless days of feeding, cleaning and changing the clothes on her son's body. And because Bill had no control over bodily functions, it was not a pleasant task.

The roadway was dry and clear that one earlier day when Bill was riding his motorcycle in Florida's state capitol. He was traveling about 25 miles per hour, approaching a stop sign he'd seen many times before.

by Arnold Mackowiak

But this time, the front wheel of Bill's bike struck a small hole in the concrete highway. The jolt sent the bike across the shoulder of the road and into a ditch.

Bill was knocked free of the cycle and landed on his head, which was protected with a helmet. Dazed but conscious, he was slow to realize the effects of the blow.

And it wasn't until later in the hospital that Bill lapsed into a coma. Weeks passed before he awoke, and he could not voluntarily move any part of his body. To make matters worse, insurance benefits ran out and he was sent home from the hospital for his family to care for him.

Those are some of the grim facts of a true story. But Bill, with practically no means to communicate, really spoke to the hearts of many who met him. No one could, in good conscience, feel sorry for himself after visiting with Bill.

Not that there was any need to transfer pity to Bill, whose good humor was easy to detect as you came to know him. And the sight of Bill "playing" Monopoly with friends was not as outlandish as it may sound.

When a man loses mobility and control over his body, all that remains is courage. At least that's the impression one visitor had of Bill some five years ago.

Bill eventually found placement in a veterans' hospital elsewhere in Florida, there to continue the agonizingly slow process of physical therapy.

He's probably doing all right there. He's a hard man to forget.

Sex education week Oct. 9-15

Editor's note: The Third Annual National Family Sex Education Week is Oct. 9 through Oct. 15. The statement of purpose below is reprinted from an item from the newsletter "Impact".

We need to prepare today's youth for tomorrow's family. In order to communicate mature and responsible attitudes, parents must become the primary sex educators of their own children. We know the silence and evasiveness are just as powerful teachers as are the facts.

Everyone says that parents should be the primary sex educators, but who is preparing parents for this role? Indeed, in terms of the values and spiritual life of the child, no outside group or agency could replace the family. Thus, we see education for sexuality taking place within the context of the family's value system, which hopefully strives toward a family life free of racism, sexism and prejudices against people with other values. Most churches and educators officially support this position, but few are doing anything about it.

Studies consistently have revealed that children do not acquire the information they need from their parents. It is time for parents to assume this responsibility.

Obviously, parents who find it difficult to talk to their children about any important issue will not be ready to talk about sex. However, it seems that most parents are ready, but want some support.

In an attempt to provide this support, the LMAS District Health Department is sponsoring a two-session workshop for parents and all interested individuals. Thomas M. Kelly, professor for Sociology at Lake Superior State College, will be the guest speaker on Oct. 26 and Nov. 2 in room 1 at the Manistique High School. Each session will commence at 7 p.m. and will last till 9 p.m.

Professor Kelly's program will emphasize the development of human sexuality in the child's growth process. A discussion and question-and-answer session will help parents to develop techniques of communication on human sexuality with children. Further discussion will focus on the role of the school, church and other community organizations in the field of family life education.

Anyone who desires to attend either or both of these sessions should call the Schoolcraft County office of the LMAS District Health Department to register. The number is 341-5876.

Bethel offers traditional education

by Ed Zaske

The Bethel Baptist Christian School offers an education inspired by patriotism to children in Kindergarten through sixth grades.

Located in the church's all purposes room at 118 E. Elk Street, the school held its first session Sept. 7 with an enrollment of 21 students.

"We teach the traditional concepts of math, history, English and science," said Rev. Ron Allen, school superintendent. "We teach what most people read when they were younger. We don't try to 'dubunk' American heroes of the past."

The idea of religious education at the church started as the brainchild of a few concerned church board members nine months ago.

Since then, Rev. Allen has contacted various distinguished members of Christian universities to get their opinions on the ideal lesson plan. He obtained much help from Professor Gary LaMore of Marantha Baptist College in Watertown, Wis.

