County fair site opposed; meeting set for tonight

A county-approved location for a multipurpose building to house the 1977 Schoolcraft County Fair has drawn fire because of its proximity of the county health are

The fair board has scheduled a meeting at 7 p.m. today at the courthouse to discuss the building location.

Dr. Lawrence Sell, president of the Manistique Health Associates Corp, told the Manistique City Council Monday night that it seemed "somewhat ludicrous to build a building that would stunt the growth of the second largest employer in the country."

Dr. Sell said the proposed location of the building on 2.75 acres of county-owned land north of the Manistique Medical Center would hinder potential growth of the health care complex, which also includes Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital and the Schoolcraft County Medical Care Facility.

James Gardner, hospital administrator, told the council he voiced strong opposition to the location when contracted by a fair board member.

Gardner said the site adjacent to a rear emergency entrance from Lake Street, would cause undesireable traffic congestion, plus noise and odors that would Kelly said. The site has advantages over bother patients.

Dr. Sell said no one representing the fair board had contacted him about the site. "We are not against the building," he explained. "We are against the location." Elvin Hepker, county extension director coordinating the fair building project, told the county board in June that the talked to personnel at the medical center and no objection was raised concerning the site. Hepker was in Lansing this week to get verification of matching funds through the Department of Agriculture. The department was expected to match $30,048 in CETA Title VI money approved to cover construction labor costs, with $33,103 in parimutuel funds for materials.

Last week, a contract was signed between the Schoolcraft County Fair Association and the Six-County Consortium to release the CETA funds. The action followed a fair meeting on Wednesday night, at which the hospital board trustees, the county township association and the Schoolcraft County Horse Council objected to the site for different reasons. Pat Kelly, fair board chairman, told the Pioneer-Tribune Tuesday that the site is still the best one for the planned 80 by 200 foot pole-type building.

"It's not something we jumped into," others that were considered, he said, because of the accessibility of city water and sewer lines and police service.

An in-city location is better than one outside of town, he added, because the multi-purpose building would be closer to a large percentage of the county population.

Kelly said the board is "substantially committed" to the site and building, which is proposed for winter use as an indoor ice hockey rink, and also as an arena for horse shows during the summer.

He added, however, that if arguments were strong enough on the opposite side. the site selection committee might be asked to review alternative sites.

Dan Pitcher, summer extension assistant working on the fair project, said that fair plans are proceeding, though eight CETA workers to construct the building cannot be hired until matching funds are approved.

"We're going ahead with the fair regardless of the building situation," Pitcher said, "because we've planned it. It will be somewhere." The fair is set for Aug. 27-28.

At the council meeting Monday night, Dr. Sell and Gardner heard that the city zoning board would have to first approve a zoning variance on the proposed location. City Manager Robert Risik said the meeting would be held in the next week or How lucky can you get?

Last Thursday was a day that can occur only once in a century. And Heidi Jo Joslin and Mark Rakozy were smack in the middle of fortune's path. The day was the seventh day of the seventh month of '77. It was also the day that Heidi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Joslin of River Road, celebrated her seventh birthday. On that same day, about half past 7 p.m., a boy was born to Mr. and Mrs.

William E. Rakozy of 646 Manistique Ave. at Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. Little Mark William Rakozy is the seventh grandchild for Mr. and Mrs. William Rakozy of Yuba City, Calif.

Did he weigh in at 7 pounds, 7 ounces? No such luck. Mark was 9 pounds 5 ounces and 22½ inches long.