I talked to many college level presidents who said that more and more the students coming to college are getting lower grades on their entrance exams," Rev. Allen said. "We feel education is the key to bettering one's self for the future," he said. "We're not trying to replace the public school system but exercise our constitutional right to provide the best education possible for our children."

Rev. Allen described the textbooks the schools uses in this way: history as accurate and patriotic; English as cultivating good language, and math in the traditional concept.

The head teacher at the school, Mrs. Deborah Myer, said the books were designed to build character and loyalty. "They are more complete than books I've had in the public schools," said the former teacher at public schools in Houghton Lake and Manistique.

The history explains reasons and includes God in the reason where the public schools leave it out," she said.

The science is complete with experiments and the reading is a victory drill using high speed phonetics," she said.

The school also offers courses in art, music, spelling and has Bible study class. Along with Mrs. Myer who makes lesson plans and leads the class, the school has three women church members to help students on a one to one basis. The women all have varying educational backgrounds.

The school is open to anyone wishing to attend, Rev. Allen said. However, the parents of the child must be 100 percent behind the idea of Christian education.

The school keeps parents informed on a regular basis about their child's progress in class.

"Parents have noticed a more respectful attitude in their children since sending them to our school," Rev. Allen said. "We believe that love of God, love of country and love of family are the proper order of ideals to instill in a child."

Even though the school is in its first year, the church is looking forward to the future and building a better classroom with standard layout and design.

We feel the school will be a help to the community and the state," Rev. Allen said.

Learning 'The Past and the Present'

Ninety members of the Zion Lutheran Church Golden Age Group learned of local historical efforts and enjoyed turkey dinner served in Augustana Hall on Thursday, Sept. 22.

Local History: The Past and the Present" was the theme of the program presented by the Pioneer Historical Society.

Katharine H. LeBrasseur told the history of the formation of the historical society in Schoolcraft County. It began in 1901 when a group of people headed by J.C.

Wood and E. W. Miller were seeking artifacts to place in the cornerstone of the then new courthouse.

In 1919 veterans' groups and other local citizens began to collect war items and began a township history which was printed in the local paper. This group was headed by John I. Bellaire and Carl Thorberg.

In June, 1923 the Pioneer Historical Society was re-organized and by-laws were adopted. Among the people active in the group were Jennie Putnam, J. C. Wood, W. W. Miller, W. L. Orr, Dorothy Shipman was selected historian. The project in 1925 was to restore the Indian graves located at Indian Lake and to restore the Seney cemetery.

Then followed the current group headed by Msgr. Scheringer, Thor Reque, Norma Johnson, Earl H. LeBrasseur, Billie Doyle, Hazel Meron, Mr. and Mrs. John Matthews, and many others.

In 1977 the Schoolcraft County Historical Society is involved in the completion of Pioneer Park located adjacent to the Emogene Historical Museum.

Billie Doyle brought several nostalgic items from the museum for a "guess what?" portion of the program. These included old fashioned high-laced white shoes, a velvet shaving kit used for travelling, leg irons, policeman's noisemaker (before invention of whistles) foot warmer used for church members in 1898 in Boston, stereoscope and pictures, miniature set of early logging tools, baby's nursing bottle, Indian beadwork, pictures of the local food, early pioneer citizens, stores and streets.

Norma Johnson sang accompanied by autoharp, some old songs and accompanied the group in a sing-along of familiar tunes Mrs. Robert Jetty was the chairman of the meeting.

Selects officers

St. Anne's Altar Society recently met and selected the following officers for the 1977-78 year: co-presidents, Helen Davenport and Eleanor Mulhaupt; vice president, Mary Ann Borko; secretary, Faye Archey; treasurer, Jean Hawn.

Plans were made for a Parish Pot-luck Dinner on Saturday, Nov. 5, following the 4:30 mass.

In other business, a delegation of five women attended the diocesan council of Catholic women at Houghton in late September.

What is the story behind this "For Sale" sign? Is it just a house that's for sale, or is this a tale of happiness or sorrow — of success or defeat?