Williams joins Munising News

After 15 years in the commercial printing department of the Manistique Pioneer-Tribune, John Williams is leaving the newspaper to enter a new partnership at the Munising News. Williams has purchased the interest of Stanley L. Sadak in the combination newspaper, commercial printing and office supply business. Final arrangements on the sale of Sadak's interest were completed Friday and Williams has joined Mike Kiley as new co-owner of the company. A 1959 graduate of Manistique High School, Williams, 36, is married to the former Christine Tobin of Gulliver. The couple has one daughter, Gina, 8. For the immediate future, they plan to maintain

Bailey's case settled on reduced charges

Noted trial lawyer F. Lee Bailey will not be appearing in Schoolcraft County Circuit Court to defend a Newberry man who had been charged with several counts of arson. Gifford Smith, attorney for Robert J. Somers Jr. of Newberry, said this week that Somers has pleaded guilty to three counts of malicious destruction under $100, a misdemeanor. The charges each carry a maximum 90 days in jail and-or $100.

Smith said the reduced charges are the result of plea bargaining by attorney James Merbeig, an associate in Bailey's

The guilty pleas to the lesser charges was entered in Luce County Circuit Court on July 6, 1977. Two others charged with Somers have not yet come to trail.

Somers originally was charged with three counts of arson and one count of consipiracy to committ arson in connection with a series of fires in Newberry last year that burned three houses belonging to Clifford Erickson, formerly of Newberry. The fires allegedly were set because vacant houses were reportedly blocking federal aid sought by Somers for a low income housing project in Newberry. Removal of those houses had been requested by the Farmers Home Administration, coordinators of the project, before grant approval would be given.

Walter Blakely and David Casewell, both of Newberry, were named in the conspiracy charge. Smith indicated that School issues posed

by Mark Eisenlohr

Should athletic offerings at Manistique High School be restricted or expandea: Should the school district offer a broad and encompassing athletic program, as is now attempted in the district? Will declining enrollment and budget limitations, permit the closing of one elementary school?

How much reduction can the district stand in the areas of operation and maintenance before those reductions become detrimental? These were some of the questions put to the Manistique Area School Board of Education at their regular meeting, Tuesday, July 12.

The questions were brought up as the board of education read a revision of a tentative budget made earlier this spring. The board is faced with presenting a balanced budget in light of a 4.5 millage request defeat this past June.

Superintendent Richard Bonifas presented to the board several alternatives to solving budget problems, most dealing with reductions of programs or non-replacement of departing teachers.

"It's obvious, the alternatives to the board are really minimal," the superintendent said Wednesday.

"Whether or not you run another election, you will have to present a balanced budget to the state before the election could even take place," he added. The board will consider areas in which they will have to make reductions before final action is taken. That action is deciding where reductions would have to be made. Following the business portion of the meeting Tuesday night, the board recessed to executive session for negotiation

The board also heard a report from Community Schools Director, James Mc-Donough on the closing of the pool for the summer. Financial difficulties were cited for the closing by McDonough, who said that had the pool opened, the community school would have run a $1,353 deficit over

Al Schuster, speaking in behalf of the Manistique Area Community School Pool Advisory Committee, questioned the logic behind the closing and suggested that "the school spend a little to get a little." Schuster told the board that seldom does a pool, located in a community for the first time, pay for itself. He added that an interest in the pool has to be generated and that it could not be done by closing it off. Board vice president James Goudreau commented on the closing, calling it a. "sad situation."

"We had a little money left over in the kitty. What did we spend it on? Why don't area?" Goudreau asked.

budget review with possible reductions to be made, was just held prior to the discussion on the pool. "We don't even know if our kids are going to have enough guidance counselors. much less have the pool open in the fall,' Steinfeldt commented. "I know you have to spend a little to make a little but I don't see how we can spend it," he told the board and members of the audience.

Bonifas discounted rumors that the pool would be drained for the month of August and it was suggested by board members that MCDonough study the possiblity of opening the pool for open swimming in a few weeks.

McDonough will make a recommendation to the board at their next meeting. In other action taken at the board meeting Tuesday night: -the board accepted the voluntary services of Margaret Waters and John Mincoff to look into the possibility of extending a lease to Mueller Township for the purpose of constructing a tennis court. The township currently leases the land at the old Mueller School but is on a 10-year basis. According to Wells Bowers, township supervisor, in order to receive federal funds they would have to have a lease for 20 to 25 years. -The board approved the transportation policy recently drawn up by a transportation committee consisting of school officials and citizens. The 21-page booklet was read by Bonifas It explained the rules, regulations and procedures concerning bus transportation to and from schools, extra curricular activities, and field trips.