Let's hope this story has a happy ending! But this isn't a world of make-believe we live in. God made us human beings, not puppets. He has given us minds and bodies, nerves and muscles — and weakness as well as strength.

Maybe the story behind this house is a happy one. Maybe it's a sad one. Regardless, the people who lived here, like all of us, will be able to accept both good fortune and bad if there is yet another house in their lives.

The House of the Lord, the Church, has been built to endure through the ages. Here we will always have a home — during our lives on earth as well as throughout eternity.

We invite each and everyone of you to come into our Thrift Store, which has been moved into our basement for the colder months. We have a fine selection of crafts, quilts and afghans which would make excellent Christmas gifts, besides nice clean used clothing.

Freda Smith made an exceptionally lovely baby afghan for our Thrift Store with the proceeds going to our building fund. It was sold immediately. We have a lot of people wanting baby afghans so if you'd like to crochet we'll furnish the yarn (if you desire so) as we need more of these afghans.

Thrift store donations came for the following: Mrs. Gordon (Katherine) Hughes of Lansing, Beth Cockram, Beda Hough, Grace McLaughlin, Lydia Weinert, Russ and Tillie Tennant, Louise Strawe of Curtis and Mrs. Kenneth Pawley.

Bake goods were brought in by Edith Washburn, Frank Provo, Viola Richmire, Gladys Heinz and Florence Rubick.

Building fund donations came from Howard and Julia Dressler, Paul and Star Hanson, Mary Rozich and Beth Cockram. Memorials were given to the center in the name of: Mrs. Joseph Nelson by Elsie Creighton and Albert Asp by Dot Styles.

All of these acts of kindness are so greatly appreciated.

Birthday greetings go out to the following: Ralph Williams, Lena Thibault, Earl Hartman and Rachel Talbot, Oct. 6; Leonard Raymaker, Priscilla Gauthier, Adrienne Chernieski, Stella Brawley and Hazel Schultz, Oct. 7; Vera McFarland and Mildred Herro, Oct. 8; John Haindl, Grace McLaughlin, George MacFarland, Mary Barnes, Alice Neville, and Mary LaFever, Oct. 9; Helmer Matlin, Gladys Heinz and Helen LaFave, Oct. 10; Grace Ruddle and Milton Ketchik, Oct. 11; Agnes McManus and Inez Brown, Oct. 12; Frank Elliot, Mary Stephens, Lloyd Stull, Gertrude Orr and Lena Lambert, Oct. 13.

Beth Cockram brought in this little article "Do You Remember?"

Do you remember the Chocolate Soldiers, Pinkie and Mary Jane all two for one cent? Then Jawbreakers, who could never forget them, and the little tin dishes with candy and a little tin spoon to eat it with, all of these were just one penny each. SenSens, whatever happened to them, when did they disappear from the shelves? I almost forgot, one of the best things of the good old candy days, when our dad paid the grocery bill, the store owner gave us a bag of candy, that was the day of all days! Remember the bird cards that came in Hammer's box of soda? My mother must have used a lot of soda because I had so many of these cards. How about the agates? My brother and I had one that was clear with a big white bear in it; we sat out by the flag pole and broke it open to get the bear out, but all we ended up with was broken glass.

I recall my dad's first car. It was an Overland, side-curtains and all, and, of course, a crank. We lived about 20 miles from my Grandpa's farm and on several occasions the axle would break and my Grandpa had to come and pull the car to his farm with a team of horses. How about hay rides, sleigh rides, ice skating on a pond, barn dances and taffy pulls! The taffy would get so black and gooey, but it was delicious.

How time flies. Can you ever begin to remember when you stopped running races, turning somersaults, playing hide and seek and skipping rope? The first time you danced with a boy or vice versa. Childhood goes into the teen age, then into young adults, middle age and finally senior citizens. Isn't it amazing how the different times of your life flow into each other and you just have no idea when it all happened?