Fair will be for everyone

by Caris Keener 4-H Program Assistant

The recently formed Schoolcraft County Fair Board is sponsoring the first county fair in many, many years. This will be a fair for everyone young and old to participate in and enjoy. Fair weekend is set for Aug. 27 and 28.

Along with plans for a county fair is a project to build a large fair building. "The Miracle Building," as fair board members presently call it. It scheduled for completion this summer. The building is to be funded 100 percent by government money, with the county commissiners cooperating to pay for materials until the funds are received to reimburse them.

County Extension Director Elvin Hepker, who has led the fair board in the planning, has reservations in expecting the building to be completed in time for the fair weekend. Alternative plans will be announced concerning where the fair will be held when the project has progressed further.

Some of the fair weekend features are live animal exhibits, a county queens contest, craft and hobby exhibits, 4-H open horse show, an all-day chicken barbecue, and much more. The fair board soon will be printing a fair booklet explaining all of the activities and exhibits for fair weekend. Advertisements for businesses may be purchased for inclusion in the booklet. Prices will be geared to only cover the cost of the booklet. Individual sponsorships are available for adults and youth at a cost of $2 and $1, respectivley. Sponsors will be having their name listed in the 1977 fair booklet.

Commercial, church, and organization booths and exhibits are encouraged for participation in the county fair. Space will be available free to any such group by requesting space in advance from the county fair board. This may be done by contacting Daniel Pitcher at the county extension office, 341-5050.

Anyone requesting to sell food will be required to obtain a food vending permit from the county health department. Early requests are urged.

indicated that Mr. Walter McClintock will be contacted relative to information for Manistique. SIDEWALK

John Mincoff, Denton Nelson, and Margaret Waters volunteered to serve on a committee to review the matter of placing a sidewalk from the parking lot to the corner of Cedar and Main Streets. TITLE

Mr. Bonifas reported to the Board members that the Manistique Area Schools had been awarded a grant of $105,712 for ESEA Title I for the fiscal year 1977.78.

GASOLINE COMPETITIVE BIDDING Mr. Bonifas informed the Board of Education that all schools using less than 85,000 gallons annualy may advertise for bids on gasoline. The Manistique Area Schools uses less than 85,000 annually.

SUMMER PROGRAM

Mr. Bonifas discussed briefly the ESEA Title I programs being conducted during the summer months.

FOOD SERVICE

Manistique Area Schools received $8,435.-03 as the state matching monies for the Food and Non-Food Reimbursement request. All monies will be deposited in the School Service Fund as required by the

VICA PARTICIPANTS

Mr. Bonifas explained that Edison Sault Electric Company had given $150 for the Manistique Area Schools student to compete in the national VICA electrical contest. He indicated that James Goudreau had called his attention to the fact that the Manistique Area Schools student did not have a sponsor. COLLEGE CETA

The Manistique Area Schools had applied for six slots for college work study and were approved for one. An applicant has been hired to work in the secondary clerical office for the summer.

SECTION 47 The Board members were informed that the Manistique Area Schools application for Section 47 funding had been denied for fiscal year 1977-78. Mr. Bonifas indicated that we will submit another application next year.

BUDGET REVIEW Discussion on budget review will take place at July 12 meeting. ADJOURNMENT

Denton Nelson moved, supported by Billie

Doyle that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried with seven yes votes. trict operates. The Board of Education Time: 10:45 P.M.

Search for facts about old industry

A couple of different things that relate to a couple of different things:

John Girven stopped in this past week with an idea of running some columns on past industry in Manistique. I thought it would be a good idea and he promised to find a copy of the Mansitique Centennial pamphlet which listed some facts about local industry down through the years.

We couldn't find one in our files, but he said that a few people might still have them. He did say that the motto on the cover of the book was "With knowledge of the past, we look to the future." This past week I came across the Germfask Centennial (1866-1966) with the same motto. I wonder if this was the book he was thinking of?

I received some correspondence and comments from people on the column I ran two weeks ago concerning the short story on the reporter and elderly man. (Thanks for the letter, mom).

I would be interested in doing more of this if people enjoy this type of writing. I would like to reconstruct a day or two in Manistique around 1929 but would need some insight into the era. Write me a letter or give me a call if you have any information that could be of help.

Article appearing in the paper around "On a pleasant Sunday evening drivers are supposed to find attractions on almost any other statistician but David is very exact and if he says a car passed a given point every ten seconds we cannot doubt the fact.'

Over the past weeks that I have been writing this column. I have heard comments from some people that I'm too young to write a column on the history of Manistique and surrounding area. "After all," they would say, "he is only 21."

The reason I have been able to write anything at all has not been by knowledge of the area, but other people's knowledge of the area. I am but a mere chronicler of But, rest assured, I will reach the age where I can write on experience. Like just this past week I reached another stepping stone to my retirement. I turned 22.

Recently a friend told me of a brewery that was once located on Indian River, several miles north of here.

I couldn't find anything on it and I have never heard mention of the place previously. Perhaps someone out there tested the product at one time and could verify the existense of such a place.

Interesting things I found in route to looking up other intersting things:

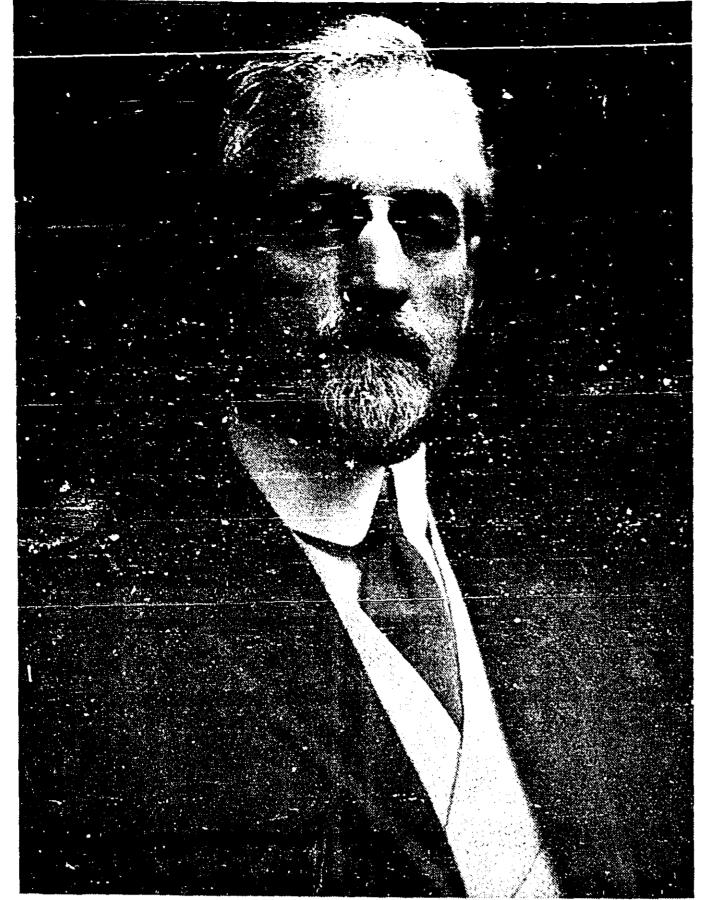

Small family desires servant girl. Good wages paid to the party capable of doing the work. Inquire at this office. The following phones have been installed

July's cast of insect pests: a detailed bug by bug analysis for the homeowner

Michigan State University Extension entomologists describe some of the insect pests that homeowners are likely to encounter this month. Here they are, bug Apple Maggot The apple maggot is the most serious insect pest of home-grown apples. It will attack any variety of apple, as well as crabapples.