Remember the old line in a song, "Well dearie, if you remember then our much older than I". At least this is what my husband quotes me when I start to reminisce, but I just love to do it anyhow!

Big Bay de Noc nears goal of accreditation

Big Bay de Noc High School is nearing its goal of accreditation with the University of Michigan but has two major obstacles to overcome first.

The school must offer and have students taking an art class in high school and must have a guidance counselor giving at least half of his time to counseling.

High School Principal George Babladelis said the most difficult problem to overcome is obtaining an art teacher who would also teach other subjects.

An effort will be made to find an art teacher in the local area through the school newsletter. However, if this is not successful, a teacher may have to be shared with another school district. The school is presently considering the hire of a teacher who is certified as a guidance counselor.

Part of the Big Bay de Noc consolidation plan several years ago was that the high school would eventually gain accreditation. Recently, the University of Michigan inspected the school and found five areas of deficiency. The inspectors have offered to reconsider accreditation anytime this year when the high school is ready.

Other than the two areas of deficiency already mentioned, the school needs to offer a second year of a foreign language, have all teachers certified in the subjects they teach and offer more magazine titles and one more newspaper in the library.

Because the school has only offered Spanish as a foreign language this year, the problem of offering a second year of Spanish can wait until next year to be tackled. Babladelis said the problem may be solved by having students commute to a neighboring high school - probably Manistique High School because there are already buses going there twice a day.

Two teachers, one in social history and the other in science, are not certified to teach these subjects in high school. Babladelis said the problem could be solved by moving certified teachers in those subjects up from the junior high school. Then, the teachers presently teaching the high school courses would move down to teach in the junior high.

Babladelis said he was hoping the school would be accredited this year depending upon the success of finding an art teacher. He noted that the voters have given their support to the school by passing a 5.4 millage in August. He said this was a vote of confidence in the school's efforts.

Two named to Community Action board

Two replacements to the governing board of the Menominee-Delta-Schoolcraft Community Action Agency have been named.

Rev. Frank Lenz and Lois Eimerman will serve on the 46-member body which sets policy for the three-county agency.

Ruth Petrick, Community Action area representative, reported on activities of the local office during the past month. The activities were outlined at a Policy Advisory Committee meeting Thursday, Sept. 29 in Petrick's courthouse office.

Yearly progress on goals and priorities previously established by the committee were reviewed. Some goals were considered to have been accomplished and will be deleted from the list at the proper time.

In working toward recreation opportunities, plans were made to investigate and follow through funding and founding a high school age Youth Center. Initially the committee will study activities of CAA in establishing a Youth Center in Rock. Existing buildings which might be used as a center will be considered.

Any CAA meeting is open to the public, a policy which has been in effect since the inception of the agency. Locally, the Policy Advisory Committee meets at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse on the fourth Thursday of the month, unless otherwise posted in the office of the area representative.

Room for one more?

Allison is loveable

Little Allison is a loveable child at two who now does things most babies can do at nine months. She can roll over and sit alone but doesn't crawl yet. She still eats strained baby food.

Allison

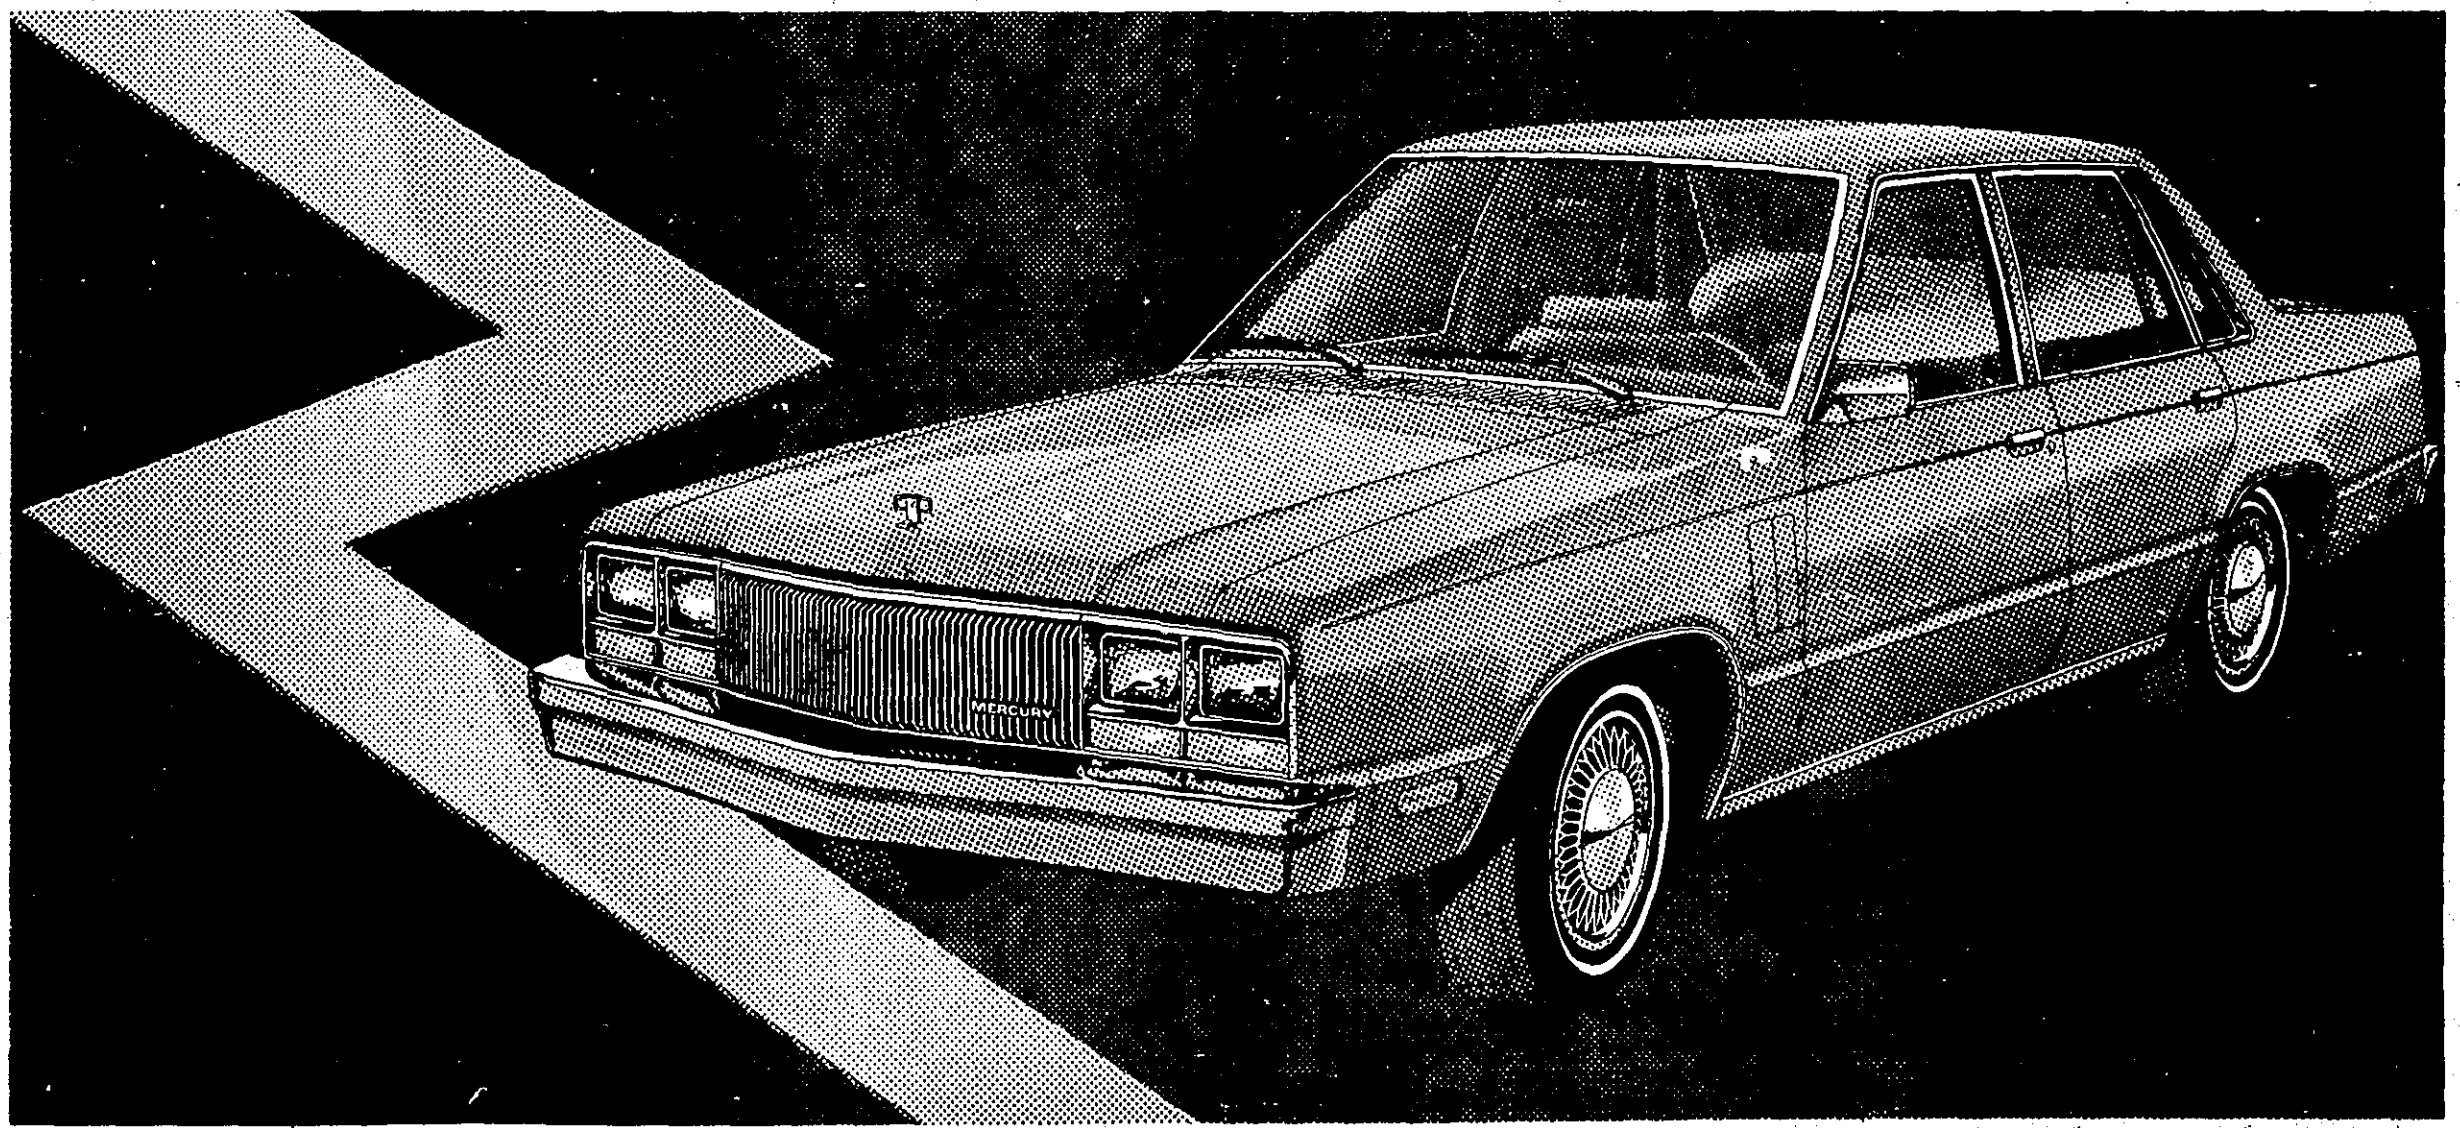

Allison also seems to have auditory and visual disinterest. This means she only responds to bright colors and loud noises nearby. She'll need a lot of stimulation in these areas to awaken her interest.