Adult apple maggot flies begin to emerge from the soil, where they spent the winter as pupae, in late June or early July and continue to emerge all summer. The ilies are about one-fourth inch long and black, with clear wings banded in black.

A few days after they emerge, they begin to lay eggs beneath the skin of the apples. When the eggs hatch, the larvae tunnel around inside the fruit to feed. In the fall, after the fruit have dropped from the tree, the larvae bore their way out and burrow into the soil to pupate.

A regular spray program is necessary to prevent apple maggot damage to fruit. The MSU entomologists advise spraying for the first time about seven days afteryou see the first fly, and every 10 to 14 days after that. Use diazinon or Sevin according to label directions.

Keep fallen fruit cleaned up to cut down next year's fly population, the MSU specialists advise. By picking up and destroying the fruit once a week, you also destroy the larvae inside. You won't eliminate the problem altogether, but you will keep at least some individuals from contributing to it.

Ants As long as ants stay outdoors, they usually provide no probelm for homeowners. Outdoors they tend aphids to feed on the honeydew the aphids secrete or they scavenge dead insects and worms. Their tunneling in lawns does not usually harm

Ants coming into the home in search of. food can be quite a nuisance, however. To prevent an infestation, find out where the ants are coming in. Seal up holes around pipes or cracks in the foundation, and then spray around the foundation of the house. Search out the ants' nest and treat that, too. If the ants are coming in, the nest is probably near the foundation.

To treat ants in lawn areas, use chlordane, malathion or diazinon. The watering it in. Keep children and pets off If the commission accepts the DNR the lawn for a few days, especially if you use chlordane. Mexican Bean Beetle spots. The larva is oval-shaped and yellowish, with lots of hairy spines around the edge. Large numbers of larvae feeding on the foliage of bean plants can drastically reduce yields.

The Mexican bean beetle is a relative of Ingham, Ionia, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Len- the ladybird beetle. Unlike its predator cousin, the bean beetle feeds on plant foliage.

The Mexican bean beetle usually appears in June. Numbers increase as the summer goes by. The MSU entomologists advise spraying with malathion or Sevin as soon as you see the larvae skeletonizing leaves. Continue to spray as needed, following label directions.

Garden sanitation can help reduce the bean beetle problem in next years garden. The mexican bean beetle spends the winter as an adult in plant debris. Remove this from the garden and destroy or compost it to eliminate at least some of next year's parent generation. Colorado Potato Beetle

Potatoes are not the only item on the menu of the Colorado potato beetle. Eggplant, tomatoes and peppers - all relatives of the potato - and petunias are also plagued by this pest.

The adult Colorado potato beetle is oval-shaped and about three-eighths inch long. Its hard wing covers are yellow with black head-to-tail stripes. The larvae are soft-bodied, hump-backed little critters. They are orangish with black spots on each side and three pairs of black legs at the front end.

Adults begin to emerge in May, about the time young plants are being transplanted into the garden. They mate and lay eggs on the leaves. In a few days, the larvae hatch and begin to feed. They feed for two or three weeks, then pupate and emerge as adults. The new adults then mate and lay eggs, feed awhile and hibernate. They spend the winter in garden debris and along fence rows.

Begin control sprays of Sevin as soon as you spot the insects, and continue to spray every 10 days throughout the summer ... In the fall, clean up dead plant materials in the garden to eliminate some of the adults and their hiding places. Cabbage Worms

Those small white butterflies that flutter over your garden aren't as harmless as they look. Their larvae are the velvety green cabbage worms that munch on cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and Brus-

On cabbage, the caterpillars tend to feed

inside the head. They chew large, ragged holes in the leaves and soil the head with their droppings. On the other cole crops, they feed on the foliage.

Egg laying goes on all summer, so control is a continuing problem. The MSU entomologists recommend spraying with Bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial disease that is toxic only to plant feeding insects. If you choose chemical controls like Sevin, diazinon or malathion, use them when the worms are very small for best results. Follow label directions. Aphids and there's probably an aphid after it. Aphids damage a wide variety of plants by feeding on plant juices. They are small, soft-bodied insects that can build up huge populations seemingly overnight, especially in warm, dry weather. An infestation usually begins with an invasion of winged aphids. Later generations are wingless. Because they tend to feed on the under sides of leaves, they often go undetected until their feeding has noticeably distorted plant growth.

Check plants regularly, the MSU experts adivse, and spray with malathion - or diazinon, except on squash and pumpkins as soon as aphids appear. Be Careful to spray the undersides of the leaves as well as the tops and plant stems.

Winged aphids are always flying into the garden or home grounds, so don't count on one spray to solve the problem. Keep checking and spray as needed throughout the summer, following label directions at

For a neat, healthy lawn, change your mowing pattern each time you mow.

Turfgrass specialists at Michigan State University explain that varying the mowing pattern distributes traffic and wear more uniformly over the lawn. It makes high and low spots less obvious and prevents lawn mower tracks from becoming marked.

The easiest way to avoid following the same path each time you mow is to mow across the path you followed last time. Mow length-wise one time, diagonally the next, then crosswise. Or follow a circular pattern, starting at the edge and working toward the center.

Whenever possible, make turns on sidewalks or driveways rather than on the edge of the lawn. If you must turn on the grass, make a wide sweeping turn rather than a rapid, spinning turn. Quick turns on the turf can lead to bruising and tearing and eventual thinning of the turf.

To keep you lawn healthy, keep your mower sharp and properly adjusted. Dull blades tear rather than cut the grass blades. This may result in browning of the lawn and increased susceptibility to

City has fair building role

It would be well to have city participation tonight when The Schoolcraft County Fair Board meets at the county courthouse to discuss a location for a multi-purpose building proposed for construction this summer.

The board's favored site, on nearly three acres due north of a parking area for the medical center adjacent to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital, has been challenged by officials of the medical complex that also includes the Schoolcraft County Medical Care Facility.

The site, on county-owned land west of a school baseball diamone as been opposed on three counts:

-it closes off an avenue for potential inture growth of the medical complex. The complex also is bordered by Lakeview Cemetery to the east and residences across Main Street to the south.

-- a back route to the hospital off Lake Street would be used by traffic to and from the proposed building, possibly creating congestion on one of two emergency entrances.

-noise and odors from the 80 by 200 foot building, a few hundred feet from the complex, could be undersireable for patients.

From the fair board's perspective, the site is preferable because of relatively easy access to water and sewer service. It also provides easier access than an out of town location for its proposed winter use as an indoor ice rink...

There are other potential sites in the Central Park area, but these are on city-controlled land.

But city council approval apparently will be needed in order to give the fair board some flexibility in choosing another site for a multi-purpose building, if that is deemed advisable. And for that reason, the city should have representatives at the meeting tonight.

Such participation could facilitate the construction of a building that would have a variety of uses throughout the year, and not simply at county fair time, an event to be revived for the first time in 44 years on Aug. 27-28.

No doubt about it, time savers get rich two minutes, or $200. The Journal also described a new standup desk which is popular with Big Business. It has a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation." Oh me. I would not lie and tell you I wouldn't like to have a million bucks. I realize money doesn't buy happiness, but it certainly buys a lot of marvelous things that make me happy. I can be as ambitious and greedy as the next guy. Unless the counters described in the Journal.

Acting out of moral responsibility To the Editor:

Dear Name Witheld on Request.

Hopefully, this will be my last letter to the editor for awhile. Being in the spotlight really is not my cup of tea, believe it or not! I much prefer staying at home minding my own business. However, I do feel your letter necessitates a response.