In spite of her many special problems, Allison is "real cuddly, real lovable and so good natured. She seldom cries," according to her foster mother. Allison also has a foster father and teenage foster sisters who have really enjoyed working with and spoiling her.

If you would like to help Allison find her potential in a loving adoptive home, contact the Dept. of Social Services at 341-2114.

Introducing Supertuner.

Two years ago we wondered what would happen if we built a car stereo that had the specs of a home stereo system.

So we told our engineers to forget about price—just build the State of the Art Car Stereo.

They did. It's called Supertuner.

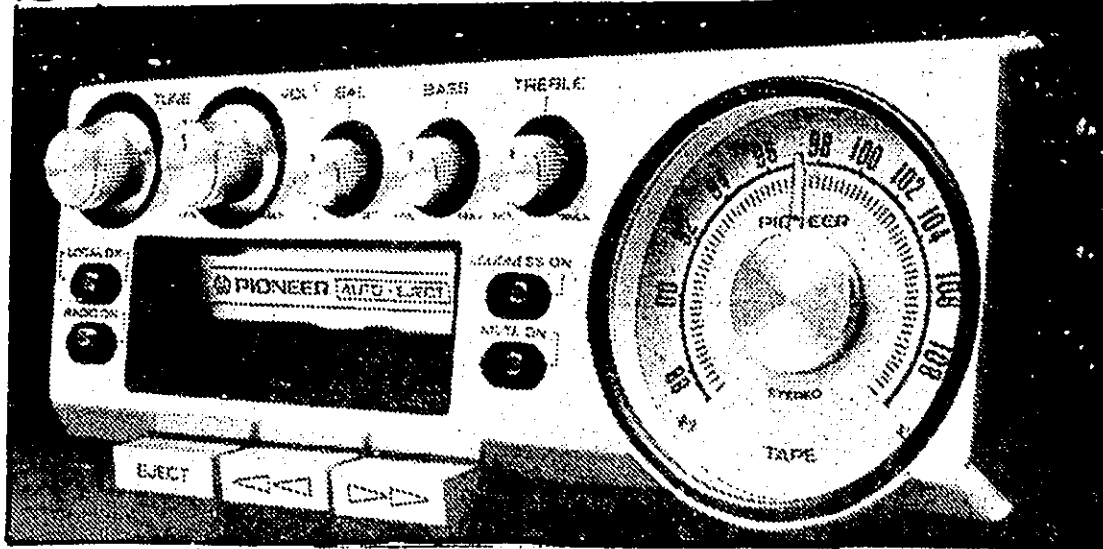

And to prove that specs don't lie, we tested it 75 feet below the rim of the Grand Canyon. Supertuner got a super signal.

The others? Nothing.

We think it's the best car stereo ever built. SUPERTUNER

A tote road jaunt

Bolstered by my absolute assurance that a complete system of good tote roads paved the entire route, my wife joined me on an eight mile jaunt around the lake last weekend. Lord knows I didn't lie to her but somehow she felt betrayed. Personally I think her total lack of observation was a far greater factor than my lousy judgment. For example;

While I was getting re-fired up by a buck rub first observed last fall...she was equally excited about a camouflaged patch of ooze I'd been smart enough to avoid.