I find it very difficult to discuss any subject intelligently with someone who takes potshots at my back, then disappears into a closet: We are fortunate to live in a country which allows people to express their opinions. If we forfeit that freedom, we might as well live in Russia, because that's the kind of government we can expect to have once people become too apathetic to speak out.

I would like to clarify Mrs. Doyle's and my position as to why we were at the hospital board meeting. It would take more nerve than either of us possesses, to go in front of this group with nothing more to back us than a friendship.

We felt obligated to inform the board of the concerns of a great many people who have contacted us, many who are lifelong residents of this community. Nurses object to charges

There has been much published in your newspaper recently regarding the recent change in status of the Director of Nurses at the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital. As staff members, we have read and been outraged at the many injustices a few members of the community have done to us in their supposed defenses of Fran Holthus. Their information is of questionable reliability and their statements include some blatant untruths.

One example is the petty statement accusing the staff of taking two-hour coffee breaks. That is almost laughable Evelyn Hagan, R.N. and is a falsehood, especially to those of us who have frequently forfeited not only our coffee breaks but our mealtimes to fulfill the numerouse needs of our patients.

Fran Holthus has been referred to as Andrea Alexander LPN dedicated. Most of us would agree with that. But her effectiveness as Director of Nurses was sadly diminished by the numerous personality conflicts with staff Mary M. McBurney P.N.

The tension and hostilities arising from these conflicts made working conditions very difficult and resulted in the loss of numberous highly qualified, dedicated and badly needed staff members. These RN's, LPN's, nurse's aides, orderlies and ward clerks who found these tensions unbearable, and thus left, comprised a total of 50 years dedicated service. When a situation's disadvantages outweighs its advantages, a change must be made.

Those of us remaining at Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital do not feel that the quality of patient care has diminished since the Director of Nurses has left. We are professionals who find satisfaction in doing our job to the best of our abilities. We want and need a Director of Nurses for guidance, for teaching and for support. But we are angered and highly insulted at the unjust insinuations that we are unwilling or incapable of functioning effectively without our past Director or Nurses.

YCC opens at Seney

SENEY-The first day for the 1977 Youth Conservation Corps Camp at Senev National Wildlife Refuge was Monday, June

YCC Staff and Refuge personnel spent the preceeding week making final preparations for this summer's activities, planning work projects and priorities, and environmental learning programs before the selected enrollees reported for the 1977 – camp program.

The session will last eight weeks, ending on Aug. 12.

Following the first day activities, which included general orientation to the refuge. safety training, a get-acquainted session and a refuge tour, all enrollees started their first work projects on Tuesday, June 21. Work projects include cutting brush at the refuge show pools along Highway M-77, brush removal from nesting islands, erosion control and painting buildings. The 20 young adults, 10 boys and 10 girls, enrolled in the Seney YCC Camp this summer range in age from 15 to 18 and attend high school in Newberry, Manistique and Grand Marais.

Things to see His Wathaland

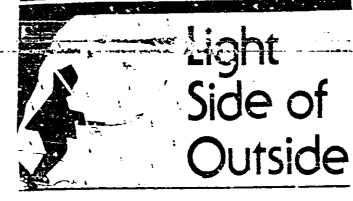

Good guys, bad guys square off ...but frustration never ceases

According to the script, most final encounters between the good guys and the bad guvs stands and dly against floodlights, amidst the shriex of sirens, squealing tires and total organization. Maneuvers between conservation officers and suspected violators which frequently take place in the dark of swamps or night seldom enjoy such precision and every officer has a few unreported fiascos tucked away in the back of the closet.

in gratitude for cracking the closet door and letting a little humor out, Ed and Duke will forever remain partially anonymous.

Picture a dark night and a big dog easing up on Ed and Duke who were easing up on his poaching master...simple for Ed to stifle warning yips by clamping down on dog's muzzle...not quite so easy to hang on...and totally inadvisable to let go. But that's why officers work together and Duke's blackjack would certainly have provided a temporary solution to the problem if Ed's knuckles hadn't cushioned the blow.