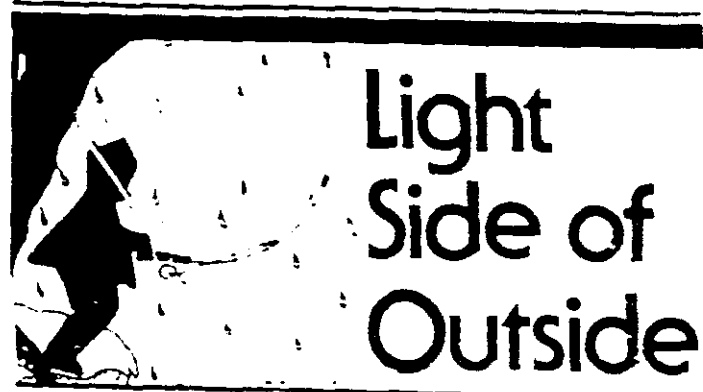

While I enjoyed a pilated woodpecker overhead...she concentrated on the six-foot thimbleberry bushes carpeting my road.

While I enjoyed the colorful cluster of fungi...a log half-buried in the road...she wasn't even aware of the log. Not at first, anyway.

While I was showing her evidence of a bear's recent presence and commenting on his fall diet...she concentrated on the trail behind us, which we'd already seen.

While I enjoyed the colorful vista across a valley ahead...she kept complaining how unexciting my behind was.

While I was wondering whether that new beaver dam flooding my road might bear some consideration next spring...she was considering the narrow jumble of sticks and mud which was the only bridge in sight.

And while I was becoming self-satisfied with my ability to sleuth out faint intersections...she was totally convinced we had been lost for the past hour. And she suggested that grandmas shouldn't be subjected to all the pleasures we were enjoying.

Perhaps she's right and I really have become inconsiderate in recent years. Next time, I think I'll take her for a hike along East Bluff...there's a heck of a good tote road running its entire length.

At least there was, eight-ten years ago...

Precautions to heed on skunk, bat rabies

"Although no animals have been found to have rabies in the Eastern Upper Peninsula in 1977, certain precautions should be observed concerning animal bites," states Dr. James Terrian, health officer for the Luce-Mackinac-Alger-Schoolcraft District Health Department.

Because skunks and bats are among the wild animals most frequently reported with rabies, persons who are bitten by skunks or bats should immediately seek medical care, and if it is at all possible the biting animal should be killed and submitted to the local health department for laboratory analysis of the brain.

Under no circumstances should the brain be extensively damaged, Dr. Terrian says.

In general, bites from skunks and bats are considered to be dangerous, and likely to produce rabies. Unless the brain of the biting animal can be examined and shown to be free of rabies, anti-rabies treatment is necessary.

The rabies risk from bites of other wild animals such as field mice or chipmunks, is reported to be zero. No small rodent, either wild or domestic, has been found to have rabies virus in the brain by the Michigan Department of Public Health laboratories.

Bites from field mice, chipmunks, squirrels, and domestic mice, hamsters, gerbils, etc. should receive good local cleaning and the tetanus immunization should be maintained at current level. (Tetanus shots are recommended at ten year intervals.)

Call your physician or the health department for information on what to do in case of animal bites, Dr. Terrian concludes.

Seek applications for seniors project

ESCANABA--Community Action's senior citizens project is seeking applicants for a work program designed for people 55 years of age and older.

"It is a worker-trainee program for low-income elderly," says Francis Schneider, Upper Peninsula field supervisor. Ms. Schneider works with the Green Thumb Program which is sponsored in Michigan by the National Farmers Union.

Through Green Thumb, elderly workers are placed in private, non-profit organizations on a part-time basis.

More information about the employment program can be obtained from Sue Jergensen at 786-7080 or from Wanda Kimbler, state project director, at 1-313-283-6127.

SENIOR CITIZENS and handicapped persons in Schoolcraft County have been using the Dial-A-Ride transportation available through the Senior Citizens Center. The Schoolcraft County Easter Seal Society recently helped underwrite some of the expense for one of the vans used in the transportation program. Presenting Eileen Males, transportation director, with a $500 check are Mrs. Olga Anderson, left, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert Broullire, president of the East Seal Society in Schoolcraft County. The money will be used to help offset the expenses of the handicapped and wheelchair van. The van is equipped with a special lift for the handicapped and wheelchair user.