When a husky "small game" hunter wraps his fist around a couple loads of buckshot and buries it in his pocket, it's virtually impossible for one conservation officer to extract the evidence. On the other hand, according to Duke, a partner is of little assistance when he joins the males and bends the wrong thumb back.

Early one bitter moonlit November night. Ed and Duke heard rifle shots near an abandoned farm, spotted suspect vehicle in the shadows of an old barn and surrounded the field to await departure of car with venison. Ignoring neighboring shots in favor of a sure thing, the waiting game continued until amost midnight but the car in the shadows...the one without engine or wheels...out-waited them.

Dynamiting a vacant beaver lodge to discourage the return of nuisance beavers was always pretty much routine work... especially with Duke poised at the oars for a hasty departure. But when the fuse is short and an oar breaks on the first stroke, no way can Ed's frantic hand-paddling match strokes with the remaining oar .. and the boat continued its neat little circles to await the explosion of mud, sticks and adientices From this side of the law, at least, all conservation officers seem to share a great sense of humor...with the many frustrations experienced between violation and penalty, they need it!

Eat for 'peanuts'

Sunny Shores Restaurant on East Lakeshore Drive is listed in an "Eating for Peanuts" feature in the July issue of Michigan Living Motor News.

The magazine, official publication of the Automobile Club of Michigan, names the restaurant as one of 16 in the U.P. that offers inexpensive dining.

The partial listing of moderately-priced restaurants fell under the issue's theme, "How to Save Money and Have Fun.

stop on the auto tour routes. Each year bald eagles return reduce the first to me coragnet territories, begin their elaborate courtshir and pre-nesting activities, and prepart their nests for the new season. Egg laying usually begins about mid-March and hatching follows after about 35 days incubation. The young eagles develor rapidly and are capable of flight by the end of July.

Bald Eagles leave the refuge in late fall each year as the refuge pools freeze and snow accumulates, denying the birds then staple diet of fish. The exact wintering area of the eagles that nest at Seney is unknown, since few banded eagles are ever recovered. Major concentrations wintering eagles do occur along ice-fre stretches of the Mississippi River bord ering southern Minnesota, and along the Missouri River in South Dakota chicken... try some!

by Eileen Males

Last weekend was my 30th year class reunion, as I last graduated from Clintonville High School so I was looking forward to it with anticipation.

I thought for being a middle-aged menopausal female, I still wasn't in too bad a shape; in fact, better than 30 years ago when at the height of 5'7" I was 98 pounds and a rack of skin and bones.

those days when they didn't have padded bras and goodies to help skinny people out. I had acquired 30 more pounds over the years and most of it had gone to the right places and some extra had fallen below the waistline so that wasn't too bad. Getting tanned from the summer sun and a new outfit. I was all set to go.

The previous night Bill and I were playing cribbage and I said "I'm getting a peachy backache. I've got this catch in my right side and when I move, my right leg really hurts." It hurt all night and when Saturday morning came I could hardly get out of bed. What a backache!

I envisaged being wheeled into my reunion is a wheelchair 'cause I had determined come whatever and high water I was going. Bill looked at me with concern and said "You think you can make, it honey?" and I replied. "We're going!"

Operation Sunshine having problems

ESCANABA-Manistique's Operation of special kids. Sunshine site will not open this summer as liam Dubord, project director. Dubord cited funding problems as the main reason for the non-opening

"Hopes were stirred up for the opening when we heard some Comprehensive Massey, Alma Bundy, Kenneth Cutler, Employment and Training Act (CETA) Gerry Hoholik and John Larson, July 14; slots would be available," Dubord said. "However, by the time the slots would Sheldon, Clarence Whalen, Frances Rayhave been ready, the site would just get maker, Marie Reid and Ann Gregurash, rolling and then have to stop.'
